toss (tôs; 185), n. 1. Act of tossing or state or fact of being tossed; as, the toss of a ball or of one's head; a toss from a horse; to endure the constant toss of the ship.
2. State of agitation; commotion; excitement.

What are you in such a "toss" for, brother Rook? J. C. Powys.

3. A tossup; a wager; a chance.
4. Tossing distance; as, it is within the toss of a ball. toss, n. A drinking cup. Obs. toss, n. = 3d TOAST, 1. Scot.
toss'er (tôs'ĕr), n. One who or that which tosses. tos'si·cat'ed (tôs'ĭ·kāt'ĭd), adj. Intoxicated. Dial. Eng.
toss'ing (tôs'ĭng), n. 1. The act of one who tosses; the state or fact of being tossed.
2. Metal. An operation in refining tin, consisting in taking the molten metal in a ladle and pouring it back in a fine stream to oxidize impurities. toss'ing, adj. That tosses or is tossed. — toss'ing·ly, adv.
toss'ment (tôs'mĕnt), n. A tossing or being tossed. Rare.
toss'pot' (-pŏt'), n. Toper; drunkard. toss'up' (-ŭp'), n. Act of tossing up, as of a coin to determine a chance; hence, an even chance; an issue as improbable as probable. "This might not be one in the end — but it was clearly a tossup." Galsworthy.
toss'y (tôs'ĭ), adv. Tossing the head, as in scorn; disdainful. Rare.
‖tos'ta·men'te (tôs'tä·mĕn'tā), adv. [It.] Music. Rapidly; — a direction. Rare.
tos·tão' (tŭs·toun'), n. [Pg.] A Portuguese silver coin equal to 100 reis. Cf. TESTON. Obs. tos'ti·cate (tôs'tĭ·kāt), v. t. & i.; -CAT'ED (-kāt'ĭd); -CAT'ING (-kāt'ĭng). To intoxicate or become intoxicated; also, to distract; harass; — chiefly in past participle. — tos'ti·ca'tion (-kā'shŭn), n. Both Now Dial.
‖tos'to (tôs'tō), adj. [It.] Music. Quick; fast.
tos·ton' (tôs·tōn'), n. [Sp. tostón.] 1. In various Spanish American countries, a silver coin formerly in use, equal to ½ peso, or four reales.
2. = HOG'S-MEAT a. Puerto Rico.
to'sy (tō'zĭ), adj. [Origin uncert.] Slightly intoxicated; also, snug; comforting. Scot.
tot (tŏt), n. [L.] 1. Literally, so much; — a term used in the English exchequer to indicate that a debt had been paid to the collector, as the sheriff, and was good to the king for the sum specified.
2. Obs. a An item. b A marginal note; a jotting. tot, v. t.; TOT'TED; TOT'TING. 1. To mark with "tot" or a tot; as, a totted debt. See 1st TOT, 1.
2. To make a prick or dot after, as after a name or item in a list; to jot down. Obs.
tot (tŏt), n. 1. Short for TOTAL.
2. An exercise in addition; a summing up. Colloq., Eng.
tot, v. t. [From tot., abbr. of TOTAL.] To make up the sum of; to total; add; count; — used commonly with up. Colloq.

The last two tot up the bill. Thackeray.

— v. i. To add up figures; to do a sum; also, to amount.
tot (tŏt), n. [Origin uncert.; cf. ON. tuttr a dwarf, Dan. tommeltot.] 1. Anything small; — often, by way of endearment, pity, etc., a little child.
2. Chiefly Dial. a A small drinking cup. b A drink; an allowance of drink. tot, v. i. To toddle; totter. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
tot, n. [Origin uncert.] Any of the odds and ends reclaimed from a refuse can, dump, etc., as by someone intending to use or sell the article.
tot. Scot. var. of TOTE, the total number, etc.
‖to'ta (tō'tä), n. [Amharic tōta.] The grivet monkey.
to'tal (tō'tăl; -t'l), adj. [OF., fr. ML. totalis, fr. L. totus all, whole. Cf. FACTOTUM, TEETOTAL, TEETOTUM.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or referring to the whole of a thing, specified or implied, or the entire number of things concerned; not partial; as, a total eclipse or wreck.
2. Comprising or constituting a whole or the sum of all parts, items, instances, etc.; entire; as, the total amount, revenue, output, disbursements, mileage, or membership.
3. Concise; summary; abrupt. Obs.
4. Complete; utter; absolute; as, a total failure; in total ignorance.
Syn. — Complete, perfect. See WHOLE.
Ant. — Partial, incomplete. to'tal, n. 1. The whole; the whole sum or amount; the aggregate; as, to reach a total of five millions.
2. A complete or undivided whole; a unit comprising the total number of parts, members, instances, etc.
Syn. — See SUM.
to'tal (tō'tăl; -t'l), v. t.; TO'TALED (-tăld; -t'ld) or TO'TALLED; TO'TAL·ING or TO'TAL·LING. To bring to a total; to ascertain the total of; to add; as, to total the amounts.
to'tal, v. i. To be in its totality; to amount to; as, his lands total 1,000 acres; also, to come (to) in aggregate; as, the contributions totaled to 5,000 dollars.
total abstinence. See ABSTINENCE, n., 1.
total acid value. Anal. Chem. = SAPONIFICATION NUMBER. to'tal·ad·he'sion lo'co·mo'tive. See LOCOMOTIVE. total and permanent disability insurance. See INSURANCE. total cleavage. Embryol. Holoblastic cleavage. See CLEAVAGE, 3. total curvature. = INTEGRAL CURVATURE. total depravity. Theol. The entire sinfulness or moral depravity of man, which is due to original sin (sense b) and in which he remains until regenerated by the influence of the Spirit of God. See CALVINISM.
total earth. Elec. A complete connection to earth.
total eclipse. Astron. See ECLIPSE, n., 1. total heat. Physics. The thermal equivalent of the energy required to convert unit mass of a liquid at one temperature, usually the melting point of the substance, into saturated vapor at any other given temperature. The engineer's total heat is the amount of heat required to raise 1 lb. of water from 32° F. to the temperature of evaporation and evaporate it under constant pressure at that temperature.
total illumination. See ILLUMINATION, n., 2. total irradiation. See IRRADIATION, n., 9. to·tal'i·tar'i·an (tō·tăl'ĭ·târ'ĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to a highly centralized government under the control of a political group which allows no recognition of or representation to other political parties, as in Fascist Italy or in Germany under the Nazi regime. — to·tal'i·tar'i·an, n. — to·tal'i·tar'i·an·ism, n.
to·tal'i·ty (tō·tăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. [ML. totalitas.] 1. Quality or state of being total or a total; entirety; wholeness; as, a plan in its totality; to seek totality in the state.
2. The whole sum; the whole quantity or amount; the entirety; the aggregate; as, the totality of human knowledge.
3. Astron. In an eclipse, the period or state of total obscuration; as, totality began at 9.05 o'clock.
to'tal·i·za'tion (tō'tăl·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-; tŭ't'l-), n. Act of totalizing, or state of being totalized.
to'tal·i·za'tor, to·tal·i·sa'tor (-zā'tĕr), n. A pari-mutuel. to'tal·ize (tō'tăl·īz; tō't'l-), v. t.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). To make total or a total; to combine into a whole. — v. i. To register totals; esp., to use a totalizator. to'tal·iz'er (-īz'ĕr), n. One who or that which totalizes; specif.: a A totalizator. b An adding machine.
total light. See COLOR, n., 2. total loss. See LOSS, 7. total loss only policy. See 3d POLICY, 1. total quantum number. Physics. = PRINCIPAL QUANTUM NUMBER. total reflection. See REFLECTION. total segmentation. Embryol. Holoblastic segmentation. total slip. Geol. That part of a fault displacement which is recorded by the maximum distance of separation, measured in the plane of the fault, of two originally contiguous points.
total utility. See UTILITY, 2. total variation. Math. See VARIATION OF A FUNCTION.
Tot'a·nus (tŏt'ä·nŭs), n. [NL., fr. It. (Tuscany & Venice) totano moor hen.] Zool. The typical genus of tattlers. — tot'a·nine (-nīn; -nĭn; 156), adj.
to'ta·ra (tō'tä·rä; colloq. tō·tä'rä), n. [Maori.] A tall tree (Podocarpus totara), next to the kauri the most valuable timber tree of New Zealand. Its hard reddish wood is used for furniture and building, esp. in wharves, bridges, etc. Called also mahogany pine.

Totara. (¼) tote (tōt), v. t.; TOT'ED (tōt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); TOT'ING (tōt'ĭng). [Origin uncert.] 1. To carry or bear; to transport, as in a horse-drawn vehicle; haul; more often, to carry or bear in one's arms or on one's shoulders or back. Colloq., U. S.

The tote road to our clearing where we lived. Robert Frost.

2. To lead or conduct, as a horse to water. Colloq., U. S.
3. To carry on one's person, esp. secretly. Slang. tote fair. To play fair. Dial., U. S. tote (tōt), n. Act of one who totes, or carries or transports something; also, a load; a haul. Colloq., U. S. tote, adj. Used in toting, or hauling; as, a tote bag, box, road, team, etc. Colloq., U. S. tote, n. Handle of a bench plane. tote (tōt), n. [From TOTAL.] 1. The total number, amount, etc.; the entire group or body; all. Colloq.
2. a Short for TOTALIZATOR. b Colloq. A total abstainer. tote, v. t. & i. [See TOTE the total, 4th TOT.] To tot; total; reckon; count. Colloq. tote (tōt). Var. of TOOT, peep. Obs. exc. Dial. to—tear', v. t. [AS. tōteran.] To tear asunder. See TO-. Obs. tote'load' (tōt'lōd'), n. As great a load as one can tote, or carry. Southern U. S. to'tem (tō'tĕm), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Ojibway ototeman his relations, Cree ototema.] 1. a One of a class of living or, sometimes, inanimate objects regarded by any primitive people as having blood relationship to a specific family group or sib; esp., any animal or plant species so regarded; sometimes, an individual's animal guardian spirit. b A symbol or representation of the totemic being.

A totem is a class of natural phenomena or material objects — most commonly a species of animals or plants — between which and himself the savage believes that a certain intimate relation exists. . . . Whatever . . . [the relation] may be, it generally leads the savage to abstain from killing or eating his totem, if his totem happens to be a species of animals or plants. Further, the group of persons who are knit to any particular totem by this mysterious tie commonly bear the name of the totem, believe themselves to be of one blood, and strictly refuse to sanction the marriage or cohabitation of members of the group with each other. Sir J. G. Frazer.

2. A color, reddish red-yellow in hue, of high saturation and medium brilliance; — called also Mars red. Cf. COLOR. totem animal. An animal regarded as a totem. totem badge. A symbol or device worn to indicate the totem of the bearer. to·tem'ic (tō·tĕm'ĭk); adj. Of or pertaining to a totem, or totemism. to·tem'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv. In a totemic fashion or method; in relation to totems or totemism. totemic principle. Anthropol. a The magical power of the totem. b The spirit of the totem animal or object.
to'tem·ism (tō'tĕm·ĭz'm), n. Belief in totems and totemistic relationships; esp., a system of distinguishing families, clans, etc., in a tribe by the totem; as, clan totemism. See TOTEM, 1, Cit.
to'tem·ist, n. 1. One of a clan or tribe having a totem.
2. An anthropologist versed in the history of totems.
to'tem·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to totemists or totemism.
to'tem·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n. The process of adopting totems or a totemic system.
totem kin. a The members of a totemic group (kinship). b The relationship between members of a totemic group as among some savage peoples. totem pole or post. A pole or pillar, usually fashioned from a large log, carved and painted with a series of totemic symbols, set up before the houses of certain Indian tribes of the northwest coast of North America, esp. Indians of the Koluschan family.

Haida House with Totem Pole.

tot'er (tŏt'ĕr), n. One who or that which totes. tot'er (tōt'ĕr), n. [See TOTE to carry.] A stone roller (fish). tote shop. A house where betting is conducted by one having a pari-mutuel. Chiefly Australia.
toth'er (tŭth'ĕr), adj. Also t'oth'er. [From ME. the tother, for thet other, that other, the other. See THAT; OTHER.] Now Chiefly Dial. 1. That other; the other; other.
2. a The second in order; next. b Another; an additional.
toth'er, pron. Also t'oth'er. That other; the other or the next one; — used chiefly with tone.
toti-. A combining form from Latin totus, whole, wholly, as in totipalmate.
to'tient (tō'shĕnt), n. [L. totiens, toties, so many times.] Theory of Numbers. The number of numbers less than a given number and prime to it.
to'ti·es quo'ti·es (tō'shĭ·ēz kwō'shĭ·ēz). [L.] Lit., as often as; repeatedly; — in Roman Catholic usage, specifying an indulgence thus designated may be gained as often as the required works are performed; hence, such an indulgence.
To'ti·pal·ma'tae (tō'tĭ·păl·mā'tē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. = PELECANIFORMES. to'ti·pal'mate (-păl'māt), adj. [L. totus all, whole + E. palmate.] Zool. Having all four toes united by a web, as the birds of the order Pelecaniformes (pelicans, cormorants, etc.). — to'ti·pal·ma'tion (-păl·mā'shŭn), n.
to·tip'o·tent (tō·tĭp'ō·tĕnt), adj. [L. totus all + E. potent.] 1. Bot. Homothallic, as the ascospores of certain fungi.
2. Zool. Designating blastomeres capable when isolated of becoming a complete embryo.
— to·tip'o·tence (-tĕns), to·tip'o·ten·cy (-tĕn·sĭ), n.
tot'i·tive (tŏt'ĭ·tĭv), adj. [L. tot so many.] Math. Pertaining to or designating an integer less than and prime to a specified integer.
tot'i·tive, n. Math. A totitive integer. to'to (tō'tō; F. tō'tō'), n. [F.] A baby; esp., the young of any animal.
‖to'to (tō'tō), L. abl. sing. of TOTUM, all; — used in phrases such as in toto (which see). toto-. A combining form from Latin totus, whole, denoting wholly, total and. See 2d -o.
‖to'to cae'lo (tō'tō sē'lō). [L.] By the whole extent of the heavens; as far apart as possible; diametrically; as, we differ toto caelo.
To'to·nac' (tō'tō·năk'), To'to·na'co (-nä'kō), n. An Indian of a civilized people, who were the first to greet Cortes when he landed in Mexico. Their culture was similar to that of the Nahuas, and they have left remarkable ruins and works of art. Of their Mexicanized descendants, about 90,000 dwell in their former territory. See NAHUA, TOTONACAN.
To'to·na'can (-nä'kăn), adj. Pertaining to or designating a Mexican Indian linguistic family comprising the Totonacs and the Tepehuas, formerly occupying parts of the States of Puebla and Veracruz, east of the City of Mexico. Their languages contain many Nahuatl and Mayan loan words, but seem to constitute a distinct stock. See TOTONAC. to·to'ra (tō·tō'rä), n. [Sp., fr. Aymara totora.] A South American cattail (Typha domingensis) the rushlike stems of which yield a fiber, and are used to make fences. The young shoots are used as food in Peru and Bolivia.
To'to·ro' (tō'tō·rō'), n. An Indian of a Coconucan tribe. See COCONUCAN. tot'quot' (tŏt'kwŏt'), n. [L. tot quot as many as (there are).] Obs. exc. Hist. Eccl. a A dispensation permitting unlimited pluralism. b A benefice held by such a dispensation. c A pluralist. to—tread', v. t. [AS. tōtredan.] See TO-. Obs. tot system. The custom of paying wages partly in tots (see 5th TOT, 2 b). S. Africa.
Tot'tel's Mis'cel·la'ny (tŏt'l'lz). The familiar title of the first important poetic anthology of English literature, issued, 1557, by Richard Tottel (1525–94) and containing 271 previously unpublished poems by Surrey, Wyatt, Heywood, and others. The full title of the original is Songes and Sonetties written by the ryght honorable Lorde Henry Haward late Earle of Surrey, and other.

---

tos'sel. Var. of TASSEL. Obs. exc. Dial. tossi·ly, adv. of TOSSY. tossing pan. Also tossing iron. A frying pan. Obs. toss'plume', n. Swaggerer. Obs. tost. Poetic & archaic past tense & past part. of TOSS. [TO-. Obs.] to-start', v. i. To burst apart. See to-swink', v. i. See TO-. Obs. to'tald. Totaled. Ref. Sp. [TOR.] to'tal·i·sa'tor. Var. of TOTALIZAto'tal·ly, adv. of TOTAL. tot'al·ness, n. See -NESS. totch'ka (tŏch'kä), n. [Russ. tochka point, dot.] See MEASURE, Table. to'tem·ite (tō'tĕm·īt), n. = [TOTEMIST, 1.] to'tem·y (-ĭ), n. = TOTEMISM. to-tere'. † TO-TEAR.
‖to'ti·dem ver'bis (tō'tĭ·dĕm). [L.] In so many words.
to'ti·po·ten'tial (tō'tĭ·pō·tĕn'shăl), adj. = TOTIPOTENT. — to'ti·po·ten'ti·al'ĭ·ty (-shĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n.
‖to'tis vi'ri·bus (vī'rĭ·bŭs). [L.] With all one's might, strength, or power. to-tore', to-torne', past tense & past part. of TO-TEAR. Obs.

tot'ter (tŏt'ĕr), v.; TOT'TERED (-ĕrd); TOT'TER·ING. [ME. toteren, of uncert. origin; possibly akin to E. dial. tolter to hobble, to totter, AS. tealtrian. Cf. TOTTLE, TOTTY.] Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To swing; esp., to hang on the gallows. b To pitch or toss, as a ship. c To seesaw.
2. To shake, tremble, or rock, as if falling or about to fall; to waver; as, the old tree is tottering in the wind; hence, to be dangerously unsteady or unstable; to threaten collapse; as, the bank was tottering long before its failure.
3. To be unsteady on the feet in walking or standing; to move feebly or staggeringly; as, to totter with age, or under a heavy burden.
—, Transitive: 1. Obs. a To shake. b To cause to totter.
2. To proceed along (one's way) or to convey totteringly. Rare.

tot'ter, n. 1. A seesaw or swing. Obs.
2. A tottering; a waver; a state of unsteadiness.

tot'ter, n. One who tots or adds up, as an account.

tot'ter, n. One who reclaims odds and ends from refuse cans, dumps, etc., in order to sell them.

tot'ter·er (tŏt'ĕr·ĕr), n. One who or that which totters.

tot'ter·grass' (-grăs'), n. The quaking grass Briza media. Chiefly Dial. Eng.

tot'ter·ing (tŏt'ĕr·ĭng), adj. 1. That totters; threatening to fall or collapse; shaking; shaky; unsteady, esp. in gait.
2. Vacillating; wavering.
3. Changeable; adverse; as, a tottering time. Dial. Eng.
— tot'ter·ing·ly, adv.

tot'ter·ish (-ĭsh), adj. Tottery; shaky.

tot'ter·y (-ĭ), adj. Tottering; unsteady; shaky; weak.

Tot'tie. Tot'ty (tŏt'ĭ), n. A Hottentot. Colloq.

tot'ting (tŏt'ĭng), n. Reclamation of odds and ends from refuse piles. Slang, Brit.

tot'tle (tŏt'l), v. i. [Cf. TOTTER.] Scot. & Dial. Eng. a (1) To boil; simmer. (2) To purl, as a running stream. b To topple over. c To totter; toddle. — v. t. To make tottle.

tot'tle, v. t. [Freq. of tot to total.] To total, or reckon. Dial.

tot'tle, n. Count; reckoning. Rare.

tot'tlish (tŏt'l·ĭsh), adj. Tottery; unstable. Colloq.

tot'ty (-ĭ), adj. [ME. toty. Cf. TOTTER.] Unsteady; shaky; tottery; befuddled; mentally weak; "dotty." — n. A totty person. Both Now Chiefly Dial.

tot'ty, n. Dim. of TOT, a child.

tot'ty·head' (-hĕd'), n. A weak-minded person; a fool; a simpleton. — tot'ty-head'ed, adj.

to·tua'va (tō·twä'vä), n. [Sp., prob. of Mex. Ind. origin.] A very large weakfish (Eriscion macdonaldi) of the Gulf of California. It reaches a weight of over 150 pounds and is highly prized as food.

to'tum (tō'tŭm; tŏt'ŭm), tot'tum (tŏt'ŭm), n. A tot; a small child. Scot. & U. S.

to'tum (tō'tŭm), n. Short for TETOTUM.

‖ to'tum, n. [L.] The whole; all.

to'ty (tō'tĭ), n. Also to'ty·man (-măn). [Tamil toṭi.] A low-caste laborer or messenger. India.

tou·can' (tōō·kăn'; tōō'kăn; 277), n. [F., fr. Pg. tucano, fr. Tupi tucano, tucan. Cf. TOCO.] 1. a Any of many fruit-eating birds of tropical America of Ramphastos, Pteroglossus, and allied genera constituting the family Ramphastidae. They have a very large, but light and thin-walled beak, often nearly as long as the body. Most of the species are brilliantly colored (beak as well as plumage) with red, yellow, white, and black in striking contrast. b South Africa. Erroneously. A hornbill, esp. a crowned hornbill.

Ariel Toucan (Ramphastos ariel).

2. [cap.; gen. TOUCANIS (tōō·kā'nĭs).] [NL.] Astron. The southern constellation Tucana (which name is the one preferred by astronomers).

tou'can·et (tōō'kăn·ĕt; tōō'kăn·ĕt'), n. [Dim. of TOUCAN.] Any of several small South and Central American toucans constituting the genus Selenidera, in which the sexes are dissimilar and the beak usually banded or blotched.

Tou'can·id (tōō'kăn·ĭd), n. [See 1st -ID a.] Any of the meteors whose radiant is in the constellation Toucan.

touch (tŭch), v.; TOUCHED (tŭcht); TOUCH'ING. [OF. tochier, tuchier, touchier (F. toucher), fr. (assumed) VL. toccare (cf. It. toccare, ONF. toquer) to strike (as a bell), fr. toc, of imitative origin. Cf. TOCCATA, TOCSIN.] Transitive: 1. To lay the hands, fingers, etc., upon so as to feel; to perceive by means of the tactile sense; as, afraid to touch a hot iron; the blind man's hand touched the railing.

Nothing but body can be touched or touch. Creech.

2. To bring (one's hand, something held in the hand, etc.) into contact, conjunction, or the like; as, he touched his hand to his hat, or his whip to the horse's flanks; to touch glasses.
3. To hit or strike lightly; to extend the hand, the foot, a cane, or the like, so as to reach, rest on, examine, stir up, etc.; as, to touch a snake with a stick, or a horse with a whip; if you touch him, he will awaken.
4. Hence: a To take into the hands, to eat or drink; to partake of; as, he will not touch liquor. b To strike, or play on, with the hands, as a musical instrument; to play (an air, etc.) esp. on a keyed or stringed instrument; also, Rare, to sing.

[They] touched their golden harps. Milton.

A person in the royal retinue touched a light and lively air on the flageolet. Scott.

c Hist. To lay hands upon (one afflicted with scrofula). See KING'S EVIL. d To lay the scepter upon, as a sign of royal assent; — said with reference to an act of parliament.
5. To come into, to be in, or to have, physical contact with; specif.: a To have sexual intercourse with; now usually, to rape. b To impinge upon; to be or become contiguous or adjacent to; to adjoin; as, the tree touches the wall; where the edges touch each other; their farm touches the river.
6. To put hands upon in any way or degree; to lay a finger on; to disturb or affect by handling; often, to commit violence upon; to lay hands on so as to harm; as, I have not touched the books; to meddle with; hence, to have to do with; to concern oneself with; as, he will not touch the affair.

Let us make a covenant with thee, that thou wilt do us no hurt as we have not touched thee. Gen. xxvi. 28, 29.

7. Hence, to harm, esp. slightly, by or as by contagion, contamination, blighting, etc.; to taint, blemish, spoil, or otherwise injure, in a slight degree; → chiefly in passive and of a living thing or a part, organ (sometimes implied), etc., of such; as, fruit touched by the frost; the horse is touched in the wind; his brain is touched.
8. To affect (one, one's senses, heart, mind, will, etc.) so as to impress, influence, make respond, move, inspire, or the like; to make hear, feel, comprehend, etc.; often, to stir, as to pity, remorse, or love; to melt; soften; as, she was touched to tears by the story. "Pain can touch the Sons of Heav'n." Gray. "Alas! few verses touch their nicer ear." Pope. "Lips touched by seraphim." Shelley.
9. Specif., to offend or wound; to hurt the feelings of; to sting; as, he was touched to the quick; sometimes, to discomfit or shame by censure that hits the truth.

Mary, you touch me there. Scott.

10. Hence, to censure; rebuke; accuse. Obs.
11. To leave a visible mark or impression on; variously, to abrade, scratch, cut, corrode, magnetize (Now Rare), etc.; as, no file can touch this steel; no razor has touched his face.
12. Hence, to test or prove, as with a touchstone (which see); to try; assay; also, to stamp or mark (gold, silver) after an official assay. Chiefly Hist.
13. To relate to; to concern; affect the interest of; also, to have a perceptible effect or influence upon; as, this discussion touches none but us.
14. To relate; tell; explain; now only, to speak or tell of in passing, casually, or cursorily; to make allusion or slight reference to; as, he touched many points but developed only a few.
15. To come to; to reach; to attain to; as, he failed to touch the goal of his desire; more narrowly, to attain to an understanding of; to fathom; to guess at correctly; to hit. "There you touched the life of our design." Shak.
16. Hence, to compare with; to come up to; — to approach in quality, value, etc.; — usually with a negative. "Not another woman there to touch her." W. J. Locke.
17. To make a light application of, as a salve; to spread thinly on; as, to touch the gums with iodine.
18. To make or delineate, as with light strokes of the pencil or brush; also, to improve; to modify, or transform, by or as by such strokes; to touch up.

The lines, though touched but faintly, are drawn right. Pope.
Some Titian colors, touch'd into real life. Keats.

19. To give a delicate tint, line, or expression, to, in a manner suggesting a touching-up pencil or brush; as, a smile touched her lips; clouds touched with rose and violet.
20. Slang. a To steal or procure by underhanded means; to gain by graft or bribery. b To induce to give or lend; to borrow from. c Obs. To tamper with; to bribe. d To rob as by swindling or picking pockets.
21. Geom. To be tangent to.
22. Med. To examine by touching or feeling; to palpate.
23. Naut. To cause to touch. See TOUCH, v. i., 11.
—, Intransitive: 1. To touch (in any sense) someone or something; specif.: a To feel something with the hand, foot, or the like. b To lay hand or finger on a person to cure disease, esp. scrofula; as, he touched for the king's evil.
2. To be in contact; to touch each other; to be in a state of junction, so that no space is perceptible between; as, two spheres can touch only at points.
3. Hence, to come close; approach near; verge; — with at, on, to, or upon; as, his remarks touch on blasphemy.
4. To pertain; relate; to have a bearing; — with to, or upon; as, this touches upon his well-being.
5. To treat a topic, etc., in a slight or casual manner; — commonly with on or upon; as, he merely touched upon this.
6. To make an incidental stop at a point on shore, when on a voyage or trip by water; — with at, rarely with on; as, the ship (or we) touched at many ports.
7. Obs. a To take effect; to make impression.

Strong waters pierce metals, and will touch upon gold. Bacon.

b To stand a test.
8. To improve or modify something by or as by the touches of a brush or pencil.
9. To have (such) a touch, or feeling when touched. Rare.
10. To touch the hat in saluting. Colloq.
11. Naut. To be brought, as a sail or leech, so close to the wind that the weather leech shakes.

touch and go. a Obs. To pass quickly, as from point to point in a discourse. b Naut. To touch bottom lightly and without damage in passing over it, as a vessel in motion.

touch bottom. a To reach or to scrape upon the sea bottom; — of a diver, a ship, etc. b To reach the lowest point; — said esp. of prices. c To get to the roots of a problem, or the like.

touch elbows or shoulders. To be in close contact in work, play, etc.; to have close or intimate association; as, it is a place where one touches elbows with many sorts of people.

touch in. Fine Arts. To insert (detail) by light strokes of pencil or brush.

touch off. a Also touch it off. To represent, characterize, describe, etc., to a nicety; to hit somebody or something off tellingly. b To cause to explode by or as by touching with fire; hence, to release (something pent up) with the sudden violence of an explosion.

These terms . . . have become push buttons which touch off emotional reflexes. W. Lippmann.

c To top off; to touch up. "[He] sometimes touched his greeting off with a bit of poetry." Sir G. Parker.

touch one's hat. To salute by touching (rather than lifting) one's hat.

touch the spot. See the spot, under SPOT, n. Colloq.

touch the wind. Naut. To keep the ship as near the wind as possible.

touch up. a To improve, as a picture by touches of the brush, or a literary work by emendations; to polish up. b To stimulate by or as by a touch or flick of a whip; esp., to jog gently (the memory).

touch wood. To put one's hand or fingers on something made of wood as a charm to avert loss of the exemption from misfortune of which one has just boasted.

touch (tŭch), n. [From OF. touche (fr. the verb), and fr. E. touch, v. See TOUCH, v.] 1. A light stroke, tap, or blow; also, a slight or covert verbal knock, rap, or hit.
2. Act, fact, or gesture of touching, or feeling, striking lightly, handling, or coming in contact with something or somebody; as, test the iron's heat by a touch; salute with a touch of the cap; also, the fact or sensation of being touched; the feeling produced by an impact, pressure, etc.; as, the reassuring touch of his hand; spurred by the touch of a whip.
3. The sense by which pressure or traction exerted on the skin or mucous membrane is perceived; the tactile sense; — now, though not formerly, distinguished from the pain, temperature, and kinesthetic senses.
4. Hence: a A (specified) sensation conveyed through the tactile nerves; feel; as, the velvety touch of a fabric. b A power of the mind or soul akin to touch; mental or moral sensitiveness, responsiveness, or tact.
5. The act of rubbing gold or silver on a touchstone to test its quality; also: a The quality or degree of fineness of gold, etc., so tested. b The official stamp upon a tested metal of standard quality.
6. Hence: a Now Rare. Something touched and approved; tried character and quality; — in phrases of true touch, true or sure as touch (Obs.). "Friends of noble touch." Shak. b Touchstone, the stone. c Criterion; test; trial; proof; as, to put his statement to the touch of investigation.
7. A touching upon; a brief mention, hint, or reminder; also, Obs., a covert allusion, as in censure.
8. An agreement or covenant, esp. one sworn while touching something sacred; hence, faith; — usually in phrases to keep, hold, or break touch. Now Rare.
9. Originally, the impress of one's race, kind, etc.; characteristic or distinguishing feature, trait, or quality; now usually, an outward manifestation or expression of such.

One touch of nature makes the whole world kin. Shak.

10. An impression, mark, or stamp; a visible effect; as, a face that shows no touch of time; the touch of October in the forests; as, her clothes have the Paris touch.
11. An effect produced by or as by touching (esp. senses v. t. 6, 7, & 11); as: a Obs. Harm; injury; specif., injury to reputation; reproach. b A defect; a weakness; as, a touch in the brain. c A magnetizing through contact.
12. a A suddenly aroused or transient emotion or impression; a flash of feeling; as, he had one touch of compunction. b Rare. The power of touching, or exciting emotion.
13. Something slight of its kind; as: a A twinge; a light attack, as of disease; as, a touch of pain; a touch of fever. b A small quantity; a trace; a dash; as, a touch of summer in the air; not a touch of color in the room.
14. A light or delicate stroke in touching up an artistic composition; hence, any effective or touching-up detail; as, that was a vivid touch in his last story; the work is complete except for the finishing touches; also, an effect produced by or as if by the light stroke of a brush or the pencil; as, the story gave a touch of romance to the locality.
15. Distinctive manner or method; characteristic skill of a workman or artist in the manipulation of his instruments or materials; execution; as, the touch of a master in art or literature; the billiard player had lost his touch.
16. = 3d TAG.
17. A close call; a near approach, as to death.
18. The state of being in contact or communication; esp., close relationship because of physical proximity, unbroken intercourse, intimate understanding or sympathy, etc.; also, the condition or fact of keeping abreast, near at hand, etc.; as, to lose touch with a boat in a fog; to be within touch at all times; to keep in touch with an old friend; to be out of touch with the modern spirit.
19. Slang. a Originally, a mean trick; later, a tricky, clever, or fitting, act or turn. b A try; a go. c One's proper role or profession; one's "line."

In fact, Elizabethan drama isn't really her touch. Rose Macaulay.

d A thing that will sell (for a certain amount).

Print my preface in such form as, in the booksellers' phrase, will make a sixpenny touch. Swift.

e Method of inducing a prospective purchaser to buy; also, a sale. f An act of touching, or borrowing, stealing, etc.; also, that which is obtained by touching. g U. S. Something that touches another in favor, value, etc.; an equal.
20. Short for TOUCHWOOD.
21. Change Ringing. A set of changes less than the total number possible.
22. Med. Palpation.
23. Music. a The playing of an instrument, as a lute or piano, with the fingers; also, musical notes or strains so produced. "With sweetest touches pierce your mistress' ears." Shak. b A manner or method of touching or striking an instrument, now esp., the keys of a keyboard instrument; as, requiring a staccato touch; to favor the pressure touch; also, one's characteristic style in striking keys; as, to have a firm touch. c Particular or characteristic action of a keyboard instrument with reference to the resistance of its keys to pressure; as, a piano with a stiff touch.
24. Rugby & Association Football. That part of the ground lying immediately without the field of play on either side, in Rugby including the touchlines.
25. Shipbuilding. The broadest part of a plank worked top and butt (see TOP AND BUTT) or anchor-stock fashion (i.e., tapered from the middle to both ends); also, the angles of the stern timbers at the counters.

touch'a·ble (tŭch'ä·b'l), adj. Capable of being touched; tangible; also, eatable. — touch'a·ble·ness, n.

touch and go. a Rapid movement from point to point; continuous flitting. "Its swift touch and go of actual talk." J. L. Lowes. b A highly uncertain or precarious situation or condition; often, a state of affairs so critical that the slightest turn may bring disaster, failure, or the like.

I daren't risk it, Ian. It's all absolutely touch and go at the moment. Machail.

— touch'-and-go', adj.

touch'-and-heal', n. The St.-John's-wort Hypericum perforatum.

touch'back' (tŭch'băk'), n. Amer. Football. Act or an instance of being in possession of the ball behind one's own goal line when the ball is declared dead, the impetus which caused the ball to pass the goal line having been furnished by an opponent. Cf. SAFETY, n., 8.

touch'bell' (tŭch'bĕl'), n. An earwig. Scot.

touch body or corpuscle. Anat. A tactile corpuscle.

touch'box' (tŭch'bŏks'), n. [Cf. TOUCHWOOD.] A box of lighted tinder, formerly carried by soldiers who used matchlocks, to kindle the match. Obs. exc. Hist.

touch cerate. Pharm. A lubricant, used in the examination of the vagina.

touch'down' (tŭch'doun'), n. a Amer. Football. (1) Originally, the act of touching the ball down behind the opponents' goal. (2) The act of scoring by being lawfully in possession of the ball on, above, or behind, the opponents' goal line when the ball is declared dead. b Rugby Football. The act of a player who first puts his hand on the ball on the ground in his own in-goal.

‖ tou'ché' (tōō'shā'), adj. [F.] Literally, touched, esp. by a fencing opponent's weapon; hence, scored on in argument; — used to acknowledge a home thrust.

touched (tŭcht), adj. 1. That has been subjected to touching, esp. to handling, meddling, improving, etc.
2. Slightly unbalanced mentally; cracked.
— touched'ness, n.

tot'terd. Tottered. Ref. Sp. tottered. † TATTERED. tottie. † TOTTY.
toty. † TOTTY.
tou. † TOUCH.
tou (tō), n. sing. & pl. [Chin.] (Pek., tou[3].] See MEASURE, Table.
tou. Var. of THOU. Obs. exc. Dial.
To'u (tō'ōō). Bib.
Toua'reg, n. Var. of TUAREG. touart. † TOWARD.
tou'art. Var. of TUART.

touch'er (tŭch'ĕr), n. One who or that which touches; specif., Bowls, a bowl which has touched the jack during its original course on the green.

— as near as a toucher. Just at the point of happening, doing, etc. Brit. Slang. — to a toucher. To a T. Brit. Slang.

touch'hole' (-hōl'), n. 1. In old-time cannons or firearms, the vent, or hole through which fire was communicated to the powder.

2. Mach. The hole, in the cylinder of a gas engine with tube ignition, in which the tube is inserted.

touch'ing (tŭch'ĭng), adj. That touches, esp. the emotions; hence, affecting; moving; pathetic; as, a touching tale. — touch'ing·ly, adv. — touch'ing·ness, n.

Syn. — See AFFECTING.

touch'ing, prep. In reference to; as regards; concerning; — often with as. Chiefly Archaic.

Now, as touching things offered unto idols. I Cor. viii. 1.

touch'-in-goal', n. Rugby Football. Any of the four areas of the field back of the goal lines extended and outside of the touch-in-goal lines.

touch-in-goal line. Rugby Football. A continuation of a touchline extending from a goal line to the nearest dead-ball line. See FOOTBALL, 1st Illust.

touch judge. Rugby Football. Either of two officials, one stationed on each side of the field, who assist the referee in determining when and where the ball goes into touch, when a goal has been kicked, etc.

touch'line' (tŭch'līn'), n. Also touch line. Rugby and Association Football. Either of the lines, extending at right angles to the goal lines, that bound the sides of the field of play.

touch'-me-not', n. 1. A person or thing that should be avoided or shunned, as a forbidden topic; also, a haughty, aloof person.

2. a Any plant of the genus Impatiens, esp. the garden balsam or European noli me tangere. b Squirting cucumber.

3. Med. = NOLI ME TANGERE, 5. Obs.

touch'-me-not', adj. That is a touch-me-not; of the nature of a touch-me-not.

touch method. Office Practice. The method of typewriting without watching the keys.

touch needle. Metal. A small bar of gold, either pure, or alloyed with silver in a known proportion, for trying the fineness of a gold or silver article by comparing the streaks made by the article and the bar on a touchstone.

touch'ous (tŭch'ŭs; tōōch'ŭs), adj. Easily offended; sensitive; touchy. Dial.

touch'pan' (tŭch'păn'), n. Pan of a flintlock.

touch paper. [Cf. TOUCHWOOD.] Fireworks. Paper (usually blue) impregnated with potassium nitrate. It burns steadily without flame.

touch'piece' (-pēs'), n. A coin, as an angel, or medal given by various English sovereigns, as late as Queen Anne, to persons touched by them for the cure of the king's evil.

touch reader. A blind person able to read Braille or some other raised type.

touch spot. = PRESSURE SPOT.

touch'stone' (-stōn'), n. 1. Mineral. A black siliceous stone allied to flint; Lydian stone; basanite; — so called because used to test the purity of gold and silver by the streak left on the stone when rubbed by the metal.

2. Any test or criterion by which to try a thing's qualities.

Till experience had given him some touchstone by which he could judge the values of that old tragedy. Galsworthy.

Touch'stone', n. A facetious and remarkably clever professional clown in Shakespeare's As You Like It.

touch typewriting. Typewriting by the touch method. — touch typewriter.

touch'-up' (tŭch'ŭp'), n. A touching-up; also, a touch or hint.

touch'wood' (-wŏŏd'), n. [Perh. for tachwood, fr. ME. tache tinder (of uncert. origin) + wood.] 1. Wood or a woody substance so decayed, dried, or prepared, as to serve for tinder; spunk; punk.

2. Dried fungi used as tinder; amadou.

3. Specif.: a The sporophores of various polypores, esp. Fomes fomentarius and F. igniarius. b Punkwood. Cf. TINDER.

4. One, usually a person, as inflammable as touchwood; an irascible or excitable person.

touch writer. One who typewrites by the touch method. — touch writing.

touch'y (tŭch'ĭ), adj.; TOUCH'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); TOUCH'I·EST. [From techy, after touch.] 1. Nervously sensitive to a touch, or open or covert criticism; easily offended; peevish; irritable; irascible; techy.

He was at no time touchy about personal attacks. Saintsbury.

2. Responding quickly to a touch; acutely sensitive or irritable, as a part of the body; highly explosive or inflammable, as a chemical.

3. Ticklish; not to be touched, except with care or tact; as, a touchy subject for public discussion.

4. [From TOUCH.] Art. Composed of dots or short strokes.

Syn. and Ant. — See IRASCIBLE.

toug (tōōg), n. [F., fr. Turk. tūgh horse's tail.] A pike with a horse's tail affixed to its point, used formerly in Turkey as a standard.

tough (tŭf; 144), adj.; TOUGH'ER (-ĕr); TOUGH'EST. [ME., fr. AS. tōh; akin to D. taai, LG. taa, tage, tau, OHG. zāhi, G. zähe, and also to AS. getenge near to, close to, oppressive, OS. bitengi.] 1. Having the quality of being strong or firm in texture, but flexible and not brittle; yielding to force without breaking; capable of resisting great strain without coming apart; as, the ligaments of animals are tough; specif., of meat, vegetables, etc., not easily chewed or masticated.

2. Having great viscosity; glutinous; sticky; tenacious; as, tough phlegm or tar.

3. Stiff; vigorous; also, Obs., rigid; not flexible; as, a tough gale.

So tough a frame she could not bend. Dryden.

4. Able to endure strain, hardship, or severe labor; having or manifesting great physical resistance; hardy; robust; as, a tough physique or race.

5. Very hard to influence or move; stubborn; unyielding; as, a tough will. "Tough tenacity of purpose." J. A. Symonds.

6. Hence, pertinaciously unruly or vicious; hardened in vice; often, rowdyish; ruffianly; also, of a district, frequented by toughs; as, a tough offender; a tough neighborhood. U. S.

7. Making unduly heavy or severe demands on one; extremely difficult to cope with. "Life's a tough job." Galsworthy.

But his satires are now tough reading. John Macy.

8. Stubbornly fought; stoutly maintained; as, a tough contest.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tough-backed	toughhearted	tough-muscled tough-fibered	tough-lived	tough-shelled tough-fisted	tough-looking, adj.	tough-sinewed tough-handed	tough-metaled	tough-thonged

— tough'ly, adv. — tough'ness, n.

tough (tŭf; 144), n. A tough person; esp., a rowdy. U. S.

tough, adv. Toughly; sturdily. Obs. exc. in combination.

tough, v. i. To endure hardship or suffering; as, to tough it out. Colloq. U. S.

tough cake. = TOUGH PITCH b.

tough'en (tŭf'ĕn), v. i. & t.; -ENED (-ĕnd); -EN·ING. To grow or make tough or tougher.

tough'ened glass (tŭf'ĕnd). Glass tempered by a control process of sudden cooling.

tough'en·er (tŭf'ĕn·ĕr), n. One who or that which toughens.

tough'head' (-hĕd'), n. The ruddy duck. Local, U. S.

tough'-mind'ed (tŭf'mīn'dĕd; -dĭd; 66), adj. Hard-headed; practical; also, realistic or unsentimental in temper or habitual point of view. — tough'-mind'ed·ly, adv. — tough'-mind'ed·ness, n.

tough pitch. Metal. a The exact state or quality of texture and consistency of well reduced and refined copper. b Copper of the above quality; — called also tough cake.

tough'-skinned' (-skĭnd'; 66), adj. Having a tough skin; also, not sensitive; not easily offended; — opposed to thin-skinned.

Tou'louse' (tōō'lōōz'), n. 1. Capital of the department of Haute-Garonne, France.

2. A heavy goose of a French breed, having a large head, a short thick bill without a knob, and chiefly gray plumage.

toup (tōōp), n. [Malay tup.] A three-masted Malay lugger, rather deep and narrow.

tou·pee' (tōō·pā'; -pē'), n. [F. toupet, dim. of OF. top, toup, tuft of hair, of Teut. origin. See TOP apex; cf. TOUPET.] 1. A curl or lock of false hair worn at the crown of the head; also, a kind of wig worn in the 18th century, crowned by a topknot. Hist.

2. Hence, a small wig or small patch of false hair covering a bald spot.

3. A toupeed person. Rare.

Here a redcoat, there a smart toupee. Pope.

tou·peed' (-pād'; -pēd'), adj. Wearing a toupee; periwigged.

tou·pet' (tōō·pā'; tōō'pā), n. [F.] A toupee; a man of fashion; also, a forelock, or, by extension, a mass of hair.

tour (tōōr; 199), n. [F. tour, OF. tor, torn, fr. L. tornus lathe, and fr. OF. torner, F. tourner, to turn. See TURN.] 1. One's turn in an orderly arrangement or schedule; a spell; also, a shift, as in a factory; as, three tours a day.

2. A circuitous movement; a revolution, as of a heavenly body. Obs.

3. A journey in a circuit; a trip or excursion, whether long or short, in which one returns to one's starting point; specif., a circular journey or trip for business, pleasure, education, or the like, in which one visits various places, usually following a planned itinerary; as, to make a tour round an island; a wedding or motor tour; a year's tour in Europe. See GRAND TOUR.

4. Specif., Now Rare: a A turn or drive, as in a park. b The road or course taken in such a drive, esp. Rotten Row and the fashionable drive in Hyde Park, London.

5. A round; variously, a circuit, a course around, or an endless series, or circle, as of engagements. Obs.

6. Obs. a A shift; a resort. b Manner of presenting or expressing thought; an adroit turn or twist, as in phrase, method, etc.; also, the aspect given by such. c The compass or range; the sum and substance. d Outward manner; surface appearance.

7. A false front of hair. Hist.

8. A pivoting box or basket set in a wall so that objects can be passed through, from and to persons who do not see each other; esp., such a receptacle for abandoned infants at the door of a foundling hospital. Chiefly Hist.

9. Among bird fanciers, one of the distinct portions of a more or less continuous song.

Syn. — See JOURNEY.

— on tour. Touring.

tour (tōōr; 199), v. i.; TOURED (tōōrd); TOUR'ING. Intransitive: 1. To take a tour, or drive around a park or the like; to go on a drive. Obs.

2. To make a tour; as, to tour through a country.

3. To turn one's steps; to go; proceed. Dial.

Well I'll be touring on, missis," said Mr. Critchlow. A. Bennett.

—, Transitive: 1. To make a tour of; as, to tour France.

2. To cover (a distance) while on tour.

3. Theater. To present on a tour; as to tour Uncle Tom's Cabin; to tour with.

tou'ra'co' (tōō'rä'kō'), n. [Prob. fr. a W. Afr. name; cf. F. touraco, tourocco.] Any of certain African birds of Turacus, Musophaga, and allied genera constituting the family Musophagidae, somewhat allied to the cuckoos and often called plantain eaters. They are mostly from one to two feet long, and have a long tail, an erectile crest, a short, stout, and often colored, bill, and brilliant coloration. The plumage is lax and fluffy and the red wing-feathers yield a peculiar pigment, turacin.

White-crested Touraco (Turacus corythaix).

tour·bil'lion (tōōr·bĭl'yŭn), n. [F. tourbillon a whirlwind, tourbillion, fr. L. turbo, -inis, a whirl, whirlwind.] 1. Something which whirls round or moves spirally, as a whirlwind; sometimes, a vortex, as of a whirlwind or whirlpool; esp., a firework having a spiral flight.

2. Anthropol. The whirl of the hair near the vertex of the head.

tour·bil'lon (tōōr·bĭl'yŭn; F. tōōr·bē'yōn'), n. [See TOURBILLION.] 1. = TOURBILLION, 1.

2. Horol. A form of rotary carriage to carry the escapement so that position errors are eliminated. See KARUSSEL.

tour conductor. One whose occupation is to conduct a touring party and give information concerning places visited.

tour' de force' (tōōr' dē fôrs'). [F.] A feat of strength or skill; also, a merely adroit or ingenious accomplishment or production.

‖tou'relle' (tōō'rĕl'), n. [F., fr. OF. torele. See TOWER.] Arch. A small tower; a turret, esp. one springing from corbeling, from a pier, or the like.

tour'er (tōōr'ĕr; 199), n. A tourist; also, a touring car.

tour'ing (-ĭng), adj. 1. That tours or is used or suitable for use in touring.

2. Automobiles. Of a coupé or sedan, having a permanent top but removable or disappearing panels and frames along the sides, so that they can be made open from windshield to back.

touring car. An automobile for touring; specif., an open car similar to a phaeton except that the body is longer, permitting the use of additional seats in the tonneau.

tour'ism (tōōr'ĭz'm; 199), n. 1. The practice of touring; traveling for recreation.

2. Tourists collectively; touring parties.

3. The guidance or management of tourists, as a business or a governmental function; the provision of itineraries, guidance, accommodations, etc., for tourists.

tour'ist (tōōr'ĭst), n. 1. One who makes a tour; esp., one who travels from place to place for pleasure or culture.

2. Specif., one making a tour by motor; hence, one who stops overnight, as at a hotel or inn.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tourist-crammed	tourist-infested	tourist-ridden tourist-haunted	tourist-laden	tourist-trodden tour'ist, adj. Of, pertaining to, suitable for, or serving, tourists; as, a tourist agency, inn, ticket, camp, or cabin; tourist traffic, travel, or accommodations.

tour'ist, v. i. & t. To make a tour or tours (to); to visit in touring. Colloq.

tourist baggage insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1. tourist car or coach. A railway car, similar to a Pullman car, providing simple and lower-priced accommodations for long-distance travelers. Western U. S.

tour·is'tic (tōōr'ĭs'tĭk), adj. Also tour·is'ti·cal (-tĭ·kăl). Of or pertaining to a tour or tourism.

tour'ist·ry (tōōr'ĭs·trĭ; 199), n. The fact or practice of touring; also, tourists collectively. "All the ruck and rabble of British touristry pour unhindered." Stevenson.

tour'ist·y (-ĭs·tĭ), adj. Of or characteristic of tourists. Colloq.

tour'ma·line (tōōr'mȧ·lĭn; -lēn), n. Also tur'ma·line (tûr'-). [F. tourmaline, ult. fr. Singhalese toramalli carnelian.] Mineral. A complex subsilicate, occurring usually in three-sided, six-sided, or nine-sided prisms vertically striated, but sometimes in compact or columnar masses. H., 7–7.5. Sp. gr., 2.98–3.20. Black tourmaline (schorl) is the most common, but blue (indicolite), red (rubellite), green (Brazilian emerald) brown, and (rarely) colorless, or white, also occur. Tourmaline contains boron, aluminum, and either magnesium, iron, or alkali metal, with smaller amounts of other bases. It is strongly dichroic, piezoelectric, and pyroelectric. It shows double refraction, but absorbs one of the rays. When transparent and cut, it makes a gem of great beauty. It is also used in the tourmaline tongs, in measuring the intensity of radium emanations, and in optical work.

tourmaline pink. A color, reddish blue-red in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

tourmaline tongs. A simple form of polariscope consisting of two transparent plates of tourmaline cut parallel to the vertical crystal axis, and mounted on a tongs-shaped support, so that the object to be examined can be held between them. It is used by jewelers for distinguishing glass from crystal, etc.

Tourmaline Tongs.

tour'ma·lin'ic (tōōr'mȧ·lĭn'ĭk), adj. Of the nature of, or containing, tourmaline.

tourmalinic acid. Mineral. Chem. A complex acid, $H_{11}Al_3B_3Si_4O_{31}$, of which tourmaline is regarded by some as a salt.

tour'ma·lin·i·za'tion (tōōr'mȧ·lĭn·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-) n. Petrog. Any process by which previously existing minerals are replaced wholly or in part by tourmaline.

tour'ma·lin·ize (tōōr'mȧ·lĭn·īz), v. t. To subject to tourmalinization.

tour'ma·lite (-līt), n. [tourmaline + 1st -ite, 4.] Petrog. A rock consisting only of tourmaline and quartz.

tourn (tōōrn), n. [Var. of TURN.] Eng. Hist. The circuit, or turn, of the sheriff to hold a court of record twice a year (within a month after Easter and Michaelmas) in every hundred in his county; also, the court so held. It was abolished by the Sheriff's Act, 1887, sec. 18.

tour'na·ment (tōōr'nȧ·mĕnt; tûr'-; 277), n. [ME. turnement, tornement, fr. OF. torneiement, tornoiement (F. tournoiement a turning or wheeling round), fr. torneier. See TOURNEY.] 1. A contest or knightly sport in which mounted armored combatants, armed usually with blunted lances or swords and divided into two parties, engaged one another to exhibit their skill, prowess, and courage, and to win a prize or favor bestowed by the "queen of beauty," or lady of the tournament, chosen for the occasion. Such contests probably existed first in France, whence they spread, and were in greatest favor during the 12th, 13th, and 14th centuries. See JOUST, n.

2. The whole series of knightly sports, jousts, and tilts occurring at a particular time and place. Before the 16th century these combats had come to be regarded merely as a means of displaying the pomp of royalty and nobility. By A.D. 1600 the tournament had been generally abandoned.

3. Hence, in modern usage, an athletic meeting, comprising contests in a large number of sports; as, a military tournament, in which, besides the more usual events, there are many especially adapted to soldiers, as artillery driving, wall scaling, fencing, wrestling on horseback, etc.

touched bill of health, touched bill. See BILL OF HEALTH.

touch'i·ly, adv. of TOUCHY.

touch'i·ness, n. See -NESS.

touch'less, adj. See -LESS.

touch'-me-not'-ish, adj. See -ISH.

touch'y-head'ed, adj. Touched in the brain. Obs.

‖Tou'cou'leur' (tōō'kōō'lûr'). = TUKULOR.

touffon. ✝ TYPHOON.

tough'ish, adj. See -ISH.

tough'ra. Var. of TUGHRA.

tought (tŏt). Var. of TAUT; taught, past tense. Obs. exc. Dial.

tought, n. = TOWGHT.

‖tou'jours' per'drix' (tōō'zhōōr' pĕr'drē'). [F.] Literally, always partridge; too much of a good thing.

‖tou'jours' prêt' (prē'). [F.] Always ready.

touk. Var. of TUCK.

touker. ✝ TUCKER.

toule. ✝ TOLL, to entice.

toum'nah (tōōm'nä), n. sing. & pl. [Ar. thumn, colloq. thumnah, one eighth. Cf. TOMIN.] See MEASURE, Table.

toun. ✝ TON, TONE, TOWN, TUNE.

Tou'na·te'a (tōō'nȧ·tē'ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Galibi tounou, name of one species.] Syn. of SWARTZIA.

tour. ✝ TOWER.

tou'ra grass (tōō'rȧ). = TAMBOOKIE GRASS.

tou'rah. Var. of TORAH.

tourbe. ✝ TURB. tourd. Toured. Ref. Sp.

tourdion. ✝ TORDION.

touret. ✝ TURRET. [TOUR.]

tour'ette' (tōōr'ĕt'), n. Dim. of tour'ist·dom, n. See -DOM. tour'ist-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

tour'ist·ship (tōōr'ĭst shĭp), n. See -SHIP.

tour'ize (tōōr'īz), v. i. See -IZE.

tour'ma·lin. Tourmaline. Ref. Sp.

tour'ma·lin·if'er·ous (tōōr'mȧ·lĭn·ĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. See -FEROUS.

‖tour'mente' (tōōr'mĕnt'), n. [F.] = TORMENT, n., 5 a.

4. Specif., a sport or contest in which mounted men tilt with sword or lance at suspended rings. Now Rare.
5. An encounter; battle; shock of battle; contest.
With cruel tournament the squadrons join. Milton.
6. Any trial of skill in which there are a series of contests and several or many contestants for championship; as, a tennis tournament; a chess tournament.

tour'na·men'tal (tōōr'nȧ·mĕn'tȧl; tûr'-), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a tournament.

tour'nant' oil (tōōr'nȧN'), [F. tournante, fr. tournant wheel (of oil press), lit., turning. See TURN, v.] An impure or inferior olive oil obtained from the expressed marc after fermentation.

tour'na·sin (tōōr'nȧ·sĭn; F. tōōr'nȧ'zĂN'), n. [F. tourna(s)-sin.] A knife to take excess slip from baked pottery ware.

tour'nay' (tōōr'nā'), n. [From Tournai, Belgium.] A printed worsted fabric for upholstery.

tour'nee' (-nā'), n. Also tour'ne' (-nā'). [F. tourner to turn, past part. tourné.] Skat. A game or task in which the player turns a card from the skat as trump, and can exchange two cards for the skat cards. If he is dissatisfied with the card first turned, and turns the second as trump, he is playing a passt-mir-nicht.

Tour'ne·for'ti·a (tōōr'nĕ·fôr'shĭ·ȧ; -tĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Joseph Pitton de Tournefort, French botanist.] Bot. A large genus of tropical trees and shrubs (family Boraginaceae) having alternate leaves and terminal cymes of small flowers, the fruit being a fleshy or spongy 4-celled drupe. T. volubilis is the basket withe.

Tour'ne·for'ti·an (-shĭ·ăn; -tĭ·ăn), adj. Of or relating to the botanist Joseph Pitton de Tournefort (1656–1708), or his system of classification, nomenclature, etc.

‖tour'nette' (tōōr'nĕt'), n. [F., dim. of tour (OF. tourn), a lathe, wheel. See TURN.] A horizontal revolving tablet, similar to a potter's wheel, on which a piece of pottery is placed for painting.

tour'ney (tōōr'nĭ; tûr'nĭ; 277), n.; pl. TOURNEYS (-nĭz). [OF. tornei, tornoi (F. tournoi), fr. torneier, tornoier, tournoier, to tilt, to tourney (F. tournoyer to turn round and round). See TURN.] A tournament (esp., senses 1 & 2). tour'ney, v. i.; TOUR'NEYED (-nĭd); TOUR'NEY·ING. [ME. turnaien, fr. OF. torneier. See TOURNEY, n.] To perform in a tournament; to tilt; joust. — tour'ney·er (-ĕr), n.

tour'ni·quet (tōōr'nĭ·kĕt; now rarely tûr'-), n. [F., fr. tourner to turn. See TURN.] 1. A turnstile. Now Rare.
2. Surg. A device for arresting bleeding, originally a bandage twisted tight with a stick or the like; now, any of various instruments, as a pad pressed down by a screw, or an elastic rubber bandage, for similar purposes.

‖tour'nois' (tōōr'nwä'), adj. [F.] Of Tours; — of certain French moneys; as, a denier tournois. See LIVRE, 1; GROS TOURNOIS. Hist.

‖tour'nure' (tōōr'nür'), n. [F., fr. tourner to turn.] 1. Grace of form or manner; distinguished carriage or bearing; poise.
2. A turn; esp.: a Contour; outline. b A turning of phrase; expressiveness.
3. A bustle or pad.

tourte (tōōrt), n. [F. See TART.] A tart; a pie.

Tourte bow (tōōrt). Music. A violin bow made by the famous French bowmaker, François Tourte (1747–1835).

touse (touz; Scot. tōōz, tōōs), v. [ME. tousen, tusen (in comp.); akin to Fris. tūsen to pull, to tear, G. zausen, and E. TEASE. Cf. TOSE, TOUSLE.] Now Dial. Transitive:
1. To pull or handle roughly; to rack; tear; worry.
2. To tousle; rumple; dishevel.
—, Intransitive: To handle someone, something, or each other, roughly; to tussle; to indulge in tousing.

touse (touz; tous; Scot. tōōz, tōōs), n. Disturbance; turmoil; fuss. Chiefly Dial.

tous'er (touz'ĕr; tĕ'ōō·zĕr), n. A coarse apron. Dial. Eng.

tou'sle (tou'z'l), v.; TOU'SLED (-z'ld); TOU'SLING (-zlĭng). [Freq. of TOUSE. Cf. TUSSLE.] Transitive: Colloq. 1. To disorder by rough handling; to dishevel.
2. To indulge in tussling or horseplay with; to pull or drag here and there; — often with about, up, etc.
—, Intransitive: To throw things into disorder; to rummage. Rare.

tou'sle (tou'z'l; tōō'z'l; tĕ'ōō·z'l), n. 1. A tussle; also, rough dalliance. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
2. A tousled mass or state; specif., a mop of hair.

‖tous'-les-mois' (tōō'lā·mwä'), n. [F., all the months, i. e., every month, the tubers being edible at all seasons.] Starch from rootstocks of the edible canna (Canna edulis), often sold as arrowroot, and used in the preparation of foods for infants and as an adulterant of cocoa.

tou'sly (tou'zlĭ), adj. Touseled.

tousť'ie (tōōs'tĭ), adj. Testy. Scot.

tous'y (touz'ĭ), adj. [See TOUSE, n. & v.] Tousled; tangled; rough; shaggy; rough-and-ready. Colloq. or Dial.

tout (tout; Scot. & dial. tōōt), v.; TOUT'ED; TOUT'ING. [ME. tuten; akin to AS. tōtian to project, tȳtan to peep out, Icel. tota tip, D. tuit spout, snout. Cf. TOOT to peep out.] Intransitive: Obs. 1. a To toot, or peep; to peer. b Thieves' Slang. To keep watch; to be on the lookout.
2. To canvass for customers; to solicit employment, patronage, or votes, as a guide, hotel runner, candidate, etc. Colloq.
3. Horse Racing. a Slang, Eng. To spy out the movements of race horses at their trials, or to get by stealth or other improper means the secrets of the stable, for betting purposes. b Slang, U. S. To act as a tout; to tout, or give a tip on, a race horse. See 2d TOUT, 1 d, and TOUT, v. t., 3 b, below.
—, Transitive: 1. To spy on; to watch closely; also, Rare, to show, or conduct, for sightseeing or the like.
2. To solicit; importune. Colloq.
3. Horse Racing Slang. a Eng. To spy out information about, as a racing stable or horse. b U. S. To give a tip on (a race horse) to a better with the expectation of sharing in the latter's winnings.

tout, n. 1. One who touts; specif., Slang: a A spy for a smuggler, thief, or the like. b One who solicits custom, as a runner for a hotel, cab, gambling place, stock exchange house, etc. c Eng. One who secretly watches race horses in training, or gets racing information by improper means, for betting purposes. d U. S. One who gives a tip on a race horse for an expected compensation, esp. in hopes of a share in any winnings; — usually contemptuous.
2. A touting; watch; lookout; as, to keep tout. Slang.

tout (tout; tōōt), v. t. To toss; disorder. Scot.

tout (tōōt), n. [F., all.] In a game, the winning of everything in sight; now, usually, in the game of solo, a proposal to win all eight tricks.

tout (tout), n. [Origin uncert.] A fit of illness or ill humor. — v. t. To vex; tease. Both Scot.

tout (tōōt), v. t. & i. To toot, or proclaim loudly.

‖tout' à fait' (tōō'-tȧ fĕ'). [F.] Entirely; absolutely; quite.

‖tout' à l'heure' (lûr'). [F.] In a moment; presently; also, a moment ago; just now.

‖tout' au con'traire' (tōō'-tō kŏN'trâr'). [F.] Quite to the contrary; very far from that.

‖tout' à vous' (tōō'-tȧ vōō'). [F.] Wholly yours; at your service.

‖tout' bien' ou rien' (tōō'byĂN' ōō ryĂN'). [F.] Everything well (done) or nothing (attempted).

‖tout' com'pren'dre c'est tout' par'don'ner' (tōō' kŏN'-prĂN'dr'sȧ tōō' pȧr'dō'nȧ'). [F.] To understand all is to pardon all.

‖tout' court' (tōō' kōōr'). [F.] Quite short; very briefly; simply; without explanation; sometimes, brusquely.

‖tout' de même' (d' mâm'). [F.] In spite of that; nevertheless.

‖tout' de suite' (tōō' d' swĕt'; tōō' t' swĕt'). [F.] Immediately; also, successively.

‖tout' en'sem'ble (tōō'-tȧN'sȧN'bl'). [F.] All together; hence, in costume, the fine arts, etc., the general effect of a work as a whole, without regard to details.

tout'er (tout'ĕr), n. One who touts or seeks customers, patronage, votes, etc.; a runner; a tout.

‖tout' est per'du' fors [or hors] l'hon'neur' (tōō'-tȧ pĕr'-dü' fôr (ôr) lŏ'nûr'). [F.] All is lost save honor; — attributed to Francis I of France after his defeat at Pavia.

‖tout' le monde' (tōō' lĕ mōNd'). [F.] Literally, all the world; everybody.

‖tout' passe', tout' casse', tout' lasse' (tōō' päs', tōō' käs', tōō' lăs'). [F.] Everything passes, everything breaks, everything wearies; — expressing, in varying arrangement of phrases, the futility of life.

To·va'ri·a (tō·vā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), n. [NL., after Simón Tovario, Sp. physician.] Bot. A small genus of tropical American herbs typifying a family, To·va'ri·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē·ē), of the order Papaveraceae. They have trifoliolate leaves and spicate flowers, peculiar in having the sepals, petals, and stamens each eight, while the gynoecium is composed of six carpels. — to·var'i·a'ceous (tō·vâr'ĭ·ā'shŭs), adj.

to·va'rish, to·va'rich (tō·vä'rĭsh), n. [Russ. tovarishch.] Comrade; — a title frequently used of members of the Russian Communist party.

tove (tōv), n. & v. Chat; talk; babble. Scot.

tove, v. i. To smoke or emit a smoky smell. Scot.

tow (tō), v.; TOWED (tōd); TOW'ING. [ME. towen, fr. AS. togian to pull, to drag; akin to AS. tēon to draw, OFris. toga to pull about, OHG. zogōn, ON. toga, AS. tohlīne a towline, and also to G. ziehen to draw, OHG. ziohan, Goth. tiuhan, L. ducere to lead, draw. Cf. DUKE, TAUT, TEAM, TIE, TOY, TUG, WANTON.] Transitive: 1. To drag or pull along; to haul. Obs.
They take this man, and tow him to the temple. Jos. of Arim.
2. To draw or pull along after by a rope or chain; as, to tow an automobile to a garage; esp., to draw by a towline through water, as a ship not using its own power; as, to tow a ship into its berth.
3. To lead (one) as though pulling him with a rope; as, to tow a guest up to the receiving line.
—, Intransitive: 1. To move in tow; to be towed.
2. To tug in an attempt to move.

tow, n. [From 1st TOW.] 1. Act or instance of towing; the fact or state of being towed; — chiefly in the phrases to take in tow, that is, to tow, and to take a tow, that is, to avail oneself of towing.
2. A rope or chain used in towing; a towline, or towrope.
3. That which is towed; specif.: a A boat in tow or requiring towing; esp., a barge. b A string of barges, etc., towed by a single tugboat.
4. That which tows; esp., a towboat or tugboat.
5. Biol. The specimens taken in a townet.
— in tow. a Being towed; drawn by a towline or tugboat. b Under one's protection, patronage, etc.; also, in the position or character of a devoted follower or admirer.

tow (tō), n. [AS. toh-, in tohlīne towline; akin to OFris. tow, D. touw, ON. tog, taug, AS. tēag, and E. tow to drag. See 1st TOW.] 1. A rope; specif., a bell rope or a hangman's rope. Chiefly Scot.
2. An iron chain; now, Dial., an iron link in a plow.

tow, v. t. To lower by a rope. Scot.

tow (tō), n. [ME. tow, fr. AS. tow (in comp.) a spinning, a weaving; akin to MD. touw tow, ON. tō a tuft of wool for spinning, and E. TAW, v.] 1. The coarse and broken part of flax, hemp, or jute, separated by the hatchel or swingle, and ready for spinning. See TOW ON ONE'S DISTAFF.
2. Narrowly, the short fibers of hackled flax or hemp.
3. The quantity of hemp fiber that will make 160 fathoms of yarn, being about 3½ pounds.
4. Yarn spun from tow; also, tow cloth; — chiefly in attributive use; as, tow rope, string, sheeting, or sacks.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tow boy	tow-colored	tow-made tow carder	tow-feeder	tow miner tow carrier	tow-haired	tow-spinning, adj.

tow, adj. Pertaining to, of, or for tow.

tow, v. t. To reduce to tow by hackling or carding.

tow'age (tō'ĭj), n. [From TOW, v.; cf. F. touage.] Act of towing; also, the price paid for towing.

tō'wa·i (tō'wä·ē; colloq. tō'wī), n. [Maori.] A New Zealand tree (Weinmannia racemosa), family Cunoniaceae, growing on poor soils and yielding an indifferent timber.

tow'an (tou'ăn), n. [Corn.] A sand dune. Cornwall.

to'ward (tō'ĕrd; tōrd; 181; 277), adj. [AS. tōweard impending, future. See TO; -WARD. Cf. TOWARD, prep.] 1. Future; coming. Obs. "The toward victor." Chapman.
2. Approaching; about to take place; esp., imminent; — now only in a predicate construction. "His toward peril." Spenser.
Do you hear aught, sir, of a battle toward? Shak.
3. Archaic. a Ready to learn; promising; also, compliant with duty; not froward; tractable; as, a toward youth.
Why, that is spoken like a toward prince. Shak.
b Ready to do what is requested; willing; obliging.
4. At hand; within reach. "Doughty men toward." Obs.
5. Near; left; — opposed to fromward. Dial.
6. On foot; in progress; going on; — used predicatively.
Now at this very time improvements were toward in the Strand. Forbes-Robertson.
7. Of a circumstance, favorable. Rare.
— to'ward·ness, n.

to'ward (tō'ĕrd; tōrd; tōō·wôrd'; 181; 277: the accentuation to·ward(s)', given by Dr. Johnson (1755), mentioned by Walker (1791) as obsolescent, and form. frequent in America, is described by Fowler and Sir Robert Bridges as recently common in Brit. usage), prep. [AS. tōweard. See TO; -WARD. Cf. TOWARD, adj.] Primarily toward denotes the relation of direction or approach without arrival or attainment. Its various uses are: 1. Indicating direction in space; specif.: a So as to approach; as, galloping toward town. b Obs. To; — with implication of arrival. "Shall we toward the Tower?" Shak.
2. Indicating direction and at the same time proximity as to position; specif.: a In the direction of and near to; at a point reached just short of; as, up toward Stamford; found toward the end; formerly, beside; near to; with. b So as to face; presented to; as, faces upturned toward the speaker; his back was toward me.
3. Indicating the limit of application of words and expressions denoting conduct or disposition; specif.: a In a way to approach as object or effect; along a course which if pursued is bound to result in; with a view to gaining; to the end or purpose of; as, retrograding toward barbarism; efforts made toward reconciliation; a long stride toward disarmament; a tendency toward co-operation. b In the treatment of; in the presence, reception, or proximity of; in relation to; for; against; as, intolerance toward another sect; sensitized toward tuberculin; sympathetic toward communism; felt drawn toward the wizened creature. c Obs. As regards; — often as towards.
4. Indicating antecedence and proximity as to time; specif., just before; approaching to; close upon; as, toward four o'clock; toward the close of the century.
5. Indicating that which is furthered or defrayed in part by a contribution; specif.: a Obs. In promotion of or assistance to. b As a share or providing for the support or payment of; as, he paid ten pounds toward the restoration of the chancel; to save something toward an education.
6. Noncurrent senses: a Obs. Hanging over or menacing. b Obs. exc. Dial. Near or close to, in quantity. c Obs. Approaching in condition; on the verge of. d Archaic. On the eve of; in readiness for.
☞ Toward formerly was often divided, and had its object placed between its elements, as in to us*ward,* etc.

to'ward (tō'ĕrd; tōrd), to'wards (tō'ĕrdz; tōrdz; 181), adv. [See TOWARD, prep.] 1. Toward a person or point suggested by the context. Now Rare.
2. To or on the near or left side. Dial. Eng.
3. Forward; onward. Obs. exc. Dial.

to'ward·li·ness (-lĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. State or condition of being towardly, propitious, timely, or favorable; as: Archaic exc. Dial. a Amenableness to treatment; tractability; docility; — esp. of persons. b Friendliness; affability in social intercourse; sociability. c Favorable or successful progress; advancement.

to'ward·ly (tō'ĕrd·lĭ; tōrd'lĭ; 181), adj. [Cf. AS. tōweardlic future.] 1. Favorable; seasonable; timely; as, choose a more towardly occasion.
2. Of immature persons, plants, etc., developing rapidly; promising; forward; thriving. Now Rare.
A child of towardly parts for her age. Swift.
3. Compliant; tractable; docile; gentle; kindly; affable.
She was very towardly and lenient. Stevenson.

to'ward·ly, adv. Docilely; tractably. Archaic & Dial.

to'wards (tō'ĕrdz; tōrdz; 181), adj. Toward (senses 2, 3 b, 4). Obs.

to'wards (see TOWARD, prep.), prep. [AS. tōweardes. See TO; -WARDS. Cf. TOWARD, adj.] 1. Toward (all senses). The form towards is now the prevailing form in British usage, whereas toward is far more common in the United States, except where towards is preferred for euphony.
2. Favorable to. Rare.
3. With best wishes for; to the health of. Dial.
4. Indicating or pointing to. "Facts and probabilities towards the future's greater well-being." Galsworthy.

to'wards (see TOWARD, adv.), adv. Toward.

tow'boat' (tō'bōt'), n. 1. = TUG, n., 7.
2. U. S. A steam or diesel-powered flat-bottomed boat, strongly built and equipped with reinforced structures called "towing knees" at the bow for pushing forward barges lashed together, on inland waterways.

tow cloth (tō). A fabric made of spun tow.

tow'cock' (tou'kŏk'), n. [Chin. (Cant.) tau-kok string beans, peas in the pod, fr. tau bean, pea + kok horn, pod.] The cowpea. India.

tow'die (tou'dĭ), n. A young hen that has not laid; a young unmarried girl. Scot.

tow'el (tou'ĕl; 277), n. [ME. towele, towaille, fr. OF. toaille (F. touaille), of Teut. origin; cf. OHG. dwahila, dwahilla, G. zwehle, OHG. dwahan to wash; akin to D. dwaal a towel, AS. thwēal a washing, thwēan to wash, OS. thwahan, ON. thvā, Goth. thwahan.] 1. A cloth used for wiping, esp. one used for drying anything wet; as, a bath or dish towel; also, a piece of absorbent paper so used.
2. Obs. a A napkin. b A piece of cloth wound around the head, as a turban, or around the waist, as a sash. c Eccl. (1) A vesperal (sense 2). (2) A houseling cloth.
3. Slang. a A cudgel; a bludgeon. b A bullet; a shot.

tow'el, v.; -ELED (-ĕld) or -ELLED; -EL·ING or -EL·LING. Transitive: 1. To rub or dry with a towel; also, Rare, to cover with a towel.
2. To cudgel; thrash. Slang, Eng.
—, Intransitive: To use a towel.

tow'el·ette' (tou'ĕl·ĕt'), n. [See -ETTE.] A small towel.

towel gourd. A dishcloth gourd.

towel horse. A towel rack.

tow'el·ing, tow'el·ling (tou'ĕl·ĭng), n. 1. Material for towels; specif., cloth woven in long pieces to be cut as desired, as distinguished from that woven in towel lengths with borders, etc.
2. A piece of cloth used as a towel; a towel. Browning.
3. The act of one who towels.

towel rack. A small rack with bars, used in bathrooms for hanging or drying towels.

tow'el·ry (tou'ĕl·rĭ), n. Supply of towels; towels.

to-wend', v. t. [AS. tōwendan.] To overthrow; to divert. — v. i. To dispose; go asunder. Both Obs.

---

tournay. † TOURNEY.
tourne. † TURN.
‖tour'ne·dos' (tōōr'nĕ·dō'), n. [F.] Cookery. = FILET MIGNON. tournee grand. See GRAND, n., 5 b. [court. Obs. tournel, n. A small tower; a tournery. † TURNERY. tour'ne·sol' (tōōr'nĕ·sôl'). Var. of TURNSOLE. tour'ny. Tourney. Ref. Sp.
Tours (tōōr), n. See BATTLE, Table. tourt. † TOURTE. tousche. See TUSCHE. tou'sel (tou'z'l; Scot. tōō'z'l). Var. of TOUSLE. Chiefly Dial.
‖tous' frais' faits' (tōō' frĕ' fĕ'). [F.] All expense defrayed. tous'le. Var. of TOUSY. tou'sld. Tousled. Ref. Sp.
toust, n. [AF. See 1st TOLT.] A tax; toll. Obs. Scot. toute, n. The buttocks. Obs.
toute' suite' (tōōt' swĕt'). Erron. for tout de suite.
tout'mout' (tōōt'mōōt'). Var. of TOOTMOOT. Scot. touze (touz), v. t. & i. Var. of TOUSE. tou'zle, tou'zly. Vars. of TOUSLE, TOUSLY. to'var (tō'vȧr), n. sing. & pl. [Serb.& Bulg.] See WEIGHT, Table. tovet, n. The measure of half a bushel. Obs.
tow. † TOUGH, TWO.
tow'a·ble (tō'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. towd (tōd). Dial. Eng. past tense & past part. of TELL. towd. Towed. Ref. Sp. towe. † TWO.
to-wear', v. t. & i. To wear to pieces. Obs. tow'eld. Toweled. Ref. Sp. towen, past part. of TEE, draw. Obs.

tow'er (tou'ĕr), n. [ME. towr, tour, tur, tor, fr. AS. torr (fr. L.), and fr. OF. tor, tur (F. tour), fr. L. turris, like Gr. tyrsis tower, of Etruscan or cognate Aegean origin; cf. Gr. Tyrsēnoi, L. Tuscī, Etruscī, and E. ETRUSCAN, TYRRHENIAN. Cf. TOR, TURRET.] 1. A building or structure designed primarily with a view to elevation, and hence typically higher than its diameter, or relatively high by its position. A tower may be either isolated, as a campanile or pagoda; or appended to a larger structure, as in the case of a church belfry; or of towers projecting above, or out from, a wall. Modern towers, as in windmill towers, observation towers, etc., are often of skeleton framework.

Anglo-Saxon Tower, Earl's Barton, Eng.

2. Such a structure used as a defense; hence, citadel; fortress; a fortified prison; as, the Tower of London.
3. A towerlike structure or mass. Specif.: a A very high formation or pile, as of rock or rocks. b A fire tower. c A castle (sense 3 c) on an elephant's back. d A high towerlike headdress, fashionable around 1700.
4. Figuratively: a A stronghold; bulwark; esp., a defense or protection; a support.

Thou hast been a . . . strong tower from the enemy. Ps. lxi. 3.

b Now Rare. High flight; a soar; a towering (see TOWER, v. i. 2), as of a bird. c A high vantage point; an elevation.

"Yet not alone from Wisdom's tower." Shelley. d A place of retreat, contemplation, etc.; as, a poet's ivory tower. e By metonymy, a castle, chateau, etc.; a country seat.

Who now commands the towers and the lands. Burns.

5. Astrol. A mansion; a planetary house. See 3d HOUSE, 14 b. Obs.
6. Chem. A vertical structure, varying in height, through which gases or liquids are passed to cause purification, absorption, or other effect. Cf. GLOVER TOWER.
7. Chess. A castle. Now Rare.
8. Mil. Antiq. A medieval engine of war for storming operations, consisting of a tower on wheels, with several platforms, the lower sometimes occupied by a battering-ram, and the upper by archers and men-at-arms with scaling ladders and the like.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tower-bearing, adj.	tower-encircled	tower-shaped tower-capped	tower-flanked	tower-studded tower chime	tower-high	tower-supported tower-crested	tower light	tower-tearing tower-crowned	towerproof	tower window
tower-dwelling, adj.	tower-razing, adj.	towerwork

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES in which tower is the terminal element are:

bell tower	gate tower	round tower bridge tower	leaning tower	shot tower buttress tower	Martello tower	switch tower clock tower	plate tower	wall tower conning tower	porcelain tower	watchtower derrick tower	prayer tower	water tower
fire tower	rood tower	windmill tower tow'er (tou'ĕr), adj. Pertaining to, consisting of, or containing, a tower or towers.

tow'er (tou'ĕr), v.; TOW'ERED (-ĕrd); TOW'ER-ING. Intransitive: 1. To reach or rise to a great height or above other objects; to be lofty or very high; as, spires that tower to the heavens; he towered above all his contemporaries in intellect.
2. To fly aloft as a bird; to soar; specif.: a To mount before swooping, as a hawk. b To rise vertically before falling, as a wounded bird.
——, Transitive: 1. To raise aloft; to elevate; exalt; uplift.
2. Obs. a To soar into. b To furnish with a tower or towers.
tow'er (tō'ĕr), n. One who or that which tows. tow'er (tō'ĕr), n. Ceramics. A worker who smooths ware with tow. tow'er and town (tou'ĕr). = TOWN AND TOWER. tower bastion. Fort. A casemated bastion of masonry. tower cap. A steel cap at the top of a windmill tower which binds the corner posts together at a point and also provides a bearing for the windmill proper.
tower clock. a A clock in a tower. b Horol. = TURRET CLOCK. tower cress. A European cress (Arabis turrita) having stiff erect stems. tow'ered (tou'ĕrd), adj. Having a tower or towers; adorned or defended by towers; as, a towered church. "Towered cities." Milton.
tower hill. A hill near or dominated by a tower; specif. [caps.], the slope near the Tower of London. tower house. = SWITCH TOWER. U. S. tow'er-ing (tou'ĕr-ĭng), adj. 1. That towers; lofty; rising or soaring aloft; as, a towering height or hawk.
2. Hence: a Surpassing; extremely high or great; as, towering abilities. b Extending beyond bounds; overweening; as, towering ambitions. c Increasing in intensity or violence; as, a towering rage.
— tow'er-ing-ly, adv.
tow'er-ing, n. The action or the state of one that towers; specif., Meteorol., the apparent vertical stretching of objects some distance away to unwonted heights, — a form of mirage. tow'er-man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One who attends to or works in a tower; specif., Railroads, a man employed in a switch tower.
tower mustard. a The widely distributed cress Arabis glabra. b The tower cress.
Tower of Babel. See BABEL, 1.
Tower of Hunger. See UGOLINO DELLA GHERARDESCA.
Tower of London, or simply the Tower. Originally a keep or fortress, now a large collection of buildings covering about 13 acres, in the eastern part of London on the north bank of the Thames, once used as a royal palace, then (and occasionally still) as a prison for political offenders, and now as an arsenal and repository of various objects of public interest. The White Tower, or Tower proper, was begun by William I in 1078.
tower of silence. = DOKHMA. tower owl. The barn owl. Brit.
Tower pound. A pound of 5,400 grains (349.91 grams), which prior to 1527 was the legal mint pound of England; — so called because the standard pound was kept in the Tower of London. It was equal to 0.9375 lb. troy. tower shell. Any gastropod of the family Turritellidae. tower stamp. A hallmark.
tower telescope. Astron. A long-focus telescope set vertically and fed by a coelostat and mirror.
tower wagon. A wagon or motor truck with a high adjustable platform on which workmen can stand when repairing trolley wires or cleaning and replacing street lamps.
Tower weight. Weight given in Tower pounds. tow'er-wort' (tou'ĕr-wûrt'), n. The tower cress.
tow'er-y (-ĭ), adj. 1. Having towers; towered.
2. Lofty; towering. towght (tout), n. Also tought, towt. [Origin obscure.] A link, length, or strand, as in an angler's hair line. Now Dial.
tow'head' (tō'hĕd'), n. 1. One having soft whitish hair; also, a head of such hair.
2. One whose hair is tousled.
3. The hooded merganser. Local, U. S.
4. A low alluvial island or shoal in a river; esp., such an island with clusters of cottonwood or the like. Local, U. S.
— tow'head'ed, adj.
tow'hee (tou'hē; tō'hē), n. Also towhee bunting. [Imitative.] Any of certain American finches of the genera Pipilo and Oberholseria, esp. the common species P. erythrophthalmus of eastern North America, called also chewink. The male is black, white, and rufous; in the female the black is replaced by brown. In the western United States, Mexico, etc., related species are found, as the California towhee (P. crissalis) which is chiefly plain brown; the Oregon towhee (P. maculatus oregonus) somewhat similar to the common towhee; the green-tailed towhee (O. chlorura) of the Rocky Mountain region, which is greenish above with a chestnut crown and ashy under parts.

Towhee (Pipilo erythrophthalmus). $\frac{1}{6}$ tow hook. Ordnance. A combined hook and hammer sometimes used by artillerymen to open ammunition chests, etc. tow'ing (tō'ĭng), n. 1. The action of one who tows.

2. Hence: a Towage. b Biol. = 2d TOW, 5; — often in pl.
tow'ing, adj. That tows; also, of, pertaining to, used in, or engaged in, towing; as, towing rope, service, or companies.
towing bridle. Naut. a A bridle with a hook in the center for a towline to be fastened to when two boats are towed abreast. b A length of wire hawser for passing around part of a ship's structure, as an after turret, to the ends of which the towing hawser may be connected by a set of shackles.
towing lights. Naut. Two, or three, white lights in a vertical line carried by a steamer towing other vessels.
towing net. See TOWNET. towing path. = TOWPATH.
towing post or timber. Naut. A heavy timber on deck to which a towline may be attached.
towing spar. = FOG BUOY, b. tow iron. Whaling. A harpoon with a towline attached. tow'line' (tō'lĭn'), n. [See 1st TOW; LINE.] A line used in towing; as, he passed a towline to the disabled automobile; specif.: a Naut. A towrope. b Whaling. A line attached to an iron, or harpoon, by which the boat is made fast to, and often towed by, the whale.
tow'mast' (-măst'), n. A pole used on boats being towed along banks, over which the towline runs so as to clear bushes.
tow'mond (tou'mŭnd), tow'mont (-mŭnt), n. [See TWELVEMONTH.] A twelvemonth. Scot. town (toun), n. [ME. toun, tun, fr. AS. tūn enclosure, fence, manor, village, town; akin to D. tuin a garden, G. zaun a hedge, fence, OHG. zūn, ON. tūn an enclosure, homestead, house, OIr. dūn a fortress, W. dūn. Cf. TINE to enclose.] 1. An enclosure, as a garden, court, yard, or farm; an enclosed field or common. Obs.
2. The enclosed land surrounding a dwelling; a farmstead; sometimes, a manor. Obs.
3. A place of abode; the house or houses, barns, etc. within an enclosure. Now Scot.
4. Any cluster or aggregation of houses recognized as a distinct place; a settlement with a place name; a vill; village; hamlet. Now Dial.
5. In general, a place which is a population and business center and is recognized as such geographically and politically. Hence: a A center of population, larger and more fully organized and developed than a village, but not incorporated as a city. b Eng. A village without urban characteristics or not an episcopal see, but with a periodical fair or market; — more fully market town. c Any large closely populated place, as a city, a borough, or an urban district.
6. Specif., in the United States: a In the New England States, a municipal corporation of a less complex character than a city, the sovereign authority generally being the town meeting, or general assembly of all the qualified voters, which elects all officers and decides all local governmental matters; a township (not so called in New England). The town is the oldest unit of administration, the county having been formed by the grouping of towns for certain purposes. The chief executive officers are called selectmen. Usually towns, when they have grown too large for government by a town meeting, become cities. In some cases in Connecticut, separate municipal corporations (cities and boroughs) have been formed, as a result of the compacting of population, within the town area, their limits being usually smaller than, but in some instances coextensive with, those of the town. This causes a part or the whole of the town area to have a dual government. b In other States, a unit of rural administration more or less like the New England town; a township (which see).
7. Without an article: a The metropolis or the neighboring large city; specif., Eng., London; as, to commute daily to town; to have an apartment in town. b The particular city or town (sense 5 a) in which the speaker is or is near; as, he has left town; he has just come to town. c The downtown district of a city; the business center; as, the doctor has offices in his home and in town.
8. Usually with the. The city as contrasted with the country; urban communities or life.

God made the country, and man made the town. Cowper.

9. Collectively: a The body of inhabitants of a town; the townspeople. b The citizens, electorate, or qualified voters of a town; the town as a corporation; as, the town elects two representatives. c Archaic. The fashionable society of a city, as of London. d The townspeople or citizens, as contrasted with the students of a university, esp. at Oxford or Cambridge; as, a town and gown riot. See GOWN, n., 2.
10. Something like a town, as a collection of burrows of the prairie dog or of nests of penguins.
11. A size of cards. See PAPER, Table.
— about town. Frequently seen or well known in the fashionable or sporting circles or the night life of a city; — now only in man about town. — of the town. That is a prostitute; as, a girl of the town. — on or upon the town. a Obs. In or into a city's fashionable or fast life. b Old Slang. Engaged in prostitution, pocket-picking, or the like. c On or by poor relief furnished by the town or parish; supported by, or living on, such relief.
-town (-toun). 1. A combining form of town, as in cross*town,* down*town,* kirk*town,* shanty*town,* up*town.*
2. A form, substituted for -ton, found in place names, as in Charles*town,* Elizabeth*town,* Frederick*town,* George*town.*
town (toun), adj. Belonging to, suited to, or characteristic of, a town; urban; not rural, provincial, or the like; also, municipal; as, town clothes, activities, or manners; town schools or libraries.
town, v. t. Rare. a To provide with towns. b To make (a village) into a town. town-. Combining form of town, noun and adjective, as in:

town-absorbing, adj.	town-frequenting, adj.	town-loving, adj.
town boomer	town-girdled	town-made town-born	town-goer	town park town-bound	town-going, adj.	town-pent town-bred	town-imprisoned	town-sick town bridge	town jail	town sickness town church	town-keeping, adj.	townside town-dotted	town-killed	town-tied town dweller	town life	town-trained town-dwelling, adj.	town-living, adj.	town wall town-flanked	town-looking, adj.	town-weary town forest	town lot	town yard town adjutant. Mil. An officer of the staff of a British garrison, with the rank of lieutenant and the general duties or provost marshal. Obs. exc. Hist. town and tower. The city and country. See 1st TOWER, 4 e. town ball. A kind of ball game which preceded and somewhat resembled baseball. U. S. town book. A record book of a town.

town bushel. A merely local bushel measure. Rare.
town car. A four-door automobile with a permanently enclosed passenger compartment in the rear, separated from the driver's compartment, which has no fixed roof, by a sliding glass partition. town clerk. An officer who keeps the records of a town, and enters its official proceedings. See CLERK, 4. — town clerkship. town council. The elective governing body of a town.
town councilor. A member of a town council.
town cress. The garden peppergrass.
town crier. A town officer who makes proclamations; the public crier of a town.
town economy. In economic history, the stage or system in which the center of trade and commerce is a town, often a walled town, with a distinct merchant class and considerable division of labor.
towned (tound), adj. Having towns; having many towns.
town'ee' (toun'ē'), n. A townsman. Slang.
Towne'ley Mys'ter-ies (toun'lĭ). [After the Towneley family of Towneley Hall, Lancashire, Eng., which preserved the MS.] A collection of mystery plays found in Northumbrian dialect in a manuscript dating from the 15th century; — called also the Wakefield Plays. town end. One of the ends of a village street or road. Dial.
town'er (toun'ĕr), n. Town or city dweller. Slang.
tow'net' (tō'nĕt'), or towing net. Biol. A fine-meshed net, usually much tapered and more or less conical in shape and kept open by a ring or hoop, to be towed through the water for the capture of plankton, etc.
tow'-net'ting (-ĭng), n. Use of a townet; also, pl., the specimens gathered in a townet. — tow'-net'ter (-ĕr), n. town'far'ing (toun'fâr'ĭng), n. A faring to and from a town or city; commuting. Rare.
town'folk' (-fōk'), town'folks' (-fōks'), n. pl. Townspeople. town foot. The town end regarded as the lower. Dial.
town gas. Gas supplied in a town or city for general use, esp. coal gas or carbureted water gas; — distinguished from producer gas.
town'gate' (toun'gāt'), n. [town + gate an opening.] The gate of a walled town. town'gate (toun'gāt; Scot. tōōn'-), n. [town + gate a way.] The main street of a town. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
town guard. Scot. Hist. The police or military guard of a town.
town hall. Commonly, a public building belonging to a town and used for public offices and for the meetings of town council, courts, public assemblies, etc.; also, a large hall in such a building.
town head. The town end regarded as the upper. Dial.
town house. 1. A house in town, in distinction from a house in the country; one's city residence.
2. Written town'house' (toun'hous'). a Chiefly Eng. A town hall. b In Continental Europe, the official residence of the chief magistrate. Cf. HOTEL DE VILLE. c Chiefly Euphemistic. U. S. The town poorhouse. town'i-fy (toun'ĭ-fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING. [town + -fy.] To make townlike. town'i-ness (-ĭ-nĕs; -nĭs), n. The quality or state of being towny. town'ish (-ĭsh), adj. Of, belonging to, living in, or characteristic of, a town or towns. — town'ish-ly, adv. — town'ish-ness, n. town'ist (-ĭst), n. A townsman. Rare.
town'land (toun'lănd; Scot. tōōn'-), n. a Ir. A section of land constituted like a township, as part of a parish. b Scot. The enclosed land of a farm.
town'let (toun'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A small town. town'like' (-līk'), adj. See -LIKE. town'ling (-lĭng), n. See -LING. town'ly (toun'lĭ), adj. Belonging to or characteristic of the town; town-bred. town major. Mil. An officer of the staff of a British garrison having the rank of captain and the general supervision of good order. — town majorship. Both Obs. exc. Hist. town'man (toun'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a Obs. A villein. b Townsman. town manager. The manager of the business of a town, appointed by the annual town meeting or by the selectmen. town meeting. In a town, a legal meeting of the inhabitants entitled to vote, for the transaction of public business. In the United States those in New England towns have powers of taxation, contract, etc., free from county supervision, but in New York and other States the powers are less and are subject to county supervision.

tower. + TOUR.
tow'erd. Towered. Ref. Sp. tow'er-less, adj. See -LESS. tow'er-let, n. Dim. of TOWER. tow'er-like', adj. See -LIKE. tow'er-wise', adv. See -WISE. to wit. See 1st WIT, Note. tow'kay (tou'kā), n. = MANDARIN, 1 a. towk'er + TUCKER.
towl. + TOLL.
tow'like' (tō'līk'), adj. See -LIKE.
town. + TUN.
town'ful, n. See -FUL. town'hood, n. See -HOOD. town'less, adj. See -LESS.
Town'ley Mys'ter-ies. = TOWNELEY MYSTERIES.

town mouse. A town-bred person; — in allusion to one of Aesop's fables. town mutual. See MUTUAL, 7. town officer. An officer of a town; specif., in New England, a selectman. town people. Townspeople. town place. A farmyard; also, a hamlet. Cornwall. town planning. = CITY PLANNING. — Hence, town plan; town planner. town reeve. a Hist. The steward or reeve of a town, esp. in medieval England. b The reeve of a Canadian town. See REEVE, 2. town row. A row of houses in a town or parish; also, figuratively, a list of men of a town.
town's bairn. A native of the town specified or implied. Scot.
towns'boy' (tounz'boĭ'), n. A town boy; also, a fellow townsman.
Town'send cell (toun'zĕnd). Chem. Tech. An electrolytic cell in which the anode and cathode are separated by a diaphragm and an oil is used in the cathode chamber. It was devised by C. P. Townsend for the manufacture of chlorine and caustic soda from brine.
Town·sen'di·a (toun·zĕn'dĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after David Townsend, of West Chester, Pa.] Bot. A genus of western American mostly low and tufted herbs (family Cardiaceae) with large heads of purple-rayed or white-rayed flowers. The achenes are beset with bristly, forked hairs. The species are abundant in the Rocky Mountains.
towns'fel'low (tounz'fĕl'ō), n. A fellow citizen of a town.
towns'folk' (tounz'fōk'), n. pl. Townspeople.
Town'shend Acts (toun'zĕnd). [After Charles Townshend (1725–67), Eng. statesman.] Amer. Hist. Three acts passed by Parliament (1767): (1) levying import duties in the American colonies on glass, paper, paints, and tea; (2) creating a commission to enforce trade laws; and (3) suspending the New York legislature for refusal to furnish supplies for English troops. These measures caused widespread protest in the colonies and were one of the causes of the American Revolution.
town'ship (toun'shĭp), n. [AS. tūnscipe the inhabitants of a tūn. See TOWN; -SHIP.] 1. Hist. a The inhabitants of a vill, manor, or medieval town; the community, esp. as a corporate body. Cf. 1st HAMLET a, Cit. b The vill, manor, or town. c A social or tribal unit among the Anglo-Saxons; — a theoretical modern use.
2. In England, an ancient unit of administration identical in area with, or a division of, a parish; the area of a parish or chapelry with reference only to the inhabitants. Cf. VILLAGE.
3. An administrative unit, as a self-governing town, in foreign lands; — often the translation of a term such as Lat. pagus or the Greek demos (deme).
4. In the United States, a primary unit of local government of varying character in different parts of the country. In New England, where it is called town (which see), it exists in its primitive form except as modified and partly subordinated by the later formed units, the county and State. In the northwestern States the county is the older unit and the township is a division of the county. In the southern States the county is generally the more important unit, and townships, where they exist, are mere local divisions. Township organization varies greatly. In New England, where it is most important, the governing body is uniformly the town meeting (see TOWN, n., 6 a); elsewhere there is either a town meeting with somewhat less extensive powers or only executive machinery, such as supervisors or trustees. In Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont there are unorganized subdivisions of the county called townships, which are simply tracts of land laid off by the State authorities.
5. A geographical rather than a political division; specif.: a In surveys of the public land of the United States, a division of territory that is, with certain exceptions, six miles long on its south and east and west boundaries, which follow meridians, and so slightly less than six miles on the north. It contains 36 sections, and has often formed the basis of a later political township. See MEASURE, Table. b In Canada, a subdivision of certain of the provinces. c Australia. A townsite (sense 2); also, the temporary settlement on such a site.
6. = MUNICIPAL DISTRICT. Phil. I.
7. A farm held jointly. Scot. township lines. Surv. Lines that divide southern from northern townships. Cf. RANGE, n., 6 a. Western U. S. township road. A highway maintained by a town or township. U. S. town'site' (toun'sīt'), n. 1. The site of a town.
2. Specif., a tract of land laid out with streets and subdivided into lots for the development of a town.
towns'man (tounz'mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). [AS. tūnesmann an inhabitant of a tūn. See TOWN.] 1. An inhabitant of a town; a citizen; hence, a town-bred man; one accustomed to town life.
2. One of the same town as another; a fellow citizen.
3. In New England, a selectman. See SELECTMAN.
4. A citizen of a university town as distinguished from a gownsman, or member of the university.
5. One who goes to towns in canvassing or delivering. Brit.
town soviet. See SOVIET, n. towns'peo'ple (tounz'pē'p'l), n. pl. The inhabitants of a town or city; town-bred persons; people whose lives and interests are identified with a town; townsfolk.
town talk. The common talk of a place, as of a town; public gossip; also, the subject matter or the object of such gossip.
town tallow. = KITCHEN STUFF, 2. town top. = PARISH TOP. town traveler. Com. A commercial traveler limited to the town or city which is his employer's place of business. Eng.
town way. The road to the town.
town'wear' (toun'wâr'), n. Wearing apparel suitable for town; business or street clothes. town woman. a A woman resident in the town, as contrasted with a countrywoman. b A girl of the town; a prostitute. town'y (toun'ĭ), n.; pl. TOWNIES (-ĭz). Slang. A town dweller; specif.: a A townsman, esp. as distinguished from a gownsman. b Brit. A comrade from one's home town, or, in India, from the town in which one is stationed. town'y, adj. Of, characteristic of, or like, a town. Colloq.
tow on one's distaff. Business undertaken; work started. to-worn', past part. of TO-WEAR. Hence: adj. Worn to pieces. See TO-. Obs. tow'path' (tō'pȧth'), n. A path along a canal, etc., traveled by men or animals towing boats; a towing path.
tow post. A towing post.
tow'-pung' (tō'pŭng'), n. A pung. J. F. Cooper.
tow'rope' (-rōp'), n. A rope used in towing. towrope horsepower. The horsepower required to tow a vessel at a given speed by means of a towrope.
tow'-row' (tou'rou'; tō'rō'), n. Noisy racketing; uproar; rumpus. — v. i. To make a tow-row. Both Colloq.
tow'-row', adj. Tow-rowing. Rare.
tow'ser (tou'zĕr), n. [See TOUSE to pull about.] 1. A large dog; also [cap.], a name for a dog.
2. A card and count in gleek. Hist.
3. A large rough person; one full of energy; — often in phrase a towser for work. Dial.
tow team (tō). An extra team of draft animals used to assist a regular team. Local, U. S. tow wheel. A spinning wheel for making coarse tow yarn.
tow'y (tō'ĭ), adj. Composed of, or like, tow, or hackled flax, etc. tox'a (tŏk'sȧ), n. [NL.] Zool. A sponge spicule curved like a bent bow. tox'al·bu'min (tŏk'sȧl·bū'mĭn), n. [tox-+albumin.] Biochem. Any of a class of toxic substances of protein nature; a toxin. See TOXIN. — tox'al·bu'mic (-mĭk), adj.
tox·al'bu·mose (tŏks·ȧl'bū·mōs), n. [tox-+albumose.] Biochem. A poisonous albumose.
tox'a·min (tŏk'sȧ·mĭn), n. [tox-+-amin.] Med. One of a class of substances said to be present in cereals, and to produce by direct action some of the harmful effects commonly attributed to vitamin deficiency, unless neutralized by the proper vitamins.
tox'a·ne'mi·a (tŏk'sȧ·nē'mĭ·ȧ), n. Also tox'a·nae'mi·a. [NL.] Med. Anemia caused by toxemia.
Tox'ca·tl (tōs'kȧ·t'l; -tȧ), n. [Nahuatl Toxcatl, Tozcatl.] a Among the Aztecs, the new year festival, which was celebrated with a ceremonial including human sacrifice. b [not cap.] A necklace of dried maize grains worn by some of the participants in the ceremonies of the Aztec new year festival.
tox·e'mi·a, tox·ae'mi·a (tŏks·ē'mĭ·ȧ), n.; pl. -AS (-ȧz). [NL., fr. tox-+-emia.] Med. Any morbid condition caused by the presence of toxins or other toxic substances in the blood. See BLOOD POISONING. — tox·e'mic, tox·ae'mic (-ē'mĭk; -ēm'ĭk), adj.
toxemia of pregnancy. Med. One of a class of disorders occurring in and caused by pregnancy, as pernicious vomiting, eclampsia, nephritis of pregnancy, etc. tox'i- (tŏk'sĭ-). A combining form for toxic, and toxin, as in tox'i·der'mic, tox'i·phor'ic.
tox'ic (tŏk'sĭk), adj. [ML. toxicus, fr. L. toxicum poison, fr. Gr. toxikon (sc. pharmakon) arrow poison, fr. toxikos of or for the bow, fr. toxon bow, arrow. Cf. INTOXICATE.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or caused by, poison or a toxin; as, toxic drugs, effects, or convulsions.
2. Poisoned; affected by a toxin; as, a toxic patient.
3. Acting, or likely to act, as a poison; poisonous; as, eggs are toxic to some persons; a toxic influence. tox'ic, n. A toxic substance; something poisonous. toxic-. = TOXICO-, as in *toxic*emia. toxic adenoma. Med. An adenoma, or adenomatous state, specif. of the thyroid, believed to cause symptoms of toxicity, as nervousness, impaired action of the heart, etc.
tox'i·cal (tŏk'sĭ·kȧl), adj. Toxic. — tox'i·cal·ly, adv. tox'i·cant (tŏk'sĭ·kȧnt), adj. Poisonous; producing a toxic effect. — n. A poisonous agent or drug, as opium; also, an intoxicant.
tox·ic'a·rol (tŏk·sĭk'ȧ·rōl; -rŏl), n. Biochem. A greenish-yellow poisonous compound, $C_{42}H_{52}O_7$, obtained from the roots of a tropical herb Tephrosia toxicaria. tox'i·ca'tion (tŏk'sĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [ML. toxicare to poison, fr. L. toxicum a poison.] Poisoning.
toxic goiter. Med. Goiter causing, or associated with, symptoms of toxicity, as exophthalmic goiter. tox·ic'i·ty (tŏks·Is'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). Quality, state, or degree, of being toxic, or poisonous; poisonousness.
toxic jaundice. See JAUNDICE, n., 1. tox'i·co- (tŏk'sĭ·kō-), toxic-. A combining form from Greek toxikon, poison, as in *toxic*ology, *toxic*osis, tox'i·co·pho'bi·a, tox'i·co·trau·mat'ic.
tox'i·co·den'drol (-dĕn'drōl; -drŏl), n. [Toxicodendron + 2d -ol.] Chem. A nonvolatile, irritant oil, the active principle of poison ivy (Toxicodendron radicans). It is probably a glucoside.
Tox'i·co·den'dron (-dĕn'drŏn), n. [NL., fr. toxico-+-dendron.] 1. Bot. A genus of 20 species of trees, shrubs, or woody vines (family Anacardiaceae), comprising the poison ivy, poison sumac, poison oak, etc., and differing chiefly from the closely related genus Rhus in having smooth fruits, and foliage poisonous to the touch.
2. [not cap.] Pharm. The fresh leaves of poison ivy (Toxicodendron radicans), sometimes used in the form of a tincture as a remedy for rheumatism. The fluid extract is used externally for sprains and gout, and internally for chronic eczema.
tox'i·co·der'ma (-dûr'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. toxico-+-derma.] Med. Any disease of the skin caused by a poison.
tox'i·co·der'ma·ti'tis (-tĭ'tĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Any inflammation of the skin caused by a poison.
tox'i·co·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk), adj. [toxico-+-genic.] Physiol. & Med. a Producing toxic products; as, toxicogenic bacteria. b Produced by toxic substances; as, a toxicogenic disease.
tox'i·cog·nath' (tŏk'sĭ·kŏg·năth'), n. [NL., fr. toxico-+ Gr. gnathos jaw.] Zool. A poison fang of a centipede. tox'i·coid (tŏk'sĭ·koid), adj. [See TOXIC; -OID.] Like poison. tox'i·co·log'i·cal chem'is·try (tŏk'sĭ·kō·lŏj'Ĭ·kȧl). Biochemistry related to toxicology.
tox'i·col'o·gy (-kŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [toxico-+-logy. See TOXIC.] The science which treats of poisons, their effects, antidotes, and recognition. — tox'i·co·log'ic (-kō·lŏj'Ĭk), adj. — tox'i·co·log'i·cal (-Ĭ·kȧl), adj. — tox'i·co·log'i·cal·ly, adv. — tox'i·col'o·gist (-kŏl'ō·jĭst), n.
tox'i·co·ma'ni·a (tŏk'sĭ·kō·mā'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. toxico-+-mania.] Med. Addiction to a drug, as opium or cocaine.
tox'i·cop'a·thy (tŏk'sĭ·kŏp'ȧ·thĭ), n. [toxico-+-pathy.] Med. Any disorder due as presumed by a poison or poisons. — tox'i·co·path'ic (-kō·păth'Ĭk), adj.
tox'i·coph'a·gous (-kŏf'ȧ·gŭs), adj. Addicted to toxicophagy.
tox'i·coph'a·gy (-jĭ), n. [toxico-+-phagy.] The custom or practice of eating poisons. tox'i·co·phid'i·a (-kō·fĭd'Ĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. toxico-+ Ophidia.] Venomous serpents. Rare.
tox'i·co'sis (-kō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. toxic-+-osis.] Med. A morbid condition caused by the action of a poison. toxic smoke. Poison smoke. See 1st GAS, 3. tox'i·cum (tŏk'sĭ·kŭm), n. Also tox'i·con (-kŏn). [L. toxicum, fr. Gr. toxikon.] Poison.
tox·if'er·ous (tŏks·Ĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [See TOXIC; -FEROUS.] Physiol. Producing or conveying poison. tox'i·gen'ic (tŏk'sĭ·jĕn'Ĭk), adj. [toxi-+-genic.] Bacteriol. Producing toxin. tox'in (tŏk'sĭn), n. Also tox'ine (-sĭn; -sēn). [See TOXIC.] Biochem. A poison formed as a specific secretion product in the metabolism of a vegetable or animal organism. Toxins are colloidal, chemically allied to proteins, and usually very unstable; though strongly toxic when introduced to the tissues, almost all are destroyed by the digestive juices. The typical, or "true," toxins (cf. EXOTOXIN) form a class of substances distinguished from inorganic poisons, alkaloids, etc., by inducing the formation of antitoxins when introduced into a suitable animal and by having, in most cases, an incubation period before symptoms of poisoning appear. True toxins are elaborated by plants, esp. in the seeds (as abrin, ricin); by snakes, as in venom; by insects, etc.; as well as by bacteria, as in tetanus, diphtheria, and botulism. See ENDOTOXIN.
-tox'in. A combining form of toxin, as in:

antitoxin	endotoxin	neurotoxin autotoxin	ergotoxin	phytotoxin bacteriotoxin	hemotoxin	pneumotoxin cytotoxin	ichthyotoxin	serotoxin diphtherotoxin	immunotoxin	tetanotoxin ectotoxin	nephrotoxin	urotoxin tox'in·an'a·tox'in, n. Immunol. A mixture of toxin and toxoid, as of diphtheria, used for immunizing against the disease for which they are specific.

tox'in·an'ti·tox'in, n. Immunol. A mixture of toxin and antitoxin, esp. diphtheria toxin and enough antitoxin to nearly neutralize it, used in immunizing against the disease for which they are specific. It engenders active immunity without the danger attendant upon use of the toxin alone.
tox'i·ne'mi·a, tox'i·nae'mi·a (tŏk'sĭ·nē'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. toxin+-emia.] Med. Toxemia caused by specific toxin. tox'in·fec'tion (tŏk'sĭn·fĕk'shŭn), n. [tox-+infection.] Med. Disease with toxic manifestations, in which an infecting microbe is not recognized. — tox'in·fec'tious (-shŭs), adj.
tox'i·no'sis (tŏk'sĭ·nō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. toxin+-osis.] Med. Any morbid state due to the presence of a toxin.
‖tox·i'pha·gus (tŏks·Ĭf'ȧ·gŭs), n.; pl. -PHAGI (-jĭ). [NL.] A toxicophagous person.
tox'i·pho'bi·a (tŏk'sĭ·fō'bĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. toxico-+-phobia.] Med. Morbid fear of poisons or of being poisoned. tox'i·pho'bi·ac (-ăk), n. One suffering from toxiphobia. tox'i·ta·bel'lae (-tȧ·bĕl'ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. toxi-+tabella.] Pharm. Tablets containing a poisonous ingredient, as mercuric chloride.
tox'i·ty (tŏk'sĭ·tĭ), n. Toxicity. Rare.
tox'o- (tŏk'sō-), tox-. A combining form, Greek toxo-, tox-, from toxon, meaning bow, as in *Toxo*glossa. tox'o-, tox-. A combining form equivalent to toxico-, as in *toxo*phil, *tox*emia, tox'o·gen'e·sis, tox·ol'y·sis.
Tox'o·don'ti·a (tŏk'sō·dŏn'shĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. 1st toxo-+-odontia.] Paleontol. A suborder (or order) of generalized ungulates of the Miocene to Pleistocene of South America. They were mostly of huge size, equaling a large rhinoceros, and the teeth consisted of large incisors, small lower canines, and high-crowned curved molars mostly growing persistently. The typical and best-known genus is Tox'o·don (tŏk'sō·dŏn). — tox'o·dont (-dŏnt), adj. & n.

Skull of one of the Toxodontia (Toxodon burmeisteri).

Tox'o·glos'sa (-glŏs'ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. 1st toxo-+-glossa.] Zool. A group of marine carnivorous gastropods (suborder Stenoglossa), including the Conidae and Terebridae, in which the teeth of the radula are reduced in number, large, and often perforated to serve as poison fangs with which a large poison gland in the esophagus communicates by slender ducts. — tox'o·glos'sate (-āt), adj. & n.

A One of the Toxoglossa (Bela exarata). B Mouth Parts of the same, much enlarged; a Proboscis; bb' Odontophore; c Tooth; g Poison Gland; d Its Duct; e Esophagus. C One of the Teeth, highly magnified.

tox·ol'o·gy (tŏks·ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [1st toxo-+-logy.] Archery. R. tox'on (tŏk'sŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. toxon bow.] Zool. A toxa. tox'on (tŏk'sŏn), n. Also tox'one (-sōn). [toxin+-one.] Biochem. An altered toxin of lessened activity, produced by bacteria. tox'o·phil (tŏk'sō·fĭl), adj. Also tox'o·phile (-fīl; -fĭl). [2d toxo-+-phil.] Biochem. Having affinity for toxins; — said of certain haptophorous groups. See SIDE-CHAIN THEORY. tox·oph'i·lism (tŏks·ŏf'Ĭ·lĭz'm), n. Toxophily. Rare.
tox·oph'i·lite (-lĭt), n. [1st toxo-+ Gr. philos loving + -ite.] One fond of, or devoted to, archery. — tox·oph'i·lit'ic (-lĭt'Ĭk), adj. — tox·oph'i·lit·ism (-lĭt·Ĭz'm), n.

---

town'scape, n. See -SCAPE.
Town'send's sol'i·taire (toun'zĕndz). [After J. K. Townsend (1809–51), Am. naturalist.] See SOLITAIRE, n., 6. towns'wom'an (tounz'wŏŏm'ȧn), n. Fem. of TOWNSMAN. town'ward (toun'wĕrd), adv. & adj. See -WARD. [-WARDS.] town'wards (-wĕrdz), adv. See to-wond', past tense of TO-WEND. Obs. towse. Var. of TOUSE. New Dial. tow'sle. Var. of TOUSLE. towsy'y. Var. of TOUSY. towt. Var. of TOWGHT. towt. † TOUT, peep. tow'zel (tou'z'l). Var. of TOUSLE. Rare. towz'le. Scot. var. of TOUSY. tox'i·cate, v. t. To poison; intoxicate. Obs.
tox'i·ce'mi·a, tox'i·cae'mi·a (tŏk'sĭ·sē'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] = TOXEMIA. tox'i·co-der'ma·to'sis (tŏk'sĭ·kō·dûr'mȧ·tō'sĭs), n. [NL.] = TOXICODERMA. tox'i·co·der'mi·a (-dûr'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] = TOXICODERMA. tox'i·co·der·mi'tis (-dûr·mĭ'tĭs), n. [NL.] = TOXICODERMATITIS. tox'i·co·he'mi·a, tox'i·co·hae'mi·a (-hē'mĭ·ȧ), n. = TOXEMIA. tox'i·der·mi'tis (-dûr·mĭ'tĭs), n. [NL.] = TOXICODERMATITIS.
Tox·il'er·a (tŏks·Ĭl'ĕr·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. toxon bow + L. ferre to bear.] Syn. of TOXOGLOSSA. — tox'i·fer (tŏk'sĭ·fĕr), n. tox'i·he'mi·a, tox'i·hae'mi·a (tŏk'sĭ·hē'mĭ·ȧ), n. = TOXEMIA. tox'i·in·fec'tion (-In·fĕk'shŭn), n. = TOXINFECTION. — tox'i·in·fec'tious (-shŭs), adj. [PEMIA.] tox'i·nae'mi·a. Var. of TOXI Tox'o·don'ta (tŏk'sō·dŏn'tȧ), n. pl. Var. of TOXODONTIA. tox'o·no'sis (tŏk'sō·nō'sĭs), n. = TOXINOSIS.

tox·oph'i·lite (tŏks·ŏf'ĭ·līt), adj. Toxophilitic. tox·oph'i·ly (-lĭ), n. [1st toxo- + -phily.] The study, practice, and love of archery. — tox·oph'i·lous (-lŭs), adj.
tox'o·plas·mo'sis (tŏk's·ō·plăz·mō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. 2d toxo- + plasm- + -osis.] Infection of man (resulting usually in a fatal encephalitis), of dogs and other mammals, or of birds by certain microparasites (genus Toxoplasma).
Tox·os'to·ma (tŏks·ŏs'tō·mȧ), n. [NL., fr. 1st toxo- + -stoma.] Zool. A genus of American songbirds closely allied to the mockingbirds, containing most of the thrashers. tox'o·tae (tŏk'sō·tē), n. pl. [L., fr. Gr. toxotaí policemen.] Gr. Antiq. Public slaves at Athens, often of Scythian origin, who were armed with bows and served as police.
Tox'o·tes (-tēz), n. [NL., fr. Gr. toxotēs an archer.] Zool. The genus consisting of the archerfish. It constitutes a family, Tox·ot'i·dae (tŏks·ŏt'ĭ·dē). toy (toi), n. [D. tuig tools, implements, stuff, trash, speel-tuig playthings, toys; akin to G. zeug stuff, materials, MHG. ziuc, ON. týgi gear, G. zeugen to beget, MHG. ziugen to beget, make ready, procure, and to E. tow to drag. See 2d TOW.] 1. Obs. a Amorous dalliance; flirting; seductive act or acts. b Pastime; sport; a sportive or amusing act or acts; antic. c A wild fancy; an odd conceit; a whim; caprice. d Aversion; foolish dislike.
2. A paltry or trifling concern, preoccupation, interest, or the like; something without real or permanent value.
Farewell then Verse, and Love, and ev'ry Toy. Pope.
3. Something uttered, written, or composed in jest or play or as a pure diversion; a light, gay, or diverting speech, play, tune, etc.; a literary or musical trifle.
4. An ornament; gewgaw; trinket; bauble; knickknack; now often, a trinket, etc., that one toys with.
5. A plaything; something that is merely amusing or diverting; a thing to play with; specif., an article, often an imitation of a living or of a manufactured thing on a small scale, designed and made for the amusement of a child or for his use in play.
6. Hence, something diminutive, or comparatively small; as, beside the steamship the tug seemed a toy; specif., any of various very small breeds of animals; — usually in combination, as in toy pigeon, toy dog, etc.
7. One that can be toyed with; specif.: a A mistress; a pet. b A butt, or object of contempt or derision. c A weakling.
8. [Prob. the same word.] A headdress of linen or woolen, that hangs down over the shoulders, formerly worn by old women of the lower classes. Scot.
☞ COMBINATIONS (in sense 5) are:
toyhouse, toymaker, toy-sized, toyland, toymaking, toytown, toy-loving, adj.
toy (toi), v.; TOYED (toid); TOY'ING. Intransitive: 1. To dally amorously; to indulge in a flirtation.
2. To act as though unconcerned, indifferent, or not serious; to deal lightly or without vigor or purpose; to trifle; as, to toy with great issues; to toy with one's dinner.
3. To while away the time in sport, play, etc.; to dally; to amuse oneself, as with a plaything.
——, Transitive: To spend or use up in toying; also, to bring (oneself) by toying, as into or out of a specified or implied condition.
toy, adj. Of the nature of, or made as, a toy; as, a toy chair, automobile, or soldier; also, toylike; suitable only as a toy; diminutive, unsubstantial, etc.; as, to live in a toy house.
toy dog. Any very small dog kept as a pet; esp., any of several very small-sized breeds. Cf. ENGLISH TOY SPANIEL. to–year' (tŭ-yēr'), adv. [to, prep. + year.] This year. Now Dial.
toy'er (toi'ĕr), n. One who toys. toy'ful (-fŏŏl; -fĭ), adj. Full of trifling play; sportive. — toy'ful·ness, n. Both Rare.
toy'ing (-ĭng), adj. That toys or that toys with something; sportive; wanton; also, twirling or fingering idly. — toy'ing·ly, adv.
toy'ish (-ĭsh), adj. Now Rare. a Wanton; sportive; playful. b Frivolous; trivial; of no real value. c Whimsical; fantastic; trifling. d Toylike; as small, unsubstantial, or useless as a toy; also, fit for a plaything. — toy'ish·ly, adv. — toy'ish·ness, n. toy'man (toi'mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One who deals in toys; originally, one who kept a trinket shop; now, a maker of or dealer in children's toys.
Toyn'bee Hall (toin'bē). [After Arnold Toynbee (1852–83), Eng. social economist.] A university settlement, the first ever established (1884), in the Whitechapel district, London; now a center of educational and industrial activity, and international headquarters of settlement work. to'yon (tō'yŭn), n. [Sp. toyon, tollon, prob. of Mex. Ind. origin.] An ornamental evergreen shrub (Heteromeles arbutifolia) of the North American Pacific coast, having white flowers succeeded by persistent bright-red berries.
toy'shop' (toi'shŏp'), n. A shop for the sale of toys, or trinkets, or now esp., children's toys.
toy'some (-sŭm), adj. Playful; sportive. Rare.
toy spaniel. = ENGLISH TOY SPANIEL. toy'wort' (toi'wŭrt'), n. The shepherd's-purse. toze (tōz), v. t. [ME. tosen; akin to AS. tēsan. See TEASE.] Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. To tease, or comb, as wool; to disentangle. b To pull about; to shake; thrash. toz'ee (tōz'ē), n. Curling. The tee. Scot. toz'er (tōz'ĕr), n. A carder of wool. toz'le (tōz'l). Var. of TOSY, tipsy. toz'le (tōz'l), n. [See TOZE.] A shawl made from teased wool. Scott.
T piece, pole, plan, etc. A piece, pole, plan, etc., shaped, cut, or drawn in the form of a T.
T plate. A T-shaped plate used as a splice and for stiffening a joint where the end of one beam abuts against the side of another. tra (trȧ), n. [Malay tēra stamp, seal.] Also trah. In the Malay Peninsula, a coin of tin or pewter, of small value. tra-. See TRANS-.
tra·ba'co·lo (trȧ·bä'kō·lō), n.; pl. -COLOS (-lōz), -COLI (-lē). Also tra·bas'co·lo (trȧ·bäs'-). [It.] A small coasting vessel of Italy.
trab'al (trăb'ȧl; trā'bȧl), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to a beam; large, like a beam. Obs.
2. Anat. Of or pertaining to the trabs cerebri; callosal.
tra·bant' (trȧ·bănt'), n. [G. trabant, drabant. See DRABANT.] Bodyguard; armed attendant, esp. of royalty, as in some European countries. Chiefly Hist. tra'be·a (trā'bē·ȧ), n.; pl. TRABEAE (-ē). Rom. Antiq. A type of toga with a border of colored stripes, worn at certain ceremonies by Salii and augurs.
tra'be·at'ed (trā'bē·āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Also tra'be·ate (-āt). Arch. Designed or constructed of horizontal beams or lintels; not arcuate.
tra'be·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [L. trabs, trabis, a beam, a timber.] Arch. Beamed, as distinguished from arched, construction; hence, an entablature. tra·bec'u·la (trȧ·bĕk'ū·lȧ), n.; pl. -LAE (-lē). [L., a little beam, dim. of trabs a beam. See THORP; cf. TRAVE.] 1. Anat. & Zool. A small bar, rod, bundle of fibers, or septal membrane, in the framework of an organ or part, as the spleen.
2. Bot. a A row of cells bridging an intercellular space. b A fold or ridge projecting into a cell or into a sporangial cavity. c In mosses, a row or plate of sterile cells extending across the cavity of a sporangium; also, one of the transverse bars, or thickenings, on the peristome teeth.
3. Embryol. In the developing skull of vertebrates, one of a pair of longitudinally directed, more or less curved cartilaginous rods, which develop under the anterior part of the brain, each side of the pituitary body. They subsequently fuse with each other and with the parachordal cartilages, forming the base of the cartilaginous cranium.
‖tra·be'cu·lae car'ne·ae (trȧ·bĕk'ū·lē kär'nē·ē). [NL. Cf. CARNAL.] Anat. Thick strands of muscular tissue attached to the inner walls of the ventricles of the heart. Some form ridges, others are free except at the ends, and others are the papillary muscles.
tra·bec'u·lar (trȧ·bĕk'ū·lĕr), adj. Of or pertaining to a trabecula; having, or consisting of, trabeculae. — tra·bec'u·lar·ism (-ĭz'm), n.
tra·bec'u·late (-lāt), adj. Having or furnished with trabeculae; trabecular; crossbarred. tra·bec'u·lat'ed (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Trabeculate.
tra·bec'u·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. Anat. The formation of trabeculae in the lumen or on the walls of an organ, as the bladder. trab'e·cule (trăb'ē·kūl), n. A trabecula. Rare.
‖trabs ce're·bri (trăbz sĕr'ē·brī). [L., beam of the brain.] Anat. The corpus callosum.
‖tra·bu'co (trȧ·bōō'kō), n.; pl. -COS (-kōz; Sp. -kōs). [Sp.] a A blunderbuss. b A kind of cigar.
‖tra'cas'se·rie' (trȧ'kăs'rē'), n.; pl. TRACASSERIES (-rē'). [F.] a Fretting; bother. b Quarrel; squabble; squabbling.
Tra·cau'lon (trȧ·kô'lŏn), n. [NL., prob. fr. NGr. tra wire, drawn gold + kaulos stalk, stem.] Bot. A genus of about eighteen species of herbaceous vines (family Polygonaceae) with prickly or bristly stems, found in North America and Asia; — usually called tearthumb. They have prickly veined leaves mostly hastate or cordate at the base, racemose flowers, and angled fruits. trace (trās), n. [ME. trace, fr. OF. trace. See TRACE, v.]
1. The course or path which one follows; road; route; also, way of life, conduct, etc. Obs.
Now I begin To tread an endless trace. Spenser.
2. Originally, pl., the line of footprints left by an animal; as, to track down a stag by following its traces; now, sing., the line or track left by anything that has passed; as, the trace of a sleigh in the snow.
3. Hence, a beaten path; a trail, esp. a marked trail, through woods or over open lands. U. S.
4. A footprint; now, figuratively, a vestige; a sign or evidence of something once present, influential, felt, etc.; a mark left behind; as, traces of an earlier civilization.
5. A line; a series; specif.: a A train; procession; file. b Obs. A succession of steps, esp. in dancing; a measure.
6. Something traced or drawn; esp., a traced or lightly marked line. Specif.: a The marking made by a recording instrument, as a seismograph. b An unbroken line of hair, as on the back of certain dogs, darker than the remainder of the coat.
7. A very small amount; a barely discernible quantity, quality, or characteristic; as, he has no trace of humor.
8. Chem. A very small quantity of a constituent, esp. when not quantitatively determined, because of minuteness.
9. Fort. The ground plan of a work or works.
10. Geom. The intersection of a line or plane with a plane or other surface, specif. with a plane of projection.
11. Psychol. The aftereffect of a neural or mental action whereby repetitions of it are facilitated; an engram.
Syn. — Mark, sign; hint, shade, thought. — TRACE, VESTIGE agree in the idea of a mark or sign, often of something that no longer exists, and are in many cases interchangeable. But VESTIGE frequently suggests some slight remnant of the thing itself; TRACE, the more general word, denotes a faint indication of any sort; as, "Of this ancient custom no vestige remained" (Gibbon); "The vestiges of some knowledge of Latin still appear . . . in his sentences" (The Nation); "I love people that leave some traces of their journey behind them" (Gray); "In one deep reflection of his distant sea, we catch a trace of the purest blue" (Ruskin). trace (trās), v.; TRACED (trāst); TRAC'ING (trās'ĭng). [ME. tracen, fr. OF. tracier (F. tracer), fr. (assumed) VL. tractiare, fr. L. tractus a drawing, trailing, a track, fr. trahere, tractum, to draw. See DRAW; cf. ABSTRACT, ATTRACT, CONTRACT, DETRACT, DISTRACT, ESTREAT, PORTRAIT, RETRACT, SUBTRACT, TRACT, TRACTION, TRAIL, TRAIN, TREAT.] Transitive: 1. To draw; specif.: a To draw; to delineate; sketch; outline; as, to trace a design for a fresco. b To form, as characters in writing; to write, as letters or figures, carefully or with nicety.
Might as well have traced it [a name] in the sands. Tennyson.
c To copy, as a drawing, engraving, or manuscript, by following the lines or letters as seen through a transparent sheet superimposed on the original. d To impress or imprint (a design, pattern, etc.) as with a tracer; also, to make an imprint of such a design, etc., for (a fabric, metal, etc.). e To record in the form of a curved, wavy, or broken line, as the movements of a muscle; to make a tracing (sense 2 b) of; as, the cardiograph traces the heart action.
2. Hence, to make marks or lines on; to adorn with tracery, chasing, etc.; — chiefly in past part; as, traced windows in Gothic churches.
3. To walk or travel over; to pass through; to traverse. Archaic.
We do trace this alley up and down. Shak.
4. To follow the footprints of; to pursue the trail of or course or route taken by; to track down; as, to trace a criminal to his hiding place or game to its lair.
5. To follow or study out in detail or step by step; to outline or present the development, progress, or history, of; as, to trace one's ancestry or the history of a movement.
6. To discover or uncover by going backward over the evidence step by step; to ascertain, establish, attribute, etc., as a result of such retracing or reviewing; as, to trace the cause of an epidemic, one's descent from the Pilgrims; to trace the failure of a project to indifference.
7. To discover traces, or signs or evidence, of; to prove the existence or occurrence of; as, he could not trace the hypothetical source of the Shakespearean play.
8. To make out by finding or examining traces or vestiges or remains; to come to know, understand, etc., by such investigation; as, to trace a faint track, the former course of a river, or an inscription on an old monument.
To trace him in his word, his works, his ways. Cowper.
9. To find by following traces or the trail of; esp., to ascertain the whereabouts or disposition of (as something passing from hand to hand, place to place, etc.); as, unable to trace a lost letter or one's relatives.
10. Fort. To lay out upon the ground the actual trace of.
——, Intransitive: 1. To go; make one's way; specif.: a To follow a track, trail, or the like.
We traced back again across the mountainside by the same way we had come. Stevenson.
b Now Dial., Eng. To walk; march; trudge; also, to wander aimlessly; to ramble.
2. To step, as in a dance; to dance a measure. Archaic.
3. To fall; to rush (down). Obs.
Her golden locks . . . down traced. Spenser.
4. To be traced historically; to owe its origin.
5. Cataloguing. To record on the card for the main entry the headings under which added entries have been made.
trace (trās), n. [ME. trays, pl., fr. OF. traiz, trais (F. traits), pl. of trait. See TRAIT.] 1. One of two straps, chains, or ropes, of a harness, extending from the collar or breastband to a whippletree attached to a vehicle or thing to be drawn; a tug. See HARNESS, Illust.; kick over the traces under KICK, v.
2. Angling. In a spinning tackle, a short line, usually of gimp or gut, between the main line and the bait.
3. Bot. In higher plants, the vascular supply of a leaf or branch consisting of one or more bundles, which are prolongations of the central cylinder; also, one of the individual bundles supplying a leaf or branch. In leaves, they are known as leaf traces, in branches, branch traces. Cf. GAP, n., 5.
4. Mach. A connecting bar or rod, pivoted at each end to the end of another piece, for transmitting motion, esp. from one plane to another; specif., such a piece in an organ-stop action to transmit motion from the trundle to the lever actuating the stop slider. See STOP, Illust.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:
trace buckle, trace fastener, trace holder, trace chain, trace-galled, trace hook, trace connector, trace-high, trace spring trace, v. t. To fasten by traces, as a horse; to hitch up. trace, n. [Cf. TRESS.] 1. Obs. a A plait of hair. b Trimming braid.
2. A plait of straw for tying onions in bunches.
3. A traced (see 6th trace) string, as of onions or ears of corn.
trace, v. t. To plait; to braid; specif., to fasten, as onion bulbs, in bunches by tying the necks with straw.
trace'a·ble (trās'ȧ·b'l), adj. a That may be traced; as, a traceable river bed, inscription, or escaped convict. b That may be attributed; due; ascribable; — with to; as, a failure traceable to lack of energy. — trace'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), trace'a·ble·ness, n. — trace'a·bly (-blĭ), adv.
trace'-bear'er, n. = LAZY STRAP. trace horse. Either of the two outside horses when more than two are driven abreast. trace of precipitation. Meteorol. A minute amount of precipitation; specif., an amount measuring less than 0.01 inch.
trac'er (trās'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which traces, or tracks down or searches out; an investigator. Specif.: a A seeker (sense 3 a). b A person engaged (esp. in the express or railroad service) in tracing, or searching out, missing articles, as packages or freight cars. c An inquiry sent out (esp. in transportation service) for a missing article, as a letter or an express package.
2. One who makes tracings or traceries. Specif.: a A draftsman, gilder, stainer, etc., who traces designs, patterns, or markings. b One who traces drawings, etc., on semitransparent paper or cloth, esp. for blueprint (cyanotype) reproduction. Cf. TRACING PAPER; TRACING CLOTH.
3. A device used in tracing a design, etc., as a stylus, or the like. Specif.: a A pointed wheel mounted in a handle, used by tailors, dressmakers, etc., in transferring patterns to cloth. b Metalcraft. A tempered steel punch used in chasing or repoussé work, as when cutting the outline of a design on a metal surface, or when making and finishing corners, borders, and the like.
4. Mil. A small firework attached to a projectile to mark its flight by a trail of smoke or fire.
trac'er, n. A trace horse; also, a boy in charge of such a horse. tracer bullet. A bullet equipped with a tracer (sense 4). trac'er·ied (trās'ĕr·ĭd), adj. Decorated with, or having, tracery. trac'er·y (-ĭ), n.; pl. -ERIES (-ĭz). 1. Arch. Ornamental work with ramified lines; esp.: a Decorative openwork in the head of a Gothic window. It is of two general types: (1) plate tracery, common in Italy, consisting of a series of ornamental patterns cut through a flat plate of stone; (2) bar tracery, a decorative pattern formed by the curves and intersections of the molded bars of the mullions. Window tracery is imitated in many decorative objects, as panels of wood or metal either pierced or in relief. See Illusts. of FLAMBOYANT, FOLIATION, 4. b A similar decoration in some styles of vaulting, the ribs of the vault giving off the minor bars of which the tracery is composed.

A Simple Form of Plate Tracery.

2. Any decorative interlacing of lines suggestive of Gothic tracery (see sense 1, above); a pattern wrought by the interweaving or branching out of lines in ornamental or graceful figures; as, the tracery on a frosted window. tra'che- (trā'kē), = TRACHEO- (which see), as in tra'che·al'gi·a, tracheitis. tra'che·a (trā'kē·ȧ; trȧ·kē'ȧ; 277: the second pron. is etymologically correct, but less frequent in actual use), n.; pl. TRACHEAE (-ē). [ML., fr. LL. trachia, fr. Gr. tracheia (sc. artēria windpipe), fr. trachys rough, rugged.] 1. Anat. & Zool. In vertebrates, the main trunk of the system of tubes by which air passes to and from the lungs; the windpipe. In man it is about four inches long and somewhat less than an inch in diameter, and extends down the front of the neck from the larynx, bifurcating to form the bronchi. It has walls of fibrous and muscular tissue, stiffened by incomplete cartilaginous rings, which keep it from tox'o·phore group (tŏk'sō·fōr; 181). See SIDE-CHAIN THEORY.

tox·oph'o·rous (tŏks·ŏf'ō·rŭs), adj. Also tox'o·phor'ic (tŏk'sō·fōr'ĭk). [toxin + -phorous.] See SIDE-CHAIN THEORY. tox'o·sis (tŏks·ō'sĭs), n. = TOXINOSIS. tox'o·so'zin (tŏk's·ō·sō'zĭn), n. [See TOXIC; SOZIN.] See SOZIN.
Tox'y·lon (tŏk'sĭ·lŏn), n. [NL., for Toxoxylon, fr. Gr. toxon bow + xylon wood.] Bot. Syn. of MACLURA. toy'dom, n. See -DOM. toyle. ✝ TOOL. toy'less, adj. See -LESS. toy'like', adj. See -LIKE. toyte. Var. of TOIT, totter. toy'wom'an, n. Fem. of TOYMAN. traapse. Var. of TRAIPSE. trass. ✝ TRACE.
tra'be·a'tae (trā'bē·ā'tē), n. pl. [L.] See COMOEDIA TOGATA. tra'bu (trā'bōō). Var. of TRUBU. tra·buch' (trȧ·bŏŏk'), n. [F. trebuc.] = TREBUCHET. Archaic.
tra·bu'cho, n. = TRABUCO. trace'less, adj. See -LESS. — trace'less·ly, adv.

collapsing, and is lined with mucous membrane whose epithelium is composed of columnar ciliated and mucus-secreting cells. In birds its lower end usually takes part in forming the syrinx, and a part of the trachea may be enlarged and ossified, forming an irregular cavity or box, the tracheal tympanum or labyrinth.

2. Bot. Orig., a duct or water-conveying vessel composed of a series of nonliving cells which have lost their end walls; now, also, one of the cells, or elements, which form such a series or duct; a vessel. Tracheae are shorter and larger in diameter than tracheids and have relatively thinner walls and often more numerous and smaller pits. Cf. TRACHEID; see XYLEM, VESSEL.

3. Zool. One of the air-conveying tubules forming the respiratory system of most insects, millipedes, centipedes, many arachnids, and the Onychophora. In the insects they form typically a system of ramifying and anastomosing tubules, enlarged at certain points into air sacs and penetrating to nearly all parts of the body. Their external orifices, placed along the sides of the body in the insects, are called spiracles or stigmata, and are often provided with valves. The tracheae have a chitinous lining, which is stiffened by a spiral fiber or fiberlike thickening.

Portion of Trachea of an Insect. a Taenidium, or spiral Stiffening Fiber, partly unwound.

tra'che·a·ec'ta·sy (trā'kē·ā·ĕk'tȧ·sĭ), n. [See ECTASIS.] Med. Dilatation of the trachea.

tra'che·al (trā'kē·ăl; trȧ·kē'ăl), adj. [NL. trachealis.] 1. Anat. & Zool. Of or pert. to the trachea or tracheae; like a trachea.

2. Bot. Characterized by, having, or resembling, tracheae or tracheal tissue.

tracheal commissure. Zool. In insects, one of the large transverse tubes that unite the tracheal systems of the opposite sides of the body.

tracheal gill. Zool. One of the external filaments or leaflike plates connected with the tracheae of the inside of the body, which form part of the respiratory system of some aquatic insect larvae and nymphs, but rarely persist in the adult.

tra'che·a'lis (trā'kē·ā'lĭs), n. [NL.] Anat. & Zool. A tracheal muscle. In man it consists of the fibers extending transversely between the ends of the cartilages and the intervals between them at the back of the trachea.

tracheal labyrinth. See TRACHEA, 1.

tracheal lung. Zool. In many snakes, an extension of the left lung (or sometimes a separate organ) lying alongside of, and usually in communication with, the trachea.

tracheal sac. Zool. An air sac of the tracheal system of an insect.

tracheal tissue. Bot. Conductive tissue made up of tracheae or tracheids or both; xylem tissue.

tracheal tube. In insects, a trachea or any branch of one.

tracheal tug or tugging. Med. Downward pull of the trachea and larynx, observed in aneurysm of the aorta.

tracheal tympanum. See TRACHEA, 1.

tra'che·an (trā'kē·ăn; trȧ·kē'ăn), adj. Zool. Having tracheae; tracheal. Rare.

Tra'che·a'ri·a (-ā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A division of Arachnida comprising those that have no book lungs. It includes the mites, ticks, book scorpions, and harvestmen. — tra'che·ar'i·an (-ăr'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n.

tra'che·ar'y (trā'kē·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ēr·ĭ), adj. Tracheal; breathing by means of tracheae. — n. One of the Trachearia.

tracheary tissue. Bot. Tracheal tissue.

Tra'che·a'ta (-ā'tȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A group of arthropods, including most of those which breathe by means of tracheae; sometimes, the class Insecta.

tra'che·ate (trā'kē·āt), adj. Zool. Having tracheae as breathing organs. See TRACHEA, 3. — n. A tracheate arthropod.

tra'che·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [See -TION.] Zool. The distribution and pattern of the tracheae in the developing wing of an insect, previous to the formation of the veins.

tra'che·id (trā'kē·ĭd), n. Bot. A long tubelike cell peculiar to xylem and characterized by tapering, closed ends (the end walls not absorbed as in tracheae) and by thickened, strongly lignified walls commonly having bordered pits. Tracheids are water-conducting cells but serve also for support, being esp. characteristic of the wood of coniferous trees. Cf. TRACHEA, 2; see XYLEM. — tra·che'i·dal (trȧ·kē'ĭ·dăl; trā'kē·ĭd'ăl), adj.

tra'che·i'tis (trā'kē·ī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. trache- + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the trachea, or windpipe.

trachel-. = TRACHELO- (which see), as in:
trachelagra, trachelectomy, trachelitis, trachelodynia.

trach'e·late (trăk'ē·lāt), adj. [Gr. trachēlos neck.] Having the look of a neck, as the narrowed prothorax of some insects.

tra'che·lec'to·mo·pex'i·a (trā'kē·lĕk'tō·mō·pĕk'sĭ·ȧ; trăk'-ē-), n. [NL., fr. trachelo- + Gr. ektomē excision + -pexia.] Surg. Fixation and partial removal of the neck of the uterus.

trach'e·lis'mus (trăk'ē·lĭz'mŭs; -lĭs'mŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trachēlismos a seizing by the throat.] Med. Spasmodic contraction of the muscles of the neck.

tra·che'li·um (trȧ·kē'lĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trachēlos neck.] Arch. The part of the necking above the hypotrachelium, or gorgerin. Rare.

tra'che·lo- (trā'kē·lō-; trăk'ē-; trȧ·kē'-), trachel-. A combining form, Greek trachēlo-, from trachēlos, meaning neck, as in tra'che·lo·cyl·lo'sis, tra'che·lol'o·gy; specif.: a The uterine neck, as in *trachelo*plasty. b Pertaining to the neck and; — in adjectives, as in:
trachelobregmatic, trachelocleidoscapular, trachelocervical, trachelohyoid, trachelomastoid, trachelonuchal, trachelopharyngeal, trachelopharyngeus, trachelorrhaphy, trachelospinal, trachelotomy, trachelotomy, trachelovertebral, trachelozygapophysial.

tra'che·lo·a·cro'mi·a'lis (-ȧ·krō'mĭ·ā'lĭs), n. Anat. An inconstant muscle slip extending from the occipital bone to the acromion.

tra'che·lo·mas'toid (-măs'toid), adj. Anat. Designating the longissimus capitis muscle of the neck.

tra'che·lo·oc·cip'i·tal (-ŏk·sĭp'ĭ·tăl), adj. Anat. Pertaining to the neck and occiput; specif., designating the semispinalis capitis muscle.

tra'che·lo·pex'i·a (-pĕk'sĭ·ȧ), n. Also tra'che·lo·pex'y (trā'kē·lō·pĕk'sĭ; trăk'ē-; trȧ·kē'-). [NL., fr. trachelo- + -pexia.] Surg. The fixation of the neck of the uterus to an adjacent part of the body.

tra'che·lo·plas'ty (trā'kē·lō·plăs'tĭ; trăk'ē-; trȧ·kē'-), n. [trachelo- + -plasty.] Surg. A plastic operation on the neck of the uterus.

tra'che·lor'rha·phy (trā'kē·lŏr'ȧ·fĭ; trăk'ē·lŏr'ȧ·fĭ), n. [trachelo- + -rrhaphy.] Surg. The operation of sewing up a laceration of the neck of the uterus.

Tra'che·lo·sper'mum (-lō·spŭr'mŭm), n. [NL., fr. trachelo- + -spermum.] Bot. A genus of sixteen species of Asiatic woody vines of the dogbane family (Apocynaceae) with opposite leaves, showy flowers in loose cymes, and elongated terete follicles. T. jasminoides is the star jasmine.

tra'che·lot'o·my (trā'kē·lŏt'ō·mĭ; trăk'ē-), n. [trachelo- + -tomy.] Surg. The operation of cutting into the neck of the uterus.

tra·chen'chy·ma (trȧ·kĕng'kĭ·mȧ), n. [NL., fr. trachea + -enchyma.] Bot. Tracheal tissue.

tra'che·o- (trā'kē·ō-; trȧ·kē'ō-), tra'che- (trā'kē-). A combining form for trachea, denoting: a The trachea, as in *tracheo*scopy.

☞ For words below, see the word or element with which tracheo- is combined.

tracheofissure	tracheophony	tracheobronchial tracheopathia	tracheoplasty	tracheostenosis tracheopathy	tracheopyosis	tracheostomy tracheophonesis	tracheorrhagia	tracheotome

b Tracheal and; — in adjectives, as in:
tracheobronchial, tracheoesophageal, tracheolaryngeal, tracheolingual, tracheopharyngeal.

tra'che·o·bran'chi·a (-brăng'kĭ·ȧ), n.; pl. -CHIAE (-ē). [NL. See TRACHEA; -BRANCHIA.] A tracheal gill.

tra'che·o·bron·chi'tis (-brŏng·kī'tĭs), n. [NL.] Inflammation of the trachea and bronchi.

tra'che·o·cele (trā'kē·ō·sēl; trȧ·kē'ō·sēl), n. [tracheo- + -cele.] Med. a Goiter. b Hernial protrusion of the mucous membrane of the trachea.

tra'che·o·lar'yn·got'o·my (-lăr'ĭng·gŏt'ō·mĭ), n. [tracheo- + laryngo- + -tomy.] Surg. Cutting into the trachea and larynx.

tra'che·ole (trā'kē·ōl), n. [Dim. of trachea. See -OLE.] Zool. One of the minute, delicate endings of the branched tracheae of insects, sometimes actually penetrating certain cells of the body. — tra·che'o·lar (trȧ·kē'ō·lĕr), adj.

Tra'che·o·pho'nae (trā'kē·ō·fō'nē; trȧ·kē'ō-), n. pl. [NL., fr. tracheo- + Gr. phōnē voice.] Zool. A group of clamatorial birds having the syrinx thin-walled and tracheal, the syringeal muscles few, and the semirings few and thin. The chief families are Dendrocolaptidae, Formicariidae, and Conopophagidae. — tra'che·o·phone' (trā'kē·ō·fōn'; trȧ·kē'-), adj. & n.

tra'che·o·pho'nine (-nĭn; 156), tra'che·oph'o·nous (trā'-kē·ŏf'ō·nŭs), adj. Tracheophone.

tra'che·os'co·py (trā'kē·ŏs'kō·pĭ), n. [tracheo- + -scopy.] Med. Examination of the interior of the trachea, as by means of a laryngoscope. — tra'che·o·scop'ic (-ō·skŏp'ĭk), adj. — tra'che·os'co·pist (trā'kē·ŏs'kō·pĭst), n.

tra'che·ot'o·mize (trā'kē·ŏt'ō·mīz), v. t. Surg. To perform tracheotomy on.

tra'che·ot'o·my (-mĭ), n. [tracheo- + -tomy.] Surg. The operation of making an opening into the trachea. — tra'che·ot'o·mist (-mĭst), n.

Tra·chin'i·dae (trȧ·kĭn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Trachinus, type genus, fr. ML. trachina, for trachura, fr. Gr. trachouros the horse mackerel, lit., roughtail.] Zool. The family of fishes constituted by the weevers. The type genus is Tra·chi'nus (-kī'nŭs). — tra'chi·noid (trā'kĭ·noid; trăk'-ĭ-), adj. & n.

tra·chi'tis (trȧ·kī'tĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Tracheitis.

tra'chle (trăk'l), v. t. Scot. a To bedraggle; foul. b To tire by overwork or overexertion; to trouble; to hinder. — v. i. Scot. To drag oneself along.

tra'chle, n. Scot. a A long and tiring walk or task; drudgery; trouble. b A cause of trouble. c A listless sloven.

Tra'cho·don (trā'kō·dŏn; trăk'ō-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trachys rough + -odon.] Paleontol. A genus of large ornithopod dinosaurs of the Upper Cretaceous closely resembling Iguanodon, but having a broad spatulate snout. It is the type of a family, Tra'cho·don'ti·dae (-dŏn'tĭ·dē). Syn. Hadrosaurus. — tra'cho·dont (trā'kō·dŏnt; trăk'ō-), adj. & n. — tra'cho·don'tid (-dŏn'tĭd), adj.

tra·cho'ma (trȧ·kō'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trachōma roughness, fr. trachys rough.] Med. A chronic, contagious form of conjunctivitis, characterized by the presence of inflammatory granulations on the conjunctival surfaces which are eventually replaced by scar tissue. Partial or complete blindness may result. — tra·chom'a·tous (-kŏm'ȧ·tŭs; -kō'mȧ·tŭs), adj.

Tra'cho·me·du'sae (trā'kō·mē·dū'sē; trăk'ō-), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. An order of Hydrozoa in which the tentacles arise from the edge of the umbrella and the gonads are developed in connection with the radial canals. — tra'cho·me·du'san (-săn), adj. & n.

tra'chy- (trā'kĭ-; trăk'ĭ-). A combining form, Greek trachy-, from trachys, meaning rough, as in *trachy*glossate; specif., in mineralogy, trachytic, as in *trachy*dolerite.

tra'chy·an'des·ite (trā'kĭ·ăn'dē·zīt; trăk'ĭ-), n. Petrog. A lava intermediate in composition between trachyte and andesite. See LATITE.

tra'chy·ba·salt' (-bȧ·sôlt'; -băs'ôlt), n. [See TRACHYTE; BASALT.] Petrog. A rock intermediate in composition between trachyte and basalt, consequently containing both orthoclase and basic plagioclase. See TRACHYDOLERITE a.

tra'chy·car'pous (-kär'pŭs), adj. [trachy- + -carpous.] Bot. Rough-fruited.

Tra'chy·car'pus (-pŭs), n. [NL., fr. trachy- + -carpus.] Bot. A small genus of low East Asiatic fan palms (family Arecaceae) having leaf sheaths with a dense fibrous network which is made into ropes, network, etc. T. excelsa, the hemp palm, and T. fortunei, are often cultivated.

tra'chy·chro·mat'ic (-krō·măt'ĭk), adj. [trachy- + chromatic.] Anat. Deeply staining, as certain marrow cells.

tra'chy·dol'er·ite (-dŏl'ĕr·īt), n. [See TRACHYTE; DOLERITE.] Petrog. a Any of a group of effusive rocks intermediate between trachytes and basalts. b An alkaline rock, containing a feldspathoid in addition to orthoclase and basic plagioclase.

tra'chy·glos'sate (-glŏs'āt), adj. [trachy- + Gr. glōssa tongue.] Zool. a Having a rough tongue. b Having teeth on the radula, as most gastropods.

Tra'chy·li'nae (-lī'nē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A group of Hydrozoa including the Trachomedusae and Narcomedusae. — trach'y·line (trăk'ĭ·lĭn; -līn; 156), adj.

One of the Trachylinae (Trachynema digitale).

tra'chy·pho'ni·a (-fō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trachyphōnia.] Roughness of the voice. — tra·chyph'o·nous (trȧ·kĭf'ō·nŭs), adj.

Tra·chyp'ter·us (trȧ·kĭp'tĕr·ŭs), n. [NL., fr. trachy- + Gr. pteron wing, fin.] Zool. The genus consisting of the dealfishes. It usually constitutes a family, Tra'chyp·ter'i·dae (trā'kĭp·tĕr'ĭ·dē; trăk'ĭp-). — tra·chyp'ter·oid (trȧ·kĭp'tĕr·oid), adj. & n.

tra'chy·sper'mous (trā'kĭ·spŭr'mŭs; trăk'ĭ-), adj. [trachy- + -spermous.] Bot. Rough-seeded.

tra'chyte (trā'kīt; trăk'ĭt), n. [F. trachyte, fr. Gr. trachys rough, rugged.] Petrog. A volcanic rock, usually light in color, consisting of potash feldspar, generally with more or less biotite, amphibole, or pyroxene, and commonly exhibiting a subparallel texture; — so called from the roughness of the fractured surface. Trachyte is the effusive form of syenite and formerly included rhyolite and andesite (in part).

tra·chyt'ic (trȧ·kĭt'ĭk), adj. [See TRACHYTE.] Petrog. Relating to a texture of igneous rocks in which lath-shaped feldspar microlites are arranged in subparallel lines which flow around the larger phenocrysts. It is that variety of microlitic texture in which the crystals are orthoclase and there is more or less parallelism of arrangement.

trach'y·toid (trăk'ĭ·toid; trā'kĭ-), adj. [trachyte + -oid.] Petrog. Resembling trachyte; as, trachytoid structure.

trac'ing (trās'ĭng), n. 1. Act of one that traces.

2. That which is traced, or marked out. Specif.: a A copy of a pattern or design made on a transparent sheet superimposed on an original or by use of transfer paper. b A record made by any of several instruments that register graphically movements, action, oscillation, etc.; an ergogram, cardiogram, etc.

trac'ing, adj. That traces; esp., used in or for making tracings; as, tracing board, instrument, machine.

tracing braid. = SOUTACHE.

tracing cloth. Also tracing linen. A fine, transparent linen or cotton cloth, sized on one side, used by architects, designers, etc., for making tracings.

tracing paper. A kind of tough, semitransparent paper for tracing drawings; also, lithographic transfer paper.

tracing thread. Lacemaking. A heavy thread, or cluster of threads, used to map out a pattern in outline.

tracing wheel. = 1st TRACER, 3 a.

track (trăk), n. [OF. trac track of horses, mules, trace of animals, prob. of Teut. origin; cf. D. trek a drawing, trekken to draw, travel, march; akin to OHG. trehhan to push, drag; fr. a root parallel to that of E. DRAW. Cf. TRACK to TOW, TREK, TRIGGER.] 1. A mark left by something that has passed; variously, a wake of a ship, a wheel, rut or ruts, a succession of footprints, droppings, etc., or a scent; also, a footprint or a fossil of such; as, the track of a wagon, a bird, or a dinosaur; the tracks of a horse.

2. Hence, a vestige; a trace; a visible mark or sign.

3. The path along which something moves or has moved; as, the track of a comet, a tornado, or a nerve.

4. A way or path beaten by the feet; a trail.

5. A way of life, conduct, action, etc.; the course one adopts or follows; method; procedure; — chiefly in semifigurative expressions; as, to leave the beaten track.

> May boldly deviate from the common track. Pope.

6. A succession; a sequence of events or a train of ideas; the order in which things happen or ideas come.

> My pen goes in the track of my thoughts. Burke.

7. Hence, the state or fact of being aware of, or in touch with, the progress, sequence, count, etc. (of that specified); as, to lose track of a friend; to keep track of current events, new books, or expenditures.

8. The act of tracking. Rare.

9. A way or road constructed and maintained for a specific use; as: a A path or course laid out for racing, exercise, etc.; as, a cinder track; a half-mile track. b A metal way for wheeled vehicles; specif., one or more pairs of parallel lines of rails with the fastenings, ties, etc. (sometimes also with the ballast), for a railroad, railway, or tramway.

10. a The band of a caterpillar tractor. b The tread of a tracklayer. See TRACKLAYER, 2.

11. Automobiles. a The width between wheels. b The tread of an automobile tire. See TREAD, n., 4 b.

12. Sports. a A running track (see sense 9 a, above) on which athletic races are contested; — esp. as contrasted with field (sense 14 b). b Track-and-field sports collectively; also, restrictedly, those sports performed on the running track, as disting. from the field sports. See TRACK-AND-FIELD, adj.

13. Zool. The lower surface of the foot, esp. of birds; pelma.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

track bolt	track inspector	track shim
track chisel	track jack	trackside track cleaner	tracklaying	track switch track-clearing, adj.	track level	track tank track clip	track lifter	track tool track drill	track liner	track-walking track gauge	track mark	trackwork track guard	track punch	track wrench

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES in which track is the terminal element are:

back track	double-track	sidetrack backtrack	kite track	spur track
by-track	race track	tricktrack
cat track	running track

— in one's tracks. In one's footprints; hence, just where one is, at the moment; on the spot; as, to shoot a thief in his tracks. — off the track. Having left the right track, as a derailed train, or a dog losing a scent; hence, gone astray; diverging or divergent from the objective, matter under consideration, etc. — on the track. On the scent; in close pursuit; — with of. — on track. Com. In course of transportation in cars; also, on board a freight car at a siding or at a destination; — used also attributively; as, an on track sale.

track (trăk), v.; TRACKED (trăkt); TRACK'ING. [Cf. F. traquer to beat (a wood). See TRACK, n.] Transitive: 1. To follow the tracks or traces of; to pursue by following marks made by that pursued; trail; as, to track a deer; also, with down, in (Rare), out, or up, to trail until caught, discovered, etc.; as, to track down the offenders.

2. To mark, beat, or lay out, as a path or course.

3. To ascertain and follow up through tracks, vestiges, etc.; to trace; as, to track the course of an ancient wall.

4. To pass over; to traverse; as, to track a desert.

5. To make tracks upon, as with muddy shoes; to make tracks with; as, to track a floor or mud over a floor. U.S.

6. To furnish with tracks, or rails; — commonly in compounds; as, single-track, double-track, etc.

—, Intransitive: 1. To make one's way; walk; go; travel; — with around, about, up, etc. Now Slang, U.S.

2. Rare. a To follow a track in searching; to trace. b To make a track; to follow a clear or fixed path.

3. Of a vehicle: a To span in width between a pair of wheels or runners; as, this car tracks 36 inches. b To move in the same track as that which precedes; to be in alignment; — esp. of wheels and vehicles; as, the trailer tracks perfectly. c To fit a track, or rails.

4. To leave tracks on a floor, or the like. Colloq. U.S.

---

tra'che·o·chro·mat'ic e·ryth'ro·blast (trā'kē·ō·krō·măt'ĭk; trȧ·kē'ō-). [Prop. trachychromatic.] See TRACHY-; CHROMATIC.] See ERYTHROBLAST.

Tra'chip·ter'i·dae, tra·chip'ter·oid, Tra·chip'ter·us. Vars. of TRACHYPTERIDAE, TRACHYPTEROID, TRACHYPTERUS.

tra'chite. Trachyte. Ref. Sp.

Trach'o·ni'tis (trăk'ō·nī'tĭs). Bib.

Tra'chy·me·du'sae (trā'kĭ·mē·dū'sē; trăk'ĭ-), n. pl. [NL., fr. trachy- + medusa.] Zool. Syn. of TRACHOMEDUSAE. — tra'chy·me·du'san (-săn), adj. & n.

trac'ing·ly, adv. of TRACING.

track (trăk), adj. Of or pertaining to a track; esp.: a Of or pertaining to a railway track. b Of or pertaining to a running track; performed or contested on a track; also, track-and-field. See TRACK-AND-FIELD.

track, v. [From D. trekken to draw, but influenced by E. track, n., a path (cf. TOWPATH). See TRACK, n.] Trans.: 1. To draw along; esp., to tow, as a vessel, from the shore. 2. To draw, or infuse, as tea. Shetland & Orkney I.

——, Intransitive: To be towed; to travel in a towed boat.

track (trăk), n. [From L. tractus a drawing, but influenced by E. track a mark. See TRACK, n.] Scot. a An odd spectacle; a sight. b A teapot; — called also trackpot.

track, n. = TRACT, a space or period. Now Dial.

track'age (trăk'ĭj), n. Railroads. a Lines of track, collectively. b A right to use the tracks of another road; also, the charge for such right.

track'age, n. Act of tracking, or towing; towage.

track'–and–field', adj. Designating or pertaining to sports performed on a running track and on the field (usually) encircled by it (see FIELD, n., 14 b). Running, walking, and hurdling races constitute the track events, while the field events consist usually of jumping, vaulting, and weight throwing.

track'bar'row (trăk'băr'ō), n. A wheelbarrow with a grooved wheel for use on railroad tracks.

track boat. A boat towed from the shore.

track brake. A brake which presses the track instead of the wheels.

tracked (trăkt), adj. 1. Made by tracking, as a path; followed along one's tracks, as game; caught or discovered by following tracks, as a criminal.
2. Furnished or marked with tracks; as, a tracked floor; — often in composition; as, wide-tracked wheels.
3. Having caterpillar wheels.

track edge. The steep edge of the furrow of a millstone.

track'er (trăk'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which tracks, or traces; esp., one that tracks down game or criminals; sometimes, a hunter's guide.
2. One who makes, tests, or trues up a track.

track'er, n. 1. A tower; also, a tugboat.
2. Organ Building. A thin strip of wood connecting (in part) a key and a pallet, to communicate a pulling motion. See ORGAN, 2d Illust.

tracker action. See 2d ORGAN, 1 b.

tracker bar. Piano Mfg. The bar in a mechanical player over which the perforated roll passes. It has a series of holes, one for each key of the piano, these connecting with tubes to the action.

track gauge. Railroads. A tool by which the gauge of a track is determined.

track harness. A kind of light harness, used in racing.

track'hound' (trăk'hound'), n. A hound which tracks, esp. by scent.

track indicator. Railroads. A device to record autographically irregularities of a railroad track.

track'ing·scout' (trăk'ĭng·skout'), n. = TRECKSCHUYT.

track instrument. A treadle device on a railroad track, depressed by a passing train to operate an alarm, as near a crossing.

track'lay'er (trăk'lā'ĕr), n. 1. a Any workman engaged in work involved in putting railway tracks in place. b A machine used in pioneer track construction for advancing the rails and ties from supply cars in the rear to the point where they are to be placed in the track.
2. A tractor whose driving mechanism includes (on both sides) a heavy, steel-chain tread, called a track, extending the full length of the tractor, and operated by two large sprocket wheels (called track sprockets) geared to the tractor engine. Each of these tracks passes over and is supported, usually, by four rollers, called track rollers. The two tracks support the weight of the tractor. They have a large bearing and tractive area, so that the unit pressure on the soil is relatively low. The tracklayer is used especially where tractive conditions are poor.

track'–lay'ing trac'tor. A tractor which travels on tracks, or treads, which, as in a tracklayer, are laid down from an endless belt running around sprocket wheels; a species of caterpillar tractor (see CATERPILLAR, n., 4); — called also crawler tractor, creeper tractor, etc.

track'less, adj. Having no track; untrodden; as, a trackless desert; making or leaving no tracks; as, trackless footsteps; not running on tracks, or rails; as, a trackless trolley. — track'less·ly, adv. — track'less·ness, n.

track leveler. Railroads. A machine for spreading or leveling the earth on a newly made embankment.

track'man (trăk'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One employed on work on tracks, or rails; specif., a trackwalker.

track map. Railroads. A map showing existing physical plant, including tracks, bridges, water service and mains, leases, station facilities, and all other physical property.

track'mas'ter (trăk'măs'tĕr; 83), n. Railroads. A roadmaster (sense 1). U.S.

track'–mile', n. A mile of track, as on a railway line.

track oven. An oven for drying fish, etc., in which the drying racks run on a track over a fire.

track'pot' (trăk'pŏt'), n. A track, or teapot. Scot.

track road. A towpath.

track roller. See TRACKLAYER, 2.

track scale. Railroads. A scale fitted with tracks for the weighing of loaded or empty cars. — track'–scale', adj.

track'shift'er (trăk'shĭf'tĕr), n. Railroads. An appliance used in shifting a track laterally.

track shoe. The shoe of a track brake.

track'sick' (trăk'sĭk'), adj. Not responding to the driver; — of a horse in training.

track'side' (-sīd'), n. Rare. a The space beside a track. b A sidetrack.

track spike. Railroads. An appliance driven or screwed into a tie to hold the rail and tie plate.

track sprocket. See TRACKLAYER, 2.

track'walk'er (trăk'wôk'ĕr), n. Railroads. A person employed to walk over and inspect a section of tracks.

track'way' (-wā'), n. 1. A beaten or trodden path; a roadway.
2. Specif., any of two or more narrow paths, of steel, smooth stone, or the like, laid in a public roadway otherwise formed of an inferior pavement, as cobblestones, to provide an easy way for wheels.

tract (trăkt), n. [Short for TRACTATE.] 1. Exposition; literary treatment; also, a treatise; a dissertation, or a section of such. Now Rare.
2. A pamphlet or leaflet issued by a political or religious group for propaganda; esp., one such containing a religious exhortation or a doctrinal discussion.
Syn. — Essay, treatise, dissertation, brochure.

tract (trăkt), v. t. To treat; esp., to discuss. Obs.

tract (trăkt), n. [L. tractus a drawing, train, track, course, tract of land, fr. trahere, tractum, to draw. See TRACE, v.; cf. TRAIT.] 1. Continued or protracted duration; extent or lapse (of time); also, a period or space (of time). Now Poetic.

Foreshorten'd in the tract of time? Tennyson.

2. Extent (of anything); continuous course, as of action, a narrative, a play, or of events in succession; sequence; train. Now Rare.
3. An expanse; an area, large or small; specif., a region, or stretch not definitely bounded; as, a wooded tract; an unexplored tract of sea. "The deep tract of hell." Milton.
4. Obs. a Delay. b Trait; feature; lineament. c Attractive or drawing power; attraction.
5. Anat. & Zool. A system of parts or organs serving some special purpose; as, the digestive tract, respiratory tract; specif., a bundle of nerve fibers of like origin, termination, and function, esp. such a bundle of the brain or spinal cord (see COLUMN, 3 c); as, the olfactory tract; optic tract.
6. Ornithol. A pteryla.
7. [ML. tractus.] R.C.Ch. In the Roman liturgy, the verses of Scripture which are sung or recited at Mass, after the Gradual, instead of the Alleluia on penitential days, as from Septuagesima to Holy Saturday, on Ember days, and most vigils, and at requiems; — so called because sung, without a break, by one voice.
Syn. — Region, district, quarter, area.

tract, v. t. Obs. a To tow; haul. b To draw out; protract.

tract (Scot. trăkt), n. A track; mark; trace; path; course. Now Rare exc. Dial.

tract (trăkt), v. t. Obs. To trace out; track.

trac'ta·bil'i·ty (trăk'tȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [L. tractabilitas.] Quality or state of being tractable or docile.

trac'ta·ble (trăk'tȧ·b'l), adj. [L. tractabilis, fr. tractare to draw violently, to handle, treat. See TREAT, v.; cf. TREATABLE.] 1. Capable of being easily led, taught, or controlled; docile; governable; pliant; as, tractable children or minds; also, with to, ready to listen, yield, conform, etc.

Thou shalt find me tractable to any honest reason. Shak.

2. Easily handled, managed, wrought, or the like; malleable; as, gold is tractable.
3. Obs. a Endurable; bearable. b Tangible; perceptible to touch.
Syn. and Ant. — See DUCTILE.
— trac'ta·ble·ness, n. — trac'ta·bly, adv.

trac·tar'i·an (trăk·târ'ĭ·ăn), n. 1. One who writes, prints, or distributes tracts.
2. [cap.] Specif., one of the authors of the Tracts for the Times; hence, any promoter or supporter of Tractarianism (cf. ANGLO-CATHOLIC, n.).

trac·tar'i·an, adj. Of or pertaining to tractarians or [cap.] Tractarianism.

Trac·tar'i·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n. A system of principles set forth in the Tracts for the Times, a series of pamphlets issued at Oxford (1833–41), aimed at the Erastianism and liberalism of that day and urging the revival of the patristic, sacramental piety and theology of Laud, Andrewes, and Cosin in the 17th century; the doctrines of the early leaders of the movement toward Catholicism in the Church of England known as the Oxford movement. Impetus was given to the movement by a sermon on national apostasy preached by John Keble in St. Mary's, Oxford, in July, 1833. The tracts which followed maintained that the Church of England was being led astray from its historic position as a branch of the Church Catholic, the visible organization founded by Christ and the Apostles, and that it was necessary to reaffirm its belief in the apostolic succession of its episcopate, in the sacraments as efficacious sources of Divine grace, and, in particular, in baptism as necessary to regeneration, and in the Eucharist as the means of salvation. The series came to an end when Tract No. 90, written by John Henry Newman, aroused bitter protests, esp. by its argument that the condemnations of Roman Catholic practices in the Thirty-nine Articles were directed largely, though not entirely, to abuses rather than to dogmas. Newman, Ward, and some others later became Roman Catholics, but the Oxford movement continued, profoundly affecting the Church of England. See LAUDIANISM, ANGLO-CATHOLICISM.

trac'tate (trăk'tāt), n. [L. tractatus a touching, handling, treatise, fr. tractare. See TREAT.] 1. A treatise; dissertation; essay; as, Milton's tractate On Education.
2. Obs. a Treatment or subject treated. b pl. Dealings; negotiations.

trac·ta'tion (trăk·tā'shŭn), n. [L. tractatio.] Treatment, esp. of a subject; discussion; also, management. Obs.

trac·ta'tor (-tĕr), n. [L., a handler.] One who writes tracts or treatises; specif. [cap.], a Tractarian.

trac·tel'lum (-tĕl'ŭm), n. [NL., fr. L. tractus, past part. of trahere to draw; — it being a pulling organ.] Zool. An anterior flagellum of a free-swimming protozoan. — trac·tel'late (-āt), adj.

trac·tif'er·ous (-tĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. Carrying or distributing tracts. Rare.

trac'tile (trăk'tĭl; -tīl; 155), adj. [L. trahere, tractum, to draw.] Capable of being drawn, esp. drawn out in length; ductile. — trac·til'i·ty (trăk·tĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

tract index. A record kept by the register of deeds or other proper county official, showing the location, size, and name of owner of each plot of land in the county.

trac'tion (trăk'shŭn), n. [ML. tractio, fr. L. trahere, tractum, to draw; cf. F. traction. See TRACE.] 1. Act of drawing, or pulling; the state of being drawn; also, the force exerted in drawing; — contrasted with pulsion and pressure.
2. Power or influence which attracts; attraction.
3. The drawing of a vehicle (or some body) along a plane or gradient by motive power, as a carriage by horses, a boat by a tug, etc.; also, the (particular) motive power employed in such drawing; as, steam or electric traction.
4. Hence: a A public utility giving transportation service; often, trolley or tram lines collectively; — chiefly in attributive use; as, traction bonds. b Stock Exchange. pl. Traction bonds or shares.
5. The adhesive friction of a body on a surface on which it moves, as of a wheel on a rail, a rope on a pulley, or the like.
6. Physiol. Contraction; as, the traction of a muscle.

trac'tion·al (-ăl), adj. Of or relating to traction.

trac'tion·eer'ing (-ēr'ĭng), n. Tractor operation; the act or process of operating a tractor.

traction engine. A locomotive for drawing vehicles on highways or in the fields. Cf. TRACKLAYER, 2; WALKING ENGINE.

traction sprayer. Agric. Mach. A spray outfit on wheels, operated by a power drive from the wheels and used especially for spraying rows of truck crops.

traction wheel. Mach. a A locomotive driving wheel which acts by frictional adhesion to a smooth track. b A smooth-rimmed friction wheel for giving motion to an endless link belt or the like.

Tract'ite (trăk'tĭt), n. A Tractarian.

trac·ti'tian (trăk·tĭsh'ăn), n. A writer of tracts. Rare.

trac'tive (trăk'tĭv), adj. [Cf. F. tractif.] That draws or is used or exerted in drawing or pulling; also, of or concerned with traction; as, tractive power, resistance.

Tract No. 90. See TRACTARIANISM.

tract of Bur'dach (bōō'dăk). [See COLUMN OF BURDACH.] = FASCICULUS CUNEATUS.

tract of Goll (gōl). [See COLUMN OF GOLL.] = FASCICULUS GRACILIS.

tract of Gow'ers (gou'ĕrz). = GOWERS'S TRACT.

tract of Lis'sau·er (lĭs'ou·ĕr). = LISSAUER'S TRACT.

tract of Schul'tze (shōōl'tsē). [After M. J. S. Schultze (1825–74), Ger. anatomist.] Anat. The comma tract. tract of Türck (türk). [After L. Türck (1810–78), Austrian neurologist.] Anat. The direct pyramidal tract.

trac'tor (trăk'tĕr), n. [NL., fr. L. trahere, tractum, to draw.] 1. That which draws, or is used for drawing. Specif.: a A traction engine. b An automotive vehicle used for drawing or hauling something, as a vehicle, plow, harrow, or reaper.

Farm Tractor.

2. Also tractor airplane. An airplane having the propeller forward of the main supporting surfaces.
3. pl. Med. See TRACTORATION.
4. Surg. Any instrument used to hold tissues apart for exposure of the operative area, or to draw them together for placement of sutures.

trac'to·ra'tion (trăk'tō·rā'shŭn), n. Med. A kind of metallotherapy first used about 1796 by Dr. Elisha Perkins (1741–99) of Norwich, Conn., consisting in the operation of drawing over an affected part the points of two small rods (called tractors) of different metals. It was used in local inflammation or pains, in rheumatism, etc.

trac'tor·ism (trăk'tĕr·ĭz'm), n. Tractoration. — trac'tor·ist (-ĭst), n.

trac'tor·ize (-īz), v. t. & i. To use tractors; to adopt tractors for use in; as, to tractorize an industry. — trac'tor·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ī·zā'-), n.

tractor propeller. Aeronautics. A propeller which is placed at the forward end of its shaft and pulls on the thrust bearing instead of pushing. Cf. PUSHER.

VC Catenary; VP Tractrix; PT Constant.

trac'trix (trăk'trĭks), n.; pl. TRACTRICES (trăk·trī'sēz). [NL. See TRACTOR.] Geom. A curve such that the part of the tangent between the point of tangency and a given straight line is constant; — so called because it was conceived as described by one end of a tangent line of fixed length as the other end was drawn along the given line. It is an involute of the catenary.

‖trac'tus (trăk'tŭs), n. sing. & pl. [L.] Tract; specif., Anat., a tract of the brain or spinal cord; a fasciculus.

Tra'cy Tup'man. See TUPMAN, TRACY.

trad'al (trăd'ăl; -l), adj. Commercial.

Trad'dles, Thomas (trăd'lz). In Dickens's David Copperfield, a young lawyer, friend of David.

trade (trād), n. [MLG., track, course; akin to OS. trada, OHG. trata, and to E. TREAD.] 1. A track, as of man or beast; a trail; also, a track, or course; path; way. Obs.
2. Obs. a Course, as of action, conduct, or life; manner or method of acting, or living.

The valiant heart's not whipt out of his trade. Shak.

b Rare. (1) Activity; kind of work.

Murderers steeped in the colors of their trade. Shak.

(2) A course of effort or labor.

Long was my travel, long my trade to win her. Massinger.

3. Customary action or course; practice; habit. Obs.

I sat (as was my trade). Spenser.

4. [sometimes cap.] A trade wind; — chiefly in pl. "Giving the ship a famous shove to the northward into the joyous sunshine of the trade." Conrad.
5. The business one practices or the work in which one engages regularly; one's calling; occupation; gainful employment; means of livelihood; as, engaged in no lawful trade; a cobbler or merchant by trade; also, Now Rare, the kind of workman as distinguished by occupation.

What trade art thou? — Why sir, a carpenter. Shak.

6. Hence, in restricted senses: a A pursuit requiring manual or mechanical training and dexterity; a craft in which only skilled workers are employed; as, boys eager to learn a trade; the trade of a smith, a printer, or of bookbinding; workmen engaged in the trades are unionized. b Chiefly Brit. The occupation of a merchant, esp. a retail merchant; as, when it was found out that he was in trade, he was no longer received as their equal.
7. Act or business of exchanging commodities by barter, or by buying and selling for money; commerce; traffic; as, international trade; adverse influences on trade; a slump in the cotton trade. Trade, in this sense, comprehends every species of exchange or dealing, either in the produce of land, in manufactures, in bills, or in money; but it is chiefly used to denote the barter or purchase and sale of goods, wares, and merchandise, either by wholesale or retail.
8. Obs. a Practical use or application. b Intercourse; dealing.

Have you any further trade with us? Shak.

c Travel to and fro; repair.
9. Collectively, those connected with trade or a trade (see senses 5, 6, & 7). Specif.: a The firms, corporations, etc., engaged in a (specified, implied, or mutually understood) business or industry; as, of interest to the publishing trade; the recent action of the automobile trade. b A corporation, guild, union, or other organization of craftsmen; as, all the trades were represented. c A firm's customers; the clientele of a business; as, those who wait on the trade.
10. Rare. a A trading expedition. b A convoy of merchantmen.
11. Now Dial. a Articles of trade or used in a trade, commodities; produce; goods; also, tools or equipment. b Stuff; material; also, rubbish; refuse.
12. Dial. a A fuss; bother. b Medicine; physic.

track'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
track'man·ship, n. See -SHIP. track'scout', (trăk'skout'), n. = TRECKSCHUYT. trackt. Tracked. Obs. & Ref. Sp. trac·tar'i·an·ize, v. i. See -IZE. trac·ta'triz (trăk·tā'trĭks). Var. of TRACTRIX. trac·ta·tule (trăk'tȧ·tūl), n. Dim. [of TRACTATE.] trac'ta·ble (trăk'tȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. trac'til. Tractile. Ref. Sp. tract'less, adj. Not marked off into tracts. Cf. 4th TRACT, 3. Obs. tract'let, n. See -LET. Rare. trac'to·ry (trăk'tō·rĭ), adj. = TRACTIVE. Rare.
Tracts for the Times. See TRACTARIANISM. trad'a·ble (trăd'ȧ·b'l), adj. See [-ABLE.]

13. U.S. a A purchase and sale; a deal. b An exchange; a swap; as, a trade of horses.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

trade-bound	trade-facilitating	trade-made trade-destroying	trade-laden	trade-seeking

Syn. — TRADE, CRAFT, BUSINESS, PROFESSION. TRADE applies to any of the mechanical employments or handicrafts, except those connected with agriculture (cf. OCCUPATION); CRAFT is often interchangeable with trade, but denotes esp. a trade requiring skilled workmanship; as, a carpenter, bricklayer, blacksmith (not farmer, gardener), by trade; "this honest shoemaker — a trade, by the bye, remarkable for the production of philosophers and poets" (Coleridge); "To make a man a good weaver and a good tailor would require . . . much time . . . and, after all, he would be but a poor workman at either craft" (Scott). BUSINESS, as here compared, applies esp. to occupations of a mercantile or commercial nature; PROFESSION designates the more learned callings; as, the business of a merchant, a manufacturer, a stockbroker; the profession of a clergyman, a lawyer, a physician, a civil engineer, a teacher; "In the greater part of mechanic trades, success is almost certain; but very uncertain in the liberal professions" (Adam Smith); "that horrid profession which he had chosen to adopt — trade she called it" (Thackeray). Cf. VOCATION, OFFICE, WORKMAN.

— in the trade. In the particular business or industry implied contextually or mutually understood; among persons engaged in (such) business or industry. — the trade. Service on submarines. Slang.

trade (trād), v.; TRAD'ED (trād'ĕd; -Id; 119); TRAD'ING (trād'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To tread; to make one's way through or over; to proceed through; figuratively, to pass, as one's life. Obs.

2. Obs. a To pursue constantly, as a course, an end, or an occupation. b To use or employ regularly or habitually. c To train or bring (up) so as to make practiced, disciplined, conversant, or the like; to school.

3. To resort to for trade; as, to trade a country. Archaic.

He was captain of a ship trading the Indies. Amy Lowell.

4. To sell or exchange; to buy and sell; to barter.

To dicker and to swap, to trade rifles and watches. Cooper.

—, Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To walk; make one's way; pass. b To have traffic, intercourse, or dealings (with); to negotiate or serve as agent (for).

How did you dare to trade and traffic with Macbeth? Shak.

c To keep oneself occupied or engrossed.

2. To carry on a business of bartering or buying and selling; to be engaged in the exchange, purchase, or sale of goods, wares, merchandise, or anything else; to traffic as a business; as, the firm trades with China, in cotton, or at a loss during the off-seasons.

3. To go (to) in order to barter, buy, or sell. Now Rare.

4. To profit by unethical dealings, selfishly seeking advantage, or the like; as, to trade in pardons or in racial dissensions; to impose (on), esp. unscrupulously, in one's dealings; as, to trade on the credulity of a client.

5. To buy one's provisions, supplies, etc.; to deal regularly or frequently as a purchaser; to make one's purchases; as, I shall not trade any longer with this merchant; where do you trade? Colloq.

Syn. — See SELL.

trade in. To turn in as payment or part payment of a purchase or bill; as, to trade in one's farm produce at the village store or an old car for a new one.

trade off. To get rid of by bartering or trading in.

trade, adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or used in trade, or commerce; as, a trade agent; trade currents or centers.

2. Of or serving the trade, or those engaged in the particular business or industry implied or understood; given or issued to the trade, sometimes specif., to the customers; as, a trade organization; trade journals.

3. Also trades. Of, composed of, or representing, the trades or trade-unions; as, a trade guild or committee; a trades council.

trade, adv. In the manner of a trade wind; — chiefly in the phrase to blow trade, to blow regularly and steadily in the same direction.

trade acceptance. Com. A bill of exchange arising out of a current merchandise transaction, drawn by the seller of the goods on the buyer for the purchase price and accepted by the buyer by a signed acknowledgment upon the instrument. Cf. BANKERS' ACCEPTANCE.

trade agreement. Trade-Unionism. An agreement between an employer and a trade-union, or the like, which fixes wages, hours of labor, or working conditions.

trade allowance. = TRADE DISCOUNT.

trade association. An association of tradesmen, businessmen, or manufacturers for the protection and advancement of their common interests.

trade balance. = BALANCE OF TRADE.

trade board. Also trades board. A voluntary permanent board of employers and working people in a particular trade, representing their fellows in the same trade.

trade club. A social and partly educational institution with its membership consisting primarily of those belonging to a single trade. Chiefly Brit.

trade coin. A coin intended for use in foreign trade, as the United States trade dollar.

trade commissioner. An official of the U. S. Dept. of Commerce stationed in foreign countries, subordinate in rank to the commercial attaché, but with similar duties.

trade council. Also trades council. A central organization of local trade-unions; a central labor union.

trade'craft' (trād'krăft'), n. Rare. a A craft of tradesmen. b The craft of trading or of a tradesman.

trade cumulus. Meteorol. A peculiar small detached cumulus cloud, characteristic of trade-wind regions.

trade cycle. = BUSINESS CYCLE. Brit.

trad'ed (trād'ĕd; -Id; 119), adj. Obs. a Beaten or trodden, as a path. b Experienced; thoroughly versed. c Of a city, merchant, etc., commercially active; having (such) trade.

trade discount. Com. A deduction from the retail or list price of goods allowed by a manufacturer or distributor to a merchant.

trade dollar. See TRADE COIN; DOLLAR, n., 3 b.

trade ducat. A coin of certain countries of Europe used for foreign trade. See DUCAT a.

trade eruption. Med. Any disease of the skin caused by one's trade, as from the handling of such substances as tar, sulphur, lime, salt, etc.

trade fixture. See 1st FIXTURE, 5 a.

trade'ful (trād'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. Full of trade; commercial.

trade goods. Wares; merchandise.

trade guild. 1. A guild, or association, of skilled artisans, experienced merchants, etc., in a single craft, profession, business, or the like; a craft guild. See GUILD, n., 2; CRAFT GUILD.

2. = TRADE-UNION. Chiefly Brit.

trade hall. Also trades hall. A public hall for meetings of merchants and tradespeople, or of the members of incorporated trades.

trade'-in', n. That which is taken in trade; specif., an automobile, radio, etc., taken in trade as part of the purchase price of another. See trade in, under TRADE, v.

trade journal or paper. A newspaper or periodical devoted to news of and articles about a particular business, trade, or profession.

trade magazine. A trade journal.

trade'-mark', trade'mark' (trād'märk'), n. A word, letter, device, or symbol, or some combination of these, used in connection with merchandise and either inherently or by association pointing distinctly to the origin or ownership of the article to which it is applied. A trade-mark is a name or symbol by which goods may be distinguished as coming from a certain, although not necessarily known, source. In countries where the common law prevails (the United States, England, and the English colonies where English law is applied) trade-mark rights result from the use of the mark in trade, so that, by association with goods, the mark becomes a means of identification and hence is a symbol of good will (which see). The right is acquired by use and in most cases priority of use is the critical question in determining ownership. Registration does not create the right but gives procedural advantages. In countries where the law is in the form of codes, as in Latin America, the right is created by registration, and the first to register becomes the owner. Infringement of a trade-mark is such an appropriation or imitation as is likely to deceive ordinary or unwary buyers into the acceptance of the goods of one trader as those of another. This is the essence of the wrong, and the legal wrong known as trade-mark infringement is rapidly being merged into the broader wrong of unfair competition (which see).

trade'-mark', trade'mark', v. t. 1. To put or affix a trade-mark upon; to label with a trade-mark.

2. To secure trade-mark rights for; to register the trade-mark of.

trade'-mark'er, trade'mark'er (-mär'kĕr), n. One who puts on trade-marks.

trade'mas'ter (-mäs'tĕr; 83), n. A teacher of a trade.

trade name. 1. a The name by which an article is called among traders, etc.; as, tin spirits is a common trade name in the dyeing industry for various solutions of tin salts. b An invented or arbitrarily adopted name given by a manufacturer or merchant to an article to distinguish it as one produced or sold by him. It is better called a trade-mark name and may be protected as a trade-mark.

2. The name or style under which a concern does business. If a trade name, by association, identifies a particular manufacturer or merchant, it will be protected at common law against the use by others of a similar name which is calculated to deceive. In most countries where common law exists trade names are protected by statute or through international conventions.

trade officer. A prison trademaster. Brit.

trade paper. = TRADE JOURNAL.

trade practice. Commerce. A method of business procedure; esp., the use of standards, as of size, shape, quality of materials, etc., adopted by a trade or group of trades.

trade price. The price at which goods are sold to members of the same trade by the manufacturers or by wholesalers.

trad'er (trād'ĕr), n. 1. One who trades; usually, one engaged in trade or commerce; one who makes a business of buying and selling or of barter; a merchant; as, a trader to the East Indies. See TRADESMAN.

2. A vessel engaged in the coasting or foreign trade.

3. Obs. a Slang. A prostitute. b pl. Token money supplied by tradesman.

4. Bankruptcy Law. A person who gets his livelihood by buying and selling for gain (2 Kent. Comm. 389). Originally only traders were subject to and had the advantage of bankruptcy.

5. Stock Exchange. a An exchange member who trades for himself, and not on commission for customers. b Anyone who trades extensively in securities.

trade rat. A pack rat; — in allusion to its habit of replacing with some other article any article which it takes away. Local, Western U. S.

trade rights. Law. Proprietary rights, as the trade name, belonging to a person in connection with a trade or business, usually exclusive of brands and trade-marks.

trade road. = TRADE ROUTE.

trade route. A route followed by traders in caravans, etc.; specif., one of the sea lanes ordinarily used by merchant ships.

trad'er's set'tle·ment (trād'ĕrz). Eng. Law. A settlement in which, in general, the land is settled upon trust for sale, the income of the land and of its proceeds being usually given for life to one or more persons, the capital being afterwards divisible among the children of marriage and their descendants; — contrasted with strict settlement.

trade sale. An auction by and for the trade, esp. of books.

Trad'es·can'ti·a (trăd'ĕs·kăn'shĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after John Tradescant (d. 1638), Eng. traveler and gardener.] Bot. a A rather large genus of American herbs (family Commelinaceae), the spiderworts, having mostly narrow elongated leaves and large white, pink, or violet, ephemeral, bracteate flowers. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

trade school. A school devoted to drill in the theory and practice of a trade or trades.

trade secret. A process, mode of operation, or use of ingredients, employed in manufacture but not published or divulged. Disclosure of trade secrets by employees, former employees, or others, in breach of confidence or fraudulently, will be enjoined.

trades'folk' (trādz'fōk'), n. pl. People in trade; specif., tradesmen.

trades'man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). [trade's + man.] 1. One who trades; one who buys and sells things for a profit or means of living; a shopkeeper; also, one of his employees.

A tradesman is differentiated from a trader by being more personally occupied in the actual purchase and sale, and especially the sale of goods, while the trader rather provides them for him.

Dict. of Pol. Econ.

2. A workman in one of the skilled trades; an artisan; a craftsman. Brit.

trades'peo'ple (-pē'p'l), n. pl. Tradesmen.

trades'per'son (-pûr's'n), n. A tradesman. Rare.

trade test. Psychol. A test of proficiency in a given trade, such as plumbing, standardized by obtaining norms for novices, apprentices, journeymen, and experts in the trade.

trade tomahawk. See TOMAHAWK, n., 1.

trade'-un'ion (trād'ūn'yŭn; trād'ūn'yŭn), or trades'-un'ion (trādz'-; trādz'-), n.; pl. TRADE-UNIONS or TRADES-UNIONS. 1. A voluntary association of working people organized to further or maintain their rights, privileges, and interests with respect to wages, hours and conditions of labor, efficiency, education, mutual insurance, customs, etc.

2. In a general sense, a voluntary combination for mutual aid of any persons engaged in trade, as of employers, or employers and workmen.

trade'-un'ion·ism (-Iz'm), or trades'-un'ion·ism, n. The system or principles of trade-unions, or adherence to these principles. — trade'-un'ion·ist (-Ist), trades'-un'ion·ist, n. & adj.

trade warranty. Marine Insurance. A warranty in the policy restricting the use of the insured vessel to a particular trade, as regards both type of cargo to be carried and geographical area.

trade wind. A drying wind blowing almost continually in the same course, or trade, toward the equator but from an easterly direction. The general direction of the trade winds is thus from N. E. to S. W. on the north side of the equator, and from S. E. to N. W. on the south side of the equator. They are produced by the rotation of the earth and the movement of the air toward the equatorial regions in the course of its circulation between the warmer and colder portions of the earth. The trade winds are chiefly limited to two belts in the tropical and subtropical regions, one on each side of the equator and separated by the doldrums. On the sea the trade winds are quite permanent and of great value to navigators. Cf. ANTITRADES. — trade'-wind', adj.

trade work. Work such as is done by those following the mechanical trades.

trad'i·ment (trăd'ĭ·mĕnt), n. [OF., fr. ML. tradimentum. See TREASON.] Treachery; treason. Rare.

trad'ing (trād'ĭng), n. The action of one who trades; trade; also, Colloq., shopping; marketing.

trad'ing, adj. 1. That trades; engaged or used in trade; frequented by traders or purchasers; as, trading citizens, vessels, or centers. "The trading flood." Milton.

2. Of officeholders, etc., jobbing; venal; corrupt.

trading account. Accounting. A departmental profit-and-loss account or statement for summarizing trading expenses and revenues; — sometimes called selling account.

trading market. Exchanges. A market without a definite price trend and with few traders other than the professionals.

trading on the equity. Finance. Designating the continued use of borrowed capital to augment the owned capital of a concern. Slang, Eng.

trading post. A station of a trader or trading company established in a sparsely settled region where trade, usually in furs, etc., is carried on with the natives.

trading stamp. A printed stamp, with a certain value, given as a premium by a dealer to a customer, and usable instead of money in procuring articles from the issuers of the stamps.

tra·dite' (trȧ·dīt'), v. i. [Irreg. fr. tradition.] To form traditions. Rare.

tra·di'tion (trȧ·dĭsh'ŭn), n. [OF. tradicion (F. tradition), fr. L. traditio, fr. tradere to give up, transmit. See TREASON, TRAITOR; cf. EXTRADITE.] 1. Act of delivering into the hands of another; delivery. "A deed takes effect only from the tradition or delivery." Blackstone.

2. A surrender; a yielding up; specif., the crime of being a traditor (sense b). Hist.

3. Oral delivery of something to be learned; instruction by word of mouth; as, the tradition of the creed, the ceremonial teaching of the Apostles' Creed to the catechumens in the early church. Now Rare.

4. The oral transmission of information, opinions, beliefs, customs, etc., from father to son or from ancestors to posterity; the handing down of knowledge through successive generations by oral communication and without written memorials; as, a few details concerning early settlers preserved by tradition.

5. That which is transmitted orally through successive generations without the aid of written memorials; a belief, practice, etc., preserved by tradition (sense 4); as, to subject the tradition of a race's origin to severe tests.

6. More generally, any belief, custom, way of life, etc., which has its roots in one's family or racial past; an inherited culture, attitude, or the like; sometimes, a long-established convention. "A certain tradition of life which came to mean much for the young Marius." Pater.

7. Rom. Law. Transfer or acquisition of property by mere delivery with intent of both parties to transfer the title.

8. Theol. a Among the Jews, an unwritten code of law believed to have been given by God to Moses on Sinai, and later reduced to writing in the Mishnah. b Among Christians, that body of doctrine and discipline, or any article thereof, held to have been put forth by Christ or his apostles, and not committed to writing; specif., R.C. & Eastern Churches, that body of doctrine accepted as revealed truth, which, in contradistinction to the written revelation in the Scriptures, has been handed down orally.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

tradition-bound	tradition-following	tradition-nourished tradition-fed	tradition-making	tradition-ridden tra·di'tion, v. t. To transmit by tradition; to imbue with traditions. "Trained and traditioned against the natural and undisciplined." H. G. Wells.

tra·di'tion·al (trȧ·dĭsh'ŭn·ăl), adj. [Cf. F. traditionnel, ML. traditionalis.] 1. Of or pertaining to tradition, or orally transmitted information, etc.; consisting of, or derived from, tradition; handed down from age to age without writing; as, traditional history or revelation.

2. Following or conforming to tradition, or the order, code, practice, etc., accepted from the past; conventional; long-established; as, traditional morality, poetic forms, or opinions; also, observant of or holding to such traditions; traditionalist; as, a traditional dramatist, political party.

3. [often cap.] Biblical Criticism. Pert. to or designating the school of English textual critics who maintain that the true text must be primarily founded on the evidence of Greek copies of the New Testament, and secondarily in case of doubt on that of other early versions and quotations.

Syn. — TRADITIONAL, LEGENDARY. That is TRADITIONAL which has been handed down, esp. by word of mouth; the word may or may not imply lack of authenticity; that which is LEGENDARY is commonly unauthentic, and the word is often equivalent to "apocryphal," "fabulous"; as, "this precious specimen of the unspoiled traditional ballad" (F. J. Child); "Is it [Beowulf] entirely mythical and legendary, or is there any actual history contained in it?" (S. A. Brooke). Traditional (not legendary) often connotes conservatism; as, "He [Gifford] inclines . . . to the traditional in laws and government, to the orthodox in religion" (Hazlitt). Cf. FABULOUS, MYTH.

trade'fall'en, adj. Out of trade; bankrupt. Obs. [Chiefly Brit.] trade'-guild', n. = TRADE-UNION.

trade'less, adj. See -LESS.

trade-mark infringement. See TRADE-MARK, n.

trade-mark name. See TRADE NAME, 1 b.

trad'er·ship (trād'ĕr·shĭp), n. [See -SHIP.]

trades board. A trade board.

trades council. A trade council.

trades hall. = TRADE HALL.

trades'man·like', adj. See -LIKE.

trades'man·ship, n. See -SHIP.

trades'man·wise', adv. See -WISE.

trades'wom'an (trādz'wŏŏm'ăn), n.; pl. -WOMEN (-wĭm'ĕn; -ĭn). Fem. of TRADESMAN.

tra·di′tion·al·ism (trə·dĭsh′ŭn·ăl·ĭz′m), n. The doctrines, principles, or practices, of those who follow or accept tradition or traditions; specif. [often cap.]: a Acceptance of tradition, or orally transmitted revelation. See TRADITION, n., 8. b The beliefs of those opposed to modernism, liberalism, radicalism, etc.; sometimes, fundamentalism. — tra·di′tion·al·ist (-lst), n. & adj. — tra·di′tion·al·is′tic (-lĭs′tĭk), adj.

tra·di′tion·al′i·ty (-ăl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Traditionalism; conventionality.

tra·di′tion·al·ize (trə·dĭsh′ŭn·ăl·īz), v. t. To make traditional; to imbue with traditions or traditionalism.

traditional logic. See LOGIC, n., 1.

tra·di′tion·ar′y (trə·dĭsh′ŭn·ĕr′ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Of the nature of a tradition; founded on, or derived from, tradition; full of traditions; traditional; as, a traditionary legend or ghost. — tra·di′tion·ar′i·ly (-ĭ·lĭ), adv.

tra·di′tion·ar′y, n.; pl. -ARIES (-īz). [Cf. F. traditionnaire.] A traditionalist.

tra·di′tion·ate (-āt), v. t. To indoctrinate with tradition; to inculcate a tradition into.

tra·di′tion·ate·ly (-āt·lĭ), adv. Traditionally. Rare.

tra·di′tion·er (-ĕr), n. A traditionist.

tra·di′tion·ist (-ĭst), n. [Cf. F. traditionniste.] a A traditionalist; esp., one adhering to traditionalism (sense a). b One versed in traditions; one who transmits a tradition. — tra·di′tion·ist, adj.

tra·di′tion·less, adj. See -LESS.

tradition of the creed. See TRADITION, n., 3.

Tradition Sunday. Eccl. Palm Sunday; — anciently so called because the tradition of the creed (see TRADITION, n., 3) was given on or about that day.

trad′i·tive (trăd′ĭ·tĭv), adj. [L. tradere, traditum, to transmit, give up; cf. F. traditif.] Of the nature of, or pertaining to, tradition; transmitted or transmissible by tradition (sense 4).

trad′i·tor (-tŏr), n.; pl. TRADITORES (-tō′rēz). [L., fr. tradere, traditum. See TRAITOR.] a Obs. A traitor. b Specif., one of those Christians who during the Roman persecutions, esp. the Diocletian, gave up to the officers of the law the Scriptures, the sacred vessels, or the names of their brethren.

trad′i·tor, or tra′di·to′re (trä′dē·tō′rā), bat′ter·y. Fort. A concealed casemated battery to give a flanking fire along the line of defense.

tra·duce′ (trə·dūs′), v. t.; TRA·DUCED′ (-dūst′); TRA·DUC′ING (-dūs′ĭng). [L. traducere, traductum, to lead across, lead along, exhibit as a spectacle, disgrace, transfer, derive, fr. trans across, over + ducere to lead; cf. F. traduire to transfer, translate, arraign, fr. L. traducere. See DUKE.] 1. Obs. a To transport, transfer; to transmit as in generation; to hand down. b To deduce; derive; bring forth. c To represent; exhibit; specif., to expose to contempt. d To lead astray; to seduce. e To pervert; to debase by misinterpretation.

2. To turn from one language or form into another; now, humorously, to debase or pervert by translating.

3. To expose to contempt or shame through derogatory or, esp., slanderous remarks; to calumniate; vilify; defame; as, to traduce a reputation; also, Obs., to accuse; to censure unjustly.

He had the baseness . . . to traduce me in libel. Dryden.

Syn. — See ASPERSE.

tra·du′cent (trə·dū′sĕnt), adj. [L. traducens, pres. part. See TRADUCE.] Slanderous. Rare.

tra·duc′er (-dūs′ĕr), n. One who traduces; esp., a calumniator.

tra·du′cian (-dū′shăn), adj. Of or pertaining to traducianism or traducians. — n. A believer in traducianism.

tra·du′cian·ism (-ĭz′m), n. Theol. The doctrine that human souls are propagated by generation, along with bodies; — opposed to creationism and infusionism. — tra·du′cian·ist (-ĭst), n & adj. — tra·du′cian·is′tic (-ĭs′tĭk), adj.

tra·duc′ing (trə·dūs′ĭng), adj. That traduces. — tra·duc′ing·ly, adv.

tra·duc′tion (-dŭk′shăn), n. [OF. and L.; OF. traduction, fr. L. traductio a transferring. See TRADUCE.] 1. The act or an instance of traducing; variously, Now Rare, transportation, transference, transmission, derivation, propagation, translation, tradition.

2. Act of defaming; defamation; slander.

3. The repetition of a word (or one of its derivatives) or a term with a change in sense for rhetorical or argumentative effect.

4. Something traduced, or transmitted; esp., a tradition. Obs.

5. Logic. A form of inference, not generally recognized by logicians, in which premises and conclusion are of the same order of generality.

tra·duc′tion·ist (-ĭst), n. A traducian.

trad′y (trăd′ĭ), adj. Commercial; suggestive of trade. Colloq.

Traf′al·gar′ (trăf′ăl·gär′; often, as in England, trə·făl′gĕr), n. See BATTLE, Table.

Tra·fal′gar (trə·făl′gĕr), n. [After Nelson's victory at Trafalgar.] Print. A type size next smaller than canon. Eng.

Tra·fal′gar Square. A square in the heart of London, laid out 1829–41, just north of Charing Cross. It contains the Nelson monument and statues of Havelock, Napier, Gordon, and George IV, and has long been a center for political and social meetings and government recruitings and a scene of radical protests.

traf′fic (trăf′ĭk), n. [F. trafic, trafique, fr. It. traffico, fr. trafficare to traffic; of obscure origin.] 1. The business of transporting merchandise; carriage, as by a ship, or exportation or importation, as by a merchant, of goods or commodities; trade between distant countries, communities, etc.; commerce; as, vessels engaged in the slave traffic. Archaic.

A merchant of great traffic through the world. Shak.

2. In modern usage, the business of transporting passengers, goods, etc., as on railroad, steamship, or aircraft lines; any enterprise or, collectively, the enterprises in the class of public carriers; — chiefly in attributive use; as, both the trade and traffic interests were represented.

3. The business of bartering or buying and selling; bargaining for profit; trade; as, to carry on traffic with the Indians; retail traffic in clothing. In a derogatory sense, illicit or unethical sale or selling; as, an extensive traffic in votes; white slave traffic.

4. Dealings; intercourse; familiarity; also, interchange in familiar intercourse.

This flippant traffic of triviality with Clara. D. H. Lawrence.

5. That which is transported or carried in trade or business. a Now Rare. Goods or merchandise; marketable commodity or commodities. b The total of passengers or freight transported by a public carrier or carriers within a specified or implied period; as, to prepare for heavy summer traffic; a great decrease in traffic during the last year. Cf. def. 6. c The total of communications, as of telephone calls or telegraphed messages.

6. The passing to and fro along a route, as of trains, boats, vehicles, or persons, or, by extension, of communications by wire or through the air; also, the vessels, vehicles, etc., so passing; specif., the flow of pedestrians and vehicles along a street or highway; as, the traffic was directed by a policeman or derouted during the fire; air permeated with radio traffic.

7. a The business done upon a railway, steamboat line, or other line of transportation, as measured in traffic miles. Cf. TRAFFIC DENSITY, TRAFFIC-MILE. b Also, the revenue or return from such business or traffic.

8. Dial. Eng. a A path; a track or trail. b Trash; also, rabble.

Syn. — See COMMERCE.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

traffic beacon	traffic-furrowed	traffic-regulating, adj.
traffic-bearing, adj.	traffic jam	traffic regulator traffic-choked	traffic-laden	traffic shifter traffic-congested	traffic law	traffic signal traffic constable	traffic officer	traffic squad traffic control	traffic policeman	traffic-thronged traffic cop	traffic post	traffic tower traffic director

— all, what, etc., the traffic will bear. The highest amount possible or calculable under the existing conditions.

traf′fic (trăf′ĭk), v.; TRAF′FICKED (-ĭkt); TRAF′FICK·ING (-ĭk·ĭng). [F. trafiquer. See TRAFFIC, n.] Intransitive: 1. To carry on traffic, or trade; to engage in commerce; to barter, buy, or sell goods.

The ordinary world in which we traffic. Wordsworth.

2. To engage in illicit sale or purchase; to trade in something not properly for sale; as, to traffic in benefices or in human beings.

3. To have dealings, intercourse, or familiarity (with); sometimes, to have underhanded dealings; to carry on an intrigue or conspiracy.

4. To pass to and fro; to wander. Chiefly Dial.

— Transitive: 1. To pass over or frequent, esp. in trade; as, to traffic the seas. Obs.

2. To exchange in traffic; to trade; barter.

3. To bargain for; to effect for a consideration. Rare.

traf′fic·a·ble (trăf′ĭk·ə·b'l), adj. 1. Capable of being traded or used in trade; marketable.

2. Open, as a road, to traffic; passable.

— traf′fic·a·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. — traf′fic·a·ble·ness, n.

traffic court. A minor court for disposition of petty prosecutions for violation of statutes, ordinances, and local regulations governing the use of highways.

traffic density. The amount of the flow of traffic over a highway or railway. In highway practice it is usually measured by the number of vehicles passing over the highway per unit of time. See DENSITY OF FREIGHT TRAFFIC.

traf′fick·er (trăf′ĭk·ĕr), n. One who traffics.

traffic light. One of a set of signal lights used on highways, esp. at intersections, to regulate the movement of traffic.

traffic manager. 1. The chief officer of the freight or passenger traffic department of a railroad, steamship line, or other common carrier, having charge of traffic solicitation, determination of rates, fares and other charges, and related traffic functions.

2. In a commercial or industrial establishment, a supervisor of its traffic activities and sometimes of all of its transportation affairs.

traf′fic–mile′, n. Railroad Accounting. Any unit of the total obtained by adding the passenger-miles and ton-miles in a railroad's transportation for a given period; — a term and practice of restricted or erroneous usage. See PASSENGER-MILE, TON-MILE, DENSITY OF FREIGHT TRAFFIC.

Traffic-mile is a term designed to furnish an excuse for the erroneous practice of adding together two things (ton-miles and passenger-miles) which . . . cannot properly be added. Hadley.

traffic sheet. 1. Railroads. A train sheet.

2. In a telephone exchange, office, or hotel, a record of telephone calls.

traf′fic·way′ (trăf′ĭk·wā′), n. A route for traffic, as a railway or highway.

trag (trăg), n. Trash. Scot.

trag′a·canth (trăg′ə·kănth), n. [F. tragacanthe, the plant, fr. L. tragacantha, fr. Gr. tragakantha, fr. tragos he-goat + akantha a thorn.] a A gum obtained as a dried exudate from various Asiatic or East European species of Astragalus, esp. A. gummifer. The most highly prized commercial variety comes in thin white translucent pieces, or flakes, of horny texture and is often called white leaf. The gum swells up in water and is used in the arts and as an emulsifying agent and pill excipient in pharmacy. b Any shrub or tree yielding this gum.

trag′a·can′tha (-kăn′thə), n. [L.] Tragacanth.

trag′a·can′thin (-thĭn), n. Also tra·gan′thin (trə·găn′thĭn). Bassorin.

Trag′a·sol (trăg′ə·sŏl; -sōl), n. A trade-mark for a gummy substance obtained from the seeds of carob beans and used in tanning (in conjunction with tanning materials), in sizing, etc.; also [sometimes not cap.], the substance bearing this trade-mark.

tra·ge′di·an (trə·jē′dĭ·ăn), n. [ME. tragedien (in sense 1), fr. OF. tragedien (F tragédien).] 1. A writer of tragedy.

2. An actor or player of tragedy.

3. One who causes a tragic death; a murderer. Rare.

tra·ge′di·cal (-kăl), adj. Tragical. Rare.

tra·ge′di·enne′ (trə·jē′dĭ·ĕn′; F. trä′zhā′dyĕn′), n. [F.] An actress who plays tragedy.

tra·ge′di·et′ta (trə·jē′dĭ·ĕt′ə; It. trä′jā·dyĕt′tä), n. [Dim. of It. tragedia tragedy.] A short tragic drama.

trag′e·dist (trăj′ĕ·dĭst), n. A tragic dramatist. Rare.

trag′e·dize (-dīz), v. t. To present or dramatize as or in the manner of a tragedy; to make, or make appear, tragic. — v. i. To be tragical; to play the tragedian. — trag′e·di·za′tion (-dĭ·zā′shŭn; -dĭ·zā′-), n.

trag′e·dy (trăj′ĕ·dĭ), n.; pl. -DIES (-dĭz). [ME. tragedie, fr. OF. tragedie, fr. L. tragoedia, fr. Gr. tragōidia, appar., goat-song, prob. from the singers' being clothed in goatskins, fr. tragos he-goat + ōidē song. See ODE.] 1. A literary composition, esp. a narrative, which excites pity or terror by a succession of sorrowful events, miseries, or misfortunes, leading to a catastrophe.

Go, litel book, go litel myn tregedie. Chaucer.

2. A dramatic composition depicting a serious story, in which, typically, the leading character is by some passion or limitation brought to a catastrophe; also, generically, drama of this type, or the composing or acting of it. Greek tragedy is severely simple in plot and incident. The dialogue is in verse and is interspersed with choral odes. The action as a whole is conceived as a manifestation of fate, in which the characters are somewhat passively involved. Modern tragedy is typically complex and varied in plot, and at the present day is more characteristically in prose. The action is conceived as the free working out of the individual characters. See CATHARSIS, 2; CHORUS, 1 a; DRAMA, 2.

Tragedy is an imitation of an action that is serious, complete, and of a certain magnitude; in language embellished with each kind of artistic ornament, the several kinds being found in separate parts of the play [i. e., verse in the dialogue; song in the choral parts]; in the form of action, not of narrative; through pity and fear effecting the proper [catharsis, or] purgation, of these emotions. Butcher (Aristotle).

3. The theory or art of composing or of acting tragedies.

4. A mournful or fatal event or a series of unhappy events unrelieved in character or culminating in disaster; a tragic happening or series of happenings; as, a wreck that proved a tragedy; his life was a tragedy; sometimes, a tragic lot.

Hers was the tragedy of living on. Barrie.

5. Obs. a Tragic end or fate; a misfortune; misery. b A recital of woe or woes; doleful complaint.

trag′e·laph (trăj′ē·lăf), n.; pl. TRAGELAPHS (-lăfs). Also tra·gel′a·phus (trə·jĕl′ə·fŭs); pl., TRAGELAPHI (-fī). [L. tragelaphus, fr. Gr. tragelaphos.] 1. Gr. Myth. A fictitious animal, combining the forms of a goat and a stag, probably derived from one of the monsters of Oriental art.

2. An actual stag with a beard like a goat's.

Tra·gel′a·phus (trə·jĕl′ə·fŭs), n. [L.] a [not cap.] = TRAGELAPH. b Zool. The genus containing the harnessed antelopes. — tra·gel′a·phine (-fĭn; -fīn; 156), adj.

‖tra·ghet′to (trä·gĕt′tō), n.; pl. -GHETTI (-tē). [It.] Literally, a ferry; a station for gondolas.

trag′ic (trăj′ĭk), adj. [L. tragicus, fr. Gr. tragikos; cf. F. tragique.] 1. Of, pertaining to, of the nature of, or having the character of, tragedy or the tragic (see TRAGIC, n., 2); as, a tragic poem, story, or career.

His [Pompey's] end was piteous, but scarcely tragic, for the cause to which he was sacrificed was too slightly removed from being ignominious. J. A. Froude.

2. Characterized by, or involving, death or calamity or the suffering implied in tragedy; terrible; calamitous.

3. Appropriate to, or in the manner of, tragedy as written or performed; tragical; as, tragic accents; a tragic manner.

Syn. — Calamitous, dire.

Ant. — Comic, farcical. See LAUGHABLE.

trag′ic, n. [Cf. F. tragique. See TRAGIC, adj.] 1. Rare. a A writer of tragedy. b A tragedy; a tragic drama. c A tragic actor. d A tragic deed or event.

2. Usually with the. The quality or essence of tragedy; esp., the aesthetic quality in tragic drama which excites in the beholder the emotions of pity and terror in such a way as to effect a catharsis (sense 2) of the emotions; hence, a similar quality in any tragedy in life or art whose painfulness or horror are softened or elevated by the sublimity of the struggle and the catastrophe or by the universality of their significance.

trag′i·cal (trăj′ĭ·kăl), adj. Tragic; esp., having or manifesting the manner, style, or spirit, of tragedy or the tragedian; theatrically mournful, serious, elevated, etc.; doleful.

Why look you still so stern and tragical? Shak.

trag′i·cal, n. A tragic composition. Rare.

trag′i·cal′i·ty (-kăl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being tragical; — often derogatory.

trag′i·cal·ly, adv. of TRAGIC, TRAGICAL.

tragic irony. Dramatic irony which gives special point to a tragic situation.

trag′i·cize (trăj′ĭ·sīz), v. i. To become tragic or tragical.

trag′i·co- (-ĭ·kō-). A combining form from Greek tragikos, tragic, denoting tragic and, as in trag′i·co·far′ci·cal, trag′i·co·he·ro′i·com′ic.

trag′i·col′ored (trăj′ĭ·kŭl′ĕrd), adj. Having a tragic cast or appearance.

trag′i·co·me′di·an (-kō·mē′dĭ·ăn), n. One skilled in acting tragicomedy.

trag′i·com′e·dy (-kŏm′ə·dĭ), n. [F. tragicomédie, fr. LL. tragicomoedia, fr. L. tragicocomoedia. See TRAGIC; COMEDY.] 1. A drama in which serious and comic scenes are blended; a composition partaking of the nature of both tragedy and comedy and not having a fatal issue.

2. Any event, situation, or complex of events having a mixed tragic and comic character.

trag′i·com′ic (-ĭk), adj. [Cf. F. tragi-comique.] Of or pertaining to tragicomedy; both tragic and comic; also, both saddening and amusing; as, the tragicomic plays of Shakespeare; a tragicomic episode.

trag′i·com′i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Tragicomic. — trag′i·com′i·cal·i·ty (-kăl′ĭ·tĭ), n. — trag′i·com′i·cal·ly, adv.

trag′i·com′i·pas′to·ral (-păs′tō·răl), adj. Of the nature of, or combining, tragedy, comedy, and pastoral poetry. R.

trag′i·co·ro·man′tic (trăj′ĭ·kō·rō·măn′tĭk), adj. Combining elements of tragedy and romance.

‖tra·goe′di·a (trə·jē′dĭ·ə), n. [L.] Tragedy.

trag′o·pan (trăg′ō·păn), n. [NL., fr. L. tragopan a fabulous Ethiopian bird, fr. Gr. tragopan, lit. goat-Pan. Cf. AEGIPAN.] a Any of several brilliantly colored Asiatic pheasants having the back and breast usually covered with white or buff ocelli. In the males the head is ornamented with two bright-colored wattles and a pair of fleshy erectile horns. The crimson tragopan, or horned pheasant (Tragopan satyrus), of India, is one of the best-known species. b [cap.] The genus constituted by these pheasants. Syn. Ceriornis.

Crimson Tragopan (Tragopan satyrus).

Trag′o·po′gon (-pō′gŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tragopōgōn, name of a plant, fr. tragos he-goat + pōgōn beard; — in tra·di′tion·al·ly, adv. of TRADITIONAL. [ALISM.]

tra·di′tion·ism, n. = TRADITION-tra·di′tion·i′tis (trə·dĭsh′ŭn·ĭ′tĭs), n. [NL.] See -ITIS.

tra·di′tion·ize, v. i. & v. t. See -IZE. Rare.

tra·di′tion·mon′ger, n. See -MONGER.

tra·di′tious (trə·dĭsh′ŭs), adj. = TRADITIONAL. Rare.

trad′i·tor·ship′, n. See -SHIP.

tra·drille′. Corrupt. of TREDRILLE.

tra·duce′ment, n. See -MENT.

tra·duc′i·ble (trə·dūs′ĭ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. Now Rare.

tra·duct′, v. A translation. Obs.

tra·duct′, v. t. [L. traductus, past part. of traducere. See TRADUCE.] To transmit. Obs.

tra·duc′tive (trə·dŭk′tĭv), adj. Capable of being transmitted or deduced; derivative. Obs.

traf′fick·a·ble. Var. of TRAFFICABLE.

traf′fickt. Trafficked. Ref. Sp.

traf′fic·less, adj. See -LESS.

traf·fike′ (Scot. trə·fĭk′, -fīk′). Var. of TRAFFIC. Obs. exc. Scot.

tra′gal (trā′găl), adj. Pertaining to the tragus.

tra·ge′di·al, adj. = TRAGIC, adj., 1. Rare.

tra·ge′di·an·ess, n. Fem. of TRAGEDIAN.

tra·ge′di·ous (trə·jē′dĭ·ŭs), adj. Like or full of tragedy. Obs. — tra·ge′di·ous·ly, adv. Obs.

trag′e·dy-proof′ (66), adj. See -PROOF.

trag′i- (trăj′ĭ-). A combining form for tragic.

tra′gi (trā′jĭ), n., pl. of TRAGUS.

trag′i·cal·ness, n. See -NESS.

trag′i·cas′ter (trăj′ĭ·kăs′tĕr), adj. See 2d -ASTER.

trag′ic·com′e·dy, n. = TRAGICOMEDY.

trag′ic·ly, adv. of TRAGIC. Now Rare.

trag′ic·ness, n. See -NESS.

trag′i·cose (trăj′ĭ·kōs), adj. See -OSE.

allusion to the copious pappas.] Bot. A genus of Old World herbs (family Cichoriaceae) having entire linear leaves, and long-pedunculate heads of yellow or purple radiate flowers with a single series of involucral bracts. T. porrifolius is the salsify. T. pratensis is the yellow goatsbeard.

trag'ule (trăg'ūl), n. [Cf. F. tragule.] A chevrotain.

Trag'u·lus (-ū·lŭs), n. [NL., dim. fr. Gr. tragos he-goat.] Zool. The typical and leading genus of chevrotains.

tra'gus (trā'gŭs), n.; pl. TRAGI (-jī). [NL., fr. Gr. tragos a part of the inner ear.] Anat. a The prominence in front of the external opening of the ear. See EAR, Illust. b One of the hairs of the external auditory meatus.

tra·heen' (thrȧ·hēn'), n. [Ir. troighthīn, dim. of troigh foot.] A soleless stocking. Anglo-Ir.

‖tra'hi'son' (trȧ'ē'zôn'), n. [F.] Treachery; infidelity.

traik (trāk), v. i. [Origin uncert.; cf. TRACK.] a To waste away; to break down. b To trudge; tramp. c To stray; wander. d Chiefly Scot. To stroll or go about idly; to lounge. e To follow, as on a trail.

traik, n. Chiefly Scot. a A plague; a pest. b Flesh of sheep that died by accident or disease. c A fatiguing tramp or journey. d Obs. Fatigue; also, misfortune. ■ A stroll; saunter.

traik'y (-ĭ), adj. Exhausted; wasted away. Chiefly Scot.

trail (trāl), v.; TRAILED (trāld); TRAIL'ING. [ME. trailen, fr. OF. trailler to tow (cf. OF. traille towline, F., ferryboat, fr. L. tragula), fr. (assumed) VL. tragulare, fr. L. tragula dragnet, sledge, fr. root of trahere to draw, drag. See TRACE.] Transitive: 1. To draw or drag along a surface, as something loosely held or attached; to allow to sweep the ground, floor, etc.; in moving, to hold or carry (something) so as to draw an end or part upon a surface; as, to trail a log after a wagon, the oars of one's boat, a fishline. 2. Specif.: a To drag, as a limb or one's body, heavily, wearily, etc.; as, he moved slowly, trailing his wounded foot. b To drag or pull (one) along by force; to hale; often, to drag in the dust.

They shall not trail me through their streets. Milton.

3. Figuratively: a To subject to degradation or indignity by or as by dragging in the dust; as, to trail a flag. b To carry or bring (along) as an addition, encumbrance, or the like; to have in one's wake; as, he always trails along two or three uninvited friends.

Trailing clouds of glory do we come. Wordsworth.

c To protract the utterance, discussion, or the like, of.

4. To adorn with something that trails; to decorate as with fluttering ribbons, a tracery, etc. Archaic.

5. To leave or make (a trail, track, path, etc.) as by passing over; also, to make a track or trail in; to tread down in a line or path, as grass.

6. To hunt by tracking; also, to pursue in one's track, or trail; to follow after; as, to trail a hero to his home.

7. To draw out or lead on, esp. in or as in banter; to make game of. Colloq., Eng.

8. To attach (a trailer or trailers) to an automobile, or the like; also, to follow as a trailer; hence, to be behind as a laggard, inferior, etc.; as, to trail the wagons of an overland train; he always trails his classmates.

9. Billiards. To follow the ball with the mace.

10. Bowls. To play a bowl so as to strike (the jack) and carry it backward.

11. Mil. To carry, as a firearm, pike, etc., at the position of trail arms. See trail arms.

—, Intransitive: 1. To hang down so as to be drawn along or to sweep the ground, etc.; to be dragged upon a surface; as, her skirts trail; do not let the flag trail in the dust; also, Obs., to walk with trailing robes.

2. To walk, move, or proceed, draggingly, heavily, wearily, etc.; to lag; crawl; — sometimes with implication of following or being behind; as, the horse trailed until the homestretch; we trailed along at three miles an hour.

3. To hang so as to float loosely or touch a surface; as, the tablecloth trails on the floor; specif., to grow to such length as to droop over, or rest or creep upon, the ground, as a plant; as, brambles that trail.

4. To form a trail or wake behind; to issue, flow forth, or the like, in a manner suggestive of something drawn along after; as, smoke trailed from the chimney.

When his brother saw the red blood trail. Spenser.

5. To extend in an erratic or uneven course or line; to straggle; as, a path that trails over the moor; also, usually with off, to wander from its course, aim, or original character, so as to be lost or to be merged (into something); to dwindle; as, the discussion trailed off into futilities.

A sigh . . . which might have trailed into a sob. J. Stephens.

6. To follow a trail, as hounds; to track game.

7. To be covered with a trailing vine. Rare.

8. To tour with a trailer carrying camping supplies or providing living accommodations.

9. Angling. To troll. Rare.

10. Cards. In cassino, to play a card that cannot be used in building or taking, and therefore accomplishes nothing.

trail a pen. To be a writer.

trail a pike. To be a soldier.

trail arms. Mil. To carry arms in a position in which the butt of the rifle is raised a few inches from the ground, and the muzzle inclined forward, so that the barrel makes an angle of about 30 degrees with the vertical; — chiefly as a command.

trail off. See TRAIL, v. i., 5.

trail one's coat tails. To invite a quarrel by one's own readiness to be offended.

trail (trāl), n. [From TRAIL, v.] 1. Something that trails or is trailed; something that follows on or as if on a trail, or as if dragged behind; a train; a wake; as, a trail of smoke, of hair, of clouds, or of admirers; a meteor's trail.

2. Specif.: a The train of a gown. b A trailing plant; also [partly from TRAIL trellis] a running ornament representing leaves, tendrils, etc., as in Gothic moldings. c Obs. A sledge. d A trail net.

3. A mark, trace, or track left by something that has passed or that has been drawn or dragged along; as, to follow the trail of blood.

4. Hence: a A scent left by man or beast, as one followed by the hunter. "How cheerfully on the false trail they cry!" Shak. b A track worn by passage through a wilderness or wild region; a beaten path; as, an Indian trail. c A blazed or otherwise marked path through a forest or mountainous region; as, the State of Vermont provides a 300-mile trail for those enjoying walking trips. d [cap.] In names of highways, a road approximately following a trail (sense b) or series of trails left as by Indians or pioneers. e = SKIDDING TRAIL.

5. Rare. a Obs. Act of trailing along; a gliding. b A following of a scent; the act of hunting. c Something dragged so as to provide a scent for hounds.

6. Dial. a A journey; a tramp; a tedious walk. b Scot. A lazy and slovenly person.

7. Act of trailing, or drawing out a person. Colloq., Eng.

8. Astron. A continuous line produced photographically by permitting the image of a celestial body, as a star, to move over the plate.

9. Mil. a Trailing position (see TRAIL, v. t., 11); — in the phrase at the trail. b That part of the stock of a gun carriage which rests on the ground when the piece is unlimbered. See FIELDPIECE, Illust. c In the ballistics of bombs dropped from moving aircraft, the horizontal distance from the point of impact to a vertical line from the airplane, dropped at the instant of impact. See BALLISTICS OF BOMBS, Illust.

Syn. — Train; track; path, route.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

trail-blazing, adj.	trailmaking	trailside trailmaker	trail-marked	trail-weary trail (trāl), n. [ME. traile, fr. OF. treille.] Obs. a Trellis-work for climbing plants; a latticed frame; an arbor. b A grating or grill.

trail, n. Aphetic form of entrail; esp., intestines of certain game birds and of fish. Now Rare.

T rail. The common type of rail having a head, a web, and a flat flange base, so that a section resembles the letter T.

trail angle. Mil. The angle between the trail sight and a vertical line from the airplane, both lines being drawn at the instant of impact of the bomb. See BALLISTICS OF BOMBS, Illust.

trail arms. Mil. The position taken by a soldier at the command trail arms. See trail arms, under TRAIL, v.

trail bar. Ordn. A trail handspike. Rare.

trail'bas'ton (trāl'băs'tŭn), n. [AF. trayllebastoun, prop. staff carriers. See TRAIL to drag, to carry; BASTON.] A member of a lawless band or class powerful in England about 1300; — supposedly named from their staffs for cudgeling merchants. Obs.

trail blazer. One who blazes a trail to guide others through a wilderness or unknown country; hence, a pioneer. — trail blazing.

trail board. Shipbuilding. One of the curved and carved boards on the sides of the cutwater near the figurehead.

trail breaker. A pioneer.

trail bridge or ferry. A ferry formed of a boat attached to a pulley running on a rope stretched across the stream, and moved from side to side by the action of the current.

trail car. = TRAILER, 4.

trail cart. = 2d TRAIL, 2 c.

trail'er (trāl'ĕr), n. 1. One who trails, or drags along, as in moving heavy articles, such as bars, coal, timber.

2. One who trails or follows a trail, as a hunter, a tracker, a traveler over a trail, a detective, a follower, etc.

3. Something that trails, or touches the ground in moving or hanging; as: a A trailing vine, plant, or branch; a creeper. b A fringe or appendage of thongs or strings at the heel of a moccasin. Some Indians believe it to be a protection against rattlesnakes.

4. A vehicle or one in a succession of vehicles hauled, usually, by some other vehicle. Specif.: a A car on a street-car line pulled by another car. b A light two-wheeled car pulled by a bicycle or motorcycle, etc. c A nonautomotive highway vehicle designed to be hauled, as by a tractor, a motor truck, or a passenger automobile. d Logging. One of several logging sleds that are hauled tandem by steam or gasoline power or by four to eight horses.

5. Mach. a A trailing wheel, as of a locomotive. b A sprag to prevent a vehicle from running backward.

6. Motion Pictures. A short film, made by the cast of a feature picture and displayed for advertising purposes a week or so in advance of the feature's presentation; — so called because attached to the end of a long reel.

trail'er-y (-ĭ), n. A tracery; a trail (see 2d TRAIL, 2 b).

trail ferry. A trail bridge.

trail handspike. Ordn. A long, stout handspike, used in moving the trail of a gun carriage.

trail'ing (trāl'ĭng), adj. 1. That trails; esp., drooping or creeping, as a plant.

2. Locomotive Engin. Pertaining to or borne by the trailing wheels; as, a trailing truck; trailing weight. — trail'ing·ly, adv.

trail'ing, n. The act, habit, or practice, of one that trails; specif.: a A trailing branch or shoot; a runner. b A tracing or tracking, as that done by a detective.

trailing arbutus. See ARBUTUS, 2.

trailing azalea. The alpine azalea.

trailing begonia. A Javanese vine (Cissus discolor) frequently cultivated for its variegated leaves somewhat resembling those of a begonia.

trailing edge. Aeronautics. The rearmost edge of an airfoil or a propeller blade. Cf. LEADING EDGE.

trailing fire. = TREE CYPRESS.

trailing horn. Elec. = TRAILING POLE TIP.

trailing lantana. The weeping lantana.

trailing mahonia. = OREGON GRAPE.

trailing myrtle. = 2d PERIWINKLE, 1.

trailing pea. = GROUNDNUT, 2 a.

trail'ing-point' switch. A switch so set that the points are directed away from a passing train; — opp. to facing-point switch.

trailing pole tip. Elec. The edge of the pole piece of a dynamo or motor which the wires on the armature pass as they enter the gap; — called also trailing horn.

trailing sumac. The poison ivy Toxicodendron radicans.

trailing sweep. Physics. See SWEEP, n., 21.

trailing wheel. 1. Any hind wheel of a locomotive except one serving as driving wheel.

2. One of the hind wheels of a carriage.

trailing wild bean. A sprawling leguminous vine (Strophostyles helvola) of eastern North America, with trifoliolate leaves, purple flowers, and linear, nearly terete pods.

trailing yew. = GROUND HEMLOCK a.

Traill's flycatcher (trāl'z). [After T. S. Traill (1781–1862), Brit. encyclopedist.] The alder flycatcher.

trail net. A net trailed or drawn behind a boat.

trail plank. A plank support for the trail of a gun carriage.

trail plate. Ordn. The plate at the end of the trail of a gun carriage, terminating in the lunette.

trail rope. a Any rope used in trailing, as a towrope. b The long trailing rope attached to a spherical balloon, to serve as a brake and as a variable ballast.

trail sight. Mil. In the ballistics of bombs dropped from moving aircraft, the line of sight from an airplane to the point of impact of its bomb, at the instant of impact. See BALLISTICS OF BOMBS, Illust.

trails'man (trālz'mĕn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One who follows a trail.

trail spade. Ordn. A metal spur, prong, or plate, on the underside of a trail, that is driven into the ground by the recoil and acts as a brake. See FIELDPIECE, Illust.

trail spur. Ordn. = TRAIL SPADE.

trail'-wise' (trāl'wīz'), adj. See 2d -WISE. — n. One skilled in picking and following a trail.

trail'y (trāl'ĭ), adj. Slow; lazy; slovenly. N. of Eng.

train (trān), n. [From OF. traïn, trahin, F. train, and in some senses fr. OF. traïne, F. traine, both fr. OF. traïner to draw. See TRAIN, v.] 1. Obs. a A delaying; an extended time. b Of a horse, a course of running or racing; also, a kind of gait; a rack. c A bringing up; training. d = TRAIL, n., 5 c.

2. Something which trails or is trailed after or along. Specif.: a That part of a gown which trails behind the wearer; esp., an elongated piece falling from the shoulders or waistline of a state or formal robe and resting on or sweeping the floor except when carried by pages or attendants or in the wearer's hands. b Poetic. A tail; esp., the trailing tail feathers of a peacock, or the like. c A luminous trail, or tail, as of a meteor. d Something extended in length that trails, or crawls along, as a serpent, a stream, etc.

Draws his [the river Cam] humid train of mud. Gray.

3. A number of followers; a following; esp., a body of attendants; a retinue; suite; as, train of admirers.

4. A number of persons, animals, vehicles, etc., moving or seeming to move in a line or file; a procession; a company proceeding in order; as, a funeral train; a camel train.

5. Regular or proper succession or order; a condition of preparedness, readiness, etc.

To know that things were in train was an immense relief. Hardy.

6. Continuous or unbroken line or course of thoughts, actions, events, etc.; orderly sequence of something contextually implied; now, usually, a connected succession or series; a continuous line; a sequence; as a fortunate train of events changed the character of his life; to awaken an interesting train of thought.

7. A progression of consequent or attendant events, conditions, etc.; results or accompanying circumstances viewed as a set or sequence; as, prosperity came in the train of restored confidence; war brings many evils in its train.

8. A row; rank; file; line. Specif.: a A line of carrion pieces laid as a lure for game. b A line of gunpowder laid to lead fire to a charge.

9. A seine, or dragnet. D. Bib.

10. A heavy long sleigh used in Canada for the transportation of merchandise, wood, and the like.

11. Chem. A series of connected pieces of apparatus; as, a drying train.

12. Gun. The movement or line of direction of the axis of a piece in a horizontal plane.

13. Mach. A complete series of moving pieces, as wheels and pinions, for transmitting and modifying motion; as, the train of a watch (connecting the barrel with the escapement); a train of gearing.

14. Mil. a An organization of vehicles, men, and animals, accompanying a military body to transport its baggage, ammunition, supplies, and hospital, bridge, and reserve materials. See COMBAT TRAIN, FIELD TRAIN. b Rare. = TRAIL, n., 9 c.

15. Nav. The organization comprising the auxiliary vessels assigned to a fleet or force.

16. Physics. A succession of ethereal oscillations or disturbances; as, a wave train in radio system.

17. Railroads. A connected line of cars, etc., with or without a locomotive; specif., an engine or motorcar, with or without other engines or cars, displaying markers.

18. Rolling Mill. A roll train; as, a 12-inch train.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES (sense 17) are:

train caller	train inspector	train staff
train conductor	train-lighting, adj.	train starter train crew	train recorder	train stop train flagman	train reporter	train ticket
train foreman	train robber	traintime
train-giddy	train schedule	train trip
train hand	train service	train wrecker train indicator

train, adj. Of or pertaining to a train or trains.

train (trān), v.; TRAINED (trānd); TRAIN'ING. [ME. traynen, fr. OF. trahiner, traïner (F. traîner), fr. (assumed) VL. traginare, fr. root of L. trahere to draw, drag. See TRAIL; cf. 1st TRAIN.] Transitive: 1. To draw along; to trail; drag; also, to drawl. Now Rare.

2. Obs. a To drag out; protract. b To bring in its train. c To lead; conduct.

3. To follow the train or trail of; to trace; track. Obs.

4. To lead or direct (a plant, a branch, etc.) to, and shape against, a wall or espalier; to form by bending, pruning, etc.; as, to train young trees.

5. To form [by instruction, discipline, drill, etc.; to establish in a habit, or in good habits, by teaching or discipline; to educate; to rear; narrowly, to teach so as to be fitted, qualified, proficient, etc.; as, to train one's children, oneself, or one's dog; not trained for a profession; to train soldiers in the use of arms or of gas masks.

6. a To make physically or technically prepared for a test, a contest, etc., as by practice, exercise, dieting, etc.; as, to train a football team or a race horse. b To reduce or control by such exercise, dieting, etc.; — with down or off; as, to train off one's surplus weight.

7. To aim or point at an object; to bring to bear; as, to train guns on the enemy or a telescope on a star.

8. To drag or dredge; as, to train a river. Dial. Eng.

9. To carry in a train of cars, as grain. Colloq.

10. Mining. To trace, as a mineral appearance, to its source.

—, Intrans.: 1. To drag or trail, as a skirt. Now Rare.

2. To subject oneself or be subjected to a course of instruction or discipline; to undergo drilling, regular exercise, dieting, etc., in order to attain the desired proficiency, skill, or physical condition; as, to train for the baseball season.

3. To form habits or impart proficiency by teaching, drilling, etc.

4. Colloq. a U. S. To romp; to cut up; to carry on. b To associate; to be on familiar terms; as, to train with, or in, a fast set. c To travel by rail in a train; — often with it as an indefinite object; as, to train it to Boston.

Syn. — School, rehearse; discipline; direct, focus.

train down. To reduce one's weight by training, or dieting and exercise.

train off. a To get out of training; also, to become stale by training. b To drop off; to retire. c To swerve; — said of a projectile.

train on. To develop in skill, proficiency, etc., by training.

train (trān), n. [OF. traïne deceit, fr. traïr (F. trahir) to betray, fr. (assumed) VL. tradire, for L. tradere. See TRAITOR.] Obs. a Treachery; guile; trickery. b A stratagem; a scheme to deceive or betray; artifice; a lure. c A snare; a trap; also, bait or decoy for game. d Falconry. Something tied to a lure to entice a hawk.

train, v. t. To draw by persuasion; to win; esp., to attract by stratagem; to entice; allure. Cf. 3d TRAIN.

Training me on with hints, and signs, and smiles. Shelley.

— v. i. To be lured; to yield to enticement. Both Obs.

train, n. Train oil. Obs.

train'age (trān'ĭj), n. Progress or conveyance in a train or by train.

train'a·graph (trān'ȧ·grăf), n. [train + -graph.] An instrument for automatically recording events or operations, as the action of air brakes, for railroad trains.

‖ trai'nant' (trē'nän'), n. [F.] Fr. Hist. A farmer of the revenue.

‖ trai'nante' (-nänt'), adj. [F., fem. pres. part. of traîner to drag.] Dragging; hence, drawled; as, traînante tones.

train'band' (trān'bănd'), n. [For trained band.] Eng. Hist. One of the bands or companies of trained citizen soldiers raised and supported in the counties and London from the 16th century, having no regimental organization until the Commonwealth. All except those of London were discontinued by Charles II in 1662, but were revived and with the London bands developed into the militia.

train'bear'er (-bär'ĕr), n. 1. One whose duty is to hold up the train of a robe or gown, esp. in ceremonies.

2. A long-tailed Colombian hummingbird (Psalidophrynna victoriae).

train'bolt' (trān'bōlt'), n. Nav. A bolt to which the train tackle of a gun was fastened.

train'boy' (-boi'), n. A boy who sells newspapers, candy, etc., on railroad trains. U. S. & Canada.

train butcher. A trainboy.

train dispatcher. An official who gives the orders on a railroad as to the running of trains and their right of way. — train'-dis·patch'ing, adj.

trai'neau' (trē'nō'), n. [F.] A sledge or sleigh.

trained (trānd), adj. 1. Formed, shaped, disciplined, etc., by training; brought to proficiency or a desired condition through a course of training.

2. [From TRAIN, n.] Having a train; as, a trained dress.

trained nurse. Med. A nurse who has completed the requirements in an accredited school of nursing.

trai'nel (trā'nĕl), n. [OF. traînel (F. traîneau).] A dragnet. Obs.

train'er (trān'ĕr), n. 1. One who trains; esp., one who trains or prepares men, horses, etc., for exercises requiring physical agility and strength.

2. One who trains a gun; specif., U. S. Navy, one who regulates its direction in azimuth, as distinguished from the pointer, who regulates its elevation.

3. One of a trainband; U. S., a militiaman in training. Obs.

train'ful (-fōōl; -fĭl), n. A trainload; a train's complement of passengers or goods.

train guard. a A bodyguard. b A force in charge of a military train. c A railway guard.

train'ing (trān'ĭng), adj. 1. That trains; used in or for training; as, a training bit or halter; used by or adapted to the needs of those in training; as, a training camp, table, or diet; training quarters.

2. Providing technical or professional instruction usually with practice under supervision; as, a training school for nurses or actors; a training college for teachers.

train'ing, n. 1. Act, process or method of one who trains; the course followed by one who trains or submits to being trained; education; discipline; specif., systematic drill, exercise and diet under supervision; as, effective mental training; to undergo severe training.

2. The state of being trained, or educated, developed in strength or ability, proficient, or prepared for a test or a contest; as, he was in perfect training.

3. Hort. Operation or art of causing plants, vines, young trees, etc., to grow in a desired shape or direction. See FAN TRAINING, HORIZONTAL TRAINING.

Syn. — See EDUCATION.

training bank. = TRAINING WALL.

training day. A day on which a volunteer military company was called out for drill or parade according to law. Hist.

training level or pendulum. Ordn. A level or pendulum used in training guns. Rare.

training ship. A vessel on which boys are trained as sailors for the navy.

training table. A special eating place, or a table reserved in a regular eating place, for members of a group or squad in training for some athletic event, as in a college or university; as, the football training table.

training tackle. Ordn. = TRAIN TACKLE.

training wall. A wall, bank, or jetty, built to confine and direct the flow of a river or tide.

train jumper. One who steals rides on trains. Collog.

train legs. Power to walk steadily while passing through the aisle of a rapidly moving train. Slang.

train line. a Elec. Railways. A continuous electric control circuit used on electric trains of two or more motor-driven cars for controlling the motors on the rear cars from the master controller in the cab of the first car. b Railroads. = BRAKE PIPE. — train'-line' adj.

train'load' (trān'lōd'), n. As much as loads, or will load, a train; train capacity.

train'man (-măn), n. One of a train crew; esp., a brakeman or, on a passenger train, an employee subordinate to the conductor.

train'mas'ter (-mȧs'tĕr; 83), n. An official in charge of the trains operating in a division or subdivision of a railroad.

train'-mile', n. Railroads. One mile traversed by one train; — used as a unit of railroad operation in order to estimate economy in running expenses.

train mileage. Railroads. Train-miles collectively; the total of train-miles.

train of artillery. Mil. = ARTILLERY TRAIN.

train of rolls. = ROLL TRAIN.

train oil. [From earlier train, trayne, trane, fr. MLG. trān; akin to D. traan train oil, traan tear, G. träne.] Oil from the whale (esp. the right whale) or other marine animal. See OIL, Table II.

train pipe. = BRAKE PIPE.

train rope. = TRAIN TACKLE.

train shed. a That part of a railway station that covers the tracks. b A building to protect trains from the weather.

train sheet. Railroads. A plane surface divided with lines, in one direction representing hours and minutes, in the other direction miles, and having diagonals (usually movable strings) representing the speed and position of various trains.

train signal. Railroads. A signal conveyed from the cars of a train to the locomotive by some mechanical device.

train'ster (trān'stĕr), n. [See -STER.] A trainman.

train tackle. Ordn. Formerly, a tackle for training and running out guns, esp. on shipboard.

train'way' (trān'wā'), n. A platform which, hinged to a wharf, forms a bridge for the transfer of railroad cars, etc., to a barge, ferryboat, or steamer.

train'y (-ĭ), adj. Like train oil. Rare. Gay.

traipse, trapes (trāps), v. i. & t. [E. dial.; cf. dial. trape, D. & G. trappen to tread, tramp, and E. TRAMP.] Dial. a To walk; trudge. b To wander or flaunt about idly; to gad. — n. a A slattern. b A fatiguing walk; a long dusty or muddy tramp. c A gadabout.

trait (trāt; in British use commonly trā; 277), n. [F., fr. L. tractus a dragging, a stretch, extent, tract of land, fr. trahere to draw. See TRACE, v.; cf. TRACT region, TRACE strap, TREAT.] 1. A stroke of or as of a pencil or brush; hence, a touch; a note, as of sarcasm or humor.

By this single trait Homer makes an essential difference between the Iliad and Odyssey. Broome.

2. A facial line or feature; a lineament.

3. A distinguishing quality of character, mind, etc.; a distinctive definable characteristic; a mark of individuality; a peculiarity; as, a trait of character; French traits.

Syn. — See CHARACTERISTIC, n.

trait'-com'plex (trāt'kŏm'plĕks; trā'-), n. Anthropol. A group of functionally related traits in the culture of a people as distinguished from a single trait, as the complex including all the observances, property rights, and processes associated in the making and use of pottery.

‖ trai'teur' (trĕ'tûr'), n.; pl. TRAITEURS (-tûr'). [F.] The keeper of an eating house.

trai'tor (trā'tĕr), n. [ME. traitour, fr. OF. traître, traître, F. traître (fr. the OF. nom. traître, whence ME. treitre), fr. (assumed) VL. traditor (for L. traditor), fr. tradīre, for L. tradere, traditum, to deliver, to give up or surrender treacherously, to betray, fr. trans across, over + dare to give. See DATE time; cf. BETRAY, TRADITION, TRADITOR, TREASON.] One who betrays a confidence or trust; one who acts perfidiously or treacherously; specif., one who violates his allegiance and betrays his country; one who, in breach of trust, delivers his country to an enemy, or yields up any fort or place entrusted to his defense, or surrenders an army or body of troops to the enemy, unless when vanquished; also, one who takes arms and levies war against, or one who aids an enemy to conquer, his country. See TREASON.

trai'tor, v. t. & i. To act the traitor (toward); to betray. Obs.

trai'tor, adj. Traitorous.

trai'tor·ous (-ŭs), adj. [Cf. F. traîtreux.] 1. Guilty of, or ready to commit, treason; that is a traitor; treacherous; perfidious; faithless; as, a traitorous officer or subject.

2. Consisting in treason; of the nature of treason; implying breach of allegiance; as, a traitorous scheme.

Syn. and Ant. — See DISAFFECTED.

— trai'tor·ous·ly, adv. — trai'tor·ous·ness, n.

traj'ect (trăj'ĕkt), n. [L. trajectus, fr. trajicere; cf. F. trajet, traject. See TRAJECT, v.] 1. A place for passing across, esp. a body of water; a crossing route; ferry.

2. Act of passing across a river, a chasm, etc.; a crossing; passage; also, Rare, conveyance across; transportation.

3. A trajectory.

4. The projected line of a proposed railway or other route.

tra·ject' (trȧ·jĕkt'), v. t.; -JECT'ED; -JECT'ING. [L. trajectus, past part. of trajicere, traicere, to throw across, fr. trans + jacere to throw. See JET, v.] 1. Obs. a To cross over; to sail or ferry across. b To take or carry across.

2. To throw or cast through, over, or across; to transmit by projecting or impelling through or as through space or a different medium; as, to traject sunlight through cross prisms.

tra·jec'tile (trȧ·jĕk'tĭl; 155), adj. [Cf. F. trajectile.] Of, capable of, or marked by, trajection. — n. Something trajected, or impelled, through space.

tra·jec'tion (-shŭn), n. [L. trajectio a crossing over, transposition.] 1. Act of trajecting, or, esp., of transmitting through space or some medium; the fact of being trajected or an instance of such.

2. A mental projection; a sharp image. Rare.

3. Gram. & Rhet. Transposition.

traj'ec·ti'tious (trăj'ĕk·tĭsh'ŭs), adj. Oversea. Rare.

tra·jec'to·ry (trȧ·jĕk'tō·rĭ), adj. [ML. trajectorius; cf. F. trajectoire.] Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, a trajectory.

tra·jec'to·ry, n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). 1. The curve which a body describes in space, as a planet or comet in its orbit, or a projectile in passing from the muzzle to the first point of impact.

2. Loosely: a The height above the sight line attainable by a bullet shot from a gun; — used by manufacturers. b A fixed orbit; a conventional course or development.

3. Dynamics. A curve in n-dimensional space whose various points have as co-ordinates the values of the generalized co-ordinates of the dynamical system at various instants, it being supposed that the system has n generalized co-ordinates.

4. Geom. a A curve (or surface) that cuts all the curves (or surfaces) of a given system at the same angle. If this is a right angle, the trajectory is said to be orthogonal. b An integral curve of a system of first-order differential equations.

tra'jet' (trā'zhĕ'; trăj'ĭt), n. [F.] Traject; passage; course; route; way.

tra'-la-la' (trā'lä·läȧ'), n. & interj. A succession of musical or vocal sounds in rising rhythm expressing gaiety, light-heartedness, or sometimes, playful derision.

tral'a·ti'tion (trăl'ȧ·tĭsh'ŭn), n. [See TRALATITIOUS.] Metaphor.

tral'a·ti'tious (-ŭs), adj. [L. tralatitius, tralaticius. See TRALATION.] 1. Having or manifesting a character, force, significance, etc., transferred from something extraneous; specif., metaphorical; figurative; as, the primary and tralatitious meanings of a word.

2. Passed along as from hand to hand, mouth to mouth, or from generation to generation; handed down; transmitted, as the portion of the edict of a Roman praetor derived by him from his predecessor (see EDICT, 1).

Among Biblical critics a tralatitious interpretation is one received by expositor from expositor. W. Withington.

— tral'a·ti'tious·ly, adv.

tra'li·ra' (trā'lĭ·rä'), n. & interj. = TRA-LA-LA.

Tral'les al'co·hol·om'e·ter or hy·drom'e·ter (trăl'ĕz). [After J. G. Tralles (1763–1822), Ger. physicist.] An alcoholometer graduated, like that of Gay-Lussac, so as to indicate percentages by volume, but at 15.6°C. (60°F.).

Tral'li·an (trăl'ĭ·ăn; -yăn), adj. Of or pertaining to the ancient Greek Tralles, in Asia Minor, or its people.

Tral'li·an, n. [L. Trallianus.] One of the people of Tralles.

tram (trăm), n. Also trame. [F. trame, fr. L. trama.]

1. A stratagem. Obs.

2. A silk thread formed of two or more threads twisted together, used esp. for the weft, or cross threads, of the best velvets and silks.

tram (trăm), n. [E. dial. tram a coal wagon, the shaft of a cart or carriage, a beam or bar, of LG. origin; cf. LG. traam beam, handle of a barrow, MLG. träme, treme; beam, rung, bar; akin to ON. thrömr edge. See 1st THRUM, cf. TRAMWAY.] 1. Dial. a Scot. & N. of Eng. A shaft of a vehicle. b Scot. Leg; limb. c Local, Eng. A bench for supporting dairy tubs, etc.

2. Any of various vehicles; specif.: a A boxlike wagon, often of steel, running on a tramway or railway, as in a mine or logging camp, for conveying coal, ore, or logs. b Brit. A passenger car of a street railway; a tramcar. c A carrier that travels on an overhead cable or rails.

3. a pl. A tramline or tramlines. b A tramway rail. c Short for TRAMWAY, TRAMROAD, etc.

☞ COMBINATIONS AND PHRASES are:

tram-borne	tram load	tramsmith
tram greaser	tramman	tram-traveling, adj.
tram guard	tram shed	tramyard tram, v. i. Brit. a To travel in a tramcar; — often tram it. b To operate a tram or a tramway system. — v. t. To haul, as coal, in a tram, or (lumber) over a tramway.

tram, n. 1. Short for TRAMMEL, n., 6 c.

2. Mach. Correct relative position or adjustment; — in the phrases in tram, out of tram.

tram, v. t. & i.; TRAMMED (trăm̄d); TRAM'MING. Mach. To measure, lay off, align, or adjust, with a trammel.

tra'ma (trā'mȧ), n. [L., woof.] Bot. In certain fungi (class Basidiomycetes), the loosely woven hyphal tissue forming the central substance of the lamellae or other projections of the hymenophore. — tra'mal (trā'mȧl), adj.

tram'car' (trăm'kär'), n. A tram running on gauged rails, as on a streetcar line (Brit.), or in a mine.

tram crane. A crane consisting of a short bridge without a trolley, traveling on overhead rails.

Tra·me'tes (trȧ·mē'tēz), n. [NL. See TRAMA.] Bot. A genus of pore fungi (family Polyporaceae), having pileate sporophores with the substance extending between the tubes. T. pini causes a common heart rot of conifers.

tram'ful (trăm'fōōl; -fĭl), n. The quantity or number that a tram holds or will hold.

tram'line' (-līn'), n. A streetcar line. Brit.

tram'mel (trăm'ĕl; -l), n. [OF. tramail (F. trémail), fr. LL. tremaculum a kind of net for taking fish, fr. L. tres three + macula a mesh. See THREE; MAIL armor.] 1. A kind of net to catch birds, fishes, etc., as: a An anchored gill net. b Usually trammel net. A rectangular net of three layers, the middle one slack and of fine mesh, the outer ones stretched and of coarse mesh, so arranged that fish attempting to pass in either direction carry some of the fine net through the coarse and are thus pocketed.

Trammels, 4, 18th century.

2. A kind of shackle used for regulating the motions of a horse and making him amble.

3. Often pl. Hence, something impeding activity, progress, or freedom, as a net or shackle; restraint; check.

[They] disdain the trammels of any sordid contract. Jeffrey.

4. An adjustable pothook for the fireplace crane.

5. pl. Braids or plaitings of a woman's hair; also, locks; tresses. Obs.

6. Mach. a An instrument for drawing ellipses, one part of which is essentially a cross with two grooves at right angles to each other, the other being a beam carrying two pins (which slide in those grooves) and also the describing pencil; hence, any of various mechanical devices for drawing ellipses; an ellipsograph. b A beam compass; — sometimes called pair of trammels. See COMPASS, 8. Hence, sometimes, a trammelhead. c Any of various gauges used for aligning or adjusting machine parts, etc.; — more often called tram.

Trammel, 6 a.

tram'mel, v. t.; -MELED (-ĕld; -ld) or -MELLED; -MEL·ING or -MEL·LING. 1. Obs. a To tie up (a cered corpse). b To catch in a trammel or trammel net. c To attach trammels (sense 2) to; to shackle.

2. To hold as in a net; to tie or fasten securely; to intercept; — with up.

If the assassination could trammel up the consequences. Shak.

3. To impose restraints upon; to prevent or impede the free play or exercise of; hamper; confine.

These observances, by trammeling his every act, annihilate his freedom. J. G. Fraser.

Trammels, 6 c.
Fig. 1. a, b Trammels or Trams used in aligning the Spindles of a Lathe. Fig. 2. c Trammel or Tram used in setting out a Flywheel Rim.

Syn. and Ant. — See HAMPER.

---

train'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
train-ee' (trān-ē'), n. See -EE. train'less, adj. See -LESS. train'ment, n. Training. Obs. train'sick', adj. = CARSICK. — train sickness.
trai'soun. † TREASON. traist, v. t. & i. [ON. treysta to trust to. See TRUST.] To trust. Obs. traist, adj. [Cf. TRAIST, v.] Obs. a Secure. b Confident. c Trusty. traist, n. [See TRAIST, v.] Obs. a Trust. b A trustworthy person. c A trist.
trait. † TREAT.
trait'less, adj. See -LESS.
trai'tor-ess. Var. of TRAITRESS. trai'tor·ful, adj. Traitorous. Obs. trai'tor·hood, n. See -HOOD. trai'tor·ism, n. See -ISM. trai'tor·ize, v. i. See -IZE. Rare. trai'tor·like', adj. & adv. See -LIKE. trai'tor·ling, n. See -LING. trai'tor·ly, adj. Traitorous. Obs. — adv. Traitorously. Obs. trai'tor·ship, n. See -SHIP. trai'tor·wise', adv. See -WISE. trai'tor·y, n. Treachery. Obs. trai'tress (trā'trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n. Fem. of TRAITOR. [TRAVEL.] trai'vel (trăv'l). Scot. var. of Tra'jan, Fo'rum of (trā'jăn). See FORUM.
Tra'jan's Arch (-jănz). See MEMORIAL ARCH. trake. Var. of TRAIK. tral'a·ti'cian (trăl'ȧ·tĭsh'ăn), adj. = TRALATITIOUS. Rare. tral'a·ti'ci·ar'y (-ĭ·ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), tra·la'tion (trȧ·lā'shŭn), n. [L. tralatio, translatio. See TRANSLATION.] Use of a word in a figurative sense; metaphor. Obs. tralc. Var. of TRAIL. Obs. exc. Dial. tra·lin'e·ate (trȧ·lĭn'ē·āt), v. i. [It. tralineare, tralignare.] To deviate; esp., to degenerate. Obs. tral'lop (trăl'ŭp). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TROLLOP. tra·lu'cent (trȧ·lū'sĕnt), adj. [L. tralucens, translucens, pres. part.] Translucent. Obs. — tra·lu'cence (-sĕns), tra·lu'cen·cy (-sĕn·sĭ), n. Obs. tra·lu'cid, adj. [L. tralucidus, translucidus.] Translucent. Obs. tram'less, adj. See -LESS.

---

tram'meled, tram'melled (trăm'ĕld; -ld), adj. 1. Confined in or held by a trammel or trammels; braided, as hair; shackled, as a horse; netted, as a fish; fettered or hampered, as a person or his mind.
2. Of a horse, having white marks on the forefoot and hind foot of one side, as if made by a trammel (sense 2).

tram'mel-er, tram'mel-ler (-ĕl-ĕr; -'l-ĕr), n. One that trammels; esp., one who fishes or fowls with a trammel net.

tram'mel-head' (-hĕd'), n. Either of the sliding parts on the beam of a beam compass. See 1st COMPASS, 7.

tram'mel-ing, tram'mel-ling (-ĭng), adj. That trammels. — tram'mel-ing-ly, tram'mel-ling-ly, adv.

trammel net. = TRAMMEL, n., 1.

trammel wheel. Mach. A device consisting of a wheel having two or more diametrical slots (or of an equivalent arrangement) in which gear two or more connected sliding blocks, each moving in its own slot, used esp. for converting reciprocating into rotary motion, or vice versa. Called also slosh wheel. Cf. OLDHAM COUPLING.

Trammel Wheel.

tram'mer (trăm'ĕr), n. A textile thrower who tends a frame on which silk is twisted into tram.

tram'mer, n. One who or that which trams; specif., Mining, one who trams coal, ore, waste rock, etc.

tram'ming (-ĭng), n. Silk Mfg. Act or process of forming trams.

tram'mon (trăm'ŭn), n. [Manx tramman.] The elder tree. Isle of Man.

‖tra'mon·ta'na (trä'mŏn·tä'nä), n.; pl. TRAMONTANE (-nā). [It.] 1. A tramontane.
2. The north wind, esp. a dry, cold, violent, northerly wind of the Adriatic.

tra·mon'tane (trə·mŏn'tān; trăm'ŏn·tān), adj. [It. tramontano, fr. L. transmontanus, fr. trans across, beyond + mons, montis, mountain.] Lying or being beyond the mountains; coming from the other side of the mountains; narrowly, transalpine. Specif., as influenced by Italian usage or point of view: a Of or characteristic of the countries north of the Alps, as France and Germany; — applied esp. to ecclesiastics, jurists, painters, etc. b Now Rare. Foreign; outlandish; barbarous. c Of a wind, coming from the north beyond the Alps. See TRAMONTANA, 2.

tra·mon'tane, n. 1. The North Star; the polestar. Obs.
2. One dwelling in a tramontane region. Specif.: a An inhabitant of a country north of the Alps. b A foreigner; a stranger; a boor.
3. = TRAMONTANA, 2.

tramp (trămp), v.; TRAMPED (trămpt); TRAMP'ING. [ME. trampen; akin to MLG. trampen, G. trampeln, MLG. & D. trappen, Goth. anatrimpan to press upon, also to D. trap a step, G. treppe steps, stairs, and ult. to E. TREAD. Cf. TRAMPLE, TRAP rock, TRAP snare, TRAPE, TRIP.] Intransitive: 1. To walk, step, or tread, esp. heavily; as, to tramp through a house or on someone's toes.
2. To travel about on foot; to hike; also, to journey as a tramp; — often tramp it.
3. To travel on a tramp steamer. Rare.
—, Transitive: 1. To tread on forcibly and repeatedly; to trample, so as to bruise, press down, etc.; as, to tramp grapes for wine; to tramp down loose soil.
2. To tread down in water, as clothes in washing. Scot.
3. To travel or wander through on foot; to hike or trudge through or along; as, to tramp the Maine woods. Colloq.
4. To affect in a specified or implied manner by walking or stamping vigorously; as, to tramp the chill out of one's joints.
5. To crush by riding or driving over; to run over; as, the ox was tramped by the railway train. S. Africa.
6. To run (a vessel) as a tramp. Rare.

tramp, n. 1. A foot traveler; a tramper; often, in a bad sense, a begging or thieving vagrant; esp., a lazy good-for-nothing beggar or sponger who will not work, but who travels about. Cf. 4th BUM, b (2); HOBO.
2. A journey on foot; a walking trip; a hike; as, to go on a tramp; a long tramp.
3. The act of tramping, or treading, stamping, or stepping, heavily upon; also, mark or marks so produced.
4. The succession of sounds made by the beating of feet of marchers or heavy walkers on a pavement, floor, etc.; as, to hear the tramp of the approaching policeman.
5. A plate of iron worn to protect the sole of the foot, or the shoe, when digging with a spade; also, the part of the spade against which the foot is forced in digging.
6. Curling. a A spiked piece of iron worn on the shoe to prevent slipping. b Cramp (def. 4).
7. Naut. A vessel not making regular trips between the same ports, but taking a cargo when and where it offers and to any port; — applied almost exclusively to steamers.

tramp, adj. Tramping; vagrant; without a fixed abode, connection, or destination; as, a tramp printer.
A tramp and vagrant world, adrift in space. Wm. James.

tramp, n. Temper, esp. of steel. Obs.

tramp'cock' (trămp'kŏk'), n. A small stack of hay in the field. Scot.

tramp'er (trămp'ĕr), n. 1. One who tramps; a vagrant; also, a heavy walker; sometimes, one who takes long walks for pleasure, exercise, etc.; a hiker.
2. pl. The feet; also, heavy boots. Chiefly Scot.
3. Agric. Mach. An attachment for a cotton press for compacting the cotton before baling.

tram plate. A flat iron plate used as a rail or runway for trams, esp. one with an outer flange. Cf. RAIL PLATE.

tram'ple (trăm'p'l), v.; TRAM'PLED (-p'ld); TRAM'PLING (-plĭng). [ME. trampelen, freq. of trampen. See TRAMP, v.] Intransitive: 1. To tramp; specif., to tread heavily so as to bruise, crush, or injure; also, esp. with reference to persons, their powers, rights, etc., to inflict injury or destruction or to make encroachments in a contemptuous or ruthless fashion; — with on or upon; as, to trample on a flower bed or upon one's feelings.
So the spirit tramples on the desires of the flesh. G. A. Birmingham.
2. To serve as a go-between. See TRAMPLER, 2. Rare.
3. To move with a motion or sound likened to treading or stamping; as, the trampling of the surf.
—, Transitive: 1. To tramp; now usually, to tread underfoot; to press down in walking or by stamping upon; to crush or injure by or as if by treading.
What golden grain we trample low Searching for flowers that never grow! Mary Mapes Dodge.
2. To make by trampling, or treading; as, to trample a hole in a frock; also, to put (out) by stamping with the feet; as, to trample out a grass fire.

tram'ple (trăm'p'l), n. Act or sound of trampling; a heavy and repeated tread of or as of many feet.

tram'pler (trăm'plĕr), n. 1. One who tramples.
2. An intermediary; solicitor; lawyer. Obs.

tram'po·lin, -line (trăm'pō·lĭn), n. [It. trampoli stilts.] a An exhibition or performance in which the actors or participants are on stilts. b U. S. In vaudeville, a mat or netted frame used by acrobats in their performance. — v. i. To walk on, or as on, stilts.

tram·poose' (trăm·pōōs'), v. i. & n. Tramp. Slang, U. S.

‖tram·po'so (trăm·pō'sō), n. & adj. [Sp.] Swindler; trickster; cardsharp.

tram'pot' (trăm'pŏt'), n. Milling. The step supporting the lower end of a millstone spindle.

tramp pick. A narrow pointed spade for breaking up hard soil.

tramp ship or steamer. = 2d TRAMP, 7.

tram rail. A rail for a tram or trams; specif.: a In early usage, a rail of tram plates, as distinguished from the later edge rail. b Mach. An overhead rail on which a trolley runs to convey a load, as in a shop.

tram'road' (trăm'rōd'), n. [tram a coal wagon + road.] A road made for trams or wagons, by forming the wheel tracks of beams of wood (usually having a metal face), blocks of stone, tram plates, or rails; esp., a railway in a mine.

tram rod or staff. Mech. A kind of tram or trammel, usually a straightedge, or a pointed steel rod, sometimes bent at one end, used in adjusting, lining up, etc.

tram'way' (trăm'wā'), n. A way for trams; as: a A tramroad. b Eng. A streetcar line. c An overhead tram rail; also, a ropeway. d A light or temporary logging railroad, often with wooden rails and operated by horsepower.

tram'way'man (-măn), n.; pl. TRAMWAYMEN (-mĕn). An employee of a streetcar line. Brit.

trance (tràns; 83), v.; TRANCED (tránst); TRANC'ING (trăn'sĭng). Now Poetic. Intrans.: 1. Obs. a To pass from life; die. b To lose consciousness; to swoon. c To be in great suspense or benumbing fear.
2. To entrance or enrapture.
—, Transitive: 1. To hold benumbed, immobile, or unnaturally still.
A dead, hot silence tranced sea, land, and sky. R. H. Horne.
2. To throw into ecstasy or rapture; to hold in or as in a trance; to make spellbound; enrapture; entrance.
Ever the fiery Pentecost . . .
Trances the heart through chanting choirs. Emerson.

trance (tràns; 83), n. [ME. tra(u)nce, fr. OF. transe fear, trance, swoon, fr. transir to pass (usually from life), fr. L. transire to pass over. See TRANSIENT; cf. TRANSIT, TROUNCE.] 1. A state of suspense or uncertainty; now usually, a state of partly suspended animation or of inability to function; a daze; a stupor.
The sleeping trade laws revive from their trance. Burke.
2. A state of profound abstraction of mind or spirit, as in religious contemplation; rapture that destroys one's consciousness of surroundings; ecstasy.
He fell into a trance, and saw heaven opened. Acts x. 10, 11.
3. A sleeplike state such as that of deep hypnosis, appearing also in hysteria and in some spiritualistic mediums, with limited sensory and motor contact with the surroundings, and with subsequent amnesia of what has occurred during the state.

trance (tràns), v. t. & i. To pass or travel over; to move briskly; prance; tramp. Now Dial.

trance, n. A trancing, or traveling; a prance; a tramp. Dial.

trance (tràns), n. [Origin uncert.; cf. TRANS-, TRANSIT.] A passage or passageway, as a hall, entry, or alley. Scot.

trance, n. Peril. Obs.

tranced (tránst), adj. Held in or as in a trance; entranced; enraptured; intensely still; immobile; as, to listen with tranced attention. — tranced'ly, adv.
That air, tranced with sunlight and silence. Anne D. Sedgwick.

‖tran'chant' (trăn'shăn'), fem. tran'chante' (-shănt'), adj. [F.] Trenchant; cutting; sharp.

‖tranche (trănsh), n. [F.] Slice; section; portion; — esp. in the phrase une tranche de vie (ün trănsh' dĕ vē'), a cross section of life, first used by the dramatist Jean Jullien and applied by the naturalistic school to their own work.

tranche'fer' (trănsh'fâr'), n. [F.] Literally, cuts iron; — a name for a sword. Rare.

tran'chet' (trăn'shĕ'), n. [F.] A chisel-shaped flint implement peculiar to neolithic times.

tran'choir' (trăn'shwär'), n. [F.] A trencher.

tra·neen' (thrä·nēn'), n. [Ir. trāithnīn a little stalk of grass, the herb bennet.] Anglo-Ir. 1. Dog's-tail grass.
2. A blade of grass; a trifle; bit. Cf. RUSH, n., 2.

Tra'ni·o (trä'nē·ō; trā'nĭ·ō), n. A servant in The Taming of the Shrew.

trank (trăngk), n. [Cf. F. tranche something cut.] An oblong piece of skin from which glove shapes are cut; also, a shape cut from it. See GLOVE.

tran'ka (trăng'kä), n. [Tibetan ṭaṅka, fr. Skr. ṭaṅka.] = TANGA b.

trank'er (trăngk'ĕr), n. One who cuts out tranks for gloves.

tran'ky (trăng'kĭ), n. [Per. trānki.] An undecked bark used in the Persian Gulf.

tran'quil (trăng'kwĭl; trăn'-; 177), adj.; TRAN'QUIL·ER, TRAN'QUIL·LER (-ĕr); TRAN'QUIL·EST, TRAN'QUIL·LEST. [L. tranquillus, fr. trans + a word akin to quies calm, rest. See TRANS-, 1 b; QUIET.] Quiet; calm; undisturbed; not agitated; as, a tranquil lake; a tranquil life, mind.
Syn. and Ant. — See CALM.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
tranquil-acting, tranquil-looking, tranquil-minded.

tran'quil·i·za'tion, tran'quil·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-shŭn), n. A tranquilizing; state of being tranquilized.

tran'quil·ize, tran'quil·lize (trăng'kwĭl·īz), v. t.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). [Cf. F. tranquilliser.] To render tranquil; to allay the agitation of or in; to make calm and peaceful; as, to tranquilize a rebellious population or the mind. — v. i. To become tranquil; now usually, to have a calming or soothing effect; as, music that tranquilizes.
Syn. — Pacify, appease, soothe; calm, quiet, compose, still.
Ant. — See DISTURB, EXCITE, IRRITATE.

tran'quil·iz'er, tran'quil·liz'er (-īz'ĕr), n. One who or that which tranquilizes.

tran'quil·iz'ing, tran'quil·liz'ing (-ĭng), adj. That tranquilizes; soothing; calming; pacifying. — -ing·ly, adv.

tran·quil'li·ty, tran·quil'i·ty (trăn·kwĭl'ĭ·tĭ; trăng-), n. [OF. tranquillité, fr. L. tranquillitas.] Quality or state of being tranquil; calmness; composure; peace; lack of agitation.

‖tran·quil'lo (trăng·kwĕl'lō), adj. [It.] Music. Tranquil: quiet; — a direction.

trans- (trăns-; before a voiced sound often trănz-; 83). [L. trans across, over; akin to (prob. pres. part. of) L. -trare, in intrare to enter, and to Skr. tiras through, over, tarati he crosses over, passes through. See TERM; cf. ENTER, THROUGH, TRANCE, TRANQUIL, TRANSOM.] A prefix used mostly in words from the Latin. See CIS-, ULTRA-. Trans- sometimes appears shortened to tra-, as in traverse, tradition, and usually drops s before a word beginning in s, as in transude, transubstantiate. Trans- is used to signify: 1. a Over, across, beyond, through, chiefly in expressing relations of place, as in transpose, transfer, transcend, translucent; also, rarely (and in such cases generally compounded with English words), expressing the idea of change of one thing or quality over into another, as in transdialect, to translate from one dialect to another, transfeminate. b On or to the other side of; — with adjectives and nouns of place, and opp. to cis-. These compounds are generally printed as solid words, some of them being derived from Latin compounds, as in transalpine, transatlantic, transpadane; some, however, are also or usually written with the hyphen, and the second element capitalized, as in the list below. The meanings of the following can be understood from the definitions of the words with which trans- is combined. (For nouns, see Gaz.) trans-Acherontic	trans-Caspian	trans-Libyan trans-Adriatic	trans-Congo	trans-Manchurian trans-African	trans-Cordilleran	trans-Mediterranean trans-Algerian	trans-Danubian	trans-Mersey trans-Alleghenian	trans-Egyptian	trans-Mississippi trans-Altaian	trans-Euphratean	trans-Mississippian trans-American	trans-Euphrates	trans-Mongolian trans-Andean	trans-Euphratic	trans-Niger trans-Andine	trans-Eurasian	trans-Paraguayan trans-Antarctic	trans-Gangetic	trans-Persian trans-Apennine	trans-Germanic	trans-Pyrenean trans-Arabian	trans-Grampian	trans-Rhenish trans-Asiatic	trans-Himalayan	trans-Sahara trans-Australian	trans-Hispanic	trans-Saharan trans-Austrian	trans-Iberian	trans-Severn trans-Balkan	trans-Indus	trans-Siberian trans-Baltic	trans-Iraq	trans-Tiberine trans-Canadian	trans-Jordan	trans-Volga trans-Carpathian	trans-Kei	trans-Zambezian

c Completeness of change, through, through and through, as in transform, transfigure. d Transcending; surpassing; as in transhuman, transmundane.
2. In some scientific terms trans- has the meaning of across, transversely, as in transfrontal, across the frontal lobe (of the brain), transprocess, a transverse process, or diapophysis, of a vertebra, etc.
3. Chem. Having certain atoms or groups on opposite sides of the molecule. See CIS-TRANS ISOMERISM.

trans·ac'ci·den·ta'tion (trăns·ăk'sĭ·dĕn·tā'shŭn), n. [ML. transaccidentatio.] A medieval theory that the accidents of bread and wine were changed in their consecration. Cf. TRANSUBSTANTIATION.

trans·act' (trăns·ăkt'; trăn·zăkt'; 277), v.; -ACT'ED; -ACT'-ING. [L. transactus, past part. of transigere. See TRANSACTION.] Intransitive: 1. To prosecute negotiations; to carry on business; to have dealings; as, unwilling to transact with the enemy.
2. To make a transaction (sense 4); to compromise, esp. by compliance or concession in a matter of principle.
—, Trans.: 1. To carry through; to bring about; to perform; more narrowly, to carry on, or conduct, as business; as, he transacted the negotiations efficiently.
Of aught transacted there in bay or creek. Wordsworth.
2. Now Rare. a To pass back and forth as in negotiations or trade; to bargain or dicker about. b To transfer; to turn over, as for settlement.
3. To bring into actuality or real existence.
No nobler heroism . . . transacted itself on this earth. Carlyle.
4. Rom. & Civil Law. To make a transaction (sense 4) of.

trans·act', n. A transaction. Now Dial.

trans·act', Rare past part. of TRANSACT.

trans·ac'tion (trăns·ăk'shŭn; trăn·zăk'-), n. [L. transactio, fr. transigere, transactum, to drive through, carry through, accomplish, transact, fr. trans across, over + agere to drive; cf. F. transaction. See ACT, AGENT; cf. INTRANSIGENT.] 1. The act or process of transacting, or an instance of such; as, averse to the transaction of business at this time.
2. That which is transacted or in the process of being transacted. Specif.: a A business deal; an act involving buying and selling; as, the transactions on the exchange. b pl. The records, esp. the published records, of action taken, addresses read, etc., at the meeting or meetings of a society or association; proceedings. Some societies restrict the term transactions to the published addresses, and proceedings to the published record of the business done.
3. Philos. An action or activity involving two parties or two things mutually affecting or reciprocally influencing one another.
4. Roman & Civil Law. An adjustment or compromise of a disputed claim between parties by mutual agreement.
Syn. — Proceeding, action; performance, discharge.

trans·ac'tion·al (-ăl), adj. Of the nature of, or involving, a transaction; specif., transacted, or realized in actuality. See TRANSACT, v. t., 3. — trans·ac'tion·al·ly, adv.

trans·ac'tor (-tĕr), n. [L.] One who transacts anything trans·al'pine (trăns·ăl'pĭn; -pīn), adj. [L. transalpinus, fr. trans across, beyond + Alpinus Alpine, fr. Alpes the Alps.]

1. Being on the farther side of the Alps, usually from the point of view of Rome, sometimes from that of England or Northern Europe; also, of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, the region or the peoples beyond the Alps; tramontane; ultramontane (esp. in sense b); as, transalpine Gaul, prelates, or gardens; — opposed to cisalpine.
2. Crossing the Alps. Rare.

trans·al'pine, n. A native or inhabitant of a transalpine country.

trans·an'i·mate (trăns·ăn'ĭ·māt), v. t. & i. To transfer or animate by metempsychosis. Rare. — trans·an'i·ma'tion (-mā'shŭn), n. Rare.

trans·an'nu·lar (-ăn'ū·lĕr), adj. [trans- + annular.] Org. Chem. Designating a kind of tautomerism characterized by migration (as of a hydrogen atom) across a ring.

trans·ap'i·cal (-ăp'ĭ·kăl; -ā'pĭ·kăl), adj. At right angles to the apical axis or plane.

tram'mel·et, n. [Dim. of trammel.] A tress of hair. Obs.

tra·moun'tain. † TRAMONTANE.

tramp'age (trămp'ĭj), n. See -AGE c. tramp'dom, n. See -DOM.

tramp'ess, n. Fem. of TRAMP.

tramp'hood, n. See -HOOD.

tramp'ish, adj. See -ISH b. — tramp'ish·ly, adv.

tramp'ism, n. See -ISM.

tram'pl. Trample. Ref. Sp.

tram'pld. Trampled. Ref. Sp.

tramp'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tram'po·line (trăm'pō·lĭn), n = TRAMPLIN.

trampt. Tramped. Ref. Sp.

tra·na'tion (trə·nā'shŭn), n. [L. tranare, transnare, to swim over, fr. trans across + nare to swim.] Act of swimming across; also, transformation. Obs.

trance'ful, adj. See -FUL.

trance'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tran·col'dal (trăng·koĭ'dăl), adj. [trance + -oidal.] = TRANCELIKE.

tran'gam (trăng'găm), n. [Origin uncert. Cf. TANGRAM.] Something intricate, as a puzzle; also, a gimcrack; gewgaw. Obs.

tran'kum (trăng'kŭm), n. = 1st TRINKET. Scott.

tran'quil·ise, tran'quil·lise, v. t. & i. Var. of TRANQUILIZE.

tran'quil·lous (trăng'kwĭ·lŭs), adj. Tranquil. Obs.

tran'quil·ly, adv. of TRANQUIL.

tran'quil·ness, n. See -NESS.

trans·ac'tion·eer', n. See -EER.

trans·al'pin. Transalpine. R. S.

trans·al'pine·ly, adv. of TRANSALPINE, adj.

trans·al'pin·er (trăns·ăl'pĭn·ĕr), n. = TRANSALPINE. Rare.

trans'ap·pa·lach'i·an, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b.

trans'a·quat'ic, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. trans'at·lan'tic (trănz'ăt·lăn'tĭk), adj. [trans- + Atlantic, cf. F. transatlantique.] 1. Lying, being, or belonging, to a country or the countries beyond the Atlantic Ocean or their inhabitants; in European use, American; as, transatlantic cities, customs, or idioms.

2. Crossing, or extending across, the Atlantic Ocean; as, transatlantic ships or cables.
— trans'at·lan'ti·cal·ly, adv.

trans'at·lan'tic, n. A transatlantic person or thing; hence [often cap.], in European use, an American. — trans'at·lan'ti·can (-tĭ·kăn), n. — trans'at·lan'ti·cism (-sĭz'm), n.

trans·au'di·ent (trănz·ô'dĭ·ĕnt), adj. [See TRANS-; AUDIENT.] Permitting the passage of sound. Rare.

trans'bai·kal' (trănz'bī·kăl'), trans'bai·kal'i·an (-ĭ·ăn), adj. Pertaining to the part of Siberia east of Lake Baikal.

trans·board' (trănz·bôrd'; 181), v. t. To tranship. Rare.

trans·bor'der (-bôr'dĕr), adj. Situated or living beyond the border or frontier; — chiefly of Asiatic regions or tribes.

trans·ca'lent (-kā'lĕnt), adj. [trans- + L. calens, pres. part. of calere to grow warm.] Pervious to, or permitting the passage of, heat. — trans·ca'len·cy (-lĕn·sĭ), n.

trans'ca·les'cent (trănz'kă·lĕs'ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [trans- + L. calescens, pres. part., growing warm.] Transcalent. Rare. — trans'ca·les'cen·cy (-ĕn·sĭ; -'n·sĭ), n. Rare.

Trans'cau·ca'sian (-kô·kā'shăn; -zhăn; -kăsh'ăn; -kăzh'-ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Transcaucasia. — n. One of the people of Transcaucasia.

tran·scend' (trăn·sĕnd'), v.; -SCEND'ED; -SCEND'ING. [L. transcendere, transcensum, fr. trans beyond, over + scandere to climb; cf. OF. transcender. See SCAN.] Transitive: 1. To cross over; to climb over; also, to ascend to, into, or beyond; mount. Obs.
2. To rise above or beyond the limits or powers of; to overpass; to exceed; as, it transcends one's comprehension or capacity; he transcended his instructions in his zeal.
Thou, colossal Jupiter, . . . Transcendeth human dream. K. L. Bates.
3. To surpass (in some quality, way, etc.); to be far superior to; excel; outstrip; as, this instrument transcends its competitor in power; books that transcend all others in interest.
4. To cause to ascend; to elevate; raise. Rare.
5. Philos. To go or lie beyond the limits of (experience, knowledge, etc.); to escape inclusion in (a category, classification, etc.). "We transcend actual experience in terms of possible experience." C. I. Lewis.
6. Theol. To be transcendent to (the created universe); — of the Supreme Being. See TRANSCENDENCE, n.
——, Intransitive: 1. To climb; mount; go beyond. Obs.
2. To be transcendent; to excel.
Syn. — See EXCEED. Ant. — Fall short of.

tran·scend'ence (-sĕn'dĕns), n. [ML. transcendentia.]
1. The act or fact of transcending; an instance of transcending; also, the quality or state of being transcendent.
2. An exceeding of truth or reality; hyperbole. Now Rare.
3. The state of transcending the world of sense, as in mystical experience.
4. Math. The quality or property of being transcendental.
5. Theol. The relation of God to the universe of physical things and finite spirits, as being, in his essential nature, prior to it, exalted above it, and having real being apart from it; — opp. to immanence. See THEISM.

tran·scend'en·cy (-dĕn·sĭ), n. Transcendent quality or state; transcendence.

tran·scend'ent (-dĕnt), adj. [L. transcendens, -entis, pres. part. of transcendere to transcend; cf. F. transcendant, G. transcendent.] 1. Transcending in act; specif., superior; surpassing; extraordinary; as, transcendent worth, gifts, or selfishness.
2. Philos. Transcending or going beyond what is given or presented in experience; specif., Kantianism, beyond the limits of all possible experience and hence beyond knowledge; — contrasted with transcendental (sense 3).
3. Theol. Possessing transcendence; not immanent.
The idea that God is transcendent, not only exalted above the world by his moral perfection, but separated from it by the infinite reaches of space, is yielding to the idea of God as immanent in his creation. A. V. G. Allen.
Syn. — TRANSCENDENT, TRANSCENDENTAL. That is TRANSCENDENT which is of superlative quality; TRANSCENDENTAL, in ordinary language (for philosophical usage see defs.), applies esp. to opinions, theories, or sentiments which are so vague, fantastic, or extravagant, as to pass one's ordinary comprehension; as, "clothed with transcendent brightness" (Milton); "this thrice-refined pabulum of transcendental moonshine" (Carlyle). Cf. EXCEED.

tran·scend'ent, n. 1. One who or that which is transcendent.
2. Philos. a Something which escapes classification in any accepted category; specif., a predicate which cannot be classed among the Aristotelian predicaments. b A transcendent reality, or transcendent reality in general; usually, that which transcends all possible experience. See TRANSCENDENT, adj., 2.

tran·scen·den'tal (trăn'sĕn·dĕn'tăl; -t'l), adj. [ML. transcendentalis; cf. F. transcendantal, G. transcendental.]
1. Transcendent; now, usually, marked by, characteristic of, or redolent of, transcendentalism. Hence: a Supranatural; superhuman. "Secure these transcendental helps." Browning. b Of ideas, etc., suprarational; highly abstract, or idealistic; remote from practical affairs or from human comprehension. "Transcendental moonshine." Carlyle. c Supersensual; ethereal; ideal; visionary; — a vague use.
The transcendental giving up of life at the moment when life becomes ideal. A. Symons.
2. Math. Of a number, incapable of being defined by any combination of a finite number of equations with rational integral coefficients. The numbers e (= 2.71828 . . .) and π (= 3.14159 . . .) are transcendental. Hermite proved e (in 1873) and Lindemann π (in 1882) to be such.
3. Philos. In Kantianism, of or pertaining to the a priori and necessary conditions of human experience, as determined by the constitution of the mind itself; hence, transcending what is determined by the contingent particularity of experience, but not transcending all human knowledge; — contrasted with transcendent. Cf. KANTIANISM.
Syn. — See TRANSCENDENT.

tran·scen·den'tal, n. a A transcendental idea, doctrine, etc. b [sometimes cap.] A believer in transcendentalism.

transcendental aesthetic. In Kant's Critique of Pure Reason, the first part, treating of time and space as the formal and a priori conditions of perception. The transcendental analytic forms the second part and treats of the categories as the formal and a priori conditions of conception as an element in knowledge.

transcendental curve. Math. A curve whose equations contain transcendental functions.

transcendental equation. Math. An equation containing transcendental functions of the unknowns.

transcendental function. Math. a A function that cannot be expressed by a finite number of algebraic operations upon the variable; thus $y = 10^x$ is a transcendental function of x. b A function of the complex variable with one or more essential singularities.

transcendental idealism. A designation applied by Kant to his own doctrine that the objects of perception are conditioned by the nature of the mind as to their form but not as to their content or particularity, and hence that they have a kind of independence of the mind, called "phenomenal reality." He used this designation to contrast his doctrine with the empirical idealism of Berkeley which holds objects in space and time to be merely ideas in the mind. He later called it critical idealism.

tran'scen·den'tal·ism (trăn'sĕn·dĕn'tăl·ĭz'm; -t'l·ĭz'm), n. [Cf. F. transcendantalisme, G. transcendentalismus.]
1. Philos. a Sometimes (connoting Kant's philosophy — see KANTIANISM), a philosophic tendency or doctrine which emphasizes a priori conditions of knowledge and experience, or the unknowable character of ultimate reality; more commonly (connoting post-Kantian idealism), a doctrine which emphasizes what transcends sense experience, as the absolute ego of Fichte or spirit in Hegel, as being fundamental in reality. b Hence, more widely, any philosophy which asserts the primacy of the spiritual and superindividual as against the material and empirical; esp., the philosophy of Ralph Waldo Emerson and his followers, and the social and religious tendencies to which it gave rise.
The post-Kantian idealists, Fichte, Schelling, and Hegel, assert the eventual identity of the subjective and objective in human knowledge, and consequently the Kantian distinction between transcendent and transcendental has no place in their philosophy; hence, with them, transcendentalism claims a true knowledge of all things, material and immaterial, empirical and transempirical, to be at least possible. It is in this sense that transcendentalism is now most used.
2. Quality of being transcendental; esp., idealistic, etc.

tran'scen·den'tal·ist (-ĭst), n. An advocate or adherent of transcendentalism. — tran'scen·den'tal·ist, tran'-scen·den'tal·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

tran'scen·den·tal'i·ty (-dĕn·tăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being transcendental.

transcendental number. Math. Any number that is not the root of an algebraic equation with rational coefficients, as the number π.

transcendental object. Kantianism. Thing-in-itself, or the mere form of an object, representing in knowledge our reference of the content of experience to an independent object.

transcendental philosophy. The philosophy of Kant, or philosophy characterized by transcendentalism, 1.

transcendental reality. = TRANSCENDENT REALITY.

transcendental school. The group of New England thinkers of whom Ralph Waldo Emerson was leader. Thoreau, Alcott, Ripley, and Margaret Fuller were prominent members.

transcendental truth. See TRUTH, n., 4 b, 1st Note.

transcendental unity of apperception. The unity of the elements of sense in one consciousness, or their relation as parts of a single experience, as a condition of intelligibility and hence of meaningful experience.

tran·scend'ent·ly, adv. In a transcendent manner or degree; usually, supremely; superlatively.

tran·scend'ent·ness, n. Transcendence.

transcendent reality. Metaph. Reality beyond the senses.

tran·scend'ing (trăn·sĕn'dĭng), adj. That transcends; surpassing; transcendent. — tran·scend'ing·ly, adv. — tran·scend'ing·ness, n.

tran·scen'sion (trăn·sĕn'shŭn), n. [LL. transcensio. See TRANSCEND.] A transcending. Rare.

trans·col'or (trănz·kŭl'ĕr), v. t. To change to another color. — trans'col·or·a'tion (trănz'kŭl·ĕr·ā'shŭn), n.

trans'con·duc'tance (trănz'kŏn·dŭk'tăns), n. [trans + conductance.] Elec. In a vacuum tube, a mathematical quantity expressing the effect of the voltage of an electrode upon the current to another electrode. A special case of transconductance is mutual conductance.

trans·con'dy·loid (-kŏn'dĭ·lĕr), adj. Anat. Passing transversely through the condyles, as of the femur. — trans·con'ti·nen'tal (trănz'kŏn·tĭ·nĕn'tăl; -t'l), adj. Extending or going across a continent; as, a transcontinental railroad; also, situated on or belonging to the other side of the continent; as, transcontinental cities, products.

trans'con·ti·nen'tal, n. A transcontinental railroad, train, or the like.

trans·cor'po·rate (trănz·kôr'pô·rāt), v. i. [LL. transcorporatus.] To transubstantiate. — v. i. To transmigrate.

trans·cor'ti·cal (-kôr'tĭ·kăl), adj. Med. Across the cortex of the brain; designating esp. conditions due to disease of tracts connecting different parts of the cerebral cortex.

trans'cre·ate' (trănz'krē·āt'), v. t. To transmit in creating.

tran·scrib'ble (trăn·skrĭb'l), v. t. To transcribe carelessly. — tran·scrib'bler (-lĕr), n.

tran·scribe' (trăn·skrīb'), v. t.; -SCRIBED' (-skrībd'); -SCRIB'ING (-skrīb'ĭng). [L. transcribere, transcriptum, fr. trans over, across + scribere to write. See SCRIBE.] 1. To write a copy of; to copy (an original) in writing; as, the Scriptures were transcribed before printing was invented.
2. Hence, to copy in longhand or on a typewriter the shorthand notes of; as, to transcribe dictations.
3. Obs. a To copy, or imitate. b To ascribe or impute.
4. Now Rare. a To reproduce in writing by quoting more or less exactly; to paraphrase. b To translate. c To transliterate.
5. Music. To make a transcription of. See TRANSCRIPTION, 3.

tran·scrib'er (-skrīb'ĕr), n. A person who transcribes; also, an instrument for transcribing.

tran'script (trăn'skrĭpt), n. [L. transcriptum, neut. past part. of transcribere. See TRANSCRIBE.] 1. That which has been transcribed; specif.: a A written, typed, or (Rare) printed, copy of an original or holograph; as, a transcript of a legal document. b A copy of a copy; as, a work known only through successive transcripts. c A letter, record, etc., transcribed from shorthand.
2. Hence, a copy of any kind; an imitation; sometimes, a literary imitation or representation.
Certain episodes were veracious transcripts of Page's own life. Burton Hendrick.
Syn. — See DUPLICATE.

tran·script' (trăn·skrĭpt'), v. t. = TRANSCRIBE. Obs.

tran·scrip'tion (trăn·skrĭp'shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. transcription, fr. L. transcriptio a transfer.] 1. Act or process of transcribing; as, textual errors resulting from transcription.
2. A copy; transcript; specif., reproduction, as over a radio system, of some material previously especially prepared for the purpose; as, this program comes by electrical transcription.
3. Music. An arrangement of a composition, often with some liberty in modification or embellishment, for some other instrument or voice than that for which it was originally written, as the translating of a song, a vocal or instrumental quartet, or even an orchestral work, into a piece for the piano; an adaptation; arrangement.

tran·scrip'tion·al (-ăl), adj. Of, pertaining to, or resulting from, transcription. — tran·scrip'tion·al·ly, adv.

tran'scrip·ti'tious (trăn'skrĭp·tĭsh'ŭs), adj. Of the nature of, or derived from, a transcription. Rare.

tran·scrip'tive (trăn·skrĭp'tĭv), adj. That transcribes; given to transcription; imitative; also, resulting from or permitting transcribing. — tran·scrip'tive·ly, adv.

tran·scrip'tur·al (-tŭr·ăl), adj. Transcriptional.

trans·crys'tal·line (trănz·krĭs'tăl·ĭn; -ĭn), adj. Across or through individual crystals, as opposed to between or around them; — said of fractures or cracks in metals, etc.

trans·cur'rent (trănz·kŭr'ĕnt), adj. [L. transcurrens, -entis, pres. part., running across.] Extending transversely. — trans·cur'rent·ly, adv.

trans·di'a·lect (-dĭ'ă·lĕkt), v. t. [trans- + dialect.] To translate from one dialect into another. Rare.

trans'di·ur'nal (trănz'dī·ŭr'năl), adj. [trans- + diurnal.] Beyond the day; dark. Rare.

trans·duc'er (trănz·dūs'ĕr), n. [L. transducere to lead across.] Physics. A device actuated by power from one system and supplying power in the same or any other form to a second system. For example, a telephone receiver is a transducer, actuated by electric power and supplying acoustic power to the surrounding air.

trans·duc'tion (trănz·dŭk'shŭn), n. [L. transducere, traducere, -ductum, to lead across or over.] Act of leading or conveying over. Rare.

tran·sect' (trăn·sĕkt'), v. t.; -SECT'ED; -SECT'ING. [trans- + L. secare, sectum, to cut.] To cut across or transversely. — tran·sec'tion (-sĕk'shŭn), n.

tran'sect (trăn'sĕkt), n. A cross section of vegetation, esp. of forest trees, tabulated to determine the frequency, size, or yield, of the species in it.

trans·el'e·ment (trănz·ĕl'ĕ·mĕnt), v. t. Also trans·el'e·ment·ate (-mĕn·tăt), v. t. To change or transpose the elements of; to transform in nature. — trans'el·e·men·ta'tion (trănz'ĕl·ĕ·mĕn·tā'shŭn), n.

trans'em·pir'i·cal (trănz'ĕm·pĭr'ĭ·kăl), adj. Beyond experience; transcendent; beyond human perception and imagination.

tran·sen'na (trăn·sĕn'ă), n.; pl. -NAE (-ē). [L., net, latticework.] Early Christian Arch. A lattice or screen of stone or metal enclosing and protecting a shrine.

tran'sept (trăn'sĕpt), n. [ML. transseptum, for L. transversum septum, fr. transversus transverse + L. septum, saeptum, an enclosure. See SEPTUM.] Arch. The transversal part of a cruciform church, which crosses at right angles to the greatest length, and between the nave and the apse or choir. In the basilicas this had often no projection at its ends. In Gothic churches these project greatly, and should be called the arms of the transept. But it is common to speak of the arms as the transepts. — tran·sep'tal (trăn·sĕp'tăl; -t'l), adj. — tran·sep'tal·ly, adv.

tran'sept. Erron. var. of 1st TRANSIT, 5.

trans'es·sen'ti·ate (trănz'ĕ·sĕn'shĭ·āt), v. t. To change in essence.

trans'-ē·the'ri·an (trănz'ē·thē'rĭ·ăn), n. A region or world beyond the luminiferous ether.

trans'e·unt (trăn'sē·ŭnt), adj. [L. transiens, -euntis, pres. part. of transire to go over. See TRANSIENT.] Passing from one to another; operating beyond itself; — also spelled transient; as, a transeunt cause (see CAUSE, n., 1); — opposed to immanent.

‖ trans'e·unt (trăn'sē·ŭnt). [L., 3d pers. pl., pres. indic. of transire to go over.] Literally, they cross; — formerly common in stage directions to indicate characters crossing the stage.

trans·fer' (trănz·fûr'; trănz'fûr), v.; -FERRED' (-fûrd'; -fûrd); -FER'RING. [OF. or L.; OF. transferer, fr. L. transferre, fr. trans across, over + ferre to bear. See TRANS-; 1st BEAR.] Transitive: 1. To convey from one place, person, or thing, to another; to transport, remove, or cause to pass, to another place, person, or thing; as, to transfer suspicion or a given quality; to transfer money by telegraph or baggage from a station.
2. To make over the possession or control of; to make transfer of; to pass; to convey, as a right, from one person to another; as, title to land is transferred by deed.
3. To print or otherwise copy from one surface to another; as, to transfer a drawing to a lithographic stone.
4. Filing. To remove from the current file of (correspondence, etc.) to a transfer case.
——, Intransitive: To change from one car, line, or the like, to another for continuing one's journey, esp. when continuing on a transfer (see TRANSFER, n., 6).

trans'fer (trănz'fûr), n. 1. Act of transferring, or state of being transferred; the removal or conveyance from one place, person, or thing, to another; transference; transmission.
2. One who or that which is transferred, as a student from one school to another, or a picture removed from one ground to another, as from wood to canvas.
3. A transfer company or one of its vehicles. Local, U. S.
4. Com. An order transferring shares of stock, money, etc.; specif., a telegraphic order to pay to one party money deposited by another in a distant office.
5. Decorative Arts. A drawing or writing printed in reverse from one surface on another, as in ceramics.
6. In some public transportation systems, a ticket given with or without extra charge to a passenger entitling him to continue on his journey on another route. U. S.
7. Law. a The conveyance of right, title, or property, either real or personal, from one person to another, whether by sale, by gift, or otherwise; any act by which the property of one person is vested in another. b Specif.: Roman Dutch Law. = TRADITION, n., 7.
8. Lithog. a A drawing in lithographic crayon made or trans·arc'tic, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. [Local, U. S.] trans·bay', adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. tran'scen·den'tal·ize, v. t. See -IZE. [TRANSCENDENTAL.] tran'scen·den'tal·ly, a d v . o 1] tran·scend'i·ble, adj. See -ABLE. trans·change', v. t. To transform. Obs. — trans·chang'er, n. Obs. [1 b.] trans·chan'nel, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. trans'co·late (trănz'kō·lāt), v. t. [trans- + L. colare, colatum, to strain.] To sieve; strain. Obs. — trans'co·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. Obs.

trans·con'scious, a d j . See TRANS-, 1 a. [TRANS-, 1 d] trans'cor·po're·al, a d j . See tran·scrib'a·ble (trăn·skrīb'ă·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. tran·scrip'tiv. Transcriptive. Ref. Sp. trans·curr' (trănz·kŭr'), v. i. [L. transcurrere, transcursum.] To run or rove to and fro. Obs. — trans·cur'sive, adj. Obs. trans·cur'sion, n. [LL. transcursio.] A passing across or through; passage Obs. trans'cur·va'tion n. See TRANS-, 2. trans·der'mic, adj. See TRANS-, 2. trans·des'ert, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. [See TRANS-, 2. trans'di·a·phrag·mat'ic, a d j . trans'e·qua·to'ri·al, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. [TRANS-, 1 a. trans'ex·pe'ri·en'tial, adj. See trans·fash'ion, v. t. See TRANS-, 1 c. trans·fea'ture, v. t. See TRANS-, 1 c. trans·fem'i·nate (trănz·fĕm'ĭ·nāt), v. t. [trans- + L. femina woman.] To change in sex from woman to man. Obs.

printed on paper and then impressed on stone or other material from which it is to be printed by the lithographic process. b A specially prepared sheet of paper containing a design to be transferred from the original stone to a stone or metal printing surface.
9. Med. Change from one part of the body to another. Cf. REFERRED PAIN.
10. Mil. A soldier removed from one troop or body of troops to another. Now Rare.
11. Naut. The distance a vessel gains to the right or left from the time the helm is put over until the ship has turned through eight points, or ninety degrees.
12. Photog. A picture produced by affixing to a support one or more images originally developed on a separate temporary support. See CARBON TRANSFER, BROMOIL TRANSFER.
13. Railroading. a A place where cars or trains are transferred to boats or ferries for water transportation; also, a boat or ferry used for this purpose. b A station where freight is rehandled before proceeding to final destination. c A point where a change is made from one form of power to another, as from electricity to steam. d A turnout connecting two tracks at a crossing, with switches outside the end frogs of the crossing; also, a track connecting roads that cross on separated grades.
Syn. — Shift, change; conveyance.

trans′fer (trănsˈfûr), adj. Of, pertaining to, or permitting, a transfer or transferring; used for or in transferring; done by transferring; as, a transfer fee, ticket, station, or elevator; transfer ink, work, or gilding.

trans·fer′a·bil′i·ty (trănsˈfûr′ə·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ; trănsˈfĕr-), n. Quality or state of being transferable.

trans·fer′a·ble (trănsˈfûr′ə·b'l; trănsˈfĕr-), adj. [Cf. F. transférable.] 1. Capable of being transferred, or conveyed from one place or person to another.
2. Capable of being made over from one party to another so as to vest in the transferee all the transferor's legal rights thereto pertaining; negotiable (which see); as, the stocks of most public companies are transferable; some tickets are not transferable. Cf. ASSIGNMENT, 2 a.

transferable vote. Polit. Science. In balloting by proportional representation, a vote that may be transferred to a candidate other than the one marked as first choice. See HARE SYSTEM.

transfer agent. Finance & Stock Exchange. The individual or corporate agency that keeps the ownership records and makes the transfer of title to corporation securities.

trans·fer′al (trănsˈfûr′əl), n. Transference; transfer.

transfer book. A register of transfers, as of shares, from one party to another.

transfer box. 1. Com. A transfer case.
2. Elec. A metal box in which one or more corresponding electric circuits are connected or branched.

transfer caliper. Mach. See CALIPER, n., 1.

transfer case. A filing unit for storage of inactive correspondence or records.

transfer company. A company which transfers baggage or passengers from the railroad station or between stations.

transfer day. A regular day for the registration of transfers of registered securities, as at the Bank of England for government stock or funds.

trans′fer·ee′ (trănsˈfĕr·ēˈ), n. 1. The person to whom a transfer is made.
2. One who is transferred, as from one position to another.

trans·fer′ence (trănsˈfûr′ĕns; trănsˈfĕr·ĕns), n. 1. Act of transferring; conveyance; passage; transfer.
2. Psychoanalysis. Direction of feelings and desires, especially as unconsciously retained from childhood, toward a new object. It is called positive transference when these feelings are amicable; negative transference when they are hostile.

transference neurosis. Psychoanalysis. A neurosis, such as hysteria or compulsion neurosis, which readily shows the phenomenon of transference.

transference number. Phys. Chem. In electrolysis, the fraction of the total current carried either by the anion or the cation. If n is the transference number of the anion, $1 - n$ is that of the cation.

trans·fer′ent (trănsˈfûr′ĕnt; trănsˈfĕr·ĕnt), adj. Transferring. Rare.

trans′fer·en′tial (trănsˈfĕr·ĕn′shəl), adj. Pertaining to transference; involving a transfer or conveyance.

transfer ink. Ink used in transferring designs, as from paper to stone. One variety contains wax, soap, lampblack, and shellac.

transfer of training. The development of ability in one line of study or effort as a result of ability acquired in another trans′fer·og′ra·phy (trănsˈfĕr·ŏgˈrə·fĭ), n. [transfer + -graphy.] A copying by transfer. Rare.

trans·fer′or (trănsˈfûr′ər), n. One who makes a transfer, as of a title to real estate. Cf. TRANSFERRER.

trans·fer′o·type, trans·fer′ro·type (-fûr′ō·tīp), n. [transfer + -type.] Photog. A bromide print transferred from a paper backing to some other surface; also, the process by which this is done.

transfer paper. A prepared paper used by draftsmen, engravers, etc., for transferring impressions.

transfer picture. A picture transferred, or prepared for transference, as from specially prepared paper, by means of the decalcomania process.

transfer printing. Decalcomania; specif., Ceramics, a process of pottery decoration in which designs engraved on copper or drawn on stone are transferred to the ware by the use of tissue paper.

trans′ferred′ ep′i·thet (trănsˈfûrdˈ). An epithet applied to a word with which it is not usually associated (purple cow, guilty simplicity).

transferred intent. Law. Intent to commit a specific crime imputed to a wrongdoer who, in the execution of an intent to do some wrongful act, does some other act constituting the crime.

trans·fer′rer (trănsˈfûr′ər), n. One who or that which transfers; one who makes or arranges transfers; also, one who puts on a transfer, as on wood; a transfer printer; sometimes, a transferor.

transfer resistance. Elec. An apparent resistance to the passage of a current from the metal to the liquid of a voltaic or electrolytic cell.

trans·fer′ring (trănsˈfûr′ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TRANSFER. Hence: adj. That transfers, or is used in the process of making transfers.

transferring machine. A kind of press for impressing an engraved and hardened steel die on a soft steel roller which is afterward hardened and used to impress a plate, as for printing bank notes, certificates, etc.

transfer stamp. Stock Exchange. A sales transfer tax stamp.

transfer table. Railroads. A platform with one or more tracks, moving laterally on wheels, for shifting locomotives, cars, etc., from one track to another one parallel to it; a traverse or transverse table.

trans·fig′u·rate (trănsˈfĭg′ū·rāt), v. t. [L. transfigurare.] To transfigure. Now Rare.

trans·fig′u·ra′tion (-rāˈshŭn), n. [F., fr. L. transfiguratio.] 1. A change of form or appearance; esp. [cap.], the supernatural change in the personal appearance of Jesus on the mountain (Matt. xvii.; Mark ix.).
2. [cap.] Eccl. A feast observed by some branches of the Christian church on the 6th of August, in commemoration of the Transfiguration of Jesus.
3. [cap.] An artistic representation of the Transfiguration; as, Raphael's Transfiguration.
4. An act or instance of transfiguring, or glorifying, spiritualizing, or similarly exalting, something; as, the poet's transfiguration of nature.

trans·fig′u·ra′tive (-fĭg′ū·rāˈtĭv; -rə·tĭv), adj. Serving or tending to transfigure.

trans·fig′ure (-fĭg′ûr; cf. FIGURE, n.), v.; -FIG′URED (-ûrd); -FIG′UR·ING (-ûr·ĭng). [ME. transfiguren, fr. OF. transfigurer, fr. L. transfigurare, transfiguratum, fr. trans over + figurare to form, shape. See FIGURE, v.] Transitive: 1. To change the form or appearance of; to metamorphose; transform.
2. To exalt, glorify, illumine, in appearance or character; to idealize; irradiate; — originally with allusion to the Transfiguration.

> How all things are transfigured except Love. Shelley.

——, Intransitive: To transfigure something. Browning.
Syn. — See TRANSFORM.

trans·fig′ure·ment (-mĕnt), n. Transfiguration. Rare.

trans·fi′nite (trănsˈfī′nīt), adj. Math. Beyond or surpassing any finite number, assemblage, or magnitude.

trans·fi′nite, n. Math. A transfinite number, assemblage, or magnitude.

transfinite cardinals or numbers. Math. The powers of cardinal numbers of aggregates whose cardinal numbers are not finite. The least transfinite cardinal is alefnull (symbol $\aleph_0$). The others are $\aleph_1$, $\aleph_2$, etc.

transfinite ordinals. Math. The indices of infinite manifolds. Of these the simplest is the index of the natural scale, $1, 2, 3, \ldots n, \ldots$ (or any manifold similarly arranged), denoted by ω. All following symbols built up of ω or by direct algebraic processes are transfinite ordinals.

trans·fix′ (trănsˈfĭksˈ), v. t.; -FIXED′ (-fĭkstˈ); -FIX′ING. [L. transfixus, past part. of transfigere to transfix, fr. trans across, through + figere to fix, fasten. See FIX.] To pierce through with or as with a pointed weapon; to transpierce; impale; to hold fixed or motionless by or as by piercing; as, the sword transfixed his heart; he was transfixed to the spot with surprise.

trans′fix·a′tion (trănsˈfĭk·sāˈshŭn), n. Transfixion.

trans·fix′ion (trănsˈfĭk′shŭn), n. 1. Act of transfixing, or state of being transfixed.
2. Surg. The piercing of a limb transversely preparatory to cutting the tissues from within outward in amputation.

trans·fix′ture (-fĭksˈtûr), n. [From transfix, after fixture.] A state of being transfixed. Hardy.

trans′flu·ent (trănsˈflōō·ĕnt; 249), adj. [L. transfluens, pres. part. See FLUENT.] Flowing or running across or through.

trans′flux (-flŭks), n. A flowing through, across, or beyond.

trans′fo·ra′tion (trănsˈfō·raˈshŭn), n. [LL. transforatio, -onis.] Surg. A boring through, as of the fetal skull; perforation.

trans·form′ (trănsˈfôrmˈ), v.; -FORMED′ (-fôrmdˈ); -FORM′ING. [ME. transformen, fr. OF. transformer, fr. L. transformare, transformatum, fr. trans across, over + formare to form. See FORM, v.] Transitive: 1. To change the form of; to metamorphose; specif.: a To change in outward shape or semblance; as, a caterpillar transformed into a butterfly.

> Love may transform me to an oyster. Shak.

b To change in structure or composition; rarely, to transmute. c To change in nature, disposition, heart, or the like; to convert.

> Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind. Rom. xii. 2.

2. Elec. To change (a current) in potential, as from high voltage to low voltage, or in type, as from alternating to continuous.
3. Math. To change the form of, as an algebraic expression or geometrical figure, without altering the meaning or value; to introduce new co-ordinates.
4. Physics. To change (one form of energy) into another, as mechanical energy into electricity.

——, Intransitive: To be or become transformed. Addison.
Syn. — TRANSFORM, TRANSFIGURE, TRANSMUTE, METAMORPHOSE, CONVERT, TRANSMOGRIFY. TRANSFORM, the general word, implies a thorough or radical change, whether in appearance or nature; TRANSFIGURE, which is strongly influenced by Biblical usage, suggests an exaltation or glorification of the outward appearance; as, "The placid sunshine . . . seems to have been transformed in a moment into imperious angry fire" (W. Pater); "Jesus . . . was transfigured before them; and his face did shine as the sun" (Matt. xvii. 2); "If she be guilty, 't will transform her to manifest deformity . . . If innocent, she will become transfigured into an angel" (Shelley). TRANSMUTE implies a complete change of nature or substance, esp. from lower to higher; to CONVERT (often interchangeable with transmute) is esp. to turn from one state or condition to another; as, "Physiological activity must be transmuted into intellect and conscience" (Mrs. Humphry Ward); "Every health which I begin converts dull port to bright champagne" (Shenstone); "Conviction . . . is worthless till it convert itself into conduct" (Carlyle). METAMORPHOSE suggests a transformation into something utterly different, often by (or as if by) enchantment; TRANSMOGRIFY is humorous or colloq. for metamorphose; as, "metamorphosed from seemly shape to birds and ugly beasts" (Gascoigne); "The name 'navvie' . . . has been transmogrified into 'navigator'" (Lowell). Cf. CHANGE, MODIFY.

trans′form (trănsˈfôrm), n. [From TRANSFORM, v.] Math. A figure or expression derived from another by geometrical or analytical transformations.

trans·form′ance (trănsˈfôr′măns), n. Transformation. Rare.

trans′for·ma′tion (trănsˈfôr·māˈshŭn), n. [F., fr. LL. transformatio.] 1. Act or process of transforming; complete or thoroughgoing change of form, structure, composition, or condition. Specif.: a Alchemy. Transmutation. b Math. (1) Of a group, the conversion of it into an isomorphic group by forming the transforms of its elements as regards a given element. (2) Change of form, as of an equation, expression, or figure, without altering value or meaning. Cf. POINT TRANSFORMATION. c Mech. Change of energy from one form into another. d Physiol. Change of one form into another, as in assimilation; metabolism; metamorphosis. e Theol. A change in disposition, heart, character, or the like; conversion. f Zool. Metamorphosis.
2. The form, appearance, character, etc., of that which has been transformed; as, have you seen the transformation in Rome?
3. A transformation scene.
4. A false front (sense a), wig, etc.

trans′for·ma′tion·al (trănsˈfôr·māˈshŭn·əl), adj. Pertaining to or characteristic of transformation or a transformation.

transformation by isogonal conjugates. Math. = ARGUESIAN TRANSFORMATION.

transformation myth. Anthropol. In primitive mythology, a myth which explains a given status of the world as the result of transformations, as topographical features produced by chopping up the body of a giant.

transformation of co-ordinates. Math. The introduction of a new set of co-ordinates which are stated distinct functions of the original co-ordinates.

transformation range. The range of temperature between the point of recalescence and the point at which the changes in structure required for heat-treating occur. In carbon steels, the latter point is that at which the ferrite becomes gamma iron. In high-speed steels, it is the point at which the double carbide of tungsten (or molybdenum) goes into solution.

transformation scene. Theat. A scene that changes in sight of the audience; specif., formerly, a scene in the pantomime in which the characters were changed to take part in the harlequinade proper.

trans·form′a·tive (trănsˈfôr′mə·tĭv), adj. [ML. transformativus.] Having power or a tendency to transform.

trans′for·ma′tor (trănsˈfôr·māˈtĕr), n. A transformer.

trans·form′er (trănsˈfôr′mĕr), n. 1. One who or that which transforms.
2. Anthropol. In primitive mythology, a supernatural being who caused the present order of the world by changing the previous order; also, a culture hero whose exploits are given in transformation myths.
3. Elec. An apparatus for transforming an electric current from a high to a low potential (step-down transformer) or vice versa (step-up transformer), without changing the current energy; a converter. The term is now usually limited to a stationary apparatus for transforming alternating currents (formerly called stationary, or static, transformer) consisting essentially of a coil of a few turns of comparatively stout wire and another coil of many turns of fine wire, wound on a laminated iron core (iron-core transformer), or enclosed in an iron shell (shell transformer), the object of the iron being to increase the lines of force (cf. INDUCTION COIL). One coil (the primary) is connected to the line, and the other (the secondary) to receiving devices. The ratio of the number of turns in the full high-voltage, or primary, winding to that in the full low-voltage, or secondary, winding is the ratio of transformation or conversion; voltages are transformed directly, and currents inversely, in this ratio. The voltage ratio of a transformer is the ratio of the root-mean-square primary terminal voltage to the root-mean-square secondary terminal voltage under specified conditions of load. Cf. CONVERTER, Step-down Transformer. C Core or Magnetic Circuit of Laminated Iron; P Primary, with many turns of Fine Wire; S Secondary, with few turns of Coarse Wire. 1 High Potential, small Current; 2 Low Potential, large Current.

4. A hedgehog transformer is a variety of transformer, now obsolete, with open magnetic circuit, the ends of the iron-wire core being turned outward and presenting a bristling appearance, whence the name. An air-core transformer is one in which the space occupied by soft iron in an iron-core transformer contains air only. A polar transformer is one in which the magnetic circuit is partly in iron and partly in air. An instrument transformer is one especially designed for use with instruments. A current transformer is an instrument transformer whose primary winding is connected in series with the circuit carrying the current to be measured or controlled. A voltage, or potential, transformer is an instrument transformer whose primary winding is connected in parallel with the circuit whose voltage is to be measured or controlled. A control-circuit transformer is a voltage transformer used to supply a voltage suitable for the operation of shunt-coil magnetic devices. A tripping transformer resembles an instrument transformer but is designed to operate tripping or control mechanisms. For autotransformer, see COMPENSATOR, 3. A power transformer is one especially designed for efficiency and for use in a power circuit as distinct from an instrument transformer. Power transformers are usually mounted in iron tanks or boxes. In an air-cooled transformer, air circulates through the windings. In an oil-cooled, or oil-insulated, transformer, the tank is filled with oil. The oil serves the double purpose of conducting away the heat and insulating the windings. A water-cooled transformer is an oil-filled transformer in which the oil is cooled by circulating water. A bell transformer is a small transformer used to reduce line voltage to one suitable for operating call bells. A phasing transformer is one of a set of two or more used for changing the current phase. See T CONNECTION. An impulse transformer is one in which the change in the magnetic flux field is compressed into a small part of one period. Since the induced electromotive force is inversely proportional to the time corresponding to a change in flux, when the time is small, the force is of the nature of an impulse. A rotary transformer is a synchronous converter.

transformer oil. An oil in which transformers are immersed to prevent heating or short-circuiting. It is now usually a nonvolatile mineral oil freed from water, acids, etc., so that it is a good insulator.

trans·form′ing, adj. That transforms or causes transformation. — trans·form′ing·ly, adv.

trans·form′ism (trănsˈfôr′mĭz′əm), n. [F. transformisme.] 1. The doctrine of evolution; esp., a theory of the gradual transformation of species under the influence of environment; — by some preferred to evolution because not implying the notion of progress.
2. Biol. Change of form; transmutation; esp., a process, trans·fer′a·ble·ness, n. See -NESS. trans·fer′a·bly, adv. of TRANSFERABLE. trans·ferd′. Transferred. R. S. trans·fer′er. Var. of TRANSFERRER. [FERABLE.] trans·fer′ra·ble. Var. of TRANS-trans·fer′ral. Var. of TRANSFERAL. trans·ferred′ (trănsˈfûrdˈ), past tense & past part. of TRANSFER.

---

trans·fer′rence (trănsˈfûr′əns), n. Var. of TRANSFERENCE. trans·fer′ri·ble (trănsˈfûr′ĭ·b'l), adj. Var. of TRANSFERABLE. — trans·fer′ri·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n.
trans·fer′ror, n. = TRANSFERRER. [FEROTYPE.] trans·fer′ro·type, n. = TRANS-trans′fil·tra′tion, n. See TRANS-, 1 a. trans·fixt′. Transfixed. Ref. Sp. trans·flu′vi·al, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. trans·form′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — trans·form′a·bil′i·ty, n.
trans′for·ma′tion·ist, n. = TRANSFORMIST. [Sp.] trans·formd′. Transformed Ref.

formerly supposed by some to occur, by which an organism changed to some entirely different organism, as a plant into an animal. Chiefly Hist.

3. Ital. Hist. The policies and methods pursued, 1876 to 1887, by which Liberal leaders, esp. Agostino Depretis, persuaded Conservatives to accept government positions, thus breaking down normal party lines.

— trans·form'ist (-mĭst), n. & adj. — trans'for·mis'tic (trănsˈfôr·mĭsˈtĭk), adj.

transform of a substitution (t as regards a substitution s). Math. The substitution $t_1 = s^{-1}ts$ where s^{-1} is the inverse of s.

transform of a substitution group (as regards a substitution s). Math. The group of the transforms of the various elements of the original group as regards s. trans'fuge (trănsˈfūj), n. [F., fr. L. transfuga, fr. trans over + fugere to flee.] One who flees from one side to another; hence, a deserter; apostate. Rare.

trans·fuse' (trănsˈfūzʹ), v. t.; TRANS·FUSEʹD (-fūzdʹ); TRANS·FUS'ING (-fūzʹĭng). [L. transfusus, past part. of transfundere, fr. trans over, across + fundere to pour. See FOUND to cast.] 1. To pour, as liquid, out of one vessel into another; to transfer by pouring.

2. To cause to pass from one to another; to diffuse itself through; to transmit by infusing; to instill; as, air transfused with sunshine.

Into thee such virtue and grace Immense I have transfused. Milton.

3. Med. a To transfer, as blood, from the veins or arteries of one man or animal to those of another. b To subject (a patient) to transfusion.

trans·fus'er (-fūzʹẽr), n. One who or that which transfuses.

trans·fu'sion (-fūʹzhŭn), n. [L. transfusio.] 1. Act of transfusing; the passing from one thing into another, as by translation, transmission, or commingling.

The transfusion of sentience with thought. G. F. Stout.

2. Med. Act or operation of transferring the blood of one human being or animal into the vascular system of another; also, the introduction of any fluid into the blood vessels, as salt solution.

transfusion cell. A cell with thin walls which permit the passage of liquids, found in certain plant tissues.

trans·fu'sion·ist (-ĭst), n. Med. One skilled in, or an advocate of, the operation of transfusion.

transfusion tissue. Tissue composed of transfusion cells, as in certain gymnosperms.

trans·fu'sive (trănsˈfūʹsĭv), adj. Tending, or having power, to transfuse. — trans·fu'sive·ly, adv. Rare.

trans·gre'di·ent (-grēʹdĭ·ĕnt), adj. [L. transgrediens, -entis, pres. part. See TRANSGRESSION.] Rare. a Transgressing; sinful. b = OBJECTIVE, adj., 9 b.

trans·gress' (trănsˈgrĕsʹ), v.; -GRESSEDʹ (-grĕstʹ); -GRESS'ING. [F. transgresser. See TRANSGRESSION.] Transitive: 1. To go beyond the limits set by; to overpass the bounds established by; to break, as a law or rule; to violate.

2. To pass over (limits, boundaries, or the like); to exceed; as, to transgress the limits of one's patience; the sea transgressed its bounds.

3. To offend against; to cross; thwart; disobey. Obs.

—, Intransitive: 1. To break or violate a command, a pledge, or a law; to sin.

2. Obs. a To impose (on). b To digress.

trans'gress (trănsˈgrĕs), n. = TRANSGRESSION.

trans·gress'ing, adj. That transgresses. — trans·gress'ing·ly, adv.

trans·gres'sion (trănsˈgrĕshʹŭn), n. [F., fr. L. transgressio a going across, going over, transgression of the law, fr. transgredi, transgressus, to step across, go over, fr. trans over, across + gradi to step, walk. See GRADE.] 1. Act of transgressing; trespass; sin; a violation of a command, a law, or one's duty.

Forgive thy people . . . all their transgressions wherein they have transgressed against thee. 1 Kings viii. 50.

2. Anthropol. Irregularity or nonconformity in some element in a culture sequence.

3. Geol. a Eng. Unconformability. b U. S. The spread of the sea over land areas and the consequent unconformable deposition of sediments on older rocks.

Syn. — Fault, offense, crime, misdeed; infringement, trespass.

— trans·gres'sion·al (-ăl), adj.

trans·gres'sive (-grĕsʹĭv), adj. [Cf. LL. transgressivus passing over into another class, F. transgressif.] 1. Disposed or tending to transgress, or sin or exceed limits; as, acts transgressive of the statutes.

2. Geol. Progressively overlapping; as, a transgressive sea or formation.

— trans·gres'sive·ly, adv.

trans·gres'sor (-ẽr), n. [LL.; cf. F. transgresseur.] One who or that which transgresses; one who breaks a law, or violates any known rule or principle of rectitude; a sinner.

The way of transgressors is hard. Prov. xiii. 15.

trans·hu'man (trănsˈhūʹmăn), adj. Transcending human limits. — trans·hu'man·ize (-īz), v. t.

Souls transhumanized to the divine abstraction of pure contemplation. James Russell Lowell.

trans·hu'man·ate (-āt), v. t. To transhumanize. — trans·hu'man·a'tion (-āʹshŭn), n.

trans·hu'mance (-măns), n. The seasonal moving of livestock from or to the mountains.

trans·hu'mant (-mănt), n. One of a flock in transhumance.

tran'sience (trănʹshĕns), n. Quality or state of being transient, or passing, fleeting, or shifting; transitoriness; as, the transience of human life or time.

tran'sien·cy (-shĕn·sĭ), n. Transience; also, Rare, something that is transient.

tran'sient (trănʹshĕnt; 277), adj. [L. transiens (gen. -euntis), pres. part. of transire, transitum, to go or pass over, fr. trans over, across + ire to go. See TRANS-; ISSUE. Cf. TRANCE.] 1. Passing quickly from existence; of short or uncertain duration; ephemeral; transitory; shortlived; as, a transient effect, emotion, or interest. "James, with whom economy was only a transient . . . twinge of conscience." Scott.

2. Passing beyond itself, as in influence; outwardly effective or efficient; not immanent; — often spelled transeunt; as, a poem in which the moral is immanent, not transient.

3. Passing or passed, as from one person, place, or state, to another; changing in form, appearance, etc.; flowing; shifting. "Her rapid wings the transient scene pursue." Gray. "That crumbled with the transient clay." Browning.

4. Not settled or established, as in place or home; coming and going; migratory; now, commonly, staying for a short time; stopping for a brief period only; not permanent; as, a transient boarder or merchant.

Now the legitimate and rightful lord Is but a transient guest, newly arrived. Cowper.

5. Music. Of a modulation, introduced casually or in passing. See MODULATION, 5.

Syn. — TRANSIENT, TRANSITORY, FUGITIVE, FLEETING, EPHEMERAL, EVANESCENT, MOMENTARY. Transient and transitory are often interchangeable; but TRANSIENT more frequently emphasizes the fact, TRANSITORY, the (often inherent) quality, of brief duration; as, "At present it [peace of mind] is uncertain and transient guest with me" (Cowper); "transient sorrows" (Wordsworth); "A natural fact is permanent and elemental, a historical event is transient and superficial" (M. Hewlett); "this transitory life" (Bk. of Com. Prayer); "Wise men will apply their remedies to . . . the causes of evil which are permanent, not to . . . the transitory modes in which they appear" (Burke); "matter, with all its transitory shapes" (Shelley). FUGITIVE and FLEETING apply to that which passes swiftly, and is gone; that is EVANESCENT which quickly vanishes; as, "Oh Joy! that . . . nature yet remembers what was so fugitive!" (Wordsworth); "All the forms are fugitive, but the substances survive" (Emerson); "not merely some fleeting fancy of the day, but a constant longing" (Lowell); "[It] clothes our fleeting days with an eternal beauty" (B. F. Westcott); "evanescent visitations of thought and feeling . . . arising unforeseen and departing unbidden" (Shelley); "the evanescent delicacy of each motive and sentiment" (M. Hewlett). That is MOMENTARY which is but for a moment; that is EPHEMERAL which is short-lived; as, "showers of momentary duration" (Poe); "a momentary bliss" (Gray); "the swarm of ephemeral sermons which issue from the press" (Sydney Smith); "ephemeral successes" (Lowell). Cf. BRIEF.

Ant. — Permanent, constant, abiding, persistent, enduring. See LASTING.

— tran'sient·ly, adv. — tran'sient·ness, n.

tran'sient (trănʹshĕnt; 277), n. 1. One who or that which is transient; specif., a transient guest or boarder.

2. Elec. Electric-current oscillations that occur in a circuit because of sudden load changes or the like.

transient current. Elec. A current which flows in a circuit for a short time following an electromagnetic disturbance. It may be oscillatory or aperiodic in character. Cf. OSCILLATING CURRENT, APERIODIC CURRENT.

transient vendor. Law. Any person, either principal or agent, who engages in a temporary or transient business, either in one locality or in traveling from place to place selling goods, wares, or merchandise.

tran'si·gent (trănʹsĭ·jĕnt), n. [Cf. INTRANSIGENT.] One who can be brought to terms; one willing to compromise. — tran'si·gent, adj. — tran'si·gence (-jĕns), n.

trans·il'i·ac (trănsˈĭlʹĭ·ăk), adj. Anat. Passing transversely through the iliac bones.

tran·sil'i·ence (trănˈsĭlʹĭ·ĕns), n. The state or an instance of being transilient; an abrupt change or variation.

tran·sil'i·en·cy (-ĕn·sĭ), n. Transilient quality; transilience. Rare.

tran·sil'i·ent (-ĕnt), adj. [L. transiliens, pres. part., leaping across.] 1. Passing, as by a leap or jump, from one thing to another; marked by breaches of continuity or abrupt transitions or variations; as, transilient rocks; a transilient series of tones.

2. Anat. Designating nerve fibers in the brain passing from one convolution to another not adjacent.

3. Biol. Discontinuous; saltatory; as, transilient variations.

trans'il·lu'mi·nate (trănsˈĭ·lūʹmĭ·nāt), v. t. To pass light through, as through an organ of the body for medical examination. — trans'il·lu'mi·na'tion (-nāʹshŭn), n.

trans'il·lu'mi·na'tor (-nāʹtẽr), n. Med. An instrument for effecting transillumination.

trans'im·pres'sion (trănsˈĭm·prĕshʹŭn), n. A transeunt impression. Coleridge.

trans'in·cor'po·ra'tion (-ĭn·kôrʹpō·rāʹshŭn), n. Metempsychosis. Rare.

trans'in·di·vid'u·al (trănsˈĭn·dĭ·vĭdʹū·ăl), adj. Between individuals; from one to another.

trans·i're (trănsˈĭʹrē), n. [L., to pass through or across, to pass. See TRANSIENT.] A customs document, describing the cargo, consignors and consignees, etc., done in duplicate for clearance and entry papers of coasting vessels, the original being used at the port of entry. Eng.

trans·is'chi·ac (-ĭsʹkĭ·ăk), adj. Anat. Passing transversely through the ischial bones.

trans·isth'mi·an (trănsˈĭs·mĭ·ăn; -ĭsthʹ-; cf. ISTHMUS), adj. Extending across an isthmus, as at Suez or Panama; as, a transisthmian canal planned through Nicaragua.

trans'it (trănʹsĭt; -zĭt), n. [L. transitus, fr. transire. See TRANSIENT.] 1. The action or an instance of passing or journeying across; passage through or over; as, rapid transit from city to city; the ferry makes ten transits a day; also, figuratively, transition; change; specif., a passing from this life.

In France you are now . . . in the transit from one form of government to another. Burke.

2. Act or process of causing to pass; conveyance; carriage; as, the transit of goods through a country, or from a vendor to a purchaser. Goods shipped from one person to another are said to be in transit (cf. IN TRANSITU) from the time when delivered to the carrier by the consignor to that when actually or constructively delivered to the consignee.

3. Astrol. The passing over by another planet, after a native's birth, the place of any planet or cusp of house in his nativity.

4. Astron. a The passage of a celestial body over the meridian of a place, or through the field of a telescope, called upper transit, or upper culmination, when above, and lower transit, or lower culmination, when below, the visible pole; — called also culmination. b The passage of a smaller body across the disk of a larger, as of Venus or Mercury across the sun's disk, or of a satellite or its shadow across the disk of its primary. Observations of parallax during transits of Venus have formed an important method for determining the sun's distance, but other methods are now preferred.

5. Surv. A variety of theodolite with the telescope mounted so that it can be transited; — called in full transit theodolite. See Illust., 3d column.

trans'it, v.; TRANS'IT·ED; TRANS'IT·ING. Transitive: 1. To make a transit across or over; as, to transit the Panama Canal; also, Com., to give transit privileges (which see) to the shipper of (a commodity).

2. Astron. To pass over the disk of (a celestial body), or over a line of the reticle in (the field of view of a telescope).

3. Surv. To turn (a telescope) over, about its horizontal transverse axis.

—, Intransitive: 1. To make a transit; to pass.

2. To be transited, as a telescope; also, to transit a telescope.

Transit, 5. 1 Telescope; 2 Vertical Circle; 3, 3 Focusing Screws; 4 Eyepiece; 5, 5 Spirit Levels; 6, 6 Vernier Scales; 7, 7 Tangent Screws; 8, 8 Standards; 9 Compass; 10 Compass Stop; 11, 12 Clamps; 13, 13 Leveling Screws; 14 Base Plate; 15 Tripod; 16 Plumb Line.

trans'it·a·ble (trănˈsĭ·tă·b'l), adj. That may be crossed.

transit certificate. = TRANSIT PASS.

transit circle. See CIRCLE, n., 12; TRANSIT INSTRUMENT.

transit compass. = TRANSIT, n., 5. transit department. Banking. The department of a bank which clears and collects checks and other instruments. Colloq., U. S.

transit duty. A tax imposed on goods passing through a country.

tran'sit·er (trănˈsĭ·tẽr), n. A transit attachment consisting of a wire that can be caused to traverse the field of a transit at a rate that will keep it continuously bisecting an object, as a star, passing across the field of view, and of a device for registering its passage across definite points in the field.

transit floater. Marine Insurance. A blanket policy covering all types of shipments without requiring the insured to report in advance all the numerous items to the underwriter.

transit instrument. 1. Astron. A telescope mounted at right angles to a horizontal east-west axis, on which it revolves with its line of collimation in the plane of the meridian, — used in connection with a clock and chronograph for observing the time of transit of a celestial body over the meridian of a place. Also a transit instrument is sometimes mounted and used in the prime vertical. The combination of a transit instrument and a meridian circle is usually called a meridian circle, or transit circle. See CIRCLE, n., 12.

Meridian Circle and Transit Instrument combined. a, a Graduated Circles; b, b Microscopes passing through the Piers, for reading the Circles; c, c Counterpoises to reduce friction on the supporting Y's.

2. Surv. = TRANSIT, n., 5.

tran·si'tion (trănzĭshʹŭn; -sĭzhʹ-; -sĭshʹ-; 277), n. [L. transitio. See TRANSIENT.] 1. Passage from one place or state to another; change; as, a sudden transition from hot to cold.

There is no death, what seems so is transition. Longfellow.

2. In a historical development, evolution, or the like, a passage from one clearly defined stage, type, or style, to another; a changing from an earlier to a later form with the blending of old and new features; also, the period of such a change; as, the language is in a state of transition; to undergo transition; during the transition in government; — frequent in attributive use; as, Transition Middle English; transition state; a transition style of Gothic.

3. Music. a A modulation, esp. a transient modulation. b A sudden change of key. c In tonic sol-fa, a change of key without change of mode.

4. Rhet. A passing from one subject to another, esp. without abruptness; a passage of discourse in which a shift of subject is gradually effected.

Syn. — Passage, shift, conversion.

tran·si'tion·al (-ăl), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characterized by, transition; as, transitional moods; in a transitional stage; resulting from, or produced during, a transition; as, transitional types; making or indicating a transition between divisions in an essay, speech, etc.; as, a transitional phrase or paragraph. — tran·si'tion·al·ly, adv.

tran·si'tion·al, n. Anat. A transitional leucocyte.

transitional epithelium. Anat. See EPITHELIUM, 1.

transitional leucocyte. See LEUCOCYTE.

tran·si'tion·ar'y (trănˈzĭshʹŭn·ĕrʹĭ; -ĕrʹĭ; cf. TRANSITION), adj. Transitional.

transition curve or spiral. = EASEMENT CURVE.

transition fit. Mach. See 5th FIT, 4. transition form. An intergrade.

tran·si'tion·ist, n. One who furthers a transition movement, government, etc.

transition point. Physical Chem. A single point at which different phases are capable of existing together in equilibrium. Such a point on a temperature scale is called also the transition temperature.

Transition series. Geol. Formerly, all stratified rocks, considered collectively, older than the Carboniferous.

transition sound. = GLIDE, n., 8. See Pron., § 23.

transition tint. Physics & Chem. The nearly neutral tint through which the color of the field of view of certain forms of polarimeter passes in the transition from red to blue or vice versa, and which is used as the criterion in making measurements with such an instrument.

Transition zone. Biogeog. The zone lying between the Boreal and Austral zones of North America. It includes an eastern or humid subdivision (see ALLEGHENIAN) and a western arid one of corresponding temperature comprising the northern Great Plains and the lower slopes of the mountains of the western United States and Mexico. Called also Neutral zone. Cf. ZOOGEOGRAPHY.

trans·freight'. ✣ TRANSFREIGHT.

trans·frete' (trănsˈfrĕtʹ), v. t. & i. [OF. transfreter, fr. L. transfretare, fr. trans across + fretum strait.] To cross or convey across a strait or narrow sea. Obs. — trans'fre·ta'tion, n. Obs.

trans·fron'tal (-frŭnʹtăl; -frŏnʹ-; -tĭ), adj. See TRANS-, 2.

trans'fron·tier' (trănsˈfrŭn·tĕrʹ; trănsˈfrŏn·tĕrʹ), adj. See TRANS-, 1 b.

trans·fu'gi·tive (trănsˈfūʹjĭ·tĭv), n. [L. transfugere.] = TRANSFUGE. Obs.

trans·fus'i·ble (trănsˈfūzʹĭ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.

trans·fuze'. Transfuse. Ref. Sp.

trans·gress'i·ble (trănsˈgrĕsʹĭ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.

trans·grest'. Transgressed. Ref. Sp.

tran·shape'. Var. of TRANSSHAPE.

tran·ship', tran·ship'ment, etc. Vars. of TRANSSHIP, etc.

trans·in'su·lar, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b.

tran·si'ta·tion (trănˈsĭ·tāʹshŭn), [n. Passage. Obs.] tran·si'tion·al·ness, n. See -NESS.

tran'si·tive (trăn'sĭ·tĭv), adj. [LL. transitivus; cf. F. transitif. See TRANSIENT.] 1. That passes on or away; transient; transitory. Now Rare.
2. Characterized by or involving transition; intermediate between one condition and another; transitional; as, a transitive state.
3. Resulting from transference of meaning; figurative. R.
4. Gram. Passing over to an object; as, a transitive action; expressing an action as not limited to the agent or subject, but directed upon an object; as, a transitive verb form or construction (he holds the book). The distinction between a transitive and an intransitive use is generally based on the presence or absence of the direct object word, since any act that involves an object (such as that of holding, killing, painting) may yet be thought of and expressed apart from any specified object (he paints well). See ABSOLUTE, adj., 6 d.
5. Law. Passing or descending (to some one), as, a transitive covenant is one which binds not only its original maker but also his representatives.
6. Math. & Logic. Denoting, or characterized by, the property of passing on or being transferred successively from member to member of a class. See TRANSITIVE GROUP; TRANSITIVE RELATION.
7. Philos. a Transeunt; transient; not immanent.
Causality is transitive [not immanent] in so far as anything gives rise to effects which lie outside its own being. G. F. Stout.
b That characterize an entity (mind, self, etc.) viewed as a continuum; flowing; moving.
Urging the importance of what he [W. James] called the transitive (as set against the more permanent substantive) parts of the stream of consciousness. M. Bentley.
— tran'si·tive·ly, adv. — tran'si·tive·ness, n.

tran'si·tive, n. Gram. A verb or construction expressive of transitive force.

transitive group. Math. A substitution group in which each element is replaced by each other symbol by some substitution of the group. If any set of n elements is replaced by any such set, it is n-ply transitive.

transitive relation. Logic & Math. A relation such that if A has this relation to B, and B to C, then A has this relation to C. "Greater than," "precedes," "implies," and "ancestor of," are transitive relations.

tran'si·tiv·ism (trăn'sĭ·tĭv·ĭz'm), n. [See -ISM.] Psychopathol. The attributing of one's experiences, actual or fantasied, to another.

tran'si·tiv'i·ty (-tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). Character or property of being transitive.

trans'it·man (trăn'sĭt·măn; -zĭt), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One who uses the surveyor's or engineer's transit.

tran'si·to'ry (trăn'sĭ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [OF. transitoire, fr. L. transitorius. See TRANSIENT.] 1. Continuing only for a short time; not enduring; fleeting; evanescent; temporary.
Matter, with all its transitory shapes. Shelley.
2. Obs. a Transitional. b Insignificant. Dryden.
Syn. and Ant. — See TRANSIENT.

tran'si·to'ry, n. Rare. a Something transitory. b = TRANSVERSARY. c A transit instrument.

transitory action. Law. An action which may be brought in any county, as actions for debt, etc.; — opposed to local action. In general, personal actions, whether founded on contract or tort, are transitory.

transitory treaty. See TREATY, 3.

transit pass. A document issued by the Chinese customs to prevent the levying of the usual numerous likin charges on goods en route to the interior from the treaty port where they entered and have paid the regular import duty, or on native goods en route to a treaty port for export.

transit prism. A portable transit instrument in which a prism and its reflection image aid in fixing the time of culmination.

transit privileges. Transportation. Shippers' rights to through rates for commodities that need further treatment, esp. some manufacturing process, between place of origin and market. See MILLING-IN-TRANSIT.

transit rot. Any decay of perishable products, fruits or vegetables, during transit to market.

transit theodolite. = TRANSIT, n., 5.

transit time. Astron. The observed or predicted time of the transit of a celestial body across the meridian.

tran'si·tus (trăn'sĭ·tŭs), n. [L.] Law. Transit of a person or property en route from one place to another. Cf. IN TRANSITU.

Trans-Jor'dan (trăns·jôr'dăn), Trans'jor·da'ni·an (trăns'-jôr·dā'nĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to the Arab territory of Trans-Jordan, east of Palestine.

Trans'jor·da'ni·an, n. A native or inhabitant of Trans-Jordan.

trans·lade' (trăns·lād'), v. t. To transfer the cargo of, in transshipping.

trans·late' (trăns·lāt'), v.; -LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). [L. translatus, used as past part. of transferre to transfer, but from a different root; cf. OF. translater. See TRANS-; TOLERATE. Cf. TRANSLATION.] Transitive: 1. To bear, remove, or change, from one place, condition, etc., to another; to carry over; to transfer.
To translate the kingdom from the house of Saul, and to set up the throne of David. 2 Sam. iii. 10.
2. Specif.: a To remove to heaven; — originally implying without death.
Enoch was translated, that he should not see death. Heb. xi. 5.
b To remove (the remains of a saint or hero) for reinterring; as, Byron's body was never translated to Westminster Abbey.
3. To turn into one's own or another language; to make a new version of by rendering into another language; as, to translate the Iliad or a passage from it.
4. Hence, to change the form, expression, or mode of expression of, so as to interpret or make tangible, real, apparent, or the like; to carry over from one medium or sphere (into another); as, to translate a poem into prose, thought into action, or ideal beauty into visible form.
5. To change completely; to transform.
New hopes . . . translated me into a new creature. De Quincey.
6. Specif., to transform (old garments, shoes, etc.) by repairing, renovating, or making from old materials; esp., to cobble. Brit. "For two of these the costumes were 'translated' from old sets." E. K. Chambers.
7. To transport or ravish; to enrapture.
8. Eccl. To transfer (a bishop) from one see to another.
9. Mech. To impart translation to. See TRANSLATION, 3.
10. Med. To cause to remove from one part of the body to another; as, to translate a disease. Obs.
11. Teleg. To repeat or forward (a message) by translation.
—, Intransitive: 1. To make a translation; to practice translation; of a work, etc., to admit of translation.
2. Teleg. To repeat or forward messages by translation.

trans·late' (trăns·lāt'), n. = TRANSLATION. Obs.

translating roller. Ordn. A double-threaded screw for drawing a breechblock longitudinally from its place in the breech.

trans·la'tion (trăns·lā'shŭn), n. [OF. or L.; OF. translation, fr. L. translatio a transferring, translation, version. See TRANSLATE; cf. TRALATION.] 1. Act of one that translates (in any sense); the process or an instance of translating; specif., a rendering from one language into another.
2. That produced by one who translates into another language or medium; a version resulting from translation; as, a literal but prosaic translation; translations of the Bible; an engraver's translation of the Sistine Madonna.
3. Mech. Motion in which all the points of the moving body have at any instant the same velocity and direction of motion; — in contrast to or as distinct from rotation.
4. Rhet. = TRALATION. Obs.
5. Roman & Civil Law. A transfer of property.
6. Teleg. The automatic repeating or forwarding of messages, as by means of a relay connected with a further section of the line. See RELAY, n., 3.
Syn. — See PARAPHRASE.

trans·la'tion·al (-ăl), adj. Of, pertaining to, or involving, translation; of motion, characterized by translation (sense 3). — trans·la'tion·al·ly, adv.

trans·la'tive (-lā'tĭv), adj. [L. translativus that is to be transferred.] 1. Figurative; metaphorical. Rare.
2. Making or causing a transfer; specif., Law, designating an act which operates to transfer a right from one person to another. Rare.
Rights are more commonly transferred than altogether extinguished, so that a divestitive fact is very often capable of being regarded, from another point of view, as investitive also. . . . A fact which fulfills this double function is called by Bentham translative. T. E. Holland.
3. Translational; tending to or involving translation; specif., marked by translation (sense 3).

trans·la'tor (-tĕr), n. [OF. or L.; OF. translatour (F. translateur), fr. L. translator.] 1. One who or that which translates; esp., one who makes a translation.
2. A repairer, as of clothing, umbrellas, or old shoes. Brit.
3. pl. A pair of old boots or shoes. Slang, Brit.
4. Teleg. The relay apparatus used in translation; a repeater.
5. Teleph. A part of a dial telephone system which controls the routing of the connection.

Translator General. Philemon Holland (1552–1637), translator of Livy, Pliny, Plutarch, Xenophon, and other Greek and Latin authors; — first so called by Dr. Thomas Fuller, in his History of the Worthies of England.

trans'la·to'ri·al (trăns'lȧ·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, a translator.

trans·la'to·ry (trăns·lā'tō·rĭ), adj. 1. Serving to transfer.
2. Translational; — chiefly of motion.

trans·lay' (-lā'), v. t. To reinter. Rare.

trans·lei'than (trăns·lī'thăn), adj. On the other, or (formerly) Hungarian, side of the river Leitha.

trans·lit'er·ate (-lĭt'ĕr·āt), v. t.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [trans- + L. litera, littera, letter.] To represent or spell in the characters of another alphabet; as, to transliterate Sanskrit words with roman letters. — trans'lit·er·a'tion (trăns'lĭt·ĕr·ā'shŭn), n. — trans·lit'er·a'tor (-lĭt'ĕr·ā'tĕr), n.

trans·lo'cate (trăns·lō'kāt), v. t.; TRANS·LO'CAT·ED (-kāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); TRANS·LO'CAT·ING (-kāt·ĭng). [trans- + locate.] To change the location of position of; to dislocate; displace; specif., Plant Physiol., to subject to translocation.

trans'lo·ca'tion (trăns'lō·kā'shŭn), n. 1. Act or fact of translocating; displacement.
2. Plant Physiol. Transfer of food materials or products of metabolism from one part to another.

trans·loc'a·to'ry (trăns·lŏk'ȧ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Of, or relating to, translocation.

trans·luce' (trăns·lūs'), v. t. [L. translucere.] To shine through. Obs.

trans·lu'cence (-lū'sĕns), n. Translucent condition, appearance, or power; a shining through; specif., partial transparency.

trans·lu'cen·cy (-sĕn·sĭ), n. Translucence.

trans·lu'cent (-sĕnt), adj. [L. translucens, -entis, pres. part. of translucere to shine through, fr. trans through + lucere to shine. See LUCID.] 1. Shining or glowing through; that penetrates so as to illumine; as, the translucent rays of the sun.
2. So clear as to admit the passage of light rays; transparent. Now Rare.
Under the glassy, cool, translucent wave. Milton.
3. Specif. and usually, admitting passage of light but diffusing it so that objects beyond cannot be clearly distinguished; partly transparent; as, translucent glass is unsuited for most windows.
Syn. and Ant. — See TRANSPARENT.
— trans·lu'cent·ly, adv.

trans·lu'cid (-sĭd), adj. [L. translucidus.] Translucent. — trans'lu·cid'i·ty (trăns'lū·sĭd'ĭ·tĭ), n. — trans·lu'cid·ness, n.

trans·lu'na·ry (trăns·lū'nȧ·rĭ; trăns'lū·nĕr'ĭ; -nĕr·ĭ), adj. [trans- + L. luna moon.] Beyond the moon; ethereal. Cf. SUBLUNARY.

trans·make' (trăns·māk'), v t. To make over; to refashion.

trans'ma·rine' (trăns'mȧ·rēn'), adj. [L. transmarinus, fr. trans beyond + mare sea; cf. F. transmarin. See MARINE.] Being or coming from beyond or across the sea; passing over or extending across the sea; oversea; as, transmarine peoples, imports, railroad, or line.

trans'ma·rine', n. A native of or dweller in a transmarine country.

trans·me'di·an (trăns·mē'dĭ·ăn), adj. Zool. Passing across the median plane. — n. A transmedian muscle.

trans'men·ta'tion (trăns'mĕn·tā'shŭn), n. [trans- + L. mens, mentis, mind + -ation.] Repentance; — a Latinism. Rare.

trans·mew' (trăns·mū'), v. t. & i. [OF. transmuer, fr. L. transmutare. See TRANSMUTE.] To transmute; metamorphose. Archaic.

trans·mi'grant (trăns·mī'grănt; trăns'mĭ·grănt), adj. [L. transmigrans, pres. part. See TRANSMIGRATE.] Migrating or passing from one place or state to another.

trans·mi'grant, n. One who transmigrates; specif., an emigrant passing through a country en route to the one in which he will be an immigrant.

trans·mi'grate (trăns·mī'grāt; trăns'mĭ·grāt), v. t. [L. transmigrare, transmigratum, fr. trans over + migrare to migrate. See MIGRATE.] To cause to pass from one place or state of existence to another; to transfer; to subject to transmigration. — v. i. To pass from one place, condition, body (as in transmigration), or country, to another; to migrate; to have the status of a transmigrant. — trans·mi'gra·tor (trăns·mī'grā·tĕr; trăns'mĭ·grā'tĕr), n. — trans·mi'gra·to'ry (trăns·mī'grȧ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj.

trans'mi·gra'tion (trăns'mĭ·grā'shŭn; -mĭ-), n. [OF., fr. LL. transmigratio.] 1. The act or fact of transmigrating, esp. of changing one's abode from one place or country to another; also, an instance of such; as, the Tatar transmigrations.
2. Specif., the deportation of Jews known as the Babylonian Captivity; also, the Jews so deported. Obs.
3. The passing of the soul at death into another body or successive bodily forms, either human or animal; reincarnation; metempsychosis; also (often transmigration of souls), the doctrine that souls so pass. See BUDDHISM.
4. Obs. a A passing from life; death. b A transmogrification; transformation.
5. Med. The migration of cells through a membrane, as the passage of white blood corpuscles through the unruptured walls of the blood vessels; diapedesis.

trans'mi·gra'tion·ism (-ĭz'm), n. The doctrine of transmigration of souls. — trans'mi·gra'tion·ist, n.

trans·mi'gra·tive (trăns·mī'grȧ·tĭv; trăns'mĭ·grā'tĭv), adj. Tending to transmigrate; undergoing or resulting from transmigration. — trans·mi'gra·tive·ly, adv.

trans·mis'si·ble (trăns·mĭs'ĭ·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. transmissible.] Capable of being transmitted, in any sense. — trans·mis'si·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

trans·mis'sion (-mĭsh'ŭn), n. [L. transmissio. See TRANSMIT.] 1. Act, operation, or process, of transmitting; as, the transmission of news; the transmission of rights or personal qualities from father to son; the transmission of light waves.
2. Something that is transmitted; as, telegraphic transmissions.
3. Horol. The train of a watch, etc.
4. Mach. The gear, including the change gear and the propeller shaft or driving chain (or chains), by which the power is transmitted from the engine of an automobile to the live axle (see AXLE, n., 1); — called also gearbox. Sometimes, any one of these parts. Cf. SELECTIVE TRANSMISSION.
5. Physics. The over-all proportion of radiant energy transmitted. Where radiant energy, homogeneous with respect to wave length, passes through a plate of glass or any other homogeneous, isotropic, nondiffusing medium or series of such media in contact with one another, having plane, nondiffusing, parallel surfaces, and emerges perpendicularly from the last surface, the transmission is the ratio of the amount of energy thus leaving the last surface to the amount of energy thus incident upon the first surface.
6. Radio. Passage of radio waves in the space between transmitting and receiving stations; also, act or process of transmitting.
☞ PHRASES are:

transmission belting	transmission gear	transmission sheaf transmission cable	transmission lock	transmission tower transmission chain	transmission pulley	transmission wheel transmission clutch	transmission pump trans·mis'sion·al (-ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to transmission; of the nature of a transmission.

transmission bands. The bands used in certain types of planetary transmission to clutch and stop the low and reverse speed drums.

transmission case. A jacket, usually of cast iron, for the transmission of an automobile.

transmission dynamometer. Mach. A dynamometer in which power is measured, without being absorbed or used up, during transmission. Cf. ABSORPTION DYNAMOMETER.

transmission efficiency. Elec. In wire or radio communication, the ratio of the power received over a transmission path to the power transmitted; the ratio of the output to the input power of a circuit or device.

transmission grating. Optics. A grating upon a transparent material.

trans·mis'sion·ist, n. An adherent of a theory, the transmission theory, that consciousness is transmitted by, rather than originated in, the brain.

transmission level. Elec. a In a communication system, the signaling-power amplitude at any point. b In a radio communication system, the radio field intensity at any point.

transmission loss. Elec. The loss of power of a transmitted wave or current in passing along a transmission path or through a circuit device, in wire or radio communication. See ABSORPTION, 3; ATTENUATION.

transmission rope. See WIRE ROPE.

transmission shaft. In automotive vehicles, the shaft in the transmission which carries the sliding gears and makes the driving connection between the clutch and the propeller shaft.

transmission unit. Elec. = DECIBEL. Now Rare.

trans·mis'sive (trăns·mĭs'ĭv), adj. That transmits or serves to transmit; that is or is capable of being transmitted; derived; as, the transmissive function of the nerves; the transmissive powers of a legislature. — trans·mis'sive·ly, adv. — trans·mis'sive·ness, n.

trans'mis·siv'i·ty (trăns'mĭ·sĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. Transmissive character, power, or activity; specif., Photometry, transmittance per unit thickness.

trans'mis·som'e·ter (-sŏm'ĕ·tĕr), n. [transmission + -meter.] A photometer or other instrument used for measuring transmission.

trans·mis'so·ry (trăns·mĭs'ō·rĭ), adj. Transmissive.

trans·mit' (-mĭt'), v.; -MIT'TED; -MIT'TING. [L. transmittere, transmissum, fr. trans across, over + mittere to send. See MISSILE.] Transitive: 1. To send or transfer from one trans'si·tĭ'val (trăn'sĭ·tĭ'vĕl; trăn'sĭ·tĭv·ăl), adj. Gram. = TRANSITIVE, adj., 4. Rare.

---

tran'si·to'ri·ly (trăn'sĭ·tō'rĭ·lĭ; tĕr·ĭ·lĭ), adv. of TRANSITORY.

tran'si·to·ri·ness, n. See -NESS.

tran'si·to'ri·ous (-tō'rĭ·ŭs), adj. [L. transitorius.] Transitory. Obs.

trans-Jo'vi·an, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b.

trans·lat'a·ble (trăns·lāt'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — trans·lat'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — trans·lat'a·ble·ness, n. [TRANSLATOR.

trans·lat'er (-lā t'ĕr), n. = TRANSLATOR. [LITERATE. Rare.

trans·lat'er·a·cy, n. = TRANS-trans·lat'er·ate, v. t. = TRANS-

TRALATITIOUS. Obs.

trans·la'tor·ese' (trăns·lā'tĕr·ēz'; -ēs'), n. See -ESE.

trans·la'tor·ship, n. See -SHIP.

trans·la'tress (trăns·lā'trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n., fem. of TRANSLATOR.

trans·la'trix (-trĭks), n. = TRANSLATRESS.

trans·lin'guate (trăns·lĭng'gwāt), v. t. [trans- + lingua + -ate.] = TRANSLATE, v. t., 3. Rare.

trans'lo·ca·i·za'tion, n. = TRANSLOCATION. Rare.

translucent reflector. See REFLECTOR, 3.

trans·mar'gin·al, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b.

trans-Mar'tian, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. trans'ma·te'ri·al, adj. See TRANS-, 1 c.

trans'ma·te'ri·a'tion, n. See TRANS-, 1 c.

trans·me'di·al, adj. = TRANS-trans·men'tal, adj. See TRANS-, 1 d.

trans'me·rid'i·o·nal, adj. See [MEDIAN.

trans·mise', v. t. = TRANSMIT. Obs.

trans·mis', v. t. = TRANSMIT.

Trans'-Mis'sis·sip'pi Ex'po·si'tion (trăns'mĭs'ĭ·sĭp'ĭ). See EXPOSITION, 5, Table.

trans·mis'siv. Transmissive. Ref. Sp.

person or place to another; to forward by rail, post, wire, etc.; as, to transmit dispatches or baggage.
2. To pass something on or down to one's heirs, successors, or the like; to hand down; specif., to impart hereditarily; as, to transmit a secret process orally; to transmit acquired characteristics.
3. To cause (as light, force, etc.) to pass or be conveyed through space or a medium; as, the telephone transmits sound to a great distance; a mechanism transmitting motion to the wheels; also, to admit the passage of; to conduct; as, glass transmits light; metals transmit electricity.
4. Radio. To send out (a signal) by means of radio waves.
—, Intransitive: 1. Civil Law. To pass by transmission.
2. Radio. To send out a signal by means of radio waves.
Syn. — See CONVEY.

trans·mit' (trănz·mĭt'), n. A transmitting; also (more fully, transmit warrant), an order to transmit. Rare.

trans·mit'tal (trănz·mĭt'ăl; -l), n. Transmission; a transference for custody or consideration, as of a document.

trans·mit'tance (-ăns; -'ns), n. Transmission; specif., Physics, the proportion of radiant energy transmitted; transmission (sense 5) corrected for reflection at the surfaces.

trans·mit'tan·cy (-ăn·sĭ; -'n·sĭ), n. Capacity for transmission; specif., Physics, the degree to which a solution transmits radiant energy.

trans·mit'ter (-ẽr), n. 1. One who transmits; one who serves as a transmitting medium or agent; as, a transmitter, rather than an originator, of a doctrine; specif., one who operates a transmitting station.
2. A mechanism or device that transmits; specif.: a Teleg. & Teleph. (1) On a telephone, a part into which one speaks and which contains a mechanism for converting sound waves into equivalent electric waves. See TELEPHONE. (2) That portion of a telegraph instrument by which the message is sent. b Radio. (1) A transmitting set. (2) A transmitting station.

trans·mit'ting set. Radio. Apparatus for sending out, or transmitting, radio waves; specif., the portion of a complete transmitting station which produces and modulates radio-frequency current and delivers it to the antenna.

transmitting station. Radio. An assemblage of equipment to send out, or transmit, radio waves, including an antenna transmitting set, and telephone transmitter or key.

trans·mog'ri·fy (trănz·mŏg'rĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fĭd); -FY'ING (-fĭ'ĭng). [A humorous coinage; cf. TRANSMIGRATE.] To change completely or with absurd effect; to transform. —trans·mog'ri·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. —trans·mog'ri·fi'er (-mŏg'rĭ·fī'ẽr), n. All Humorous.
Syn. — See TRANSFORM.

trans'mu·ta'tion (trănz'mū·tā'shŭn), n. [OF. transmutacion (F. transmutation), fr. L. transmutatio. See TRANSMUTE.] 1. Change in condition, character, or fortune; fluctuation; alternation as in qualities or states of mind. Now Rare.
2. A conversion, or transmuting, of one thing into another.
3. Alchemy. The conversion of base metals into gold or silver; — more fully transmutation of metals.
4. Biol. Change of one species into another; evolution.
5. Chem. The conversion of one element into another, either naturally, as in radioactive changes, or artificially. See ATOMIC THEORY; ELEMENT, 9.
6. Gram. The use of the same word without inflectional change as more than one part of speech. Rare.

trans'mu·ta'tion·al (-ăl), adj. Of, or pertaining to, or indicative of, transmutation.

trans'mu·ta'tion·ist, n. One who believes in the transmutation of metals or of species; esp., a transformist.

trans·mut'a·tive (trănz·mūt'ā·tĭv), adj. Of, inducing, or involving, transmutation; serving or tending to transmute; transmutational.

trans·mute' (trănz·mūt'), v.; TRANS·MUT'ED (-mūt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); TRANS·MUT'ING (-mūt'ĭng). [L. transmutare, transmutatum, fr. trans across + mutare to change. See MUTABLE; cf. TRANSMEW.] Transitive: 1. To subject to transmutation, in any sense; to change from one nature, form, or substance, into another; to transform; convert; as, to transmute mercury into gold, one species into another, or sorrow into joy.
2. To cause removal or transfer of; to transport. Rare.
—, Intransitive: To achieve or to undergo transmutation.
Syn. — See TRANSFORM.

trans·mut'er (-mūt'ẽr), n. One who transmutes.

trans·mut'ing (-ĭng), adj. That transmutes; transforming, esp. by changing from base to precious; as, the transmuting power of education.

trans·mu'tu·al (-mū'tŭ·ăl), adj. Reciprocal; commutual. Rare.

trans·nat'u·ral (-năt'ū·răl), adj. Rare. a See TRANS-, 1 d. b Changed in nature; transnatured.

trans'ni·hi·la'tion (trănz'nĭ·hĭ·lā'shŭn), n. [trans- + L. nihil nothing + -ation.] Transformation into nonentity. Nonce Word. Coleridge.

trans'o·ce·an'ic (-ō·shē·ăn'ĭk), adj. Lying or dwelling beyond the ocean; crossing the ocean; over the ocean.

tran'som (trăn'sŭm), n. [Prob. fr. L. transtrum a cross-beam, transom, fr. trans across. See TRANS-; cf. TRESTLE.] 1. A transverse piece in a structure; a crosspiece. Specif.: a A lintel. b The horizontal bar of a cross, gallows, etc. c The seat of a throne, swing, etc. d Arch. A horizontal crossbar in a window, over a door, or between a door and a window or fanlight above it, as distinguished from a mullion, or vertical bar. See MULLION, Illust. e Carp., Engin., etc. A transverse horizontal strut between parallel or nearly parallel members, as in a frame. f Eccl. A crossbar on a pastoral staff. g Naut. (1) A seat or couch built at a side of a cabin or stateroom, having lockers or drawers underneath. (2) The board forming the stern of a square-ended rowboat or small yacht. h Ordn. A metal piece, usually broad and flat, connecting the cheeks, the side-pieces of the trail, or similar parts of a gun carriage. i Railway Car Building. A crossbeam joining the side frames of a truck. j Shipbuilding. (1) Any of several transverse timbers or beams secured to the sternpost. (2) The aftermost frame of the square body, secured to the sternpost and supporting the overhanging stern; — called also transom frame. k Surv. The vane of a cross-staff.
2. A window above a door or other window, built on, and commonly hinged to, a transom; — called also transom window. Chiefly U. S.
☞ PHRASES are:

transom adjuster	transom center	transom lift transom butt	transom chain	transom operator transom catch	transom eye	transom plate transom bar. = TRANSOM, 1 d.

tran'somed (trăn'sŭmd), adj. Having a transom or transoms; — said of doors or windows.

transom frame. = TRANSOM, 1 j (2).

transom knee. Shipbuilding. A knee bolted to the transoms and after timbers.

transom stern. Shipbuilding. A stern formed by, or shaped from, a transom frame. —tran'som-sterned', adj.

transom window. Arch. a A window divided horizontally by a transom or transoms. b = TRANSOM, n., 2.

trans'pa·cif'ic (trăns'pă·sĭf'ĭk), adj. Lying or dwelling beyond or across the Pacific Ocean; crossing or extending across the Pacific; also, of or pertaining to the countries beyond the Pacific; as, transpacific nations, trade.

trans'pa·dane' (trăns'pă·dān'; trănz·pā'dān), adj. [L. transpadanus, fr. trans across + Padus the Po.] On the farther side of the river Po usually with reference to Rome, and therefore on the north side; — opposed to CISPADANE. — n. A native or inhabitant of a transpadane country.

Transpadane Republic. A republic formed in Lombardy by Napoleon (1796). In 1797 it became a part of the Cisalpine Republic.

trans·pal'a·tine (trănz·păl'ă·tĭn; -tĭn), adj. Zool. In reptiles, designating the transverse bone (which see) of the skull. — trans·pal'a·tine, n.

trans·par'ence (trănz·pâr'ĕns; 79), n. [F.] Transparent quality, state, or character.

trans·par'en·cy (-ĕn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [ML. transparentia.] 1. Quality or state of being transparent; transparence.
2. That which is transparent; esp., a picture or other matter for exhibition, made upon glass, thin cloth, paper, porcelain, or the like, intended to be viewed by the aid of light shining through it; hence, a framework covered with thin cloth or paper bearing a device or devices for public display and lighted from within.
3. [cap.] A burlesque title of honor; — a literal translation of the German title of honor Durchlaucht; as, His Transparency, the Duke.

trans·par'ent (-ĕnt; 79), adj. [F. and ML.; F. transparent, fr. ML. transparens, -entis, pres. part. of transparere to be transparent, fr. L. trans across, through + parere to appear. See APPEAR.] 1. Having the property of transmitting rays of light, so that bodies can be seen through; pervious to light; diaphanous; pellucid; as, transparent glass or pool; a transparent green or soap; — opposed to opaque, and usually distinguished from translucent.
2. Pervious, as to any specified form of radiant energy; as, transparent to X or heat rays.
3. Luminous; bright; shining. Poetic.
4. So loose or fine in texture or open in mesh as not to conceal what lies beyond; sheer; gauzy; as, a transparent fabric or yoke.
5. Figuratively: a Readily understood; perspicuous; clear; as, a transparent literary style. b Easily seen through; perfectly evident; unconcealed; detected as such without effort; as, a transparent motive or trick; transparent flattery or hypocrites. c Guileless; open; free from pretense; as, she is as transparent as a child.
Syn. — TRANSPARENT, TRANSLUCENT, LUCENT, LUCID, PELLUCID, DIAPHANOUS, LIMPID, LUMINOUS, LUSTROUS. That is TRANSPARENT through which objects can be clearly discerned; that is TRANSLUCENT which admits the passage of light, but does not permit objects to be distinctly seen through it; as, "The water . . . is as transparent as the air, so that the stones and sand at the bottom seem, as it were, trembling in the light of noonday" (Shelley); "The subtle essence . . . caused the opaque substance of his animal being to grow transparent, or, at least, translucent; so that a spiritual gleam was transmitted through it" (Hawthorne); "under the glassy, cool, translucent wave" (Milton); "translucent flickering wings between the sun and me" (Stevenson). LUCENT (chiefly poetical) is sometimes equivalent to translucent, sometimes to luminous; as, "lucent syrops, tinct with cinnamon" (Keats); "the sun's lucent orb" (Milton). LUCID (chiefly poetical except in its figurative use) is sometimes equivalent to transparent, sometimes to bright, luminous; as, "Abbana and Pharphar, lucid streams" (Milton); "regions of lucid matter taking forms . . . and beelike swarms of suns" (Tennyson). PELLUCID and DIAPHANOUS belong to literary rather than to ordinary language; pellucid suggests crystal clearness, diaphanous sometimes implies delicacy as well as transparency; as, "more pellucid streams, an ampler ether, a diviner air" (Wordsworth); "a crystal river — diaphanous because it travels slowly" (id.); "In her flowery loveliness, she looked diaphanous, ethereal" (M. Hewlett). LIMPID suggests esp. soft clearness as of pure water; as, "a . . . rill of limpid water" (Wordsworth); "The whole atmosphere has a luminous serenity, a limpid clearness" (Mrs. Humphry Ward). That is LUMINOUS which is full of light, or which emits light; LUSTROUS (cf. LUSTER) implies sheen or refulgence; as, "many a luminous jewel lone" (Sidney Lanier); "The southwest wind has filled the day with a luminous mist" (Lafcadio Hearn); "The lustrous salvers in the moonlight gleam" (Keats); "as . . . lustrous as some huge, precious pearl" (H. James). Transparent, lucid, pellucid, limpid, and luminous are also used figuratively, esp. of literary expression; as, the transparent clearness of his style; "lucid arrangement" (Trevelyan); "[Goldsmith's] pellucid simplicity" (Frederic Harrison); "that . . . simple, limpid style which is the supreme style of all" (M. Arnold); a luminous interpretation. Cf. CLEAR.
Ant. — Opaque, dull, murky, clouded, obscured.
— trans·par'ent·ly, adv. — trans·par'ent·ness, n.

trans·par'ent (trănz·pâr'ĕnt; 79), n. A transparent overdress of a type popular in the 17th century. Obs.

transparent chromium oxide. See CHROME GREEN, 3. transparent slate. A plate of translucent material, as ground glass, on which a copy of a picture beneath can be traced.

trans·pass' (trănz·păs'; 83), v. t. [MF. transpasser. See TRESPASS.] To pass over. — v. i. To pass away. Both Obs.

tran·spe'ci·ate (trăn·spē'shĭ·āt), v. t. [trans- + L. species form.] To transform into another species. Rare. — tran·spe'ci·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. Rare.

trans'phe·nom'e·nal (trăns'fē·nŏm'ē·năl), adj. Philos. Beyond the phenomenal or apparent; pertaining to a reality which is beyond or above that which is apparent to human senses; having to do with what exists in itself and is the ground of what appears to our senses. See THING-IN-ITSELF.

trans·phys'i·cal (trănz·fĭz'ĭ·kăl), adj. Beyond what is physical or natural; metaphysical; transcendental.

trans'pi·cu'i·ty (trăn'spĭ·kū'ĭ·tĭ), n. Transpicuous quality or character.

tran·spic'u·ous (trăn·spĭk'ū·ŭs), adj. [L. transpicere to see or look through, fr. trans through + specere, spicere, to see. See CONSPICUOUS.] Transparent; clearly seen through or understood. — tran·spic'u·ous·ly, adv.

trans·pierce' (trănz·pẽrs'), v. t.; TRANS·PIERCED' (-pẽrst'); TRANS·PIERC'ING (-pẽr'sĭng). [F. transpercer. See TRANS-; PIERCE.] To pierce through; to penetrate; transfix. — v. i. To pierce through something.

tran'spi·ra'tion (trăn'spĭ·rā'shŭn), n. [F. See TRANSPIRE.] 1. Act, fact, or process of transpiring; also, that which is transpired or transpires. Rare, except in specific senses defined below.
2. Physiol. Act or process of transpiring, or excreting, in the form of vapor; exhalation, as through the skin or other membranes of the body; as, pulmonary transpiration, or the excretion of aqueous vapor from the lungs. Perspiration is a form of transpiration.
3. Plant Physiol. The emission or exhalation of watery vapor from the surface of green tissues in plants. It facilitates root absorption, thus allowing a constant supply of mineral food to enter the plant body, promotes gaseous interchange between the tissues and the external air, and is, in part, responsible for the ascent of sap. It is largely effected through, and partly regulated by, the stomata (see STOMA, 2 a).
4. Physics. The passing of gases through fine tubes, porous substances, or the like, esp. into a vacuum.

transpiration current. Plant Physiol. The ascending sap or current of water in plants. The path of the current is through the xylem vessels or woody portion of the vascular bundles.

tran·spir'a·tive (trăn·spĭr'ă·tĭv), adj. Tending to transpire. Rare.

tran·spir'a·to'ry (-tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tẽr·ĭ), adj. Of or relating to transpiration.

tran·spire' (-spĭr'), v.; -SPIRED' (-spĭrd'); -SPIR'ING (-spĭr'ĭng). [F. transpirer, fr. L. trans across, through + spirare to breathe. See SPIRIT.] Transitive: To exhale or cause to pass through the pores of a tissue or substance, as a gas or a liquid. Specif.: a Physiol. To excrete, as through the skin; to give off in the form of vapor; perspire. See TRANSPIRATION, 2. b Plant Physiol. To evaporate (moisture) from living cells.
—, Intransitive: 1. To exhale moisture, vapor, perfume, etc.; now, specif., Plant Physiol, to exhale watery vapor; to effect transpiration, as plants, leaves, tissues, etc.; as, when branches no longer transpire, the leaves fall.
2. To be exhaled or emitted, as or as if a vapor, perfume, etc.; to escape or pass off as vapor or insensible perspiration; as, moisture transpires through the skin.
3. Hence, to leak out; to come to light; to become known.

Precisely what passed on that occasion never transpired.
Lytton Strachey.

4. To come to pass; to happen; to occur.
☞ Transpire in this sense has been disapproved by most authorities on usage, although the meaning occurs in the writings of many authors of good standing.
5. To pass; elapse. Rare.

tran'spi·rom'e·ter (trăn'spĭ·rŏm'ē·tẽr), n. [transpire + -meter.] Plant Physiol. An instrument or apparatus for measuring plant transpiration.

trans·place' (trănz·plās'), v. t. Rare. a To put in another place; transpose. b To interchange the places of.

trans·plant' (trănz·plănt'; 83), v.; -PLANT'ED; -PLANT'ING. [LL. transplantare, fr. trans across, over + plantare to plant; cf. F. transplanter. See PLANT.] Transitive: 1. To remove and plant in another place; specif., to lift and reset in another soil or situation, as out-of-doors; as, to transplant seedlings to the forest nursery.
2. To remove in order to settle elsewhere; to transport for colonization or the like; to cause to emigrate; as, to transplant the Acadians into Louisiana.
3. Surg. To perform the operation of transplantation of.
—, Intransitive: 1. To emigrate; to settle elsewhere. Obs.
2. To admit of being removed from one place or soil to another; as, calendulas do not transplant well.

trans'plant (trănz'plănt; 83), n. 1. The act or process of transplanting.
2. That which is transplanted, as a transplanted seedling or transplanted tissue.

trans'plan·ta'tion (trănz'plăn·tā'shŭn), n. [Cf. F. transplantation.] 1. Act of transplanting, or state of being transplanted; as the transplantation of forest seedlings.
2. A transplanted person, thing, or group; specif., a body of colonists.
3. Magic. The cure of a disease by causing it to pass from the afflicted person to another. Hist.
4. Surgical removal of tissue from one part of the body or from one individual and its implantation, or insertion for growth, in another; as, the transplantation of a tooth.

trans·plant'er (trănz·plăn'tẽr; 83), n. One who or that which transplants; esp., a machine for transplanting plants, as one that makes furrows or holes and that waters each transplant as it is dropped.

---

trans·mit'ta·ble. = TRANSMISSIBLE.

trans·mit'tant (trănz·mĭt'ănt; -'nt), n. = TRANSMITTER.

trans·mit'ti·ble (-ĭ·b'l), adj. = TRANSMISSIBLE.

transmit warrant. See TRANSMIT, n. [1 c.]

trans·mold', v. t. See TRANS-, 1.

trans·mon'tane (trănz·mŏn'tăn), adj. [L. transmontanus. See TRAMONTANE.] = TRAMONTANE.

trans·mor'phism (-môr'fĭz'm), n. = TRANSFORMISM, 2. Rare.

trans·move' (-mōōv'), v. t. [trans- + move; cf. L. transmovere to transfer.] = TRANSFORM. Obs.

trans·mue'. Var. of TRANSMEW.

trans·mun'dane, adj. See TRANS-, 1 d. [1 b.]

trans·mu'ral, adj. See TRANS-, 1.

trans·mus'cle, n. See TRANS-, 2.

trans·mut'able (trănz·mūt'ă·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — trans·mut'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), trans·mut'a·ble·ness, n. — trans·mut'a·bly, adv. [mute. Obs.

trans'mu·tate, v. i. To transmute.

trans·mut'a·tiv. Transmutative. Ref. Sp.

trans·mut'a·to'ry (trănz·mūt'ă·tō'rĭ; -tẽr·ĭ), adj. = TRANSMUTATIVE. Rare.

trans·mut'ive (-ĭv), adj. = TRANSMUTATIVE. Rare.

trans'na·ta'tion, n. See TRANS-, 1 a. [TRANS-, 1 d.]

trans·na'tion·al, adj. See TRANS-, 1 d.

trans·na'ture (trăns·nā'tŭr), n. See TRANS-, 1 c. Rare. — trans·na'tur·a'tion (-tŭr·ā'shŭn), n. Rare. [TRANS-, 1 b.]

trans'-Nep·tu'ni·an, adj. See trans·nom'i·nate, v. t. [L. transnominare.] See TRANS-, 1 a. Obs.

trans'nom·i·na'tion, n. Obs.

trans·nor'mal, adj. See TRANS-, 1 d. [OCEANIC.]

trans·o'cean, adj. = TRANS-trans·oc'u·lar, adj. See TRANS-, 2. [2.]

trans·or'bit·al, adj. See TRANS-, trans·pal'mar, adj. See TRANS-, 2. [1k), adj. See TRANS-, 1 b.]

trans'pan·am'ic (trăns'păn·ăm'ĭk), adj. See TRANS-, 1 c.

trans·par'ent·ize, v. t. See -IZE.

trans'pa·ri'e·tal, adj. See TRANS-, 2. [1 a.

trans·par'ish, v. t. See TRANS-, trans·pass'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. Obs. [1 a. Obs.

trans·pas'sion, v. t. See TRANS-, trans·pa'tron·ize, v. t. See TRANS-, 1 a. Obs. [1 a. Rare.

trans·peer', v. i. See TRANS-, trans·pen'e·tra·ble, adj. See TRANS-, 1 a. Rare. [TRANS-, 1 b.]

trans'pen·in'su·lar, adj. See trans·per'i·to·ne'al, adj. See TRANS-, 2. — trans·per'i·to·ne'al·ly, adv. [TRANS-, 1 d.]

trans·per'son·al, adj. See transphysical science. Metaphysics. Hist. [Ref. Sp.] trans·pierst', Transpierced.

trans·spir'a·ble (trăn·spĭr'ă·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. Obs. [1 a. Obs.

trans·pir'a·bil·i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

trans·plant'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — trans'plant·a·bil'i·ty, n.

trans·plan'tar, adj. See TRANS-, 2.

trans'plant·ee' (trăns'plăn·tē'), n. See -EE. Rare.

tran·splen'dent (trăn·splĕn'dĕnt), adj. [trans- + splendent.] See TRANS-, 1 d. — tran·splen'den·cy (-dĕn·sĭ), n. — tran·splen'dent·ly, adv. All Rare.

trans·pleu'ral, adj. See TRANS-, 2. — trans·pleu'ral·ly, adv.

trans·po'lar, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b.

trans·po'ni·ble (trănz·pō'nĭ·b'l), adj. [L. transponere to set over, remove.] Transposable. — trans·po'ni·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

trans·pon'tine (trăns·pŏn'tĭn; -tīn), adj. [trans + L. pons, pontis, bridge; cf. F. transpontin.] 1. Being on the other side of a bridge; specif., of, belonging to, or characteristic of, the part of London south of the Thames. 2. Like, or characteristic of, a class of cheap melodramas once popular in theaters of the part of London south of the Thames; as, a transpontine hero.

trans·port' (trăns·pōrt'; 181), v.; TRANS·PORT'ED; TRANS·PORT'ING. [OF. transporter, fr. L. transportare, fr. trans across + portare to carry. See PORT to bear.] Transitive: 1. To convey; esp., to carry or convey from one place or station to another, as by boat or rail; to transfer; as, to transport goods or troops.

2. To carry away with vehement emotion, as joy, sorrow, anger, etc.; to lift out of oneself; to ravish; as, to be transported with awe or delight.

3. To remove by death; to cause to die.

To transport him in the mind he is Were damnable. Shak.

4. To convey, or cause to be conveyed, into banishment, as a criminal; to banish to or as to a penal colony.

5. Scot. a To transfer (a minister) to another charge. b Eccl. Law. To remove (a parish church) to another part of the parish.

—, Intransitive: 1. To emigrate; to transplant oneself. 2. To have a ravishing effect; to entrance.

Syn. — See BANISH, CONVEY.

trans'port (trănz'pōrt; 181), n. [F., fr. the v. See TRANSPORT, v.] 1. Transportation; carriage; conveyance; transference; as, the cost of marine transport.

2. The state of being transported, or lifted out of oneself; hence, vehement emotion; passion; ecstasy; rapture; as, transports of joy or love.

Oh! what hours of transport we shall spend. Jane Austen.

3. a A vessel employed in transportation, esp. of soldiers, warlike stores, or provisions, or, formerly, of convicts; — called also transport ship or vessel. b Any vehicle, or vehicles collectively, used in transporting; specif., an airplane used in transporting mail, passengers, etc.

4. One transported: specif.: a A convict sentenced to exile. b Scot. A transported, or transferred, minister.

Syn. — See ECSTASY.

trans·port'a·ble (trănz·pōr'tȧ·b'l; 181), adj. Capable of being transported; also, incurring, or liable to, punishment by transportation. — trans·port'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — trans·port'a·ble·ness, n.

trans·port'al (-tăl; -t'l), n. Transportation. Rare.

trans·port'ance (-tȧns; -t'ns), n. Transportation. Rare.

trans·por·ta'tion (trănz'pōr·tā'shŭn), n. [F., fr. L. transportatio.] 1. Act of transporting, or state of being transported; carriage; removal; specif., systems and modes of conveyance of persons or goods from place to place.

☞ Transportation (in this sense) is prefixed to definitions in this Dictionary to indicate the field in which the word or sense is typically used.

2. U. S. a Means of conveyance, as vehicles or boats. b A ticket, pass, or the like, required to secure transportation on a public conveyance. It does not include checks, etc., for special accommodations.

3. Transport; ecstasy. Obs.

4. Banishment to a penal colony. Penal transportation is still practiced in Russia and France. It was formerly common in Great Britain, but was abolished by law, Dec. 17, 1868. See DEPORTATION; cf. PENAL SERVITUDE.

5. Geol. The natural transfer of rock detritus from one place to another on the earth's surface through the agency of water, ice, or air.

trans'por·ta'tion·al (-ăl), adj. Of, or characteristic of, transportation.

trans'por·ta'tion·ist, n. An advocate of penal transportation.

trans·port'a·tive (trănz·pōr'tȧ·tĭv; 181), adj. That transports or is transportable.

trans·port'ed (-pōr'tĕd; -tĭd; 119; 181), adj. 1. Carried from one place to another; specif., deported to a penal colony.

2. Enraptured; ravished; overcome as with joy or wonder. — trans·port'ed·ly, adv. — trans·port'ed·ness, n.

trans·port'er (-pōr'tĕr; 181), n. One who or that which transports or serves as a means of transportation; specif., Mach., any of various apparatus for moving loose material with dispatch, esp. in loading or unloading vessels.

trans·port'ing (-tĭng), adj. That transports or lifts one in transport. — trans·port'ing·ly, adv.

trans·por'tive (trănz·pōr'tĭv; 181), adj. Tending to transport or to cause transports.

trans·port'ment (-pōrt'mĕnt; 181), n. [Cf. OF. transportement.] Obs. a Transportation. b Transport; passion.

transport number. = TRANSFERENCE NUMBER.

trans'port rider. One who carries goods, usually on ox wagons. S. Africa. — transport riding. S. Africa.

trans'port ship or vessel. = TRANSPORT, n., 3.

trans pos'al (trănz·pōz'ăl), n. Act of transposing, or state of being transposed; transposition.

trans·pose' (-pōz'), v.; TRANS·POSED' (-pōzd'); TRANS·POS'ING (-pōz'ĭng). [OF. transposer (for L. transponere, -positum), fr. trans- (fr. L. trans across) + poser to put. See POSE, SUPPOSE.] Transitive: 1. To change in form or nature; to transmute. Obs.

Things base and vile Love can transpose to form and dignity. Shak.

2. To render into another language; to translate. Obs.

3. To convert in use, significance, or the like; esp., to convert to a base use, etc. Obs.

4. To transfer from one place or (Rare) period to another; to remove; convey; transport. Now Rare.

5. To change the relative place or order of; to exchange in respect of position; to reverse or rearrange the sequence of; as, to transpose letters or words.

6. To discompose; agitate; disturb mentally. Rare.

7. Alg. To bring, as a term of an equation, from one side to the other, with change of its sign; thus, if $a + b = c$, we may transpose b and obtain $a = c - b$.

8. Elec. To cause (the wires of a telegraphic or telephonic circuit) to cross at intervals, so as to avoid the effects of induction from neighboring wires.

9. Gram. To change the natural order of, as words.

10. Music. To write or perform (a composition) in a different key, thus raising or lowering its pitch.

—, Intransitive: To transpose something, esp. a musical composition.

trans·pose' (trănz·pōz'), n. Transposition. Obs.

trans'posed' ma'trix (trănz'pōzd'; 66). Math. The matrix obtained from a given matrix by interchanging its rows and columns.

trans·pos'er (trănz·pōz'ĕr), n. One who or that which transposes.

trans·pos'ing in'stru·ment (-ĭng). Music. a Any instrument which sounds pitches different from those indicated by the notation. Thus, a piccolo sounds an octave higher and the contrabass an octave lower than the notes indicate. A clarinet in B♭ sounds a whole step lower and its part must therefore be written a whole step higher than the pitches wanted. A horn in F sounds a perfect fifth lower, therefore its part is written a perfect fifth higher than the pitches wanted. b An instrument with a shifting keyboard for mechanically causing the music to sound in a different key.

trans'po·si'tion (trănz'pō·zĭsh'ŭn), n. [F., fr. L. transponere, transpositum, to set over, remove, transfer, fr. trans across, over + ponere to place. See POSITION, SUPPOSITION.] Act of transposing, or state of being transposed; also, that which is transposed. Specif.: a Chem. A rearrangement. b Gram. A change of the natural order of words in a sentence; as, Latin and Greek admit transposition much more readily than English does. c Math. (1) Bringing of any term of an equation from one side over to the other side with change of its sign. (2) A permutation or interchange of two letters or symbols. d Med. Abnormal location of an organ, esp. of a viscus. e Music. (1) A change of a composition or passage into another key. (2) A composition or passage so transposed. f Surg. Transplantation of a flap of tissue without severing it entirely from its original location until it has united in the new place.

trans'po·si'tion·al (-ăl), adj. Of, manifesting, or involving, transposition.

trans·pos'i·tive (trănz·pŏz'ĭ·tĭv), adj. Permitting or characterized by transposition, esp. grammatical transposition. — trans·pos'i·tive·ly, adv.

trans·pos'i·tor (-tĕr), n. [L. transponere, transpositum, to transfer.] A transposer. — trans·pos'i·to'ry (-tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Both Rare.

trans·print' (-prĭnt'), v. t. Rare. a To reprint from another work. b To transfer to the wrong place in printing. — n. Something transprinted. Rare.

trans·prose' (-prōz'), v. t. To change from verse into prose. — trans·pros'er (-prōz'ĕr), n.

trans'py·lor'ic (trănz'pī·lŏr'ĭk; -pĭ-), adj. Anat. Passing, or regarded as passing, transversely through the pylorus.

trans·rec'ti·fi·ca'tion (trănz·rĕk'tĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. Elec. In a vacuum tube, the rectification taking place in the circuit of one electrode when an alternating voltage is applied to another electrode.

trans'rhe·nane' (trănz'rē·nān'; trănz·rē'nān), adj. [L. transrhenanus.] On the other side of the Rhine; specif., German; hence, Germanic.

trans'rho·da'ni·an (trănz'rō·dā'nĭ·ăn), adj. Beyond or across the Rhone.

trans'seg·men'tal (trănz'sĕg·mĕn'tăl; -t'l), adj. Anat. Extending across, or beyond the limits of, a segment.

trans·shape' (trănz·shāp'), v. t.; -SHAPED' (-shāpt'); -SHAP'ING (-shāp'ĭng). Also tran·shape' (trăn-). [trans- + shape.] To change into another shape or form; to transform.

Thus did she . . . transshape thy particular virtues. Shak.

trans·ship' (trănz·shĭp'), v. t. Also tran·ship' (trăn-). [trans- + ship.] To transfer for further transportation from one ship or conveyance to another.

trans'ship (trănz'shĭp), n. = TRANSSHIPMENT.

trans·ship'ment (trănz·shĭp'mĕnt), n. Also tran·ship'ment (trăn-). Act of transshipping, or transferring for further transportation, as goods, from one ship or conveyance to another. In British practice, when dutiable goods are transshipped, the customs office receives and retains a note (called the transshipment bond note), forming an entry for the goods, stating that the party named has given security for the due transshipment and exportation of the goods named. The customs officer on the incoming ship is directed by an official note (transshipment delivery note) to send the goods named to the dock of the export ship in custody of a customs officer; and the officer on the export steamer is directed by a note (transshipment pricking note) to receive the goods on board that steamer for export.

trans'sub·jec'tive (trănz'sŭb·jĕk'tĭv), adj. Pertaining to or designating a state of being independent of the individual mind, or mode of thinking, though not necessarily independent of the modes of thought common to all men; objective in universal rather than individual experience.

trans·tem'po·ral (trănz·tĕm'pō·răl), adj. Crossing the temporal lobe of the cerebrum.

tran'sub·stan'tial (trăn'sŭb·stăn'shăl), adj. Capable of, or undergoing, transubstantiation; also transubstantiated; supersubstantial. — tran'sub·stan'tial·ly adv.

tran'sub·stan'ti·ate (-shĭ·āt), v.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [ML. transubstantiatus, past part. of transubstantiare to transubstantiate, fr. L. trans over + substantia. See SUBSTANCE.] Transitive: 1. To change into another substance; to transform; transmute.

The spider love which transubstantiates all,
And can convert manna to gall. Donne.

2. Theol. To change (the sacramental elements, bread and wine) into the body and blood of Christ; to change or produce by transubstantiation, or conversion of substance.

—, Intransitive: To undergo transubstantiation.

tran'sub·stan'ti·ate (-āt). Archaic past part. of TRANSUBSTANTIATE.

tran'sub·stan'ti·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [ML. transubstantiatio; cf. F. transubstantiation.] A transubstantiating, or state of being transubstantiated; specif., Theol., the change, by and at the consecration of the elements in the Eucharist, of the whole substance of the bread and the whole substance of the wine into the body and blood of Christ, only the appearances of the bread and wine remaining, a form of the doctrine of the real presence, held by the Roman Catholic Church and the Eastern Church and distinguished from consubstantiation and impanation. See REAL PRESENCE.

tran'sub·stan'ti·a'tion·al·ist (trăn'sŭb·stăn'shĭ·ā'shŭn·ăl·ĭst), n. One who accepts the doctrine of transubstantiation.

tran'sub·stan'ti·a'tive (trăn'sŭb·stăn'shĭ·ā'tĭv or, esp. Brit., -ȧ·tĭv), adj. Of the character of transubstantiation; of or pertaining to transubstantiation. — tran'sub·stan'ti·a'tive·ly, adv.

tran'su·date (trăn'sū·dāt), n. A product of transudation; transuded substance.

tran'su·da'tion (trăn'sū·dā'shŭn), n. [F. transudation.] 1. Act or process of transuding.

2. A transudate; — chiefly a physiological term.

tran·su'da·tive (trăn·sū'dȧ·tĭv), n. Of or pertaining to transudation or a transudate.

tran·su'da·to'ry (trăn·sū'dȧ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to transudation; passing by, or permitting, transudation.

tran·sude' (trăn·sūd'), v. i.; TRAN·SUD'ED (-sūd'ĕd; -ĭd: 119); TRAN·SUD'ING (-sūd'ĭng). [F. transuder, fr. L. trans through + L. sudare to sweat.] To pass as or like sweat through the pores of tissues or textures. — v. t. To be exuded through; also, to cause to exude.

tran·sume' (-sūm'), v. t.; -SUMED' (-sūmd'); -SUM'ING (-sūm'ĭng). [OF. transumer, fr. L. transumere, transsumere, to take from one to another, in ML. to transcribe, fr. trans across + sumere to take.] 1. To take from one thing, place, or use, to another; to transfer; hence, to transmute; change; transubstantiate. Obs.

2. To make a transumpt of. Archaic exc. Scots Law.

tran·sumpt' (trăn·sŭmpt'), n. [OF., fr. ML. transumptum, prop. neut. past part. of transumere.] A copy of a writing or document; specif., an exemplified copy. Archaic exc. Scots Law.

tran·sump'tion (trăn·sŭmp'shŭn), n. [L. transumptio.] Obs. a Act or an instance of transuming, as by quoting, translating, transferring, etc. b Metaphor.

tran·sump'tive (-tĭv), adj. [L. transumptivus.] Taking one thing for another; transferred; Rhet., metaphorical.

trans–U'ral (trăns·ū'răl), trans'–U·ra'li·an (trăns'ū·rā'lĭ·ăn), adj. Beyond or across the Ural Mountains.

trans'–U·ra'ni·an (trăns'ū·rā'nĭ·ăn), adj. Astron. Beyond Uranus.

trans·vaal' (trăns·väl'), adj. 1. Beyond the river Vaal, in South Africa; specif. [cap.], designating, or pertaining to, the Transvaal province, formerly the South African Republic, and, later, the Transvaal Colony.

2. [cap.] Geol. Pertaining to or designating the second from the top of the major divisions of the predominantly sedimentary, unfossiliferous rocks that lie below the Devonian in South Africa. The Transvaal system (called also Trans·vaal'–Na'ma sys'tem [-nä'mä]) has a maximum thickness of about 16,000 feet. It overlies the Ventersdorp system.

Trans·vaal', n. 1. With the, the Transvaal province.

2. Geol. The Transvaal period or system.

Transvaal daisy. The plant Gerbera jamesonii. See GERBERA.

Trans·vaal'er (trăns·väl'ĕr), n. A native of or resident in the Transvaal.

Trans·vaal'i·an (-ĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to the Transvaal or its inhabitants.

trans·val'ue (trăns·văl'ū), v. t. To value on a different basis; to evaluate according to a novel principle, esp. one which repudiates conventional or accepted standards. — trans'val·u·a'tion (trăns'văl·ū·ā'shŭn), n.

A very mental art where the sharp issues of actual living are strangely transvalued. F. J. Mather, Jr.

trans·vase' (-vās'), v. t. [F. transvaser, fr. ML. transvasare.] To pour out of one vessel into another.

trans·vec'tant (-vĕk'tănt), n. Math. A concomitant of two binary forms $f(x)$ and $\phi(x)$; if Ω is the operator $\frac{\partial^2}{\partial x_1 \partial y_2} - \frac{\partial^2}{\partial x_2 \partial y_1}$, the result of operating upon the product $f(x)\ \phi(y)$ by the operator Ω^r times after which y_1 and y_2 are replaced by x_1 and x_2, respectively, and the whole multiplied by $\frac{m-r!}{m!}\frac{n-r!}{n!}$ is the rth transvectant of the two forms.

trans·vec'tion (-shŭn), n. [L. transvectio, fr. transvehere to carry across, fr. trans across + vehere to carry.] 1. Act of conveying or carrying over. Rare.

2. Math. The process of forming transvectants.

trans·ven'om (-vĕn'ŭm), v. t. To turn into poison; to envenom.

trans·ver'bate (-vûr'bāt), v. t. [trans- + L. verbum word, after transliterate.] To translate literally. — trans'ver·ba'tion (trăns'vûr·bā'shŭn), n.

trans·ver'ber·ate (trăns·vûr'bĕr·āt), v. t. [L. transverberatus, past part.] To pierce or strike through. — trans'ver·ber·a'tion (trăns'vûr·bĕr·ā'shŭn), n.

trans·ver'sal (-vûr'săl; -s'l), adj. [ML. transversalis. See TRANSVERSE.] Running or lying across; transverse; as, a transversal line. — trans·ver'sal·ly, adv.

trans·ver'sal, n. 1. A transverse line, fiber, etc.; also, a deviation; digression. Obs.

2. Geom. A line that traverses or intersects any system of lines, such as the sides of a triangle or the sides produced.

3. Roulette. = TRANSVERSALE.

trans'ver·sale' (trăns'vĕr·săl'), n. Roulette. A bet taking in three (‖trans'ver·sale' pleine' (plĕn'), paying 11 for 1) or six (‖trans'ver·sale' sim'ple (săm'pl'), paying 5 for 1) numbers in a row horizontally.

trans'ver·sa'lis (trăns'vĕr·sā'lĭs), n. [ML. &] NL.] Anat. Any of several transverse muscles and arteries.

trans'ver·sal'i·ty (trăns'vûr·săl'ĭ·tĭ), n. The condition or quality of being transversal.

transversal wall. Bot. In archegoniates, the wall which separates the upper and lower halves of a proembryo.

trans·ver'san (trăns·vûr'săn), adj. [See TRANSVERSE.] Bot. Designating a plane which cuts at right angles the middle point of the pervalvar axis. Cf. PARATRANSVERSAN.

trans·port'age (trăns·pōr'tĭj; 181), n. Transportation. Obs. Transportation Act. See ESCH-CUMMINS TRANSPORTATION ACT.

transportation engineering. See ENGINEERING, n., 1 — transportation engineer.

transportation insurance. See INSURANCE. [See -EE.]

trans'port·ee' (trăns'pōr·tē'), n.

trans·pos'a·ble (trăns·pōz'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — trans·pos'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — trans·pos'a·ble·ness, n.

transposition cipher. See CIPHER, n., 5.

transposition method. = DOUBLE WEIGHING. [1 a. Rare.] trans·pour', v. t. See TRANS-, 1 d.

trans·proc'ess, n. See TRANS-, 2.

trans·pul'mo·nar'y, adj. See TRANS-, 2.

trans·ra'di·a·ble, adj. = RADIABLE. [TRANS-, 1 d.]

trans·ra'tion·al, adj. See TRANS-, 1 d.

trans·re'al, adj. See TRANS-, 1 d.

trans·riv'er·ine. = TRANSFLUVIAL. See TRANS-, 1 b.

trans'-Sa·tur'ni·an, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b.

trans·sec'tion (trăns·sĕk'shŭn). Var. of TRANSECTION.

trans·sen'su·al (trăns·sĕn'shōō·ăl; -sĕns'ū·ăl), adj. See TRANS-, 1 d.

trans·sep'tal (trăns·sĕp'tăl; -t'l), adj. See TRANS-, 2.

trans·se·pul'chral (trăns'sē·pŭl'krăl), adj. See TRANS-, 1 b.

trans·shape' (trăns·shāp'), n. = TRANSFORMATION. Obs.

trans·shift' (-shĭft'), v. t. & i. See TRANS-, 1 a. Rare.

trans·sol'id (-sŏl'ĭd), adj. See TRANS-, 1 d.

trans·stel'lar (-stĕl'ĕr), adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. [See TRANS-, 1 b.]

trans·Styg'i·an (-stĭj'ĭ·ăn), adj.

transt. Transcd. Ref. Sp.

Trans·tev'er·ine (trăns·tĕv'ĕr·ĭn; -ĭn), adj. & n. = TRASTEVERINE.

trans'tha·lam'ic, adj. See TRANS-, 2. [TRANS-, 2.]

trans'tho·rac'ic, adj. See TRANS-, 2.

tran'sub·stan'ti·a'tion·ite, n. = TRANSUBSTANTIALIST.

tran'sub·stan'ti·a'tor (trăn'sŭb·stăn'shĭ·ā'tĕr), n. = TRANSUBSTANTIATIONIST. Obs. — tran'sub·stan'ti·a·to'ry (-ȧ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Rare.

trans·u'ter·ine, adj. See TRANS-, 1 b. Coleridge.

trans·val'u·ate, v. t. = TRANSVALUE.

trans·va'sate (trăns·vā'sāt), v. t. [ML. transvasare, -atum, fr. L. trans over + vas, vasis, vessel.] = TRANSVASE. — trans'va·sa'tion (trăns'vȧ·sā'shŭn), n. Both Obs.

‖trans'ver·sa'lis ab·do'mi·nis (trăns'vĕr·sā'lĭs ăb·dŏm'ĭ·nĭs). [NL.] = TRANSVERSUS ABDOMINIS.

‖trans'ver·sa'lis cer·vi'cis (sûr·vī'sĭs). [NL.] = LONGISSIMUS CERVICIS.

‖trans'ver·sa'lis col'lī (kŏl'ī). [NL.] a = LONGISSIMUS CERVICIS. b = TRANSVERSE CERVICAL ARTERY.

‖trans'ver·sa'lis hu'me·ri (hū'mĕ·rī). [NL.] = SUBSCAPULAR ARTERY.

trans·ver'sa·ry (trănz·vûr'sȧ·rĭ), n. [L. transversarium a crossbeam.] A crosspiece on a nautical cross-staff; also, Obs., the transom of a cross.

trans·verse' (trănz·vûrs'), v. t. [OF. transverser. See TRANSVERSE, adj.] Now Rare. a To lie or run across; to cross. b To traverse, or thwart; to run counter to. c To overturn. d To alter; transform.

trans·verse' (66), adj. [L. transversus, past part. of transvertere to turn or direct across, fr. trans across + vertere to turn; cf. F. transverse, OF. transvers. See VERSION; cf. TRAVERSE.] 1. Lying or being across, or in a crosswise direction; athwart; — often opposed to longitudinal.
2. Not in direct line of descent; collateral. Obs.
Syn. — Cross, oblique. — Ant. Longitudinal, lengthwise.

trans·verse' (trănz·vûrs'; trănz'vûrs), n. 1. Anything that is transverse, or athwart; specif., a transverse piece, muscle, etc.
2. Geom. The longer, or transverse, axis of an ellipse.
3. Roulette. = TRANSVERSALE.
— by transverse. Transversely, awry. Spenser.

trans·verse' (trănz·vûrs'; trănz'vûrs), adv. Transversely. See FLAT, adj., 11.

trans·verse' (trănz·vûrs'), v. t. [trans- + verse, n.] To turn into verse; to versify.

transverse artery. Anat. Specif., one of the small branches of the basilar artery supplying the pons Varolii, etc.

transverse arytenoid. See ARYTENOID b.

transverse axis (of a conic). Math. The axis through the foci of the conic.

transverse bone. Zool. In some reptiles, a bone connecting the pterygoid and maxilla, forming in some snakes part of the apparatus for erecting the poison fangs.

transverse carpal ligament. A dense transverse band of fibers passing over the flexor tendons at the wrist.

transverse cervical artery. Anat. A branch of the thyrocervical trunk passing laterally across the subclavian triangle to the margin of the trapezius, where it divides into branches; — called also transversalis colli.

transverse colon. Anat. See 1st COLON a. transverse crural ligament. A transverse band of fibers passing over the extensor tendons above the ankle.

transverse dihedral. See DIHEDRAL, n., 2.

transverse facial artery. Anat. A branch of the superficial temporal artery which supplies the parotid gland, masseter muscle, etc.

transverse facial vein. Anat. A vein of the side of the face, tributary to the temporal vein.

transverse fissure. Anat. a The cleft below the hemispheres of the brain through which the pia mater extends to form the tela chorioidea and chorioid plexuses. b A cleft of the liver. See PORTA HEPATIS.

transverse flute. Music. The modern flute; — so called because held sidewise to the mouth, and blown at the side. Formerly known as the German flute.

transverse joint. Anat. The mediotarsal joint, which can replace the ankle joint in function to some extent when the latter becomes ankylosed.

transverse ligament. Anat. Any of various ligaments; as: a That which crosses between the greater and lesser tubercles of the humerus. b The transverse part of the cruciate ligament of the atlas. c That crossing the notch in the lower border of the acetabulum. d That connecting the digital ends of the metatarsal bones in the sole of the foot. e The coracoid ligament.

trans·verse'ly, adv. In a transverse direction or line; crosswise; athwart.

transverse magnet. Physics. A bar magnetized transversely, or at right angles to its length. Hence, transverse magnetism, transverse magnetization.

transverse mass. Physics. The ratio of the accelerating force to the acceleration when the acceleration is perpendicular to the line of motion.

transverse palsy. Med. Crossed paralysis.

transverse process. Anat. & Zool. A lateral process of a vertebra. Those in higher vertebrates are called diapophyses, and are outgrowths of the neural arch. They often articulate with the tubercle of a rib. Those common in lower vertebrates arise from the lower part of the centrum, and are called parapophyses.

trans·vers'er (trănz·vûr'sĕr), n. Surv. A kind of plane table.

transverse rib. Arch. In ribbed vaulting, a rib crossing a nave, aisle, or the like, at right angles to the long axis of the building.

transverse scapular artery. Anat. A branch of the thyrocervical trunk, or a separate branch of the subclavian artery, passing laterally across the subclavian triangle and above the coracoid ligament to supply the supraspinatus and infraspinatus muscles.

transverse sinus. Anat. Either of two large venous sinuses of the cranium, beginning at the internal occipital protuberance and terminating at the jugular foramen on either side to become the internal jugular vein. The left transverse sinus is usually the continuation of the straight sinus; the right, the continuation of the superior sagittal sinus.

transverse suture. Anat. The suture between the frontal and facial bones.

transverse table. Railroads. A transfer table.

transverse vein. Zool. A cross vein.

transverse vibration. See VIBRATION, n., 2.

transverse wave. See WAVE, n., 10.

trans·ver'sion (trănz·vûr'shŭn; -zhŭn), n. [See TRANSVERT, 1st TRANSVERSE.] A making or a becoming transverse, or an instance of such; a departure from an alignment; hence, a corruption or perversion.

trans·ver'sion, n. [From 5th TRANSVERSE.] A turning into verse; also, a metrical version.

trans·ver'sive (-sĭv), adj. Tending or serving to make transverse.

trans·ver'so- (-sō-). A combining form from Latin transversus, transverse, denoting: a Transversely, as in transversomedial. b The transverse process, as in transversospinal. c Transverse and, as in transversovertical.

trans·ver'so·ver'ti·cal in'dex (-vûr'tĭ·kăl). Craniom. The ratio of the skull's height to its breadth, usually in hundredths of the breadth.

trans·ver'sum (trănz·vûr'sŭm), n. [NL.] Zool. The transverse bone of a reptile's skull.

trans·ver'sus (-sŭs), n. [NL.] Anat. Any of several small transverse muscles.

‖ trans·ver'sus ab·do'mi·nis (ăb·dŏm'ĭ·nĭs). [NL.] Anat. A flat muscle with transverse fibers, forming the innermost layer of the anterolateral wall of the abdomen. Its fibers end in a broad aponeurosis, which joins that of the opposite side at the linea alba, its upper three fourths passing behind the rectus abdominis muscle, the lower fourth in front of it.

‖ trans·ver'sus pe'ri·ne'i (trănz·vûr'sŭs pĕr'ĭ·nē'ī). [NL.] Anat. Either of two narrow muscles (deep and superficial) passing from the inner part of the tuberosity of the ischium to the median raphe of the perineum.

‖ trans·ver'sus tho·ra'cis (thō·rā'sĭs). [NL.] = TRIANGULARIS STERNI.

trans·vert' (trănz·vûrt'), v. t. [L. transvertere.] To change or turn about; transform. Obs.

trans·vert'er (-vûr'tĕr), n. [L. transvertere to turn or direct across.] Elec. A machine consisting of a fixed transformer, commutator, and brushes that revolve at synchronous speed by which a three-phase alternating current can be converted into a direct current at one end of the line and reconverted into a three-phase alternating current at the terminal point. Only two conductors are required for such transmission, or if the earth be used for the return, one conductor only is required.

trans·vest' (-vĕst'), v. t. & i. [trans- + L. vestire to clothe.] To vest oneself in the garments of another, esp. of the other sex; to disguise.

trans·ves'tite (-vĕs'tĭt), adj. That transvests; esp., addicted to wearing garments of the other sex. — trans·ves'tite, n. — trans·ves'ti·tism (-tĭ·tĭz'm), n.

trans'vo·la'tion (trănz'vō·lā'shŭn), n. [L. transvolare to fly over or across.] A soaring beyond normal limits.

trans·writ'ten (trănz·rĭt'n), adj. Translated; transcribed. Ruskin.

Tran'syl·va'ni·an (trăn'sĭl·vā'nĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Transylvania, formerly a part of Hungary, which was from 1849 to 1860 a crownland of Austria, and is now a part of Rumania.

Tran'syl·va'ni·an, n. 1. One of the people of Transylvania, inhabited by Rumanians, Magyars, Germans, and Slovaks.
2. A type of rug in 17th-century and 18th-century Anatolian weave, with characteristic design, an urn with angular flowers and cartouche border, found chiefly in Transylvanian churches.

trant (trănt; trānt), v. i. [Prob. fr. D. tranten to walk slowly, trant walk, pace.] To work as a tranter. Now Dial.

trant'er (-ĕr), n. One who does odd jobs of transporting, peddling, etc., usually with a horse and cart. Dial. Eng.

trant'lum (trănt'lŭm), n. A trifle; trinket; pl., odds and ends. Scot. & N. of Eng.

‖ tran·vi'a (trăn·vē'ä), n. [Sp., after E. tramway.] A street railway.

Tranz·sche'li·a (trănz·shē'lĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Tranzschel, Russ. botanist.] Bot. A genus of rusts (family Puccinaceae) with 2-celled teliospores resembling those of Puccinia, but with two or more attached to a common stalk. T. punctata is the common rust of stone fruits.

trap (trăp), n. [ME. trappe, fr. AS. treppe, træppe; akin to MD. trappe, OHG. trapo; fr. the root of E. tramp, as that which is trod upon; cf. F. trappe, OF. trape (of Teut. origin), which influenced the English word. See TRAMP; cf. CALTROP, ENTRAP.] 1. A device, as a pitfall, snare, or machine that shuts suddenly as with a spring, for taking game, destructive animals, etc.; a gin.
2. Something by or in which one is unsuspectingly caught, injured, led astray, discovered in lawbreaking, or the like; a condition, device, expedient, etc., for entrapping the unwary; as, a golf course with many traps; this stretch is a trap for speeding motorists.
3. Slang. a Trickery; cunning. b Brit. & Colonial. A detective or policeman. c Mouth; as, to shut one's trap. d A mold for a counterfeit coin.
4. Any of various devices permitting one kind of thing to pass through while restraining another; as: a A device to separate sand and silt from flowing water. b A steam trap.
5. a A place in a water pipe, pump, etc., where something is held, as an air pocket. b A recess for oil bottles, etc., in the butt of a musket or rifle.
6. Short for TRAPBALL, TRAP CROP, TRAP DOOR, TRAP NEST.
7. Fishing. A net, or a part of a net, so constructed as to lure fish into an enclosed space from which it is difficult for them to escape; a trap net.
8. Music. A percussion instrument; specif. and usually, pl., the group of such instruments, esp. in a dance or theater orchestra.
9. Ore Dressing. A device to catch mercury or amalgam escaping from amalgamation plates.
10. Plumbing. A device for drains, sewers, etc., consisting of a bend or partitioned chamber in which the liquid forms a seal to prevent the passage of sewer gas, etc.; as, a stench trap.

Traps, 10. 1 Ball Trap; 2 Perpendicular Trap; 3 Running Trap; 4 S Trap.

11. Sports. a A wooden instrument used in playing trapball and consisting of a pivoted arm on one end of which is placed the ball to be thrown into the air by striking the other end. b A machine for throwing into the air balls, clay pigeons, etc., to be shot at.
12. [Cf. RATTLETRAP.] Vehicles. a A light carriage having springs; specif., a two-wheeled one-horse carriage on springs. b An open automobile with no top, usually having two seats extending across the width of the body.
13. Weaving. A broken place in warp thread, or the resulting fault in the cloth.
Syn. — See SNARE.
☞ PHRASES are:

trap bushing	trap cover	trap screw trap clamp	trap driver	trap vent trap cleaner	trap lever

-trap (-trăp). A combining form of trap, as in:

claptrap	fiytrap	rattletrap deathtrap	mantrap	rattrap firetrap	mousetrap	springtrap trap (trăp), v.; TRAPPED (trăpt) or Rare, TRAPT; TRAP'PING. [ME. trappen, fr. AS. treppan, træppan (in comp.). See TRAP a snare.] Transitive: 1. To catch, take, or make fall, in or as in a trap; to capture, defeat, detect, confound, etc., by stratagem; to ensnare; entrap; as, to trap foxes or beaver; to trap a foe, a lawbreaker, or a witness.

2. To provide with a trap or traps; as: a To set with traps, or snares; as, to trap a field infested with rabbits. b To install a trap (sense 10) in; as, to trap a drain.
3. To stop and hold by a trap (senses 5 a, 10); to separate by a trap, as water from steam; — sometimes with out.
4. To release or discharge from a trap (sense 11 b).
5. Baseball. To field (the ball) with a pickup.
——, Intransitive: 1. To set traps for game; to make a business of trapping game or, esp., fur-bearing animals; as, to trap for beaver.
2. To manage a trap (sense 11 b) or traps for shooting.
3. To become trapped, as steam in a radiator by air.
Ant. — Free, liberate, loose, release, extricate.

trap (trăp), n. [See TRAPPINGS, TRAP to dress.] 1. An ornamented cloth covering, esp. for a horse; a trapping; a housing; — chiefly pl. Obs.
2. pl. Personal belongings; goods; luggage. Colloq.
He might pack up his traps and go. De Morgan.

trap, v. t. [ME. trappen, fr. ME. trappe, trappure, trappings, fr. OF. drap cloth, drapure a covering for a horse. See DRAPE, DRAB cloth; cf. TRAPPINGS.] To clothe or provide with traps or trappings; caparison; — esp. of horses.
Steeds . . . that trapped were in steel all glittering. Chaucer.

trap (trăp), n. [D. See TRAP rock.] A kind of stepladder or movable flight of steps. Scot.

trap (trăp), n. Also trap'rock' (trăp'rŏk'). [Sw. trapp; akin to trappa stairs, Dan. trappe, G. treppe, D. trap; — so called because the rocks of this class often occur in large, sheetlike masses, rising above one another, like steps. See TRAMP.] Geol. & Petrog. Any of various dark-colored, fine-grained, igneous rocks, including esp. basalt, amygdaloid, etc., used esp. in road making; — a convenient field term.

Tra'pa (trā'pȧ; trăp'ȧ), n. [NL., fr. ML. calcitrapa caltrop. See CALTROP.] Bot. A small genus of Old World aquatic plants constituting a family, Tra·pa'ce·ae (trȧ·pā'sē·ē), of the order Myrtales. They are herbs having the submerged leaves finely dissected and the floating leaves rhombic, with inflated spongy petioles. The solitary white flowers are followed by nutlike horned or spiny fruits, whence the name water caltrops. T. natans is the water chestnut.

Trapa (T. natans). Mature Fruit.

trap'ball' (trăp'bôl'), n. An old game of ball played with a trap; also, the ball used in the game. See 1st TRAP, 11 a.

trap bat. A small bat used in playing trapball.

trap brilliant. [D. trap a step. See TRAP rock.] Jewelry. A brilliant cut so that the bezel and the pavilion are each divided into two parts with slightly different slopes. See BRILLIANT, n.

trap crop. Agric. A crop planted to attract noxious insects or fungi from near-by or later crops.

trap cut. Jewelry. = STEP CUT. — trap'-cut', adj.

trap door. 1. A lifting or sliding door covering an opening in a roof or floor; esp., Theater, an opening in the floor of the stage through which persons, scenery, etc., may be raised or lowered; also, a similar opening in the scenery.
2. An L-shaped tear in a garment.
3. Mining. A ventilating door in a level; — called also weather door.
— trap'-door', adj.

trap'-door' spi'der. Any of several large spiders belonging to Cteniza and allied genera which make a nest (trap-door nest) consisting of a vertical hole in the earth, lined with silk, and furnished at the top with a hinged lid, like a trap door.

Trap-door Spider and Nest.

trap drummer. Music. A performer on traps. See TRAP, n., 8. trapes (trāps), v. i. & t. [See TRAMP; cf. TRAIPSE.] To traipse; to trail along. — n. A traipse.

tra·peze' (trȧ·pēz'), n. [F. trapèze. See TRAPEZIUM; cf. VAMP.] 1. A gymnastic or acrobatic apparatus consisting of a short horizontal bar suspended at a height by two parallel ropes, one at each end.
2. Geom. = TRAPEZIUM, 1.

tra·pe'zi·a (trȧ·pē'zĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See TRAPEZIUM.] A quadrilateral that is not a parallelogram. Obs.

tra·pe'zi·a, n., pl. of TRAPEZIUM.

tra·pe'zi·al (trȧ·pē'zĭ·ăl), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a trapezium or trapezius; trapeziform.

tra·pe'zi·an (-ăn), adj. Having opposite trapeziform faces. Rare.

tra·pe'zi·form (-zĭ·fôrm), adj. [trapezium + -form; cf. F. trapéziforme.] Like a trapezium in form.

tra·pez'ing (trȧ·pēz'ĭng), n. A performing on the trapeze. — tra·pez'ist (-ĭst), n.

tra·pe'zi·o- (trȧ·pē'zĭ·ō-). A combining form for trapezium, denoting trapezial and, as in tra·pe'zi·o·met'a·car'pal. See METACARPAL.

tra·pe'zi·um (-ŭm), n.; pl. -ZIUMS (-ŭmz), -ZIA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. trapezion a little table, an irregular four-sided figure, dim. of trapeza a table, for tetrapeza, fr. tetra- (see TETRA-) + peza foot, akin to pous foot; hence, orig., a table with four feet. See FOOT.] 1. Geom. a A plane figure formed by four right lines, of which no two are parallel. b Rarely in American, now usually in English, usage, a trapezoid. c Hist. Any irregular quadrilateral; — the original Euclidean sense.

Trapezium.

2. A trapeze. Rare.
3. Anat. & Zool. a A bone of the carpus; multangulum majus. b A bundle of transverse fibers in the dorsal part of the pons Varolii.
4. [cap.] Astron. A figure consisting of four stars, irregularly arranged in the form of a trapezium, located in the Great Nebula of Orion; — more fully Trapezium of Orion.

tra·pe'zi·us (trȧ·pē'zĭ·ŭs), n. [NL.] Anat. A large, flat, triangular, superficial muscle of each side of the back, which arises from the occipital bone, ligamentum nuchae, and the spinous processes of the last cervical and all the thoracic vertebrae, and is inserted into the outer part of the clavicle, the acromion, and the spine of the scapula. It rotates the scapula so as to present the glenoid cavity upward.

trans·verse'ness, n. See -NESS. transverse section. See SECTION, 3. trans·ver'so-cu'bi·tal, adj. See TRANSVERSO- a. trans·ver'so-me'di·al, adj. See TRANSVERSO- a. trans·ver'so-spi'nal, adj. See TRANSVERSO- b. trans·ver'so·ver'ti·cal, adj. See TRANSVERSO- c. trans·vest'ism (trănz·vĕs'tĭz'm), n. = TRANSVESTITISM. trans·volve', v. t. [LL. transvolvere to unroll.] To overturn. Obs. trans·waft', v. t. See TRANS-, 1 a. Obs.
tra·pa'ceous (trȧ·pā'shŭs), adj. See -ACEOUS. tra·pan', n. & v. Var. of TREPAN. trap and ball. = TRAPBALL. tra·pan'ner. Var. of TREPANNER. trape (trāp), v. i. = TRAIPSE, v. i. Obs. exc. Dial.
trap'e·zate (trăp'ĕ·zāt), adj. [See TRAPEZIUM.] = TRAPEZIFORM. trap'e·zi·he'dron (trăp'ĕ·zĭ·hē'drŭn; trȧ·pē'zĭ-). Var. of TRAPEZOHEDRON.

trap'e·zo·he'dral (trăp'ē·zō·hē'drăl; trā·pē'zō-), adj. Of, pertaining to, or resembling, a trapezohedron.

trap'e·zo·he'dron (-drŭn), n. [NL., fr. trapezium + -hedron.] Cryst. A form whose faces are trapeziums. Specif.: a The tetragonal trisoctahedron. See TRISOCTAHEDRON, 2. b An eight-faced hemihedral form of the tetragonal system. c A twelve-faced hemihedral form of the hexagonal system. d A six-faced tetartohedral form of the hexagonal system; — called specif. trigonal trapezohedron. Its faces are common on quartz crystals.

trap'e·zoid (trăp'ē·zoid), n. [Gr. trapezoeidēs trapezoid-shaped, fr. trapeza table + eidos shape, likeness; cf. F. trapézoïde. See TRAPEZIUM.] 1. Geom. a A plane four-sided figure with two parallel sides. An isosceles trapezoid has the two nonparallel sides equal in length. The area of a trapezoid may be found by multiplying one half the sum of the parallel sides by the distance between them. b Eng. = TRAPEZIUM, 1 a.
2. Anat. & Zool. A bone of the carpus; multangulum minus.

trap'e·zoid, adj. Of, pertaining to, or in the form of, a trapezoid; sometimes, trapezial.

trap'e·zoi'dal (-zoi'dăl; -dĭl), adj. 1. Trapezoid; trapezoidiform; sometimes, trapeziform.
2. Cryst. Trapezohedral.

trapezoidal masonry. Arch. Polygonal masonry, etc., in which the stones have usually four sides adjoining the face, but these not at right angles with one another.

trapezoidal projection. Math. A projection in which straight parallels and straight converging meridians divide the field into trapezoids.

trapezoidal rule. Math. An approximate rule for determining irregular areas, by which an area, divided into trapezoids by equally spaced ordinates, equals the product of the width of a strip into the sum of the intermediate ordinates plus the arithmetical mean of the end ordinates.

trapezoidal thread. Mach. = BUTTRESS THREAD.

trap'e·zoid'i·form (trăp'ē·zoid'ĭ·fôrm), adj. Having the form or shape of a trapezoid.

trapezoid ligament. Anat. The outer and anterior fasciculus of the coracoclavicular ligament.

trap'fall' (trăp'fôl'), n. A trap door opening downwards; a pitfall.

trap fisher. One who fishes with a trap net.

trap hatch. A hatch with a trap door.

‖tra·pi'che (trä·pē'chä), n. [Sp.] Sp. Amer. & Phil. I. a A sugar mill; also, a sugar plantation. b A rude mill for grinding ores, minerals, etc.

trap·if'er·ous (trăp·lĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [trap rock + -ferous.] Containing traprock.

trap'light' (trăp'lĭt'), n. Any of several devices for collecting insects by attracting them into a trap by means of a light.

trap line. A line or series of traps; hence, the route along which such a line of traps is set.

trap match. A match at trapshooting.

trap nest. A nest equipped with a hinged door which closes behind an entering hen, confining her until released, used to determine the production of individual birds, etc. — trap'-nest', adj.

trap'-nest' v. t. To determine the production, etc., of domestic fowls by means of a trap nest. — trap'-nest'er, n.

trap net. Fishing. = TRAP, n., 7. trap'pe·an (trăp'ē·ăn; trā·pē'ăn), adj. [Cf. F. trappéen. See TRAP rock.] Geol., etc. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, trap.

trapped (trăpt), adj. 1. Caught in a trap; tricked into or as into a trap; unable to escape or free oneself; as, a trapped and desperate criminal.
2. Set, provided, or equipped, with a trap or traps.

trapped, adj. Jewelry. Trap-cut. See STEP CUT.

trap'per (trăp'ĕr), n. [From TRAP to ensnare.] 1. One who traps; esp., one who makes a business of trapping animals for their furs. Irving.
2. One in charge of a trap. Specif.: a A boy who attends to the opening and closing of trap doors in a mine. b A man who manages a trap for pigeon or glass-ball shooting.
3. A horse which draws a trap; also, a trappy horse. Colloq.
4. Railways. A pointsman who points, or switches, trucks or cars into a siding. Brit.

trap'ping (-ĭng), n. The action of catching something or someone in a trap; specif., the occupation of a trapper.

trap'ping, adj. That traps. — trap'ping·ly, adv.

trap'ping, n. [See 3d & 4th TRAP.] Commonly pl. An ornamental housing for a horse; a horse cloth; hence, pl., ornaments; dress; superficial decorations; external or outward signs. "These but the trappings and the suits of woe." Shak.

trap'ping, n. [D. trap step. See TRAP BRILLIANT.] Jewelry. Cutting of a gem in the form called the trap, or step, cut, or the cutting of a trap brilliant. See STEP CUT, TRAP BRILLIANT.

Trap'pist (trăp'ĭst), n. [F. trappiste.] R.C.Ch. A monk of a reformed branch of the Cistercian Order established in 1664, at the monastery of La Trappe, in Normandy. The discipline is extremely austere, including frequent religious exercises, the first at 2 A.M., much study, prolonged fasts, manual labor, restricted diet, and perpetual silence except with superiors and confessors, or in choir. The order was introduced into the United States in 1848. In 1892, at the instance of Leo XIII, the Trappists were united with the Cistercians under the title Order of Reformed Cistercians. — Trap'pist, adj.

trap'pist (trăp'ĭst), n. = TRAPPER, 1.

Trap'pist·ine (-ĭs·tĭn), n. [F.] 1. R.C.Ch. One of an order of nuns affiliated with the Trappists, instituted in 1796.
2. [not cap.] A liqueur made by Trappist monks.

trap'poid (trăp'oid), adj. [trap + -oid.] Pertaining to, or resembling, trap, or traprock.

trap'pose (trăp'ōs; cf. -OSE), adj. [From TRAP rock.] Of, pertaining to, resembling, or containing, trap, or traprock.

trap'py (-ĭ), adj. 1. Of the nature of, or constituting, a trap, or snare; abounding in traps; as, trappy holes in a path; trappy golf links.
2. Having a short, quick, rather high, gait; — said of a horse.

trap'py, adj. = TRAPPOSE.

traps (trăps), n. pl. Personal belongings; esp., what one carries with him on a trip or expedition. See 3d TRAP, 2.

trap'shoot' (trăp'shōōt'), n. A match at trap shooting.

trap'shoot'ing (trăp'shōōt'ĭng), n. Sport. Shooting at pigeons liberated, or at glass balls or clay pigeons sprung into air, from a trap. — trap'shoot'er (-ĕr), n.

trap shot. 1. A trapshooter.
2. Tennis, etc. A half volley.

trap stair or stairs. A staircase or ladder leading to a trap door.

trap'stick' (trăp'stĭk'), n. A stick used in playing the game of trapball.

trap tree. 1. The jack, which furnishes a kind of birdlime.
2. Forestry. A tree deadened or felled for the purpose of luring insect pests where they can easily be destroyed.

trap tuff. Petrog. A tuff composed of traprock material.

trap weir. A weir built in the form of a trap net.

trap window. A glass trap door.

trash (trăsh), n. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Nor. dial. trask trash, tras twig(s), ON. tros fallen leaves and twigs, rubbish.] 1. Something no longer useful or not usable; tattered, worn-out, broken up, or otherwise worthless, thing or things; refuse; rubbish; as, household trash; furniture reduced to trash.
2. Specif.: a Loppings, twigs, and leaves of trees, bruised sugar cane, corn husks, etc. In the West Indies the decayed leaves and stems of canes are called field trash, the bruised or macerated rind is cane trash.
The elephants . . . had stamped the . . . cane to trash, the trash into slivers. Kipling.
b Something in a crumbled or broken condition or mass; as, coral trash; specif., trash ice.
3. Someone, something, or a class of persons or things, condemned as worthless, of no account, despicable, or the like. Cf. WHITE TRASH. Specif.: a Nonsense; balderdash.
"Now what is the meaning of all this trash?" said Nigel. Scott.
b Rabble; riff-raff. "Put a bullet past his ear, just to let the trash know the sound of it." Churchill. c Obs. Money, regarded as dross.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

trash bag	trash can	trash pile
trash barrel	trash gatherer	trash shield trash (trăsh), v. t.; TRASHED (trăsht); TRASH'ING. 1. To free from trash or refuse; hence, to lop; crop; as, to trash trees; to trash sugar-cane ratoons.

2. To treat as trash; specif., Cards, to discard as useless.

trash (trăsh), v. i. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Sw. traska to jog, trudge, thrash, beat.] Now Dial. To trudge or tramp; to plod about. — v. t. To jade or wear out with exertion.

trash (trăsh), v. t. [OF. trachier, var. of tracier to trace, to track, chien traçant a tracking dog, a sleuthhound, and E. TRACE, v.] 1. To hold back by a leash, as a dog in pursuing game; hence, to retard, encumber, or restrain; to clog; to hinder vexatiously.
2. To conceal (a trail) by taking to water. Local, U. S.

trash, n. [See TRASH to hold back.] A collar, leash, or halter, used to trash a dog; hence, any hindrance.

trash'er·y (trăsh'ĕr·ĭ), n. Trash; rubbish.

trash ice. Broken or crumbled ice mixed with water.

trash'trie (trăsh'trĭ), n. Trash; rubbish; — esp. of food and drink. Scot.

trash turner. An appliance in a sugar mill, consisting of a metal bar and plate which guide the partly crushed canes between the top and back rollers.

trash'y (trăsh'ĭ), adj.; -I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); -I·EST. Like trash; containing much trash; worthless; useless; of no account; as, a trashy novel.
Syn. — Cheap, rubbishy. Ant. — Worthwhile, valuable.

Trask'ite (trăsk'ĭt), n. Eccl. Hist. A Seventh-Day Baptist; — so called in the 17th century, after the leader John Trask.

trass (trăs), n. [D. tras (whence G. trass).] Petrog. A light-colored volcanic tuff resembling pozzuolana in composition and occurring especially on the lower Rhine, where it is ground for use as a hydraulic cement.

Tras·te've·rine (trăs·tā'vā·rĭn), adj. [It. trasteverino, fr. L. transtiberinus.] Of or pertaining to the Tras·te've·re (-rā), the region across the Tiber (Lat. trans Tiberim) from Rome. — n. An inhabitant of the Trasteverine region.

tra'sy (trā'sĭ), n. A spaniel.

trat'ler (trăt'lĕr), n. One who trattles. Scot.

trat'tle (trăt'l), n. & v. Prattle; chatter; gossip. Scot.

‖trat'to·ri'a (trăt'tō·rē'ä), n. [It.] An eating house.

trau'lism (trô'lĭz'm), n. [Gr. traulismos a lisping, fr. traulizein to lisp, to mispronounce.] A stammering or stuttering.

trau'ma (trô'mä), n.; pl. -MATA (-mä·tä), -MAS (-mäz). [NL., fr. Gr. trauma.] 1. Med. An injury or wound, or the resulting condition.
2. Psychiatry. A mental shock; a disturbing experience to which a neurosis may be traced.

trau·mas·the'ni·a (trô'măs·thē'nĭ·ä; trô·măs'thē·nĭ'ä), n. [NL.] Med. Traumatic neurasthenia.

trau·mat'ic (trô·măt'ĭk), adj. [LL. traumaticus, fr. Gr. traumatikos, fr. trauma, traumatos, a wound.] Med. Of, pertaining to, or resulting from, a trauma; caused by a wound, injury, or shock; as traumatic rheumatism or neurasthenia. — trau·mat'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

traumatic aneurysm. Med. An aneurysm in which the bulging is due to mechanical injury of the coats of the vessel and not to disease.

traumatic cataract. Med. A cararact in which the opacity of the crystalline lens is due to mechanical injury, usually a wound perforating the lens capsule.

traumatic fever. Med. Fever following injury, because of infection at the injured site or absorption of autolytic products of tissue killed by the injury.

trau·mat'i·cine (trô·măt'ĭ·sēn; -sĭn; 157), n. [See TRAUMATIC.] Also -cin. Pharm. A 5 per cent solution of gutta-percha in chloroform, used in dentistry and surgery as a protective covering.

traumatic neurasthenia. Med. Neurasthenia developing after injury.

traumatic neurosis. Med. A form of neurosis, seen esp. in soldiers in active warfare, caused by injuries and fear.

trau'ma·tism (trô'mä·tĭz'm), n. 1. Med. The morbid condition of the system due to a trauma; improperly, a trauma.
2. Plant Pathol. Natural or artificial wounds or injuries of plant tissues or organs.

trau'ma·tize (-tīz), v. t. Surg. To wound or injure, esp. while operating.

trau'ma·to- (trô'mä·tō-), traumat-. A combining form, Greek traumato-, traumat-, from trauma, traumatos, meaning a wound, as in traumatology, traumatism.

trau'ma·tol'o·gy (trô'mä·tŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [traumato- + -logy.] The science or description of wounds.

trau'ma·to·ne'sis (trô'mä·tō·nē'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. traumato- + Gr. nēsis a spinning.] Surg. Suture of a wound.

trau'ma·top·ne'a, trau'ma·top·noe'a (-tŏp·nē'ä), n. [NL., fr. traumato- + Gr. pnoē, pnoiē, breath.] Med. Passage of air in and out through a wound in the thorax during respiration.

trau'ma·to'sis (-tō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. traumat- + -osis.] Med. Traumatism.

trau'ma·trop'ic (-trŏp'ĭk), adj. Biol. Of or pertaining to or characterized by traumatropism.

trau·mat'ro·pism (trô·măt'rō·pĭz'm), n. [Gr. trauma, traumatos, wound + -tropism.] Biol. A modification of the orientation of an organ, notably a plant root, as a result of wounding. — trau'ma·trop'ic (trô'mä·trŏp'ĭk), adj.

‖Träu'me·rei' (troi'mĕ·rī'), n. [G.] Dreaming; reverie.

Traut'vet·te'ri·a (trôt'vĕ·tē'rĭ·ä), n. [NL., after Ernst Randolph Trautvetter, Russ. botanist.] Bot. A genus of herbs (family Ranunculaceae) having as the only known species T. carolinensis, the false bugbane.

trav'ail (trăv'āl; -l), n. [OF., fr. travaill(i)er. See TRAVAIL, v.; cf. TRAVEL, n.] 1. Labor; toil; esp., painful effort or exertion; also, a laborious task; a heavy piece of work.
2. The labor of childbearing; parturition.
3. Hence, severe agony; racking pain; pangs; suffering; as, to endure much travail of spirit.
4. Obs. a A completed work; esp., a literary work. b An eclipse, as of the sun. c Travel; a journey.

trav'ail, v.; TRAV'AILED (-āld; -ld); TRAV'AIL·ING. [ME. travailen, travellen, to labor, to travel, fr. OF. traveillier, travaillier, to labor, toil, be in labor, torment, fr. (assumed) VL. tripaliare, fr. tripalium (LL. trepalium) an instrument of torture, fr. L. tripalis having three stakes. See TRI-; PALE stakes. Cf. TRAVEL, v.] Transitive: 1. To trouble; torment; harass. Archaic.
Troubles . . . sufficient to travail the realm. Heyward.
2. To put to laborious work; to work hard; to drive. Obs.
—, Intransitive: 1. To labor hard; to toil; also, to be overburdened by strain of body or agony of spirit.
Come unto me all that travail and are heavy laden, and I will refresh you. Matt. xi. 28 [Bk. of Common Prayer.]
2. To suffer the pangs of childbearing; to be in labor.
3. To travel. Obs.

tra'vail' (trā'vāl'y'; trā·vāl'), n.; pl. TRAVAILS (trā'vāl'y'; trā·vālz'). [F., fr. (assumed) VL. tripalium. See 1st TRAVAIL; cf. TRAVOIS.] 1. A frame for confining a horse. Cf. TRAVE.
2. [Can. F.] = TRAVOIS 1.

trav'ail·er (trăv'āl·ĕr; -l·ĕr), n. [OF. travailleor (F. travailleur).] A laborer. Obs.

‖Tra'vail'leurs' de la Mer', Les (lā trā'vā'y'ŭr' dĕ lā mâr'). [F., The toilers of the sea.] A novel (1866) by Victor Hugo.

tra·vale' (trā·vāl'; trā·vä'lā), n. [Origin uncert.] Music. A vibrant effect in tambourine playing, produced by rubbing across the head of the instrument with the wetted finger or thumb. When made in half the time it is called double travale.

tra·val'ly (trā·văl'ĭ), n. [Origin obscure.] Obs. a = REVEILLE. b A disturbance; to-do.

trav'at·ed (trăv'ăt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Divided into traves; — of a ceiling.

trave (trāv), n. [ME., fr. OF. trave a beam, travée space between two beams, fr. L. trabs a beam. See THORP.] 1. [Cf. TRAVERSE, adj. & n.] Arch. A crossbeam; a bay of joists; hence, a division or bay, as in a ceiling, made by or as by crossbeams.
2. [Cf. TRAVAIL frame.] A frame to confine an unruly horse or ox while shoeing.
She sprung as a colt doth in the trave. Chaucer.

trave. Dial. var. of THRAVE.

trav'el (trăv'ĕl; -l), v.; -ELED (-ĕld; -ld) or -ELLED; -EL·ING or -EL·LING. [Prop., to labor, and the same word as travail.] Intransitive: 1. To travail. Obs.
2. To journey to a distant place or to many places; to proceed from one place (to another) by rail, boat, etc.; to make a journey including many places, esp. for sightseeing; as, to travel alone, first-class to New York, for one's health.
3. Specif.: a Now Dial. To go on foot; to walk. b To go on a circuit, as an itinerant preacher. c To journey from place to place selling, taking orders, collecting accounts, etc.; as, he travels for this business house.
4. To pass; to move from point to point; to be transmitted; as, light rays travel with incredible speed.
5. To stand transportation, as perishable produce.
6. Slang. To move briskly.
7. Mach. To move in a given direction or path, or through a given distance; as, the crankpin travels in a circular path.
—, Transitive: 1. To travail; to torment. Obs.
2. To journey over or through; to traverse; as, to travel the continent. "I travel this profound." Milton.
3. To cause or force to journey; as, to travel stock.
4. To cover or visit as a commercial traveler; as, to travel a given territory.

travel bodkin. See BODKIN (sense 5).

trav'el, n. 1. Travail. Obs. exc Scot.
2. Act of traveling, or passing, going, or moving, in any way; passage; movement; as, a year spent in travel.
3. A journey, esp. to distant or unfamiliar places; a trip; a tour; — now chiefly pl. exc. in attributive or dialect use; as, to write a book about one's travels.
4. pl. Hence, an account, esp. in book form, of such travels; also, travel literature in general or as a type.
Men read travels, history, philosophy, theology. Agnes Repplier.
5. Traveling power; speed in movement.
6. The number of those traveling, or by extension, of the vehicles, trains, etc., carrying them; the amount of traffic; as, travel was very heavy this summer.
7. Mach. Motion, esp. reciprocating motion, along a given line of direction; as, an even travel on a lathe carriage; also, the length of stroke; as, a travel of four inches.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

travel agent	travel-infected	travel-soiled travel-bent	travel-jaded	travel-spent travel book	travel literature	travel-stained travel-broken	travel-loving, adj.	travel-tainted travel-changed	travel-mad	travel-tattered travel-disordered	travel-met	traveltime travel-enjoying, adj.	travel-opposing, adj.	travel-tired travel-famous	travel-parted	travel-toiled travel-formed	travel-planning, adj.	travel-weary travel-gifted	travel-sated	travel-worn trap'e·zo·he'dra, n., pl. of TRAPEZOHEDRON.

trap'hole', n. = TROU-DE-LOUP.

trap'ish (trăp'ĭsh), adj. [From trapes, traipse, slattern.] Slatternly. Obs.

trap'like', adj. See -LIKE.

trap'mak'er, n. See MAKER. — trap'mak'ing, n. & adj.

trap'per, n. = 3d TRAPPING; — chiefly pl. Obs. exc. Hist.

trap'per-like', adj. See -LIKE.

trap'pi·ness (trăp'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs), n. See NESS.

trap'pous (trăp'ŭs), adj. = TRAPPOSE.

trap'rock', n. Petrog. = 6th TRAP. — trap'rock', adj.

trapse. Var. of TRAIPSE.

trapt. Archaic and ref. sp. past part. of TRAP, 5.

tras·form'ism (trăs·fôr'mĭz'm), n. = TRANSFORMISM, 3.

trash'i·fy (trăsh'ĭ·fī), v. [See -FY.] = TRASH, v. i., 1.

trash'i·ly, adv. of TRASHY.

trash'i·ness, n. See -NESS.

trash'less, adj. See -LESS.

trash'rack', n. = 8th RACK, 6.

trasht. Trashed. Ref. Sp.

Tras'i·me'nus, Lake (trăs'ĭ·mē'nŭs). = LAKE TRASIMENUS. See BATTLE, Table.

trau'chle. Var. of TRACHLE. traumat-. = TRAUMATO-.

trau'ma·ta, n., pl. of TRAUMA.

trau'ma·top'y·ra (trô'mä·tŏp'ĭ·rä), n. See -PYRA. [-TACTIC.]

trau'ma·to·tac'tic, adj. See trau'ma·to·tax'is, n. See -TAXIS.

trau·neen', Var. of TRANEEN.

traunt. ✝ TRANT, TRUANT.

traunt'er (trănt'ĕr). Var. of TRANTER. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

tra·va'do (trd·vā'dō), n. [Pg. travados, pl.] A tornado. Obs.

trav'ail·ous, adj. [OF. travaillos.] Laborious; wearisome. Archaic. [OUS. Obs.

trav'ail·some, adj. = TRAVAILtravas. ✝ TRAVERSE.

trav'aux' (trá'vō'). Erron. pl. of 3d TRAVAIL.

trav'eled, trav'elled (trăv'ĕld; -'ld), adj. 1. Having made journeys, esp. in foreign or unfamiliar places; esp., of persons, having gained knowledge or experience by traveling. "Our traveled gallants." Shak.
2. Frequented, or showing signs of being frequented, by travelers; as, a traveled route or footpath.
3. Geol. = ERRATIC, adj., 4.

trav'el·er, trav'el·ler (-ĕl·ĕr), n. 1. One who travels. Specif.: a Now Rare. A wayfarer; a wanderer. b Now Dial. & Local. A tramp; a tinker; a swagman. c A traveled person; one given to travel; also, one who writes or tells of his travels; as, a born traveler; these are just traveler's tales. d A commercial traveler. e Law. See GUEST, n., 4.
2. A beast or bird with respect to its speed in covering ground, running, flying, etc.; as, this horse is a good traveler.
3. Com. A sales ticket given to a customer in some retail stores for use at various counters or departments, each purchase being entered so that all may be paid for together.
4. Mach. Any of various devices for carrying or suspending something being transported laterally; esp., a crab or winch moving on an elevated track, used esp. in erecting steel bridges or other large work; also, a traveling crane.
5. Naut. a An iron ring encircling a rope, bar, spar, or the like, and sliding thereon, as the ring on the inboard block of the sheet of a fore-and-aft sail. b A bar or rod running transversely on the deck on which a ring in one end of the sheet or the block of a sheet tackle of a fore-and-aft sail slides; — called also more properly horse and traveler iron.
6. Ring Spinning. Short for RING TRAVELER.
7. Theater. A mechanism by which performers are made apparently to fly.

traveler crane. A traveling crane. See CRANE, n., 3 (2).

traveler iron. Naut. = TRAVELER, 5 b.

trav'el·er's check (trăv'ĕl·ĕrz). A draft issued by a banker and payable by any of the correspondents of the issuing banker. A number of such checks of small amounts answer the purpose of a letter of credit.

trav'el·er's–de·light', trav'el·ler's–de·light', n. = GROUNDNUT 2 a.

trav'el·er's–grass', trav'el·ler's–grass', n. Settler's twine.

trav'el·er's–joy', trav'el·ler's–joy', n. Any of several climbing species of Clematis, esp. the virgin's-bowers C. vitalba of Europe, C. virginiana of America, and C. brachiata and C. thunbergii of South Africa.

traveler's letter of credit. See LETTER OF CREDIT b (1). traveler's palm. The traveler's-tree.

trav'el·er's–tree', trav'el·ler's–tree', n. A tree (Ravenala madagascariensis), of Madagascar having distichous bananalike leaves, the petioles of which contain large quantities of clear, watery sap, yielding a refreshing drink.

trav'el·ing, trav'el·ling (trăv'ĕl·ĭng), adj. 1. That travels; that is or accompanies a traveler; belonging to, carried or used by, or suited for, one that travels; as, a traveling companion; traveling bags, clothes, or equipment; a traveling salesman.
2. That moves as along a fixed course or from place to place; not stationary or confined to a station; circulating; moved or sent from point to point; as, a traveling winch; a traveling circus or art collection.
☞ PHRASES are:

traveling agent	traveling derrick	traveling hoist traveling bag	traveling elevator	traveling inspector traveling case	traveling examiner	traveling tinker traveling crab	traveling grate	traveling trunk traveling apron. See APRON, n., 15 e.

traveling backstay. Naut. A backstay formerly used attached to the mast by a traveler sliding up and down with the yard.

traveling carriage. A carriage, or vehicle, designed for long-distance travel before the introduction of railroads.

traveling clinic. A clinic (sense 3 c) not confined to a station, but offering its services when and where needed.

traveling clock. A small clock or large watch mounted in a folding leather case that serves as an easel when opened.

traveling crane. See CRANE, n., 3 (2); BRIDGE CRANE.

traveling fellowship. A fellowship whose terms permit or direct the holder to travel or go abroad for study or research.

traveling library. A collection of books loaned by a State library commission, library, or the like, to a library, organization, individual, or group, usually for circulation.

traveling man. = COMMERCIAL TRAVELER.

traveling museum. An art collection loaned to schools, clubs, etc., on terms approximating those of traveling libraries.

traveling nut. Mach. A nut that travels on the screw when the latter is turned, the nut being constrained from rotating.

traveling platform, sidewalk, etc. A contrivance on the principle of the flat horizontal endless belt or conveyer, for transporting objects or persons through a limited distance.

traveling rings. Gymnastics. Swinging rings arranged in a row. Cf. FLYING RINGS.

traveling salesman. One who travels and solicits orders for goods; esp., one who represents a particular concern, as a wholesale house, and who often sells after exhibiting samples.

traveling staircase or stairs. = ESCALATOR.

traveling steady. Mach. A follow rest.

Traveling Stock Reserve. Australian Land Law. Lands specially reserved by the crown to be used as stock routes, to facilitate the passage of livestock.

traveling table. Mach. A table or platform arranged to move on rollers, wheels, or the like.

traveling tympan. See TYMPAN, n., 4.

travel of a projectile. Ordn. The distance to the muzzle from the projectile's base when in its seat in the bore.

trav'e·logue (trăv'ĕ·lôg; 185), n. [travel + -logue.] Also trav'e·log. A talk or lecture on travel, usually with illustrations, as with the stereopticon or motion pictures. — trav'e·logu'er (-lôg'ĕr), n.

travel ration. A daily ration supplied to troops when traveling otherwise than by marching and separated from cooking facilities.

travel shot. See SHOT, n., 17.

travel sickness. Med. Sickness due to the conditions of travel, as car sickness.

Travels with a Donkey in the Cévennes (sā'vĕn'). An autobiographical account (1879) of a journey in the mountains of southern France, by Stevenson.

Trav'ers (trăv'ĕrz), n. A retainer of Northumberland in Shakespeare's 2 Henry IV.

trav'ers·a·ble (trăv'ĕr·sȧ·b'l; trȧ·vûr'-), adj. 1. Capable of being traversed, or passed over; as, a traversable desert.
2. Deniable; specif., Law, such as is proper to be traversed in pleading; as, a traversable presentment.

trav'ers·al (trăv'ĕr·sȧl; -s'l; trȧ·vûr'-), n. Act or an instance of traversing.

trav'er·sar'y (trăv'ĕr·sĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -sĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. traversus, transversus. See TRAVERSE, adj.] Astrol. Transiting a planet, house, or the like; hence, ill-omened; — said of planets.

trav'erse (trăv'ĕrs; -ûrs; trȧ·vûrs'), v.; TRAV'ERSED (-ĕrst; -ûrst; -vûrst'); TRAV'ERS·ING (-ĕr·sĭng; -vûr'sĭng). [OF. traverser, fr. (assumed) VL. transversare. See TRAVERSE, adj.] Trans.: 1. Now R. a To transpierce; to cause to penetrate. "[Torture] traversing the human heart." Browning. b To cross as with a line or lines; to bar, stripe, etc.
2. To cross by way of opposition; to act contrary to; to run or go counter to; to thwart; as, to traverse positive instructions; my opinion traverses yours.
3. To lie or extend across; to cross. "A small bridge, which traverses a rivulet." Borrow.
4. To move or travel across; to cross; as, ships that traverse the ocean; a current traversing a wire; also, to cross and recross; to move backwards and forwards over, as in patrolling; as, to traverse a beat; often, to journey across or over; to cover the extent of, as in perambulating or touring; as, to spend a year in traversing the Continent.
5. To pass over and examine; to survey or study carefully. The essential individuality of the paintings traversed. R. Cortissoz.
6. Rare. a Obs. To discuss; to argue. b To turn, so as to divert, propel, or the like; to shift. c To trace at one stroke (a circle, etc.). d To delineate.
7. Carp. To plane across the grain of the wood, esp. as a preliminary to trying up, as a board or a floor.
8. Chiefly Technical. To move or turn laterally.
9. Law. In pleading, to deny formally (an allegation of fact made by the opposite party); to make a traverse of. Specif.: a Criminal Law. To deny or take issue upon (an indictment); hence, to delay (a trial) by some objection. b To deny or impeach the validity of (an inquest of office).
10. Skiing. To ski up or down (a slope) at an angle to the straight line of ascent or descent.
——, Intransitive: 1. To move across or over; to cross over; also, to cross to and fro; to advance and retreat; to pace, step, or run, back and forth, as in dancing, dodging, etc.; hence, figuratively, to shift; alternate.
2. To move or turn laterally; to swivel; pivot.
3. Falconry. To make the body move from side to side, as a hawk.
4. Fencing. To slide one's blade toward the opponent's hilt while exerting prolonged pressure on his blade.
5. Hunting. To carry a gun sideways and in a position dangerous to others.
6. Manège. To execute a traverse (sense 14).
7. Mountaineering. To make a traverse ascent of a cliff; also, to ascend by means of a traverse (see sense 16).
8. Surv. To make a traverse survey.
9. Skiing. To traverse a slope.
Syn. — See DENY.

traverse a yard. Naut. To brace a yard fore and aft.

trav'erse (trăv'ĕrs; -ûrs), n. [OF. travers, fr. L. transversum cross direction or position (see TRANSVERSE, adj.); OF. traverse, fr. traverser to traverse (see TRAVERSE, v.).]
1. Something that traverses or lies or is laid across; a crosspiece, as a rung of a ladder, a crossbeam, a transom of a cross, a bar, etc.; hence, often, a barrier, partition, or the like. Specif.: a Hist. A sliding door, movable screen, curtain, or the like. b A wooden partition, as between stalls. c Obs. A natural partition, as the diaphragm. d Rare. A transverse stripe, streak, fissure, or the like.
2. Hence, compartment or recess formed by a partition, curtain, or screen; specif., Scot., a stable stall.
3. Something that traverses, or goes counter to, one's plan, wish, project, etc.; an obstacle; reverse. Now Rare.
4. Obs. a A controversy; quarrel. b A trick; subterfuge.
5. The action or an instance of traversing; a crossing; a passage or journey across; also, Obs., a passing through a toll gate, or the like.
6. A route or way across; a road, channel, or the like.
7. Arch. a Any lateral member or structure across an interior or an opening, as a transom, or a screen, railing, etc., used as a barrier. See CHAMBRANLE. b Obs. Scot. A screened stall in a church or chapel. c A gallery or loft of communication from side to side of a church or other large building.
8. Engin. A zigzag road or course up a steep grade.
9. Fencing. Act or position of traversing. See v. i., 4.
10. Fort. A projecting wall or bank of earth in a trench to protect the occupants of a trench from enfilade fire or to localize shell bursts. Formerly, a parapet from which to attack enfilading lines.
11. Gun. The turning of a gun in the horizontal plane so as to point it in any direction.
12. Law. A formal denial of some particular matter of fact alleged by the opposite party in any stage of the pleadings. A traverse regularly tenders an issue of fact. A technical traverse is one preceded by an inducement, or introductory affirmative matter. Such a traverse when preceded by a general inducement and denying all that is last alleged on the opposite side is a general traverse; when beginning with an absque hoc (which see), or sometimes other equivalent words, as et non, and following in general the words of the allegation traversed, it is a special traverse. A common traverse is one without the absque hoc of inducement and amounting to a direct denial in common negative language. The common and general traverse must conclude to the country; the special traverse may do so.
13. Mach. A traversing, or lateral, movement, as of the saddle of a lathe carriage; also, a device for imparting such movement.
14. Manège. A forward oblique movement of a horse, with tail turned to one side and head to the other.
15. Mil. Lateral movement of a piece about a pivot to effect change of direction of fire.
16. Mountaineering. a One of the divisions of a traverse (sense 8); a path cut across the face of a cliff or wall; also, the cliff thus traversed. b A climb up one side of a mountain and down the other.
17. Navig. The zigzag course or courses made by a sailing ship with contrary winds; a compound course.
18. Surv. a = TRAVERSE SURVEY. b A line surveyed across a plot of ground.
19. Skiing. Act of traversing; also, the course followed in traversing, or a zigzag in it.

trav'erse (trăv'ĕrs; -ûrs), adj. [OF. travers, fr. L. transversus, past part. of transvertere to turn or direct across. See TRANSVERSE.] Lying across; being in a direction across something else; lying or laid laterally; transverse; also, Obs., oblique; as, traverse trenches; traverse work.

trav'erse (trăv'ĕrs; trȧ·vûrs'), adv. Formerly often travers. [Cf. F. travers breadth, extent from side to side, à travers, en travers, de travers, across, athwart. See TRAVERSE, adj., TRAVERSE, n.] Traversely; crosswise.

trav'erse, prep. Across. Obs.

traverse board. Naut. A small board having four points of the compass marked on it, and for each point eight holes bored (one for each half hour in a watch), formerly used to record the courses made by the ship in each half hour.

traverse circle. Ordn. A circle or track, usually of iron, on which the wheels of a heavy gun carriage move when the gun is traversed.

trav'ersed (trăv'ĕrst; -ûrst), adj. Transverse; held or laid cross-wise; also, furnished, as a fortification, with traverses.

traverse drill. Mach. A machine tool for drilling slots, in which the work or tool has a lateral motion back and forth; also, a drilling machine in which the spindle holder can be adjusted laterally.

traverse feed. Mach. A feed in a lateral direction.

traverse flute. Music. = TRANSVERSE FLUTE.

traverse jury. Law. A trial jury; a petit jury.

trav'ers·er (trăv'ĕr·sĕr; trȧ·vûr'sĕr), n. 1. Someone or something that traverses.
2. A form of conveyer, as one for moving fuel to furnaces.
3. A turner who works with a traverse shaper.
4. Law. One who traverses, or denies.
5. Railroads. A transfer table.

traverse rail. Spinning. A rail which has a vertical traversing motion and on which the bobbins rest.

traverse sailing. See SAILING, 1.

traverse shaper. Machine Shop Practice. See SHAPER, 4.

traverse survey. Surv. A survey in which a series of lines joined end to end are completely determined as to length and azimuth, these lines being often used as a basis for triangulation, — used esp. for long narrow strips of country, as for railroads.

traverse table. a Naut. & Surv. A table giving the difference of latitude and departure corresponding to any given course and distance. It contains the lengths of the two sides of a right-angled triangle, usually for every quarter of a degree of angle, and for all lengths of the hypotenuse, from 1 to 100. b Railroads. = TRANSFER TABLE.

traverse wind. Naut. An adverse wind, esp. one blowing directly into a harbor when the ship is bound out. Rare.

trav'ers·ing (trăv'ĕr·sĭng; trȧ·vûr'sĭng), n. Act of one that traverses; also: a Mach. Lateral motion, esp. of a tool. b Surv. Act of making a traverse survey.

traversing bridge. A movable bridge, consisting of a girderlike structure which can be drawn backward.

traversing circle. Ordn. = TRAVERSE CIRCLE.

traversing crane. A traveling crane. See CRANE, n., 3 (2).

traversing gear. Gun. The gear used in traversing a gun.

traversing jack. = TRAVERSING SCREW JACK.

traversing mandrel. Mach. A mandrel that traverses; or moves longitudinally; specif., a mandrel in a suitable support, and usually driven by a separate belt, for securing to a lathe carriage or the like, as in order to carry a reamer.

traversing screw jack. A screw jack which, besides the raising and lowering device, has a base piece with a slideway along which the jack proper can be traversed; — called also swing jack. See 4th JACK, Illust.

tra·ver'sion (trȧ·vûr'shŭn; -zhŭn), n. A traversing; also, a traverse, as of a cross. Rare.

trav'er·tine (trăv'ĕr·tĭn; -tēn), n. Also trav'er·tin. [It. travertino, tivertino, tevertino, fr. L. lapis Tiburtinus, fr. Tibur an ancient town of Latium, now Tivoli.] Mineral. Crystalline calcium carbonate, either aragonite or calcite formed by deposition from spring waters, especially from hot springs. Some of the more compact varieties are known as onyx marble; porous, friable varieties are sometimes referred to as calcareous tufa. It is used for building. — trav'er·tine, adj.

trav'es·ti·er (trăv'ĕs·tĭ·ĕr; -ĭs-), n. One who travesties.

trav'es·ty (trăv'ĕs·tĭ; -ĭs·tĭ), adj. [F. travesti, past part. of travestir to disguise, to travesty, It. travestire, fr. L. trans across, over + vestire to dress, clothe. See VEST.] Disguised so as to be ridiculous; parodied. Obs.

trav'es·ty, n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [From TRAVESTY, adj.]
1. A burlesque translation or imitation; a literary or artistic imitation, grotesquely incongruous in style, treatment, or the like; a parody; also any grotesque likeness of something else.
The second edition is not a recast, but absolutely a travesty of the first. De Quincey.
2. A transvesting; a disguise esp. one effected by wearing garments of the other sex.
Syn. — See CARICATURE.

trav'es·ty, v. t.; TRAV'ES·TIED (-tĭd); TRAV'ES·TY·ING. To make a travesty of; to parody; burlesque; also, to disguise, as by transvesting.

Tra·via'ta, La (lä trä·vyä'tä). [It., the woman gone astray.] An opera (1853) by Verdi, based on the story of Dumas's (Dumas fils) Camille but transferred in time to the era of Louis XIV.

tra'vis, tra'viss (trā'vĭs), n. [Var. of TRAVERSE, n.] A partition between stable stalls; also, a stall. Dial.

tra·vois' (trȧ·voi'), tra·voise' (-voiz'), n.; pl. TRAVOIS (-voiz'), TRAVOISES (-voiz'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). [Can. F. See TRAVOY.] 1. A primitive vehicle, formerly used by the Plains Indians of North America, consisting of two trailing poles (travois poles) serving as shafts for dog or horse, and bearing a platform or net for the load.
2. A bag or receptacle of skin or leather suspended between travois poles and used for carrying articles.
3. Logging. A small sled, without tongue, made from the natural fork of a tree and used in skidding logs on stony or bare ground; — called also go-devil.

tra·vois', or tra·voy', road (trȧ·voi'). [See TRAVOIS, TRAVOY.] = SKID ROAD a.

tra·voy' (trȧ·voi'), v. t. & i. [Can. F. See TRAVAIL frame.] To haul in or by a travois.

tra·voy', n. = 1st TRAVOIS, 3.

trawl (trôl), n. 1. A dragnet; specif., a large bag net with some device for keeping its mouth open, which is dragged at the bottom of the sea; a beam trawl. It is used in gathering forms of marine life.
2. A fishing line, often a mile or more long, anchored at the ends, having many short lines bearing hooks, used for catching cod, halibut, etc.; a boulter.

---

trav'el·a·ble, trav'el·la·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — trav'el·a·bil'i·ty, trav'el·la·bil'i·ty, n. trav'eld. Traveled. Ref. Sp.

trav'el·dom, n. See -DOM. trav'el·er·ess, n., fem. of TRAVELER. trav'el·er·like', adj. See -LIKE.

trav'el·ing-head' shap'er. See SHAPER, 4. trav'el·la·bil'i·ty, n. See TRAVELABLE. trav'ell, trav'elled, etc. Vars. of TRAVEL, TRAVELED, etc.

trav'erse·ly, adv. of TRAVERSE. trav'erse·wise', adv. See -WISE. trav'erse·work', n. See -WORK. trav'erst. Traversed. Ref. Sp.

travest, v. t. [F. travestir.] To travesty. Obs. trav'es·teere', v. t. To travesty. Obs.

trav'es·tid. Travestied. Ref. Sp. trav'es·ti·ment (trăv'ĕs·tĭ·mĕnt), n. = TRAVESTY, n., 2. travice. ✝ TRAVERSE.

trawl (trôl), v. i. & t.; TRAWLED (trôld); TRAWL'ING. [Prob. var. of TRAIL.] To fish or catch with a trawl; also, erroneously, to troll.

trawl'boat' (trôl'bōt'), n. A boat used in trawling.

trawl'er (-ẽr), n. A person or craft that fishes or dredges by trawling.

trawl'er-man (-mǎn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A fisherman who uses a trawl.

tray (trā), n. [ME. tray, trey, fr. AS. trēg, trieg, trīg; akin to OSw. trŏ a wooden grain measure, and E. TREE.] 1. An open wooden vessel; esp., a shallow wooden bowl, trough, mason's hod, etc.; as, a chopping tray. Chiefly Dial.
2. Any open receptacle with a flat bottom and a low rim for holding or carrying articles; as, a waiter's tray; a trunk tray; a lidless low-rimmed box, as one with compartments for displaying wares or specimens; as, a jeweler's or a peddler's tray; often, a small flat plate, as of brass, silver, or the like; as, a card tray; an ash tray.
3. Specif., a tray (sense 2) on which the dishes and food for a meal are carried to one's room; as, the nurse brought in the tray; send a tray up to Blank's room.
4. A hurdle, as for folding sheep. Dial. Eng.
5. The releasable part of a tram fender. Brit.
6. Cards. A card holder used in duplicate play.
7. Ordn. A flat or curved piece of metal used to hold ammunition or any part of the mechanism of a gun; specif., in heavy cannon, a brass or steel part (called also plugtray) of the breech mechanism hinged on the rear.
☞ PHRASES are:

tray elevator	tray filler	tray handle tray emptier	tray frame	tray maker tray, v. t. To arrange on trays, as fruits for dehydration.

tray, n. The tres-tine of a deer's antler.

Tray (trā), n. [Cf. TROW, TRUE.] A name for a dog, as in Shakespeare's King Lear.

tray, n. [AS. trega.] Obs. a Anguish. b Fatigue. c Trouble.

tray (trā), v. t. [OF. traïr (F. trahir). See TRAITOR, TRAIN, n.] To betray. Obs.

tray. Var. of TREY.

tray cloth. A cloth used under dishes on a meal tray.

tray conveyer. Mach. A form of chain conveyer with trays of finger construction, used for picking up and transporting material.

tray'-top' ta'ble. Also tray table. A tea table with a raised edge, rim, or gallery, as on a tray.

Tre-. A prefix, signifying town, in personal and place names of Cornish origin; as, *Tre*lawney; *Tre*velyan.

By Tre, Ros, Pol, Lan, Car, and Pen,
(i.e. by Town, Heath, Pool, Church, Fort, and Height) Ye shall know the most Cornishmen. Camden.

treach'er-ous (trĕch'ẽr-ŭs), adj. [OF. trecheros, -us. See TREACHERY.] 1. Characterized by or manifesting treachery; violating, or capable of violating, allegiance or faith pledged; traitorous; perfidious; as, treacherous soldiers.
2. Having an appearance that belies; untrustworthy; unreliable; unstable; esp., providing insecure footing or support; as, the treacherous sands or floor.
Syn. — Faithless, false, insidious, plotting. See DISAFFECTED.
Ant. — Loyal, steadfast, trustworthy, faithful, devoted.
— treach'er-ous-ly, adv. — treach'er-ous-ness, n.

treach'er-y (-ĭ), n.; pl. -ERIES (-ĭz). [ME. trecherie, tricherie, fr. OF. trecherie, tricherie, deceit, trickery, lying (F. tricherie trickery), fr. trichier, trechier (F. tricher), to cheat, trick, of unknown origin. Cf. TRICK.] 1. Violation of allegiance or of faith and confidence; treasonable or perfidious conduct, character, or act; perfidy; treason. "By treachery slain." Gray.
The one person who . . . understood her treacheries. S. Kaye-Smith.
2. Something treacherous, or offering unstable or unreliable support. Rare.

trea'cle (trē'k'l), n. [ME triacle a sovereign remedy, theriac, fr. OF. triacle (F. thériaque), fr. L. theriaca an antidote against venom, fr. Gr. thēriakē, fr. thēriakos of wild or venomous beasts, fr. thērion a beast, a wild beast, dim. of thēr a beast. See FIERCE; cf. THERIAC.] 1. Old Med. A remedy against poison. See THERIACA, 1.
2. Hence, a sovereign remedy; a cure. Obs.
Christ, which that is to every harm treacle. Chaucer.
3. Molasses; sometimes, specif., the molasses which drains from the sugar-refining molds; —called also refiners' sirup and sugarhouse molasses. In the United States molasses is the common name; in England, treacle.
4. Something treaclelike: a Rare. A sirupy juice of a tree or plant. b A heavily sweet cloying tone of voice, compliment, manner, or the like.

trea'cle, v. t. To smear or sweeten with treacle; also, to trap (moths) by so smearing tree trunks. — v. i. To flow or issue forth as slowly as treacle; also, to smear tree trunks with treacle. "Treacling for moths." H. G. Wells.

Treacle Bible. See BIBLE, 2. treacle mold or mould. A rounded mold or nosing somewhat deeply undercut. — treacle molding.

Treacle Mold.

treacle mustard. Any of several plants of the mustard family (Brassicaceae), as Cheirinia cheiranthoides, the wormseed mustard, formerly used as an ingredient in Venice treacle, Conringia orientalis, etc.

treacle sleep. A sound sleep. Carlyle.

treacle water. A cordial variously prepared from a number of ingredients, as hartshorn, roots of various plants, flowers, juices of plants, wines, etc., distilled or digested with Venice treacle. It was once esteemed as a drug.

treacle wormseed. The wormseed mustard.

trea'cle-wort' (trē'k'l-wûrt'), n. The pennycress Thlaspi arvense.

trea'cly (trē'klĭ), adj. Like, composed of, or as cloying as, treacle. — trea'cli-ness (-klĭ-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

tread (trĕd), v.; past tense TROD (trŏd); past part. TROD'DEN (trŏd''n), TROD; pres. part. & verbal n. TREAD'ING. [ME. treden, fr. AS. tredan; akin to OFris. treda, OS. tredan, D. & LG. treden, G. treten, OHG. tretan, ON. trotha, Sw. trāda,träda, Dan. træde, Goth. trudan, Skr. dravati runs, melts, flows, drāti runs, hastens, Gr. dromos a running, Skr. dramati he runs. See TRAMP; cf. DROMEDARY, TRADE, TROT.] Transitive: 1. To step or walk on; to move about over, esp. by walking; to follow, as a path or road. Now Poetic. "I trod your level lawn." Gray. "The highway which we all tread." Shelley.
2. To execute by stepping, or dancing; as, to tread a measure.
3. To beat or press by walking or stamping upon; to crush, pack, quench, break up, etc., with the feet; — with down, out, over, etc.; as, countless footsteps have trodden a path to his door; to tread a grass fire out; specif., to thresh (grain), to express the juices of (grapes), or to wash (clothes), by walking or tramping upon.
4. To subdue or repress as if by trampling under foot; to conquer by crushing or oppressing.
We tread them under that rise up against us. Ps. xliv. 5.
5. To copulate with; to cover; — said of male birds.
6. To step upon (a treadle, pedal, etc.) in order to impart motion. See TREAD WATER.
7. Archery. To brace (a bow) by pressing the foot against its center.
—, Intransitive: 1. To walk; to move on foot; variously, to pace, dance, pick one's steps, etc.; as, to tread cautiously on the ice.
Ye that . . . stately tread, or lowly creep. Milton.
2. To set foot; to put one's foot; to step; as, to tread on a snake. "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread." Pope.
3. To set foot so as to press, crush, injure, etc.; to trample; — with on or upon; as, to tread upon the grapes.
4. To copulate; — said of birds, esp. the males.
5. To yield to treading or being trodden upon; to be affected by tramping or trampling. Chiefly Dial.
6. Archery. To tread a bow.

tread on or upon. To follow closely. "Year treads on year." Wordsworth.

tread on air. To be highly elated; to be ecstatic with joy.

tread on one's corns, toes, etc. To give offense unintentionally by encroaching on one's rights or privileges, wounding in a tender spot, etc.

tread on the neck of. To oppress; to trample upon.

tread the boards or stage. To act as a stage player; to perform a part in a drama.

tread under foot. To trample; despise; destroy.

tread water. To keep the body nearly upright in the water and the head above water by a treading motion of the feet, usually aided by the hands.

tread (trĕd), n. 1. A mark left by treading or made by a tread (sense 4), as a footprint, a trail of footprints, a beaten track, a rut of a wheel, or the imprint of a tire tread.
2. Act of treading; also, manner or style of stepping or walking; action; gait; sometimes, the sound of one's tread; as, a nimble or a cautious tread.
3. Trade; customary course or occupation; employment; labor. Scot.
4. That part of a thing which treads or is trodden upon; specif.: a The part of the sole of a shoe or boot that touches the ground. b The part of a wheel that bears on a road or rail, as, in automobiles, the thickened face of the tire; also, the part of a rail on which the car wheels bear. c Arch. The upper horizontal part of a step, on which the foot is placed; also, the width of this, or the horizontal distance between consecutive risers; as, a stair with a 12-inch tread. See BRIDGEBOARD, Illust. d Fort. The top of the banquette, on which soldiers stand to fire over the parapet.
5. The act of copulation in birds; — used esp. of males.
6. The feel, or feeling, to the foot. Rare.
Green of mossy tread. Keats.
7. A pit in which clay is soaked for the pug mill.
8. a The cicatricle of a bird's egg. b The chalaza of a bird's egg. Cf. TREADLE.
9. Naut. The length between perpendiculars of a keel.
10. Vehicles. The distance in inches between the central points of contact with the ground of the two front wheels or the two rear wheels. Cf. WHEEL BASE.
11. Veter. Any injury of one foot by another, as in overreaching; — of horses.

tread'board' (trĕd'bōrd'; 181), n. Arch. The board forming the tread of a stair.

tread'er (-ẽr), n. One who or that which treads. Specif.: a Rare. (1) A treadle. (2) A tread. (3) One on a treadmill. b One who treads down cloth, clay, etc.; also, one who works a tread or a treadle.

tread'ing (-ĭng), n. The act of one that treads; that which is trodden upon or made by treading.

trea'dle (trĕd''l), n. [ME. tredyl, fr. AS. tredel. See TREAD.] 1. In a machine actuated by foot power, a swiveling or lever device pressed by the foot to drive the machine. It usually operates a crank by means of a connecting rod. When the treadle is attached directly to the end of a crank, as in a bicycle, it is usually called a pedal. Also, any analogous device, as a lever actuated by a passing train to operate an alarm at a crossing.
2. The chalaza of a bird's egg; — so called because formerly believed to be a result of copulation.

trea'dle, v.; TREA'DLED (-'ld); TREA'DLING (trĕd'lĭng). Transitive: 1. To operate by a treadle.
2. To tread over (clay); as, a brickmaker, with boards or wooden shoes on his feet, treadles clay to pick out stones.
—, Intransitive: 1. To operate a treadle; specif., to proceed by pedaling a bicycle.
2. To tread. Dial. Eng.

trea'dler (trĕd'lẽr), n. One who treadles; specif., an operator of a treadling machine.

tread'mill' (trĕd'mĭl'), n. 1. a A mill worked by persons treading on steps on the periphery of a wide wheel having a horizontal axis, and used, formerly, chiefly in prison discipline. b A mill worked by horses, dogs, etc., treading an endless belt, and used esp. on stock farms and ranches to exercise bulls difficult to control, as well as to develop their power for belt operations.
2. Any wearisome routine.

tread'mill', v. i. To work a treadmill or as though on a treadmill.

tread'-soft'ly (trĕd'sŏft'lĭ; 185), n. Spurge nettle.

tread'wheel' (-hwēl'), n. A wheel turned by persons or animals, by treading, climbing, or pushing with the feet, upon its periphery or face. See TREADMILL, 1.

tread'son (trē'z'n), n. [ME. tresun, treisun, traisoun, fr. OF. traison (F. trahison), fr. L. traditio a giving up, a delivering up, fr. tradere to give up, betray. See TRAITOR; cf. TRADITION.] 1. The betrayal of any trust or confidence; treachery; perfidy; breach of faith. Now Rare.
2. In general, the offense of attempting by overt acts to overthrow the government of the state to which the offender owes allegiance, or (in monarchies) to kill or personally injure the sovereign or his family.
3. Specif., in early English law, the betrayal of a lord by his vassal; later, in early feudal law, the violation by a vassal of his allegiance to his superior by any of various undefined acts of a serious nature, such as betrayal to an enemy, adultery with his wife, forgery of his seal, etc. Treason was of two kinds, high treason, when committed against the king, and petit, or petty, treason, when committed by a vassal against his lord or superior. The Treason Act (25 Edw. III, c. 2, 1351) restricted petty treason to: the killing of a husband by his wife, of a master by his servant, and of a prelate by an ecclesiastic owing obedience to him. The same statute defined high treason under five different heads (compassing or imagining the death of the king, queen, or their eldest son and heir; violating the king's companion [queen], his eldest daughter unmarried, or the wife of the king's eldest son and heir; levying war against the king in his realm; giving aid and comfort to the king's enemy; slapping the chancellor, treasurer, or the king's justices while administering justice). Orig. high treason was marked off from all other crimes by a peculiarly ghastly punishment (hanging, drawing, and quartering), by being unclergyable, and by the fact that the traitor's land was forfeited to the king instead of escheating to the lord. See FELONY, 2. Petty treason is now punished only as murder; high treason remains now essentially as under the Treason Act, which was confirmed and made perpetual by 57 Geo. III, c. 6. In the United States treason against the United States is defined by the Constitution (Art. III, sec. 3) to consist "only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving aid and comfort to them." Most of the State constitutions similarly define treason against the State. Cf. 1st MISPRISION, 1.
4. An act or instance of treason, in any sense.
Syn. — See SEDITION. Ant. — See LOYALTY.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

treason-breeding, adj.	treason-hatching, adj.	treasonmonger treason-canting, adj.	treason-haunted	treason-sowing, adj.

trea'son (trē'z'n), v. t. & i. To commit treason (against).

trea'son-a-ble (-ə-b'l), adj. Pertaining to, consisting of, or involving, treason, or partaking of its guilt; as, a treasonable act; treasonable negotiations.
Syn. — Treacherous, traitorous, perfidious.
Ant. — Loyal, faithful.
— trea'son-a-ble-ness, n. — trea'son-a-bly, adv.

Treason Act. = STATUTE OF TREASONS.

treason felony. Law. Any of various acts partaking of the nature of treason which were (by the Treason Felony Act, 1848) made punishable as felonies, with a milder penalty than death, to facilitate conviction. The acts included devising to deprive or depose the king from the style, honor, or royal name of the imperial crown of the United Kingdom, or of his dominions, or to levy war against him, to compel changes of measures by force of intimidation, etc. Eng.

trea'son-ist (trē'z'n-ĭst), n. One who commits treason.

trea'son-ous (-ŭs), adj. Treasonable. — -ous-ly, adv.

treas'ur-a-ble (trĕzh'ẽr-ə-b'l), adj. Worthy of being treasured; precious.

treas'ure (trĕzh'ẽr; 277), n. [ME. tresor, tresour, fr. OF. tresor, fr. L. thesaurus, fr. Gr. thēsauros a store laid up, treasure, of uncert. origin. Cf. THESAURUS.] 1. Money, jewels, plate, or the like, hoarded up; esp., a stock or store of money in reserve; riches; wealth; as buried treasure.
2. A thing of great worth or value; something or someone esteemed as rare or precious; as, a house full of treasures; the new friend is a treasure.
3. A valuable store, accumulation, or reserve supply; a collection of precious things; a thesaurus.
4. A treasure house or chest; storehouse; treasury. Obs.
5. Value; worth; as, a crown of great treasure. Rare.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

treasure-baited	treasure-filled	treasure quest treasure-bearing, adj.	treasure hunt	treasure room treasure box	treasure hunter	treasure seeker treasure chamber	treasure hunting	treasure-seeking, adj.
treasure chest	treasure-laden treas'ure, v. t.; -URED (-ẽrd); -UR-ING (-ẽr-ĭng). 1. To collect and deposit, as valuables, for future use; to lay up; to hoard; hence, to hold or keep as precious; to cherish, as in the mind; — often with up; as, to treasure up gold; to treasure a recollection, or an old letter.

2. To provide or store with treasure; to enrich. Rare.
Syn. — Prize, value; store. Ant. — Disregard, reject.

treasure city. A city for stores and magazines. Ex. i. 11.

treasure house. A building where treasure is kept; hence, any place or collection where many things of value can be found; as, old records are a treasure house to historians.

Treasure Island. A romance of adventure (1882) by Robert Louis Stevenson. It tells of a quest for buried treasure. See SILVER, JOHN.

treasure of merit. R.C.Ch. The superabundant satisfaction of Christ for men's sins and the excess of merit of the saints to eternal life forming a store effective to the salvation of others. See TREASURY OF THE CHURCH.

treas'ur-er (trĕzh'ẽr-ẽr), n. 1. One who is entrusted with the keeping, guarding, or disbursing, of a treasure or treasures; specif., a guardian of a collection of treasures, as in a church; a curator.
2. One in charge of a treasury; an officer who receives the public money arising from taxes and duties, or other sources of revenue, takes charge of it, and disburses it upon orders made by the proper authority; also, one who has charge of collected funds, as those of private societies or business corporations.
3. One who lays up something; a hoarder. Obs.

treasurer general. The chief financial officer of any of certain countries, as of Persia since 1911.

Treasurer of the Household. The officer of the English royal household next in rank to the Lord Steward, usually a peer or a peer's son, and a member of the ministry. See PRECEDENCE.

treasurer of the United States. An officer of the Treasury Department who has charge of all government moneys, and pays warrants properly drawn and countersigned.

treasure ship. A vessel with a cargo of gold, silver, jewels, etc.; esp., in the 16th century, such a ship returning from the New World to Spain.

treas'ure-trove' (trĕzh'ẽr-trōv'; 66), n. [treasure + OF. trové (F. trouvé), past part. of trover to find (F. trouver). See TROVER.] 1. Law. Any money, bullion, or the like, found in the earth, or otherwise hidden, the owner of which is not known. In England under the common law such treasure belongs to the crown; whereas similar treasure found in the sea, or upon the surface of the land, belongs to the finder if no owner appears. In the United States the right has seldom or never been claimed by the States.
2. Figuratively, a discovery, or something discovered, that is full of treasures.

---

trawl board. See OTTER TRAWL. trawld. Trawled. Ref. Sp. trawl line. = TRAWL, n., 2. trawl'net', n. = TRAWL, n., 1. traw-neen'. Var. of TRANEEN. tray boy. = BUS BOY.
tray'-full, n. See -FUL. tray'like', adj. See -LIKE. traypse. Dial. Eng. var. of TRAIPSE. trays. † TRACE.
tray'-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED.
tray-trip. † TREY-TRIP. traz'zo (trăt'so). Var. of TERRAZZO. treach'er (trĕch'ẽr), n. Also treach'er-er. [ME. trechour, trichour, fr. OF. tricheor (F. tricheur). See TREACHERY.] A cheater; a traitor. Obs. treach'e-tour, n. A treacher. Obs. trea'cl. Treacle. Ref. Sp. trea'cle-like', adj. See -LIKE. treading mill. = TREADMILL. treague (trēg), n. [ML., It., & Pr. tregua, fr. Goth. triggwa; akin to E. TRUCE.] A truce. Obs. trea'son-ful, adj. See -FUL. trea'son-ish, adj. See -ISH. trea'son-less, adj. See -LESS. trea'son-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. trea'ure-less, adj. See -LESS. treas'ur-er-ship', n. See -SHIP. treas'ur-ess (trĕzh'ẽr-ĕs; -ĭs), n., fem. of TREASURER.

treas'ur·ous (trĕzh'ĕr·ŭs), adj. Precious. Obs.

treas'ur·y (trĕzh'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-Iz). [ME. tresorie, fr. OF. tresorie.] 1. A place or building in which stores of wealth are deposited; esp., a place where public revenues are deposited, kept, and disbursed; hence, the place of deposit and disbursement of any funds.
2. [often cap.] That department of a government which has charge of the finances; in the United States, the Treasury Department (see DEPARTMENT, 4). In Great Britain the Treasury is under the Chancellor of the Exchequer.
3. Any repository for treasure or treasures; treasure house.
4. A storehouse of information, etc.; — used in old titles of books.
5. Rare. a Obs. A treasure. b A treasury note or bill.
6. The weekly payment of a company. Theatrical Slang.
7. [cap.] Antiq. A beehive tomb (which see); as the Treasury of Atreus; the Treasury of Minyas.

treasury bench. The first row of seats on the right of the Speaker in the House of Commons, occupied by the Prime Minister (usually the First Lord of the Treasury) and other ministers. Eng.

treasury bill. Finance. A short-term obligation issued by the government at a discount and redeemed at par. Brit.

treasury bond. a Eng. = EXCHEQUER BOND. b [pl.] See TREASURY STOCK.

treasury certificate. Finance. A certificate of indebtedness issued by the United States Treasury.

Treasury Department. See DEPARTMENT, 4.

treasury letter. A Parliamentary whip or call, issued by the Government.

treasury note. 1. U. S. Finance. A currency note or bill issued from the Treasury Department, and receivable in payment of dues to the government; esp., one issued in payment for silver bullion purchased under the act of July 14, 1890, the so-called Sherman Act.
2. English Finance. See CURRENCY NOTE.

treasury of the Church. R.C.Ch. The treasure of merit laid up by Christ and the saints which the Church can dispense through indulgences.

treasury savings certificate. A registered, nontransferable certificate of the United States government, issued between 1921 and 1924, in denominations of $25, $100, and $1,000 maturity value five years from date of issue, the interest rate being about 4½ per cent per annum compounded semiannually, if held to maturity.

treas'ur·y·ship', n. = TREASURERSHIP.

treasury stock or bonds. Issued stock or bonds of an incorporated company held by the company itself.

treasury warrant. A warrant for the payment of money into or from a public treasury.

treat (trēt), v.; TREAT'ED; TREAT'ING. [ME. treten, fr. OF. tretier, traitier (F. traiter), fr. L. tractare to draw violently, to handle, manage, treat, v. intens. fr. trahere, tractum, to draw. See TRACE, v.; cf. ENTREAT, RETREAT, 1st TRACT, TRACTABLE, TRAIT, TREATY.] Intransitive: 1. To negotiate; to consider terms of accommodation, settlement, or the like; as, to send envoys to treat with the French government, or to treat for peace.
2. To handle a subject, esp. in writing or speaking; to discourse; to give an exposition; — now usually with of; as, Cicero treats of old age and of duties.
3. To pay another's expenses for a meal, drink, or the like, at a public place; to bear the expense of other's entertainment; as, it is my turn to treat.
—, Transitive: 1. To negotiate with a view to settling or arranging; to discuss the terms of. Now Rare.
2. To deal with (a subject, theme, etc.); to discuss, expound, or argue; as, to treat a controversial question with great delicacy; also, to give artistic or literary treatment to; to represent, present, etc., in a specified manner, style, etc.; as, to treat the Arthurian legends in a series of frescoes.
3. To bear oneself toward; to assume an attitude or form of behavior to; to use; as, to treat a horse cruelly or an old man with reverence; also, to regard (as such) and act toward or deal with accordingly; as, to treat life as a joke.
4. Obs. a To attend to; to be concerned with. b To handle; manipulate; touch. c To control; govern; lead. d Entreat; urge; solicit. e To honor; favor; to show kindness to. f To speak or discourse to; to address.
5. To entertain, feast, or show hospitality to; to give gratification, esp. of appetite for food or drink, to; more narrowly, to bear the expenses of entertaining, or feasting; to pay for a treat to; specif., to order and pay for a drink or drinks for; — commonly with to; as, to treat oneself to a trip or a friend to the theater; soldiers must not be treated.
6. To care for (a patient) medically or surgically; as, to treat one for rheumatism or with X rays; also, to seek cure or relief of (a disease, etc.); as, to treat a bruise with hot applications.
7. To subject to some action, as of a chemical reagent; as, to treat a substance with sulphuric acid; often, to subject (a natural or manufactured article) to some process to improve its appearance, taste, usefulness, etc.; to process; as, to treat rugs by washing; port is a wine that is treated.
8. To bring or put a person or thing into a specified or implied condition by treating.

treat (trēt), n. [See TREAT, v.; cf. TREATY.] 1. The act or an instance of treating. Specif.: a Obs. A parley; conference. b Obs. An entreating. c An entertaining; a standing the expense of others' meals or drinks; as, the treat is mine today.
2. Obs. a A plaster. b A treatise. c [F. trait. See 3d TRACE.] A harness trace. d [Cf. TRAIT.] Rare. A feature.
3. Treatment; the way in which one is treated; specif., reception or welcome. Obs.
4. A repast; a feast; now usually, an entertainment, as a picnic, given without expense to those invited; as, to arrange a school treat.

When the tir'd glutton labors through a treat. Pope.

5. That which affords gratification or pleasure; a great satisfaction; a cause of joy, delight, or, sometimes, amusement; as, the concert was a rich treat. "He's a treat." Galsworthy.

treat, n. Bran of medium coarseness. Now Dial.

treat'a·ble (trēt'ȧ·b'l), adj. [ME. tretable, fr. OF. traitable, fr. L. tractabilis. See TREAT; cf. TRACTABLE.] 1. Easily managed; tractable; responsive to treatment.
2. Obs. a Conciliatory; pleasant; moderate. b Tangible.
3. That may be treated or processed; as, treatable fabrics. — treat'a·ble·ness, n. — treat'a·bly, adv.

treat·ee' (trēt·ē'), n. One who is treated. See -EE.

treat'er (trēt'ĕr), n. One who or that which treats. Specif.: a One who treats with chemicals, as timber, oil, beer, etc. b An apparatus for treating materials.

treat'ing (-Ing), n. Act of one who treats, esp. of one who treats to food and drink in a public house or the like. In Great Britain this is a statutory offense when done by a candidate to influence voting.

trea'tise (trē'tĭs or, esp. Brit., -tĭz), n. [ME. tretis, fr. AF. tretis, either fr. (assumed) OF. traiteiz, fr. traitier to treat, or fr. OF. traitiz, traitis, well made, fr. (assumed) VL. tractiicus, fr. L. trahere, tractum, to draw. See TREAT, TRACE, v.] 1. A book or article which treats a subject, esp. in a systematic manner and for an expository or argumentative purpose; a methodical discussion of the facts and principles involved and conclusions reached.
2. Obs. a An account; a narration. b A description. c A treating, or negotiating. d A treaty; a covenant.

trea'tis·er (trē'tĭs·ĕr), n. Writer of a treatise. Obs.

treat'ment (trēt'mĕnt), n. [Cf. F. traitement. See TREAT.] 1. Act, manner, or an instance, of treating, esp. of treating a person or animal, a patient, subject, or a substance, as in processing; handling; usage; as, unkind treatment of a child; to require medical treatment.
2. Entertainment; treat. Rare.
3. Something used in treating, as a fertilizer, preservative, etc.; as, the addition of soil treatments.

treat'or (trēt'ĕr), n. = TREATER. Rare.

trea'ty (trē'tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [ME. tretee, fr. OF. traité, traitié, fr. L. tractatus a handling, treatment, consultation, tractate. See TREAT; cf. TRACTATE.] 1. Treatment, esp. in speech or writing; discussion; also, a discourse; account; treatise. Obs.
2. Act of treating, esp. of negotiating; discussion aimed at an adjustment of differences, or the reaching of an agreement; diplomacy. Now Rare. "By sly and wise treaty." Chaucer.
3. An agreement or arrangement made by negotiation or diplomacy; specif., an agreement, league, or contract, between two or more states (formerly, also, by sovereigns of states), formally signed by representatives duly authorized, and usually ratified by the lawmaking authority of the state; an agreement between two or more independent states; as, a treaty of peace; a treaty of alliance; a commercial treaty. In the United States the treaty-making power is vested in the president, acting by and with the advice and consent of the Senate (Const. Art. II, sec. 2); in Great Britain it is vested in the crown (that is, the cabinet) and in France in the cabinet; in these two ratification of important treaties by the parliaments is required. Specific kinds of treaties are personal treaties, relating only to the persons of the contracting parties; real treaties, relating only to the subject matters of the compact; transitory treaties, those carried into effect once for all, and therefore complete when the act has been performed, as a treaty of cession; permanent treaties, stipulating for the continued or repeated performance of acts, as a treaty of neutrality; and mixed treaties, involving two or more of the above.

TABLE OF TREATIES

A table of fifty of the more important treaties of the world's history. In many cases they are the treaties of peace that terminated the wars enumerated in the War Table (see under WAR). For such events of world-wide significance, generally involving treaties or international agreements or alliances of one kind or another, as BERN CONVENTION, ENTENTE CORDIALE, FAMILY COMPACT, FIVE-POWER TREATY, FOUR-POWER TREATY, INTERNATIONAL PEACE CONFERENCE, KELLOGG PACT, LITTLE ENTENTE, LOCARNO PACT, LOUISIANA PURCHASE, QUADRUPLE ALLIANCE, WASHINGTON CONFERENCE, see in the Vocabulary. See Congress of Vienna, under CONGRESS, Table.

The following order of facts is given for each entry: Name; why so called; date; countries involved; terms (name of war terminated in small capitals when treated in the Table under WAR). For further information in regard to many of the place names, see the Gazetteer.

Aix-la-Chapelle; city in Germany; 1748, Oct. 18; Austria vs. Prussia & allies; ends WAR of AUSTRIAN SUCCESSION; Prussia retains Silesia; Pragmatic Sanction sustained in Austria.

Amiens; city in France; 1802, Mar. 25; England vs. France, Holland, & Spain; England restores all conquests to France but receives Trinidad from Spain, and Ceylon from Holland.

Anglo-Japanese; 1902, Jan. 30; England and Japan; mutual assistance in case of war; independence of China and Korea recognized; strengthens friendly relations of the two countries; superseded by Treaty of Versailles (1919).

Belgian Neutrality; 1831, Nov. 15; Austria, Belgium, England, France, Prussia, & Russia; Powers guarantee "perpetual neutrality of Belgium": an agreement of the London Conference, 1830–31; accepted by Holland, April, 1839.

Berlin; capital of Germany; 1878, July 13; Russia vs. Balkan States; Rumania, Serbia, & Montenegro declared independent; rights of Russia & Turkey formulated.

Bretigny; town in Normandy near Chartres; 1360, May 8; England vs. France; closes first part of HUNDRED YEARS' WAR; England renounces claim to French throne; French King John ransomed and France cedes Gascony, Poitou, Guienne, etc., to England.

Bucharest; capital of Rumania; 1913, Aug. 10; Rumania, Serbia, Greece, & Montenegro vs. Bulgaria; ends 2d BALKAN WAR; boundaries readjusted; Bulgaria retains part of Thrace, with port of Dedeagach (now Alexandroupolis), but loses parts of Macedonia to Serbia and Greece, and cedes southern Dobruja to Rumania.

Campoformio (Campoformido); town in Venezia, Italy; 1797, Oct. 17; France vs. Austria; ends first phase of NAPOLEONIC WARS; Austria cedes Austrian Netherlands (Belgium) to France, gives up Milan, and receives most of the Venetian territories.

Clayton-Bulwer; after John M. Clayton, Amer. Sec. of State, and Sir Henry Bulwer, Brit. diplomatist; 1850, Apr. 19; England and United States; provides for mutual control and protection of any ship canal or other means of transit at the Isthmus of Panama; superseded by the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

Frankfurt. See VERSAILLES (1871), below.

Ghent; city in Belgium; 1814, Dec. 24; England vs. United States; ends WAR OF 1812; all conquests restored; commissions to settle boundary disputes.

Guadalupe Hidalgo; town near Mexico City; 1848, Feb. 2; United States vs. Mexico; ends MEXICAN WAR; boundary defined; U. S. acquires New Mexico Territory and most of California and pays $15,000,000 to Mexico; Mexico gives up all claim to Texas.

Hay-Pauncefote; after John Hay, Amer. Sec. of State, and Lord Julian Pauncefote, Brit. diplomatist; 1901, Nov. 18; England and United States; supersedes Clayton-Bulwer Treaty (see above); provides for construction and regulation of (Panama) canal by U. S. alone; canal to be neutral with American police rights.

Hubertusburg (Hubertsburg): castle in Saxony; 1763, Feb. 15; Austria vs. Prussia; ends SEVEN YEARS' WAR; all German lands practically divided between Austria and Prussia.

Karlowitz; city, then in Hungary; 1699, Jan. 26; Austria, Poland, Venice, and Russia vs. Turkey; Turkey's power in Europe suppressed; all tributes paid her by Christian powers abolished; Hungary and Transylvania ceded to Austria; Podolia, Ukraine, etc., ceded to Poland.

Lausanne (1st); city in Switzerland; 1912, Oct. 15; Italy vs. Turkey; ends Italo-Turkish War; Turkey gives up Tripoli and Cyrenaica; Italy pledges return of Aegean Islands (Rhodes and Dodecanese) conditionally.

Lausanne (2d); 1923, July 23; France, Great Britain, and Italy vs. Turkey; attempts to settle Near Eastern questions arising from the World War; Turkey receives Constantinople, recognizes mandated states of Syria, Iraq, and Palestine, and confirms Italian possession of the Dodecanese; peace declared between Greece and Turkey; all foreign troops withdrawn from Turkey.

London; capital of England; 1913, Apr. 26; Balkan States vs. Turkey; ends 1st BALKAN WAR; Balkan territory redistributed; Turkey driven out of Europe except for Constantinople and small surrounding area.

Lunéville; town in eastern France; 1801, Feb. 9; France vs. Austria and Spain; ends second phase of NAPOLEONIC WARS; confirms the terms of Campoformio (see above) and restores French power in Italy; Louisiana ceded to France.

Nanking; city in China; 1842, Aug. 29; Great Britain vs. China; ends Opium War; five ports (Canton, Amoy, Shanghai, Foochow, and Ningpo) opened as treaty ports; Hong Kong ceded to Great Britain and China pays huge indemnity.

Neuilly; suburb of Paris; 1919, Nov. 27; Allies vs. Bulgaria; one of the WORLD WAR treaties; Bulgaria cedes Thrace to Greece and returns Serbian conquests; to pay indemnity in money and coal.

Nijmegen (Nimwegen); town in Holland; 1678–1679, esp. 1678, Aug. 10 & Sept. 17; 1679, Feb. 2; France vs. Holland, Spain, Austria, Sweden, and Denmark; a series of six treaties, closing war of France against Holland and her allies; leaves France (Louis XIV) at the height of her power.

Paris; capital of France; 1763, Feb. 10; England vs. France and Spain; ends SEVEN YEARS' WAR; France loses Canada and nearly all other possessions in N. America, but her fishing rights in Newfoundland and retention of St. Pierre and Miquelon recognized by England; also, she keeps St. Lucia, Martinique, and Guadeloupe. Spain cedes Florida to England but receives back Havana and Manila.

Paris (or Versailles); 1783, Sept. 3; Great Britain vs. United States (and France and Spain); ends AMERICAN REVOLUTION; independence of the United States (thirteen original States) acknowledged, boundaries established, navigation of Mississippi open to both, right of fishery on the Grand Bank granted to U. S. At Versailles on the same day Great Britain by treaty cedes Tobago and Senegal to France and Minorca and Florida to Spain.

Paris (1st); 1814, May 30; Allied Powers of Europe vs. France; French frontier of 1790 slightly increased; all colonies restored except Mauritius, St. Lucia, and Tobago; England retains Malta and the Cape of Good Hope; Germany to form a confederacy and Belgium to be united to Holland.

Paris (2nd); 1815, Nov. 20; Allies vs. France; ends NAPOLEONIC WARS; France loses all gains in frontier boundary since 1790, pays indemnity, and restores art treasures.

Paris; 1856, Mar. 30; England, France, Sardinia, and Turkey vs. Russia; ends CRIMEAN WAR; the integrity of Turkey guaranteed; Black Sea neutralized and Danubian navigation declared free; Russia restores Kars to Turkey; results (Apr. 16) in Declaration of Paris (which see).

Paris; 1898, Dec. 10; United States vs. Spain; ends SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR; Spain withdraws from Cuba, cedes Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Philippines to the U. S. and receives $20,000,000 for the Philippines.

Portsmouth; city in New Hampshire; 1905, Sept. 5; Japan vs. Russia; ends RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR; Russia acknowledges Japan's paramount interest in Korea, transfers to Japan her lease of the Liaotung peninsula, and cedes to her the southern half of Sakhalin (Karafuto); both powers evacuate Manchuria.

Prague; capital of Bohemia (Czechoslovakia); 1866, Aug. 23; Prussia vs. Austria; ends SEVEN WEEKS' WAR; German Confederation dissolved; Germany reorganized without Austria, who agrees to certain annexations to Prussia; Austria pays indemnity and Venice ceded to Italy.

Pressburg (now Bratislava); former city of Austria; 1805, Dec. 26; France vs. Austria; ends third phase of NAPOLEONIC WARS; Austria cedes Venice, Istria, and Dalmatia to Italy, Tirol and part of Swabia to Bavaria, and recognizes the independence of Bavaria, Baden, and Württemberg; leads to the formation (1806) of Confederation of the Rhine.

Rapallo; town near Genoa, Italy; 1920, Nov. 12; Italy vs. Yugoslavia; Italy receives Fiume, Zara, and Adriatic islands (Cherso, Lussino, and Unie); Istrian boundary revised; Yugoslavia retains the rest of Dalmatia.

Rastatt; city in Baden; 1714, March 7; Austria vs. France; supplements the Treaty of Utrecht and is thus one of the treaties ending the War of the SPANISH SUCCESSION; Spanish Netherlands ceded to Austria; most of the articles of the Treaty of Utrecht confirmed but France gains some privileges and territory at the expense of Germany.

Ryswick; town in Holland near The Hague; 1697, Sept. 20; France vs. England, Holland, and Spain; ends war (War of the Palatinate) between French and English; William III acknowledged king of England with Anne as his successor; England and France mutually return conquests in America; France retains Alsace; Holland restores Pondicherry to France.

Saint-Germain (Saint-Germain-en-Laye); suburb of Paris; 1919, Sept. 10; Allies vs. Austria; one of the WORLD WAR treaties; Austria recognizes independence of Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland, and Yugoslavia; cedes territory to Italy; is not to unite with German Reich; to pay reparations and surrender art treasures seized; to guarantee rights of minorities. See ARMY ORGANIZATION, Table.

San Stefano; a suburb of Constantinople; 1878, March 3; Russia vs. Turkey; ends Russo-Turkish War; Rumania, Serbia, and Montenegro recognized as independent; Bulgaria made a principality; the Porte cedes part of Armenia to Russia, pays an indemnity, and promises reforms; supplemented by Treaty of Berlin.

Sèvres; a suburb of Paris; 1920, Aug. 10; Allies vs. Turkey; one of the WORLD WAR treaties; mandates and spheres of influence of Allies in Turkish lands established; Dardanelles and Bosporus internationalized; Turkish boundaries defined; never ratified by Turkey. See Treaty of LAUSANNE (2d), above.

Shimonoseki; city in S.W. Japan; 1895, April 17; Japan vs. China; ends CHINESE-JAPANESE WAR; China acknowledges independence of Korea, cedes Formosa, Pescadores, and Liaotung Peninsula (Port Arthur) to Japan, and pays indemnity; cession of Liaotung not allowed by the Powers and indemnity is increased as compensation.

Tilsit; town in East Prussia; 1807, July 7 & 9; France vs. Prussia and Russia; ends fourth phase of NAPOLEONIC WARS; France and Russia combine to dominate Europe; Poland (Duchy of Warsaw) recognized; Prussia loses territory and Russia recognizes Confederation of the Rhine.

Tordesillas; town in Spain; 1494, June 7; Spain vs. Portugal; amends papal bull (May 3, 1493) (see BULL OF DEMARCATION) of Alexander VI, delimiting possessions of Spain and Portugal in the New World; shifts the Line of Demarcation (an imaginary line running due north and south 100 leagues west of the Azores) 270 leagues farther west; all lands discovered east of the line to belong to Portugal, those west to Spain; the basis of future claims of each in American continent.

Trianon; royal villa (Grand Trianon) at Versailles, France; 1920, June 6; Allies vs. Hungary; one of the WORLD WAR treaties; Transylvania ceded to Rumania, Croatia to Yugoslavia, and the Banat divided between them; Slovak provinces ceded to Czechoslovakia; Hungary to reduce army and armaments and to share proportionally in Austria-Hungary's debts. See ARMY ORGANIZATION, Table.

Troyes; city of northern France, near Paris; 1420, May 21; England vs. France and Burgundy; a treaty of the HUNDRED YEARS' WAR (cf. BRETIGNY above); the King of England to be regent and heir of France, to maintain French parliaments and preserve all privileges, to restore revolted towns, castles, etc., and to marry daughter of Charles VII of France.

Utrecht; city in Holland; 1713, April 11; England and allies vs. France; ends War of the SPANISH SUCCESSION; Austria gives up claim to Spanish throne and ultimately receives Spanish Netherlands (see RASTATT above); France cedes Newfoundland, Nova Scotia (Acadia), and Hudson Bay Territory to England; Spain cedes Gibraltar to England; commercial treaties signed and boundary of France determined (see BARRIER TREATY a, in Vocab.).

Vereeniging; town in the Transvaal, S. Africa; 1902, May 31; Great Britain vs. Boers; ends BOER WAR; Boers receive honorable terms but lose independence; Transvaal and Orange Free State become crown colonies with appointive legislative councils.

Versailles, or Paris. See PARIS (1783), above.

Versailles; city near Paris; 1871, Feb. 26; Germany vs. France; ends FRANCO-PRUSSIAN WAR; Alsace-Lorraine ceded to Germany; Germans occupy French territory until indemnity of five billion francs is paid; a preliminary treaty only — terms ratified by Treaty of Frankfurt, May 10, 1871.

Versailles; 1919, June 28; Allies vs. Germany; ends WORLD WAR; Part I is Covenant of the League of Nations; in Parts II–XV Allies determine German territorial cessions; provide for plebiscites in certain regions; assign control of Saar basin coal mines to France for 15 years; deprive Germany of her overseas colonies; exact recognition of independence of Belgium, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and German Austria; limit German army and navy (see ARMY ORGANIZATION, Table); create international labor organizations (see INTERNATIONAL LABOR CONFERENCE); provide for reparations; and regulate many other economic and commercial matters. See also NEUILLY, SAINT-GERMAIN, SÈVRES, TRIANON, above. See ARTICLE X.

Vienna; capital of Austria; 1735, Oct. (preliminary), and 1738, Nov. 18 (definitive); Austria and Russia vs. France, Spain, and Sardinia; ends War of Polish Succession; Stanislaus Lesczinski renounces Polish throne and receives duchies of Lorraine and Bar as compensation; Austria cedes Naples and Sicily to Spain and receives Parma and Piacenza in exchange; France guarantees the Pragmatic Sanction (which see).

Vienna (or Schönbrunn); 1809, Oct. 14; France vs. Austria; ends fifth phase of NAPOLEONIC WARS; Austria cedes (1) Tirol and part of Salzburg to Bavaria, (2) part of East Galicia to Russia, (3) West Galicia to Warsaw, (4) lands on eastern Adriatic to France (created by Napoleon as Illyrian Provinces), and breaks off all connection with England.

Villafranca; town, northern Italy; 1859, July 11; France and Sardinia (Italy) vs. Austria; ends ITALIAN WAR; Lombardy ceded to Sardinia; former rulers restored in Tuscany, Parma, and Modena; Austria retains Venice; Italy to be reorganized as a federation under the Pope; confirmed by Treaty of Zurich (1859, Nov. 10). A result of Treaty of Villafranca is the return of Nice and Savoy to France, which arouses Garibaldi to his campaign for liberation.

Washington; capital of U. S.; 1871, May 8; United States vs. Great Britain; provides: (1) for the settlement of claims concerning the Alabama (see ALABAMA CLAIMS); (2) for reference to the German emperor of the dispute as to the northwestern boundary (San Juan Islands), (3) for settlement of the fishery dispute (final award in 1877).

Westphalia; western province of Prussia (treaty signed at Münster); 1648, Oct. 24; France and Sweden vs. Germany; ends THIRTY YEARS' WAR; Netherlands and Switzerland recognized as independent; Swedish influence increased; France and Sweden guarantee the peace; in secular affairs, a general amnesty and return to condition of things in 1618; in ecclesiastical affairs, Catholic and Protestant estates to be on an entire equality; political status of modern Europe in large measure determined; principle of balance of power confirmed.

Zurich. See VILLAFRANCA, above.

4. Entreaty; esp., a proposal or proposals tending to an agreement or pacification. Now Rare.

Rejects all treaty, penetrates all wiles. Cowper.

5. Insurance. A reinsurance agreement whereby the contracting insurance companies contract to accept a stated percentage of specified insurance assumed by any one of their number; the contracting companies usually being known as treaty companies. Cf. REINSURANCE.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

treaty-bound	treaty-favoring	treaty-sealed treaty-breaking	treaty-making	treaty-secured

Syn. — CAPITULATION, CARTEL, CONVENTION, ENTENTE, MISE, TREATY, UNDERSTANDING. TREATY is often used in a broad sense to include what are specifically called capitulation, cartel, convention, etc. A CAPITULATION is an agreement between military commanders with reference to the surrender of a fortified place, army, or fleet under stipulated conditions; a CARTEL is a similar agreement with reference to the exchange of prisoners. CONVENTION is almost as widely used as treaty as a comprehensive term, but also often deals with matters that are more formal or of a more specific character. An UNDERSTANDING is a clearing away of differences between two or more states or parties, a more or less informal agreement, and ENTENTE is simply the French and more formal term for it in the language of diplomacy. An entente may or may not be set forth in a published document. A MISE (as the Mise of Amiens) is primarily the action of determining expenses, accounting, hence a settlement by agreement.

trea'ty (trē'tĭ), v. i. To make a treaty. — v. t. To affect in a specified manner by a treaty or treaty making.

Treaty Elm. An elm tree formerly standing in a suburb of Philadelphia, under which a treaty was made by William Penn with the Indians in October, 1682.

trea'ty·ist (trē'tĭ·ĭst), n. One who treaties.

trea'ty·ite (-īt), n. [See 1st -ITE, 1 b.] One in favor of a treaty; — used esp. [cap.] of the Irish Free State Treaty of 1921 (see IRISH FREE STATE ACT a). treaty maker. One who makes, draws up, or negotiates the terms of, a treaty.

treaty making. The act or process of discussing the terms of and drawing up a treaty.

treaty of guaranty. Internat. Law. An agreement between two or more powers to secure the observance or execution of specific provisions of a treaty or to require definite action on the part of one or more of the signatories if any other signatory acts adversely to the stipulations. Such treaties of guaranty were the treaty of 1831 guaranteeing the neutrality of Belgium, and the Locarno Pact of 1925.

Treaty of Mutual Guaranty. = LOCARNO PACT.

treaty port. A sea or river port, later, also an inland city, opened by treaty to foreign trade; — used esp. [often caps.] of certain ports in China, and, formerly, in Japan and Korea.

treaty reinsurance. See REINSURANCE.

Tre·bel'li·an (trē·bĕl'yăn; -bĕl'yăn), adj. Roman Law. Designating, or pertaining to, the Senatus Consultum Trebellianum, made in the reign of Nero, and named after the consul Trebellius Maximus. Under it an heir appointed subject to a fideicommissum was entitled to retain a fourth (often called the quarta Trebellianа, or Trebellian fourth or portion) of the net inheritance in any event as against the fideicommissary.

Treb'i·zond' date (trĕb'ĭ·zŏnd'). [From Trebizond, Asia Minor.] The fruit of the oleaster.

tre'ble (trĕb'l), adj. [ME., fr. OF. treble, treible, fr. L. triplus threefold. See TRIPLE.] 1. Having three parts, elements, things, uses, etc.; threefold; as, this policy gives you treble protection. "Strokes from the treble whips." Lord Dunsany.

2. Three times repeated; triple in number or amount; as, to sell for treble the price.

3. a Of, pertaining to, or having the range of, a treble (see n., 5); playing or singing treble. "To the swift treble pipe, and humming string." Keats. b Hence, high-pitched; acute; shrill. "Bob spoke with a sharp and rather treble volubility." G. Eliot.

4. Angling. Designating or pertaining to a fishhook consisting of three single hooks fastened back to back, usually with an angle of 120 degrees between adjacent hooks. Cf. GANG HOOK.

tre'ble, n. [OF., prob. orig. a third part, superadded to the alto and bass. See TREBLE, adj.] 1. Something that is treble in construction, uses, amount, number, value, etc. Specif.: a A triple barrier. b A drying rack for newly made or newly printed sheets of paper. c Cards. In short whist, a game won by a score of 5 to 0. It scores 3 rubber points. d Horse Racing. A win of three races by one horse.

2. pl. A kind of lattens. See LATTEN, 2. Eng.

3. One of a series of three, esp. three counterparts. Rare.

4. A high-pitched or shrill voice, tone, or sound; as a child's shrill treble raised in protest.

5. Music. a The highest of the four voice parts; the part sung esp. by boys or women; soprano. b A singer or instrument taking this part. c The highest bell of a ring. d A string of a treble pitch.

tre'ble (trĕb'l), v.; TRE'BLED (-ld); TRE'BLING (trĕb'lĭng). Transitive: 1. To make three times as much, many, great, etc.; to make threefold.

2. To utter in a treble key; to whine. Rare.

—, Intransitive: 1. To become threefold.

2. To sing treble; to speak or sing in a treble tone.

tre'ble, adv. Trebly. Obs.

treble best. See BEST, adj., 2.

treble block. Mach. A pulley block with three independent sheaves, usually side by side on one pintle but with partitions between.

treble bob. See CHANGE RINGING.

treble clef. Music. a The G clef. See CLEF, Illust. b Loosely, the treble staff.

tre'ble-dat'ed, adj. Living three times as long as man. Shak.

treble gear. Mach. A train of three pinions and three gear wheels on four (or sometimes three) spindles, to multiply mechanical effect. Cf. DOUBLE GEAR. — tre'ble-geared' (66), adj.

treble purchase. A purchase having two treble blocks.

tre'ble-sin'ewed (66), adj. Having threefold strength.

treble staff. Music. The staff carrying the G clef.

tre'ble·tree' (trĕb'l·trē'; -trĭ), n. An arrangement of whippletrees and equalizing bar for three horses.

treble viol. Music. A six-stringed viol an octave higher than the bass viol, used chiefly in ensemble playing.

treb'u·chet (trĕb'ū·shĕt), n. Also tre'buck·et (trē'bŭk·ĕt; -ĭt). [OF. trebuchet, trabuchet, an engine of war for hurling stones (F. trébuchet a gin, trap, a kind of balance), fr. trebuchier, trébucher, to stumble, trip, fall (F. trébucher), fr. tra-, tres-, over + buc body, trunk, of Teut. origin; cf. ON. būkr, AS. būc.] 1. A military engine of the Middle Ages for throwing stones, etc. It acted by means of a great weight fastened to the short arm of a lever, which, being let fall, raised the end of the long arm with great velocity, hurling stones with much force.

Trebuchet, 1.

2. A cucking stool. Hist.

3. A small balance or scale with a pan that tilts.

tre·cen'tist (trā·chĕn'tĭst), n. A poet or artist of the trecento.

‖tre·cen'to (trā·chĕn'tō), n. [It., three hundred, abbr. for thirteen hundred.] The fourteenth century; specif., the fourteenth-century period in Italian literature, art, etc., when Dante, Petrarch, and Boccaccio were pre-eminent in literature, and Giotto in painting. Cf. CINQUECENTO, QUATTROCENTO. — ‖tre·cen'to, adj.

trech'mann·ite (trĕk'măn·īt), n. [After Charles O. Trechmann, of Castle Eden, Durham, Eng.] Mineral. A silver thioarsenite, $Ag_3S.As_2S_3$, occurring in small red rhombohedral crystals. H., 1.5–2.

treck'schuyt' (trĕk'skoit'), n. [D. trekschuit, fr. trekken to draw + schuit a boat. A covered boat for goods and passengers, used esp. on Dutch and Flemish canals.

‖tre cor'de (trā kôr'dā). [It.] Literally, three strings; — a direction in piano music to release the soft pedal. See UNA CORDA.

Tre·cu'li·a (trē·kū'lĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Auguste Trécul (1818–96), French botanist.] Bot. A small genus of African trees and shrubs of the mulberry family (Moraceae), having undivided coriaceous leaves, dioecious flowers, and large edible fruits. T. africana is the African bread-fruit.

tred'dle (trĕd'l), n. [AS. tyrdel, dim. of tord turd.] Dung (of sheep and rabbits). Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

tre·dec'ile (trē·dĕs'īl), n. [NL. tredecilis, fr. L. tres three + decem ten.] Astrol. The aspect including 108 degrees.

tred'e·fowel' (trĕd'ē·fōōl'), n. A cock. Obs. Chaucer.

tre·dille' (trē·dĭl'), tre·drille' (-drĭl'), n. A game at cards for three.

tree (trē), n. [ME. tree, tre, treo, fr. AS. trēo, trēow, tree, wood; akin to OFris. trē, OS. treo, trio, ON. trē, Dan. træ, Sw. trä, träd, Goth. triu, W. derw an oak, OIr. daur, Gr. drys a tree, oak, dory a beam, spear shaft, spear, Skr. dru tree, wood, dāru wood. Cf. DONI, DRYAD, DURE, GERMANDER, HAMADRYAD, LARCH, 2d TAR, n., TRAY, TRIM, TROUGH, TRUE.] 1. A woody perennial plant having a single main axis or stem (trunk), commonly exceeding 10 feet in height and usually devoid of branches below, but bearing a head of branches and foliage or a crown of leaves at the summit. There is no exact line of demarcation between trees and shrubs, and many plants are capable of assuming either habit. Cf. 2d SHRUB; HERB, 1.

2. Hence, in some collocations, a shrub or bush formed like a tree; as, a rose tree; a banana tree.

3. The substance of trees; wood; timber. Archaic.

4. A piece of timber; a stick, stake, post, pole, or the like; now usually, a wooden pole, bar, lever, etc., forming a part of a structure or implement; — chiefly in composition. See -TREE.

5. Specif., a Obs. The shaft of a spear or lance. b Now Scot. A cudgel; staff. c Dial. A wooden handle, esp. of a spade.

6. Archaic. a The cross on which Jesus was crucified. b A gibbet; gallows.

7. A structure of wood; specif.: a Obs. A ship. b Scot. A barrel or cask, as of ale.

8. Something in the form of, or suggesting, a tree; specif.: a A design, diagram, or diagrammatic representation, which indicates a branching or ramification from an original stem; as, a genealogical tree. b Chem. A treelike aggregation of crystals; as, a lead tree (which see). c Med. A much-branched bodily organ or system of vessels; also, a cast of it; as, a bronchial tree; a biliary tree.

9. Short for: a BOOT-TREE, SADDLETREE, etc. b CHRISTMAS TREE.

☞ PHRASES are:

tree feller	tree holder	tree protector tree fender	tree insulator	tree tag tree guard	tree planter	tree trimmer

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

tree-banding	tree-feeding	tree-locked tree-bordered	tree-fringed	tree-loving tree-boring	tree-garnished	tree-marked tree-clad	tree-girt	tree-planted tree-climbing	tree-great	tree-planting tree-covered	tree-haunting	tree-pruning tree-crowned	tree-hewing	tree-sawing tree-dotted	tree-inhabiting	tree-shaded tree-dwelling	tree-lined	tree-skirted tree-embowered	tree-living	tree-spraying

— as trees walking. Indistinctly; without sharp outlines; — in allusion to Mark viii. 24. — up a tree Cornered; trapped. Colloq.

-tree (trē). A combining form of the noun tree, as in:

abeltree	crosstree	padtree	swingletree axletree	doubletree	plugtree	swingtree axtree	gigtree	rocktree	trebletree blacktree	hacktree	saddletree	trestletree bourtree	heeltree	singletree	whiffletree bridgetree	horsetree	summertree	whippletree chesstree	manteltree tree (trē), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to a tree or trees.

2. Wooden. Obs. exc. Dial.

3. Dwelling in or on trees; of arboreal habits.

tree (trē), v.; TREED (trēd); TREE'ING. Transitive: 1. To drive to or up a tree; to cause to take refuge in a tree; as, a dog trees a squirrel.

2. Hence, to put to one's last resource; to corner. Colloq.

3. To hang, as captured game, on a tree.

4. To furnish, construct, or plant, with a tree or trees.

5. To place upon or fit with a boot-tree.

—, Intransitive: 1. To take refuge in a tree, as an animal.

2. To become as large as a tree. Rare.

3. To take the form of a tree, as crystals.

tree agate. Moss agate when the dendritic markings resemble trees.

tree aloe. The quiver tree.

tree azalea. A tall shrub (Azalea arborescens) of the southeastern United States, often cultivated for its very fragrant, white or pink flowers, from which its showy purple stamens protrude.

tree bear. Raccoon. Local, U. S.

tree'beard' (trē'bĕrd'), n. a The long moss. b Beard moss.

tree belt. The strip of turf between the sidewalk and the curb; — so called because of the line of trees usually planted in it.

tree'bine' (trē'bīn'), n. Any of certain cultivated vines of the genus Cissus.

tree boa. Any boa of the genus Epicrates.

tree bracket. Any bracket-shaped fungus, as species of Polyporus, etc.

tree burial. Disposal of the dead by placing the corpse among the branches of a tree upon a platform, or in a hollow trunk; — esp. among certain tribes of North American Indians.

tree cactus. The saguaro.

tree calf. Bookbinding. Calfskin leather chemically treated, so as to change its color and produce on it a tree like design.

tree cat. A palm civet.

tree celandine. = PLUME POPPY.

tree class. Forestry. One of the commonly recognized size or age groups into which forest trees are divided, as seedling, sapling, standard, veteran, etc.

tree clover. The white sweet clover.

tree cobra. A mamba.

tree compass. Forestry. An instrument for measuring diameters of trees. It consists of a pair of dividers and a scale bar.

tree cony. Any of several African species of Dendrohyrax. See HYRACOIDEA.

tree cotton. a An East Indian cotton plant (Gossypium arboreum) cultivated for ornament; also, the cotton obtained from this plant. b The silk-cotton tree. c In Hawaii, a low shrub (Kokia rockii), related to the kokio, with very showy crimson flowers.

tree crab. The purse crab.

tree creeper. 1. Any creeper of the family Certhiidae; esp., the common creeper of Europe (Certhia familiaris) and its variety the brown creeper of America. Also, any of various Australian species of the genus Climacteris.

2. Any of many South and Central American clamatorial birds of the family Dendrocolaptidae with slender curved bill, stiffened tail feathers, and scansorial habits. The plumage is commonly brownish streaked with whitish.

tree cricket. Any of several nearly white arboreal American crickets belonging to the genus Oecanthus noted for their loud stridulation. O. niveus, snowy tree cricket, of the eastern United States is the best-known species.

tree crow. Any of several species of Old World crows belonging to Crypsirhina, Dendrocitta (see TREE PIE), and allied genera, intermediate between the true crows and the jays. The tail is long, and the bill is curved and without a tooth.

tree cult. = TREE WORSHIP.

tree cypress. A handsome perennial herb (Gilia rubra) of the southern and southwestern United States, with finely dissected leaves, and much cultivated for its paniculate cluster of bright-scarlet, tubular flowers; — called also standing cypress, Texas plume, trailing fire, etc.

treed (trēd), adj. Having or provided with a tree or trees; subjected to treeing; up a tree; fitted on trees, as boots.

tree dassie. A tree cony.

tree dove. A cuckoo dove or allied arboreal pigeon.

tree duck. Any of several long-legged and long-necked arboreal ducks, mostly of warm regions, of the genus Dendrocygna, allied to the sheldrakes and somewhat to the geese. They have a complete bony orbit and the plumage is usually chestnut varied with black and white. Two of the species reach the southern United States, the fulvous tree duck (D. bicolor) and the black-bellied tree duck (D. autumnalis).

---

trea'ty·less, adj. See -LESS.
tre'bl. Treble. Ref. Sp.
tre'bld. Trebled. Ref. Sp.

tre'ble·fold' (66), adj. & adv. = THREEFOLD, adj. & adv. Obs. tre'ble·ness, n. See -NESS.

treb'let. Var. of TRIBLET. tre'bly (trĕb'lĭ), adv. of TREBLE. See -LY.

‖tre'cen·tis'ta (trā'chĕn·tē-ē'tȧ), n.; pl. -TI (-tē). = TRECENTIST. trech'er·ous, trech'er·y. Treacherous; treachery. Ref. Sp. treck (trĕk). Var. of TREK, v. i. & n.

treck'pot'. Var. of TRACKPOT. tred. Tread. Ref. Sp. tred'dle. Var. of TREADLE.

Representative Trees

tree fern. 1. Any fern of arborescent habit, having a woody trunk or caudex. They belong chiefly to the families Cyatheaceae and Marattiaceae, though there are some polypodiaceous tree ferns. They are chiefly characteristic of the tropics, but are also well represented in Australia and New Zealand.

Silver Tree Fern (Cyathea medullaris). a Pinnule of Secondary Pinna, showing Sori, Nat. size.

2. a The gray polypody. b The royal fern.

tree'fish' (trē'fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-ĕz; -Iz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. A transversely banded Californian market fish (Sebastocarus serriceps) of the family Scorpaenidae.

tree frog. a In a broad sense, any tailless leaping amphibian of arboreal habits; a tree toad. See TREE TOAD. b In a narrow sense, any of numerous Old World arboreal frogs belonging to Chiromantis, Polypedates, and allied genera of the family Ranidae, as the flying frog. Their toes have suckers for adhesion.

tree fruit. Any fruit produced by a tree; also, a fruit-producing tree; — distinguished from bush fruit.

tree fuchsia. = NATIVE FUCHSIA a.

tree germander. A shrubby European germander (Teucrium fruticans), often cultivated for its blue flowers.

tree'-god', n.. A deity inhabiting a tree; also, a deified tree. Hence, tree'-god'dess, n. fem.

tree goldenrod. An ill-scented shrub (Bosea yervamora), family Amaranthaceae, of the Canary Islands.

tree goose. The barnacle goose.

tree'hair' (trē'hâr'), n. The horsetail lichen.

tree heath. a A shrubby heath (Erica arborea) of the Mediterranean and Caucasian region, cultivated for its nearly globular white flowers. b Any plant of the genus Dracaena. c A heathlike shrub or small tree (Dracophyllum scoparium) of New Zealand, with tiny white flowers in dense racemes.

tree hoopoe. A wood hoopoe.

tree hopper. Any of many small leaping homopterous insects constituting the family Membracidae, which live chiefly on branches and twigs, and injure them by sucking sap.

Tree Hopper (Thelia bimaculata). Nat. size.

tree houseleek. The houseleek tree.

tree huckleberry. The farkleberry.

tree hyrax. = TREE CONY.

tree ipomoea. Any of various shrubby ipomoeas, esp. Ipomoea crassicaulis, native to tropical America and the southern United States.

tree jobber. A woodpecker. Obs.

tree kangaroo. Any of several arboreal kangaroos of the genus Dendrolagus, mostly of New Guinea, but also represented in Queensland. They have a long, slender, furred tail, and hind legs only slightly longer than the front.

tree lark. The tree pipit. Local, Eng.

tree lily. Any plant of the genus Vellozia.

tree line. Timber line.

tree looker. A timber estimator.

tree lotus. The nettle tree Celtis australis.

tree lucern. The tagasaste.

tree lungwort. a A lichen (Sticta pulmonacea) growing on trees and rocks. The lacunose thallus suggests lung tissue, and was once used in pulmonary diseases. b The American lungwort.

tree lupine. A Californian shrub (Lupinus arboreus) with blue or violet flowers. It is naturalized in New Zealand where it is used as a sand binder.

tree'mak'er (trē'māk'ĕr), n. One who makes saddletrees, etc. — tree'mak'ing (-Ing), n. & adj.

tree mallow. Any arborescent mallow of the genus Lavatera.

tree'man' (trē'măn'; -mən), n. 1. One who dwells in a tree. 2. A forester; also, a tree surgeon.

tree marking. A mark, as a birthmark, in the form of a tree.

tree marten. The pine marten.

tree martin. A tree swallow.

tree medic. A South European shrubby medic (Medicago arborea) with yellow flowers.

tree mildew. A powdery mildew (Phyllactinia corylea) common on many trees and shrubs.

tree milk. a The milky juice of an East Indian climbing plant (Gymnema lactiferum), family Asclepiadaceae, used by natives for food. b The juice of the cow tree Brosimum galactodendron.

tree moss. a Any moss or lichen inhabiting trees. b Any moss or club moss resembling a miniature tree; specif., any moss of the genus Climacium.

tree mouse. 1. a Any of several African mice of Dendromus and allied genera of the Muridae, having long claws and living in trees. b Either of two arboreal voles of the genus Phenacomys, confined to the Pacific coast of the United States.
2. The white-breasted nuthatch. Local, U. S.

tree myrtle. a See CEANOTHUS. b Any of various species of Myrtus.

tre'en (trē'ĕn; -'n), adj. [AS. trēowen.] 1. Made of wood; wooden.
2. Relating to, or drawn from, trees; as, treen foods. Obs.

tree'nail', tre'nail' (trē'nāl'; colloq. or cant trĕn''l, trŭn''l), n. [tree+nail.] 1. A wooden pin, peg, or spike, ordinarily of dry compressed timber so as to swell in its hole when moistened, as in wooden ships. It is used chiefly for fastening planking and ceiling to the frames.
2. Arch. = 1st GUTTA, 3. Rare.

tree'nail', v. t. To fasten with treenails.

tree nymph. A dryad or hamadryad.

tree of Buddha. The bo tree.

tree of chastity. The agnus castus.

tree of heaven. An ornamental Asiatic tree (Ailanthus glandulosa) having ill-scented staminate flowers. It is often naturalized in the United States.

tree of Jesse. See JESSE, 3.

tree of knowledge of good and evil. Also tree of knowledge. The tree in the midst of the Garden of Eden whose fruit Adam and Eve tasted in spite of God's prohibition (Gen. ii. 17), thereby being driven from paradise; hence, any knowledge forbidden or withheld as destructive of one's moral or spiritual well-being; also, coveted knowledge or experience of that which is unlawful. See FORBIDDEN FRUIT.

tree of liberty. See LIBERTY TREE.

tree of life. 1. Bib. In Genesis, a tree growing in the midst of the Garden of Eden, eating of which gave everlasting life; in Revelation xxii. 2, a tree in the heavenly Jerusalem which bears twelve kinds or crops of fruit and whose leaves are for the healing of the nations; figuratively, a source of life or vigor.
2. Bot. a = ARBORVITAE, 1. b India. The Bhutan cypress. c = 1st DATE, 2.
3. Oriental Archaeol. The sacred life-preserving tree represented in the art of the ancient Near East, whence it probably was taken over by the Aegean countries. The cylinder seal was a favorite medium for the depiction of this motif, often in an extremely conventionalized manner. The seven-branched candlestick is believed to have resulted from this process of conventionalization of the tree of life.

tree of long life. A small Malaysian tree (Leptospermum pubescens) the leaves of which furnish Benkulen tea.

tree of Por'phy-ry (pôr'fĭ-rĭ). Logic. A diagrammatic representation of the logical division of the highest genus, being, or substance, by successive dichotomies; — named from its originator, Porphyry, a Roman philosopher (233–304 ?). The form of this tree which became current in medieval logic is slightly different from the original tree of Porphyry. For the medieval form, see Illust.

Tree of Porphyry.

tree of sadness. The hursinghar.

tree of the gods. The tree of heaven.

tree of the sun. The sun tree.

tree onion. A variety (Allium cepa bulbellifera) of the common onion, which produces bulbs in place of flowers.

tree orchis or orchid. Any epiphytic orchis of the genus Epidendrum.

tree partridge. a Any Central American partridge of the genus Dendrortyx. b Any Asiatic partridge of genus Arboricola.

tree peony. A shrubby Chinese peony (Paeonia suffruticosa) with biternate leaves and large, showy flowers. It is the only woody cultivated peony and is the source of many horticultural varieties.

tree pie. Any Asiatic bird of the genus Dendrocitta, allied to the magpie. The tail is long and graduated and the plumage varied with orange brown, buff, black, and white.

tree pigeon. Any of numerous arboreal pigeons of Asia, Africa, and Australia; a fruit pigeon.

tree pipit. A European pipit (Anthus trivialis) of somewhat arboreal habits.

Tree Planters State. Nebraska; — a nickname.

tree planting. The transplanting of a seedling or sapling to a permanent position; also, the exercise, or ceremony, attending such an act.

tree poke. The umbra tree.

tree poppy. a The giant poppy. b = BUSH POPPY.

tree porcupine. An American porcupine of the family Erethizontidae; esp., one of the South and Central American prehensile-tailed species of the genus Coendou.

tree primrose. The evening primrose Oenothera biennis.

tree pruner. A long pole or rod with attached shears, operated from below by means of a wire and handle.

tree'-ripe', adj. Hort. Ripening on the tree, as fruits. Cf. MARKET-RIPE.

tree root rot. = MUSHROOM ROOT ROT.

tree'-run' (66), adj. As taken from the tree without grading or sorting; — of fruits.

tree rune. Scand. Archaeol. A runic code or cipher in which oblique lines from a vertical staff indicate the position in the futhorc of any desired rune.

tree runner. A nuthatch, esp. any of certain Australian species of the genus Neositta.

tree'scape (trē'skāp), n. [See -SCAPE.] A landscape including many trees or groups of trees.

tree scribe. = BARK BLAZER.

tree shrew. A squirrel shrew.

tree snake. Any of various snakes which are usually arboreal in habits.

tree sorrel. A shrubby sorrel or dock (Rumex lunaria) of the Canary Islands.

tree sparrow. a A European sparrow (Passer montanus), smaller than the English sparrow, with a black spot on the ear coverts. b An American sparrow (Spizella arborea), larger than the chipping sparrow, breeding in northern North America and wintering in the United States.

tree'speel'er (trē'spēl'ĕr), n. The European tree creeper. Local, Eng. & Scot.

tree spirit. A tree-god or tree nymph.

tree squirrel. An arboreal squirrel; esp., a typical squirrel of the genus Sciurus, as distinguished from a ground squirrel or spermophile.

tree steppe. Phytogeog. A tract consisting predominantly of grassland, but bearing scattered and usually isolated trees, as the veld in South Africa.

tree stool. Forestry. A tree stump.

tree sugar. Maple sugar. Local, U. S.

tree surgery. Operative treatment of diseases of trees, esp. for decay. — tree surgeon.

tree swallow. a The white-bellied swallow. b An Australian and Polynesian swallow (Hylochelidon nigricans) which nests in holes in trees.

tree swift. Any of several peculiar swifts of the genus Hemiprocne (syn. Macropteryx) of India and the East Indies. They have unusually soft plumage and are mostly crested. The sexes are dissimilar and the young differ markedly from adults.

tree tiger. A leopard.

tree'tise (trē'tĭs; -tĭz). Var. of TREATISE. Obs.

tree toad. Any of numerous toadlike or froglike amphibians of arboreal habits, esp. of the family Hylidae; a tree frog. Hyla is the largest and most widely distributed genus. The Hylidae commonly have sucking disks on the digits and many of them can change their colors. Some, though small, have notably loud voices. Hyla arborea, usually green above and yellowish or whitish below, is the only European species. The common species of the eastern United States (H. versicolor) is mottled gray or green. The Pacific tree toad, H. regilla, is widely distributed in western North America. The largest species, Hyla vasta of Dominica, attains a length of five inches. Cf. SPRING PEEPER, TREE FROG.

Tree Toad (Hyla versicolor).

tree tobacco. The wild tobacco Nicotiana glauca.

tree tomato. A South American treelike shrub (Cyphomandra betacea), family Solanaceae; also, its egg-shaped reddish-brown edible fruit, which is in flavor somewhat like a tomato.

tree'top' (trē'tŏp'), n. The topmost branches or tuft of a tree; also, pl., the height or line marked by the tops of a row or clump of trees.

tree trunk. The bole, or trunk, of a tree.

tree veld. See VELD.

tree violet. A shrubby violet (Viola arborescens) of southern Europe.

tree viper. Any of several arboreal prehensile-tailed vipers of equatorial Africa, constituting the genus Atheris (family Viperidae).

tree wax. Any of various fats, waxes, or waxy secretions produced by, or found on, trees or shrubs; specif., Japan wax.

tree wool. Wood wool; esp., pine wool.

tree wormwood. A shrubby wormwood (Artemisia arborescens) of Southern Europe.

tree worship. The worship of trees as divinities or seats of divinities. The practice, once widespread among primitive and some civilized peoples, often included the making of sacrifices to, or the hanging of offerings on, trees. Cf. ASHERAH, 1; DRYAD. — tree worshiper.

tree'y (trē'ĭ), adj. Full of trees; wooded.

tref (trĕf), tre'fa (trā'fä), adj. [Yiddish trēf impure, forbidden, illegal, fr. Heb. ṭĕrēphāh an animal torn by wild beasts.] See TEREPHAH.

tref (trĕv), n. [W.] Old Cymric Law. A homestead or hamlet; specif., a group or area (called also tref'gordd' [trĕv'-gôrth'] or [trĕv'-gôrth'ĭ]) acting as a single community as regards cattle and plowing, and constituting a taxable unit. The typical trefgordd consisted of 9 houses, one plow, one oven, one churn, one cat, one cock, and one herdsman.

tre'fle (trĕf''l), n. [F. trèfle, prop., trefoil. See TREFOIL.] A trefoil-shaped thing; specif., Fort., a species of mine in the form of a trefoil.

tré'flé' (trā'flā'), adj. [F. See TREFOIL.] Her. a Having a three-lobed extremity or extremities, as a cross. b Ornamented with trefoils as a bearing.

tre'foil (trē'foil), n. [OF. and L.; OF. trefueil, fr. L. trifolium. See TRI-; FOIL leaf. Cf. TREFLE, n.] 1. The clover; any plant of the genus Trifolium; hence, any of various related trifolioliate herbs, esp. (in England) the black medic.
2. A group or a thing composed of three connected or closely related units.
3. Arch. An ornamental foliation of three divisions, or foils.
4. Her. A three-lobed flower or leaf, such as the clover leaf, shown with a stalk.

Trefoils, 3.

tre'foil, adj. Of, pertaining to, or in the shape of a trefoil; three-leaved; three-lobed.

trefoil arch. An arch having its intrados or archivolt developed into a trefoil outline. See ARCH, Illust. (12).

tre'foiled (trē'foild), adj. Made like a trefoil or with trefoils.

trefoil knot. Math. The simplest known knot, in the form of a three-lobed curve of sixth order. See KNOT, TOPOLOGY.

treg'a- (trĕg'ä-), treg- (trĕg-). [trillion + mega-, meg-, as in *meg*ohm.] Elec. Combining forms signifying one million millions (10^{18} or one trillion); as in, *tregerg, tregohm, tregad*yne.

treg'et·our (trĕj'ĕt·ĕr; -ĭt·ĕr), n. [OF. tresgeteor. See TRANS-; JET, v.] A magician; a juggler. Archaic.

tre·ha'la (trē·hä'lä), n. [Turk. tīghāleh, fr. Per. tīghāl.] A substance constituting the cocoons of a certain beetle, probably the coleopterous insect Larinus maculatus.

tre'ha·lase (trē'hȧ·lās), n. Biochem. An enzyme that accelerates the hydrolysis of treh lose.

tre'ha·lose (-lōs), n. Chem. A colorless crystalline sugar, $C_{12}H_{22}O_{11}$, obtained from trehala, ergot of rye, and many fungi, which store it instead of starch. It is a disaccharide and yields on hydrolysis two molecules of dextrose.

treil'lage (trāl'ĭj), n. [F. treillage, fr. treille vine arbor, L. trichila.] Latticework for supporting vines, etc.; an espalier trellis; also, a grill.

trei'tour, trei'tre. Vars. of TRAITOR. Obs

Treitz's lig'a·ment (trīt's'lĭz). = TREITZ'S MUSCLE a.

Treitz's muscle. [After W. Treitz (1819–72), Austrian physician.] Anat. a A band of smooth muscle extending from the junction of the duodenum and jejunum to the left crus of the diaphragm. b = RECTOCOCCYGEUS.

trek (trĕk), v.; TREKKED (trĕkt); TREK'KING. Also treck. [D. trekken. See TRACK to tow, TRACK, n.] Transitive: 1. To draw or pull; as, the oxen trekked the wagon. S. Africa.
2. To cover in trekking (see v. i.).
—, Intransitive: To travel by ox wagon; to migrate, esp. in wagons or a train of such, to a new home; hence, loosely, to make one's way slowly or arduously.

trek, n. [D.] 1. The act of trekking; a journey by ox wagon; also, a stage of such a journey. Chiefly S. Africa.
2. A migration; an expedition, esp. of a group in wagons, to a new home. See GREAT TREK.
3. Loosely, a journey; esp., an arduous journey.

trek, adj. Pertaining to or used in trekking; as, a trek cart, ox, or rope.

trek'ker (trĕk'ĕr), n. One who or that which treks.

trek·om'e·ter (trĕk·ŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [Cf. TRECHOMETER.] Mil. A field range finder used in the British service.

trek ox. A draft ox. S. Africa.

---

tree'ful, n. See -FUL. tree'hood, n. See -HOOD. tree'i·fy (trē'ĭ·fī), v. t. See -FY. Rare.
tree'i·ness (-I·nĕs; -nĭs), n. See [-NESS.] tree'less, adj. See -LESS. — tree'less·ness, n.
tree'let, n. Dim. of TREE. tree'like', adj. See -LIKE.
tree'ling, n. Dim. of TREE.
treen, n. Obs. pl. of TREE. tree'ship, n. See -SHIP. treet (trēt). Dial. var. of TREAT. treete, treetee. † TREATY. tree'ward (trē'wĕrd), adj. See -WARD. — tree'wards (-wĕrdz), adv. [TREEMAN, 2. Obs. tree'work'er (-wûr'kĕr), n. = tre·fine'. Trephine. Ref. Sp.
tre'foil-like', adj. See -LIKE. tre'foil-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED. tre'foil-wise', adv. See -WISE. treg'a·dyne' (trĕg'ȧ·dīn'), n. See TREGA-. tregedie. † TRAGEDY.
treg'erg' (-ûrg'), n. See TREGA-. treg'et, n. [See TREGITOUR.] Magic; jugglery. Obs. [TREGA-. treg'ohm' (trĕg'ōm'), n. See trek'path' (trĕk'pȧth'), n. A track or rough path established by custom and recognized in law, used for driving sheep, goats, cattle, or other farm animals. It is not a public road. S. Africa.

---

trek wagon. A large six-wheeled covered wagon used in trekking. S. Africa.

trel'lis (trĕl'ĭs), n.; pl. TRELLISES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119). [ME. trelis, fr. OF. treliz, tresliz, woven fabric (F. treillis trellis, lattice, sackcloth), fr. (assumed) VL. trilicius, for L. trilix, -icis, triple-twilled, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + licium thread, thrum. The F. word was influenced by OF. & F. treille vine arbor, fr. L. trichila.] 1. A structure or frame of latticework, used as a screen or as a support for climbing plants; also, a bower, summer house, or the like, chiefly or wholly of latticework.

2. Her. An alleged modification of the lattice in which the pieces are nailed at the joints without interlacing.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

trellis-bordered trellis-framed trellis-sheltered trellis-covered trellis-shaded trellis-woven trel'lis, v. t.; TREL'LISED (-ĭst); TREL'LIS-ING. 1. To provide with a trellis; esp., to train on a trellis, as vines.

2. To cross or interlace as in a trellis; to interweave.

trel'lised (trĕl'ĭst), adj. Having or furnished with a trellis or a trellislike design; trained upon a trellis; as, trellised roses, gardens, or cretonne.

trellised armor. A medieval armor having bands crossing at right angles, with a large rivethead or boss in each intervening square.

trellised clathrus. The fungus Clathrus cancellatus. See CLATHRUS.

trel'lis-work' (trĕl'ĭs-wûrk'), n. 1. Latticework. See LATTICE, n., 1.

2. A kind of appliqué embroidery imitating a trellis with climbing plants, done on a background which is cut away.

Tre'ma (trē'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trēma a hole; — because the drupe has holes. See THROW.] Bot. A genus of tropical shrubs and trees (family Ulmaceae) having alternate distichous leaves and cymose polygamous flowers succeeded by small drupes. T. mollis and T. lamarckiana occur in southern Florida.

-tre'ma. [NL.] Anat. & Zool. A combining form from Greek trēma, trēmatos, a hole, orifice, used chiefly in generic names, as in helico*trema*, Noto*trema*. Names of groups and orders are formed in -tre'ma·ta, as in Dero*trema*ta, Telo*trema*ta.

Tre·mad'oc slates (trĕ·măd'ŏk). [From Tremadoc, Carnarvonshire, Wales.] Geol. The richly fossiliferous, uppermost division of the Cambrian strata in Wales. They are about 1,000 feet thick.

Tre·man'dra (trĕ·măn'drȧ), n. [NL., fr. L. tremere to tremble + Gr. anēr, andros, male (taken as anther); — so named from the tremulous anthers.] Bot. A genus of two Australian species of low shrubs typifying the Tremandraceae.

Tre'man·dra'ce·ae (trē'măn·drā'sē-ē), n, pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of exclusively Australian shrubs or undershrubs (order Geraniales), comprising two genera, with solitary pink or purple regular flowers succeeded by 2-celled capsules. — tre'man·dra'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Tre'ma·to'da (trē'mȧ·tō'dȧ; trĕm'ȧ-), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. trēmatōdēs having holes, fr. trēma, trēmatos, hole + eidos form.] Zool. A class of flatworms including the flukes and their allies. See 1st FLUKE, 2. All are parasitic; most have no cellular epidermis or cilia, but have a chitinous cuticle covering the body, and suckers for adhesion. The alimentary canal is well developed. The class comprises two very different subdivisions or orders: Monogenetica and Digenetica. — trem'a·tode (trĕm'ȧ·tōd; trē'mȧ-), adj. & n.

trem'a·toid (trĕm'ȧ·toid), adj. & n. [Gr. trēma, trēmatos, a hole + -oid.] Trematode.

Trem'a·to·sau'rus (trĕm'ȧ·tō·sô'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trēma, trēmatos hole + -saurus.] Paleontol. A genus of large labyrinthodont amphibians from the Triassic rocks of Germany, having an elongated, triangular, roughly sculptured skull.

trem'ble (trĕm'b'l), v.; TREM'BLED (-b'ld); TREM'BLING (-blĭng). [OF. trembler, fr. (assumed) VL. tremulare, fr. L. tremulus trembling, tremulous, fr. tremere to shake, tremble; akin to Gr. tremein, Lith. trimti. Cf. TREMENDOUS, TREMOR, TREMULOUS.] Intransitive: 1. To shake involuntarily, as with fear, cold, excitement, fatigue, etc.; to shiver; shudder; quiver.

2. Hence, to vibrate; to move, sound, pass, etc., as if shaken or tremulous; totter; quake; as, the building trembled but did not fall.

A goat's call trembled from nowhere to nowhere. J. Stephens.

3. To feel fear, etc.; to be affected with tremulousness; to fear greatly; as, I tremble for you or to think of what might have happened.

—, Transitive: 1. To fear exceedingly; to shudder at. Obs.

2. To make tremble; to cause to tremble. Poetic.

3. To speak or say tremulously.

trem'ble, n. 1. A trembling; a fit or spell of involuntary shaking or quivering; a tremor or series of tremors; vibratory movement.

2. The American aspen (Populus tremuloides). Canada.

3. pl. Veter. A disease giving rise to muscular tremors in farm stock, esp. cows, in parts of the central and western United States. Its origin has been traced to the eating of white snakeroot and rayless goldenrod, which grow in uncultivated land. Cf. MILK SICKNESS.

trem'ble·ment (trĕm'b'l·mĕnt; trăn'blē·măn'), n. [F.] Rare. a A trembling or quivering; a tremor. b A terrifying thing; a cause of trembling. c (F. trăn'blē·măn') Music. Tremolo; also, a trill or shake.

trem'bler (trĕm'blĕr), n. 1. One who trembles; specif., Hist., a Quaker.

2. Any of certain West Indian birds of the genera Cinclocerthia and Rhamphocinclus, of the family Mimidae.

3. Elec. The vibrating hammer, or spring contact piece of a hammer break, as of the electric ignition apparatus for an internal-combustion engine. See HAMMER BREAK.

trem'bleuse' cup (trăn'blûz'). [F. trembleuse, fem., lit., a trembler.] A kind of old cup which fits into a rimmed recess or depression in its saucer.

trem'bling (trĕm'blĭng), n. The action or condition of one that trembles; specif., Veter., = LOUPING ILL.

trem'bling, adj. That trembles; shaking with fear, emotion, etc.; fearful; vibrating; quaking. — trem'bling·ly, adv. — trem'bling·ness, n.

trembling fungus. Any fungus of the order Tremellales.

trembling grass. The quaking grass Briza media.

trembling hammer. Elec., = TREMBLER, 3.

trembling poplar or tree. The aspen (Populus tremula) of Europe or its North American relative (P. tremuloides).

trembling prairie. = SHAKING PRAIRIE.

trem'bly (trĕm'blĭ), adj. Trembling; tremulous; also, shy; timid. Colloq.

Tre·mel'la (trē·mĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. tremere to tremble.] Bot. a A genus of fungi typifying the family Tremellaceae. The sporophores are yellowish and gelatinous with brainlike convolutions. b [not cap.] Any fungus of this genus. — trem'el·line (trĕm'ĕ·lĭn; -līn; 156), adj.

Trem'el·la'ce·ae (trĕm'ĕ·lā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of fungi typifying the Tremellales. — trem'el·la'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Trem'el·la'les (-lēz), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. An order of fungi (class Basidiomycetes) including the majority of the gelatinous forms. They have the basidia divided obliquely or lengthwise, usually into four parts. They occur as watery, gelatinous masses of a white, pink, orange-yellow, or black color on dead wood, agarics, etc.

tre·mel'li·form (trē·mĕl'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [Tremella + -form.] Bot. Of the form of the sporophore in Tremella.

trem'el·lin'e·ous (trĕm'ĕ·lĭn'ē·ŭs), adj. Tremellaceous.

trem'el·loid (trĕm'ĕ·loid), adj. [Tremella + -oid.] Bot. Like the sporophore of Tremella; gelatinous.

trem'el·lose (-lōs), adj. [L. tremere to tremble + dim. adj. ending.] Bot. Gelatinous.

tre·men'dous (trē·mĕn'dŭs), adj. [L. tremendus that is to be trembled at, fearful, fr. tremere to tremble. See TREMBLE.] 1. Fitted to excite trembling; such as may arouse dread, awe, etc.; terrifying; dreadful.

[A] tremendous fact in human experience; that a whole civilization should be dependent on technology. W. Lippmann.

2. Astonishingly large, great, powerful, or the like; marvelously big; extraordinary; — used intensively or hyperbolically; as, a tremendous bird, building, or speed. Colloq.

Syn. — Frightful, terrific, horrible, awful; momentous. See MONSTROUS.

Ant. — Slight, unimportant, trivial.

— tre·men'dous·ly, adv. — tre·men'dous·ness, n.

trem'e·tol (trĕm'ĕ·tōl; -tŏl), n. [L. tremere to tremble + 2d -ol.] An unsaturated alcohol, $C_{10}H_{20}O_3$, obtained as an oil of aromatic odor from the white snakeroot (Eupatorium urticaefolium). It causes trembles in animals.

trem'ie (trĕm'ĭ), n. [F. trémie hopper.] Hydraulic Engin. An apparatus for depositing and consolidating concrete under water, essentially a tube of wood or sheet metal with a hopperlike top. It is usually handled by a crane.

tre'mo·lan'do (trā'mō·lăn'dō), adj. Also tre'mu·lan'do (-mōō-). [It.] Music. Tremulous; — a direction to perform in a tremolo. — n. A tremolo effect, esp. one by strings in an orchestra.

trem'o·lant (trĕm'ō·lănt), adj. [It. tremolante.] Having a vibrant, tremolo note, as certain organ pipes. — n. An organ pipe having a tremolant note; also, a device to impart a vibration causing a tremolant sound, as in a pipe or musical instrument.

trem'o·list (trĕm'ō·lĭst), n. One who plays tremolo.

trem'o·lite (trĕm'ō·līt), n. [From Tremola, a valley in the Alps, where it was discovered.] Mineral. A white or gray variety of amphibole, occurring in long, bladelike, or short, stout crystals, and also in columnar, fibrous, or granular masses. It is essentially a calcium magnesium silicate, $CaMg_3(SiO_3)_4$. Sp. gr., 2.9–3.1. — trem'o·lit'ic (-lĭt'ĭk), adj.

trem'o·lo (trĕm'ō·lō), n.; pl. -LOS (-lōz). [It., fr. L. tremulus. See TREMULOUS.] 1. Music. a The rapid fluttering reiteration of a tone or chord without apparent breaks, so as to produce a tremulous effect. In singing it often involves a perceptible variation of pitch. b A mechanical contrivance in an organ for periodically interrupting the flow of tone, causing a tremulous effect.

2. An effect in other arts, in vibratory movements, etc., comparable to a musical tremolo.

— trem'o·lo, adj.

trem'o·lo, v. i. To sing or speak in a tremolo.

‖ tre'mo·lo'so (trā'mō·lō'sō), adj. [It.] Tremulous; with tremolo.

trem'or (trĕm'ĕr; trē'mĕr; 277), n. [OF. tremour, fr. L. tremor, fr. tremere to tremble. See TREMBLE, v.] 1. A trembling; esp., a trembling from disease or physical weakness; a shivering or shaking.

2. A quivering or vibratory motion; as, the tremor of a leaf, a ray of light, or of the earth.

3. A state of quivering excitement; a nervous thrill.

4. A headpiece or hood on some colonial cupboards. Obs.

Syn. — Quiver, vibration, shake, tremble.

trem'or, v. i. To experience tremor.

tremor disk. Astron. The enlarged image of a star as registered by a photographic telescope, the enlargement being due to the tremors of the atmosphere.

‖ trem'plin' (trăn'plăn'), n. [F.] Springboard.

trem'u·lant (trĕm'ū·lănt), adj. [ML. tremulans, -antis, pres. part.] Tremulous; trembling.

trem'u·lant, n. [It. tremolante.] = TREMOLO, 1 b.

trem'u·late (-lāt), v. i. [ML. tremulare.] To tremble; quiver. — v. t. To make tremble or quiver. — trem'u·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n.

trem'u·lous (trĕm'ū·lŭs), adj. [L. tremulus. See TREMBLE.] 1. Characterized by or affected with trembling or tremors; quivering; palpitating; shaking; vibrating; as, tremulous hands, leaves, or jelly.

2. Affected with fear or timidity; timorous; wavering.

The tender, tremulous Christian. Dr. H. More.

3. Such as is caused or affected by trembling or tremors; unsteady; nervous; as, tremulous handwriting.

Her eyes took on a tremulous brightness. Aldous Huxley.

4. Exceedingly sensitive; easily shaken in response; — with to; as, tremulous to criticism. Rare.

Syn. — Quavering, palsied, vibratory.

Ant. — Steady, firm, unwavering.

— trem'u·lous·ly, adv. — trem'u·lous·ness, n.

trench (trĕnch; 105), v.; TRENCHED (trĕnchť); TRENCH'ING. [In some senses fr. E. trench, n., but orig. fr. OF. trenchier to cut (F. trancher), appar. fr. L. truncare to shorten by cutting, to cut off. See TRUNCATE. Cf. RETRENCH, TRENCHANT, TRINKET.] Transitive: 1. To cut; to cut into, off, through, or up; also, to make, form, or shape, by cutting; to carve; gash; slash; — now chiefly in past and present participles.

Nor quarry trenched along the hill. Tennyson.

2. To cut a trench or trenches in; to ditch; as, to trench land to drain it; hence, to drain by trenches.

3. To fortify with a trench or trenches; to entrench; to protect or surround by or as by trenches.

4. Rare. a To divert to a new channel. Shak. b To plant, bury, or set, in a trench.

5 To trench or encroach upon. Ben Jonson.

6. Agric. To dig or cultivate deeply, as a garden, usually by parallel contiguous trenches, filling each from the next.

7. Carp. To groove. Chiefly Brit.

—, Intrans.: 1. To cut; esp., to cut its way, as a torrent.

The Colorado River has trenched a mile deep here. J. Harlen Bretz.

2. To dig a trench or trenches; to entrench.

3. To extend so as to pertain, pass, tend, penetrate, reach, etc.; — with to or into. Archaic.

4. To encroach; trespass; infringe; as, to trench upon one's rights or on another's time.

5. To come close, so as to border, verge, or bear (upon); to approach.

Conversation, which . . . trenched dangerously near the subject of evolution. Harry H. Johnston.

Syn. — See TRESPASS.

trench at. To besiege by surrounding with trenches. Obs.

trench (trĕnch), n. [ME. trenche, fr. OF. trenche (F. tranche), fr. the v.; cf. also F. trenchée. See TRENCH, v.] 1. A long cut. Specif.: a Obs. A way or track cut through a forest or thicket. b A ditch; a long narrow excavation. c Mil. A narrow ditch or excavation, the earth thrown up from which serves as a parapet to protect soldiers under fire; also, pl., the works consisting of such excavations and embankments. See APPROACH TRENCH; COMMUNICATION TRENCH; DELIBERATE TRENCHES; FIRE TRENCH; PARALLEL, n., 8.

2. Something suggestive of a trench; as: a A deep facial furrow or scar. b Now Rare. A fossa.

3. Obs. A slice. Cf. TRANCHE.

trench albuminuria. Med. The albuminuria manifested in trench nephritis.

trench'an·cy (trĕn'chăn·sĭ), n. Quality of being trenchant.

trench'ant (-chănt), adj. [ME. trencha(u)nt, fr. OF. trenchant (F. tranchant), pres. part. See TRENCH, v.] 1. Having a sharp edge or point; cutting; biting; as, a trenchant blade; trenchant satire.

2. Incisive; acute; penetrating; sharply clear; as, a trenchant analysis of a situation.

3. Keen; mentally energetic; as, a trenchant writer.

4. Sharply defined; clear-cut.

Trenchant divisions between right and wrong. Edith Wharton.

5. Susceptible to being cut. Lamb.

Syn. — See SHARP. Ant. — Gentle, soft.

— trench'ant·ly, adv. — trench'ant·ness, n.

trench artillery. Mil. Artillery emplaced in forward trench systems; — used to include all artillery employed in the trenches to throw charges of high explosive at high angles to encounter targets at close range.

trench back. Med. A painful condition of rigidity of the back often occurring in soldiers, resulting from the constrained position necessary in trench duty.

trench'board' (trĕnch'bōrd'; 105; 181), n. Mil. A boardwalk running lengthwise of the bottom of a trench to keep the occupants out of accumulated mud and water.

trench bomb. Mil. = HAND GRENADE.

trench cart. Mil. A low-wheeled, narrow handcart on which ammunition can be carried through trenches.

trench cavalier. Mil. An elevation constructed (by a besieger) of gabions, fascines, earth, etc., often in steps, on the glacis, to command and enfilade the covered way.

trench coat. 1. Mil. A waterproof overcoat, with a removable woolen lining, originally for wear in the trenches.

2. Hence, a type of lined waterproof overcoat.

trench digger. See DIGGER, n., 1 c.

trench disease. Med. a Trench fever. b Trench nephritis.

trenched (trĕnchť), adj. Having a trench or trenches; gashed; furrowed; drained or fortified by trenches; also, flowing in a trench.

trench'er (trĕn'chĕr), n. [OF. trencheor, trencheoir (F. tranchoir), fr. trenchier to cut. See TRENCH, v.] 1. Obs. a A knife. b Hist. A slice of bread used to hold meat being eaten.

2. A board or wooden plate or platter on which to carve or serve food; also, any platter. Hist.

3. A trencher of food; hence, food; the pleasures of the table. Archaic.

4. Something resembling a trencher; as: a A flat, usually round, piece of wood. b = MORTARBOARD b.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

trencher-fed, trencher-maker, trencher-making, trencher-side.

trench'er, adj. 1. Of or pertaining to eating or meals; attending at meals; used on or with a trencher at meals.

2. That eats at or frequents his patron's table, as a domestic chaplain or a hanger-on; hence, frequenting the tables of the rich or great; sycophantic; parasitical; sponging; fawning.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

trencher attendant trencher knight trencher rascal trencher companion trencher philosopher trencher slave trencher critic trencher poetry trencher time trench'er (trĕn'chĕr), n. 1. One who trenches; specif.: a Obs. One who carves at table; esp., a servant employed to carve at a side table for the company. b One who cuts or digs ditches.

2. A trench coat.

trencher bread. A kind of hard, coarse bread, formerly sliced for use as plates. Obs.

trencher buffoon. A jester, as at a court, kept to amuse diners at banquets. Obs.

trencher cap. = MORTARBOARD b.

trencher friend. One who frequents the tables of others; a sponger; a parasite.

trencher loaf. A loaf of trencher bread. Obs.

trench'er·man (trĕn'chĕr·măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). 1. A cook. Obs.

2. A hearty eater; a gormandizer.

3. One frequenting his patron's table; a sponger.

trencher plate. a A trencher or a plate shaped like a trencher. b Gold or silver plate made into trenchers.

trench fever. Med. A form of relapsing fever, affecting soldiers in the trenches, spread by lice.

trench foot or feet. Med. An affection resembling that attending chilblains, marked by blueness or redness of the feet and in severe cases by gangrene, due to the combined effect of cold and wet upon the feet; — so called from its prevalence among soldiers serving in the trenches.

‖ trek'schuit', n. = TRECKSCHUYT.

trekt. Trekked. Ref. Sp.

tre·lapse', adj. & n. [Var. of trilapse, fr. L. tri- tri- + lapsus fallen.] Sinning a third time. Obs. Scot.

trel'lis-like', adj. See -LIKE.

trel'list. Trellised. Ref. Sp.

‖ tre·man'do (trā·măn'dō), adj. [It.] Music. = TREMOLANDO.

-tre'ma·ta. See -TREMA.

Trem'a·to'de·a, Trem'a·to'des, n. pl. [NL.] Syns. of TREMATODA.

trem'bla·ble, adj. To be trembled at. Obs.

trem·blor', n. Erroneous for TREMBLER.

trem'or·less, adj. See -LESS. — trem'or·less·ly, adv.

trem'our. Var. of TREMOR.

trem'u·lent (trĕm'ū·lĕnt), adj. Var. of TREMULANT.

tre'nail'. Var. of TRENNAIL.

trench'er-fly', n. A sponger (sense d). Obs.

trench'er·ful, n. See -FUL.

trench'er-ing, n. Obs. a Banqueting. b Trenchers, collectively.

trench'er-less, adj. See -LESS.

trench'er-like', adj. See -LIKE.

trench'er-wise', adv. See -WISE.

trench'er-wom'an, n., fem. of TRENCHERMAN.

trench'ful, n. See -FUL.

trench gun or mortar. A small portable cannon or mortar, usually fired from a trench, used at short range for dropping bombs or similar projectiles into an enemy's trenches.

One form of Trench Gun.

trench'mas'ter (trĕnch'mȧs'tĕr; 83), n. An officer commanding a troop of pioneers. Hist.

trench'more (trĕnch'mōr; 105; 181), n. A boisterous English folk dance or its music in triple time. Hist.

trench'more, adv. In a lively or boisterous manner.

trench'more, v. i. To dance the trenchmore. Obs.

trench mouth. Med. Inflammation of the mouth common among soldiers in the trenches; Vincent's infection (see VINCENT'S ANGINA). Mild forms of so-called trench mouth are probably due to scurvy, resulting primarily from malnutrition.

trench nephritis. Med. An acute nephritis, resulting from exposure, occurring in soldiers on trench duty.

trench plow. A kind of plow for trench plowing.

trench'-plow', trench'-plough', v. t. To plow with deep furrows, usually covering previously made shallow furrows, in order to loosen the land to a greater depth.

trench sickness. a Trench fever. b Trench nephritis.

trench silo. A concrete-lined trench for the storage of silage. Northwestern U. S.

trench warfare. Mil. Warfare in which the opposing forces attack and counterattack from relatively permanent trenches. Mining and countermining, the digging of dugouts and shelters, and construction of an elaborate trench system, protected by barbed-wire entanglements, are its chief features.

trend (trĕnd), v.; TREND'ED; TREND'ING. [ME. trenden to roll or turn about, fr. AS. trendan; akin to OFris. trind, trund, round, MLG. trent ring, boundary, AS. trendel a circle, ring, MLG. trendel disk, MHG. trendel ball. Cf. TRENDLE, TRINDLE, TRUNDLE.] Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To revolve; turn. b To pass around a frontier, shore, or the like; to skirt.
2. To have or take a particular direction or course; to turn in a specified or implied direction; to tend; as, the shore trends south from this point for a mile or more; our talk trended away from this topic.
3. Hence, to have or manifest a trend, tendency, or drift; as, whither does philosophy trend today?
——, Transitive: 1. Obs. a To make turn or roll. b To pass around the edge of; to skirt.
2. To wind (as wool) into tops. Chiefly Dial.
3. To turn the course of; to bend. Rare.

trend, n. 1. Dial. a A bend in a stream. b Trended wool.
2. General direction taken by a stream, a shore line, a mountain range, or the like; the line or course of such; as, the ridge has a northerly trend.
3. Underlying or prevailing tendency or inclination; general direction taken by something changing or subject to change; drift; as, the trend to collectivism; unable to distinguish a trend; also, an instance of such trending; as, modern trends in poetry.
4. Geol. & Mining. Strike; direction.
5. Naut. a The lower end of the shank of an anchor where it often begins to thicken. b Erron. for TEND.
Syn. — Direction, movement, swing, drift, tendency.

Tren'de·len·burg po·si'tion (trĕn'dē·lĕn·bōōrk), [After F. Trendelenburg (1844–1924), Ger. surgeon.] Med. & Surg. A position of the body for medical examination or operation, in which the patient is supine on a table inclined at about 45° from the floor, with the head lowermost, the knees uppermost, and the legs over the end of the table.

tren'dle (trĕn'dl), n. [AS. trendel a circle, ring, disk. See TRUNDLE, TREND, v.] 1. A circular object, as a wheel, hoop, or spindle; a trundle. Now Rare.
2. A large, round, shallow tub, trough, or vessel. Dial.Eng.

Trent affair (trĕnt). U. S. Hist. An affair which for a time threatened war with Great Britain, because of the seizure, Nov. 8, 1861, of the Confederate commissioners Mason and Slidell on board the British mail steamer Trent by Captain Wilkes of the U. S. steamer San Jacinto. The captives were restored to the protection of the British flag.

tren'tal (trĕn'tăl; -t'l), n. [ML. trentale, fr. (assumed) VL. trenta, trinta, fr. L. triginta thirty; akin to L. tres three. See THREE; cf. TRIGINTAL.] R.C.Ch. A series of thirty masses for the dead, celebrated one daily for thirty days, or formerly, sometimes, all in one day. Cf. MONTH'S MIND a. Hist.

‖trente' et qua'rante' (trăN'-tā kȧ'rĕNt'). [F., lit., thirty and forty.] A gambling game of cards, in which six full packs are used and any number of persons play against the bank, placing bets on one of two colors, red and black, indicated by large diamonds on the table. Cards are dealt, first to black and then to red, until the pip value (court cards counting 10) reaches or passes 31. The number dealt must never exceed 40, and the color wins which has nearest 31. One may bet also as to whether the winning color is that of the first card dealt or not. See REFAIT.

Tren'te·pohl'i·a (trĕn'tē·pōl'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after J. H. Trentepohl (1748–1806), Ger. botanist.] Bot. A genus of terrestrial, usually reddish or orange-tinted green algae (family Trentepohliaceae), growing partly prostrate on rocks, tree trunks, etc. T. iolithus is a fragrant species, called the rock violet. See RED RUST c.

Tren'te·pohl'i·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of aquatic or terrestrial green algae (order Chaetophorales), characterized by branching filaments, without hairs, and both prostrate and upright systems of growth. Sexual reproduction is by similar gametes. Trentepohlia is the type genus. — tren'te·pohl'i·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Tren'tine (trĕn'tēn; -tĭn), adj. Of or pertaining to Trent, a city of Tirol; esp., pertaining to the Council of Trent. See Council of Trent, under COUNCIL, n., Table.

Tren'ton (trĕn'tŭn), n. [From Trenton Falls, New York.] Geol. A subdivision of the American Ordovician (Lower Silurian); — sometimes used as the equivalent of the whole Middle Ordovician, and sometimes restricted to a portion of this series. See GEOLOGY, Chart. The Trenton limestone of Ohio and eastern Indiana is oil-bearing.

tre·pan' (trē·păn'), n. [F. trépan, fr. ML. trepanum, fr. Gr. trypanon a borer, trepan, fr. trypan to bore, fr. trypa hole. See THROW; cf. TREPHINE.] 1. Surg. A crown saw or cylindrical saw for perforating the skull, turned like a bit or gimlet. See TREPHINE.
2. Civil Engin. & Mining. A heavy tool, having vertical chisels fixed to a horizontal bar, used in boring shafts at a single operation.
3. Mach. A trepanning tool. See TREPAN, v. t., 2 a.
4. Mil. A siege engine for boring walls. Obs.

tre·pan', v. t.; TRE·PANNED' (-păndʹ); TRE·PAN'NING. [F. trépaner. See TREPAN a saw.] 1. Surg. To perforate (the skull) with a trepan, so as to remove a portion of the bone, usually to relieve the brain from pressure or irritation; to operate with the trepan.
2. Mach. a To cut a cylindrical piece or a disk out of (a solid plate, ingot, etc.) by means of a cylinder saw or a large pin drill (trepanning tool). b To turn annular grooves or recesses in, as a block held in a lathe.

Trepan, v., 2. Trepanning Tool.

tre·pan', n. Also tra·pan' (trȧ-). [Prob. of F. origin. See TRAP a snare.] a A deceiver or trickster. b A snare; stratagem; trick.

tre·pan', v. t. Also tra·pan'. To snare; entrap; lure; swindle.

trep'a·na'tion (trĕp'ȧ·nā'shŭn), n. [F. trépanation.] Act, process, or operation of trepanning.

tre·pang' (trē·păngʹ), n. [Malay tĕripaṅ.] Any of several large holothurians (sea cucumbers), mostly of the genera Actinopyga and Holothuria. They are taken in vast quantities in northern Australia and the East Indies, and to some extent along other warm coasts, boiled, dried, and smoked, and then shipped to China, being esteemed by the Chinese for making soup. Called also bêche-de-mer.

Trepang (Holothuria tubulosa). $\frac{1}{6}$ tre·pan'ner (trē·păn'ĕr), n. Surg. One who performs the operation of trepanning.

tre·pan'ner, n. Also tra·pan'ner. One who or that which trepans, or entraps, swindles, etc.

tre·pan'ning, adj. That trepans. — tre·pan'ning·ly, adv.

treph'i·na'tion (trĕf'ĭ·nā'shŭn), n. The act or operation or one that trephines.

tre·phine' (trē·fīn'; -fēn'; 277), n. [An alteration of 1st trepan; cf. F. tréphine (fr. E.).] Surg. An instrument for trepanning, being an improvement on the trepan. It is a cylindrical saw, with a handle like that of a gimlet, and a little sharp perforator (the center pin) for keeping it in place.

Trephine.

tre·phine', v. t.; TRE·PHINED' (-fīndʹ; -fēndʹ); TRE·PHIN'ING (-fīn'ĭng; -fēn'ĭng). To perforate with, or operate upon with, a trephine; to trepan. — tre·phin'er (-fīn'ĕr; -fēn'ĕr), n.

treph'one (trĕf'ōn), n. [Gr. trephein to nourish.] Physiol. Any of certain substances in the blood serum and body juices of young animals, which accelerate the growth of cells.

trep'id (trĕp'ĭd), adj. [L. trepidus.] Trembling; quaking; timorous. — trep'id·ly, adv.

trep'i·dan·cy (trĕp'ĭ·dăn·sĭ), n. Trepidation. Rare.

trep'i·dant (-dănt), adj. Trembling; tremulous.

trep'i·date (-dāt), v. i. [L. trepidare.] To feel trepidation. Rare.

trep'i·da'tion (-dā'shŭn), n. [L. trepidatio, fr. trepidare to hurry with alarm, to tremble, fr. trepidus agitated, disturbed, alarmed; akin to Skr. trpa restless. Cf. INTREPID.]
1. A vibratory oscillation; a quaking; esp., an involuntary trembling, as of a person's hands or limbs, sometimes resulting from paralysis, but often from fear, nervousness, etc.
2. A state of alarm, or trembling agitation; fear; perturbation; also, a time or spell of such alarm or perturbation; as, to be in great trepidation.
A . . . series of doubts, anxieties, and trepidations. Borrow.
3. Astron. a A libration of the celestial sphere added to the Ptolemaic system in order to account for certain small apparent changes in position of the ecliptic and of the stars. b A small fluctuation in the longitude of the sun or of the moon.
Syn. — Disturbance, confusion; dismay, consternation. — TREPIDATION, AGITATION. AGITATION is the general word; TREPIDATION adds the suggestion of fear or alarm; as, "I was . . . agitated by anticipation of uncertain danger and troubles. . . . To this agitation the deep peace of the morning presented an affecting contrast" (De Quincey); "sudden alarms, hurryings to and fro, trepidations of . . . fugitives" (id.). Cf. FEAR.
Ant. — Confidence, assurance, sureness, steadiness, calm.

tre·pid'a·to'ry (trē·pĭd'ȧ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Characterized by trepidation or trepidations.

tre·pid'i·ty (trē·pĭd'ĭ·tĭ), trep'id·ness, n. Trepidation.

Trep'o·ne'ma (trĕp'ō·nē'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trepein to turn + nēma thread.] Bacteriol. a A genus of spirochetes parasitic in warm-blooded animals and man, with an undulating or rigid body which has no ridge or columella, but sometimes flagellalike tapering ends. T. pallidum (syn. Spirochaeta pallida), the type species, causes syphilis; T. pertenue (syn. S. pertenuis), yaws; and T. mucosum is found in pyorrhea. Syn. Spirochaeta. b [not cap.; pl. -MATA (-mȧ-tȧ), -MAS (-mȧz).] Any organism of this genus. — trep'o·nem'a·tous (-nĕm'ȧ·tŭs; -nē'mȧ·tŭs), adj.

trep'o·ne·mi'a·sis (-nē·mĭ'ȧ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Treponema + -iasis.] Med. Infection with microorganisms of the genus Treponema. — trep'o·ne'mi·at'ic (-nē'mĭ·ăt'ĭk), adj.

Trep'o·sto'ma·ta (-stō'mȧ·tȧ; -stŏm'ȧ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. trepein to turn + -stomata.] Paleontol. An order of corallike Paleozoic bryozoans having conical or prismatic zooecial tubes with flat or curved partitions. — trep'o·stom'a·tous (-stŏm'ȧ·tŭs; stō'mȧ-), adj.

Tre'ron (trē'rŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trērōn timid, an epithet of wild pigeons.] Zool. A genus of fruit pigeons of southern Asia, the East Indies, and other warm parts of the Old World, having the plumage largely green, shading into purple or maroon. It is the type of a subfamily, Tre'ro·ni'nae (trē'rō·nī'nē) of the Columbidae or of a family, Tre·ron'i·dae (trē·rŏn'ĭ·dē). See FRUIT PIGEON.

‖très (trē), adv. [F., fr. L. trans over, beyond.] Very; exceedingly; — used frequently in musical directions, as: ‖très' a'ni'mé' (trē'-zȧ'nē'mȧ'), very animated; ‖très' len'te·ment' (trē' lĕNt'mĕNʹ), very slow; ‖très' vif' (vēf'), very lively.

tres·ai'el (trĕs·ā'ĕl), n. [F. trisaïeul, fr. L. tré- (akin to tres three), after bisaïeul. Cf. BESAIEL, AIEL.] Hist. See AIEL, 2.

‖très' bien' (trē' byĕnʹ). [F.] Very good; very well; — used often with interjectional force.

Tres'ca sec'tion (trĕs'kȧ; trĕs'kȧ'). [After H. E. Tresca (1814–85), French scientist.] A cross section having the shape of the letter X.

-tre'si·a (-trē'sĭ·ȧ; -zhĭ·ȧ). [NL.] Surg. A combining form from Greek trēsis, perforation, as in proctotresia, sphenotresia.

‖tre·sil'lo (trā·sēl'yō), n. [Sp.] A Spanish three-handed card game allowing three alternatives in making the trump.

tres'pass (trĕs'pȧs), v.; TRES'PASSED (-pȧst); TRES'PASS·ING. [OF. trespasser to go across or over, transgress, die (F. trépasser to die), fr. (assumed) VL. transpassare. See TRANS-; PASS, v.] Intransitive: 1. To exceed the bounds of what is lawful, right, or just; to commit an offense or transgression; to violate law, one's obligations, or the rights of others; to sin; to offend; — often with against.
We have trespassed against our God. Ezra x. 2.
2. Hence, to encroach, as on another's privileges, rights, privacy, etc.; to intrude; as, to trespass on one's time.
3. To pass from life; to depart; die. Obs.
4. Law. To commit a trespass; esp., to enter unlawfully upon the land of another.
——, Transitive: Obs. a To commit (an offense, a sin). b To violate (a law). c To sin or transgress against.
Syn. — TRESPASS, ENCROACH, TRENCH, ENTRENCH, INFRINGE, INVADE are here distinguished in their nontechnical uses. TRESPASS, as here compared, implies unwarranted or offensive intrusion; as, to trespass on another's land. To ENCROACH is to make gradual or stealthy inroads; to TRENCH (less commonly ENTRENCH) is to trespass as if by cutting into another's territory; INFRINGE suggests more strongly a breach or violation of rights; INVADE implies a hostile infringement; as "an ancient manor, deserted as the sea encroached" (W. Pater); "Impertinence . . . ever encroaches when it is tolerated" (Mme. d'Arblay); "He almost trenched upon the outside verge of that schooling" (Trollope); "the physicians whose exclusive distinction seemed infringed on" (G. Eliot); "He was infringing upon the liberties of a man who had never done him any injury" (Miss Edgeworth); to invade the liberty of private judgment. Cf. INTRUDE, INTERPOSE, INVASION, INFRACTION.

tres'pass (trĕs'pȧs), n. [OF. trespas a going across, passage, transgression (F. trépas death). See TRESPASS, v.]
1. An act or instance of trespassing; specif., a transgression of law involving one's obligations to God or to one's neighbor; a violation of moral law; an offense; a sin.
If ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses. Matt. vi. 14.
2. Law. An unlawful act committed with force and violence (vi et armis) on the person, property or relative rights of another; a tort involving some violence (however slight, though no more than the breaking of a blade of grass); also, the action for injuries done by such an act. The action of trespass seems originally to have been quasi criminal in its nature, and to have been used only in cases of actual breach vi et armis of the king's peace (2 Poll. & Mait., 511 seq.) to the plaintiff's damage; but it later came to be used, as now, in general of all wrongs to person or property directly accomplished by a degree of force, however slight. Sometimes, as distinguished from trespass on the case, called trespass vi et armis. The action of trespass quare clausum fregit (from words in the old Latin writ) is for breach of the close (see 5th CLOSE, 4).
Syn. — Offense, breach, infringement, transgression.

tres'pass·age (trĕs'pȧs·ĭj), n. See -AGE. Rare.

trespass board or sign. A notice on private property prohibiting trespass (sense 2).

tres'pass·er (trĕs'pȧs·ĕr), n. [ME. trespassour, fr. OF. trespasseor transgressor.] One who trespasses; specif., Law, one who commits a trespass against another or his property.

trespass offering. = GUILT OFFERING.

trespass on the case. Law. A form of action introduced by Statute of Westminster II (1286) to redress various wrongs or injuries to person or property which were not the immediate result of alleged violence, and for which no adequate remedy was provided by the common-law action of trespass; — called also action on the case.

tres'pas·so'ry (trĕs'pȧ·sō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -sĕr·ĭ), adj. Law. Designating an action in the nature of an action of trespass, a set of facts analogous to a trespass, or rights and claims having to do with trespass.

trespass to try title. Law. An action of trespass quare clausum fregit, or its equivalent under codes and practice acts, brought as a means of determining the title to land.

tress (trĕs), n. [ME. tresse, fr. OF. trece (F. tresse), of uncert. origin.] Originally, a braid or plait, esp. of hair; now usually, a long lock of hair; pl., the hair of a woman, esp. when unbound. "Black hair hanging . . . in various tresses." Lady M. W. Montague. "Dark tresses all loosely strewn." Shelley.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

tress-braiding	tress-lifting	tress-shorn tress-encircled	tress-plaiting	tress-topped tress, v. t. To braid or plait, as hair. — v. i. To hang in braids; to permit braiding. Rare.

-tress (-trĕs; -trĭs; 119). An ending in feminine nouns corresponding to masculine agent nouns in -er, -or, usually short for -eress, -oress, as in:

actress	idolatress	seamstress arbitress	interpretress	songstress auditress	ministress	spinstress comfortress	mistress	temptress creatress	oratress	traitress enchantress	painstress	vintress huntress	protectress	waitress tressed (trĕst), adj. Arranged in tresses; braided; also, having (such or so-adorned) tresses; as, tressed locks; the golden-tressed child.

Tres'sel (trĕs'ĕl), n. A gentleman attendant to Lady Anne in Shakespeare's Richard III.

tres'si·late (trĕs'ĭ·lāt), v. i. [F. tressaillir.] To quiver; to be tremulous. — tres'si·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. trench'ing plane. = GROOVING PLANE. Brit.

trench'let, n. See -LET.
trench'like', adj. See -LIKE. trench'ment, n. = ENTRENCHMENT. Obs. trencht. Trenched. Ref. Sp. trench'ward (trĕnch'wĕrd), adv. See -WARD. trench'wise', adv. See -WISE. trench'work', n. See WORK. tren'dle, n. i. & t. Trundle. Obs. trene. † TRENE, TREEN, TRINE. tren'nel (trĕn'l), n. Corrupt form of TRENNAIL. [Table.] Trent (trĕnt), n. See COUNCIL, 1. tre·pand'. Trepanned. Ref. Sp. trep'a·nise, v. t. = TREPAN. Rare.
trep'o·ne'mi·cide (trĕp'ō·nē'mĭ·sīd), n. See TREPONEMA, -CIDE. — trep'o·ne'mi·cide, trep'o·ne'mi·cid'al (-sīd'ăl; -l), adj. tresance, n. [ML. tresantiae, triesantia.] A corridor. Obs.
‖tres'ca (trĕs'kȧ), n. [It.] = TRESCHE. Hist. tresche (trĕsh), n. [OF.] A kind of romping dance; a revel. Obs.
-tre'sis (-trē'sĭs). = -TRESIA. tresor. † TREASURE.
tresoun. † TREASON. tres'past. Trespassed. Ref. Sp. tress. † TRACE.
tres'sel. Var. of TRESTLE. tress'ful, adj. See -FUL. tress'ile. Var. of TRESTLE. tress'less, adj. See -LESS.
tress'let, n. See -LET. tress'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tres'son (trĕs'ŭn), n. [OF. tresson, treçon, fillet, headdress. See TRESS.] A caul, or headdress of net work. Hist.

tres'ure (trĕsh'ĕr), n. Also tres'sour. [OF. tressure, tresseor, treceor, fillet or band for the hair, or headdress. See TRESS.] 1. Obs. a A headdress, as a caul or ribbon. b Arrangement of hair; coiffure.

2. Her. A charge like a double orle, usually enriched with fleurs-de-lis.

3. Numis. An additional border or an ornament enclosing the device, such as a quatrefoil.

— tres'sured (trĕsh'ĕrd), adj.

tress'y (trĕs'ĭ), adj. Having, abounding in, or resembling, tresses.

Tressure Counter-fleury (a double Tressure, with divided Fleurs-de-lis).

T rest. See T, adj

tres'-tine' (trĕs'tīn'), n. [Cf. L. tris, tres, three, and E. tyne, tine, a prong.] The third tine above the base of a stag's antler; the royal antler.

tres'tle (trĕs'l), n. [ME. trestel, fr. OF. trestel (F. tréteau), fr. (assumed) VL. transtellum, for L. transtillum a little crossbeam, dim. fr. transtrum a crossbeam. See TRANSOM.] 1. A kind of stool or horse, usually a horizontal piece or beam with three or four braced legs, which is used in pairs to support a horizontal board, plank, etc., as for a table, bench, or scaffolding, or singly for any of many other purposes.

2. A braced frame forming the whole support for a table top, drawing board, or the like.

3. A three-legged stool, bench, or stand; a tripod; a trivet. Now Dial. & Her.

4. A leg; a support; a pillar; — often figurative. Obs.

5. Engin. A braced framework of timbers, piles, or steelwork, usually of considerable height, for carrying a road, railroad, etc., over a depression.

tres'tle, v. To set upon a trestle or trestles.

trestle bed. A kind of cot bed supported by a (usually folding) trestle.

trestle bent. A transverse frame which supports the ends of the stringers in adjacent spans of a trestle.

trestle board. A drawing board used by draftsmen and others; — so called because commonly supported by trestles.

trestle bridge. A trestlework bridge. See TRESTLEWORK.

trestle legs. A trestle. Rare.

trestle post. A post in trestlework.

trestle table. 1. = TRESTLE BOARD.

2. An early type of dining table made by placing a board on trestles; — called also trestle and board.

tres'tle-tree' (trĕs''l-trē'), n. Naut. A strong timber fixed horizontally and fore and aft on the masthead, there usually being two, one on each side, to support the crosstrees, the frame of the top, and the topmast through the fid; — chiefly in pl.

tres'tle-work' (trĕs''l-wûrk'), n. The system of connected, usually high, trestles, supporting a viaduct, pier, scaffold, or the like; hence, the whole of such a construction.

Trestlework.

tres'tling (trĕs'lĭng), n. Trestlework.

très' vif'. Music. See TRÈS, adv.

tret (trĕt), n. [AF. tret, F. trait turn or pull of the scale, fr. OF. traire to draw, fr. L. trahere. See TRAIT.] Com. An allowance to purchasers of certain articles for waste or refuse, of four pounds added to every 104 pounds of suttle weight, or weight after the tare is deducted. Hist.

tre-val'y (trē-văl'ĭ), n. [Corrupt. of CAVALLY. See CAVALLA.] An Australian carangoid food fish (Caranx georgianus). Extended also to other fishes, as Siganus nebulosus, a small spiny-finned fish occurring on the coast of New South Wales, and called black trevally.

Tre-vel'yan's rock'er (trē-vĕl'yănz; -vīl'yănz). Physics. A triangular bar of brass attached to a rod ending in a ball, and having one of its edges made double by a V-shaped groove, as shown in the illustration, so that when heated and put with this edge resting on the edge of a lead block, it rocks rapidly, making a musical note. The effect is due to the successive expansions of the lead in contact with the hot brass.

Trevelyan's Rocker.

trew (trōō), v. i. [AS. trēowan, trēowian.] To believe; trust. Cf. TROW. Scot.

trews (trōōz), n. pl. [See TROUSERS.] Close-fitting breeches and stockings in one piece, formerly worn by Irishmen and Highlanders; hence, Obs., Highlanders. Scot.

trews'man (trōōz'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A Highlander. Scot.

trey (trā), n. [ME. treye, fr. OF. trei, treis (F. trois), fr. L. tres three. See THREE.] 1. Three, at cards, dice, or dominoes; a card, die, or domino of three spots or pips.

2. Three; something in a group of three; a threepenny piece.

trey'-ace' (-ās'), n. A throw at dice which turns up a trey and an ace.

tri- (trī-). [F. or L. or Gr.; F. tri-, fr. L. tri; akin to Gr. tri-, L. tres three, and E. THREE.] A combining form, used chiefly with adjectives and nouns, and meaning: 1. Characterized by, or having, three, or three parts; as in *tri*crotic, *tri*cycle, *tri*pod.

2. Three times or in three ways; as in *tri*farious, *tri*sonant; also, into three, as in *tri*sect.

3. Thrice; every third; as in *tri*weekly, *tri*ennial.

4. Chem. Denoting the presence of three atoms, groups, or equivalents of that signified by the term to which it is prefixed.

— tri (trī), adj.

tri'a-ble (trī'ă-b'l), adj. [From TRY.] 1. That may or can be tried; capable of being attempted or put to a test; provable.

2. Law. Liable or subject to undergo a judicial examination or trial; as, a case triable without a jury.

tri-ac'e-ton-a-mine' (trī-ăs'ē-tŏn-ă-mēn'; -ăm'ĭn), n. Also -am'in. [tri- + acetone + amine.] Chem. A feebly basic crystalline compound, $C_9H_{17}NO$, obtained by action of ammonia on acetone. It is a derivative of piperidine.

tri'a-che'ni-um (trī'ă-kē'nĭ-ŭm), n. [NL., fr. tri- + achenium.] Bot. A fruit composed of three mericarps. Rare.

tri-ac'id (trī-ăs'ĭd), n. Chem. An acid having three acid hydrogen atoms, as phosphoric acid; a triacid acid.

tri-ac'id, adj. Chem. a Able to react with three molecules of a monoacid, or one of a triacid, to form a salt or ester; — said of bases and alcohols. b Having three hydrogen atoms replaceable by basic atoms or radicals; — said of acids and acid salts.

☞ Some authorities disapprove the use of triacid in sense a.

tri'a-con'ta-e-te'rid (trī'ă-kŏn'tă-ē-tēr'ĭd), n. [Gr. triakontaetēris, -idos.] Gr. Antiq. A period of thirty years; also, a religious festival taking place every thirty years.

tri'a-con'tane (-kŏn'tān), n. [Gr. triakonta thirty + -ane.] Chem. Any hydrocarbon of the formula $C_{30}H_{62}$; specif., the normal variety, a crystalline solid.

tri'a-con'ter (-tĕr), n. [Gr. triakontēres, fr. triakonta thirty.] See GALLEY, 2.

tri'act (trī'ăkt), n. [See TRIACTINAL.] Zool. A triactinal sponge spicule.

tri-ac'ti-nal (trī-ăk'tĭ-năl; -n'l; trī'ăk-tĭ'-), adj. [tri- + Gr. aktis, aktinos, ray.] Zool. Having three rays, as certain spicules.

tri-ac'tine (trī-ăk'tĭn; -tīn; 156), adj. Zool. Triactinal.

tri'ad (trī'ăd), n. [L. trias, -adis, fr. Gr. trias, -ados, fr. treis, tria, three; cf. F. triade. See THREE; cf. TRIAS, TRIO.]

1. A union or group of three, esp. of three closely related persons, beings, or things; a trinity; as, a triad of deities.

2. A favorite form of gnomic literature in medieval Wales and Ireland, consisting of short aphorisms grouped in threes, and in prose marked by rhythm and assonance. It was applied to various subjects, especially history, laws, and morals.

3. Chem. A trivalent atom, radical, or element.

4. Math. A set of three vectors thought together, but not as definitely combined mathematically.

5. Music. A chord of three notes or tones, esp. the common chord, consisting of a given tone, or root, with its third and fifth, with or without the octave. A triad is named from its root; as, the triad of D; the dominant triad, etc. A major triad (fig. 1 in the Illust.) has a major third and perfect fifth; a minor triad (fig. 2) has a minor third and perfect fifth; a diminished triad (fig. 3) has a minor third and a diminished fifth; an augmented triad (fig. 4) has a major third and augmented fifth. A triad lacking any of its three tones is an imperfect triad, a perfect triad being complete and in its fundamental position, that is, with the root in the bass (fig. 5). A triad having another tone than the root in the bass is an inverted triad, the third in the bass giving the first inversion (fig. 6), the fifth in the bass giving the second inversion (fig. 7). Inverted chords are named from the intervals between the bass and the other tones. See THOROUGH BASS. In textbooks of harmony triads are generally designated by Roman numerals corresponding to the scale tones composing their roots, large numerals being used for major triads, small ones for minor triads, with an added accent or small cipher for an augmented or a diminished triad respectively. The major or minor scale on which a series of triads is founded is sometimes also indicated by a capital or small letter. Thus fig. 8 shows the triads on the scale of C major; fig. 9, those on the scale of a minor. Inversions are noted by small vertical lines (one for the first, two for the second) at the lower right corner of the numeral, or by figures, or in thorough bass (which see). See figs. 6 and 7.

Triads, 5.

tri'ad (trī'ăd), adj. Chem. Trivalent.

tri'a-del'phous (trī'ă-dĕl'fŭs), adj. [tri- + Gr. adelphos brother.] Bot. Having stamens joined by filaments into three bundles, or fascicles.

Tri'a-de'num (-dē'nŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tri- (see TRI-) + adēn gland.] Bot. A genus of two North American herbs (family Hypericaceae), disting. from Hypericum chiefly by the pink or purple flowers and the three large glands alternating with three sets of stamens. T. virginianum, the marsh St.-John's-wort, is common in moist places.

tri-ad'ic (trī-ăd'ĭk), adj. 1. Having the characteristics of, or constituting, a triad; consisting of a triad or triads.

2. Chem. Trivalent.

3. Eastern Ch. In honor of the Trias, or Trinity, as a hymn.

4. Logic. Of three terms; as, a triadic relation.

tri-ad'i-cal (-ĭ-kăl), adj. In a triadic group, form, or manner. — tri-ad'i-cal-ly, adv.

tri'ad-ism (trī'ăd-ĭz'm), n. State of being a triad or consisting of triads; threefold division or constitution; a system based on a triad.

tri'ad-ist (-ĭst), n. A maker of poetic triads. See TRIAD, n., 2.

Triad Society. = HUNG SOCIETY.

tri'ads of Döb'be-rei'ner (dû'bĕ-rī'nĕr). [After J. W. Döbereiner, Ger. chemist.] See PERIODIC LAW.

tri'aene (trī'ēn), n. [Gr. triaina a trident.] Zool. An elongated sponge spicule with three divergent rays at one end. — tri-ae'nose (trī-ē'nōs), adj.

tri'age (trī'ĭj; trē'ăzh'), n. [F., a culling, selecting, sifting, fr. trier to pick out. See TRY.] The process of grading marketable produce; specif., the lowest grade of coffee berries, consisting of broken material. Eng.

tri-ag'o-nal (trī-ăg'ō-năl; -n'l), adj. [From trigonal, after tetragonal.] Triangular.

‖ tri'a junc'ta in u'no (trī'ă jŭnk'tă ĭn ū'nō). [L.] Three joined in one; — the motto of the Order of the Bath.

tri'a-kis-i'co-sa-he'dron (trī'ă-kĭs-ī'kō-są-hē'drŭn), n. [Gr. triakis thrice + icosahedron.] Geom. A polyhedron formed by 60 congruent triangles that form pyramids on the faces of a regular icosahedron as bases. It is reciprocal to the Archimedean truncated dodecahedron. Cf. ARCHIMEDEAN SOLID. — tri'a-kis-i'co-sa-he'dral (-drăl), adj.

tri'a-kis-oc'ta-he'dron (-ŏk'tă-hē'drŭn), n. [Gr. triakis thrice + octahedron.] 1. Cryst. A trigonal trisoctahedron. See TRISOCTAHEDRON, Illust., 2.

2. Geom. A polyhedron of 24 congruent triangular faces forming pyramids on the faces of a regular octahedron as bases. It is reciprocal to the Archimedean truncated cube. — tri'a-kis-oc'ta-he'dral (-drăl), adj. — tri'a-kis-oc'ta-he'dral (-drĭl), adj.

tri'a-kis-tet'ra-he'dron (-tĕt'rā-hē'drŭn), n. [Gr. triakis thrice + tetrahedron.] a Cryst. A trigonal tristetrahedron. See TRISTETRAHEDRON, Illust., 1. b Geom. A polyhedron formed by 12 congruent triangles that form pyramids on the faces of a regular tetrahedron as bases. It is reciprocal to the Archimedean truncated tetrahedron. Cf. ARCHIMEDEAN SOLID. — tri'a-kis-tet'ra-he'dral (-drăl), adj.

tri'al (trī'ăl), n. [AF., fr. trier to try. See TRY.] 1. The action or process of trying or putting to the proof; subjection of a person or thing to a test, examination, participation in a contest or competition, or the like, to determine something in question, to settle a controversy, etc.; as, to submit to a trial by his fellow members: to demand trials of the ships before their acceptance.

2. The state or fact of being tried by suffering; esp., a test of one's virtue, faith, patience, etc., by being subjected to affliction or temptation; as, in one's hour of trial; purified by trial; hence, that which so tries or afflicts; a cross; as, their son's conduct was a severe trial; loosely, a source of vexation or annoyance.

Aunt Maria, being rather a trial to the Baineses. A. Bennett.

3. A trying out as an experiment to test practicability, efficacy, or the like; a temporary and experimental use, application, etc.; as, give this soap or plan a trial. See TRIAL AND ERROR.

4. Obs. a Evidence; proof. b Inquiry; investigation. c Experience; direct personal knowledge.

5. An act of trying, or making an essay; an effort; an attempt or endeavor to find out, effect, etc.

Only make trial what your love can do for Rome. Shak.

6. A sample or test piece used in proving the quality of a product or material or the progress and effectiveness of a mechanical operation.

7. An examination, as of a candidate for the Presbyterian ministry; in some English public schools the final examination of the term.

8. Law. The formal examination of the matter in issue in a cause before a competent tribunal for the purpose of determining such issue; the mode of determining a question of fact in a court of law. A trial may be of an issue of law, when it is before a judge alone; or of fact, when it is usually before a judge and jury. In a general sense trial includes all proceedings from the time when issue is joined, or more usually when the parties are called to try their case in court, to the time of its final determination; in criminal law the term trial is, however, generally restricted to proceedings subsequent to swearing in the jury.

9. Sports. A trial match.

Syn. — EXPERIMENT, TRIAL, TEST. An EXPERIMENT has for its object esp. the discovery of something as yet unknown, or the verification or illustration of what is already ascertained; it does not necessarily imply that anything is at stake; as, scientific experiments; "He was not excessively fond of wine, but he had several times taken too much, simply as an experiment in that kind of ecstasy" (G. Eliot). Trial and test suggest more definitely that something is being put to the proof; TRIAL is the wider term; a TEST is a decisive trial or criterion; as, "the world's challenge to make trial of it" (W. Pater); "those who bring all characters to the test of true wisdom" (Cowper); "In literary examinations, it is a test of good scholarship to be able to construe aright; . . . and those who have acquitted themselves best in the trial, will often be disposed to think they have most notably failed" (J. H. Newman). Cf. EXAMINATION.

— on trial. In the state of being examined, tested, or tried out for a period: specif., of merchandise, on approval with the understanding that it may be used for a specified period.

tri'al (trī'ăl), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or employed in a trial or trials.

2. Essayed or entered into as a trial; hence, not permanent or repeated unless successful.

3. Used in trying, testing, fitting, experimenting, etc.

4. Serving as a sample, specimen, proof, or test piece.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

trial engagement	trial order	trial proof trial glasses	trial package	trial sample trial heat	trial piece	trial trip trial lenses

tri'al (trī'ăl), adj. Also tri'nal (trī'nĕl; -n'l). [L. tres, tria, three.] Gram. Designating or pertaining to forms of pronouns or nouns denoting three, as in Polynesian, Melanesian, and other languages. Cf. DUAL, QUADRUAL.

tri'al, n. Also tri'nal. Gram. The trial number, a form denoting it, or a word in that form.

trial and error. A finding out the best way to reach a desired result, a correct solution, or the like, by trying out one or more ways or means, and by noting and eliminating errors or causes of failure; sometimes, a trying this and that until something succeeds. — trial'-and-er'ror, adj.

tri-a'late (trī-ā'lāt), adj. [See TRI-; ALATE.] Three-winged.

trial at nisi prius. A trial conducted as a result of the issuance of a writ of nisi prius. See NISI PRIUS, 2.

trial at (the) bar. Law. A trial before all of the judges of the court in which the proceeding is brought; — now seldom used.

trial balance. Bookkeeping. A list of the debit and credit balances (or debit and credit totals) of all open accounts in a double-entry ledger at a given date prepared primarily for the purpose of testing their equality.

trial balloon. A balloon sent up to test air currents, wind velocity, etc.; hence, a project or scheme tentatively announced in order to test public opinion. Cf. KITEFLYING.

trial brief. See BRIEF, n., 7 d.

trial by battle or combat. Law. A trial of a dispute which is determined by the issue of a personal battle or combat tressour. † TREASURE.

---

trest, n. Trust. Obs.

trest (trĕst), n. [OF. treste, traste, trestre, traistre. See TRESTLE.] = TRESTLE. New Scot. & Dial.

trest, adj. [See TRAIST, adj. & n.] = TRAIST. Obs. [Sp.] tres'tl, tres'sel. Trestle. Raf.

tres'tld. Trestled. Raf. Sp.

tres'tle-wise', adv. See -WISE.

tres'-tyne', Var. of TRES-TINE.

‖tres'vi-rī (trĕz'vĭ-rī), n. pl. [L.] See EPULO.

tretable. † TREATABLE.

tre'ta yu'ga (trā'tĕ). [Skr. treitā triad, trey (on a die), the second age of the world.] See YUGA.

trete. † TREAT, TREATY.

tre'tee. † TREATY. [TISZ.]

tretes, tretice, tretis. † TREA-tretis, adj. [OF. tratis, tratiss.] Well-proportioned. Obs.

‖Treu'gä De'i or Do'mi-ni (trōō'gä dē'ĭ, dŏm'ĭ-nī). [ML.] Truce of God.

tre-val'i, tre-val'li, n. Vars. of TREVALLY.

‖Trêve' de Dieu' (trĕv' dĕ dyû'), [F.] Truce of God. [knife.] trev'et (trĕv'ĭt), n. = TRIVET, a tre'vis, tre'viss (trē'vĭs; trĕv'-ĭs). Scot. var. of TRAVERSE, n.

trew. † TREE, THROW, TRUCE, TRUE.

trew'age, n. [OF. treüage.] Obs. a Tribute. b Payment, as of a toll or custom. c Homage; fealty.

trew'el. † TROWEL.

trewth (trūth; trōōth). Var. of TRUTH. Obs. exc. Dial.

treye. † TREY. [Obs.] trey'go-bet', n. A game at dice.

trey'-trip', n. [From TREY a three.] An old dicing game. Obs.

trez'-tine' (trĕz'tīn'), Var. of TRES-TINE.

trez'ure, trez'ur-er, trez'ur-y Treasure; treasurer; treasury. Raf. Sp.

tri'a-ble-ness, n. See -NESS.

tri'ace', n. See -ACE.

tri-ac'et-am'ide, n. Also -id. See AMIDE b.

tri-ac'e-tate, n. See TRI-.

tri-ac'e-tin, n. Also -tine. See ACETIN. [CLE. Obs. exc. Scot.] tri'a-cle (trī'ă-k'l). Var. of TREA-between the parties; judicial combat; — called also wager of battle. This was common in Europe, and in England was a legal form of trial from the time of William the Conqueror till abolished in 1818.

---

trial by certificate. Old Law. A trial in which the issue is determined by the testimony of a person certifying to what is peculiarly within his knowledge, as of an officer that a soldier is absent from the army.

trial by inspection. O. Eng. Law. A trial in which the case was settled by the individual observation and decision of the judge upon the testimony of his own senses, without the intervention of a jury.

trial by jury. Law. A trial in which the issue is determined by a judge and a jury, usually of 12 members, the province of the jury being to determine issues of fact.

trial by ordeal. O. Eng. Law. A trial in which the innocence or guilt of an accused person is determined by the manner in which he sustains some form of ordeal.

trial by record. A trial which is had when a matter of record is pleaded, and the opposite party pleads that there is no such record. In this case the trial is by inspection of the record itself, no other evidence being admissible. See NUL TIEL RECORD.

trial by the country. See COUNTRY, n., 9.

trial case. Ophth. A box containing a set of lenses for testing the vision.

trial court. The court before which issues of fact and law are first determined, as distinguished from an appellate court. Colloq.

trial docket. See DOCKET, n., 2.

trial frame. Ophth. A spectacle frame for holding trial lenses.

tri'al·ism (trī'ăl·ĭz'm), n. [See TRIAL, adj.; cf. DUALISM.] 1. Triadism. Rare. 2. A federation or union of three states; specif., [cap.], the union proposed (c. 1908–11) of Austria, Hungary, and a new state composed of the Southern Slavs (cf. YUGOSLAV) of Austria-Hungary.
— tri'al·ist (-ĭst), n.

tri·al'i·ty (trī·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. [L. tres, tria, three.] Triadism; threefold constitution; specif., Obs., a plurality of three benefices. Rare.

trial jury. A jury impaneled to try a cause; petit jury.

trial lawyer. A lawyer who engages chiefly in the trial of cases before courts of original jurisdiction, as distinguished from one whose functions are chiefly advisory or chiefly concerned with argument before appellate courts. Colloq.

trial marriage. A proposed form of marriage in which a man and woman would be married legally, but for only a stated period. Cf. COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE.

trial of the pyx. The annual testing, in the English mint, of the standard of gold and silver coins.

tri'a·logue (trī'ȧ·lŏg; 185), n. [Erron. fr. tri- (see TRI-) + dialogue; cf. ML. trialogus.] A scene, discourse, or colloquy, in which three persons share. Rare.

trial square. = TRY SQUARE.

tri·am'ide (trī·ăm'ĭd; -īd), n. Also -id. Chem. a An amide with three amido groups in the molecule. b Triazane.

tri'a·mine' (trī'ȧ·mēn'; trī·ăm'ĭn), n. Also tri·am'in. Chem. An amine with three amino groups in the molecule.

tri'a·mi'no- (trī'ȧ·mē'nō-; trī·ăm'ĭ·nō-). Chem. A combining form, tri- + amino-, denoting presence of three amino groups. — tri'a·mi'no (-nō), adj.

tri'am·mi'no- (trī'ă·mē'nō-; trī·ăm'ĭ·nō-). Chem. A combining form, tri- + ammino-, denoting the presence of an ammine containing three molecules of ammonia.

tri'am·mo'ni·um (trī'ă·mō'nĭ·ŭm), adj. Chem. Containing three ammonium radicals.

tri·am'yl·ose (trī·ăm'ĭ·lōs), n. [tri- + amylose.] Chem. An amylose of the formula $(C_6H_{10}O_5)_3$, or $C_{18}H_{30}O_{15}$.

Tri·an'dri·a (trī·ăn'drĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TRI-; -ANDROUS.] Bot. A disused Linnaean class of plants having flowers with three stamens. — tri·an'der (-dĕr), n. — tri·an'dri·an (-drĭ·ăn), adj.

tri·an'drous (-drŭs), adj. Bot. a Obs. Pertaining to the Triandria. b Having three stamens.

tri'an'gle (trī'ăng'g'l), n. [OF. or L.; OF. triangle, fr. L. triangulum, fr. triangulus triangular, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + angulus angle. See ANGLE a corner.] 1. Geom. A figure (formerly the area, now commonly the three bounding lines) formed by three lines intersecting by twos in three points, and so forming three angles (or sets of angles). A Triangles. 1 Equilateral; 2 Isosceles; 3 Right-angled; 4 Obtuse-angled; 5 Scalene. 1, 2, and 5 are also Acute-angled.

triangle is either plane, spherical, or curvilinear, according as its sides are straight lines, or arcs of great circles of a sphere, or any curved lines whatever. Without specification, a plane triangle is meant. A plane triangle is designated as scalene, isosceles, or equilateral, according as it has no two sides equal, two sides equal, or all sides equal; and also as right-angled, or oblique-angled, according as it has one right angle, or none; and an oblique-angled triangle is either acute-angled or obtuse-angled, according as all the angles are acute, or one is obtuse. These terms, except oblique-angled, are applied to spherical triangles in the same sense as to plane triangles. The area of a plane triangle may be found by multiplying any side by one half the perpendicular distance of that side from the opposite vertex.

2. A triangular object, marking, area, arrangement, or the like; a triangle-shaped thing; specif.: a A thin, flat, right-angled triangular instrument, of wood, celluloid, or the like, used in drafting. The acute angles are usually 45°, or 30° and 60°. b A hoisting or weighing device consisting of a tripod of poles or spars from the apex of which is suspended a pulley or balance. c The entire forequarter of beef with the exception of the ribs.

3. A set of three; a situation involving three persons; specif., the love of two men for one woman or of two women for one man, and the resulting complications.

4. Anthropological Art. The triangle (sense 1) used as a religious symbol or as design or motif in decorative art. It is often difficult to distinguish between religious and decorative uses. In primitive art, with the apex down, it is interpreted as representing the female genitalia, thereby becoming a symbol of life and all that may be associated with life. In Christian art, the equilateral triangle is often a symbol of the Trinity.

5. [cap.] Astron. a A small constellation on the edge of the Milky Way, in the south polar region, containing three bright stars. b A small northern constellation bounded by Perseus, Andromeda, Pisces, and Aries.

6. Ceramics. A triangular stilt.

7. Mil. A kind of frame formed of three halberds or poles stuck in the ground and united at the top, to which soldiers in the British Army at one time were bound when undergoing corporal punishment; — often in pl.

8. Music. a A triangle-shaped virginal. Pepys. b An instrument of percussion, usually made of a rod of steel, bent into the form of a triangle, open at one angle. It is suspended, and is sounded by striking with a small metal rod.

Triangle, 8, and Rod.

9. Zool. In dragonflies, a triangular area near the base of the wing.

tri'an'gle (trī'ăng'g'l), adj. Triangular. Now Rare.

tri'an'gle, v. t. Mil. To punish at the triangles.

tri'an'gled (-g'ld), adj. 1. Having three angles; triangular. 2. Subjected to triangling.

triangle of forces. Mech. The theorem that three forces acting at a point in equilibrium can be diagrammatically represented in magnitude and direction by the sides of a closed triangle taken in order; also, the triangle representing such forces. The converse is also true.

tri'an'gle of Hes'sel·bach (hĕs'ĕl·băk). Anat. An area of the abdominal wall bounded laterally by the deep epigastric artery, medially by the margin of the rectus muscle, and below by Poupart's ligament.

tri'an'gle of Scar'pa (skär'pä). = SCARPA'S TRIANGLE.

triangle of similitude (of three directly similar figures). Geom. The triangle formed by the three centers of similitude of the figures taken in pairs.

triangle of the elbow. Anat. The triangular space in the bend of the elbow.

tri'an'gler (trī'ăng'glĕr), n. One who plays on a triangle.

triangles of the neck. Surgical Anat. Areas into which each lateral half of the neck is divided. They are bounded above by the border of the jaw and a line joining it to the mastoid process, below by the clavicle, behind by the margin of the trapezius muscle, and in front by an imaginary midline. The sternomastoid muscle divides each area into an anterior triangle and a posterior triangle. The former is subdivided by the digastric muscle above, and the anterior belly of the omohyoid below, into the inferior carotid, superior carotid, and submaxillary, triangles (naming them from below upward). The posterior belly of the omohyoid divides the posterior triangle into the occipital triangle above and the subclavian triangle below.

triangle spider. A small American spider (Hyptiotes cavatus) which lives among the dead branches of evergreen trees. It constructs a triangular web, or net, usually composed of four radii crossed by a double elastic fiber. The spider holds the thread at the apex of the web and stretches it tight, but lets go and springs the net when an insect comes in contact with it.

a Triangle Spider, with right legs removed (× 3); b One of its Feet (× 25); c Its Web (⅛).

triangle winding. Elec. = DELTA WINDING.

tri·an'gu·lar (trī·ăng'gū·lĕr), adj. [LL. triangularis; cf. F. triangulaire.] 1. Of, relating to, or consisting of, a triangle; having three angles, corners, or sides; having the form of a triangle; as, a triangular figure; a triangular plot of land.

2. That has a base that is a triangle; as some prisms or pyramids; hence, shaped or edged as a triangular prism or pyramid.

3. Of, relating to, or involving, three parts, elements, persons, factions, or the like; as, a triangular agreement.
— tri·an'gu·lar'i·ty (-lăr'ĭ·tĭ), n. — tri·an'gu·lar·ly, adv.

tri·an'gu·lar, adv. So as to form a triangle. Rare.

triangular compass. See COMPASS, n., 7.

triangular co-ordinates. Math. See CO-ORDINATE, n., 2.

triangular crab. Any maioid crab; — so called because the carapace is usually triangular.

triangular exchange. Finance. Simple arbitration of exchange. See ARBITRAGE, n., 2.

triangular file. See 4th FILE, n., 1.

‖tri·an'gu·la'ris men'ti (trī·ăng'gū·lā'rĭs mĕn'tī; 79), or tri·an'gu·la'ris, n. [NL. (sc. musculus), lit., triangular muscle of the chin.] Anat. A flat triangular muscle extending from the base of the mandible to the angle of the mouth and upper lip.

‖tri·an'gu·la'ris ster'ni (stûr'nī). [NL. (sc. musculus), lit., triangular muscle of the chest.] Anat. A thin layer of muscular and tendinous fibers on the inner surface of the ribs and sternum.

triangular level. A device used in farm surveying, consisting of a large, vertical, triangular wooden frame which is leveled by means of a carpenter's level or by a plumb bob, and the bottom member of which provides a span of about ten feet.

triangular numbers. Math. The successive sums, $\frac{n(n+1)}{2}$, of the first n natural numbers, namely, 1, 3, 6, 10, 15, . . .; — so called because they can be represented by dots arranged in triangles.

tri·an'gu·late (trī·ăng'gū·lāt), adj. Consisting of, or marked with, triangles; having triangular markings.

tri·an'gu·late (-lāt), v. t.; TRI·AN'GU·LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); TRI·AN'GU·LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). 1. To divide into triangles; specif., to survey by triangulation.
2. To make triangular, or three-cornered.

tri·an'gu·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. [ML. triangulatio; cf. F. triangulation.] 1. Surv. The series or network of triangles into which any portion of the earth's surface is divided in a trigonometrical survey; the operation of measuring the elements (mainly angles, with a theodolite) necessary to determine these triangles, and thus to fix the positions and distances apart of their vertices. The adjustment of the triangulation is the distribution of the errors, according to the method of least squares, and the reduction of the triangulation is the completion (by means of trigonometric calculations) of the determination of the triangles. The measurement of the base line, to which all other measurement and calculations are referred, is no part of the triangulation proper.

2. Engin. The system, or designing, of the triangular bays of Warren and lattice girders, etc.

tri·an'gu·la'to- (trī·ăng'gū·lā'tō-). A combining form from NL. triangulatus, meaning triangulate and, as in tri·an'gu·la'to-o'vate. See OVATE.

tri·an'gu·la'tor (trī·ăng'gū·lā'tĕr), n. One who triangulates.

Tri·an'gu·lid (-lĭd), n. [Triangula + 1st -id.] Astron. Any of a shower of meteors whose radiant is in either Triangle (see TRIANGLE, 5).

tri·an'gu·lo- (trī·ăng'gū·lō-). A combining form, from Latin triangulum, triangle, meaning triangularly, as in tri·an'gu·lo·py·ram'id·al, tri·an'gu·lo·tri·an'gu·lar.

tri·an'gu·loid (-loid), adj. [L. triangulum triangle + E -oid.] Somewhat triangular in shape.

Tri·an'gu·lum (-lŭm), n. [L.] Astron. Either Triangle

Tri·an'gu·lum Aus·tra'le (ôs·trā'lē). [L., southern triangle.] Astron. = TRIANGLE, 5 a.

Tri·an'gu·lum Mi'nor (mī'nôr). [L.] Astron. a = TRIANGLE, 5 a. b Formerly, a small constellation south of Triangulum.

tri·an'nu·al (trī·ăn'ū·ăl), adj. a Obs. = TRIENNIAL, adj. b Rare. Thrice in a year.

tri·an'nu·late (-ăn'ū·lāt), adj. Zool. Provided with, or composed of, three rings.

Tri'a'non' (trē'ä'nôn'), n. [F.] 1. One of two small palaces or royal villas situated in the park at Versailles. The Grand Trianon was built by Louis XIV in 1687; the Petit Trianon, by Louis XV in 1762–1768. The latter was given to Mme. du Barry, and, later, to Marie Antoinette. See TREATY, Table.
2. [not cap.] Any small elegant villa, especially one in the grounds of a larger establishment.

tri·an'thous (trī·ăn'thŭs), adj. [tri- + -anthous.] Three-flowered.

tri·ap'si·dal (trī·ăp'sĭ·dăl) adj. Arch. Having three apses; — said of a building. The apses in a triapsidal church may be side by side at the east end; or they may be projected from a central tower, or the like.

tri'arch (trī'ärk), n. [tri- + tetrarch.] The ruler of any one of three divisions of a country; also, Rare, a ruler of the third rank in an ascending scale.

tri'arch (trī'ärk), adj. [Gr. triarchos having three branches, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + archē beginning.] Bot. Having three xylem strands or groups, as certain roots.

tri'arch·ate (trī'är·kāt), n. A triarchy. Rare.

tri'arch·y (trī'är·kĭ), n.; pl. -ARCHIES (-kĭz). [Gr. triarchia. See TRI-; -ARCHY.] a Government by three persons; a triumvirate. b A country under three rulers. c One of three districts, each under a ruler.

tri·a'ri·i (trī·ā'rĭ·ī), n. pl. [L., fr. tres, tria, three.] Rom. Antiq. The soldiers of the third line of the Roman army, acting as the reserve. See LEGION, 1.

Tri·ar'thrus (trī·är'thrŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tri- (see TRI-) + arthron joint.] Paleontol. A genus of small Ordovician trilobites. T. eatoni is one of the few trilobites which have been found with the antennae and appendages in a good state of preservation. It occurs in the Utica formation of New York State.

Triarthrus (T. eatoni). Ventral Side. a Antennae; b, c, d, e Oral Appendages; e Mouth; f, g Legs, bearing fringed multiarticulate Exopodites. (⅞) tri·ar·tic'u·late (trī'är·tĭk'ū·lāt), adj. Zool. Having three joints.

Tri'as (trī'ăs), n. [L., triad. See TRIAD.] 1. The number three; a trinity; a triad. Now Rare.
2. Geol. The system between the Permian and the Jurassic, and the period during which the system was deposited; — so named by the Germans, from its threefold division in Germany into Bunter, Muschelkalk, and Keuper. See TRIASSIC.
3. Ger. Hist. The threefold political union of Austria, Prussia, and the group of smaller states, regarded as constituting the old German Empire.
4. Theol. The Trinity; — so called anciently and in the Eastern Church.

Tri·as'sic (trī·ăs'ĭk), adj. Geol. Of the age of or pertaining to the Trias. — n. The Triassic period or system; the Trias. See GEOLOGY, Chart; JURASSIC. Rocks of the system are largely red sandstone. The climate seems to have been rather arid, and the vegetation scant, at least in the earlier part. Gymnosperms, esp. the cycads, were the most distinctive plants. The amphibians declined, but the reptiles and ammonites developed rapidly. Mammals probably existed, but they were few, small, and primitive. The system contains some workable coal, as in Virginia.

tri·as'ter (trī·ăs'tĕr), n. [G., fr. tri- (see TRI-) + Gr. astēr star.] Biol. A mitotic figure resulting from tripolar (usually abnormal) division of a nucleus.

tri·at'ic (trī·ăt'ĭk), adj. [tri- + -atic.] Naut. A term used in: triatic stay, a rope, or two pendants of which the lower ends are joined by a span, secured at the ends to the heads of the foremast and mainmast with thimbles spliced to the bight of the rope or the lower ends of the pendants into which stay tackles hook. Also, sometimes, the spring stay between the mastheads of schooners and steamers.

Tri·at'o·ma (trī·ăt'ō·mȧ), n. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of CONORHINUS.

tri'a·tom'ic (trī'ȧ·tŏm'ĭk), adj. Chem. a Preferably, consisting of three atoms; having three atoms in the molecule. b Trivalent. c Having three replaceable atoms or groups.
— tri·at'o·mic'i·ty (trī·ăt'ō·mĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n.

tri·ax'i·al (trī·ăk'sĭ·ăl), adj. Also tri·ax'al (-săl). Having three axes; specif., designating a diagram with three axes for representing graphically three variables.

tri·ax'on (-sŏn), n. [NL. See TRI-; AXON.] Zool. A triaxial sponge spicule. — tri·ax'on, adj.

tri'ax·o'ni·an (trī'ăks·ō'nĭ·ăn), adj. Zool. Having triaxon spicules, as many calcareous sponges.

tri'a·zane (trī'ȧ·zān), n. Chem. A hypothetical compound of nitrogen and hydrogen, $NH_3.NH.NH_3$, known in the form of organic derivatives.

tri'a·zine (trī'ȧ·zēn; -zĭn; trī·ăz'ēn; -ĭn), n. Also -zin. [tri- + az- + -ine, -in.] Chem. Any of three parent compounds, $C_3H_3N_3$, containing a ring of three carbon and three nitrogen atoms; also, any of various derivatives of these. The three varieties are distinguished as symmetrical, unsymmetrical (or α-), and vicinal (or β-), triazine, according to the position of the nitrogen atoms in the ring. The first, called also cyanidines or cyanurines, include many polymeric cyanogen compounds.

tri'a·zi'no- (-zē'nō-). Chem. A combining form for triazine.

---

triammonium phosphate. See AMMONIUM PHOSPHATE.

tri'an'gid. Triangled. Ref. Sp.

tri'an'gle-leaved' (66), adj. See LEAVED. tri'an'gle-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED.

tri'an'gle-ways', adv. See -WAYS.

tri'an'gle-wise', adv. See -WISE.

tri'an'gle-work', n. See WORK.

Tri·an'gu·la (trī·ăng'gū·lȧ), n. [NL.] Astron. a = TRIANGLE, 5 a. b = TRIANGULUM MINOR b.

tri·an'gu·lar-shaped', adj. See [-SHAPED.]

tri·an'gu·lar'y (-lĕr'ĭ; -lĕr·ĭ), adj. Triangular. Obs.

tri·an'gu·late·ly, adv. of TRIANGULATE.

tri·an'te·lope (trī·ăn'tē·lōp), n. Corrupt. of TARANTULA. Colloq., Australia.

tri·ap'sal (trī·ăp'săl), adj. = TRIAPSIDAL.

tri·arc'tic, adj. = HOLARCTIC.

tri·ar'cu·at'ed, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·a're·al, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·ar'i·an (trī·ăr'ĭ·ăn; 79), n. One of the triarii. Obs.

tri'a·ry, n. = TRIARII. Obs.

tri·az'o- (trī·ăz'ō-; -ā'zō-). Chem. a A combining form, tri- + azo-, denoting the presence of the univalent group N_3 (held to have the structure $-N<\begin{smallmatrix}N\\N\end{smallmatrix}$), as in *triazo*benzene, $C_6H_5N_3$; called also azido-. b Less desirably, = TRISAZO-. — tri·az'o (-ō), adj.

tri'a·zole (trī'ă·zōl; trī·ăz'ōl), n. Chem. Any of four parent ring compounds, $C_2H_3N_3$, regarded as derived from pyrrole by replacement of two CH groups by nitrogen atoms; — called also pyrrodiazole. Also, any of various derivatives of these. Vicinal triazole is a crystalline compound and is called also osotriazole; its derivatives of the type NR.N:CH.CH:N (1,2,5-triazoles) are called also osotriazoles. — tri'a·zol'ic (trī'ă·zŏl'ĭk), adj.

tri·az'o-lo- (trī·ăz'ō-lō-; trī'ă·zō'lō-). Chem. A combining form for triazole.

trib'ade (trĭb'ăd), n. [F., fr. L. tribas, -adis, fr. Gr. tribas, fr. tribein to rub. See THROW.] A woman who practices homosexuality. — trib'a·dism (-ă·dĭz'm), n. — trib'a·dy (-dĭ), n.

trib'al (trīb'ăl), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, a tribe or tribes; as, tribal customs. — trib'al·ly, adv.

trib'al·ism (-lĭz'm), n. Tribal life, organization, or society; also, tribal feeling, peculiarities, or characteristics.

trib'al·ist, n. A tribesman. Rare.

tri'base (trī'bās), n. [tri- + base.] Chem. A base capable of reacting with three equivalents of an acid; a base having three basic hydroxyl groups, as aluminum hydroxide, $Al(OH)_3$.

tri·bas'ic (trī·bās'ĭk), adj. Chem. a Having three hydrogen atoms capable of replacement by basic atoms or radicals; — said of acids, as phosphoric acid. b Containing three atoms of a univalent metal, or their equivalent; as, a tribasic phosphate (as Na_3PO_4). c Having three basic hydroxyl groups; able to react with three molecules of a monoacid; — said of bases and basic salts. — trĭ'ba·sic'ĭ·ty (trĭ'bā·sĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n.

☞ Some authorities disapprove the use of tribasic in sense a.

trib'ble (trĭb'l), n. A frame on which new paper is dried.

trib'ble. Scot. var. of TROUBLE.

trib'ble. Dial. var. of TREBLE.

tribe (trīb), n. [OF. and L.; OF. tribu, fr. L. tribus, one of the three, later more, divisions of the Roman people, a tribe. See TRIBUTE.] 1. A social group comprising a series of families, clans, or generations, together with slaves, dependents, adopted strangers, etc.; as, the twelve tribes of Israel, traditionally descended from the twelve sons of Jacob. Anthropologists generally treat the tribe as a (putatively) consanguineous endogamous group, primitively comprising several exogamous sibs which it unites under one political head, or chief, and often with a special tribal worship distinct from the specific sib cults. Cf. def. 2. See CLAN, 2; FAMILY, 5; SIB.

Although the idea of consanguinity persists, the tribe, as it expands, depends more and more on common social and political institutions, and less on actual kinship. A. H. Keane.

2. Anc. Hist. a In ancient Rome, one of the three divisions of the Roman people, the Ramnes, Tities, and Luceres, traditionally of Latin, Sabine, and Etruscan origin respectively. Later (under Servius Tullius, according to Roman accounts), the tribes were constituted on a territorial basis, four belonging to the city and sixteen to the country. The number was increased in the republican period, but never exceeded thirty-five. Cf. CLASS, n., 1. See CURIA, 1 a; GENS, 1. b One of the phylae of ancient Athens. See PHYLE a.

3. More loosely: a Any aggregation of people, esp. in a primitive or nomadic state, believed to be of a common stock and acting under a more or less central authority, as that of a headman or chief. b Rare. A division of a race or people.

4. A class of persons set apart from others as having a distinct racial origin or religion, or a common ancestry; now usually, a group of persons having a common character or occupation; a kind; — often contemptuous; as, the scribbling tribe. "For sufferance is the badge of all our tribe." Shak.

5. A flock, as of birds; — said esp. of sparrows.

6. Biol. A category of classification to which different ranks have been assigned, usually equivalent to, or ranking just below, a suborder, or used as a subdivision of a family equivalent to, or ranking below, a subfamily. In modern classifications, names of tribes or subfamilies end (Bot.) in -eae or -ineae, as the Bambuseae, Abietineae, and (Zool.) in -ini, as the Carabini. Also, often, any natural group, irrespective of taxonomic rank; as, the cat tribe; rose tribe, etc.

7. Stock Breeding. A group of animals descended from some particular female progenitor, through the female line; as, the Duchess tribe, or family, of Shorthorns.

tribe, v. t. To classify by tribes; also, to put in the same tribe. Rare.

tribe, adj. Tribal.

-tribe (-trīb). A combining form from Greek tribein, to rub, denoting: a Bot. Dusting pollen on insect visitors on a (specified) part, as in noto*tribe,* pleuro*tribe.* b Surg. An instrument for crushing, compressing, or rubbing, as in angio*tribe,* osteo*tribe.*

tribe'less (trīb'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Without tribal affiliation.

tribe of Ben (bĕn). A group of poets and wits associated with Ben Jonson in his later years as disciples or admirers.

tribes'man (trībz'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A member of a tribe. — tribes'man·ship, n.

tribes'peo'ple (-pē'p'l), n. pl. The people of a tribe.

trib'let (trĭb'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [F. triboulet, of uncert. origin.] Any of various mandrels used in making rings, nuts, etc., or in drawing tubes.

tri'bo- (trī'bō-; trĭb'ō-). A combining form from Greek tribein, to rub, denoting pertaining to, or resulting from, friction, as in:

triboelectric	tribofluorescent triboelectricity	triboluminescence tribofluorescence	triboluminescent tribophosphorescent tribophosphoroscope

Tri·bo'li·um (trĭ·bō'lĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tribolos three-pointed.] Zool. A genus of small, brown beetles (family Tenebrionidae) whose larvae feed on dry cereal products. See FLOUR BEETLE, Illust.

tri·bom'e·ter (trĭ·bŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [Gr. tribein to rub + -meter.] An instrument for measuring sliding friction.

Tri'bo·ne'ma (trī'bō·nē'mă; trĭb'ō-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tribos track, path, rubbing + -nema.] Bot. A genus of simple, filamentous, fresh-water yellow-green algae typifying a family, Tri'bo·ne·ma'ce·ae (-nē·mā'sē·ē). Asexual spores are formed within the cells and freed by the breaking of the filaments into H-shaped pieces. See CONFERVA, 1, 2.

tri·bor'ough (trī·bŭr'ō; 66), adj. Of, pertaining to, or connecting, three boroughs; as, a triborough subway.

Tri'bou'let' (trē'bōō'lĕ'), n. A nickname of Fevrial or Le Feurial (d. 1525 or 1528), court fool of Louis XII and Francis I, figuring in Rabelais's History of Gargantua and Pantagruel and Victor Hugo's tragedy Le Roi s'amuse.

tri'brach (trī'brăk; trĭb'răk), n. [L. tribrachys, fr. Gr. tribrachys consisting of three short syllables, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + brachys short (see BRIEF.] Pros. A poetic foot of three short syllables, of which two belong to the thesis and one to the arsis, as mĕlĭtŭs; also, rarely, a foot of three light syllables none of which carries a speech accent. — tri·brach'ic (trī·brăk'ĭk; trĭ-), adj. tri'brach (trī'brăk), n. [tri- + Gr. brachiōn arm.] A three-branched object or figure. — tri·bra'chi·al (trī·brā'kĭ·ăl; -brăk'ĭ-), adj.

tri·brac'e·ate (trī·brăk'ē·āt), adj. Bot. Having three bracts.

tri·bro'mide (trī·brō'mīd; -mĭd), n. Also -mid. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with three atoms of bromine.

tri·bro'mo- (trī·brō'mō-), tribrom-. Chem. A combining form, tri- + bromo-, denoting the presence of three bromine atoms, esp. replacing hydrogen, as in *tribromo*acetic acid, CBr_3CO_2H.

tri·bro'mo·eth'a·nol (-ĕth'ā·nōl; -nŏl), n. [tribromo- + ethanol.] Chem. A bromine derivative, CBr_3CH_2OH, of ethyl alcohol, used as an anesthetic.

trib'u·al (trĭb'ū·ăl), adj. Tribal. — trib'u·al·ly, adv.

trib'u·late (-lāt), v. t. [L. tribulare to afflict.] To cause (one) tribulation.

trib'u·la'tion (trĭb'ū·lā'shŭn), n. [OF. tribulacion (F. tribulation), fr. LL. tribulatio, fr. tribulare to press, afflict, fr. tribulum a threshing sledge; akin to L. terere, tritum, to rub. See TRITE.] 1. Distress or suffering resulting from oppression, persecution, afflictions, etc.; also, an instance of such suffering; a trial; as, a life of tribulation; to endure many tribulations.

2. Rare. a A disturber or disturbers of the peace. Shak. b State of being in pawn.

Syn. and Ant. — See SORROW.

trib'u·loid (trĭb'ū·loid), adj. [Tribulus + -oid.] Having prickly fruit, as in the genus Tribulus.

Trib'u·lus (-lŭs), n. [L., a kind of caltrop, fr. Gr. tribolos.] Bot. A genus of chiefly tropical or subtropical herbs (family Zygophyllaceae), having pinnate leaves and yellow or white flowers succeeded by a spiny or prickly fruit of five indehiscent tuberculate carpels. T. terrestris and T. cistoides have been introduced into the United States. See CALTROP, 3 b.

tri·bu'na (trē·bōō'nä), n. [It.] a = 3d TRIBUNE. b [cap.] An octagonal room in the Uffizi Gallery in Florence tri·bu'nal (trī·bū'năl; -n'l; trĭ-), n. [L., fr. tribunus a tribune who administered justice; cf. F. tribunal. See TRIBUNE officer; cf. TRIBUNE elevated place.] 1. A tribune (see 3d TRIBUNE); specif., the seat of a judge; the bench on which a judge and his associates sit for administering justice; a judgment seat.

[Before] His high tribunal thou and I appear. Gray.

2. Hence, a court or forum of justice; a person or body of persons having authority to hear and decide disputes so as to bind the disputants; as, the Supreme Court is the highest tribunal of the United States. Cf. HAGUE TRIBUNAL; REVOLUTIONARY TRIBUNAL.

3. That which decides or judges; something which determines or directs a judgment or course of action; as, the tribunal of public opinion or of one's own conscience.

4. (Sp. pron. trē'bōō·näl') [Sp.] In villages of the Philippine Islands, a kind of town hall or municipal building, also used as a prison, quarters for troops, etc.

tri·bu'nal, adj. 1. Of or pertaining to a tribunal; of the nature of a tribunal; decided or permitted at or by a tribunal; judicial.

2. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, a Roman tribune.

trib'u·nate (trĭb'ū·nāt), n. [F. and L.; F. tribunat, fr. L. tribunatus.] 1. State, office, or function of a tribune; tribuneship.

2. [cap.] Fr. Hist. One of the two legislative bodies of France under the Constitution of the Year VIII (1800). It consisted of 100 members and could discuss, reject, or adopt, proposals for laws.

trib'une (trĭb'ūn; as the name of American newspapers, often pronounced trī·būn'), n. [L. tribunus, properly, the chief of a tribe, fr. tribus tribe; cf. F. tribun. See TRIBE.] 1. Rom. Hist. Originally, a chief or representative of a tribe; a tribal magistrate or official, as of the old patrician tribes or of the tribes of Servius Tullius; hence, an official or magistrate belonging to any of several classes; as: The ‖ tri·bu'ni mi'li·ta'res or mi'li·tum (trĭ'·bū'nī mĭl'·ĭ·tā'rēz, mĭl'ĭ·tŭm), or military tribunes, military commanders (at first three, then six, and later six for each legion) appointed by the consuls until 362 B.C., and from that date elected, at first in part, by the comitia tributa. The ‖ tri·bu'ni mi'li·ta'res, or mi'li·tum, con'su·la'ri po'te·sta'te (kŏn'sū·lā'rī pōt'ĕs·tā'tē), military tribunes with consular power (consular tribunes), who were the highest officers of state from 444 to 367 B.C., when the office was abolished by the Licinian law. They were elected by the comitia centuriata. The ‖ tri·bu'ni ple'bis (plē'bĭs), or tribunes of the people, who are generally referred to when tribune is used without qualification. Their specific function was to protect the individual citizen, and esp. the plebeian, from the arbitrary action of magistrates, esp. the patrician magistrates. The office was established in 494 B.C. They were elected from the plebeians, at first, probably, by the comitia curiata, afterwards by the comitia tributa; in 457 B.C. their number was increased to ten. They could peremptorily veto any magistrate's judgment against a plebeian, could inflict punishment, even that of death; and their persons were sacrosanct. They gradually acquired greatly increased powers, and became the political leaders of the people. Under the empire much of their power was lost.

2. Hence, a similar officer in any country, as in Venice; also, figuratively, one who defends the common people; often, a demagogue.

trib'u·ne (trĭb'ūn; trĭ'·būn'), v. t. To subject to tribunal regulation. — v. i. To act as tribune. Rare.

trib'une, n. [F. and It.; F. tribune, fr. It. tribuna, fr. L. tribunal. See TRIBUNAL.] Arch. The raised platform in one end of a Roman basilica, used esp. as the official station of the praetor, and commonly placed in a semicircular apse. Hence: a The bishop's throne in a basilican church, or the apsidal structure containing it. b Any apsidal structure in a public building, esp. in an Italian church; specif., = TRIBUNA b. c Any dais or platform from which an assembly is addressed, as the rostrum in the French Chamber of Deputies.

trib'u·ni'tial, trib'u·ni'cial (trĭb'ū·nĭsh'ăl), adj. [L. tribunicius, tribunitius; cf. F. tribunitien.] Tribunitian; tribunal.

trib'u·ni'tian, trib'u·ni'cian (-ăn), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of a Roman tribune, or his office; tribunal.

tri·bu'ni·tive (trĭ·bū'nĭ·tĭv), adj. Of or characteristic of a tribune, or demagogue. Rare.

trib'ut·a·ble (trĭb'ū·tă·b'l), adj. That is able or may be forced to pay tribute.

trib'u·tar'y (trĭb'ū·tĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ; 277), adj. [ME. tributarie, fr. L. tributarius; cf. F. tributaire. See TRIBUTE.] 1. Paying tribute to another, either from compulsion, as an acknowledgment of submission, or to obtain protection, or to purchase peace; hence, subject; subordinate; as, tributary nations.

2. Paid or owed as tribute; of, relating to, or of the nature of, tribute. "Tributary tears." Shak.

3. Yielding or carrying supplies or accretions of any kind; contributory; auxiliary; as, a tributary stream.

trib'u·tar'y, n.; pl. -TARIES (-ĭz). 1. A ruler or state that pays tribute to a conquering power.

2. One that is tributary to another; specif.: a A stream feeding a larger stream or a lake. Cf. BRANCH, n., 10. b Anat. A vein emptying into a larger vein.

trib'ute (trĭb'ūt), n. [ME. tribut, fr. L. tributum, fr. tribuere, tributum, to bestow, grant, pay, allot, assign, fr. tribus tribe, prob. fr. tri- three. See TRI-, THREE; cf. ATTRIBUTE, CONTRIBUTE, RETRIBUTION, TRIBE, TRIBUNE.] 1. An annual or stated sum of money or other valuable thing, paid by one ruler or nation to another, either as an acknowledgment of submission, or as the price of peace and protection, or by virtue of some treaty; also, the tax levied for such a payment.

2. Specif.: a Hist. A tax, impost, duty, rental, or the like, paid by a subject vassal to his sovereign or lord.

Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute. C. C. Pinckney.

b Phil. I. Hist. A personal tax, estimated, for the purposes of the census, as a family of four persons.

3. Liability or obligation to pay such tribute; as, to lay a people or one's subjects under tribute.

4. Something given or contributed voluntarily, as due or deserved; an offering, a gift, a service rendered, or the like, manifesting respect, allegiance, gratitude, etc.; specif., praise; an encomium.

Rich is the tribute of the grateful mind. Burns.
This tribute from a casual friend. Wordsworth.

5. Mining. A certain proportion of the ore raised, or of its value, given to the miner as his recompense in one system (the tribute system) of payment. As originally developed in Cornwall, Eng., bids for certain pitches, or working places, were called for at a Dutch auction, the lowest bidder receiving the contract and usually taking in a number of partners on equal shares, or hiring laborers.

Syn. — Levy, tax, duty, tariff.

— a tribute to. A praiseworthy thing attributable to; as, their success is a tribute to their training; — an expression not approved by most authorities.

trib'ute, v. t.; -UT·ED (-ū·tĕd; -tĭd; 119); -UT·ING (-ū·tĭng). [Cf. L. tributus, past part. See TRIBUTE, n.] To pay as tribute. — v. i. Rare. a Obs. to bear abundantly. b Mining. To mine on the tribute system.

tribute money. Money paid as tribute; specif., the annual tax, a didrachma, paid by each Jew to support the Temple.

tribute pitch. Mining. Part of a lode worked by tributers. Eng.

trib'ut·er (trĭb'ū·tĕr), n. 1. A payer of tribute. Obs.

2. Mining. One who mines a specified section on the tribute system. See TRIBUTE, n., 5.

trib'u·to'ri·an (trĭb'ū·tō'rĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to tribute; tributary. Rare.

tri'ca (trī'kä), n.; pl. -CAE (-sē). [NL., fr. L. tricae trifles.] Bot. In certain lichens, an apothecium having a spherical surface with spiral or concentric ridges and furrows.

tri·cal'ci·um (trī·kăl'sĭ·ŭm), adj. Also tri·cal'cic (-sĭk). Chem. Containing three atoms or equivalents of calcium.

tri'car' (trī'kär'), n. A tricycle; esp., a motor tricycle with a forecar.

tri·car'bal·lyl'ic (trī·kär'bă·lĭl'ĭk), adj. [tri- + carboxyl + allyl + -ic.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating a white crystalline triacid, $C_6H_3(CO_2H)_3$, found in unripe beets, and variously produced artificially; 1, 2, 3-propanetricarboxylic.

tri·car'bi·mide (trī·kär'bĭ·mīd; -mĭd), n. Also -mid [tri- + carbimide.] Chem. Cyanuric acid.

tri·car'bon (-bŏn; -bŏn), adj. Chem. Containing three atoms of carbon.

tri·car'box·yl'ic (-bŏk·sĭl'ĭk), adj. Chem. Containing three carboxyl groups.

trice (trīs), v. t.; TRICED (trīst); TRIC'ING (trīs'ĭng). [ME. trycen, trisen, fr. MD. trīsen to hoist by block and tackle (D. trijsen, MLG. trīssen to wind, hoist), fr. trīse windlass, capstan, pulley (D. trijs brace, rope, MLG. trīsse rope, pulley), of uncert. origin. Cf. TRICE, n.] 1. Obs. a To pull; to pull or snatch suddenly. b With out, to deprive by force; despoil.

2. To haul up or in and lash, or secure, with a small rope, as a sail; — usually with up. Chiefly Naut.

Prisoners are triced up by the wrists or hands. S. J. Barrows.

trice, n. [From at a trice, lit., at one pull. See TRICE, v.] A single pull, stroke, or blow; a single effort; hence, an instant; a moment; — now chiefly in the phrase in a trice.

-trice. [F. or It., fr. L. -trix, -tricis.] = -TRIX. Obs.

tri'ce·na'ri·um (trī'sē·nā'rĭ·ŭm), n. [L., neut. of tricenarius containing thirty.] Thirty Masses celebrated on successive days. Cf. TRENTAL.

tri·ce'na·ry (trī·sē'nä·rĭ), adj. Consisting of or numbering thirty; having, or lasting, thirty days.

tri·ce'na·ry, n. pl. -RIES (-rĭz). A tricenarium.

---

tri'a·zo'ic (trī'ä·zō'ĭk), adj. [tri- + azo- + -ic.] = HYDRAZOIC.

tri'barred', adj. See TRI-, 1.

tribasic lead acetate. See LEAD ACETATE b.

tri·bas'i·lar, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tribe'let, n. Dim. of TRIBE.

tribe'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tribes'folk' (trībz'fōk'), n. = TRIBESPEOPLE.

tribe'ship, n. See -SHIP.

tribes'wom'an, n., f e m . of TRIBESMAN. [TRIPLOBLASTIC.]

tri·blas'tic (trī·blăs'tĭk), adj. = trib'o·let (trĭb'ō·lĕt). Var. of TRIBLET.

trib'ou·let. Var. of TRIBLET.

tri'brac. Tribrach. Ref. Sp. [1.]

tri·brac'te·o·late, adj. See TRI-, tribrom-, = TRIBROMO-.

tri·brom'a·ce'tic (trĭ·brōm'ă·sē'tĭk), adj. See TRIBROMO-.

tri·bro'mo·phe'nol (-brō'mō·fē'nōl; -nŏl), tri'brom·phe'nol (trī'brōm-), n. See TRIBROMO-; BROMOL.

tri·brom·phe'nate (trī'brōm·fē'·nĕt), n. See TRIBROM-; PHENATE.

trib'u·lar (trĭb'ū·lĕr), adj. = TRIBAL. Rare.

trib'u·nar'y (trĭb'ū·nĕr'ĭ; -nĕr·ĭ), adj. = TRIBUNAL, adj., 2. Obs.

trib'une·ship, n. See -SHIP.

trib'u·ni'ti·ar'y (trĭb'ū·nĭsh'·ĭ·ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), adj. = TRIBUNAL, adj., 2.

trib'u·ni'tious (-ŭs), adj. Tribunitial. Obs.

trib'u·tar'i·ly (68), adv. of TRIBUTARY.

trib'u·tar'i·ness, n. See -NESS.

‖ tri'bu·ta'ri·us (trĭb'ū·tā'rĭ·ŭs; 79), n.; pl. -RII (-ī). [L.] Short for COLONUS TRIBUTARIUS.

trib'ut·ist (trĭb'ū·tĭst), n. = TRIBUTER.

trib'u·tor (-tĕr). Var. of TRIBUTER. trib'u·to'ry, adj. & n. = TRIBUTARY. Obs.

tri·bu'tyr·in (trī·bū'tĭr·ĭn), n. Chem. See BUTYRIN.

tri·cap'su·lar, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·car'i·nate, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·car'i·nat'ed, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·car'pel·lar'y, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·car'pel·late, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·car'pous (trī·kär'pŭs), adj. = TRICARPELLARY.

tri·cau'dal, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·cau'date, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tricchery, tricchori. † TREACHERY.

tri·cel'lu·lar, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri'ce·nar'i·ous (trī'sē·nâr'ĭ·ŭs) adj. = TRICENARY, adj. Rare.

tri·cen'ni·al (trĭ·sĕn'ĭ·ăl), adj. [L. tricennium thirty years, fr. the source of triceni thirty, thirty each, triginta thirty + annus year; cf. L. tricennalis.] Of or pert. to thirty years; occurring once every thirty years. Rare.

tri'cen·ten'ni·al (trĭ'sĕn·tĕn'ĭ·ăl), adj. & n. Tercentenary.

tri·ceph'al (trĭ·sĕf'ăl), n. [See TRICEPHALOUS.] A god represented with three heads.

tri·ceph'a·lous (trĭ·sĕf'ă·lŭs), adj. [Gr. trikephalos. See TRI-; CEPHALIC.] Three-headed.

tri·ceph'a·lus (-lŭs), n. [NL.] Terat. A three-headed monster.

tri'ceps (trī'sĕps), n.; pl. TRICEPSES (-sĕp·sēz; -sĭz; 119). [NL., fr. L. triceps having three heads, fr. tres, tria, three + caput head; cf. F. triceps. See THREE; CHIEF.] Anat. a The great extensor muscle (more fully termed ‖tri'ceps bra'chi·i [brā'kĭ·ī; brăk'ĭ-] or ‖tri'ceps ex·ten'sor cu'bi·ti [ĕks·tĕn'sôr kū'bĭ·tī]), situated along the back of the upper arm, arising by three heads and inserted into the olecranon at the elbow. The middle, or long, head arises from the scapula immediately below the glenoid cavity; the lateral and medial heads both arise from parts of the shaft of the humerus and the intermuscular fibrous septa. b The gastrocnemius and soleus muscles considered as constituting together one muscle (more fully called ‖tri'ceps su'rae [sū'rē]).

tri'ceps, adj. Tricephalous; tricipital.

Tri·cer'a·tops (trĭ·sĕr'ă·tŏps), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trikeratos three-horned (fr. tri- tri- + keras, -atos, Triceratops (T. prorsus). (1/70) horn) + ōps face.] Paleontol. a A genus of huge herbivorous dinosaurs of the group Ceratopsia from the Cretaceous of Montana, Wyoming, and Colorado. The skull had two large horns above the eyes, a median horn on the nose, a horny beak, and a great bony hood or transverse crest over the neck. Their toes, five in front and three behind, were provided with hoofs, and the tail was large and strong. b [not cap.] An animal of this genus.

tri·ce'ri·on (-sē'rĭ·ŏn), tri·ke'ri·on (-kē'-), n.; pl. -RIA (-ă). [NL., fr. LGr. trikērion. See DICERION.] Eastern Ch. A three-branched candlestick symbolizing the Trinity, used ceremonially, esp. by bishops, as in pronouncing a benediction.

trich'a·tro'phi·a (trĭk'ă·trō'fĭ·ă), n. [NL. See TRICHO-; ATROPHY.] Med. Atrophy of the hair bulbs, usually leading to brittleness of the hair.

trich·aux'is (trĭk·ôk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. trich- + Gr. auxēsis increase.] Med. Hypertrichosis.

Trich·ech'i·dae (trĭk·ĕk'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Trichechus + -idae.] Zool. The family consisting of the manatees; — formerly and erroneously used for the walruses. Syn. Manatidae. — trich'e·chine (trĭk'ĕ·kĭn; -kīn; 156), adj.

trich·ech'o·dont (-ō·dŏnt), adj. [See TRICHECHUS; -ODONT.] Having molar teeth with rows of tubercles confluent into transverse crests, as in some sirenians, mastodons, and allied forms. — n. A trichechodont mammal.

Trich'e·chus (trĭk'ĕ·kŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thrix, trichos, hair + echein to have.] Zool. The genus comprising the manatees. Syn. Manatus. Incorrectly used for the walruses (Odobenus).

tri·chev'ron (trĭ·shĕv'rŭn), n. A chevron of three bars.

trich'i·a (trĭk'ĭ·ă), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thrix, trichos, hair + echein to have.] Med. = TRICHIASIS a.

-trich'i·a (-trĭk'ĭ·ă). [NL.] Med. A combining form, Greek trich-, stem of thrix, hair, + -ia, denoting a condition of the hair, as in schizo*trichia,* oligo*trichia.*

tri·chi'a·sis (trĭ·kī'ă·sĭs) n. [NL., fr. Gr. trichiasis, fr. thrix, trichos, hair.] Med. a A condition in which the hairs around a natural orifice turn in and cause irritation; specif. such, a condition of the eye. b The appearance of hairlike filaments in the urine.

Tri·chil'i·a (trĭ·kĭl'ĭ·ă), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tricheilos three-lipped, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + cheilos lip.] Bot. A very large genus of tropical African and American trees and shrubs (family Meliaceae), having odd-pinnate leaves and panicles of rather large flowers with four or five petals. T. emetica is the mafura; T. hirta is called bastard ironwood.

tri·chi'na (trĭ·kī'nă), n.; pl. TRICHINAE (-nē). [NL., fr. Gr. trichinos hairy, made of hair, fr. thrix, trichos, hair.] Zool. 1. A small slender nematode worm (Trichinella, or, incorrectly, Trichina, spiralis) which, in the larval state, is parasitic, often in immense numbers, in the voluntary muscles of man, the hog, and many other animals. When the larvae, in insufficiently cooked meat, are swallowed, they are liberated, rapidly become adult, pair, and the ovoviviparous females produce large numbers of young which find their way into the muscles, either directly, or indirectly by means of the blood, where they establish themselves in or between the muscle fibers and finally become encysted. Their presence in large numbers produces trichinosis.

Trichina. The Larval Worm in the encysted state in Human Muscle. Much enlarged.

2. [cap.] Syn. of Trichi·nel'la (trĭk'ĭ·nĕl'ă), the genus containing the worm, trichina.

— tri·chi'nal (trĭ·kī'năl), adj.

trich'i·nif'er·ous (trĭk'ĭ·nĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. Containing trichinae. trich'i·nize (trĭk'ĭ·nīz), v. t.; -NIZED (-nīzd); -NIZ'ING (-nīz'ĭng). To render trichinous; to affect with trichinae; — chiefly used in past participle; as, trichinized pork. — trich'i·ni·za'tion (-nĭ·zā'shŭn; -nī·zā'shŭn), n.

trich'i·nop'o·ly (-nŏp'ō·lĭ), n. [From Trichinopoly, India.] A kind of cheroot made in India.

tri·chi'no·scope (trĭ'kĭ'nō·skōp), n. [trichina + -scope.] Veter. A form of microscope used to detect trichinae in the flesh of animals, as swine. — trich'i·nos'co·py (trĭk'ĭ·nŏs'kō·pĭ), n.

trich'i·no'sis (trĭk'ĭ·nō'sĭs), n. [NL. See TRICHINA.] Med. The disease caused by trichinae in the intestinal tract and the muscles, and resulting from eating infected pork. It is marked first by intestinal disorders, as colicky pains, nausea, and diarrhea, and later by severe muscular pain and stiffness, dyspnea, fever, and edema caused by migration of trichina larvae to the muscles. It is sometimes fatal through exhaustion or complication.

trich'i·not'ic (-nŏt'ĭk), adj. Trichinized; trichinous.

trich'i·nous (trĭk'ĭ·nŭs), adj. Of or pertaining to trichinae or trichinosis; affected with, or containing, trichinae.

trich'ite (trĭk'ĭt), n. [Gr. thrix, trichos.] 1. Petrog. A hairlike crystallite, occurring singly or in clusters. See CRYSTALLITE, Illust.

2. Bot. A minute needle-shaped crystal assumed to be the chief constituent of starch grains in plants.

3. Zool. A hairlike siliceous spicule in certain sponges, often occurring in fascicles called trichite sheaves.

tri·chit'ic (trĭ·kĭt'ĭk), adj. Containing, pertaining to, or having the characteristics of, trichite or a trichite.

tri·chi'tis (trĭ·kī'tĭs), n. [NL. See TRICHO-; -ITIS.] Med. Inflammation of the hair bulbs.

Trich'i·u'ri·dae (trĭk'ĭ·ū'rĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. thrix, trichos, hair + oura tail + -idae.] Zool. A family comprising cutlass fishes, scabbard fishes, and a few allied deep-sea forms. The type genus is Trich'i·u'rus (-rŭs). — trich'i·u'rid (-rĭd), n. & adj. — trich'i·u'roid (-roid), adj.

tri·chlo'ride (trī·klō'rīd; -rĭd; 157), n. Also -rid. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with three atoms of chlorine.

tri·chlo'ro- (trī·klō'rō-), trichlor-. Chem. A combining form, tri- + chloro-, denoting the presence of three chlorine atoms, esp. replacing hydrogen, as in tri·chlo'ro·meth'yl, $-CCl_3$. — tri·chlo'ro (-rō), adj.

tri·chlo'ro·a·ce'tic (trī·klō'rō·ă·sē'tĭk; -sēt'ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating a strong, deliquescent, crystalline acid, CCl_3CO_2H, made by chlorination of acetic acid, by oxidation of chloral, etc. It is caustic and astringent. See CHLOROACETIC.

tri·chlo'ro·eth'yl·ene (-ĕth'ĭ·lēn), n [trichloro- + ethylene.] Chem. A colorless, noninflammable liquid, $CHCl:CCl_2$, obtained usually by heating symmetrical tetrachloroethane with milk of lime, and used as a solvent and an inhalant.

trich'o- (trĭk'ō-; trĭ'kō-), trich-. A combining form, Greek tricho-, trich-, from thrix, trichos, meaning hair, as in *trich*opathy, *trich*atrophia.

trich'o·bac·te'ri·a (-băk·tē'rĭ·ă), n. pl. [NL., fr. tricho- + bacteria.] a The filamentous bacteria (as Beggiatoa and Actinomyces). b The flagellated bacteria trich'o·blast (trĭk'ō·blăst), n. [tricho- + -blast.] Bot. An idioblast resembling a hair.

trich'o·bran'chi·a (-brăng'kĭ·ă), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + branchia.] Zool. A type of gill in certain decapod crustaceans with filamentous branches arranged in series around the axis. — trich'o·bran'chi·ate (-āt), adj.

trich'o·car'pous (-kär'pŭs), adj. [tricho- + -carpous.] Bot. Hairy-fruited.

tri·choc'la·sis (trĭ·kŏk'lă·sĭs; trĭk'ō·klā'sĭs), adj. [NL., fr. tricho- + -clasis.] Med. Brittleness of the hair.

trich'o·cyst (trĭk'ō·sĭst), n. [tricho- + -cyst.] Zool. Minute lassoing or stinging organs on the body of many infusorians. They are somewhat similar to small nematocysts in structure, but do not occupy or constitute a separate cell. — trich'o·cys'tic (-sĭs'tĭk), adj.

tri'chode (trī'kōd), n. [Gr. trichōdēs like a hair.] Zool. A trichome.

Trich'o·der'ma (trĭk'ō·dûr'mă), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + -derma.] Bot. A form genus of imperfect fungi (order Moniliales) bearing continuous conidia borne in heads on 2-branched to 3-branched conidiophores. T. koningi causes a rot of sweet potatoes.

Trich'o·des'mi·um (-dĕs'mĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. desmos a band, bond.] Bot. A small genus of filamentous blue-green algae of the family Oscillatoriaceae. T. erythraeum is the sea bloom (which see).

trich'o·ep'i·the'li·o'ma (-ĕp'ĭ·thē'lĭ·ō'mă), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + epithelioma.] Med. An epithelial tumor developing from the hair follicles.

trich'o·gen (trĭk'ō·jĕn), n. [tricho- + -gen.] Zool. A trichogenous cell.

tri·chog'e·nous (trĭ·kŏj'ĕ·nŭs), adj. [tricho- + -genous.] Producing hair; specif., designating the hypodermal cells of insects and other arthropods that produce the chitinous hairs or spinules on the surface of the body and limbs.

trich'o·gloss'si·a (trĭk'ō·glŏs'ĭ·ă), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. glōssa tongue + -ia.] Med. Hairy look of the tongue due to thickening of the papillae.

Trich'o·gloss'si·dae (trĭk'ō·glŏs'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. glōssa tongue + -idae.] Zool. A family of small brush-tongued parrots consisting mainly of the lories and lorikeets, often ranked as a subfamily, Trich'o·glossi'nae (-glō·sī'nē). — trich'o·gloss'ine (-glŏs'ĭn; -īn; 156), adj.

Trich'o·gram'ma (-grăm'ă), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. grammē a line.] Zool. A genus of very minute chalcid flies, sometimes made the type of a family, Trich'o·grammat'i·dae (-grăm·ăt'ĭ·dē), having the wings hairy. The species are parasitic in the eggs of other insects.

trich'o·gyne (trĭk'ō·jĭn; -jīn), n. [tricho- + Gr. gynē woman, female.] Bot. The filamentous receptive portion of a procarp or an archicarp. Cf. CARPOGONIUM. — trich'o·gyn'i·al (-jĭn'ĭ·ăl), trich'o·gyn'ic (-jĭn'ĭk), adj.

trich'oid (trĭk'oid), adj. [trich- + -oid.] Hairlike; capillary.

Trich'o·lae'na (trĭk'ō·lē'nă), n. [NL., irreg. fr. tricho- + Gr. chlaina cloak.] Bot. A genus of about fifteen species of African grasses with one-flowered, silky spikelets in small open panicles. T. rosea, the Natal grass, is used as forage in the southern United States and other warm regions.

trich'o·log'i·cal (trĭk'ō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. Pertaining to or connected with trichology.

tri·chol'o·gy (trĭ·kŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [tricho- + -logy.] Med. The science treating of the hair. — tri·chol'o·gist (-jĭst), n.

Trich'o·lo'ma (trĭk'ō·lō'mă), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. lōma border.] Bot. A genus of white-spored agarics with a pileus with thin, commonly sinuate, lamellae and no volva or annulus. The species vary in color; some are edible.

trich'o·mal (trĭk'ō·măl), adj. See -OID.

trich'i·nosed (trĭk'ĭ·nōzd; trĭk'ĭ·nōst'), adj. = TRICHINOUS.

tri·chlo'ro·meth'ane, tri·chlor'meth'ane (trī·klō'rō·mĕth'ăn, -klôr'mĕth'ăn), n. Chem. = CHLOROFORM.

trichloromethyl chloroformate. = DIPHOSGENE.

trich'o·be'zoar (trĭk'ō·bē'zōr; 181), n. [tricho- + bezoar.] = HAIR BALL.

trich'o·ceph'a·lī'a·sis (-sĕf'ă·lī'ă·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Trichocephalus + -iasis.] = TRICHURIASIS.

Trich'o·ceph'a·lus (-sĕf'ă·lŭs), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + -cephalus.] Syn. of Trichuris.

trich'o·cla'si·a (-klā'zhĭ·ă; -zhă; -zĭ·ă), n. [NL.] = TRICHOCLASIS.

Trich'o·don't·idae (trĭk'ō·dŏn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. trich- + -odont + -idae.] See SANDFISH a.

trich·om'a·tous, adj. Med. = TRICHOMATOSE. [TRICHOPHYTOSIS.]

trich'o·phy'ti·a, n. [NL.] = trich'o·spore, n. [tricho- + spore.] Bot. A conidium. Obs.

tri·cho'ma (trĭ·kō'mă), n. [Gr. trichōma, -ōmatos, a growth of hair.] 1. Bot. A trichome.

2. Med. a Trichiasis. b Plica.

Tri·chom'a·nes (trĭ·kŏm'ă·nēz), n. [L., a kind of plant, fr. Gr. trichomanes.] Bot. A very large genus of chiefly tropical, often epiphytic, ferns (family Hymenophyllaceae) often called bristle ferns. They have delicate, usually much-divided, fronds, with flattened sporangia within a transverse ring. Four species occur in the southern United States.

tri·chom'a·phyte (trĭ·kō'mă·fīt; -kŏm'ă-), n. [trichoma + -phyte.] A cryptogamic growth formerly believed to cause trichomatosis.

tri·chom'a·tose (-kō'mă·tōs), adj. [See TRICHOMA.] Med. Affected with a disease which causes agglutination and matting; — said of the hair when affected with plica. See PLICA, 1.

trich'o·ma·to'sis (trĭk'ō·mă·tō'sĭs; trĭ·kō'mă-), n. [NL. See TRICHOMA; -OSIS.] Med. A parasitic disease in which the hair becomes matted; plica.

tri'chome (trī'kōm; trĭk'ōm), n. [See TRICHOMA.] 1. Bot. Any epidermal hair structure. Cf. EMERGENCE, 4.

2. Zool. A kind of hair, usually of orange color, on the bodies of certain myrmecophilous insects. They occur in tufts and are associated with glands producing a secretion pleasant to the ants.

— tri·chom'ic (trĭ·kŏm'ĭk), adj.

Tri·chom'o·nas (trĭ·kŏm'ō·năs), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + -monas.] Zool. A genus of intestinal flagellates with a pear-shaped body and three to five anterior flagella. T. hominis is commonly found in man. It is the type of a family, Trich'o·mo·nad'i·dae (trĭk'ō·mō·năd'ĭ·dē). — trich'o·mon'ad (-mŏn'ăd), adj. & n.

trich'o·mo·ni'a·sis (trĭk'ō·mō·nī'ă·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Trichomonas + -iasis.] Med. & Veter. Infestation with a parasite of the genus Trichomonas.

trich'o·my·co'sis (-mī·kō'sĭs), n. [NL. See TRICHO-; MYCOSIS.] Med. Any disease of the hair caused by fungi.

trich'o·no'sus (-nō'sŭs), trich'o·no'sis (-sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + -nosus.] Med. Any diseased condition of the hair.

tri·chop'a·thy (trĭ·kŏp'ă·thĭ), n. [tricho- + -pathy.] Any disease of the hair. — trich'o·path'ic (trĭk'ō·păth'ĭk), adj.

trich'o·phore (trĭk'ō·fōr; 181), n. [tricho- + -phore.] Biol. a Bot. The cell or row of cells which bears the trichogyne. b Zool. One of the saclike structures from which the setae of annelids arise. — trich'o·phor'ic (-fŏr'ĭk), adj. — tri·coph'o·rous (trĭ·kŏf'ō·rŭs), adj.

trich'o·phyl'lous (-fĭl'ŭs), adj. [tricho- + -phyllous.] Bot. Having hairlike leaves, or hairlike divisions of the leaf, as certain xerophytes.

trich'o·phyte (trĭk'ō·fīt), n. Any fungus of the genus Trichophyton.

Tri·choph'y·ton (trĭ·kŏf'ĭ·tŏn), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. phyton plant.] Bot. a A genus of ringworm fungi (family Moniliaceae) with hyaline, continuous spores, parasitic in the skin and hair follicles of man and animals. Cf. EPIDERMOPHYTON; See RINGWORM, 1. b [not cap.] pl. -PHYTA (-tă). A fungus of this genus. — trich'o·phyt'ic (trĭk'ō·fĭt'ĭk), adj.

tri·choph'y·to'sis (-tō'sĭs), n. [NL. See TRICHOPHYTON; -OSIS.] Med. Disease of the skin and hair resulting from the presence of trichophyton; ringworm.

Trich'o·plax (trĭk'ō·plăks), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. plax a plate.] Zool. A genus of minute marine animals often classed as Mesozoa but probably constituting larval hydrozoans, having a completely ciliated discoid body composed of three layers of cells but not otherwise differentiated.

trich'o·pore (trĭk'ō·pōr; 181), n. [tricho- + pore.] Zool. A pore in the cuticle of an insect through which a sensory hair or bristle protrudes.

Tri·chop'ter·a (trĭ·kŏp'tĕr·ă), n. pl. [NL., fr. tricho- + -ptera.] Zool. An order of insects consisting of the caddis flies, formerly regarded as a suborder of Neuroptera. — tri·chop'ter·ous (-ŭs), adj. — tri·chop'ter (-tĕr), n. — tri·chop'ter·an (trĭ·kŏp'tĕr·ăn), adj. & n.

One of the Trichoptera (Neuronia semifasciata).

tri·chop'ter·on (-ŏn), n.; pl. TRICHOPTERA (-ă). [NL.] Zool. One of the Trichoptera.

Tri·chop'ter·yg'i·dae (-ĭj'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Trichopteryx, type genus (fr. tricho- + -pteryx).] Zool. A family of clavicorn beetles, having three-jointed tarsi, and the wings fringed with long hairs. It includes the smallest beetles known. — trich'op·ter'y·gid (trĭk'ŏp·tĕr'ĭ·jĭd), n. & adj.

tri'chord (trī'kôrd), adj. [Gr. trichordos three-stringed, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + chordē chord or string.] Music. Having three strings; hence, trichord piano, a piano having three strings, tuned in unison, to each digital throughout most of its compass.

tri'chord, n. Music. An instrument, as a lyre or lute, having three strings.

trich'or·rhe'a, trich'or·rhoe'a (trĭk'ō·rē'ă), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + -rrhea.] Med. Rapidly developing alopecia.

trich'or·rhex'is (-rĕk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. rhēxis a breaking.] Med. Trichoclasis. — trich'or·rhex'ic (-sĭk), adj.

Trich'o·san'thes (trĭk'ō·săn'thēz), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thrix, trichos, hair + anthos flower; — in allusion to the fringed corolla lobes.] Bot. A large genus of Asiatic and Australian herbs (family Cucurbitaceae), having entire or lobed leaves and white flowers succeeded by fleshy fruits of various forms. T. anguina is the snake gourd.

tri·chos'chi·sis (trĭ·kŏs'kĭ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. schisis cleaving.] Med. Splitting of the hair.

tri·cho'sis (trĭ·kō'sĭs), n. [NL. See TRICHO-; -OSIS.] Med. Any disease of the hair.

trich'o·spo·range' (trĭk'ō·spō·rănj'), trich'o·spo·ran'gium (-răn'jĭ·ŭm), n. [NL. trichosporangium. See TRICHO-; SPORANGIUM.] Bot. The pluricellular sporangium of fucoid algae. — trich'o·spo·ran'gi·al (-ăl), adj.

Tri·chos'po·rum (trĭ·kŏs'pō·rŭm; trĭk'ō·spō'rŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. thrix, trichos, hair + spora seed; — because the seeds have long hairs.] Bot. A genus of East Indian ornamental woody epiphytes (family Gesneriaceae), the blushworts, having red or orange flowers. The seed bears a bristle or hair at the apex and one or more at the base.

Trich'o·ste'ma (trĭk'ō·stē'mă), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. stēma stamen.] Bot. A genus of North American herbs or undershrubs (family Lamiaceae), having axillary whorls of small blue flowers with four exserted stamens and a deeply lobed ovary. T. lanatum of California and Mexico is one of the black sages. T. dichotomum, the blue curls, is common in the eastern United States.

Trich'o·stron'gy·lus (trĭk'ō·strŏn'jĭ·lŭs), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Strongylus.] Zool. A genus of roundworms (family Strongylidae) including some of the species formerly classified as belonging to the genus Strongylus (which see). — trich'o·stron'gyle (-jīl), n. — trich'o·stron'gy·lid (-jĭ·lĭd), n. & adj.

trich'o·thal'lic (-thăl'ĭk), adj. [tricho- + thallus.] Bot. Having a filamentous thallus or one ending in hairs or hair-like branches.

trich'o·til'lo·ma'ni·a (trĭk'ō·tĭl'ō·mā'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. tricho- + Gr. tillein to pluck, tear + mania.] Med. Insane desire to pull out one's hair.

trich'o·tom'ic (-tŏm'ĭk), adj. Pertaining to, characterized by, or based upon, a trichotomy; trichotomous.

tri·chot'o·mist (trĭ·kŏt'ō·mĭst), n. [Gr. trichotomein to cut hair.] A cutter of hair. Rare.

tri·chot'o·mize (trĭ·kŏt'ō·mīz), v. t. & i. To make a trichotomy (of).

tri·chot'o·mous (trĭ·kŏt'ō·mŭs), adj. [See TRICHOTOMY.] Trichotomic; divided into three parts, or into threes; three-forked; as, trichotomous branching. — tri·chot'o·mous·ly, adv.

tri·chot'o·my (-mĭ), n. [Gr. tricha threefold, in three parts + -tomy.] Division into three parts, elements, or classes; threefold constitution or grouping; specif., the division of the nature of man into body, soul, and spirit. — tri·chot'o·mism (-mĭz'm), n. — tri·chot'o·mist (-mĭst), n.

·trichous. A combining form, Greek -trichos, from thrix, trichos, hair, meaning -haired, as in leio*trichous*, peri*trichous*. In Zool. corresponding names of divisions, groups, etc., are formed in -tricha, as in Gastro*tricha*, Holo*tricha*.

tri·chro'ic (trĭ·krō'ĭk), adj. Exhibiting trichroism.

tri'chro·ism (trī'krō·ĭz'm), n. [tri- + Gr. chrōs color.] Biol. 1. The existence of three color forms in one sex of a species, as in certain insects (Lepidoptera) and certain birds. 2. Physics. The property of some crystals of presenting different colors in three different directions. Cf. PLEOCHROISM. — tri·chro'ic (trĭ·krō'ĭk), adj.

tri'chro·mat (trī'krō·măt), tri'chro·mate (-māt), n. [See TRI-; CHROMATIC.] Psychol. One who sees three primary colors; one who requires a mixture of three lights to match all colors he can see; hence, one with normal or nearly normal color vision.

tri'chro·mat'ic (-krō·măt'ĭk), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, consisting of, or employing, three colors; esp., pertaining to or designating the three-color process in printing. Cf. COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY.

2. Of or pertaining to a trichromat; having or relating to a triple receptor mechanism for perceiving color; as, the Young-Helmholtz trichromatic theory; trichromatic analysis. See COLOR, n., 2.

tri·chro'ma·tism (trĭ·krō'mȧ·tĭz'm), n. The quality or state of being trichromatic; the use of three colors, as in photography; trichromatic vision. — tri·chro'ma·tist (-tĭst), n.

tri'chrome (trī'krōm), adj. [tri- + Gr. chrōma color.] Designating, or pertaining to, an apparatus or machine for printing three colors; as, a trichrome typewriter.

tri·chro'mic (trĭ·krō'mĭk), adj. [tri- + Gr. chrōma color.] Trichromatic.

tri·chro'mic, adj. [tri- + chromic.] Chem. Containing three atoms of chromium.

tri'chro·nous (trī'krō·nŭs), adj. [Gr. trichronos, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + chronos time.] Triseme.

trich'u·ri'a·sis (trĭk'ū·rī'ȧ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Trichuris + -iasis.] Med. Infestation with worms of the genus Trichuris; trichocephaliasis.

Tri·chu'ris (trĭ·kū'rĭs), n. [NL., fr. trich- + Gr. oura tail.] Zool. A genus of intestinal roundworms (Nematoda) including the whipworm of man. Syn. Trichocephalus.

tri·cin'i·um (trĭ·sĭn'ĭ·ŭm), n. [LL.] Music. A trio for unaccompanied voices.

tri·cip'i·tal (-sĭp'ĭ·tăl), adj. [See TRICEPS.] Anat. Having three heads; designating or pertaining to a triceps muscle.

tri·cir'cu·lar (-sûr'kū·lĕr), adj. Math. Relating to three circles.

trick (trĭk), n. [ONF. trique, fr. trikier to trick, cheat (OF. trichier). See TREACHERY.] 1. An artifice or stratagem intended to deceive, delude, defraud, or a mean crafty procedure or practice; a cheating device; as, to resort to tricks to gain one's end.

2. Hence: a A mischievous or roguish act; a prank; as, a childish trick. b A foolish action; a stupid procedure; — now chiefly in a fool's trick, such tricks, or the like. c A sly, dexterous, or ingenious feat or procedure fitted to puzzle or amuse; as, a bear's tricks; a juggler's tricks.

3. Knack; specif.: a A quick or effective way of getting a result. "Knows the trick to make my lady laugh." Shak. b An artful or artificial expedient or contrivance; sometimes, a mere convention, as in art; as, to learn all the tricks of the stage. c The art of doing something quickly, effectively, skillfully, etc. "The author . . . must know the trick of destroying for the time the reader's own personality." Birrell. d Instant or skillful effecting of a result; as, that does the trick. e A feat demanding skill or ingenuity; as, the trick is to land the fish.

4. A toy; trifle; knickknack; pl., traps. Now Local.

5. A peculiarity or mannerism; a habit; as, a trick of frowning or gesturing; also, a characteristic and identifying fashion, feature, trait, tone, etc.

The trick of that void, I do well remember. Shak.

6. An illusion, as one caused by art or legerdemain; a delusory appearance; hence, trick of eyesight, an optical illusion.

7. A turn or spell of duty; shift; as, the night trick in a railway dispatch office; specif., the spell of a sailor at the wheel, or helm, usually two hours.

8. Creature; child; girl or boy; — usually little, or pretty, trick. Dial., U. S.

9. Card Playing. The cards played in one round, collectively, often used as a unit of score; as, in whist, six tricks constituted a book.

10. Her. An outline sketch. Cf. TRICK, v. t., 5.

Syn. — Wile, ruse, subterfuge, finesse; fraud, cheat, deception, imposture, delusion. See ARTIFICE, MANNER.

trick (trĭk), v.; TRICKED (trĭkt); TRICK'ING. [See TRICK, n.] Transitive: 1. To deceive by cunning or artifice; to impose on; to defraud; cheat; to affect or induce by deceit or trickery; as, to trick another in a sale; to trick one into consent or out of his property.

2. To obtain or bring about by trickery. Rare.

3. To dress; decorate; to adorn, esp. fancifully; — often with up, off, or out.

Tricked out in all the glory of his office. Forbes-Robertson.

4. To put in order; to preen; sleek. Now Rare.

5. To draw in outline, as with a pen; specif., Heraldry, to delineate or distinguish (a coat of arms, etc.) by outline sketches without color, the tinctures being indicated by abbreviations (O. for or, G. for gules, etc.) and the repetition of a charge by numbers.

—, Intransitive: 1. To practice trickery or fraud.

2. To practice or play tricks, or pranks, etc.; to trifle. R.

trick, adj. 1. Now Rare. a Quick; nimble; adroit. b Neat or trim in appearance or dress.

2. Of or pertaining to a trick or tricks; skilled in or used for tricks.

3. Conspicuously smart, attractive, effective, etc.; trickily or intriguingly fashioned or devised. Slang.

trick, adv. In a trick manner or fashion. Obs.

trick and tie. Matching in rivalry with something to spare. — trick'-and-tie', v. i.

trick'er (trĭk'ĕr), n. One who tricks; a trickster.

trick'er. Dial. var. of TRIGGER.

trick'er·y (trĭk'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). [See TRICK, n.] Tricking; the practice or use of tricks, esp. fraudulent tricks; also, such tricks collectively.

Syn. — Cheating, duplicity, double dealing, chicanery.

Ant. — Honesty, straightforwardness, artlessness.

trick'ing, adj. That tricks or is given to trickery; tricky. — trick'ing·ly, adv.

trick'ing, n. 1. The act or practice of one who tricks; trickery; embellishment.

2. Rare. a Costumes. Shak. b A tricked drawing.

trick'ish, adj. Given to, or characterized by, tricks or trickery; tricky. — trick'ish·ly, adv. — trick'ish·ness, n.

trick'le (trĭk'l), v.; TRICK'LED (-'ld); TRICK'LING (-lĭng). [ME. triklen, prob. for striklen, freq. of striken to flow, fr. AS. strīcan. The loss of s may be due to an s ending a preceding word, as tears. See STRIKE, v.] Intransitive: 1. To run or fall in drops; to flow in a thin gentle stream; also, to drip with some liquid, as a spout.

The blood began to trickle, and then to stream. Borrow.

2. To move, go, depart, etc., one by one; — of a crowd; as, the summer visitors are now trickling home.

—, Transitive: 1. To pour forth, or cause to flow, in drops or in a thin stream.

2. To let pass or go one by one.

trick'le (trĭk'l), n. Something that trickles or seems to trickle; a thin slow stream; a drip.

Streams that . . . dwindle to feeble trickles of mud. James Bryce.

trick'le, adj. Characterized by a trickle or trickling.

trick'le, adj. = TRICKY. Obs.

trickle charger. Elec. A device for charging a storage battery at a low rate continuously. Hence, trickle charge.

trick'let (trĭk'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A rill; a thin stream.

trick'ling, adj. That trickles; flowing or moving by or as by drops. — trick'ling·ly, adv.

trick'ly (trĭk'lĭ), adj. Trickling.

trick'ly, adj. = TRICK, adj., 1. — trick'ly, adv.

trick'ment (-mĕnt), n. Embellishment. Rare.

trick of eyesight. See TRICK, n., 6.

trick score. At bridge, the score counted by the number of tricks won and recorded below the line, which alone counts toward winning games.

trick'some (trĭk'sŭm), adj. Full of tricks; addicted to playing tricks; tricksy.

trick'ster (-stĕr), n. One who tricks or cheats; one given to trickery; as, political tricksters.

trick'ster·ing, n. The acts or practices of a trickster.

trick'sy (trĭk'sĭ), adj. [From tricks, pl. of TRICK.] 1. Tricked out; artfully embellished; esp., smartly or nattily attired.

The tricksy pomp of fairy pride. J. R. Drake.

2. Given to tricks or pranks; prankish; roguish; sportive.

3. Having or manifesting the cunning or craftiness of a trickster; hence, uncertain; evasive; deceiving; deceptive.

A wayward and tricksy guide. H. van Dyke.

trick'track' (-trăk'), n. [F. trictrac, of imitative origin. Cf. TICKTACK backgammon.] 1. An old kind of backgammon. Cf. TICKTACK, n., 2.

2. Backgammon; esp., Russian backgammon.

trick valve. Steam Engine. A slide valve having a supplementary steam passage (bb, in Illust.) connecting the forward and back parts of its face, thus reducing the valve travel.

Trick Valve. a, a Steam Ports, opening into Cylinder Face, on which the Trick Valve slides.

trick work. Work involving a trick, or knack, or the use of tricks, esp. of artificial devices; specif., literary or artistic work characterized solely by technical dexterity.

trick'y (trĭk'ĭ), adj.; -I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); -I·EST. 1. Of or characteristic of a trickster; given to or manifesting trickery; as, a tricky diplomat or policy.

2. Colloq. a Deceptively safe, easy, manageable, etc.; ticklish; as, a tricky situation. b Intricate; manifesting or requiring skill or knack in doing, making, etc.; as, tricky clothes or rhymes. c = TRICK, adj., 3.

Tri·clad'i·da (trī·klăd'ĭ·dȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Triclada, fr. tri- + Gr. klados branch; — from their three main intestinal branches.] Zool. An order of turbellarian worms having the intestine composed of a median anterior division and two lateral posterior divisions with side branches. It includes marine, fresh-water, and terrestrial forms. See PLANARIAN. — tri'clad (trī'-klăd), adj. & n.

tri'cli·nate (trī'klĭ·nāt; trĭk'lĭ-), adj. Cryst. Triclinic.

tri·clin'i·arch (trĭ·klĭn'ĭ·ärk), n. [L. tricliniarches.] One who presides over a feast; sometimes, a chief butler. Rare.

tri·clin'i·ar'y (trĭ·klĭn'ĭ·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. triclinialis. See TRICLINIUM.] Of or pertaining to a triclinium or the mode of dining at it.

tri·clin'ic (-ĭk), adj. [tri- + Gr. klinein to incline.] Cryst. Having, or characterized by, three unequal axes intersecting at oblique angles; said of a system (triclinic system). See CRYSTALLIZATION; SYMMETRY, 3. All forms in this system consist of two parallel faces, except in the crystals of a few substances where a form has but a single face, then called a pedion. Such crystals are referred to the asymmetric or pedial class of the system.

tri·clin'i·um (trĭ·klĭn'ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [L., fr. Gr. triklinion, triklinos, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + klinē a couch.] Rom. Antiq. a A couch for reclining at meals, extending round three sides of a table, and usually in three parts. b A dining room furnished with such a triple couch.

tri·cli'no·hed'ric (trī·klī'nō·hĕd'rĭk; -hē'drĭk), adj. [triclinic + Gr. hedra seat.] Triclinic.

tri·coc'cous (-kŏk'ŭs), adj. [Gr. trikokkos with three grains or berries, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + kokkos grain, seed.] Bot. Having three cocci, or carpels.

tric'o·lette' (trĭk'ō·lĕt'), n. [tricot + -lette as in flanne*lette*. See -ETTE.] A kind of knitted fabric similar to Jersey cloth, but made of cotton, rayon, or silk.

tri·co'lon (trĭ·kō'lŏn), n. [Gr. trikōlon, neut. of trikōlos three-membered.] Gr. & Lat. Pros. A period composed of three cola. — tri·co'lic (-kō'lĭk; -kŏl'ĭk), adj.

tri'col'or, tri'col'our (trī'kŭl'ĕr), n. [F. tricolore, in drapeau tricolore a tricolored flag, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + L. color color.] 1. The national flag of France, consisting of three nearly equal vertical stripes, blue, white, and red, in order from the hoist. It was adopted at the first revolution.

2. Hence, any flag of three colors in nearly equal masses; as, the Italian or Mexican tricolor.

tri'col'or, adj. Tricolored; specif.: a Of flags, banners, etc., of or belonging to a tricolor or a nation with a tricolor; esp., French. b Of dogs, black, tan, and white.

tri'col'ored (-ĕrd), adj. Having three colors; tricolor.

‖tri·con' (trē'kôn'), n. [F.] Card Playing. Three cards of the same denomination.

tri'conch' (trī'kŏngk'; see CONCH), adj. [Gr. trikonchos. See CONCH.] Arch. Designating the plan of a building, as of certain Syrian churches, having apses on three sides of a square central mass.

Tri·con'o·don (trĭ·kŏn'ō·dŏn), n. [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. kōnos cone + -odon.] Paleontol. A genus of small generalized Jurassic mammals having teeth with three simple cones. Though often regarded as marsupials, some place them with a few still less known forms in a separate order (or suborder), Tri·con'o·don'ta (-dŏn'tȧ).

tri·con'o·dont (trĭ·kŏn'ō·dŏnt), adj. Zool. a Having, or designating, teeth with three simple cones. See TRITUBERCULY. b Pertaining to the Triconodonta. — n. One of the Triconodonta. — tri·con'o·dont'y (-dŏn'tĭ), n.

tri'corn (trī'kôrn), adj. [F. tricorne, fr. L. tricornis.] Having three horns or corners.

tri'corn, n. 1. An imaginary three-horned beast.

2. Also tri'corne. A three-cornered cocked hat.

3. Anat. A lateral cerebral ventricle.

tri·cor'nered (trĭ·kôr'nĕrd), adj. Three-cornered; tricorn.

tri'cor·nute' (trī'kôr·nūt'), adj. [tri- + L. cornu horn; cf. L. tricornis.] Having three cornua.

tri·cor'po·ral (trĭ·kôr'pō·răl), adj. [L. tricorpor, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + corpus, corporis, body.] Having three bodies; specif., Her., represented with three bodies conjoined to one head, as a lion.

tri·cor'po·rate (-kôr'pō·rĭt), adj. Tricorporal.

tri'cor·y·phe'an (trī'kôr·ĭ·fē'ăn), n. [tri- + Gr. koryphē peak.] Three-headed; three-peaked. Rare.

tri'co·sane (trī'kō·sān; trĭk'ō-), n. [G. tricosan, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + Gr. eikosi twenty + -an, as in methan methane.] Chem. Any hydrocarbon of the formula $C_{23}H_{48}$; specif., the normal variety, a crystalline solid obtained from petroleum.

tri'cos·a·none (trī'kōs·ȧ·nōn; trĭk'ōs-), n. [tricosane + -one.] Chem. Any monoketone, $C_{23}H_{46}O$, derived from normal tricosane. See LAURONE.

tri·cos'tate (trĭ·kŏs'tāt), adj. Bot. & Zool. Three-ribbed; having three ribs, or costae.

Tri'co·syl (trī'kō·sĭl; trĭk'ō-), n. [tricosane + -yl.] Chem. A univalent radical, $C_{23}H_{47}$, of which tricosane is the hydride. — tri'co·syl'ic (-sĭl'ĭk), adj.

tri'cot (trē'kō; F. trē'kō'), n. [F., fr. tricoter to knit.] 1. A fabric of woolen, silk, cotton, or rayon, knitted, or so woven as to resemble knitting.

2. A soft ribbed wool or mixed fabric for dresses.

3. Short for TRICOT STITCH.

tric'o·tee' (trĭk'ō·tē'), n. [MF. tricotée an involuntary dance while being beaten.] Obs. A kind of dance. — v. i. To dance a tricotee.

tric'o·tine' (trĭk'ō·tēn'; F. trē'kō'tēn'), n. [F.] A worsted dress fabric with a double twill.

tricot stitch. Crochet. The simplest of crochet stitches, worked with a long hook of uniform size, and producing a plain straight pattern; — called also fool's, afghan, idiot, and railway stitch, fool's crochet, and Tunisian crochet.

tri'cot·y·le'don·ous (trī'kŏt·ĭ·lē'dŭn·ŭs; -lĕd'ŭn-), adj. Bot. Having three cotyledons.

tri·cre'sol (trĭ·krē'sōl; -sŏl), n. Pharm. & Chem. A mixture of the three cresols, prepared from coal tar, a colorless liquid of creosotic odor, used as a germicide.

tri·crot'ic (trĭ·krŏt'ĭk), adj. [tri- + Gr. krotein to beat.] Physiol. Of, pertaining to, or characterized by, tricrotism.

tri'cro·tism (trī'krō·tĭz'm; trĭk'rō-), n. Physiol. That condition of the arterial pulse in which there is a triple beat. Its characteristic sphygmographic pulse curve shows a primary and two secondary crests.

tri·cur'vate (trĭ·kûr'vāt), adj. Zool. Curved in three places.

tri·cus'pid (trĭ·kŭs'pĭd), adj. [L. tricuspis, -idis, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + cuspis a point.] 1. Having three cusps.

2. Anat. & Med. Pertaining to the tricuspid valve.

tri·cus'pid (-pĭd), n. A tooth having three cusps.

tri·cus'pi·dal (-pĭ·dăl), adj. Tricusp'd; tricuspidate.

tri·cus'pi·date (trĭ·kŭs'pĭ·dāt), adj. Also tri·cus'pi·dat'ed (-dāt'ĕd, -ĭd; 119). Three-pointed; cuspidate with three points; tricuspid; as, a tricuspidate leaf.

tricuspid valve. Anat. The valve, resembling in structure the mitral valve, but consisting of three triangular membranous flaps, at the opening of the right auricle of the heart into the right ventricle.

tri·cus'sate (trĭ·kŭs'āt), adj. [tri- + decussate.] Bot. Having whorls of three leaves, the leaves of each whorl alternating with those above and below.

tri·cy'a·nide (trĭ·sī'ȧ·nīd; -nĭd), n. Also -nid. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with three cyanogen groups.

trichromatic analysis, units. See COLOR, n., 2.

trich'y (trĭk'ĭ), n. = TRICHI.

tri'ci·cle. Tricycle. Ref. Sp.

tricircular coordinates. Math. See CO-ORDINATE, n., 2.

tri'-cit'y, n. See TRI-, 1.

trick'ful, adj. See -FUL.

trick'i·ly (trĭk'ĭ·lĭ), adv. of TRICKY.

trick'i·ness, n. See -NESS.

trick'i. Trickle. Ref. Sp.

trick'less, adj. See -LESS.

trick'like', adj. See -LIKE.

trick'-o-the-loop', n. = STRAP GAME.

trick'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

trick'si·cal, adj. = TRICKSY.

trick'si·ly, adv. of TRICKSY.

trick'si·ness, n. See -NESS.

trick'stress, n. See -STRESS.

trickt. Tricked. Ref. Sp.

tri·clin'i·al, adj. = TRICLINIARY.

tri·coc'cose, adj. = TRICOCCOUS.

tri·col'or·ous (trĭ·kŭl'ĕr·ŭs), adj. Tricolored. Obs.

tri'co·lum'nar, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·com'pound, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·con'o·don'tid, n. = TRICONODONT.

tri·con'o·don'toid, adj. See -OID.

tri'con·so·nan'tal (trĭ'kŏn·sō·năn'tăl; -tĭ), adj. a See TRI-, 1. b = TRILITERAL, adj.

tri'con·so·nan'tal·ism, n. = TRILITERALISM.

tri'cord. Trichord. Ref. Sp.

tri'cro·tous (trĭ'krō·tŭs), adj. Physiol. = TRICROTIC.

tri·cru'ral (trĭ·krōōr'ăl), adj. [tri- + L. crus, cruris, leg.] See TRI-, 1.

tric'trac', Var. of TRICKTRACK.

tri·cusp'al (trĭ·kŭs'păl), adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri'cy·an'ic ac'id (trĭ'sĭ·ăn'ĭk). Chem. See CYANURIC.

tri′cy·cle (trī′sĭk·l), n. [F. See TRI-; CYCLE. Cf. BICYCLE.] a Obs. A kind of three-wheeled coach. b A light three-wheeled vehicle to be ridden by one or more persons and propelled by treadles or hand levers. Cf. BICYCLE, n., 1; VELOCIPEDE. c A three-wheeled motorcycle. Cf. TRICAR.

Forms of Tricycle b.

tri′cy·cle, v. i.; -CLED (-′ld); -CLING (-lĭng). To ride a tricycle. — tri′cy·cler (-lĕr), n. — tri′cy·clist (-lĭst), n.

tri·cyc′lene (trī-sĭk′lēn; -sī′klēn), n. Chem. A crystalline, saturated, tricyclic hydrocarbon, $C_{10}H_{16}$, found in crude camphene and also made artificially; — an incorrectly formed name.

tri·cyc′lic (-sī′klĭk; -sĭk′lĭk), adj. 1. Having cycles. 2. Chem. Containing three rings in the molecule, esp. fused rings, as in anthracene.

tri·cy′clo-. Chem. A combining form for tricyclic.

Tri·cyr′tis (trī-sûr′tĭs), n. [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. kyrtos arched.] Bot. A small genus of Asiatic herbs (family Melanthaceae) with leafy simple stems, and rather large flowers spotted on the inside, the three outer segments of the corolla saccate. T. hirta, the toad lily, is cultivated for ornament. Syn. Compsoa.

Tri·dac′na (trī-dăk′nə), n. [L., pl., a kind of oysters, fr. Gr. tridaknos eaten at three bites, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + daknein to bite.] Zool. A genus of marine bivalves having no anterior adductor muscle, and an equivalve shell the valves of which are very thick and heavy and strongly plicated at the margin. The giant clam (Tridacna gigas) of East Indian seas attains a great size, some weighing as much as 600 lb. The genus is the type of a small family, Tri·dac′ni·dae (-nĭ·dē) of the suborder Cardiacea.

Tridacna (T. squamosa). (1/16) tri·dac′tyl (trī-dăk′tĭl), adj. [Gr. tridaktylos, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + daktylos digit.] Having three fingers or toes, or similar processes.

tri·dai′ly (-dā′lĭ), adj. Occurring, made, or the like, three times a day or every third day.

trid′dler (trĭd′lĕr), n. The pectoral sandpiper. New Jersey.

tri·dec′ane (trī-dĕk′ān; trī′dĕ·kān), n. [tri- + Gr. deka ten; — from the number of carbon atoms in the molecule.] Chem. Any hydrocarbon of the formula $C_{13}H_{28}$; specif., the normal variety, a colorless liquid.

tri·dec′ene (-dĕs′ēn; -dē′sēn), n. Chem. Any normal hydrocarbon of the formula $C_{13}H_{26}$.

tri′dec·i·lat′er·al (trī′dĕs·ĭ·lăt′ĕr·əl), adj. [From L. tredecim thirteen, after E. trilateral.] Having thirteen sides. Rare.

tri′de·co′ic (trī′dē·kō′ĭk), adj. Chem. Pert. to or designating any acid of the formula $C_{13}H_{26}O_2$; specif., the normal acid, a colorless crystalline compound made artificially.

tri·dec′yl (trī-dĕs′ĭl; -dē′sĭl; trī′dĕ·sĭl), n. [tridecane + -yl.] Chem. The univalent radical $C_{13}H_{27}$, of which tridecane is the hydride; specif., the normal variety, $CH_3·(CH_2)_{11}CH_2·$.

tri·dec′yl·ene (-dĕs′ĭ·lēn; -dē′sĭ-), n. [tri- + Gr. dekatos tenth + ethylene.] Chem. Any of a number of isomeric hydrocarbons, $C_{13}H_{26}$, belonging to the ethylene series. One is a colorless liquid found in Burma petroleum.

tri′dent (trī′dĕnt; 128), n. [L. tridens, -entis, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + dens tooth; cf. F. trident. See TOOTH.] 1. Gr. & Rom. Myth. A three-pronged spear, the attribute or symbol of authority of Poseidon, or Neptune. See POSEIDON, Illust. 2. Rom. Antiq. A three-pronged spear used by retiarii. 3. A three-pronged fish spear. 4. A trident (sense 1) borne by Britannia, as in coin devices; hence, the symbol of naval power or supremacy. 5. Something suggestive of a trident in shape, use, or emblematic significance. 6. Geom. The locus of two points, M and M′, when a parabola, together with a point, P, invariably related to it, is moved parallel to a given direction, the points M and M′ having been determined by the intersection of the parabola and a line joining a fixed point, F, with the point P. The curve is a rational curve of the third order and resembles a three-pronged spear. Its equation is $xy = ax^3 + bx^2 + cx + d$. Called also Cartesian parabola.

tri′dent, adj. [L. tridens.] Having three teeth or points.

tri·den′tal (trī·dĕn′tăl), adj. Pert. to, or having the form of, a trident; trident; also, bearing or wielding a trident.

tri·den′tate (-dĕn′tāt), adj. [NL. tridentatus. See TRIDENT.] Having three teeth, processes, or points.

trident bat. An Asiatic rhinolophid bat (Triaenops persicus), with a trident-shaped nose membrane.

Head of Persian Trident Bat. Nat. size.

tri′dent·if′er·ous (trĭ′dĕn·tĭf′ĕr·əs), adj. [L. tridentifer, fr. tridens trident + ferre to bear.] Bearing a trident.

Tri·den′tine (trī·dĕn′tĭn; trĭ-; -tīn), adj. [ML. Tridentinus, fr. Tridentum, Italy.] Of or pertaining to Trent, Italy (formerly in Austria), or the Council of Trent.

Tri·den′tine, n. 1. One who accepts the Tridentine profession of faith (that of the Council of Trent, issued by Pope Pius IV in 1564), which is one of the received statements of faith in the Roman Catholic Church. 2. A native or inhabitant of Venezia Tridentina, in northern Italy.

Tri′den·tin′i·an (trī′dĕn·tĭn′ĭ·ăn), adj. Tridentine.

tri·der′mic (trī·dûr′mĭk), adj. [tri- + derm- + -ic.] Physiol. Derived from all three germ layers.

tri′di·a·pa′son (trī′dĭ·ə·pā′zŭn; see DIAPASON), n. [tri- + diapason.] Music. A triple octave; the interval of three octaves.

tri·dig′i·tate (trī-dĭj′ĭ·tāt), adj. [tri- + L. digitatus having fingers or toes.] Tridactyl; having three fingerlike lobes.

tri′di·men′sion·al (trī′dĭ·mĕn′shŭn·əl; -′l), adj. Of three dimensions. — tri′di·men′sion·al′i·ty (-ăl′ĭ·tĭ), n.

tri′di·ur′nal (-dī·ûr′nəl; -n′l), adj. [tri- + diurnal.] Lasting three days; tridaily.

tri′do·min′i·um (trī′dō·mĭn′ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. tri- + dominium.] Internat. Law. A dominium exercised by three states jointly, as formerly in the case of Samoa.

tri′drachm (trī′drăm), n. [Gr. tridrachmon.] Gr. Antiq. A silver coin of the denomination of three drachmae.

trid′u·an (trĭd′ū·ăn), adj. [L. triduanus, fr. triduum. See TRIDUUM.] Tridiurnal. Rare.

trid′u·um (trĭd′ū·ŭm), n. [L., space of three days, fr. tri- + dies day.] A term of three days; specif., R.C.Ch., three days of prayer usually preceding a feast or some important occasion as first Communion.

trid′y·mite (trĭd′ĭ·mīt), n. [G. tridymit, fr. Gr. tridymos threefold; — from its common occurrence in trillings.] Mineral. A mineral consisting, like quartz, of silica, SiO_2, but differing in crystallization, being usually in minute thin tabular forms. H., 7. Sp. gr., 2.28–2.33. It is found in cavities in trachyte and similar rocks.

trid′y·mite–tra′chyte, n. Petrog. A trachyte with a high silica content, owing to secondary tridymite.

tri·dyn′a·mous (trī·dĭn′ə·məs), adj. [tri- + Gr. dynamis power.] Bot. Having six stamens, three long and three short.

tried (trīd), adj. 1. Obs. a Freed from impurities, as by sifting, bolting, or refining; specif., of fat, rendered. b Select; choice; excellent. 2. Proved; tested; faithful; trustworthy; as, a tried friend. Syn. — See RELIABLE. Ant. — Untried, untested.

tri′e·la′i·din (trī′ē·lā′ĭ·dĭn), n. The triglyceryl ester of elaidin, $(C_{17}H_{33}CO_2)_3C_3H_5$, a solid fat isomeric with triolein.

tri′ene (trī′ēn), n. A compound containing three double bonds.

tri·en′ni·al (trī·ĕn′ĭ·əl), adj. [L. triennium the space of three years, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + annus year. See ANNUAL.] 1. Continuing, or having a term of, three years; as, a triennial reign; a triennial Parliament. 2. Happening, coming about, or appearing, once in every three years; as, triennial elections; a triennial catalogue. — tri·en′ni·al·ly, adv.

tri·en′ni·al, n. 1. A period of three years. Rare. 2. A triennial event, appearance, occasion; specif., Ch. of Eng., a triennial episcopal visitation. 3. The third anniversary of any event.

Triennial Act. Eng. Hist. a An act of the Long Parliament, 1641 (repealed 1664), which provided that Parliament should meet every three years. b An act of 1694 (repealed 1716) which limited the life of a Parliament to three years. Cf. SEPTENNIAL ACT.

tri·en′ni·al′i·ty (trī·ĕn′ĭ·ăl′ĭ·tĭ), n. State of being triennial.

tri′ens (trī′ĕnz), n.; pl. -ENTES (trĭ·ĕn′tēz). [L., fr. tres, tria, three.] Rom. Antiq. a A bronze coin equal to ⅓ as. b A gold coin equal to ⅓ solidus.

tri·en′tal (trī·ĕn′tăl), adj. [L. trientalis.] Rom. Antiq Of or pertaining to a triens, or third part; esp., designating a standard of coinage in which the as weighted one third of a libra, or pound. See 7th AS, 2.

Tri′en·ta′lis (trī′ĕn·tā′lĭs), n. [NL. See TRIENTAL.] Bot. A genus of delicate Eurasian and North American herbs (family Primulaceae), having a whorl of entire leaves and several white starlike flowers on slender peduncles followed by 5-valved capsules. T. americana is the starflower.

tri′er (trī′ĕr), n. [From TRY.] 1. One who tries; specif.: a A refiner of metal, oil, etc.; a renderer of fat. b An investigator; an examiner. c One who makes an effort. d An experimenter. e A workman who tests pipes, slags, etc. † Now Dial. An umpire. 2. One who tries judicially; a judge. 3. Something that tries or proves; specif.: a An implement for testing quality, kind, condition, etc.; a tester; esp., a taster (see TASTER, 2); as, a butter trier. b A test of one's character, mettle, etc. 4. [cap.] Ch. of Eng. One of a body of Commissioners appointed in 1654 to examine those presented to benefices. Hist. 5. Eng. Hist. a One of a royal commission that allocated petitions to the proper court or referred them when necessary to Parliament. b A member of the House of Lords sitting in judgment on a peer; — more fully lord trier. 6. Law. = TRIOR b.

tri′er·arch (trī′ĕr·ärk), n. [L. trierarchus, fr. Gr. triērarchos, fr. triēres a trireme + archos a leader, a chief.] Gr. Antiq. a The commander of a trireme. b At Athens, one who (singly or jointly with other citizens) had to fit out a trireme for the public service.

tri′er·arch′al (-är′kəl), adj. Pertaining to a trierarch or trierarchy.

tri′er·arch′y (trī′ĕr·är′kĭ), n.; pl. -ARCHIES (-kĭz). [Gr. triērarchia.] 1. The office or duty of a trierarch. 2. Trierarchs collectively. 3. The Athenian plan whereby citizens furnished triremes.

tri′e·ter′ic (trī′ē·tĕr′ĭk), adj. [L. trietericus fr. Gr. triētērikos, fr. trietēris (sc. heortē) a triennial festival, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + etos a year.] Gr. Antiq. Taking place every third year, or, according to modern reckoning, every second year.

tri′e·ter′ic, n. A festival occurring in alternate years.

tri′e·ter′ics (-ĭks), n. pl. [L. trieterica, pl. See TRIETERICAL.] Trieteric games or festivals.

tri·eth′yl- (trī·ĕth′ĭl-). Chem. A combining form, tri- + ethyl-, denoting the presence of three ethyl groups, esp. replacing hydrogen. — tri·eth′yl (-ĭl), adj.

tri·eth′yl·a·mine′ (-ə·mēn′; -ăm′ĭn), n. Also -am′in. [triethyl- + amine.] Chem. An oily, strongly alkaline liquid, $N(C_2H_5)_3$, a tertiary amine analogous to trimethylamine.

tri·eth′yl·stib′ine (-stĭb′ēn; -ĭn), n. Chem. A liquid, $Sb(C_2H_5)_3$, of garlicliike odor, taking fire in air and behaving like a metal in various reactions.

tri·far′i·ous (trī·fär′ĭ·əs), adj. [L. trifarius of three sorts or ways, threefold; cf Gr. triphasios. Cf. BIFARIOUS.] Facing three ways; specif., Bot., in whorls of three.

trif′er·ous (trĭf′ĕr·əs), adj. [L. trifer. See TRI-; -FEROUS.] Bearing thrice yearly. Rare.

tri′fid (trī′fĭd), adj. [L. trifidus, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + root of findere to split.] Three-cleft; tridentate; divided part way to the base into three lobes with narrow sinuses; also, Rare, tripartite.

Trifid Nebula. Astron. A large and bright diffuse nebula in the constellation Sagittarius, divided into three principal irregular masses by dark lanes.

tri·fis′tu·lar′y (trī·fĭs′tū·lĕr′ĭ or, esp. Brit., -lĕr·ĭ), adj. Having three pipes. Rare.

tri·flag′el·late (trī·flăj′ĕ·lāt), adj. Zool. Having three flagella, as certain Protozoa.

tri′fle (trī′f′l), n. [ME. trifle, truffle, fr. OF. truffe, truffe mockery, raillery, trickery, prob. same word as F. truffe truffle. See TRUFFLE.] 1. An idle, nonsensical, or fictitious tale; a jest, a fable, or a fabrication; also, raillery; deceptive or mocking speech. Obs.

2. A thing of very little value or importance; a paltry or trivial affair, object, etc.; specif., a small jewel, poem, musical composition, etc., of no great or enduring value; a bauble, a bagatelle.

Small sands the mountain, moments make the year, And trifles life. Young.

3. A trifler; a person of no account. Obs. 4. An insignificant or, relatively, small amount, as of money. 5. Originally, a dish of clotted cream; now usually, a dessert made of spongecake soaked in wine or liqueur, with macaroons, jam, and whipped cream. 6. A variety of pewter (as one made of 83 parts tin and 17 antimony) used for small utensils, as beer measures. Syn. — Bagatelle, nothing, triviality.

— a trifle. A little; slightly; as, he was a trifle alarmed.

tri′fle (trī′f′l), v.; TRI′FLED (-f′ld); TRI′FLING (-flĭng). [ME. trifelen, truflen, fr. OF. truffler, trufer, to trick, mock. See TRIFLE, n.] Intransitive: 1. To talk jestingly or mockingly with intent to delude; to indulge in beguiling or misleading talk.

I fear he did but trifle and meant to wreck thee. Shak.

2. To toy (with something); to play; fidget. 3. To act without seriousness of purpose or mood or due respect; to speak, write, carry on an affair, etc., with levity or flippancy; to be heedless, indifferent, or frivolous, where concern or respect are desirable; to dally, play, or flirt; — often followed by with; as, to trifle with one's health or with one of the other sex.

Studious of song . . . I would not trifle merely. Cowper.

—, Transitive: 1. To deceive or delude with mocking or flippant speech; befool. Obs. 2. To spend or waste in trifling or on trifles; — usually with away; as, to trifle away money. "We trifle time." Shak. 3. Rare. a To make, or to treat as, trivial. Shak. b To speak or utter flippantly or lightly. c To toy with. Syn. — TRIFLE, DALLY, DAWDLE, POTTER. To TRIFLE (the general word) is to act without seriousness or in a frivolous fashion, or to toy with something; to DALLY is to play or coquet with something, or to linger as if in uncertainty; as, "To trifle agreeably is a secret which schools cannot impart" (Johnson); "o'er cold coffee trifle with the spoon" (Pope); "Such a talent in verse as mine is like a child's rattle, very entertaining to the trifler that uses it" (Cowper); "For so, to interpose a little ease, let our frail thoughts dally with false surmise" (Milton); "I dally with my subject because, to myself, the remembrance of these times is profoundly interesting" (De Quincey); "You know at taking leave . . . sometimes a man dallies . . . and does not know how to make off" (Keats). To DAWDLE is to linger idly or lazily; to POTTER is to busy oneself in an aimless or ineffectual fashion; as, "I looked into . . . the exhibition, in mere unwillingness to work, and desire to dawdle away time" (Scott); to potter about the garden Cf. LINGER, DEFER.

— not to be trifled with. Not to be treated disrespectfully or lightly with impunity.

Like a king not to be trifled with. Tennyson.

tri′fler (trī′flĕr), n. One who trifles; esp., a shallow, frivolous person.

tri′flet (-flĕt; -flĭt; 119), n. See -LET.

tri′fling, adj. 1. That trifles; frivolous; as, trifling talk. 2. That is a trifle; trivial; insignificant; as, trifling gifts. Syn. and Ant. — See PETTY.

— tri′fling·ly, adv. — tri′fling·ness, n.

tri′fling, n. The act or actions of one that trifles; hence: a Light talk; badinage. b Wasting or waste of time; effort or activity without value.

tri·flo′ral (trī·flō′rəl), also tri·flo′rate (-rāt), tri·flo′rous (-rŭs), adj. [tri- + L. flos, floris, flower.] Bot. Three-flowered.

tri·flu′o·ride (-flōō′ō·rīd; -rĭd), n. Also -rid. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with three atoms of fluorine.

tri′foil (trī′foil), adj. = TREFOIL.

tri′fold′ (trī′fōld′), adj. Threefold; triple.

tri·fo′li·ate (trī·fō′lĭ·āt), adj. [tri- + foliate. Cf. TREFOIL.] Bot. a Having three leaves; as, a trifoliate plant. b Sometimes, loosely, trifoliolate.

tri·fo′li·at′ed (-āt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Trifoliate.

trifoliate orange. A hardy Chinese orange (Poncirus trifoliata) having trifoliolate leaves and small fruits. It is cultivated for ornament and as a stock for budding.

tri·fo′li·o·late (trī·fō′lĭ·ō·lāt), adj. Bot. Having three leaflets, as the leaf of a clover. Cf. TRIFOLIATE. See LEAF, Illust.

tri·fo′li·o′sis (-ō′sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Trifolium + -osis.] Veter. A disease characterized by redness and inflammation of the buccal mucous membrane and of the white skin of the head and limbs, possibly caused by eating certain clovers.

Tri·fo′li·um (-fō′lĭ·ŭm), n. [L., trefoil.] Bot. a An immense genus of herbs of the pea family (Fabaceae), the clovers, widely distributed in temperate regions. They have digitately or pinnately trifoliolate leaves, and red, purple, pink, or white heads of flowers with a persistent corolla; the pod is membranous and indehiscent. Many species, as T. repens, T. incarnatum, T. hybridum, T. reflexum, are forage and hay plants. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus. 2. [not cap.] Pharm. The dried inflorescence of T. pratense, used as a home remedy for coughs.

trif′o·ly (trĭf′ō·lĭ), n. [L. trifolium.] Clover (Trifolium). R tri·fo′ri·al (trī·fō′rĭ·əl; 181), adj. Of or pert. to a triforium.

tri·fo′ri·um (trī·fō′rĭ·ŭm; 181), n.; pl. -RIA (-ə). [ML., appar. fr. L. tri- (see TRI-) + foris, pl. fores, a door.] Arch. The gallery or open space forming an upper story to the aisle of a church, typically an arcaded story between the nave arches and clerestory; — so called as often having three openings to each bay. See ARCHITECTURE, Illust.

---

tricyclic co-ordinates. Math. See CO-ORDINATE, n., 2.

tri·dac′tyle. Var. of TRIDACTYL.

tri·dac′ty·lous (trī·dăk′tĭ·ləs), adj. = TRIDACTYL.

tri′de·cyl′ic (trī′dē·sĭl′ĭk), adj. Chem. = TRIDECOIC.

tri·den′tat·ed (trī·dĕn′tāt·ĕd; 119), adj. = TRIDENTATE.

tri·den′ted (trī·dĕn′tĕd; 119), adj. Obs. a = TRIDENTATE. b Bearing a trident.

tri′dent-shaped′, adj. See -SHAPED.

tri·dep′side, n. Also -sid. Chem. See DEPSIDE.

tri′di·am′e·tral, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri′di·men′sioned (trī′dĭ·mĕn′shŭnd), adj. = TRIDIMENSIONAL.

‖tri′du·o (trē′dōō·ō), n. [It. & Sp.] = TRIDUUM.

tri·e′cious, tri·e′cious·ly. Vars. of TRIOECIOUS, etc. [TRIED.

tri′ed·ly (trī′ĕd·lĭ; 119), adv. of tri·e′dral. † TRIHEDRAL.

tri·en′ni·um (trī·ĕn′ĭ·ŭm), n. [L. See TRIENNIAL.] = TRIENNIAL, n., 1.

tri·e′qual, adj. See TRI-, 2.

tri′er·ar′chic, adj. = TRIERARCHAL. [CIN.

tri′e·ru′cin, n. Chem. See ERUtries (trīz), n., pl. of TRY.

tri·es′ter, n. Chem. See TRI-, 4.

tri′e·ter′i·cal (trī′ē·tĕr′ĭ·kəl), adj. = TRIETERIC, adj. Obs.

tri′fa (trī′fə), adj. = TREFAH.

tri·fa′cial (trī·fā′shəl), adj. & n. = TRIGEMINAL.

tri·fas′ci·at′ed, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·fĭ′liar, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri′fle·dom, n. See -DOM.

---

tri′form (trī′fôrm), adj. [L. triformis, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + forma form.] Having a triple form, constitution, or character; having three manifestations. "This triform antagonism." I. Taylor.

tri·form′i·ty (trī·fôr′mĭ·tĭ), n. [LL. triformitas.] State of being triform.

tri·fur′cate (trī·fûr′kāt), v. i. To fork or divide into three branches. — tri′fur·ca′tion (trī′fûr·kā′shŭn), n.

tri·fur′cate (-fûr′kāt), adj. Also tri·fur′cat·ed (-kāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119). [L. trifurcus, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + furca fork.] Having three branches or forks; trichotomous.

trig (trĭg), adj. [ME. trigg, fr. ON. tryggr. See TRUE.] 1. Dial. a N. of Eng. Trusty; faithful. b Scot. Active; brisk; lively. c N. of Eng. Full; distended.
2. Trim; neat; spruce; smart.
3. Sound; in good condition; strong; steady.
4. Very precise; stiff; prim; methodical.

trig, n. [From TRIG, adj.] A fop; dandy. Obs. B. Jonson.

trig, v. t. & i. [From TRIG, adj.] Dial. a To put in order; to tidy; — usually with up. b To dress smartly; to deck. c To fill; stuff; cram.

trig (trĭg), v. i. To trot; run. Dial. Eng.

trig, n. A trot; run. Dial. Eng.

trig, v. t. [Cf. ON. tryggja to make firm, and E. TRIG, adj.] To stop, as a wheel, by placing something under it; to scotch; skid; also, sometimes, to prop or support. Now Chiefly Dial.

trig, n. [From 6th TRIG, v.] 1. Something used in trigging, as stone or block. Now Chiefly Dial.
2. A manually operated eccentric cam mounted near the end of a scale beam, by means of which the beam may be held stationary at the lower limit of its motion.

trig, n. Dial. Eng. a A line from which to start in a race or game, as in bowling. b A trench, esp. as a boundary; also, a path.

trig, v. i. & t. To make, or mark with, a trig. Chiefly Dial.

trig out. To trace out. Chiefly Dial.

trig, n. Short for TRIGONOMETRY. Colloq.

trig′a·mist (trĭg′ȧ·mĭst), n. [See TRIGAMY.] One who commits trigamy.

trig′a·mous (trĭg′ȧ·mŭs), adj. [LL. trigamus a thrice-married man, fr. Gr. trigamos thrice married.] 1. Being or pertaining to a trigamist or trigamy; living in trigamy.
2. Bot. Having staminate, pistillate, and hermaphrodite flowers in the same head.

trig′a·my (trĭg′ȧ·mĭ), n. [LL. trigamia, fr. Gr. trigamia. See TRIGAMOUS.] Act of marrying, or state of being married, three times; esp., the offense of having three husbands or three wives at the same time.

tri·gem′i·nal (trī·jĕm′ĭ·năl), adj. [See TRIGEMINOUS.] Anat. & Zool. Of, pertaining to, or designating, the fifth pair of cranial nerves. They are in man the largest of the cranial nerves, arising by two roots, a small motor root and a large sensory root, which both leave the brain at the side of the pons. The sensory root bears a large ganglion (the Gasserian ganglion) and divides into three main branches, the ophthalmic, maxillary, and mandibular nerves. Only the mandibular is joined by the motor root, supplying the muscles of mastication. The ophthalmic and maxillary branches are sensory only. In other vertebrates the character of the trigeminal nerve often differs considerably from that of man, especially with respect to the relation of its roots to each other and the points of emergence of its branches from the skull. — n. A trigeminal nerve.

trigeminal neuralgia. Med. Neuralgia, often extreme in degree, of the region supplied by the trigeminal nerve.

trigeminal pulse. Med. An abnormal pulse in which a pause follows every third beat.

tri·gem′i·nous (trī·jĕm′ĭ·nŭs), adj. [L. trigeminus born three together, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + geminus twin. Cf. TERGEMINOUS.] Born three together; being one of three born at the same birth; trigeminal; also, rarely, threefold.

tri′ge·ner′ic (trī′jē·nĕr′ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to three types or kinds; specif.: a Bot. Showing characteristics of three genera; as, a trigeneric orchis. b Gram. Having three genders.

Tri′ger′ proc′ess (trē′zhā′). [After M. Triger, French engineer.] Engin. & Mining. A method of sinking through water-bearing ground, in which the shaft is lined with tubbing and provided with an air lock, work being proceeded with under air pressure. Cf. KIND-CHAUDRON SYSTEM.

tri·ges′i·mal (trī·jĕs′ĭ·măl), adj. [L. trigesimus thirtieth.] Thirtieth; thirty-day, or monthly. Rare.

tri·ges′i·mo-se·cun′do (-jĕs′ĭ·mō-sē·kŭn′dō), adj. & n. [L. in trigesimo-secundo in the thirty-second.] Thirty-twomo.

trig′ger (trĭg′ĕr), n. [For older tricker, fr. D. trekker, fr. trekken to draw, pull. See TREK.] 1. A piece, as a lever, connected with a catch or detent as a means of releasing it; specif., Firearms, the part of a lock moved by the finger to release the cock in firing.
2. A catch to hold the wheel of a carriage on a declivity.
3. Naut. a Rare. A block holding a vessel on the ways, the knocking away of which starts the vessel. Cf. 3d TRIGGER. b Usually, a lever pivoted on the ground ways, the upper end forced against the sliding ways by a hydraulic ram against the lower end. The releasing of the trigger allows the ship to slide down the ground ways.
4. Printing. = VERGE, n., 17.
— alert, quick, etc., on the trigger. Responding or reacting immediately; ready or alert in action, thought, etc. — in the drawing of a trigger. Instantaneously.

trig′ger, v. t. & i. To release by pressing a trigger; to press a trigger.

trig′ger, n. A trig, or skid. Cf. 1st TRIGGER, 2.

trig′ger, n. = 8th TRIG a.

trig′gered (trĭg′ĕrd), adj. Having a trigger.

trigger finger. 1. The forefinger, — so called because it is used in pressing the trigger of a firearm.
2. Med. A state in which flexion or extension of the finger is obstructed but finally effected with a jerk.

trig′ger·fish′ (trĭg′ĕr·fĭsh′), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (fĭsh′-ĕz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. Any of numerous deep-bodied fishes constituting Balistes and allied genera of the family Balistidae, having the anterior dorsal fin with two or three stout spines; — so called because pressure on the second spine causes the first to snap down when erected. They inhabit chiefly warm seas, and are often fantastically colored. B. capriscus, syn. carolinensis, occurs in the Mediterranean and on the American coast, and is sometimes eaten. Many species are poisonous. See also OLDWIFE, 1 b.

Triggerfish (Balistes capriscus).

trigger guard. See GUARD, n., 13.

trigger hair. Zool. A cnidocil.

trigger plant. = HAIR-TRIGGER FLOWER.

trigger tube. Elec. A vacuum tube having in addition to the usual platinum electrodes another pair of transverse electrodes with ends close together. It is used as a cymoscope by connecting the main electrodes in series with the two ends of an open circuit of a potential not quite sufficient to cause a glow discharge, when a very small discharge sent between the transverse electrodes will cause the tube to burst into glow. Called also Zehnder trigger tube (tsān′dĕr), after the inventor, a German physicist.

tri·gin′tal (trī·jĭn′tăl), n. [ML. trigintale, fr. L. triginta thirty.] R.C.Ch. A trental.

tri′gin·ten′ni·al (trī′jĭn·tĕn′ĭ·ăl), adj. [L. triginta thirty + -ennial as in centennial.] Of or pertaining to the thirtieth anniversary. Rare.

Trig′la (trĭg′lȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trigla, triglē, the red mullet.] Zool. See GURNARD.

tri·glan′du·lar (trī·glăn′dū·lĕr), adj. Bot. Having three nutlets in one involucre. Rare.

Tri′glav′ (trē′glăf′), n. [OSlav. tri- three + glava head; cf. Lith. trigalvis one with three heads.] Slav. Relig. The chief god of the Slavs of the Elbe and Oder regions, — to be identified with Svantovit.

Tri·glo′chin (trī·glō′kĭn), n. [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. glōchin a point; — from the pronged look of the fruit.] Bot. A small widely distributed genus of marsh herbs (family Scheuchzeriaceae) having basal ligulate leaves, small spicate flowers, and tricarpellary fruits. The species are called arrow grass.

trig loop. The steel loop in which the end of the weigh beam of a hand-operated grain scale moves up and down.

tri′glot (trī′glŏt), adj. [tri- + -glot.] Containing, printed in, or treating, three languages.

tri′glot, n. A triglot book or edition.

tri′glyph (trī′glĭf), n. [L. triglyphus, fr. Gr. triglyphos, fr. tri- + glyphē carving. See TRI-; GLYPH.] Arch. An ornament in the frieze of the Doric order, consisting of a rectangular tablet, slightly projecting, and having two vertical channels of V section, called glyphs, and two corresponding chamfers or half channels on the vertical sides, which are reckoned as a third "glyph." The triglyphs are repeated alternately with the metopes. See ORDER, Illust.

tri′glyph·al, adj. Triglyphic.

tri′glyphed (trī′glĭft), adj. Provided or decorated with triglyphs.

tri·glyph′ic (trī·glĭf′ĭk), tri·glyph′i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Consisting of, pertaining to, or adorned with, triglyphs.

‖tri′go (trē′gō), n. [Sp.] Wheat.

tri′gon (trī′gŏn), n. [L. trigonum, fr. Gr. trigōnon, fr. trigōnos three-cornered, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + gōnia a corner, angle. See POLYGON.] 1. A triangle.
2. Astrol. a = TRIPLICITY, 3. b = TRINE, n., 1.
3. Gr. & Rom. Antiq. a A kind of triangular lyre or harp. b [L. trigon.] A game at ball played by three persons.
4. Zool. The cutting region of the crown of an upper molar, usually the anterior part including the protocone, paracone, and metacone. That of a lower molar is the tri′go·nid (trī′gō·nĭd; trĭg′ō·nĭd). See TRITUBERCULY.

Tri·go′na (trī·gō′nȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trigōnos triangular.] Zool. A genus of stingless honeybees (subfamily Meliponinae) of the Old and New World tropics.

trig′o·nal (trĭg′ō·năl), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to a triangle; having three angles; triangular; trigonous.
2. Of or pertaining to a, or the, trigon.
3. Cryst. Noting that division of the hexagonal system, or the forms belonging to it, characterized by a vertical axis of trigonal or threefold symmetry. Some authors, however, group all such forms in a separate trigonal system having three equal and equally inclined axes. — trig′o·nal·ly, adv.

tri′gone (trī′gōn; F. trē′gôn′), n. [F., lit., a trigon.] Anat. & Zool. A triangle; specif., a smooth triangular area on the inner surface of the bladder, limited by the apertures of the ureters and urethra.

Trig′o·nel′la (trĭg′ō·nĕl′ȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. Gr. trigōnos three-cornered. See TRIGON.] Bot. A large genus of widely distributed herbs (family Fabaceae) having pinnately trifoliolate leaves, capitate or racemose flowers, and linear pods. Several species are valuable forage plants, esp. the Australian T. suavissima. T. foenum-graecum is the fenugreek.

trig′o·nel′line (-ēn; -ĭn), n. Also -lin. Chem. A colorless crystalline alkaloid, $C_7H_7NO_2$, obtained from the seeds of fenugreek, from certain other plants, sea urchins, etc. It is the N-methyl betaine of nicotinic acid.

tri′go·neu′tic (trī′gō·nū′tĭk), adj. [tri- + Gr. goneuein to beget.] Having three broods annually. — tri′go·neu′tism (-tĭz′m), n.

Tri·go′ni·a (trī·gō′nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See TRIGON.] 1. Zool. A genus of pearly bivalve shells (suborder Arcacea), many extinct species of which characterize the Mesozoic rocks. A few living species exist on the coast of Australia. With several extinct genera it constitutes a family, Trig′o·ni′i·dae (trĭg′ō·nĭ′ĭ·dē). — tri·go′ni·a′cean (trī·gō′nĭ·ā′shăn), adj.
2. Bot. See TRIGONIACEAE.

Trigonia (T. castata).

Tri·go′ni·a′ce·ae (-ā′sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Trigonia + -aceae.] Bot. A family of tropical American shrubs or woody vines (order Geraniales) of two genera, Trigonia and Lightia, with irregular, often spurred flowers, and 2-celled capsular fruit. Trigonia floribunda, with small white flowers and 3-angled capsules, grows at Panama. — tri·go′ni·a′ceous (-shŭs), adj.

tri·gon′ic (-gŏn′ĭk), adj. Of, or pertaining to, a trigon, or triangle.

trig′o·nite (trĭg′ō·nīt), n. [trigon- + -ite.] Mineral. An acid lead manganese arsenite, occurring in yellow to brown triangular wedge-shaped crystals. H., 2–3.

tri′go·ni′tis (trī′gō·nī′tĭs), n. [NL.; fr. trigone + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the trigone.

trig′o·no- (trĭg′ō·nō-; trī·gō′nō-), trigon-. [From TRIGON.] A combining form, Greek trigōno-, -trigōn-, from trigōnos, meaning triangular, as in trigonometry, Trigonella.

trig′o·no·ce·phal′ic (trĭg′ō·nō·sē·făl′ĭk; trī·gō′nō-), adj. Trigonocephalous.

trig′o·no·ceph′a·lous (-sĕf′ȧ·lŭs), adj. [trigono- + -cephalous.] Zool. Having a somewhat triangular flat head.

Trig′o·no·ceph′a·lus (-sĕf′ȧ·lŭs), n. [NL., fr. trigono- + -cephalus.] Zool. A formerly recognized genus which included the pit vipers of the genera Agkistrodon, Bothrops, Lachesis, and Trimeresurus.

trig′o·no·ceph′a·ly (-lĭ), n. Trigonocephalous formation.

trig′o·noc′er·ous (-nŏs′ĕr·ŭs), adj. [trigono- + Gr. keras horn.] Having horns of triangular cross section, as some goats.

trig′o·no·do′dec·a·he′dron (-nō·dō′dĕk·ȧ·hē′drŭn), n. [trigono- + dodecahedron.] Cryst. A trigonal tristetrahedron, the hemihedral form of the isometric trapezohedron. See TRISTETRAHEDRON, Illust., 1.

trig′o·noid (trĭg′ō·noid), adj. [trigon + -oid.] Geom. Like a trigon;—said of the plane figure formed by three arcs of equal circles intersecting by twos. — trig′o·noid, n.

trig′o·nom′e·ter (-nŏm′ē·tĕr), n. [trigono- + -meter.] A device for solving graphically any plane right-angled triangle, as a board with small squares, having a graduated straightedge pivoted to one corner of the diagram.

trig′o·nom′e·ter, n. One versed in trigonometry or trigonometrical surveying.

trig′o·no·met′ri·cal (-nō·mĕt′rĭ·kăl), adj. Also trig′o·no·met′ric (-rĭk). [Cf. F. trigonométrique.] Of or pertaining to trigonometry; performed by the rules of trigonometry.

trigonometrical co-ordinates. See CO-ORDINATE, n., 2.

trigonometric, or trigonometrical, canon. Math. A comprehensive set of trigonometric tables.

trigonometric curve. Math. A curve whose equation involves trigonometrical (and no higher) functions of the co-ordinates.

trigonometric or trigonometrical function. Trig. Any of various functions of an arc or angle, formerly defined with reference to a circle of unit radius, but now measured by the ratios of pairs of sides of a right-angled triangle. If OX, OY be any two rectangular axes, P any point on any ray OR making any angle α with OX, then the trigonometric functions of α are the following ratios, in which $x = OS$, $y = SP$, $r = OP$, — the sign of x being positive in the 1st and 4th quadrants, negative in the 2d and 3d, y positive in the 1st and 2d, negative in the 3d and 4th, r being always positive; cosine of $\alpha = \frac{x}{r} = \cos \alpha$; sine of $\alpha = \frac{y}{r} = \sin \alpha$; tangent of $\alpha = \frac{y}{x} = \tan \alpha$; cotangent of $\alpha = \frac{x}{y} = \cot \alpha$; secant of $\alpha = \frac{r}{x} = \sec \alpha = \frac{1}{\cos \alpha}$; cosecant of $\alpha = \frac{r}{y} = \operatorname{cosec} \alpha = \frac{1}{\sin \alpha}$; versed cosine of $\alpha = 1 - \sin \alpha$ = coversed sine of α = covers α; versed sine of $\alpha = 1 - \cos \alpha$ = versine of α = vers α.

Trigonometric Function.

trigonometric lines. Math. Lines representing in length and position, with respect to a unit circle, the various trigonometric functions, sine, cosine, etc., as SP, OS, AT, OT, etc., when OP (see TRIGONOMETRIC FUNCTION, Illust.) is 1.

trigonometric series. Math. A series whose terms proceed by sines and cosines of integral multiples of a variable angle.

trigonometric solution. Math. Solution (as of a cubic equation) in terms or by means of trigonometric functions.

trig′o·nom′e·try (trĭg′ō·nŏm′ē·trĭ), n.; pl. -TRIES (-trĭz). [NL. trigonometria; cf. F. trigonométrie. See TRIGONO-; -METRY.] That branch of mathematics treating of the relations holding among the sides and angles of triangles and among closely related magnitudes, and esp. of methods of deducing from given parts other required parts, and also of the general relations connecting trigonometric (or simply periodic) functions of arcs or angles. Also, a treatise on this science. See PLANE TRIGONOMETRY, SPHERICAL TRIGONOMETRY.

tri·go′non (trī·gō′nŏn), n. [Gr. trigōnon a triangle.] Music. = TRIGON, 3 a.

trig′o·no·type′ (trĭg′ō·nō·tīp′; trī·gō′nō-), n. [trigono- + -type.] Trigonal trapezohedron.

trig′o·nous (trĭg′ō·nŭs), adj. [L. trigonus, fr. Gr. trigōnos. See TRIGON.] Having three angles, or corners; triangular, in cross sections.

tri′gram (trī′grăm), n. a A three-letter inscription. b A figure made by three lines.

tri′gram·mat′ic (trī′grȧ·măt′ĭk), adj. [Gr. trigrammatos, fr. tri- + gramma a letter.] Of, pertaining to, or consisting of, a trigram; triliteral. — tri·gram′ma·tism (trī·grăm′ȧ·tĭz′m).

tri′graph (trī′grăf), n. [tri- + -graph.] Three letters spelling a single consonant, vowel, or diphthong; as sch (schism), eau (beau). — tri·graph′ic (trī·grăf′ĭk), adj.

Tri·gyn′i·a (trī·jĭn′ĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. tri- (see TRI-) + gynē woman, female.] Bot. A formerly recognized Linnaean order of plants having flowers with three pistils. — tri·gyn′i·an (-ăn), adj. — tri′gyn (trī′jĭn), n.

trig′y·nous (trĭj′ĭ·nŭs; trĭ′jĭ-), adj. Bot. a Obs. Pertaining to the Trigynia. b Having three styles or pistils.

tri·hal′ide (trī·hăl′īd; see HALIDE), n. Also -id. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with three atoms of halogen.

tri·he′dral (trī·hē′drăl), adj. [See TRIHEDRON.] Geom. Having three faces; pertaining to a trihedron.

tri·he′dron (-drŭn), n.; pl. -DRONS (-drŭnz), -DRA (-drȧ). [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. hedra a seat, base.] Geom. A figure formed by three planes meeting in a point.

tri·hem′er·al (-hĕm′ĕr·ăl), adj. [Gr. triēmeros.] Of three days' duration. Rare.

tri′he·mim′er (trī′hē·mĭm′ĕr), tri′he·mim′er·is (-ĭs), n. [NL. trihemimeris. See TRI-; HEMI-; -MEROUS.] Class. Pros. A group of three half feet; a catalectic colon of a foot and a half.

---

tri′formed. Triformed. Ref. Sp.

tri′formed, adj. = TRIFORM.

tri·for′min (trī·fôr′mĭn), n. Chem. See FORMIN a.

tri·form′ous, adj. = TRIFORM.

tri′fo·ve′o·late, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri′ft′hong. Tripthong. Ref. Sp.

tri·fu′ran. Chem. See TRI-, 4.

tri·fur′cal, adj. = TRIFURCATE.

trig′ger·less, adj. See -LESS.

Trig′li·dae (trĭg′lĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. See GURNARD.

trig′lid (-lĭd), n. & adj.

tri·glo′chid (trī·glō′kĭd), tri·glo′chin (-kĭn), adj. [Gr. triglōchis.] = TRICUSPID.

trig′ly, adv. of TRIG. See -LY.

tri·glyc′er·ide (trī·glĭs′ĕr·īd; -ĭd), n. Also -id. Chem. See GLYCERIDE.

tri·glyc′er·yl. Chem. See TRI-, [4.]

trig′ness, n. See -NESS.

trigon-. = TRIGONO-.

tri′gon. Var. of TRIGONE.

trigonal trapezohedron. See TRAPEZOHEDRON, d.

trigonal trisoctahedron. See TRISOCTAHEDRON, 2.

trigonal tristetrahedron. Cryst. See TRISTETRAHEDRON. [GON, 4.]

tri′go·nid, n. Zool. See TRItrig′o·no·dont′, adj. [trigon- + -odont.] See TRITUBERCULY.

trig′o·nom′e·tri′cian, n. = 2d TRIGONOMETER.

tri·gō′num (trī·gō′nŭm), n. [L.] a = TRIGON, 3 a. b = TRIGONE.

tri′graf. Trigraph. Ref. Sp.

tri·gram′mic (trī·grăm′ĭk), adj. [Gr. trigrammos.] = TRIGRAMMATIC.

tri·gut′tu·late, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri'he·mim'er·al (trī'hĕ·mĭm'ĕr·ăl), adj. After, or pertaining to, a trihemimer; — said esp. of a caesura.

tri·he'mi·o·bo'li·on (trī·hē'mĭ·ō·bō'lĭ·ŏn), n.; pl. -BOLIA (-ȧ). Also tri·he'mi·ob'ol (-ŏb'ŏl). [Gr. triēmiōbolion.] A silver coin of ancient Greece, equal to 1½ obols.

tri·he'mi·te·tar'te·mo'ri·on (-tē·tär'tē·mō'rĭ·ŏn), n. [Gr. triēmitetartēmorion.] A small Athenian silver piece, the ⅜ obol.

tri·ho'ral (trī·hō'răl; 181), adj. Occurring every three hours.

tri·hour'ly (-our'lĭ), adj. Consisting of three hours, as a period; occurring every three hours, as an event.

tri·hy'brid (-hī'brĭd), n. Biol. A hybrid whose parents differ by three pairs of contrasting Mendelian characters.

tri·hy'drate (hī'drāt), n. Chem. A compound with three molecules of water; also, less correctly, a hydroxide containing three hydroxyl groups.

tri·hy'drat·ed (-drāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Chem. Combined with three molecules of water.

tri·hy'dric (-drĭk), adj. a Containing three atoms of acid hydrogen. b Containing three hydroxyl groups.

tri·hy'dride (-hī'drīd; -drĭd; 157), n. Also -drid. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with three atoms of hydrogen.

tri'hy·drox'y- (trī'hī·drŏk'sĭ-). Chem. Comb. form, tri- + hydroxy-, denotingthe presence of three hydroxyl groups, esp. replacing hydrogen. — tri'hy·drox'y (-sĭ), adj.

tri·i'o·dide (-ī'ō·dīd; -dĭd; 157), n. Also -did. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with three atoms of iodine.

tri'ju·gate (trī'jōō·gāt; trĭ·jōō'gāt; 242), adj. [L. trijugus threefold, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + jugum a yoke.] Bot. Having three pairs of leaflets; — said of a pinnate leaf.

tri·ka'ya (trĭ·kä'yȧ), n. [Skr. trikāya having three bodies.] The Mahayana Buddhist doctrine of the three bodies of the Buddha: nirmanakaya, the apparitional body; sambhogakaya, the form as deity; dharmakaya, the ideal form, as Absolute. The doctrine is analogous to that of the Christian Docetae.

tri·ke'to- (trĭ·kē'tō-). Chem. A combining form, tri- + keto-, denoting the presence of three ketone groups. — tri·ke'to (-tō), adj.

tri·ke'tone (trĭ·kē'tōn), n. Chem. A compound containing three ketone groups.

tri'kir (trī'kĕr), tri'ker (-kĕr), n. Eastern Ch. A tricerion.

tri'labe (trī'lāb), n. [tri- + Gr. labē handle, grip, hold, fr. lambanein to take.] Surg. A three-pronged instrument to remove calculi from the bladder.

tri·la'bi·ate (trĭ·lā'bĭ·āt), adj. [tri- + L. labium lip.] Bot. & Zool. Three-lipped.

tri·lam'i·nar (trĭ·lăm'ĭ·nĕr), adj. Three-layered.

tri·lat'er·al (trĭ·lăt'ĕr·ăl), adj. [L. trilaterus, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + latus, lateris, side. See LATERAL.] Geom. Having three sides; three-sided, as a triangle. — tri·lat'er·al'i·ty (-ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — tri·lat'er·al·ly, adv. — tri·lat'er·al·ness, n.

tri·lat'er·al, n. A triangle; a figure having three sides.

Tril'by (trĭl'bĭ), n. 1. The title and heroine of a novel (1894) by George du Maurier. She is a Parisian laundress and model, who under the hypnotic influence of Svengali, a repulsive but musically gifted Austrian Jew, develops a wonderful voice, which brings her great fame. The book is a picture of life in the Latin Quarter at the middle of the 19th century.

2. [not cap.] In pl. tril'bies (-bĭz), feet; — from references in the novel (see sense 1) to the beautiful feet of the heroine. Slang.

3. [not cap.] A kind of soft felt hat. Brit.

tri·lem'ma (trĭ·lĕm'ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tri- (see TRI-) + lēmma anything received, in logic, an assumption. See DILEMMA.] 1. Logic. An argument analogous to a dilemma but presenting three, instead of two, choices in the premises.

2. A state of things in which it is difficult to determine which one of three courses to pursue.

tri·lin'e·ar (-lĭn'ē·ĕr), adj. [See TRI-; LINEAR.] Math. Of, pertaining to, or included by, three lines; as, trilinear co-ordinates.

tri·lin'gual (-lĭng'gwăl), adj. [L. trilinguis, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + lingua tongue, language. See LINGUAL.] Consisting of, having, or expressed in, three languages; also, familiar with, or able to use, three languages.

tri·lin'guar (trĭ·lĭng'gwĕr), adj. Trilingual. Rare.

tri·lin'o·le'nate (-lĭn'ō·lē'nāt; -lĕn'āt), n. Chem. One of the salts or esters of linolenic acid. See TRI-, 4; LINOLENIC.

tri·lin'o·le'nin (-lē'nĭn; -lĕn'ĭn), n. Chem. Glyceryl trilinolenate; linolenin.

Tril'i·sa (trĭl'ĭ·sȧ), n. [NL., anagram of LIATRIS.] Bot. A genus of herbs (family Cardiaceae), distinguished from Liatris by the corymbose panicles of flower heads and involucral bracts of two or three series only. The two species are natives of the southern United States. T. odoratissima is wild vanilla.

tri·lit'er·al (trĭ·lĭt'ĕr·ăl), adj. Consisting of three letters; trigrammatic; specif., Semitic Philology, consisting of three consonants. — n. A triliteral word. — tri·lit'er·al·ly, adv. — tri·lit'er·al'i·ty (-ăl'ĭ·tĭ), tri·lit'er·al·ness, n.

tri·lit'er·al·ism (-ĭz'm), n. Quality of being triliteral; as, triliteralism is characteristic of the Semitic languages.

tri'lith (trī'lĭth), n. Archaeol. A trilithon.

tri·lith'ic (trĭ·lĭth'ĭk), adj. Pertaining to a trilith.

tri'lĭ·thon (trĭl'ĭ·thŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trilithos of or with three stones, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + lithos stone.] Archaeol. A monument consisting of two upright megaliths carrying a third as a lintel.

trill (trĭl), v. i. & t.; TRILLED (trĭld); TRILL'ING. [ME. trillen to roll, turn round, of Scand. origin; cf. Sw. trilla to roll, Dan. trille, Icel. thyrla to whirl.] 1. To turn, twirl, roll, or rock; also, to quiver. Obs.

2. To flow in a small stream, or in drops rapidly succeeding each other; to trickle, as a tear. Shak.

trill, v. t. [It. trillare, prob. of imitative origin.] To impart the quality of a trill to; to utter as, or with, a trill; as, to trill the r; also, to vibrate, shake, or move, to and fro so as to cause a trill.

The sober-suited songstress trills her lay. Thomson.

— v. i. To utter trills or a trill; to play or sing with a trill; to have a trembling sound; to quaver.

trill, n. [It. trillo. See TRILL to shake.] 1. Phonet. The rapid vibration of one speech organ against another, as of the tip of the tongue against the teethridge, the uvula against the back of the tongue, or the lips against each other; also, a speech sound so made, as a trilled r.

2. A letter or a word pronounced with a trill (sense 1).

3. Music. a The alternation of two tones a degree apart; a shake. See ORNAMENT, n., 5. b = VIBRATO.

4. A sound likened to a musical trill; a warble; as, the trill of a blackbird.

tril'la·chan (trĭl'ȧ·kȧn), n. [Gael. trilleachan.] The oyster catcher. Hebrides.

‖tril·lan'do (trĕl·län'dō), adj. [It.] Music. Trilling.

trill'et (trĭl'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. A slight trill. See -LET.

‖tril·let'to (trĕl·lĕt'tō), n. [It.] Music. A short trill.

Tril'li·a'ce·ae (trĭl'ĭ·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Trillium + -aceae.] Bot. A small family of herbs (order Liliales), the trillium family, having perennial rootstocks, entire leaves, variously arranged, and often showy flowers of 3 petals and 3 sepals, with 6 stamens, followed by a globose or 3-lobed berry. Trillium and Medeola are the chief genera. — tril'li·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

tril'li·bub (trĭl'ĭ·bŭb), n. [Origin uncert.] Obs. exc. Dial. a Tripe. b A trifle.

tril'li·in (trĭl'ĭ·ĭn), n. [Trillium + -in.] Pharm. An eclectic resinoid prepared from Trillium erectum, used as an astringent and tonic.

tril'ling (trĭl'ĭng), n. [Cf. TRI-, and Dan. & Sw. trilling, G. drilling.] 1. One of three children born at the same birth; a triplet.

2. Cryst. A compound crystal consisting of three individuals. Cf. TWIN.

tril'lion (trĭl'yŭn), n. [F. trillion, formed from tri- in imitation of million a million. Cf. BILLION.] The number denoted by a unit with 12 zeros annexed (in French and American notation) or with 18 zeros (in English notation). See NUMERATION, 2, Note. — tril'lion, adj. — tril'lionth (-yŭnth), n. & adj.

tril'lion·aire' (trĭl'yŭn·âr'), n. [From trillion, after millionaire.] A person worth a trillion, as of marks, francs, dollars, or other standard of currency.

tril'lion·ize (trĭl'yŭn·īz), v. t. To multiply by the trillion.

Tril'li·um (trĭl'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. tri-; — so called because all species have leaves in sets of three. See TRI-.] 1. Bot. a A genus of herbs, type of the family Trilliaceae. They have short rootstocks and an erect stem bearing a whorl of three leaves and a large solitary flower at the summit. The corolla is white, pink, purple, yellow, or greenish, and is followed by a many-seeded berry. The species, often called wakerobin, are chiefly North American, with a few in Asia; they are often cultivated in wild gardens. The common red or purple species is T. erectum; the large-flowered white species is T. grandiflorum; the nodding species is T. cernuum. b [not cap.] Any plant of this genus.

Trillium (T. erectum).

2. [not cap.] Pharm. The dried rhizome of Trillium erectum, used as an astringent and tonic; — commonly called bethroot.

trillium family. The Trilliaceae.

tril'o (trĭl'ō; It. trēl'lō), n.; pl. -LI (It. -lē); -LOES (-ōz). [It.] Music. a A trill. b A tremolo.

tri·lo'bate (trī·lō'bāt; trĭ'lō-), adj. Also tri·lo'bal (-băl). Having three lobes.

tri·lo'bat·ed (-bāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Trilobate.

tri'lo·ba'tion (trĭ'lō·bā'shŭn), n. State of being trilobate.

tri'lobe' (trī'lōb'), v. t. To divide into three lobes.

tri'lobe', n. Something having or distinguished by three lobes; specif., Mach., a trilobate gear wheel.

tri'lobed' (trĭ'lōbd'; 66), adj. Trilobate.

Tri'lo·bi'ta (trĭ'lō·bī'tȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TRILOBITE.] Paleontol. A division of arthropods, commonly regarded as a subclass of Crustacea, or made a separate class, consisting of the trilobites.

tri'lo·bite' (trĭ'lō·bīt), n. [NL. Trilobites, Trilobita. See TRILOBATE.] Any of numerous extinct marine arthropods constituting the group Trilobita, so called from the division of the segments of the body by furrows on the dorsal surface into three lobes, a median one (the axial lobe or axis), and two lateral ones (the pleura). They are usually of a flattened oval form, and, besides the longitudinal lobes, present three transverse body regions, head, thorax, and pygidium. The head is covered by a continuous shield, the thorax consists of a variable number of free segments, and the pygidium consists of a number of coalescent segments. The legs, which were delicate and are very rarely preserved, are biramous, and those of the thorax carry gills. Many trilobites could roll the body up into a ball. Trilobites lived during the Paleozoic, reaching their maximum during the Cambrian and Ordovician, and becoming extinct in the Permian. Most of them were an inch or two long, some one or even two feet. See TRIARTHRUS, Illust. — tri'lo·bit'ic (trĭ'lō·bĭt'ĭk), adj.

Trilobite (Dalmanites). AA' Axis; BB' Pleuron; H Head; T, T Thoracic Segments; P Pygidium (United Abdominal Segments); g Glabella; e Eye; m Movable or free Cheek; f Fixed Cheek; a Genal Spine.

tri·loc'u·lar (trĭ·lŏk'ū·lĕr), adj. [tri- + locular.] Having three cells or cavities.

tri·loc'u·late (trĭ·lŏk'ū·lāt), adj. Trilocular.

tril'o·gy (trĭl'ō·jĭ), n.; pl. -GIES (-jĭz). [Gr. trilogia, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + logos speech, discourse; cf. F. trilogie. See -LOGY.] 1. A series of three dramas or, by extension, three literary or musical compositions, which, although each is in one sense complete, have a close mutual relation, and form one theme, historical, poetical, or the like, in nature; as, Schiller's Wallenstein trilogy.

2. Gr. Drama. A group of three connected tragedies played serially, as at the festival of Dionysus.

3. Loosely, any group of three related things, topics, sayings, etc.; a triad.

— tri·log'ic (trĭ·lŏj'ĭk; trĭ'-), tri·log'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. — tril'o·gist (trĭl'ō·jĭst), n.

Tri·loph'o·don (trĭ·lŏf'ō·dŏn), n. [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. lophos a ridge + -odon.] Paleontol. A genus of Miocene and Pliocene mastodons, having a long skull and particularly long lower jaws with a pair of long incisors.

tri·loph'o·dont (trĭ·lŏf'ō·dŏnt), adj. [tri- + loph- + -odont.] Zool. Having or designating teeth with three crests.

tri·lu'mi·nar (trĭ·lū'mĭ·nĕr), tri·lu'mi·nous (-nŭs), adj. [tri- + L. lumen, luminis, light.] Having three lights.

trim (trĭm), v.; TRIMMED (trĭmd); TRIM'MING. [ME trimen, trumen, fr. AS. trymian, trymman, to make strong, confirm, set in order, array, fr. trum firm, strong; akin to Skr. druma tree, Gr. drymos forest, and E. TREE. Cf. SHELTER.] Transitive: 1. To put in order for any purpose; to make neat or trim; to dispose; adjust; sometimes, to modify as a compromise, or as a way of furthering one's aim or purpose.

The hermit trimmed his little fire. Goldsmith.

2. To make trim, neat, ready, or right, by cutting, shortening, clipping, or the like; hence, often with off or the like, to cut, clip, or lop; as, to trim the hair; to trim a tree; to trim off rough edges; also, Dial., to castrate.

3. To put in condition for some purpose by equipping; to equip; furnish; dress. Obs.

4. To decorate; adorn; esp., to embellish with or as with ribbons, laces, or other ornaments; as, to trim a hat; also, to arrange a display of goods in (a shop window).

5. Colloq. a To rebuke; reprove. b To chastise; beat. c To defeat, as in a game or contest; sometimes, to defeat unfairly; to cheat.

6. Aeronautics. To alter the attitude of an aerostat to a fore-and-aft horizontal plane.

7. Carp. To dress, as timber; to make smooth.

8. Naut. a To adjust to a position in the water, as a ship or small boat, by arranging the ballast, cargo, or persons, esp. on each side of the center and at each end, so that she shall sit well on the water, sail well, etc. b To arrange in due order for sailing; as, to trim the sails.

—, Intransitive: 1. To balance; to preserve a balance; specif., to maintain a middle position between parties or the like, so as to appear to favor each equally, or to be neutral between them; sometimes, to compromise; to act according to expediency.

2. Naut. Of a vessel, to assume, or, of a person, to cause a boat or other vessel to assume, a certain position, or trim, in the water; — used with an adverb or adverbial phrase; as, a boat or rower trims badly.

Syn. — Shear, crop, prune; embellish, ornament.

trim by the head or stern. Naut. To trim (a vessel) so that she has greater draft forward, or by the head, than aft, or vice versa.

trim in. Carp. To fit, as a piece of timber, into other work.

trim sail. See TRIM, v. t., 8 b, above; hence, to make one's action, expenditure, or the like, fit the circumstances or conditions.

trim up. a To make trim; to put in order. b Colloq. To defeat.

trim (trĭm), n. [From TRIM, v.] 1. Order; condition; disposition; adjustment; as, to put a house in good trim.

2. Condition as to personal qualities; character; disposition. Obs.

3. Condition as to equipment, furnishings, dress, decoration, or the like; esp., suitable condition; hence, dress; gear; ornaments; as, in hunting trim.

4. That which is trimmed off, or cut out for rejection, as in trimming paper, motion-picture film, etc.

5. Advertising. Window dressing.

6. Aeronautics. The attitude of an aerostat relative to a fore-and-aft horizontal plane. If the forward end is down, the aerostat is said to have "trim by the bow"; if the after end, it has "trim by the stern."

7. Arch. a The lighter woodwork in the finish of a building, esp. that around openings, usually a molded architrave, to protect the plastering; hence, any framing around openings, the dado, and analogous parts. b Rare. U.S. The hardware of a house, as locks, hinges, etc.

8. Automobiles. The interior furnishings of an automobile body collectively, including the seat, floor, and side-wall coverings, and in a luxury type of vehicle, such accessories as lap robes, foot cushions, armrests, and especially designed hardware and lights.

9. Bookbinding, Print., etc. That portion of the top, front, or bottom, edges of printed pages, esp. of a book, that is to be trimmed off.

10. Naut. a The state of a ship or her cargo, ballast, masts, etc., considered in reference to her readiness and fitness for sailing. b The position of a vessel in the water, esp. with reference to the horizontal plane. c The difference between the draft of a vessel forward and that aft.

Designed . . . to float at a draft of 12 feet forward and 15 feet aft, giving a trim of 3 feet by the stern. E. L. Atwood.

d The buoyancy status of a submarine, whether positive, neutral, or negative.

trim (trĭm), adj.; TRIM'MER (-ĕr); TRIM'MEST. [See TRIM, v.] 1. Firm; stout; strong. Obs.

2. Excellent; fine; also, pleasant; gay. Obs.

3. In good order; fitly adjusted, equipped, prepared, or the like; made ready for service or use. Archaic.

4. Neat and compact or well ordered; free from anything unkempt or disordered; of clean lines and good proportions; as, a trim figure, costume, house, lawn.

Syn. and Ant. — See NEAT.

trim, adv. Trimly.

trim- (trĭm-). A comb. form of the adj. and adv. trim, as in:

trim-ankled	trim-cut	trim-looking trim-bearded	trim-dressed	trim-suited trim-bodied	trim-hedged	trim-swept trim-bodied	trim-kept	trim-waisted

Trim, Corporal. See CORPORAL TRIM.

trim'a·cer (trĭm'ȧ·sĕr), n. [Gr. trimakros, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + makros long.] Gr. & Lat. Pros. A foot of three long syllables.

tri·mac'u·lar (trī·măk'ū·lĕr), tri·mac'u·late (-lĭt), or tri·mac'u·lat'ed (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Marked with three maculae.

Tri·mal'chi·o's Din'ner or Ban'quet (trĭ·măl'kĭ·ōz). An episode in the Latin satirical romance Satyricon, attributed to Petronius Arbiter. Trimalchio is a wealthy, tasteless upstart who gives a fantastic dinner.

tri·mas'ti·gate (trĭ·măs'tĭ·gāt), adj. [tri- + Gr. mastix whip, scourge.] Zool. Triflagellate.

trim by the bow. A condition in which a vessel, an airship, an airplane, or the like, is lower at the bow than at the stern. The reverse condition is termed trim by the stern. Cf. TRIM, n., 6 & 10.

tri'mel·lit'ic (trī'mĕ·lĭt'ĭk), adj. Also tri·mel'lic (trī·mĕl'ĭk). [tri- + L. mel, mellis, honey.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating a colorless cyrstalline triacid, $C_6H_3(CO_2H)_3$, obtained indirectly from mellitic acid and in other ways; 1,2,4-benzene-tricarboxylic.

tri·hy'drol (trĭ·hī'drōl; -drŏl), n. See WATER, n., 1 b.

tri·hy'po·stas'ic, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·im'ide, n. Chem. See TRI-.

tri'ju·gous (trī'jŭ·gŭs; trĭ·jōō'gŭs; 242), adj. = TRIJUGATE.

tri·junc'tion, n. See TRI-, 1.

trike (trīk), n. & v. = TRICYCLE. Slang.

tri·ke'ri·on, n.; pl. -RIA. = TRICERION.

tri'ko·sane. Var. of TRICOSANE.

tri'la·mel'lar, tri·lam'el·lat'ed, adj. See TRI-, 1. [NAR.]

tri·lam'i·nate, adj. = TRILAMtri·lar'ce·nous, adj. See TRI-, 2.

tri·lau'rin (trī·lô'rĭn), n. Chem. See LAURIN b.

trild. Trilled. Ref. Sp.

trilinear co-ordinates. a Colorimetry. See COLOR, n., 2. b Math. See CO-ORDINATE, n., 2.

tri·lin'e·ate, tri·lin'e·at'ed, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri·lin'o·late, tri'li·no'le·ate. See TRI-, 4.

trilit, n. Also trilite. See TRINITROTOLUENE.

tril·lil', v. i. To drink; quaff. Obs.

tril·lil', adv. [Imitative, after trill.] Gurglingly. Obs.

tri·mar'ga·rate, n. Chem. See TRI-, 4. [ADV. 1 a.]

tri·mar'ga·rin, n. See MARGAtrim'ble (trĭm'b'l). Var. of TREMBLE. Obs. exc. Dial.

tri·mem′bral (trĭ·mĕm′brăl), adj. [L. trimembris.] Having, or composed of, three members.

tri·men′su·al (-mĕn′shōō·ăl; see MENSUAL), adj. Occurring every three months.

tri′mer (trī′mĕr), n. [tri- + Gr. meros part.] Chem. A compound having the same percentage composition as another but three times its molecular weight, esp. one formed by polymerization. — tri·mer′ic (trĭ·mĕr′ĭk), adj.

Trim′er·e·su′rus (trĭm′ĕr·ē·sū′rŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trimerēs having three parts + -urus.] Zool. A genus of Asiatic pit vipers closely related to Lachesis.

tri′mer·ite (trī′mĕr·īt), n. [Gr. trimerēs having three parts + -ite.] Mineral. A silicate of manganese, calcium, and beryllium, occurring in salmon-colored tabular crystals. H., 6–7. Sp. gr., 3.5.

tri′mer·i·za′tion (-ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ĭ·zā′-), n. Chem. Polymerization resulting in a trimer.

trim′er·ous (trĭm′ĕr·ŭs), adj. [See TRI-; -MEROUS.] a Bot. Having the parts in threes; — said of a flower. Often written 3-merous. b Zool. Having three (or apparently three) joints in each tarsus; pertaining to the Trimera.

tri·mes′ic (trĭ·mĕs′ĭk), adj. [tri- + *mesi*tylene + -ic.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating a colorless crystalline acid, $C_6H_3(CO_2H)_3$, formed by the oxidation of mesitylene and in other ways; 1,3,5-benzene-tricarboxylic.

tri′me·sit′ic (trī′mĕ·sĭt′ĭk). [tri- + *mesit*ylene + -ic.] Chem. a Trimesic. b Pertaining to or designating a crystalline acid, $C_6H_3NO_6$; 2, 4, 6-pyridine-tricarboxylic acid.

tri·mes′ter (trī·mĕs′tĕr), n. [F. trimestre, fr. L. trimestris of three months, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + mensis month.] a A term or period of three, or about three, months. b One of three terms into which an academic year is sometimes divided. — tri·mes′tral (-trăl), tri·mes′tri·al (-trĭ·ăl), adj.

tri·me′syl (-mē′sĭl; -mĕs′ĭl), n. Chem. The trivalent radical $C_6H_3(CO)_3$, of trimesic acid. Cf. BENZOYL.

tri′me·tal′lic (trī′mĕ·tăl′ĭk), adj. a Pertaining to, or based on the use of, three metals. b Chem. Containing three atoms or equivalents of a metal.

tri·met′al·lism (trī·mĕt′ăl·ĭz′m), n. The policy of using, or the use of, three metals (as gold, silver, and platinum) to form at the same time, in combination with each other, the standard of value. Cf. BIMETALLISM; GOLD STANDARD.

trim′e·ter (trĭm′ē·tĕr), adj. [L. trimetrus, fr. Gr. trimetros, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + metron measure. See METER measure.] Consisting of three measures; specif., Pros., consisting of three dipodies (six feet), as in ancient iambic, trochaic, and anapaestic verse, or of three feet, as in modern verse. — n. A verse or line of three feet or three dipodies.

tri′meth·ox′y- (trī′mĕth·ŏk′sĭ-). Chem. A combining form, tri- + methoxy-, denoting the presence of three methoxyl groups, esp. replacing hydrogen. — tri′meth·ox′y (-sĭ), adj.

tri·meth′yl- (trī·mĕth′ĭl-). Chem. A combining form, tri- + methyl, denoting the presence of three methyl groups, esp. replacing hydrogen. — tri·meth′yl (-ĭl), adj.

tri·meth′yl·a·mine′ (-ă·mēn′; -ăm′ĭn), n. Also -am′in. [trimethyl- + amine.] Chem. A colorless gas or volatile liquid, $N(CH_3)_3$, of fishy odor, obtained from herring brine, beets, many other plants, etc. It is strongly alkaline and is regarded as ammonia in which methyl has replaced all hydrogen.

tri·meth′yl·ben′zene (-bĕn′zēn; -bĕn·zēn′), n. Chem. Any of three trimethyl derivatives of benzene, called respectively hemimellitene, mesitylene, and pseudocumene (see these terms).

tri·meth′yl·ene (-mĕth′ĭ·lēn), n. Chem. a Cyclopropane. b The bivalent radical $-CH_2CH_2CH_2-$.

trimethylene bromide or dibromide. Chem. A colorless liquid, $BrCH_2CH_2Br$, obtained by adding hydrobromic acid to allyl bromide, and in other ways.

tri·meth′yl·stib′ine (trī·mĕth′ĭl·stĭb′ēn; -ĭn), n. Also -in. Chem. A liquid, $Sb(CH_3)_3$, similar to triethylstibine.

tri·met′ric (trī·mĕt′rĭk), adj. [tri- + Gr. metron measure.] a Pros. = TRIMETER, adj. b Cryst. Orthorhombic.

tri·met′ri·cal (trī·mĕt′rĭ·kăl), adj. Trimeter.

Trimetrical Classic. Chinese Lit. A textbook arranged in lines of three characters each, until recently universally used in China as a first reader.

trimetric projection. a See AXONOMETRIC PROJECTION. b Geom. A kind of projection (resembling isometric projection) in which each of the three dimensions is measured by a different scale, the angles being chosen arbitrarily.

trim′ly (trĭm′lĭ), adj. Being neat, compact, or well ordered or taken care of; trim. Rare.

trim′ly, adv. of TRIM.

trim′mer (trĭm′ĕr), n. 1. One who by hand or machine trims articles in industrial, esp. in manufacturing, processes or in maintenance work; as, a lamp trimmer; specif., a man employed on shipboard to stow coal or freight so as to distribute the weight properly.

☞ COMBINATIONS in this sense are:

brush trimmer	fancy trimmer	hot trimmer carriage trimmer	feather trimmer	shoe trimmer

2. An instrument or machine with which trimming is done; specif., any of various circular-saw machines with an endless-chain feed, for trimming lumber.

3. One who does not adhere to one set of opinions in politics, or the like; one who fluctuates, or holds a middle position, between parties, so as to appear to favor each; one who for the sake of expediency will modify his policy, position, statement, or the like.

4. One who inflicts chastisement, as by words or blows; anything employed in such chastisement, as a rebuke; hence, anything that makes a deep impression; a "settler"; a "stunner." Colloq. & Dial.

5. A virago, scold; vixen. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

6. A night line used in pike fishing; a ligger. Colloq., Eng.

7. Arch. A beam which receives the end of a header in floor framing, as about a hole left for stairs, or to avoid bringing joists near chimneys. See HEADER, Illust.

8. Coal Storage. An apparatus for trimming a pile of coal into a regular form, as of a cone or prism.

9. Naut. A clinometer to show a vessel's trim. Rare.

trimmer arch. Arch. An arch built between trimmers in the thickness of an upper floor to support a hearth.

trimmer beam. Arch. = TRIMMER 7.

trimmer condenser. Radio. A small variable condenser.

trimmer joist. = TRIMMING JOIST.

trimmer signal. Railroads. A signal which informs the engineman concerning movements to be made from the classification tracks into the switch and retarder area.

trim′ming (trĭm′ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TRIM. Hence: n. 1. The act of one who trims; specif., Colloq., the act of one who chastises, defeats, or the like; as, to give one a sound trimming.

2. That which serves to trim, make complete, ornament, or the like; esp., necessary or ornamental fittings or appendages, as of a garment; hence, Colloq., any accessories, as of a dish; — usually in pl.; as, trimmings for a hat; turkey and trimmings; educational trimmings.

3. pl. Parts or pieces removed by trimming, cutting, or the like; specif., wool shorn from the shanks of sheep.

4. Arch. a Process or manner of supporting joists, etc., by a trimmer or trimmers. b Trim.

trim′ming, adj. That trims, or is used by one who trims; as, a trimming machine.

trimming hatch or hole. Shipbuilding. A hatchway at a distance from a main hatch, through which to load grain or similar cargo to bring it uniformly close up to the deck.

trimming joist. Arch. A joist into which timber trimmers are framed. See JOIST, n., 1 a.

trimming machine. Woodworking. A machine consisting of a lever-operated knife and adjustable guides for shearing surfaces true to any required angle.

trimming press. Mach. See PUNCH PRESS.

trimming punch. Mach. See 7th PUNCH, 1 a.

trimming tank. Naut. A tank either forward or aft, usually in the extreme ends, utilized for changing the trim by admitting or discharging water ballast.

‖tri·mo′da ne·ces′si·tas (trĭ·mō′dà nē·sĕs′ĭ·tăs). [ML. See TRI-; MODE.] A.-S. Hist. Literally, necessity of three kinds; — used to designate a threefold burden or charge (army service, or fyrd; repair of strongholds, or burghbote; and repair of bridges, or bridgebote) on nearly all lands.

trim of the masts. Naut. The position of the masts of a ship with regard to the ship and to each other, as near or distant, erect or raking, etc.

tri′mo·lec′u·lar (trī′mō·lĕk′ū·lĕr), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or formed from, three molecules.

tri·month′ly (trī·mŭnth′lĭ), adj. Occurring, done, or coming, once in three months; as to render a trimonthly accounting of the conduct of the business.

tri·mo′ric (trĭ·mō′rĭk; 181), adj. Having, or equaling in time value, three morae.

tri′morph (trī′môrf), n. [See TRIMORPHOUS.] Cryst. A substance which crystallizes in three distinct forms; also, any one of these distinct forms. See TRIMORPHISM, 3.

tri·mor′phic (trĭ·môr′fĭk), adj. Biol. Trimorphous.

tri·mor′phism (-fĭz′m), n. [See TRIMORPHOUS.] 1. Biol. Polymorphism in which there are three distinct forms of a species. Cf. DIMORPHISM, 1.

2. Bot. Occurrence of three distinct forms of organs, as leaves, flowers, etc., on individuals of the same species; specif., heterogonous trimorphism (which see).

3. Cryst. The property of crystallizing in three forms fundamentally distinct, as in the case with titanium dioxide, which crystallizes in the forms of rutile, octahedrite, and brookite. See PLEOMORPHISM, 1.

tri·mor′phous (-fŭs), adj. [Gr. trimorphos three-formed, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + morphē form.] Pertaining to, or characterized by, trimorphism.

trim′stone′ (trĭm′stōn′), n. Stone used to trim a wall of brick or stone masonry; stone for copings, cornices, etc.

trim′tram′ (trĭm′trăm′), n. [Cf. TRIM, adj.] A silly or trifling thing; a gewgaw; a piece of nonsense. Dial.

trim′tram′ (trĭm′trăm′), n. A lich gate. Dial Eng.

Tri·mur′ti (trĭ·mōōr′tĭ), n. [Skr. trimūrti, fr. tri three + mūrti shape.] Hindu Relig. The triad, or trinity, of Hindu gods, consisting of Brahma (the Creator), Vishnu (the Preserver), and Siva (the Destroyer); — often confused with the three-headed form of Siva. Called also Hindu triad.

trin (trĭn), n. [Appar. fr. tri- + twin.] One of a group of three offspring born at one birth; one of triplets; in pl., triplets.

Tri·nac′ri·an (trĭ·năk′rĭ·ăn; trī-), adj. [L. Trinacria Sicily.] Sicilian.

tri′nal (trī′năl; -n'l), adj. [See TRINE.] a Threefold. Milton. b Gram. = 3d TRIAL. — n. Gram. A trial. See 4th TRIAL. — tri·nal′i·ty (trī·năl′ĭ·tĭ), n.

tri′nal·ize (-īz), v. t. Gram. To give (a word) a trinal form and signification. Rare.

tri′na·ry (trī′nà·rĭ), adj. Ternary. — n. A ternary group or set; a triad.

trinary proposition. Logic. A proposition in which the copula is distinct from the predicate term.

‖trin·che′ra (trĕn·chā′rà), n. [Sp.] Entrenchment; hence, an earthwall. Mex. & Southwestern U. S.

Trin′cu·lo (trĭng′kū·lō), n. In Shakespeare's Tempest, a drunken jester in the train of the king of Naples. Together with Stephano and Caliban, he is the butt of some of Ariel's tricks.

trin′dle (trĭn′d'l; dial. also trĕn′d'l), n. [See TRENDLE; cf. TRUNDLE.] 1. Scot. & Dial. Eng. A round or circular object; a trundle; specif.: a A wheel, esp. of a wheelbarrow. b Obs. exc. Hist. A long wax taper.

2. Bookbinding. A metallic device for forcing a rounded book into a flat back while the front edge is being trimmed. Cf. turn up 1, under TURN, v.

trin′dle, v. t. & i. To roll; unroll; trundle; bowl along. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial.

trine (trĭn), adj. [OF. trin, trine, fr. L. trinus triple, fr. trini three each, fr. tres, tria, three. See THREE; cf. TERN, adj.] 1. Threefold; triple; as, trine dimensions.

2. Triune. Obs.

3. Astrol. Being in trine (see TRINE, n., 1); hence, favorable; auspicious.

trine, n. [See TRINE, adj.] 1. Astrol. The (favorable) aspect of planets 120 degrees apart; trigon.

2. A triad; trinity; specif. [cap.], the Trinity.

3. Music. A chord of three tones, consisting of any given tone (considered as the root) with the major third above and the major third below.

trine, v. t. To put in the aspect of a trine. Rare.

trine (trĭn), v. t. & i. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Dan. trine.] Obs. Cant. a To march; go. b To hang.

trine compass. The universe as comprising three parts, earth, sea, and heaven. Obs.

trine immersion. In baptism, immersion thrice repeated in allusion to the Trinity.

trine′ly (trĭn′lĭ), adv. Threefold.

tri·neu′ral (trī·nū′răl), adj. [See TRI-; NEURAL.] Anat. Of or pert. to three nerves; as, the trineural fasciculus, a bundle of fibers in the upper part of the spinal cord, joined with the ninth, tenth, and eleventh cranial nerves.

T ring. A ring such that T sections are formed by passing normal radial planes through the ring.

Trin′ga (trĭng′gà), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trynga a kind of bird.] Zool. A genus of sandpipers including the solitary sandpipers. — trin′gine (trĭn′jĭn; -jĭn; 156), adj.

trin′gle (trĭng′g'l), n. [F.] 1. A curtain rod, esp. for a bed.

2. Arch. A narrow straight molding, esp. of square section.

3. Ordn. A low guard rail on a gun platform to keep the trucks of the gun carriage from running off. Rare.

trin′goid (trĭng′goid), adj. [tringa + -oid.] Of or pertaining to the sandpipers; tringine.

Trin′i·dad′ as′phalt (trĭn′ĭ·dăd′). A natural asphalt found in a pitch lake in the Island of Trinidad and widely used in the United States for sheet asphalt pavements. When refined it contains about 44 per cent colloidal clay and 56 per cent bitumen.

Trin′i·dad′i·an (trĭn′ĭ·dăd′ĭ·ăn), n. A native or inhabitant of the island of Trinidad. — adj. Of or pertaining to the island or people of Trinidad.

trin′i·da′do (trĭn′ĭ·dā′dō), n. [Pseudo-Sp.] Tobacco from Trinidad. Archaic.

Trinidad pitch. Asphalt from Trinidad.

Tri′nil (trē′nĭl), adj. [From Trinil, Java.] Designating the Java ape man Pithecanthropus erectus; — so called from the place of discovery. See PITHECANTHROPUS, Illust.

Trinil race. A race of man typified by the ape man and considered by some to be intermediate between ape and man. Cf. PITHECANTHROPUS b; TRINIL, adj.

Trin′i·tar′i·an (trĭn′ĭ·târ′ĭ·ăn), adj. [NL. trinitarius. See TRINITY.] 1. [sometimes not cap.] Of or pert. to the Trinity, the doctrine of the Trinity, or believers in that doctrine.

2. [not cap.] Being one of a trinity or triad; involving three; triple.

3. R.C.Ch. Of or pertaining to the order of Trinitarians.

Trin′i·tar′i·an, n. 1. One who believes the doctrine of the Trinity.

2. R.C.Ch. One belonging to the Order of the Holy Trinity, for the Redemption of Captives, a religious order founded in Rome, 1198, by St. John of Matha (1160–1213) and St. Felix of Valois (d. 1212). It is estimated the order redeemed 900,000 Christian slaves from the Mohammedans. There are second and third orders and a reformed branch, the Discalced Trinitarians. They now engage in missionary labors and seek to abolish slavery in Africa, even by purchasing and liberating the captives; — called also Redemptionist and Mathurin.

Trin′i·tar′i·an·ism (-ĭz′m), n. The doctrine of the Trinity.

tri·ni′trate (trī·nī′trāt), n. Chem. A nitrate containing three nitrate (NO_3) groups in the molecule.

tri′ni·tra′tion (trī′nĭ·trā′shŭn), n. Chem. Act or process of converting into a trinitro derivative or a trinitrate.

tri·ni′tride (trī·nī′trĭd; -trĭd), n. Also -trid. Chem. A compound of an element or radical with three atoms of nitrogen; specif., an azide.

tri·ni′tro- (-trō-), trinitr-. Chem. A combining form, tri- + nitro-, denoting the presence of three nitro (NO_2) groups, esp. replacing hydrogen. See NITRO-, Note. — tri·ni′tro (-trō), adj.

tri·ni′tro·cre′sol (trĭ·nī′trō·krē′sōl; -sŏl), n. [trinitro- + cresol.] Chem. Any trinitro derivative, $C_7H_5N_3O_7$, of cresol; specif., a high explosive similar to picric acid, made by nitrating metacresol and called also cresylite.

tri·ni′tro·meth′ane (-mĕth′ăn), n. A compound, $CH(NO_2)_3$. See TRINITRO-; METHANE; NITROFORM.

tri·ni′tro·phe′nol (-fē′nōl; -nŏl), n. Chem. Any trinitro derivative of phenol; specif., picric acid (see PICRIC).

tri·ni′tro·tol′u·ene (-tŏl′ū·ēn), n. Also -tol′u·ol (-tŏl′ū·ōl; -ŏl). [trinitro- + toluene.] Chem. Any of six trinitro derivatives, $CH_3C_6H_2(NO_2)_3$, or toluene; specif., the symmetrical, 2,4,6-, or α-derivative, a high explosive resembling picric acid, made by nitrating toluene and called also tolite, trilit, trinol, tritolo, triton, trotol, trotyl, etc. It forms pale-yellow crystals darkening to reddish brown and is insensitive to friction or ordinary shock. It is an ingredient of various explosives and is also used alone as a filling for shells. Abbr. TNT or T. N. T.

tri·ni′tro·xy′lene (-zī′lēn), n. [trinitro- + xylene.] Also -xy′lol (-zī′lōl; -lŏl). Chem. Any of several isomeric trinitro derivatives, $C_6H(CH_3)_2(NO_2)_3$, of the three xylenes.

Trin′i·ty (trĭn′ĭ·tĭ), adj. 1. Dedicated to or bearing a symbol of the Trinity; also, associated with or occurring on or about Trinity Sunday.

2. Associated with or pertaining to Trinity House.

trin′i·ty, n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [ME. trinitee, fr. OF. trinité, fr. L. trinitas triad, in LL., Trinity. fr. trini three each. See TRINE, adj.] 1. The condition of being three; threeness. Rare.

2. [cap.] Theol. The union of three persons or hypostases (the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost) in one Godhead, so that all the three are one God as to substance, but three persons or hypostases as to individuality.

3. Any symbol of the Trinity in art, esp. the triangle.

4. [cap.] Short for TRINITY SUNDAY.

5. Any union of three in one; three units treated as one; a triad; as, the Hindu trinity, or Trimurti.

6. a = HERB TRINITY. b A common North American spiderwort (Tradescantia virginiana).

7. [cap.] [From Trinity River, Texas.] Geol. A subdivision of the American Comanchean (Lower Cretaceous). See GEOLOGY, Chart.

trinity column. Arch. A column of triangular plan for all or part of its height, built as a religious memorial.

trinity fields. See THREE-FIELD, adj.

Trinity House, Corporation of. A corporation in London chartered by Henry VIII in 1514 for promoting commerce and navigation. It has been granted by acts of Parliament authority to collect light dues on shipping and to erect and maintain the lighthouses, beacons, etc., on the coasts of England and Wales. It also is authorized to license pilots and has many under its jurisdiction.

Trinity Jones. William Jones of Nayland (1726–1800), distinguished for his treatises in defense of the doctrine of the Trinity, and also for having originated The British Critic.

Trim′er·a (trĭm′ĕr·ə), n, pl. [NL. See TRI-; -MERE.] Zool. = PSEUDOTRIMERA. [TRI-, 4.]

tri′mer·cu′ric, adj. Chem. See tri′mer·ide, n. Also -id. Chem. = TRIMER.

tri′me·sin′ic (trī′mē·sĭn′ĭk), adj. Chem. = TRIMESIC.

tri·mes′i·tin′ic (trĭ·mĕs′ĭ·tĭn′ĭk), adj. Chem. = TRIMESITIC.

tri·meth′yl-a·ce′tic, ac′id. [tri-methyl- + acetic.] Chem. See VALERIC.

tri·meth′yl·meth′ane, n. Chem = ISOBUTANE. See BUTANE.

trimmd. Trimmed. Ref. Sp.

trim′ming-ly, adv. of TRIMMING.

trim′ness, n. See -NESS.

tri′mo·dal′i·ty, n., tri·mod′al, adj. See TRI-, 2.

trimolecular reaction. Chem. See REACTION, n., 6.

tri·mo′ri·on, n. [Gr. trimoros triple, or trimoiria a triple portion.] Astrol. In a nativity, the junction of three signs. Obs.

tri·mo′tor, adj. Also tri·mo′tored. See TRI-, 1.

tri·mus′cu·lar, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri′my·ris′tate, n. Chem. See TRI-, 4.

tri′my·ris′tin, n. Chem. See MYRISTIN.

tri·na′tion·al, adj. See TRI-, 1.

Trin′co·ma·li′ wood (trĭng′kō·mə·lē′). [From Trincomalee, Ceylon.] = HALMALILLE.

trin′dle·tail′, n. Trundletail. Obs.

tri·nerv′ate, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri′nerve′ (trī′nûrv′), tri′nerved′ (-nûrvd′), adj. See TRI-, 1.

Trin′i·tar′y, n. = TRINITARIAN. Obs. trinitr-. = TRINITRO-.

tri·ni′trin (trī·ni′trĭn), n. [tri- + nitr- + -in.] = NITROGLYCERIN.

tri·ni′tro·car·bol′ic (-trō·kär·bŏl′ĭk), adj. = PICRIC.

tri·ni′tro·cel′u·lose, n. See CELLULOSE NITRATE.

tri·ni′tro·glyc′er·in (-glĭs′ĕr·ĭn), n. = NITROGLYCERIN.

tri·ni′tro·res·or′cin, n. Chem. Styphnic acid.

trin′i·ty·hood, n. See -HOOD.

---

trinity lily. The great white trillium.
Trinity season. Eccl. The period between Trinity Sunday and Advent.
Trinity sitting or term. See TERM, n., 13 d.
Trinity Sunday. The Sunday next after Whitsunday, observed as a feast in honor of the Holy Trinity. trinity violet. The wild pansy. trink (trĭngk), n. A kind of fishing net. Obs. trink, n. Trench; channel. Scot. trink'er·man (trĭngk'ĕr·măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A fisherman who uses a trink. trin'ket (trĭng'kĕt; -kĭt; 119), n. [ME. trenket a sort of knife, hence, prob. a toy knife worn as an ornament, fr. ONF. trenquet, OF. & F. tranchet a sort of knife, fr. trenchier to cut (F. trancher). See TRENCH, v.] 1. A small article of equipment; as, he hastily put up his trinkets in his duffel bag.
2. A small ornament, as a jewel, ring, or the like; sometimes, Derogatory, a vain ornament; a gaud.
3. A thing of little value; a trifle; a toy.
trin'ket, v. t. To bedeck with trinkets. Rare. trin'ket (trĭng'kĕt; -kĭt), n. Obs. a A porringer. b A drinking cup. trin'ket, n. [F. trinquet foremast, also, a certain sail (cf. trinquette a triangular sail), fr. It. trincchetto, prob. fr. L. triquetrus triangular.] Naut. A three-cornered sail carried on the foremast, prob. on a lateen yard on the topmast. Obs. trin'ket, n. A small watercourse. Dial. Eng., Scot., & Ir. trin'ket, v. i. To deal clandestinely; to intrigue. — trin'ket·er, n. Both Now Rare.
trin'ket·ry (-rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). Trinkets collectively.
trin'ket·y, adj. Resembling or suggesting a trinket in nature, appearance, or value; hence, trivial; unimportant.
‖Trink'geld' (trĭngk'gĕlt'), n. [G.] Literally, drink money; a gratuity, as to a waiter; pourboire. trin'kle (trĭng'k'l), v. i. [Cf. TINKLE.] Dial. Eng. a To tingle. b To tinkle. trin'kle (trĭng'k'l), v. i. = 6th TRINKET, to intrigue; tamper. Obs. trin'kle, v. i. [Cf. TRICKLE.] Scot. & Dial. To trickle; drip; also, to flow or ripple down, as hair. — n. A trickle. trink'let (trĭngk'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [trinket + -let.] A small ornament; a trinket.
‖Trink'lied' (trĭngk'lēt'), n. [G.] Music. A drinking song. trin'kums (trĭng'kŭmz), n. pl. Rarely in sing., TRINKUM, exc. in composition. Also trin'kum-tran'kums. [Appar. fr. TRINKET.] Trinkets; frippery. Scot. & Dial. Eng. — trin'kum-tran'kum, adj.
tri·noc'tial (trī·nŏk'shăl), adj. [L. trinoctialis for three nights, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + nox, noctis, night.] Lasting during three nights; comprising three nights.
tri·noc'tile (-tĭl; 155), adj. [See TRINE, adj.; OCTILE.] Astrol. Pertaining to the aspect which includes three eighths of the heavens. Obs.
tri·nod'al (trī·nōd'ăl), adj. [L. trinodis three-knotted, fr. tri- + nodus knot.] 1. Anat. & Bot. Having three nodes.
2. Geom. Having three nodal points. tri'node (trī'nōd), n. Geom. Three nodes (that have) coalesced into one.
tri·no'dine (trī·nō'dĭn; -dĭn), adj. Trinodal.
tri·no'mi·al (-nō'mĭ·ăl), adj. 1. Math. Consisting of three terms; of or pertaining to trinomials; as, a trinomial root.
2. Biol. Consisting of, or involving the use of, names composed of three words or terms; as, a trinomial scientific name, the first name being that of the genus, the second that of the species, and the third that of the subspecies or variety to which the organism belongs. See NOMENCLATURE, 3 a.
— tri·no'mi·al'i·ty (-ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — tri·no'mi·al·ly, adv.
tri·no'mi·al (trī·nō'mĭ·ăl), n. [tri- + -nomial as in binomial.] 1. Math. An expression consisting of three terms, connected by the sign plus (+) or minus (−), or both; as, $x + y + z$, or $ax + 2b - c^2$.
2. Biol. A trinomial name; a trionym. tri·no'mi·al·ism (-lĭz'm), n. A system of nomenclature, as in biological classification, involving the use of trinomial terms. — tri·no'mi·al·ist (-ĭst), n.
tri·nop'ti·con (trī·nŏp'tĭ·kŏn), n. [See TRINE, adj.; OPTIC. Cf. STEREOPTICON.] A compound magic lantern of three distinct units, used for dissolving views.
Trin'o·vant (trĭn'ō·vănt), or Trin'o·van'tum (-văn'tŭm), n. [From L. Trinobantes, a people in the eastern part of Britain, in Essex, and the southern parts of Suffolk, or from the Celt. source of the Latin name.] An old name of London. Early historians corrupted the name into Troynovant, as if from Troja Nova (New Troy). See BRUT.
Trin'o·van'tes (-văn'tēz), Trin'o·ban'tes (-băn'tēz), n. pl. [L. Trinobantes.] A tribe of Roman Britain, dwelling in what is now Essex and Suffolk counties. trin'tle (trĭn't'l), v. i. Scot. a = 3d TRINKLE, v. i. b To move slowly. — n. Trindle. tri·nu'cle·ate (trī·nū'klē·ăt), adj. Biol. Having three nuclei.
Tri·nu'cle·us (trī·nū'klē·ŭs), n. [NL.] Paleontol. A widely distributed genus of Ordovician trilobites in which the glabella and cheeks form three rounded elevations on the head.

Trinucleus (T. concentricus).

tri'o (trē'ō; trī'ō; 277), n.; pl. TRIOS (-ōz). [F., fr. It. trio, fr. L. tres, tria, three. See THREE.] 1. Three, considered collectively; three in company or acting together, as in performing a musical trio; a set of three; three united.

The trio were well accustomed to act together. Dickens.

2. In card playing, three of a kind.
3. Music. a A composition for three voice parts or three instruments; also, the performers of such a composition. b The secondary, or episodical, division of a minuet or scherzo, as in a sonata or symphony, or of a march, or of various dance forms. It is usually contrasted in key, and is in a quieter style than the primary division. It was originally played by three instruments.
4. Poultry. A male and two female fowls, esp. when entered in an exhibition.
Tri'o (trē'ō), n. An Indian of a Cariban tribe of the borderlands of Brazil and British and Dutch Guiana. tri·ob'ol (trī·ŏb'ŏl), tri·ob'o·lon (-ŏb'ō·lŏn), n. [Gr. triōbolon.] The ancient Greek coin of three obols or ½ drachma. tri·oc'tile (trī·ŏk'tĭl), n. Astrol. An aspect of two planets with regard to the earth when three octants, 135°, apart.
tri'ode (trī'ōd), n. [tri- + -ode as in cathode.] A vacuum tube with an anode, a cathode, and a control grid. See ELECTRON TUBE. tri·o'di·on (trī·ō'dĭ·ŏn), n.; pl. -DIA (-ă). [Gr. triōidion. See TRI-; ODE.] East. Ch. A liturgical book containing the offices from the fourth Sunday before Lent to Easter eve; — so called because the canons used have never more than three odes.
Tri'o·don (trī'ō·dŏn), n. [NL., fr. tri- + -odon.] Zool. a A monotypic genus of puff-fishes of the East Indies and the eastern coast of Asia, having the fused teeth of the lower jaw forming a single plate and those of the upper jaw two plates, one on each side. It constitutes a family, Tri'o·don'ti·dae (-dŏn'tĭ·dē). b [not cap.] A fish of this genus. — tri'o·don'toid (-toid), adj. & n.
Tri'o·don·toph'o·rus (trī'ō·dŏn·tŏf'ō·rŭs), n. [NL., fr. tri- + odonto- + -phorus.] Zool. A genus of roundworms (Nematoda) parasitic in animals.
Tri·oe'ci·a (trī·ē'shĭ·ă), n. pl. [NL. See TRIOECIOUS.] Bot. The third order of the Linnaean class Polygamia. Obs. tri·oe'cious, tri·e'cious (-ē'shŭs), adj. [tri- + Gr. oikos house.] Bot. a Obs. Pertaining to the order Trioecia. b Having staminate, pistillate, and hermaphrodite flowers on different plants. — tri·oe'cious·ly, tri·e'cious·ly, adv.
tri·oe'cism (-sĭz'm), n. The quality or state of being trioecious.
-triol. Org. Chem. A combining form, tri- + 1st -ol, denoting the presence of three hydroxyl groups replacing hydrogen.
tri·o'le·fin (trī·ō'lē·fĭn), n. Also -fine (-fĭn; -fēn). [tri- + olefin(e).] Chem. Any of a series of hydrocarbons having the general formula C_nH_{2n-4} and containing three double bonds.
tri'o·let (trī'ō·lĕt), n. [F., dim. of trio. See TRIO.] 1. A poem or stanza of eight lines, in which the first is repeated as the fourth and seventh, and the second as the eighth. Its rhyme scheme is abaaabab.
2. Music. = TRIPLET, 6. Rare.
-trione. Org. Chem. A combining form, tri- + -one, denoting the presence of three ketone groups or, in a cyclic compound that is not a true triketone, of three carbonyl groups.
‖tri·on'fo (trē·ŏn'fō), n.; pl. TRIONFI (-fē). [It.] 1. In Italy of the Middle Ages, a spectacular procession.
2. [cap.] pl. Specif., a series of allegorical and partly narrative lyric poems by Petrarch, as The Triumph of Love, of Death, of Chastity, etc.
Tri'o·nych'i·dae (trī'ō·nĭk'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Trionyx, type genus (fr. tri- + Gr. onyx a claw) + -idae.] Zool. A family of soft-shelled, fresh-water turtles containing both fossil (Tertiary) and living forms, typified by the Old World genus Tri'o·nyx (trī'ō·nĭks), which formerly contained the North American flapjacks, now placed in the separate genus Amyda. It constitutes a suborder, Tri·on'y·choi'de·a (trī·ŏn'ĭ·koi'dē·ă). See SOFT-SHELLED TURTLE. — tri·on'y·chid (trī·ŏn'ĭ·kĭd), tri·on'y·choi'de·an (-koi'dē·ăn), n. & adj. — tri·on'y·choid (-koid), adj.
tri'o·nym (trī'ō·nĭm), n. [tri- + -onym.] Biol. A trinomial. — tri·on'y·mal (trī·ŏn'ĭ·măl), adj.
Tri'ops (trī'ŏps), n. [NL., fr. tri- + -ops.] Zool. A genus of fresh-water crustaceans (order Notostraca) having the head and thorax covered with an oval shield-shaped shell. Syn. Apus. It typifies a family, Tri·op'i·dae (trī·ŏp'ĭ·dē), syn. Apodidae.

A Triops (T. cancriformis), female. a Antenna; b Labrum; c First Pair of Legs; dd' Thoracic Legs; e Foliaceous Appendages; f Abdomen. (½) B Mandible, enlarged. tri'or (trī'ĕr), n. Var. of TRIER; specif., Law: a = TRIER, 2. b A person appointed by law to try challenges of jurors. tri·or'chis (trī·ôr'kĭs), n. [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. orchis testicle.] A person having three testicles. — tri·or'chism (-kĭz'm), n. tri'or·thog'o·nal (trī'ôr·thŏg'ō·năl), adj. Math. Trirectangular. tri'ose (trī'ōs), n. [tri- + -ose.] Chem. a Any simple sugar containing three oxygen atoms. See MONOSACCHARIDE; cf. GLYCERALDEHYDE. b Less desirably, a trisaccharide.

Tri·os'te·um (trī·ŏs'tē·ŭm), n. [NL., shortened fr. triosteospermum, fr. tri- + Gr. osteon bone + sperma seed; — in allusion to the (usually) three bony nutlets of the fruit.] Bot. A small genus of Asiatic and North American herbs (family Caprifoliaceae) having connate or perfoliate entire leaves and purple or yellowish tubular flowers, usually sessile in the axils. T. perfoliatum is the common feverroot.
tri·o'vu·late (trī·ō'vū·lăt), adj. Bot. Three-ovuled. tri·ox'ide (-ŏk'sĭd; -sĭd), n. Also -id. Chem. An oxide with three atoms of oxygen in the molecule; as, sulphur trioxide, SO_3. tri·ox'y- (trī·ŏk'sĭ-). Chem. A combining form, tri- + oxy-, signifying thrice, or triply, oxy-; — usually equiv. to trihydroxy-.
tri·o'zo·nide (-ō'zō·nīd), n. Also -nid. Chem. A compound containing three ozonide groupings. trip (trĭp), v.; TRIPPED (trĭpt), or, Poetic or Rare, TRIPT; TRIP'PING. [ME. trippen, trepen, fr. OF. tripper, triper, treper, of Teut. origin; cf. MD. trippen, D. trippelen; akin to AS. treppan to tread, and E. TRAP snare, TRAMP.] Intransitive: 1. To move with light quick steps; to walk or move lightly; to skip; to move the feet nimbly; also, rarely, as of deer, to run; — sometimes with it (see IT, pron., 7).

This horse anon began to trip and dance. Chaucer.
Come, and trip it, as you go,
On the light fantastic toe. Milton.

2. To make a journey or pleasure excursion; as, to trip to Europe. Now Rare.
3. To make a false step; to catch the foot; to stumble.
4. To offend against morality, propriety, accuracy, or the like; to slip; err. "Till his tongue trips." Locke.
5. Horol. To run past the pallet of the escapement; — said of a tooth of the scape wheel.
6. Shipbuilding. To be strained out of the perpendicular; — said of the floors between the keel and keelson.
—, Transitive: 1. To perform lightly or nimbly, as a dance, a curtsy, etc.
2. To cause to stumble, or take a false step; to cause to lose the footing, as by suddenly checking the motion of a foot or leg; to throw off the balance; — often with up.

The words of Hobbes's defense trip up the heels of his cause. Abp. Bramhall.

3. To cause to fail or be checked by putting an obstacle in the way; to obstruct; halt.

To trip the course of law, and blunt the sword. Shak.

4. To detect in a misstep, error, inconsistency, or the like.

These her women can trip me if I err. Shak.

5. Biol. To cause the pollination of a flower by moving the anthers against the pistil; — said of insects, as bees.
6. Bot. To effect the explosive discharge of pollen from elastically dehiscent anthers of (flowers or stamens), usually by artificial stimulus.
7. Logging. To wedge (a tree). See WEDGE, v.
8. Mach. To release, let fall, set free, etc., as a weight or compressed spring, as by removing a catch or detent.
9. Naut. a To raise (an anchor) from the bottom, by its cable or buoy rope, so that it hangs free. b To pull (a yard) into a perpendicular position for lowering it. c To hoist (a topmast) far enough to enable the fid to be withdrawn, preparatory to housing it or sending it down.
trip the light fantastic (toe). To dance; — modified from Milton's L'Allegro, lines 33–34 (see TRIP, v. i., 1). trip (trĭp), n. [From TRIP, v.] 1. A quick, light step; a light or lively movement of the feet; as, the trip of children's feet.
2. A journey, esp. a short journey; as, a week-end business trip; often, a journey for one's health or for pleasure; an excursion; also, a voyage (sense 2). Cf. ROUND TRIP.
☞ PHRASES in this sense are:

trip dial	trip rate	trip system
trip money	trip slip	trip train

3. A false step or misstep; a stumble; hence, an error; a failure; a mistake.

Imperfect words, with childish trips. Milton.

4. A stroke, or catch, by which one, esp. a wrestler, causes his antagonist to lose footing.
5. Catch of fish made on a single trip to a fishing ground.
6. Coursing. Act of throwing the hare off its feet or of seizing it but losing hold in a dog's futile effort to kill. Eng.
7. Mach. a Act of releasing, or tripping, as a valve held open against a spring; also, a pawl or other device for tripping a catch or detent. Trips are usually automatic. Cf. TRIPPER, 2; AUTOMATIC TRIP. b = TUP, n., 3.
☞ The word trip is largely used mechanically as a quasi adjective to designate something used in tripping (see TRIP, v. t., 8), or a machine, etc., having a tripping device as a chief essential; as, trip catch, die, lever, pin, piece, shaft, etc.
8. Mining. A number of cars coupled together and hauled as a train.
9. Naut. A single board in beating to windward. Now R.
Syn. — See JOURNEY.
trip, adj. 1. Of or pertaining to a trip (see 2d TRIP, 2).
2. That operates by a trip (see 2d TRIP, 7). trip (trĭp), n. [Origin obscure.] Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. a A flock. b A brood. trip, n. 1. A morsel (of cheese). Obs.
2. A thick, curdy milk cheese. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. trip, n. Tripos. Slang, Brit. tri'pal (trī'păl), n. [From TRIPE entrails.] A gangling and awkward lout. Scot. tri·pa'le·o·late (trī·pā'lē·ō·lāt; -păl'ē-), adj. Bot. With three paleae, as flowers of certain grasses.
tri·pal'mi·tate (-păl'mĭ·tăt), n. Chem. A palmitate derived from three molecules of palmitic acid.
tri·pal'mi·tin (-păl'mĭ·tĭn), n. Chem. Glycerol tripalmitate. trip'a·ra (trĭp'ă·rä), n. [NL., fr. tri- + L. parere to bring forth.] Med. A woman who has borne three children.
tri'part (trī'pärt), adj. Triparted. Rare.
tri'part, v. t. To divide into three parts. Rare.
tri·part'ed (trī·pär'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Parted into three pieces; having three parts or pieces. — tri·part'ed·ly (trī·pär'tĕd·lĭ; -tĭd·lĭ), adv.
tri·part'i·ble (trī·pär'tĭ·b'l), adj. Divisible into three parts.
tri·par'ti·ent (trī·pär'tĭ·ĕnt; -shĭ-), adj. [See TRIPARTITE.] Arith. Dividing into three parts; — said of a number. tri·par'tite (trī·pär'tīt; trĭp'ĕr·tīt; 277), adj. [L. tripartitus, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + partitus, past part. of partiri to part, to divide. See PART, n.] 1. Divided into three parts; consisting of three parts; triparted; as, a tripartite leaf.
2. Having three corresponding parts or copies; as, to make indentures tripartite.
3. Made between, or involving, three parties; as, a tripartite treaty.
4. Math. Consisting of three parts or involving three variables or sets of variables.
— tri·par'tite·ly, adv.
tri·par'tite, n. Something divided or made in three parts; esp., a document, agreement, etc., drawn in triplicate.
tri·par'tite, v. t. To divide in or among three. Obs.
tripartite number. See PARTITION OF NUMBERS.
tri·par·ti'tion (trī'pär·tĭsh'ŭn; trĭp'ĕr-), n. A division by threes, or into three parts; also, the taking of a third part.
tri·pas'chal (trī·păs'kăl), adj. Including three passovers. trip catch. See 2d TRIP, 7, Note. trip charter party. See CHARTER PARTY. trip die. See 2d TRIP, 7, Note.
tripe (trīp), n. [OF., perh. ult. fr. Ar. tharb.] 1. The entrails; hence, the belly; — usually in pl. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. A part of the stomach of a ruminant, esp. of the ox kind, used as an article of food. The parts used are the walls of the paunch or rumen (called plain tripe), and the reticulum (called honeycomb tripe). Cf. RUMINANTIA.
3. A tripeshop. Obs.
4. Figuratively, any poor, worthless (usually offensive) thing, matter, or person; — used derogatively as an epithet. Slang.
5. [OF.] A fabric of velvet weave but not of silk; — now called velveteen. Obs.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tripe dresser	tripemonger	tripeshop
tripe-eating, adj.	tripe seller	tripewife tripeman	tripe-selling, adj.	tripewoman trin'i·u'ni·ty (trĭn'ĭ·ū'nĭ·tĭ), n. [See TRINE, adj.; UNITY.] Trinity. Obs. trin'kle·ment, n. = TRINKLET.

Trin'o·ban'tes, n. pl. = TRINOVANTES.
‖tri·no'da ne·ces'si·tas. Errors for TRIMODA NECESSITAS. tri'nol (trī'nŏl; -nōl), n. See TRINITROPHLOROL. tri·nom'i·nal (trī·nŏm'ĭ·năl), n. & adj. [tri- + L. nomen, nominis, name; cf. LL. trinominis three-named.] Trinomial. Obs. trinq. See PANURGE. trin·une', adj. = TRIUNE. Obs. trin·un'ion, n. [See TRINE, adj.; UNION.] Trinity. Obs. — trin·un'ion·hood, n. Obs. trin·u'ni·ty, n. = TRIUNITY. Obs. tri·ob'o·lar (trī·ŏb'ō·lĕr), adj. Also tri·ob'o·lar'y. [ML. triobolaris, fr. L. triobolus a piece of three oboli, fr. Gr. triōbolon. See TRI-; OBOLUS.] Worth three oboli; hence, worthless. Obs.
tri·oc'u·lar, adj. See TRI-, 1.
Tri'o·don'tes (trī'ō·dŏn'tēz), Tri'o·don·toi'de·i (-dŏn·toi'dē·ī). See TRI-, 2. [See OLEIN, 1.] tri·o'le·in (trī·ō'lē·ĭn), n. Chem.
tri·ol'o·gy, n. = TRILOGY.
Tri·o'nes (trī·ō'nēz), n. pl. [L.] = SEPTENTRIONES. tri'o·per'cu·late, adj. See TRI-, 1. tri·or'a·zine, n. Chem. See TRI-, 4. tri·ox'y·meth'yl·ene, n. [tri- + oxy- + methylene.] See FORMALDEHYDE. tri·pang', Var. of TREPANG.

tri′pe·dal (trī′pē·dăl; trĭ·pē′-; trĭp′ē·dăl), adj. [L. tripedalis, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + pes, pedis, a foot.] Having three feet.

tripe′-de-roche′ (trēp′dĕ·rôsh′), n. [F.] Rock tripe.

trip engine. Any engine, esp. one of the Corliss type, with valves worked by a trip gear.

tri·pen′nate (trī·pĕn′āt), adj. Bot. Tripinnate.

tri′pen′ny (trī′pĕn′ĭ; trĭp′ĕn·ĭ), adj. Of the value of three pennies; hence, of little worth; insignificant.

tri·per′son·al (trī·pûr′sŭn·ăl), adj. Consisting of three persons. — tri·per′son·al′i·ty (-ăl′ĭ·tĭ), n. — tri·per′son·al·ly, adv.

tri·per′son·al·ist (-ĭst), n. A Trinitarian. — tri·per′son·al·ism (-ĭz′m), n.

trip′er·y (trĭp′ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -ER·IES (-ĭz). [OF. triperie.] A place where tripe is prepared or sold.

tripe′stone′ (trīp′stōn′), n. A variety of the mineral anhydrite composed of contorted plates suggesting pieces of tripe.

tri·pet′al·oid (trī·pĕt′ăl·oid), adj. Having the appearance or form of three petals.

tri·pet′al·ous (-pĕt′ăl·ŭs), adj. Bot. Having three petals.

trip′–free′ (66), adj. Elec. Free to trip on the occurrence of any condition, as an overload, for which provision is made, even if the normal operating lever or the control-switch closing contact is held in the closed position; as, a trip-free circuit breaker.

trip gear. Mach. A gear for tripping; specif., a rapid cutoff gear, as for a Corliss engine, worked by a trip.

trip hammer. Also trip′ham′mer, (trĭp′hăm′ĕr), n. Mach. A massive power hammer having a helve that is tripped, and allowed to fall, by cam or lever action.—trip′ham′mer, adj.

Trip Hammer. a Lever or Helve, pivoted at b; c Hammer Head; d Anvil; f Shaft carrying Collar e with Cams for lifting the Hammer Head; g Prop to hold up the Hammer Head when not in use.

tri′pha·si·a (trĭ·fā′zhĭ·ȧ; -zĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. triphasios triple; — from the triple form of leaves, corolla, and calyx.] Bot. A genus of Malayan spiny shrubs (family Rutaceae), having as the only known species T. trifoliata, the limeberry.

tri·phen′yl- (trī·fĕn′ĭl-; -fē′nĭl-). Chem. A combining form, tri- + phenyl-, denoting the presence of three phenyl groups, esp. replacing hydrogen. — tri·phen′yl (-ĭl; -nĭl), adj.

tri·phen′yl·a·mine′ (-ȧ·mēn′; -ăm′ĭn), n. Also -am′in. Chem. A colorless crystalline compound, $N(C_6H_5)_3$, analogous to trimethylamine, but a weaker base.

tri·phen′yl·at′ed (trī·fĕn′ĭ·lāt′ĕd; -fē′nĭ-; -ĭd; 119), adj. Chem. Containing three phenyl groups.

tri·phen′yl·car′bi·nol (trī·fĕn′ĭl·kär′bĭ·nōl; -nŏl; -fē′nĭl-), n. [triphenyl- + carbinol.] Chem. A colorless crystalline alcohol $(C_6H_5)_3COH$, obtained by oxidation of triphenylmethane, etc.

tri·phen′yl·meth′ane (-mĕth′ān), n. [triphenyl- + methane.] Chem. A colorless crystalline hydrocarbon, $CH(C_6H_5)_3$, obtained by the reaction of chloroform with benzene in presence of aluminum chloride and in other ways. It is the parent substance of many synthetic dyes.

triphenylmethane dye or color. Any of a class of dyes derived from triphenylmethane.

tri·phen′yl·meth′yl (-mĕth′ĭl), n. Chem. The univalent radical, $C(C_6H_5)_3$, of which triphenylmethane is the hydride. It was the first organic radical to be obtained in the free state, in the form of very active yellow solutions, by treating triphenylmethyl chloride, $C(C_6H_5)_3Cl$, in solution with finely divided silver, zinc, or the like.

triphenyl phosphate. Chem. A colorless, crystalline, noninflammable compound, $(C_6H_5)_3PO_4$, used as a substitute for camphor in celluloid, and for fireproofing and stabilizing cellulose nitrate, airplane dope, and the like.

tri·phen′yl·phos′phine (-fŏs′fēn; -fĭn), n. Chem. A crystalline compound, $P(C_6H_5)_3$, formed by the action of sodium on bromobenzene and phosphorus trichloride, and in other ways.

triph′o·ny (trĭf′ō·nĭ), n. [ML. triphonia, fr. Gr. triphōnos three-voiced.] Medieval Music. Diaphony for three voice parts.

trip hook. a = SLIP HOOK. b A medieval instrument of torture.

Triph′o·ra (trĭf′ō·rȧ), n. [NL., fr. tri- + -phora; — so called because it usually has three flowers together.] Bot. A small genus of American terrestrial orchids (family Orchidaceae), having fleshy tubers, ovate, usually clasping leaves, and few, axillary flowers, with an erect lip, but crestless and spurless. The fruit is a drooping capsule. T. trianthophora, the nodding cap, is the only species found in the United States. Syn. Pogonia (in part).

triph′thong (trĭf′thŏng; 185), n. [tri- + -phthong as in diphthong; cf. F. tripht(h)ongue.] Phonet. 1. Three vowel sounds united in one syllable, as in fire, sour (approximately fāĕr, sȧŏr). Such groups tend to become dissyllabic; hence words like fire, sour, are often treated in verse as having two syllables, like higher, shower. See Pron., § 39.

2. Incorrectly, three letters spelling a single vowel or diphthong. See TRIGRAPH.

triph′y·lite (trĭf′ĭ·līt), n. Also triph′y·line (-lĭn; -lēn). [tri- + Gr. phylē a family, class; — in allusion to its containing three bases.] Mineral. A grayish-green or bluish orthorhombic mineral, commonly massive. It is a phosphate of lithium and iron, with a little manganese $Li(Fe,Mn)PO_4$. H., 4.5–5. Sp. gr., 3.42–3.56.

tri·phyl′lous (trī·fĭl′ŭs), adj. [Gr. triphyllos, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + phyllon leaf.] Three-leaved.

Triph′y·site (trĭf′ĭ·sīt), n. [tri- + Gr. physis nature.] Eccl. Hist. One who (in the 7th century) held that Christ had, besides the divine and human natures, a third nature resulting from their union.

tri·pin′nate (trī·pĭn′āt), adj. Also tri·pin′nat·ed (-āt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119). Bot. Thrice pinnate; bipinnate with each division pinnate, as the leaves of species of Aralia, many ferns, etc. — tri·pin′nate·ly, adv.

tri′pin·nat′i·fid (trī′pĭ·nāt′ĭ·fĭd), adj. Bot. Thrice pinnately cleft; bipinnatifid with the segments again pinnatifid.

tri′pin·nat′i·sect (-sĕkt), adj. Bot. Tripinnatifid with the divisions extending nearly to the base or midrib.

Tri·pit′a·ka (trē·pĭt′ȧ·kȧ), n. [Skr. Tripiṭaka; cf. Pali tipiṭaka.] The three divisions, or "baskets" (Pitakas), of Buddhist scriptures, — the Vinayapitaka [Skr. & Pali Vinayapiṭaka], or Basket of Discipline; Suttapitaka [Pali Suttapiṭaka.], or Basket of Discourses; and Abhidhammapitaka (Pali Abhidhammapiṭaka.], or Basket of Metaphysics.

tri′plane′ (trī′plān′), n. An airplane with three main supporting surfaces superposed.

Tri·pla′ris (trĭ·plā′rĭs), n. [NL., fr. LL. triplaris threefold.] Bot. A genus of tropical American shrubs and trees of the buckwheat family (Polygonaceae), mostly with hollow stems infested by ants. See ANT TREE. They have dioecious flowers and prominently winged fruit. T. americana is common at Panama.

tri·pla′sian (trī·plā′zhăn), adj. [Gr. triplasios thrice as many.] Threefold. Rare.

tri·plas′ic (-plăs′ĭk; trĭ·plăz′ĭk), adj. [See TRIPLASIAN.] Gr. & Lat. Pros. Having a thesis three times the length of the arsis; — said of feet. Rare.

tri′ple (trĭp′ĕl), adj. [F. or L.; F. triple, fr. L. triplus, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + -plus as in duplus double. See DOUBLE; cf. TREBLE.] 1. a Consisting of three, usually united or in series; threefold; as, a triple alliance; a triple difficulty. b By threes or groups of three.

2. Three times repeated; treble.

3. One of three; third. Obs.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

triple-acting	triple-deck	triple-pole triple-action	triple-decked	triple-rayed triple-aisled	triple-dyed	triple-ribbed triple-apsidal	triple-edged	triple-roofed triple-arched	triple-entry	triple-stranded triple-awned	triple-expansion	triple-tailed triple-barbed	triple-formed	triple-terraced triple-barred	triple-gemmed	triple-throated triple-bearded	triple-hatted	triple-throw triple-bodied	triple-headed	triple-tiered triple-bolted	triple-hearth	triple-tongued triple-branched	triple-ingrain	triple-toothed triple-chorded	triple-line	triple-towered triple-colored	triple-lived	triple-turreted triple-crested	triple-lock	triple-veined triple-cylinder	triple-piled	triple-wick tri′ple (trĭp′ĕl), n. 1. A triple or threefold sum or quantity; a combination of three, usually of related character and united; a group of three.

2. Baseball. A three-base hit.

3. Math. = TRIPLET, n., 5.

4. Music. a Rare. Treble bell or pitch. b pl. See CHANGE RINGING.

tri′ple, v.; TRI′PLED (-′ld); TRI′PLING (-lĭng). [Cf. F. tripler. See TRIPLE, adj.] Transitive: To make threefold, or thrice as much or as many; also, rarely, to be thrice as much or as many as; to treble; as, to triple the tax on coffee.

—, Intransitive: 1. To increase threefold; to treble.

2. Baseball. To make a triple.

tri′ple–act′ing press. Also tri′ple–ac′tion press. Mach. See PUNCH PRESS.

tri′ple–ac′tion die. Mach. See 3d DIE, 6 a.

Triple Alliance. 1. Hist. a An alliance between England, Sweden, and the Netherlands, against France, formed in 1668. b An alliance between France, Great Britain and the Netherlands, against Spain, formed in 1717. c An alliance between Austria, Great Britain, and Russia, against France, concluded in 1795. d The Dreibund.

2. An industrial federation, formed in 1916, of the miners, transport workers and railwaymen of England.

triple assessment. A scheme of taxation devised by Pitt and forming the basis of the act 38 Geo. III, c. 16 (1798); — so called because it tripled the amount of taxes paid by one class of persons taxed.

tri′ple·back′ (trĭp′ĕl·băk′), adj. Designating a style of sofa or settee, as in Sheraton, having a back in three parts like chair backs.

triple back–geared lathe. Mach. See 2d LATHE, 1.

triple bezique. See RUBICON BEZIQUE.

triple block. A pulley block with three sheaves.

triple bond. Chem. A characteristic of acetylene and certain other compounds, analogous to the double bond and represented graphically by a triple line or three dots, thus: HC≡CH or HC:::CH; — called also acetylene linkage. Compounds in which it is found are unsaturated, being capable of combining with four atoms of chlorine or the like. Cf. DOUBLE BOND.

triple contract. Law. A medieval form of contract, technically one of partnership, in which a partner in his partnership contract also contracts for a guaranty against loss and for a guaranteed profit, in return for a stipulation that he will ask for no more than that. This came to be lawful, and was used to escape the usury laws.

triple counterpoint. Music. Three-part counterpoint so written that any part is transposable above or below any other.

triple crown. The papal tiara. See TIARA, n., 2.

tri′ple–crowned′ (trĭp′ĕl·kround′; 66), adj. Having three crowns; also, wearing the triple crown, as the Pope.

triple discount. See DISCOUNT, n., 3.

triple engine. A triple-expansion engine. See COMPOUND ENGINE.

Tri′ple En′tente′ (trĭp′ĕl än′tänt′). Hist. An entente based on treaty obligations and constituting a virtual alliance between France, Great Britain, and Russia; also, the nations party to this understanding. Important steps in its development were: (1) the consummation of an alliance (Dual Alliance) between France and Russia during the years 1890–93; (2) the adjustment (Entente Cordiale) in 1904 of questions in dispute between France and Great Britain, as with reference to Egypt, Morocco, etc.; (3) the adjustment in 1907 of points at issue between Great Britain and Russia, esp. as to their relations in Asia. The Triple Entente came to an end in 1917 because of the Bolshevist Revolution in Russia. Cf. TRIPLE ALLIANCE, 1.

tri′ple–en′try sys′tem. Coal Mining. A system of development in which three parallel main gangways, or entries, are driven and cross entries for bord-and-pillar mining are turned off from them.

tri′ple–ex·pan′sion en′gine. See COMPOUND ENGINE.

triple first. At Cambridge University (Eng.), a first in three triposes; also, one who wins these honors.

tri′ple·fold′ (66), adv. Threefold. Rare.

triple fugue. Music. A fugue with three subjects.

tri·ple′gi·a (trĭ·plē′jĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. tri- + -plegia.] Med. Hemiplegia plus paralysis of another part, as of a limb on the opposite side or of the face.

triple harp. A harp with three rows of strings.

triple hat. = TRIPLE CROWN.

Triple Hecate. Gr. Relig. The goddess Hecate as combining three goddesses in one. See HECATE, Illust.

tri′ple–in′grain′ car′pet. A three-ply carpet.

triple lever. See 2d TRIP, 7, Note.

triple linkage. Chem. = TRIPLE BOND.

triple measure or time. Music. A measure of three beats, the first being accented; also, the rhythm derived from use of this measure. See TIME, n., 22.

tri′ple–nerved′ (trĭp′ĕl·nûrvd′; 66), adj. Bot. Having three nerves; — said of a leaf having a prominent nerve or vein on each side of the midrib above the base, as in certain sunflowers.

triple play. Baseball. A play during which three men are put out.

triple point. Physical Chem. A point representing a set of conditions under which three phases can exist together in equilibrium.

triple point (of a plane algebraic curve or surface). Math. A point such that every straight line through the point meets the curve or surface in three coincident points there.

triple rhyme. An end rhyme produced by consonance of three syllables, as unfortunate, importunate, and year to hold, we're too old.

tri′ple–riv′et, v. t. Mach. To rivet (a joint) in such manner that all the rivets used are arranged in three rows.

triple root (of an algebraic equation $f(x) = 0$). Math. A root x_0 such that $(x - x_0)^3$ is a factor of $f(x)$ while $(x - x_0)^4$ is not.

triple salt. Chem. a A salt, as microcosmic salt, yielding three different cations or anions. b A salt regarded as a molecular combination of three distinct salts. Cf. DOUBLE SALT.

triple screw. A screw with three parallel threads.

triple standard. = TRIMETALLISM.

triple star. Astron. A system of three stars apparently in close proximity.

tri′plet (trĭp′lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [From TRIPLE.] 1. A collection or combination of three of a kind or three united.

2. One of three children or offspring born at one birth; pl., a group of three offspring born at one birth.

3. A bicycle made for three riders.

4. Card Playing. In poker, three of a kind; — chiefly pl.

5. Math. A set of three, esp. of three families of surfaces, one member of each passing through each point of space.

6. Music. A group of three notes performed in the time of two of the same value. See TIME, n., 22.

7. Naut. In sing. or pl. The three end links of a chain cable attached to the shackle of the anchor by a club link; also, sometimes, the two end links and the club link.

8. Optics. A combination of three lenses.

9. Physics. A spectrum line having three components; also, pl., three lines in a spectrum closely adjacent, or in sets of three, as in the spectrum of iron.

10. Poetry. A metrical unit of three verses usually of the same length and often rhymed.

tri′ple·tail′ (trĭp′ĕl·tāl′), n. a A large edible marine fish (Lobotes surinamensis) of the warm seas and occurring on the American Atlantic coast from Cape Cod to northern South America. The long dorsal and anal fins extend backward, and with the caudal fin appear like a three-lobed tail. Also, either of two closely related species (L. pacificus and L. erate) of the Pacific and Indian oceans. b The berrugate. c The spadefish Chaetodipterus faber.

Tripletail (Lobotes surinamensis).

triple tangent (of a plane algebraic curve). Math. A tangent having three points of contact; the dual of a triple point.

triple tangent plane (of a surface). Math. A plane touching the surface at three points.

triple thread. Mach. Three equal parallel threads on the same screw, each thread being 120° ahead of the next succeeding. Cf. DOUBLE THREAD.

tri′ple–thread′, v. t. Mach. To form a triple thread.

triple threat. Amer. Football. Adeptness at running, kicking, and forward passing; also, a player adept at all three.

tri′ple–throw′ switch. A switch that by a single throw makes a triple adjustment, as of circuits in an electrical connection, of organ stops on a console, of tracks in a railroad switchyard, etc.

triple time. See TRIPLE MEASURE.

triplet lily. Any plant of the genus Brodiaea.

tri′ple·tree′ (trĭp′ĕl·trē′), n. An evener for a three-horse team.

triple tree. The gallows. Obs.

tri′ple–turned′, adj. a Obs. Thrice disloyal or renegade. b See -TURNED.

triple union. Chem. = TRIPLE BOND.

triple valve. Railroads. In an automatic air brake, the automatic valve under each car, controlling the brake.

tri′plex (trĭp′lĕks; trī′plĕks), adj. [L. See DUPLEX.] 1. Having three parts; triple; threefold.

2. Mach. Having three principal operative parts or motions, producing a threefold effect. Cf. DUPLEX, adj., 3. — tri·plex′i·ty (trī·plĕk′sĭ·tĭ), n.

tri′plex, n. Something which is triplex; specif., Music, triple measure.

triplex Mallet locomotive. See LOCOMOTIVE.

triplex process. Metal. A process for making steel in which the material is partially treated in a Bessemer converter, transferred without interruption to an open-hearth furnace for the second stage of the treatment, and then finished in an electric furnace.

trip′li- (trĭp′lĭ-). A combining form from Latin triplex, triple, as in trip′li·cos′tate, trip′li·form, trip′li·nerved′.

trip′li·cate (trĭp′lĭ·kāt), adj. [L. triplicatus, past part. of triplicare to triple, treble, fr. triplex threefold. See TRI-; DUPLICATE.] Threefold; triple; made in three identical copies or the like; as, a triplicate agreement.

trip′li·cate (-kāt), n. A third thing corresponding to two others of the same kind.

— in triplicate. Made in three identical copies or the like.

trip′li·cate (-kāt), v. t.; -CAT′ED (-kāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CAT′ING (-kāt′ĭng). To make threefold; to treble; esp., to reproduce twice; as, to triplicate a message.

trip′li·cate–pin′nate, adj. Bot. Tripinnate.

triplicate ratio. Math. The ratio of the cubes of two quantities; thus, the triplicate ratio of a to b is $a^3 : b^3$.

trip′li·cate–ter′nate, adj. Bot Triternate.

trip′o·da′ne·ous (trĭp′ō·dā′nē·ŭs), adj. [L. tripedaneus.] Three feet in length. Obs. [Obs.

tripe′ house′, n. A tripeshop.

trip′el, n. = TRIPOLI.

tripe′like′, adj. See -LIKE.

tri·pep′tide (trī·pĕp′tīd; -tĭd), n. See TRI-, 4.

trip-free′ relay. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3.

tri′pha. Var. of TRIFA (see TRIFAH).

tri′phase′ (trī′fāz′), adj. = THREE-PHASE. [THREE-PHASE.

tri′phas′er (trī′fāz′ĕr), n. = tri·phas′ic, adj. See TRI-, 2.

tri′phy·let′ic, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tripl-. = TRIPLO-.

tri′pla (trĭp′lȧ), n. [L., fem. of triplus triple.] Triple time. Obs.

tri′ple·ness, n. See -NESS.

tri′ple·tongu′ing, n. Music. See TONGUING.

tri′ple·wise′, adv. See -WISE.

trip'li·ca'tion (trĭp'lĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [LL. triplicatio; cf. F. triplication.] 1. Act of tripling, or making threefold, or adding three together; also, that which is triplicated or threefold.
2. Law. a = SURREJOINDER. b See FORMULA, 8.

trip'li·ca'tive (trĭp'lĭ·kā'tĭv), adj. Having the property of tripling or trebling; making triple or threefold.

trip'li·ca'to- (trĭp'lĭ·kā'tō-). Bot. A combining form from Latin triplicatus, triplicate.

trip'li·ca'ture (trĭp'lĭ·kā'tŭr), n. Triplication; a triplication.

Tri'pli·ce (trē'plē·chā), n. [It.] A triple alliance; specif., the Triple Alliance, or Dreibund. — Tri'pli·cist (trĭp'lĭ·sĭst), n. & adj.

tri·plic'i·ty (trĭ·plĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [F. triplicité, fr. L. triplex, triplicis, threefold. See TRIPLICATE, adj.]
1. Quality or state of being triple, or threefold; trebleness.
2. A group of three; trinity.
3. Astrol. Any of the groups of three signs (each distant 120° from the other) into which the signs of the zodiac are divided; a trigon. The airy triplicity includes Gemini, Libra, and Aquarius; the earthy (earthly) triplicity, Taurus, Virgo, and Capricorn; the fiery triplicity, Aries, Leo, and Sagittarius; the watery triplicity, Cancer, Scorpio, and Pisces.

trip line. a A line or light rope used to operate a trip, as to free a dog hook in logging. b = HAULBACK b.

trip'lite (trĭp'lĭt), n. [Cf. F. triplite. See TRIPLE.] Mineral. A dark-brown monoclinic mineral generally with a fibrous, massive structure. It is a fluophosphate of iron and manganese principally, containing also calcium and magnesium. H., 4–5.5. Sp. gr., 3.44–3.8.

trip'lo- (trĭp'lō-), tripl-. a A combining form from Greek triploos, triple, as in *triplo*blastic, *triplo*pia. b Chem. A combining form denoting tripling.

trip'lo·blas'tic (trĭp'lō·blăs'tĭk), adj. [triplo- + -blast + -ic.] Biol. & Zool. Having three primary germ layers.

trip'lo·cau·les'cent (trĭp'lō·kô·lĕs'ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [triplo- + caulescent.] Bot. Not capable of reproduction until an axis of the third order is attained. Thus in the common plantain the primary axis produces foliage leaves, the secondary axis bracteal leaves, and the tertiary axis the flowers. Cf. DIPLOCAULESCENT, HAPLOCAULESCENT.

trip'loid (trĭp'loid), adj. [See -OID.] Trebled in appearance or arrangement; specif., Biol., having three times the basic chromosome number, as a result of nondisjunction during meiosis, as certain cells. Cf. DIPLOID, TETRAPLOID. — trip·loi'dic (trĭp·loi'dĭk), adj.

trip'loid, n. Biol. A triploid cell; hence, an individual, generation, etc., characterized by the triploid chromosome number.

trip·loi'dite (trĭp·loi'dĭt), n. [See TRIPLITE; -OID.] Mineral. A yellowish or reddish brown mineral similar to triplite, containing hydroxyl instead of fluorine.

trip·loi'dy (-dĭ), n. Biol. State of being triploid.

trip·lo'pi·a (trĭp·lō'pĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. tripl- + -opia.] Med. Triple vision; a morbid condition of the eye in which one object appears to be three.

trip'lum (trĭp'lŭm), n. [L., neut. of triplus triple.] Medieval Music. a The third voice part in polyphony, counting upward from the tenor inclusive; the treble. b A composition for three voice parts.

tri·plum'bic (trī·plŭm'bĭk), adj. [tri- + plumbic.] Chem. Containing three atoms of lead in the molecule; as, triplumbic tetroxide (minium), Pb_3O_4.

tri'ply (trĭp'lĭ), adv. In a triple degree; to a triple amount or sum; threefoldly.

tri·ply' (trĭ·plī'), n. [From OF. triplique third reply, surrejoinder.] Scots Law. A surrejoinder. Obs. exc. Hist. — v. t. & i. To make a surrejoinder (to). Obs. exc. Hist.

tri'-ply' (trī'plī'; 66), adj. See TRI-, 1.

triply infinite system. Math. See INFINITE SYSTEM.

triply orthogonal system. Math. Three families of surfaces such that any member of one family cuts any member of either of the other two families at right angles.

tri'pod (trī'pŏd), n. [L. tripus, -odis, fr. Gr. tripous, fr. tri- + pous, podos, foot. See FOOT; cf. TRIPOS, 2d TRIVET.]
1. Any utensil or vessel, as a stool, table, altar, or caldron, on three feet or legs. Cf. sense 4, below.
2. A three-legged stand for a camera, theodolite, or other such portable instrument. It consists of a small table or head jointed to each of the three legs, which are often telescopic. A turntable attached to the camera base occasionally replaces the tripod head.
3. Anat. & Zool. a A tripodal bone. b A sponge spicule having three equal rays.
4. Gr. Antiq. An object supported on three legs, or combined with a stand of three legs; esp., a caldron or kettle on such a stand. It was on such a tripod that the priestess of Apollo at Delphi sat to deliver the oracles; hence, sometimes, the Delphic oracle.

Forms of Tripod, 2.

5. Motion Pictures. A three-legged standard, usually of sturdy construction and of adjustable height, having a head which is often fitted with precision screw movements permitting smooth circular motion or tilting of the camera fitted thereon.

tri'pod, adj. Having, or supported on, three feet or legs; as, a tripod vase.

trip'o·dal (trĭp'ō·dăl), adj. 1. Having three feet or legs; forming a tripod.
2. Anat. Designating a bone having three processes.

tri·po'di·al (trī·pō'dĭ·ăl), adj. Tripodal.

tri·po'di·an (-ăn), n. Music. An ancient stringed instrument; — from a resemblance to the Delphic tripod.

tri·pod'ic (trī·pŏd'ĭk), adj. [See TRIPOD.] Having or using three feet; three-footed.

tripodic walk. Zool. A mode of walking in which two feet on one side and one (median) foot on the other are used simultaneously, as in many insects.

tripod of life. Physiol. The heart, lungs, and brain; — so called because their united action is necessary to the maintenance of life.

tripod puller. A stump puller which lifts the stump vertically out of the ground by means of chains that pass over pulleys attached to a tripod.

tripod table. A table supported by a shaft from whose lower end radiate three curved or slanting legs.

trip'o·dy (trĭp'ō·dĭ), n.; pl. -DIES (-dĭz). [tri- + -pody as in dipody.] Pros. A verse or group, consisting of three metrical feet.

tri·point'ed (trī·poin'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Having three points.

tri·po'lar (-pō'lĕr), adj. Biol. Having three poles.

trip'o·li (trĭp'ō·lĭ), n. [From Tripoli, Africa.] a Orig., very friable, soft, schistose deposits of silica, regardless of their mode of origin, and including diatomaceous earth (diatomite) and kieselguhr. b Nondiatomaceous deposits of friable and dustlike silica, possibly derived from the decomposition of siliceous limestone. Cf. DIATOMITE, KIESELGUHR.

Trip'o·line (trĭp'ō·lĭn), adj. 1. Tripolitan.
2. [not cap.] Of or pertaining to the mineral tripoli.

Tri·pol'i·tan (trĭ·pŏl'ĭ·tăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Tripoli or its inhabitants; Tripoline. — n. One of the people of Tripoli, in Libya, which is chiefly inhabited by Berbers and Arabs, with some European, Turkish, and Negro elements.

tri'pos (trī'pŏs), n.; pl. TRIPOSES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119). [L. tripus or Gr. tripous. See TRIPOD.] 1. A tripod. Obs.
2. Cambridge Univ., Eng. a The examination, instituted in the first half of the 18th century, for honors in mathematical science (cf. WRANGLER, 3; OPTIME). b Since 1824, the final honors examination in classics, to which, until 1850, only those were admitted who had previously obtained honors in mathematics. c More recently, any of the honor examinations.
☞ The word tripos was first applied to the three-legged stool on which sat a bachelor of arts appointed to dispute humorously with candidates for degrees; then to the man himself; then to a set of verses (tripos verses) composed by him and published till 1894 at commencement; then to the list of successful candidates for honors printed on the back of the paper containing the verses; then to the examinations.

‖tri'pot' (trē'pō'), n. [F.] A gambling establishment. Slang.

‖tri'po'tage' (trē'pō'tȧzh'), n. [F.] Medley; hotchpotch; intrigue; jobbery.

‖tri'po'ter' (trē'pō'tȧ'), v. i. [F.] To intrigue; to scheme.

trip'pant (trĭp'ănt), adj. [trip, v. + -ant.] Her. Tripping.

trip'per (trĭp'ĕr), n. 1. One who trips; hence: a Colloq., Chiefly Brit. An excursionist; a tourist. b Cant. One employed on a conveyance by the trip, as certain extra employees on street railways.
2. Mach. A tripping device or mechanism; a trip; as: a A contrivance operated by a passing train to work a signal, switch, or alarm. b A projecting piece on a railroad track for operating a catch on a passing train to apply the brakes or sound a warning. c In a movable dam, a mechanism for releasing the prop of a wicket. d A device for causing the load on a conveyer to be discharged into a hopper, etc.

trip'pet (-ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [From TRIP.] a Obs. The act of tripping a person, or causing him to stumble. b Dial. The pointed piece of wood used in the game of tipcat. c Mach. A cam, wiper, or projecting piece that strikes another piece at definite times.

trip'pet (trĭp'ĭt). Dial. Eng. var. of TREIVET.

trip piece. See 2d TRIP, 7, Note.

trip pin. See 2d TRIP, 7, Note.

trip'ping (-Ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TRIP. Hence: adj. 1. Quick; nimble; stepping lightly and quickly; as, she walked with a light, tripping step.
2. Her. Walking; trippant;— said of an animal of the chase.
3. Naut. Act of loosing an anchor by its tripping line.
— trip'ping·ly, adv. — trip'ping·ness, n.

trip'ping, n. 1. Act of one who or that which trips.
2. A light dance.

> Other trippings to be trod of lighter toes. Milton.

tripping coil. Elec. A coil forming part of an automatic circuit breaker.

tripping line. Naut. A small rope attached to a yard or upper mast, used to trip it and guide it to the deck; also, a line used in tripping, or capsizing, a sea anchor.

tripping link. Naut. A link consisting of a hook closed by a ring and opened by a pull on the tripping line.

tripping relay. Elec. A trip-free relay (see RELAY, n., 3). tripping transformer. Elec. See TRANSFORMER.

trip'pist (trĭp'ĭst), n. A tourist; tripper. Colloq., Brit.

trip'ple (trĭp'l), n. & v. i. [D. trippelen.] Amble. — trip'pler (-lĕr), n.

trip'ple (trĭp'l), v. i. = TRIP, v. i., 1. Scot.

Trip'sa·cum (trĭp'sȧ·kŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tripsis rubbing, friction, resistance to touch.] Bot. A small genus of coarse perennial grasses of the southern United States and South America, having androgynous spikes with the two-flowered staminate spikelets above and the pistillate below, the latter embedded in the joints of the rachis. T. dactyloides is the gama grass.

trip shaft. See 2d TRIP, 7, Note.

trip'sill' (trĭp'sĭl'), n. Logging. A timber placed across the bottom of the sluiceway in a splash dam, against which rest the planks closing the dam.

trip'sis (trĭp'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tripsis, fr. tribein to rub.] Med. a Trituration. b The act of giving a shampoo or massage.

-trip'sis (-trĭp'sĭs). [NL.] A combining form from Greek tripsis, a rubbing, friction, as in:
hemocytotripsis, odontotripsis, syntripsis, xerotripsis.

trip'some (trĭp'sŭm), adj. Lively; tripping; dancing. — trip'some·ly, adv.

-trip'sy (-trĭp'sĭ). [For -thrypsy, fr. Gr. thrypsis breaking.] Surg. A combining form denoting an operation of crushing, as in:

basiotripsy	lithotripsy	sphenotripsy cephalotripsy	neurotripsy	sympathicotripsy cleidotripsy	omphalotripsy trip'ter·ous (trĭp'tĕr·ŭs), adj. [tri- + Gr. pteron wing.] Bot. Three-winged, as certain fruits or seeds.

trip'—toe' (trĭp'tō'), n. The hobblebush.

Trip·tol'e·mus, Trip·tol'e·mos (trĭp·tŏl'ē·mŭs, -mŏs), n. [L. Triptolemus, Gr. Triptolemos.] Gr. Relig. An Attic culture hero, worshiped chiefly at Eleusis in connection with Demeter and Kore. He was reputed to have given grain and its culture to mankind, and in later tradition to have taught the use of the plow. He is often represented in vase painting seated in the winged chariot in which he passed from land to land.

trip'tote (trĭp'tōt), n. [LL. triptota, pl., fr. Gr. triptōta, triptōtos. See TRI-; DIPTOTE. Cf. TETRAPTOTE.] Gram. A noun having three cases only. — adj. Having only three cases.

trip'o·tych (trĭp'ō·tĭk), n. [Gr. triptychos consisting of three layers, or plates, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + ptyx, ptychos, a fold, layer.] 1. A picture or carving in three compartments side by side; esp., a picture serving as an altarpiece, and consisting of a central panel, and two flanking panels of half its size that fold over it. Cf. DIPTYCH c, PENTAPTYCH.
2. A folding writing tablet in three parts.

trip'tyque' (trĭp'tēk'), n. [F.] A customs pass for the temporary importation of an automobile into one specified country which is represented in the Alliance Internationale de Tourisme.

tri·pu'di·al (trī·pū'dĭ·ăl), adj. Also tri·pu'di·ant (-ănt). Tripudiary. Rare.

tri·pu'di·ar'y (trī·pū'dĭ·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Of or pert. to a tripudium; hence, of or pert. to dancing. R.

tri·pu'di·ate (-āt), v. i.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [L. tripudiare, tripudiatum. See TRIPUDIUM.] To dance; also, to rejoice. — tri·pu'di·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. Both Rare.

trip'u·dist (trĭp'ū·dĭst), n. A dancer. Rare.

tri·pu'di·um (trī·pū'dĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -DIA (-ȧ). [L. See TRI-; PUDIC.] Rom. Relig. a A religious dance in the rhythm of a three-step. b A form of augury by observation of the feeding of chickens. When these fed so greedily that the food fell from their beaks the omen was good.

trip'y (trĭp'ĭ), adj. Resembling or suggesting tripe; hence. Slang, trashy; commonplace.

Trip'y·lae'a, Trip'y·le'a (trĭp'ĭ·lē'ȧ), n. pl. Also Trip'y·la'ri·a (-lā'rĭ·ȧ; 79). [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. pylē gate.] Zool. A suborder of radiolarians in which the central capsule has three openings. — trip'y·lae'an, trip'y·le'an (-lē'ăn), trip'y·lar'i·an (-lăr'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n.

tri'py·re'nous (trī'pĭ·rē'nŭs), adj. Having three seeds or kernels. Rare.

tri'quad·ran'tal (trī'kwŏd·răn'tăl), adj. Spherical Trig. Having three quadrants.

tri·que'tra (trĭ·kwē'trȧ; -kwĕt'rȧ), n. [L., fem. of triquetrus.] A triangle-shaped figure, decoration, or the like.

tri·que'tra, n. pl. of TRIQUETRUM.

tri·que'tral (trĭ·kwē'trăl; -kwĕt'răl), adj. Triquetrous.

tri·que'tric (-kwĕt'rĭk), adj. Of, like, or pert. to, triquetra.

tri·que'trous (trĭ·kwē'trŭs; -kwĕt'rŭs), adj. [L. triquetrus.] Having three corners or salient angles or edges; trigonal; trigonous; specif.: a Anat. Designating the triquetra. b Bot. Having three acute angles, as the stems of many sedges. — tri·que'trous·ly, adv.

tri·que'trum (-trŭm), n.; pl. -TRA (-trȧ). [NL.] 1. Anat. a The third bone in the proximate row of the carpus. b A Wormian bone.
2. Archaeol. = TRISKELION.
3. Astron. An ancient instrument consisting of three rods, used to measure the altitude of a celestial body.

tri·qui'nate (-kwī'nāt), adj. [tri- + quinate, adj.] Bot. Ternate with the divisions quinate.

tri·quin'o·yl (-kwĭn'ō·Ĭl), n. Chem. A white crystalline compound, $(CO)_6$, probably hexa-keto-cyclohexane; — an incorrectly formed name.

tri·ra'di·al (-rā'dĭ·ăl), adj. Triradiate. — -ra'di·al·ly, adv.

tri·ra'di·ate (-āt), adj. Having three rays, or radiating branches. — n. Something, as a sponge spicule, having three radiating branches. — tri·ra'di·ate·ly, adv.

triradiate sulcus. Anat. The orbital sulcus. See ORBITAL LOBE a.

tri·ra'di·a'tion (trī·rā'dĭ·ā'shŭn), n. A radiating, or branching out, in three directions.

Tri·rat'na (trē·rŭt'nȧ), n. [Skr., three gems.] a In Buddhism generally, the triad consisting of Buddha, Dharma, and sangha, that is, the Buddha, the gospel, and the monastic community. b In Nepalese (Mahayana) Buddhism, the Absolute, the Relative, and the relation between them. Cf. OM. c In Jainism, Right Faith, Right Knowledge, and Right Way.

tri'rec·tan'gu·lar (trī'rĕk·tăng'gŭ·lĕr), adj. Spherical Trig. Having three right angles.

tri·reg'num (trī·rĕg'nŭm), n. [NL. or ML.] The Pope's tiara. See TIARA, n., 2. tri'reme (trī'rēm), n. [L. triremis, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + remus an oar, akin to E. row. See ROW with an oar.] Gr. & Rom. Antiq. A galley having three banks of oars. It was the usual type of warship from the 6th century B.C. throughout the Greek and Roman periods. See GALLEY, 2. — tri'reme, adj.

tri·rhom'bo·he'dral (trī·rŏm'bō·hē'drăl), adj. Cryst. Pertaining to or designating a group of the hexagonal system, characterized by three different types of rhombohedrons.

tri'rhom·boi'dal (trī'rŏm·boi'dăl), adj. Having three rhomboidal faces.

tris- (trĭs-). A prefix, Greek tris-, from tris, meaning thrice, as in *Tris*agion; specif., Chem., denoting the tripling of an entire complex expression; — disting. from tri-. Cf. BIS-.

tri·sac'cha·ride (trī·săk'ȧ·rīd; -rĭd; 157), n. Also -rid. Chem. Any of a group of sugars, as raffinose, yielding on complete hydrolysis three monosaccharide molecules.

tri·sac'ra·men·tar'i·an (-rȧ·mĕn·tăr'ĭ·ăn), n. Eccl. One who recognizes three sacraments, and no more, namely, baptism, the Lord's Supper, and penance. See SACRAMENT, 1.

Tris·ag'i·on (trĭs·ăj'ĭ·ŏn; -ā'gĭ·ŏn), n. [Gr., fr. trisagios thrice holy, fr. tris thrice + hagios holy.] Eccl. a In the Eastern Church, a short hymn or respond, "Holy God, Holy (and) Mighty, Holy (and) Immortal, have mercy upon us." b Less properly, the Tersanctus, or Sanctus tri'salt' (trī'sôlt'), n. Chem. A normal salt of a triacid.

tris·az'o- (trĭs·ăz'ō-; -ā'zō-). Chem. A combining form, tris- + azo-, denoting the presence of three azo groups. — tris·az'o (-ō; -zō), adj.

tri'sect' (trī'sĕkt'), v. t.; -SECT'ED; -SECT'ING. [tri- + L. sectus, past part. of secare to cut. See SECTION.] To cut or divide into three parts, specif., Geom., three equal parts.

tri'sect'ed (trī'sĕk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Also, Rare, tri'sect'. Divided into three parts or segments by deep incisions.

tri·sec'tion (trī·sĕk'shŭn), n. [Cf. F. trisection.] The division of a thing into three parts; specif., Geom., the division of an angle into three equal parts.

tri·sec'tor (-tĕr), n. One who or that which trisects.

tri·sec'trix (-trĭks), n. [See -TRIX.] Math. A curve that trisects an arbitrary angle; as, Maclaurin's trisectrix $x(x^2 + y^2) = a(y^3 - 3x^2)$.

tri'seme (trī'sēm), n. [See TRISEMIC.] A syllable or foot of three morae.

tri·se'mic (trĭ·sē'mĭk), tri'seme (trī'sēm), adj. [LL. trisemus, fr. Gr. trisēmos, fr. tri- + sēma sign.] Pros. Equal to, or having the length of, three times, or morae.

trip'ling, n. = TREPLET, 1 & 2.

trip'lo·cau'lous (trĭp'lō·kô'lŭs), adj. = TRIPLOCAULESCENT.

Trip'lo·chi'to·na'ce·ae (trĭp'lō·kī'tō·nā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. triplo- + chiton + -aceae.] Bot. Syn. of STERCULIACEAE (in part).

trip'lo·py (trĭp'lō·pĭ), n. = TRIPLOPIA.

trip'mad'am (trĭp'măd'ăm), n. [F. tripe-madame; cf. F. triquemadame.] = PRICKMADAM.

tri·pod'i·cal (trī·pŏd'ĭ·kăl), adj. = TRIPODIC.

tripolar co-ordinates. Math. See CO-ORDINATE, n., 2.

Trip'o·lis (trĭp'ō·lĭs). Bib.

trip'o·lite (-lĭt), n. = TRIPOLI.

tri·po·tas'si·um, adj. Chem. See TRI-, 4.

tript. Var. of TRIPPED.

trip'tic. Triptych. Ref. Sp.

tri·punc'tal, adj. Also tri·punc'tate. See TRI-, 1.

triquet, n. [Cf. F. triquètre three-cornered, fr. L. triquetrus.] A three-cornered figure. Obs.

tri·ra'di·at'ed, adj. = TRIRADIATE.

‖tri·re'gno (trĭ·rĕ'nyō), n. [It.] = TRIREGNUM.

tri·ric'in·o'le·in, n. Chem. See RICINOLEIN.

tri·sac'cha·rose, n. Chem. = TRISACCHARIDE.

tri'sail'. Trysail. Ref. Sp.

tri·scep'tral, adj. See TRI-, 1 tri·sep'al·ous (trĭ·sĕp'ăl·ŭs), adj. [tri- + -sepalous.] Bot. Having three sepals.

tri·sep'tate (-sĕp'tāt), adj. Bot. & Zool. Having three partitions, or septa.

tri·se'ri·al (-sē'rĭ·ăl), adj. Arranged in three series; specif.: Bot. a Arranged in three vertical or spiral rows. b Having only three floral whorls, as some flowers. — tri·se'ri·al·ly, adv.

tri·se'ri·ate (-sē'rĭ·āt), adj. Triserial.

tri·se'ri·a'tim (-ā'tĭm), adv. In a triseriate manner.

tri·se'tose (trĭ·sē'tōs), adj. Having three setae.

Tri·se'tum (trĭ·sē'tŭm), n. [NL. See TRI-; SETA.] Bot. A large widely distributed genus of perennial tufted forage grasses having spikelets with several bisexual flowers, the lemma bearing a dorsal awn.

trish'na (trĭsh'nä), n. [Skr. tṛṣṇā thirst.] Buddhism. = TANHA.

tris·kel'i·on (trĭs·kĕl'ĭ·ŏn), or tris'kele (trĭs'kēl), n. [Gr. triskelēs three-legged. See TRI-; ISOSCELES.] A figure composed of three branches, usually curved, radiating from a center, as the figure composed of three human legs, with bent knees, which has long been used as a badge or symbol of Sicily and of the Isle of Man.

1 2 3

Triskelion. 1 On Fragment of Bronze from Ireland; 2 On a Shield pictured on a Greek Vase from Sicily; 3 On a Shell Disk from a Mound in Tennessee.

tris'me·gist (trĭs'mē·jĭst), tris'me·gis'tic (-jĭs'tĭk), adj. Trismegistian.

Tris'me·gis'tian (trĭs'mē·jĭs'chăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Trismegistus (see HERMES TRISMEGISTUS). Obs.

tris'mus (trĭz'mŭs; trĭs'-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trismos gnashing of the teeth.] Med. Lockjaw. — tris'mic (-mĭk), adj.

tris·oc'ta·he'dral (trĭs·ŏk'tȧ·hē'drăl), adj. Geom. Pertaining to, or formed like, a trisoctahedron; bounded by 24 equal faces.

tris·oc'ta·he'dron (-drŭn), n. [tris- + octahedron.] 1. Math. A polyhedron of 24 congruent faces meeting on the edges of a (regular) octahedron. 2. Cryst. The solid described in 1 (fig. 2), frequently called a trigonal trisoctahedron in distinction from a related solid, also belonging to the isometric system, bounded by 24 quadrilateral faces, the tetragonal trisoctahedron, or (more frequently) the trapezohedron.

1 2

1 Tetragonal, and 2 Trigonal, Trisoctahedron.

Tri·sot'ro·pis (trĭ·sŏt'rō·pĭs), n. [NL.] Zool. A common genus of groupers.

tri'spast (trĭ'spăst), tri·spas'ton (trĭ·spăs'tŏn), n. [NL. trispaston, fr. Gr. trispastos drawn threefold, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + span to draw.] An ancient machine with three pulleys acting together for raising great weights.

tri·sper'mous (trĭ·spûr'mŭs), adj. [tri- + Gr. sperma seed.] Three-seeded.

tri·splanch'nic (-splăngk'nĭk), adj. Anat. Pertaining to the three splanchnic cavities (of the head, chest, and abdomen); designating the sympathetic nervous system.

tri·spor'ic (trĭ·spôr'ĭk), tri·spor'ous (-spôr'ŭs), adj. Biol. Three-spored.

Tris'so'tin' (trē'sō'tăN'), n. A pedantic poet and coxcomb in Molière's Les Femmes Savantes, satirizing the Abbé Cotin.

trist (trĭst), adj. [F. triste, fr. L. tristis.] Sad; sorrowful. Archaic.

trist, n. & v. Trust. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

trist, adj. [See TRUST, v. & n.] Also trist'y (trĭs'tĭ). = TRUSTY. Obs.

trist, triste (trĭst). Vars. of TRYST. Obs. exc. Dial.

tri·sta'chy·ous (trĭ·stā'kĭ·ŭs), adj. [tri- + Gr. stachys ear of corn.] Bot. Having three spikes.

Tris'tan and I·solde' (trĭs'tăn, ĭ·sōld'). An opera (written 1859, first produced 1865) by Wagner. See TRISTRAM, 2.

Tris·ta'ni·a (trĭs·tā'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Jules Marie Claude Tristan, French botanist.] Bot. A genus of Australasian trees and shrubs (family Myrtaceae) having small yellow or white flowers with numerous stamens united in five columns. Some yield a hard and durable wood. See WATER GUM, RED BOX.

‖triste (trēst), adj. [F.] Sad; dismal; dull; depressing.

tri·ste'a·rate (trĭ·stē'ȧ·rāt), n. [tri- + stearate.] Chem. A stearate derived from three molecules of stearic acid.

‖tris'tesse' (trĕs'tĕs'), n. [F.] Sadness; also, dullness.

tris·tet'ra·he'dron (trĭs·tĕt'rȧ·hē'drŭn), n. [tris- + tetrahedron.] Cryst. A solid of the tetrahedral class of the isometric system having twelve triangular faces, related to the trapezohedron (tetragonal trisoctahedron) of the holohedral class; it is also called a trigonal tristetrahedron in distinction from the tetragonal tristetrahedron, which has twelve quadrilateral faces and is related to the (trigonal) trisoctahedron of the holohedral class.

1 2

1 Trigonal, and 2 Tetragonal, Tristetrahedron.

tris'tful (trĭst'fŏŏl; -f l), adj. Sad; melancholy. — tris't'ful·ly, adv. — tris't'ful·ness, n.

tris'tich (trĭs'tĭk), n. [tri- + distich; cf. Gr. tristichia. See TRISTICHOUS.] Pros. A group or stanza of three lines, or verses. — tris·tich'ic (trĭs·tĭk'ĭk), adj.

tris'tich·ous (trĭs'tĭ·kŭs), adj. [Gr. tristichos in three rows, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + stichos a row.] In three rows; specif., Bot., arranged in three vertical rows.

tri'stig·mat'ic (trĭ'stĭg·măt'ĭk), adj. Tristigmatose.

tri·stig'ma·tose (trĭ·stĭg'mȧ·tōs), adj. [tri- + stigma.] Bot. Having three stigmas.

tris·til'o·quy (trĭs·tĭl'ō·kwĭ), n. [L. tristis sad + loqui to speak.] A dull, gloomy character of speech.

The description of the Roman dialect as a tristiloquy, the ugliest of all the vernacular dialects. Saintsbury.

tris·tis'o·nous (trĭs·tĭs'ō·nŭs), adj. [L. tristis sad + sonus sound.] Having a sorrowful sound.

Tris'tram (trĭs'trăm), n. [AF. & OF. Tristran, Tristan, fr. OW. Trystan, Drystan, which is fr. a Pictish name Drostan. The initial t was perh. due to influence of L. tristis sad.] 1. Masculine proper name.

2. The hero of a medieval romance originally not connected with the Arthurian Cycle of Romances, but early incorporated into it with Tristram represented as a knight of the Round Table. The chief medieval version, in French, dates from about 1170 and was continued later by Hélie de Borron, who connected Tristram with the Arthurian cycle. There is also a voluminous prose form of the story. Tristram is sent to Ireland by King Mark of Cornwall, his uncle, to fetch the king's bride, Isolde the Beautiful, and on the return voyage he and Isolde are made to partake of a potion which renders them permanently in love. According to the version adopted by Tennyson in his Idylls of the King, Tristram is stabbed by King Mark, who surprised him with Isolde. According to that followed by Matthew Arnold in Tristram and Iseult, he flees to Brittany, where he marries another Isolde, called Isolde of the White Hand. Being wounded, he sends for Isolde the Beautiful to come and cure him. The messenger is to hoist a white sail if Isolde returns with him. He does so; but Tristram's wife tells him the sail is black, and at this he dies. In Wagner's Tristan und Isolde there is only one Isolde, the wife of Mark. The lovers are discovered by the king, and Tristan lets himself be wounded by the king's squire, and then, in his castle, awaits the ship of Isolde. She comes, and he, desiring to meet her as when first he saw her, with bleeding wounds, tears off the bandage and dies in her arms. Isolde falls dead on his body. Swinburne also has treated the story in Tristram of Lyonesse.

Tris'tram and I·seult'. A poem (1853) by Matthew Arnold. See TRISTRAM, 2.

Tris'tram Shan'dy (trĭs'trăm shăn'dĭ). The familiar short title and nominal hero of a novel (1760–67) by Sterne, The Life and Opinions of Tristram Shandy, Gent. He is the son of Walter Shandy, a whimsical man with a too miscellaneous learning, who acts upon the absurd theories of the pedants of past ages. Tristram's mother is the ideal of nonentity of character. See UNCLE TOBY.

tri·sty'lous (trĭ·stĭ'lŭs), adj. [tri- + Gr. stylos style.] Bot. Three-styled.

tri'sub·sti·tu'tion (trĭ'sŭb·stĭ·tū'shŭn), n. Chem. Threefold substitution; substitution of three atoms or groups. — tri·sub'sti·tut'ed (-sŭb'stĭ·tūt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj.

tri·sul' (trĭ·shōōl'), tri·sul'a (-shōō'lȧ), n. [Skr. triśūla.] Hindu Myth. A trident or three-pointed emblem or ornament associated with the god Siva.

tri·sul'cate (trĭ·sŭl'kāt), adj. Also tri·sul'cat·ed (-kāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119). [tri- + sulcate.] Having three furrows, forks, prongs, or the like.

tri·sul'phate (-sŭl'fāt), n. Also -fate. Chem. A compound containing three sulphate (SO_4) groups.

tri·sul'phide (trĭ·sŭl'fĭd; -fĭd), n. Also tri·sul'phid, tri·sul'fide, tri·sul'fid. Chem. A compound containing three atoms of sulphur combined with an element or radical.

tri·sul'phone (-fōn), n. Also -sul'fone. Chem. A compound containing three sulphone (SO_2) groups.

tri'sul·phon'ic (trĭ'sŭl·fŏn'ĭk), adj. Also -sul·fon'ic. Chem. Pertaining to or designating any acid containing three sulphonic groups.

tri'sulph·ox'ide (-sŭlf·ŏk'sīd; -sĭd), n. Also -sulph·ox'id, -sulf·ox'ide, -sulf·ox'id. Chem. A compound containing three sulphoxide (SO) groups.

tris'yl·lab'ic (trĭs'ĭ·lăb'ĭk; trĭ'sĭl-), adj. [F. trissyllabique, fr. L. trisyllabus, fr. Gr. trisyllabos, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + syllabē a syllable.] Of or pertaining to a trisyllable; having three syllables; as, "syllable" is trisyllabic. — tris'yl·lab'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. — tris'yl·lab'i·cal·ly, adv.

tri·syl'la·bism (trĭ·sĭl'ȧ·bĭz'm; trĭ-), n. Also, Rare, tris'yl·lab'i·ty (trĭs'ĭ·lăb'ĭ·tĭ). State of being trisyllabic.

tri·syl'la·ble (trĭ·sĭl'ȧ·b'l; trĭ-; 277), n. A word of three syllables, as his-to-ry. — tri·syl'la·ble, adj.

tri·tac'tic (trĭ·tăk'tĭk), adj. [tri- + L. tangere, tactum, to touch, or tactus a touching.] Tangent at three consecutive points.

tri·tag'o·nist (trĭ·tăg'ō·nĭst; trĭ'-). [Gr. tritagōnistēs, fr. tritos third + agōnistēs actor.] Gr. Drama. The player of the third part in importance.

tri·tan'gent (trĭ·tăn'jĕnt), adj. [tri- + tangent.] Touching at three discrete points. — n. The coincidence of three nonconsecutive tangents to a curve regarded as an envelope of lines. — tri'tan·gen'tial (trĭ'tăn·jĕn'shăl), adj.

tri'taph (trĭ'tăf), n. [tri- + Gr. taphos tomb.] Archaeol. A tomb containing three small chambers or cists.

trite (trīt), adj. [L. tritus, past part. of terere to rub, to wear out. See THROW; cf. CONTRITE, DETRIMENT, TRIBULATION, TRITURATE.] 1. Worn, as by rubbing. Obs.

2. Used until so common as to have lost novelty and interest; hackneyed; stale; as, a trite remark; a trite subject; such trite phrases as "a downy couch," a "deadly missile," "the worse for wear," "a seething mass of humanity."

Syn. — Threadbare, stereotyped, vapid. — TRITE, HACKNEYED, BANAL. TRITE implies esp. lack of novelty or interest; that is HACKNEYED which is worn out, as it were, by constant use; BANAL (a recent word) suggests the vapid or commonplace; as, "a dreary expanse of trite sentiments and languid words" (Sydney Smith); "It is a trite but true observation, that examples work more forcibly on the mind than precepts" (Fielding); "the hackneyed comparison betwixt blank verse and rime" (Smollett); "language . . . worn and hackneyed out of all sense and meaning" (Jane Austen); "a simple person marvelously protected from vulgarity and the banal" (T. E. Brown); "just the sort of banality, you know, one does come out with" (M. Arnold). Cf. COMMONPLACE, PETTY.

Ant. — Fresh, new, interesting, original, pithy.

— trite'ly, adv. — trite'ness, n.

tri'te (trĭ'tē), n. [Gr. tritē, fem. of tritos third.] Anc. Gr. Music. See TETRACHORD, Illust.

Trit'e·le'ia (trĭt'ē·lē'yȧ), n. [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. teleios complete; — from its trimerous flowers.] Bot. a A genus of American bulbous herbs (family Liliaceae) having grass-like leaves and umbels of white, blue, or violet flowers, with the stamens borne on the tube of the perianth in two series. T. uniflora, the spring starflower, is often cultivated. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

trit'en·ceph'a·lon (trĭt'ĕn·sĕf'ȧ·lŏn; trĭ'tĕn-), n. [NL., fr. trit- + encephalon.] Anat. & Zool. a The third, or hindmost, of the primary brain vesicles. b In insects, the tritocerebrum.

tri·ter'nate (trĭ·tûr'nāt), adj. Bot. Thrice ternate; ternately decompound. — tri·ter'nate·ly, adv.

tri·ter'pene (-tûr'pēn), n. Chem. Any polyterpene having the formula $C_{30}H_{48}$. Cf. TERPENE.

tri'te·tar'te·mo'ri·on (trĭ'tē·tär'tē·mō'rĭ·ŏn), n. [Gr. tritetartēmorion.] A coin of ancient Greece, the ¾ obol. See TETARTEMORION.

tri'the·ism (trĭ'thē·ĭz'm), n. [tri- + Gr. theos God; cf. F. trithéisme.] The opinion or doctrine that the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are three distinct Gods. — tri'the·ist, n. & adj. — tri'the·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), tri'the·is'ti·cal (-tĭ·kăl), adj.

tri'the·ite (trĭ'thē·īt), n. [Cf. F. trithéite.] A tritheist.

tri'thing (trĭ'thĭng), n. [For thriding. See 1st RIDING.] = 1st RIDING. Eng.

tri·thi'o- (trĭ·thī'ō-). Chem. A combining form, tri- + thio-, denoting the presence of three sulphur atoms, esp. replacing three oxygen atoms.

tri·thi'o·al'de·hyde (trĭ·thī'ō·ăl'dē·hīd), n. Chem. A compound formed by polymerization from three molecules of a simple thioaldehyde.

tri'thi·on'ic ac'id (trĭ'thī·ŏn'ĭk). Chem. An unstable acid, $H_2S_3O_6$ (cf. THIONIC ACID a), known in solution and in the form of its salts, the tri·thi'o·nates (trĭ·thī'ŏn·āts), formed by interaction of thiosulphates with persulphates, and otherwise.

Tri·thri'nax (trĭ·thrī'năks), n. [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. thrinax a three-pronged fork; — from the form of the leaves.] Bot. A small genus of South American fan palms (family Arecaceae) having tough leaves with fibrous spiny sheaths, biconvex petiole, and prominent ligule.

trit'i·cal (trĭt'ĭ·kăl), adj. [From trite, after critical.] Trite. — trit'i·cal'i·ty (-kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Obs. — trit'i·cal·ly, adv. — trit'i·cal·ness, n.

tri·ti'ceous (trĭ·tĭsh'ŭs), adj. [L. triticeus of wheat.] Anat. Designating a small nodule of cartilage within the lateral thyrohyoid ligament.

tri·tic'e·um (-tĭs'ē·ŭm), n. [NL.] Anat. A triticeous cartilage.

trit'i·cin (trĭt'ĭ·sĭn), n. [See TRITICUM.] Chem. A carbohydrate, similar to inulin, obtained from the couch grass Agropyron repens.

trit'i·cism (-sĭz'm), n. [See TRITICAL.] A trite or commonplace remark or phrase.

trit'i·cold (-koid), adj. [L. triticum wheat + -oid.] Wheat-like.

trit'i·co·nu·cle'ic ac'id (trĭt'ĭ·kō·nū·klē'ĭk). [L. triticum wheat + E. nucleic.] Biochem. A nucleic acid in the embryo of wheat.

Trit'i·cum (trĭt'ĭ·kŭm), n. [L., wheat, fr. terere, tritum, to grind.] 1. Bot. A genus of cereal grasses, the wheats, distinguished by the 2–5-flowered flattened spikelets in a terminal cylindrical spike with a flexuous rachis. T. vulgare, the common wheat, has given rise to many subspecies and cultivated varieties. See WHEAT.

2. [not cap.] Pharm. The dried rhizome of the couch grass Agropyron repens, used as a diuretic.

trit'ish (trĭt'ĭsh), adj. Somewhat trite. Rare.

tri'to- (trī'tō-; trĭt'ō-), trit-. A combining form, Greek trito-, trit-, from tritos, meaning third, as in tritocone, tritagonist; specif., Chem., formerly used to indicate the third in a regular series of compounds, and also sometimes (improperly) as equivalent to TRI-. Cf. DEUTO- b.

tri'to·cer'e·brum (-sĕr'ē·brŭm), n. [NL., fr. trito- + cerebrum.] Zool. The third segment of the brain in insects, innervating the labrum. — tri'to·cer'e·bral (-brăl), adj.

trit'o·cone (trĭt'ō·kōn), n. Zool. The cusp of a mammalian premolar corresponding in position to the metacone of a true molar; the trit'o·co'nid (-kō'nĭd) of the lower jaw corresponds to the metaconid. See TRITUBERCULY.

Tri'to·I·sa'iah (trĭ'tō-), n. Third Isaiah, — according to some Old Testament scholars (as B. Duhm), a 5th-century (B.C.) citizen of Jerusalem and author of Isaiah lvi–lxvi.

trit'o·mite (trĭt'ō·mīt), n. [G. tritomit, fr. Gr. tritomos thrice cut; — because on breaking it always shows three sides.] Mineral. A complex fluosilicate of calcium, thorium, cerium, yttrium, etc., containing also boron.

Tri'ton (trī'tŏn), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tritōn.] 1. Gr. Myth. A sea demigod, son of Poseidon and Amphitrite, represented as having the lower part of his body fishlike. His special attribute is a trumpet made of a conch shell, which he blows to raise or calm the waves. Later mythology imagined a multiplicity of Tritons, attendants on the sea gods.

2. A representation in art of this sea demigod; also, any commanding figure like or suggesting Triton (sense 1).

3. Zool. a A large genus of marine snails (suborder Taenioglossa) having a stout spiral shell, often handsomely colored and ornamented with prominent varices. They mostly inhabit tropical seas, and some species are among the largest of gastropods. Triton is the type genus of the family Tri·ton'i·dae (trĭ·tŏn'ĭ·dē). b [not cap.] A shell of this genus or of the family Tritonidae.

Triton (T. variegatum).

4. Zool. a Syn. of TRITURUS. b [not cap.] Hence, any of various aquatic salamanders; a newt or eft. See NEWT.

—Tri·ton'ic (trĭ·tŏn'ĭk), adj.

tri'ton, n. [From trinitrotoluene.] See TRINITROTOLUENE.

tri'tone' (trī'tōn'), n. [Gr. tritonos of three tones, fr. tri- tri- + tonos a tone.] Music. An interval of three tones, or whole steps; an augmented fourth, long forbidden in old counterpoint.

tri·sen'so·ry, adj. See TRI-, 1.

Tris·hag'i·on (trĭs·hăg'ĭ·ŏn; -hăj'-gĭ·ŏn). Var. of TRISAGION.

trish'trash', n. Nonsense. Obs.

tris·il'ane (trĭ·sĭl'ăn), n. Also tri·sil'i·cane (-ĭ·kān). Chem. See SILICON HYDRIDE. [CATE.

tri·sil'i·cate, n. Chem. See SILI-tri'si·lic'ic ac'id. Chem. See SILICIC ACID.

tri·sil'la·ble. Trisyllable. Ref. Sp.

tri·sin'u·ate, tri·sin'u·at'ed, adj. See TRI-, 1.

Tris'me·gis'tus (trĭs'mē·jĭs'tŭs), n. [LL., fr. Gr. Trismegistos.] See HERMES TRISMEGISTUS.

tris·ni'trate (trĭs·nī'trāt), n. [tris- + nitrate.] Chem. = TRINITRATE. Obs. [4.

tri·so'di·um, n. Chem. See TRI-, trisodium phosphate. See SODIUM PHOSPHATE.

tri·so'nant, adj. See TRI-, 2.

tri·spher'i·cal, adj. Composed of three spheres. Obs.

tri·spi'nose, adj. See TRI-, 1.

tri'square', adj. See TRI-, 1.

Tris'tam (trĭs'tăm), Tris'tan (-tăn). Old French forms of TRISTRAM.

tri'-State', or tri'state' (66), adj. See TRI-, 1. triste. † TRIEST, thirst; TRYST.

tri·ste'a·rin, n. Chem. See STEARIN, 1. triste'ness, n. See -NESS. Rare.

‖tris·te'za (trĭs·tā'sä; 267), n. [Sp., lit., grief.] = TEXAS FEVER.

Tris'ti·cha'ce·ae (trĭs'tĭ·kā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. tristichos three-rowed + -aceae.] Syn. of PODOSTEMACEAE.

tris'ti·ly, adv. of TRISTY. Obs.

tris·ti'ti·ate (trĭs·tĭsh'ĭ·āt), v. t. [L. tristitia sadness, fr. tristis sad.] To make sad. Obs.

tris'tive (trĭs'tĭv), adj. Sad. Obs.

Tris'trem (trĭs'trĕm). Var. of TRISTRAM.

tris't'y (trĭs'tĭ), adj. Trusty. Obs. See 3d TRIST.

tri'sulc, adj. Three-forked. Obs.

trit-. = TRITO-.

trit'an·o'pi·a (trĭt'ăn·ō'pĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. trit- + anopia.] See COLOR BLINDNESS. — trit'an·op'ic (-ŏp'ĭk), adj. — trit'an·ope (trĭt'ăn·ōp), n.

tri'te·mo'ri·on (trĭ'tē·mō'rĭ·ŏn), n. Contracted form of TRITETARTEMORION.

tri'the·ism (trĭ'thē·ĭz'm), n. See TRI-, 1.

trith'a·mim'er (trĭth'ē·mĭm'ēr), — mim'er·al (-ăl). Vars. of TRIHEMIMER, -MIMERAL.

tritheimeral caesura. See CAESURA, 1 a.

tri'the·oc'ra·cy, n. See TRI-, 1.

tri·thi'o·car'bon·ate, n. Chem. See THIOCARBONATE.

tri·thi'o·car·bon'ic ac'id. Chem. See THIOCARBONIC.

Tri'to·ge·nei'a (trĭ'tō·jē·nī'ȧ), n. [Gr.] See ATHENA.

tri·tol'o (trĭ·tŏl'ō), n. See TRINITROTOLUENE.

Tri·to'ma (trĭ·tō'mȧ; trĭt'ō-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tritomos thrice cut, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + temnein to cut; — so named from the trimerous flowers.] Syn. of KNIPHOFIA.

tri·ton'al, adj. See TRI-, 1. — tri'to·nal'i·ty, n.

Tri′ton·ess (trī′tŏn·ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. A female Triton.

Tri·to′ni·a (trĭ·tō′nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Triton, taken in the sense of vane, weathercock, in allusion to the variable direction of the stamens in different species.] Bot. a A genus of South African bulbous plants (family Iridaceae) much cultivated for ornament. They have ensiform leaves and yellow, red, or orange flowers with a tubular perianth, bearing three stamens on the throat. b [not cap.] A plant, bulb, or flower of this genus. See MONTBRETIA.

Tri′ton·ly (trī′tŏn·lĭ), adv. As Triton (with his horn). Obs.

tri′ton·oid (-oid), adj. [See -OID.] Zool. Resembling the genus Triton.

Tri′ton's horn (trī′tŏnz). A triton shell.

trit′o·nymph (trĭt′ō·nĭmf), n. [trito- + nymph.] Zool. Any of certain acarids in their third developmental stage. Cf. DEUTONYMPH. — tri′to·nymph′al (trī′tō·nĭm′făl), adj.

tri′to·pat′o·res (trī′tō·păt′ō·rēz), n. pl. [Gr.] Gr. Relig. In Attic religion, the "fathers of the third degree," that is, ancestors at least three generations removed.

tri′tor (trī′tĕr), n. [L., a grinder, fr. terere to grind.] Zool. A grinding surface developed on a tooth. — tri′tor·al (-ăl), adj.

tri′to·zo′oid (trī′tō·zō′oid), n. [trito- + -zooid.] Zool. A zooid of the third generation in asexual reproduction.

tri·tri′a·con′tane (trĭ·trĭ′ȧ·kŏn′tān), n. [tri- + Gr. triakonta thirty + -ane.] Chem. Any hydrocarbon of the formula $C_{33}H_{68}$; specif., the normal variety.

trit′ti·chan (trĭt′ĭ·kăn), n. The oyster catcher. Local, Eng.

trit′–trot′, n. [Imitative redupl. of TROT.] A trot. — v. i. To go at a trot. Masefield.

tri′tu·ber′cu·lar (trī′tū·bûr′kū·lĕr), -late (-lāt), adj. Zool. a Having or designating teeth with three cusps or tubercules; tricuspid. b Pertaining to trituberculy.

Tri′tu·ber′cu·la′ta (-lā′tȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. & Paleontol. A group of mammals with tritubercular teeth; — equiv. to Pantotheria.

tri′tu·ber′cu·lism (-bûr′kū·lĭz′m), n. Zool. Trituberculy.

tri′tu·ber′cu·ly (trī′tū·bûr′kū·lĭ), n. [tri- + L. tuberculum tubercle.] Zool. The state of being tritubercular or showing evidence of having developed from a tritubercular ancestral type; specif., a theory of the origin of mammalian molar teeth supposing them to have developed through tritubercular forms, as follows: the primitive, or haplodont, stage is that of simple cones, as in reptiles. The simple cone (protocone) then developed a smaller cone in front (paracone) and another behind (metacone), this being the triconodont stage. Next, a cingulum was developed (see CINGULUM, 2 c) and the three cones became arranged in a triangle, the two smaller cusps having moved to the outer side in upper and to the inner in lower molars. This primitive triangle is called the trigon and this stage the tritubercular or trigonodont. The trigon being a cutting apparatus, an extension of the posterior part of the crown, the talonid, was developed in lower molars for crushing, and a smaller corresponding part, the talon, appeared in upper molars. Another large cone, the hypocone, then arose, usually from the cingulum, and took a place in the crown posterior to the protocone. In more complex forms, smaller intermediate cusps appeared, as metaconule, etc. Other small cusps and elements derived from the cingulum are given the termination -style, as parastyle, etc. The crests, composed of several cusps and styles, are given the termination, -loph, as protoloph, etc. The cusps, styles, crests, etc., of the lower jaw are distinguished from those of the upper by the termination -id, as protoconid, etc. Cf. MULTITUBERCULY.

trit′u·ra·ble (trĭt′ū·rȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being triturated.

trit′u·ral (trĭt′ū·răl), adj. Zool. Adapted for grinding.

trit′u·rate (-rāt), v. t.; -RAT′ED (-rāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -RAT′ING (-rāt′ĭng). [LL. triturātus, past part. of triturare to thresh (grain), fr. L. tritura a threshing, rubbing, fr. terere, tritum, to rub, rub to pieces. See TRITE.] 1. To rub, grind, bruise, or thrash.

2. To rub or grind to a very fine or impalpable powder; to pulverize and comminute thoroughly.

trit′u·rate, n. A triturated substance; Pharm., a trituration.

trit′u·ra′tion (-rā′shŭn), n. [LL. trituratio.] 1. Act of triturating, or state of being triturated; comminution.

2. Pharm. A triturated powder; esp., a powder made by triturating a substance with lactose as a diluent.

trit′u·ra′tor (trĭt′ū·rā′tĕr), n. [LL.] One who or that which triturates; specif., an apparatus that triturates drugs.

trit′u·ra·ture (-rȧ·tūr), n. Act of wearing by friction. R.

tri·tu′ri·um (trĭ·tū′rĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. L. terere, tritum, to rub.] A vessel for separating liquids of different densities.

Tri·tu′rus (trĭ·tū′rŭs), n. [NL., prob. fr. Gr. Tritōn Triton + -urus.] A genus of chiefly aquatic salamanders comprising the typical newts, which have a small tongue free along the sides, four to five toes, and a compressed tail.

Tri·tyl′o·don (trĭ·tĭl′ō·dŏn), n. [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. tylos knob + -odon.] Paleontol. A genus of multituberculate mammals from the lower Mesozoic of Africa and Europe, scarcely distinguishable from reptiles, but usually included in the subclass Allotheria. They had premolars similar to the true molars.

Tri′um·fet′ta (trĭ′ŭm·fĕt′ȧ), n. [NL., after G. Battista Trionfetti, It. botanist.] Bot. A large genus of tropical herbs and shrubs (family Tiliaceae), clothed with stellate hairs, and bearing yellow flowers. T. rhomboidea and T. semitriloba yield valuable fiber. See BURBARK.

tri′umph (trī′ŭmf), n. [OF. triumphe (F. triomphe), fr. L. triumphus, OL. trioumpus, prob. through Etruscan, fr. Gr. thriambos a procession in honor of Bacchus. Cf. TRUMP at cards.] 1. Rom. Antiq. An imposing ceremonial in honor of a general who had gained a decisive victory over a foreign enemy. He was allowed to enter the city crowned with laurel, bearing a scepter in one hand, and a branch of laurel in the other, wearing a toga picta, and riding in a four-horse circular chariot of a peculiar form. He was preceded by the senate and magistrates, musicians, the spoils, the captives in fetters, etc., and followed by his army in marching order. The procession advanced to the Capitoline Hill, where sacrifices were offered and the general was entertained with a public feast.

2. Hence, any triumphal procession or stately, esp. public, show or pageant; also, a triumphal arch. Obs.

3. A state of joy or exultation for success; pl., shouts of exultation over a victory.

Great triumph and rejoicing was in heaven. Milton.

4. Victory; conquest; as, the triumph of knowledge.

5. A trump card; also, an old game at cards. Obs.

6. Drama. In Elizabethan drama, a musical interlude in a play or between separate plays. Obs. exc. Hist.

7. [cap.] Hort. A variety of the kaki, or Japanese persimmon, with yellowish-red, juicy flesh, and a sweet and pleasant flavor when fully ripe.

Syn. and Ant. — See VICTORY.

tri′umph (trī′ŭmf; also, until about 1700, trĭ·ŭmf′, as in Dryden), v.; TRI′UMPHED (-ŭmft); TRI′UMPH·ING. [OF. triumpher (F. triompher), fr. L. triumphare. See TRIUMPH, n.] Intransitive: 1. To receive the honor of a triumph; hence, to celebrate victory or success with exaltation; to exult boastfully.

Sorrow on thee and all the pack of you That triumph thus upon my misery! Shak.

2. To obtain victory; to be successful; to prevail.

Triumphing over death, and chance, and thee, O Time. Milton.

3. To be prosperous; to flourish.

Where commerce triumphed on the favoring gales. Trumbull.

4. In an old game of cards, to trump. Obs.

—, Transitive: Obs. a To conquer. b To cause to triumph.

tri·um′phal (trī·ŭm′făl), adj. [OF. triumphal (F. triomphal), fr. L. triumphalis.] Of, pertaining to, or used in, a triumph; indicating, or in honor of, a triumph; as, a triumphal crown, arch, feast.

tri·um′phal, n. Obs. a A paean. b A token of victory. c A triumph.

triumphal arch. a A memorial arch. See MEMORIAL ARCH. b The great arch in an early (esp. basilican) church, leading into the choir or sanctuary; the chancel arch.

triumphal arch motive. Arch. A triple bay having an arch in the central, and widest, compartment.

triumphal column. A monumental column commemorating a victor or a victory, as those of Trajan and Antonine in Rome, the Colonne Vendôme in Paris, and Nelson's Trafalgar Column in London.

triumphal cross. = CROSS OF THE RESURRECTION.

triumphal hymn. = SERAPHIC HYMN.

tri·um′phan·cy (trĭ·ŭm′făn·sĭ), n. Also tri·um′phance (-făns). State of being triumphant. Rare.

tri·um′phant (-fănt), adj. [MF. triumphant (F. triomphant), fr. L. triumphans, pres. part of triumphare. See TRIUMPH, v.] 1. Enjoying a triumph; also, of or pertaining to a triumph; triumphal. Obs. "Captives bound to a triumphant car." Shak.

2. Rejoicing for, or celebrating, victory; expressive of joy for success; exultant; as, a triumphant shout.

3. Graced with conquest; victorious.

4. Of shining beauty; magnificent. Obs. "A triumphant grave." Shak.

— tri·um′phant·ly, adv.

tri·um′phant, n. One who has triumphed; a conqueror.

tri′um·pha′tor (trĭ′ŭm·fā′tĕr), n. [L.] In Roman antiquity, one who was granted a triumph; hence, anyone to whom an ovation is given, as for a triumph.

tri′umph·er (trĭ′ŭm·fĕr; cf. TRIUMPH, v. i.), n. 1. Rom. Antiq. One who was honored with a triumph.

2. One who triumphs, or rejoices for victory; a victor.

tri′umph·ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of TRIUMPH. Hence: adj. Having, celebrating, or pertaining to, a triumph; triumphant. — tri′umph·ing·ly, adv.

tri·um′vir (trī·ŭm′vĕr), n.; pl. -VIRS (-vĕrz), -VIRI (-vĭ·rī). [L., fr. trium virorum, of three men, fr. tres, gen. trium, three + vir a man. See THREE; VIRILE.] Rom. Antiq. One of three men united in public office or authority; a member of a triumvirate. — tri·um′vi·ral (-vĭ·răl), adj.

tri·um′vir, v. i. To act as triumvirs. Obs.

tri·um′vi·rate (-vĭ·rāt), n. [L. triumviratus.] 1. The office or term of a triumvir.

2. Government by three in coalition or association; the term of such a government.

3. A coalition or association of three in office or authority, esp. either of two which grasped the government of Rome. Pompey, Julius Caesar, and Crassus formed the First Triumvirate (60 B.C.); Mark Antony, Octavius (Augustus), and Lepidus, the Second (43 B.C.).

4. Any group, party, or association, of three; a trio.

tri·um′vir·ship, n. Status of being a triumvir; office or function of a triumvir.

tri′une (trī′ūn), adj. [tri- + L. unus one. See ONE.] Being three in one; — used esp. of unity of the Trinity in the Godhead. — n. A triad; esp. [cap.], the Trinity.

tri·un′gu·lin (trī·ŭng′gū·lĭn), n. [See TRI-; UNGULATE.] Zool. a The first larval stage of certain beetles which undergo hypermetamorphosis (oil beetles and blister beetles). It is active and of the campodeiform type, but during later development becomes legless and parasitic, the best-known forms feeding on eggs of bees, wasps, or locusts. b The somewhat similar larva of strepsipterous insects, parasitic on larval Hymenoptera, or sometimes on Homoptera.

Triungulin of Blister Beetle (Epicauta vittata), much enlarged.

tri·un′ni·tar′i·an (trī·ŭ′nĭ·târ′ĭ·ăn), n. One who believes in the Trinity; a Trinitarian.

tri·u′ni·ty (trī·ū′nĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being triune; trinity.

tri·u′rid (trī·ū′rĭd), n. A plant of the Triuridaceae.

Tri·u′ri·da′ce·ae (-rĭ·dā′sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A small family (order Triuridales) of saprophytic, leafless herbs found in the tropics of both hemispheres. They have star-shaped flowers with the perianth segments often fringed or tailed. Triuris and Sciaphila are the only genera.

Tri·u′ri·da′les (-rĭ·dā′lēz), n. pl. [NL. See TRIURIS.] Bot. An order of plants coextensive with Triuridaceae.

Tri·u′ris (trĭ·ū′rĭs), n. [NL., fr. tri- + Gr. oura tail; — in allusion to the appendages of the perianth.] Bot. A genus of plants typifying the family Triuridaceae.

tri·va′lent (trī·vā′lĕnt; trĭv′ȧ·lĕnt), adj. [tri- + L. valens, -entis, pres. part. See VALENCE.] a Chem. Having a valence of three. b Genetics. Triple; — said of homologous chromosomes when three are present and associate in synapsis. — n. A trivalent chromosome group. — tri·va′lence (-lĕns), tri·va′len·cy (-lĕn·sĭ), n.

tri′valve′ (trī′văłv′), or tri·valv′u·lar (trī·văl′vŭ·lĕr), adj. Having three valves.

tri·var′i·ant (trī·vâr′ĭ·ănt), adj. Physical Chem. Capable of threefold variation; having three degrees of freedom; — said of systems. Cf. PHASE RULE.

tri·ver′bi·al (trī·vûr′bĭ·ăl), adj. [tri- + L. verbum a word.] Rom. Antiq. Designating or pertaining to the dies fasti, as days on which it was lawful for the praetor to use the three words do, dico, addico (grant leave to bring suit, lay down the law, adjudge property to its owner).

triv′et (trĭv′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [Origin uncert.] A knife for severing the loops of the pile threads of velvet, Wilton carpet, or the like; — also called trevet, trivat.

triv′et (trĭv′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [AS. trefet, fr. L. tripes, -pedis, three-footed, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + pes, pedis, foot. See FOOT; cf. TRIPOD.] a A three-legged stand or support of metal, esp. one to hold a kettle or similar vessel near the fire; a tripod. b An ornamental metal plate on very short legs for use under a hot dish at table.

trivet table. A three-legged table.

triv′i·a (trĭv′ĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [L. See TRIVIAL.] 1. Rom. Antiq Crossroads.

2. [cap.] Rom. Relig. Diana as the three-faced goddess. Hecate.

3. [NL.] Trifles; unimportant matters.

triv′i·a (trĭv′ĭ·ȧ), n., pl. of TRIVIUM.

triv′i·al (trĭv′ĭ·ăl), adj. [F. trivial, fr. L. trivialis, prop., that is in, or belongs to, the crossroads or streets, hence, that may be found everywhere, common, fr. trivium a place where three roads meet, a crossroad, the street, fr. tri- (see TRI-) + via a way. See VIA, n.; cf. VOYAGE.]

1. Common; ordinary; commonplace; trite. Archaic.

The trivial round, the common task. Keble.

2. Of little worth or importance; trifling; petty; paltry; as, a trivial affair; trivial arguments; also, rarely, of a person, trifling. "As a scholar . . . trivial." De Quincey.

3. Of or pertaining to the trivium.

— triv′i·al·ly, adv. — triv′i·al·ness, n.

Syn. and Ant. — See PETTY.

triv′i·al, n. a One of the three liberal arts forming the trivium. b Often pl. A trivial matter; a trifle.

triv′i·al·ism (-lĭz′m), n. A trivial matter, utterance, method, etc.; a triviality. — triv′i·al·ist, n.

triv′i·al′i·ty (-ăl′ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [F. trivialité.]

1. Quality or state of being trivial.

2. That which is trivial; a trifle.

triv′i·al·ize (trĭv′ĭ·ăl·īz), v. t. To make trivial; to reduce to triviality.

trivial name. Bot. & Zool. a Now Rare. The specific name of an organism as distinguished from the generic name. b Rare. The popular, or vernacular, name of an organism as distinguished from the scientific name.

tri·vir′ga (trī·vûr′gȧ), n. [tri- + L. virga rod, stripe.] Three virgas. See NEUME.

tri·vir′gate (-gāt), adj. Marked with three lines.

triv′i·um (trĭv′ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. TRIVIA (-ȧ). [ML. See TRIVIAL.] 1. The three "liberal" arts, grammar, logic, and rhetoric, classified in medieval schools as the lower group of the liberal arts. See QUADRIVIUM.

2. Zool. In echinoderms, the three anterior rays collectively.

Triv′i·um Cha·ron′tis (kȧ·rŏn′tĭs). [L., crossroads of Charon.] A darkish spot or marking on the northern hemisphere of Mars, toward which many canals converge, by some thought to be due to vegetation.

tri·vol′tine (trī·vŏl′tĭn), adj. [tri- + It. volta turn, time.] Designating a race of silkworms having three broods a year. — tri·vol′tine, n.

triv′vet (trĭv′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [Cf. E. dial. trivent, trivant, var. of truant idle, vain, trifling. See TRUANT.] A flighty, frivolous person. Dial., U. S.

tri·week′ly (trī·wēk′lĭ), adj. Occurring or appearing every three weeks or three times a week; as, a triweekly newspaper. — adv. Three times a week.

-trix (-trĭks). [L. -trix as in bellatrix a female warrior.] A suffix, Latin -trix, in feminine agent nouns, corresponding to masculines ending in -or (see -OR; -TRESS), as in:

administratrix	executrix	perpetratrix
aviatrix	indicatrix	persecutrix consolatrix	inheritrix	spectatrix creatrix	instigatrix	testatrix dictatrix	mediatrix	tractrix directrix	narratrix

tri·zo′ic (trī·zō′ĭk), adj. Containing three sporozoites, as certain spores.

tri·zo′mal (trī·zō′măl), adj. [tri- + Gr. zōma girdle.] Math. Related to the sum of three square roots; as, the trizomal curve $\sqrt{aX} + \sqrt{bY} + \sqrt{cZ} = 0$, where $X = 0$, $Y = 0$, $Z = 0$ are three curves of a system.

Tro′ad (trō′ăd), n. [L. Troas, -adis, fr. Gr. Trōias.] The region of which ancient Troy was capital, in northwestern Asia Minor, bordering the Hellespont and the Aegean Sea. Hissarlik is the modern name of the presumed site of Troy.

troat (trōt), v. i. To cry, as a buck in rutting time. — troat, n.

‖tro′ba·dor′ (trō′bȧ·dôr′), n. [Pr.] Troubadour.

tro′ca (trō′kȧ), n. [From TROCHUS.] Any top shell used to make pearl buttons.

tro′car (trō′kär), n. Also tro′char. [F. trocart (or trois-quarts, i. e., three quarters), fr. trois three (fr. L. tres) + carre the side of a sword blade; — so called from its triangular point.] Surg. A stylet, usually with a triangular point, used for exploring tissues or for inserting a cannula, or drainage tube; — sometimes applied, by extension, to the cannula.

troch (Scot. trŏK). Var. of TROUGH. Obs. exc. Dial.

-troch (-trŏk). Zool. A combining form from Greek trochos, a wheel, denoting a ciliated band, as in meso*troch*, proto*troch*. Corresponding adjectives are formed in -trochal and -trochous. Nouns denoting creatures and genera so characterized are formed respectively in -trocha and -trochus.

troch-. = TROCHO-.

‖tro′cha (trō′chä), n. [Sp., bypath, crossroad.] Mil. A line of fortifications, usually rough, constructed to prevent the passage of an enemy across a region. Sp. Amer.

-trocha. See -TROCH.

tro·cha′ic (trō·kā′ĭk), adj. [L. trochaïcus, fr. Gr. trochaïkos, trochaïikos; cf. F. trochaïque. See TROCHEE.] Pros. Of, pertaining to, or consisting of, a trochee or trochees; as, trochaic verse.

tro·cha′ic, n. Pros. A trochaic measure or verse; as:

West′ward, | west′ward | Hi′a|wa′tha
Sailed′ in|to′ the | ši′ery | sun′set.

trochaic dactyl. Gr. & Lat. Pros a A trochaic foot resembling a dactyl in having three syllables scanned ♩♫; — represented by the symbol –⏑⏑. b Sometimes, the cyclic dactyl.

Tri·ton′i·dae (trĭ·tŏn′ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] See 1st TRITON, 3.

tri′to·nous (trī′tō·nŭs), adj. See TRI-, 1.

trit′o·pine (trĭt′ō·pēn; -pĭn; 157), n. Also -pin. [G. tritopin, fr. tri- + opium; — so called because it appeared as the third derivative.] Chem. = LAUDANIDINE.

tri·tot′ri·um (trĭ·tŏt′rĭ·ŭm; 181), n. [NL.] = TRITURIUM.

tri·tox′ide (trĭ·tŏk′sīd; -ĭd), n. Also -id. See TRITO-.

tri·tun′nel, adj. See TRI-, 1.

trit′ure (trĭt′ūr), n. [L. tritura. See TRITURATE.] Trituration. Obs.

trit′yl (trĭ′tĭl), n. [Gr. tritos third + -yl.] Chem. = PROPYL. Obs.

trit′yl·ene (trĭt′ĭ·lēn), n. Chem. = PROPYLENE b. Obs.

tri′umf. Triumph. Ref. Sp.

tri·um′fal, tri·um′fant, tri′umft. Triumphal; triumphant; triumphed. Ref. Sp.

tri′umph·wise′, adv. See -WISE.

tri·um′vi·ry (trī·ŭm′vĭ·rĭ), n. Triumvirate. Obs.

tri·u′nal (trī·ū′năl), adj. = TRIUNE. Rare.

tri·u′ni·ñ·ca′tion, n. See TRI-, 1.

tri·un′ion (trī·ūn′yŭn), n. = TRINITY.

tri′un·sat′u·rat′ed, adj. See TRI-, 4.

tri·val′er·in, n. See VALERIN b.

triv′ant (trĭv′ănt). Dial. Eng. var. of TRUANT. — triv′ant·ly, adj.

triv′at. Var. of 1st TREVET.

tri·ver′bal, adj. See TRI-, 1.

triv′et·wise′, adv. See -WISE.

Triz′y, Triz′ie (trĭk′ĭ). Trix (trĭks). n. Dim. of BEATRICE.

tri·zon′al, adj. See TRI-, 1.

Tro′as (trō′ăs). Bib.

tro·ca′i·cal, adj. Trochaic. — tro·cha′i·cal′i·ty, n. Both Rare.

tro′car-shaped′, adj. See -SHAPED.

trochaic spondee. A spondee with stress on the first syllable.

tro′chal (trō′kăl), adj. [Gr. trochos a wheel.] Zool. Resembling a wheel.

-trochal. See -TROCH.

trochal disc. Zool. The expanded, flat, or somewhat funnel-shaped, disc at the anterior end of a rotifer's body. It serves to draw in food or to propel the animal. See ROTIFERA.

Tro′cha·lop′o·da (trō′kȧ·lŏp′ō·dȧ; trŏk′ȧ-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trochalos running + -poda.] Zool. A series of Hemiptera, including the terrestrial families, having the coxae articulated by a ball-and-socket joint. — tro·chal′o·pod (trō·kăl′ō·pŏd), adj. & n.

tro′cha·lop′o·dous (-dŭs), adj. [See TROCHALOPODA.] Zool. Having the coxae articulating by a ball-and-socket joint; — said of certain insects.

tro·chan′ter (trō·kăn′tĕr), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trochantēr, fr. trechein to run.] 1. Anat. & Zool. In many vertebrates, a rough prominence or process at the upper part of the femur serving for the attachment of muscles (in birds for articulation with the ilium). In mammals there are usually two, sometimes but one, though in some, as the horses and rhinoceroses, and rarely in man, there is a third. In man there are normally two, the great or greater, situated at the outer part of the upper end of the shaft at its junction with the neck, and the lesser, at the lower back part of the junction of the shaft and neck.
2. Zool. The second segment, counting from the base, of the leg of an insect. It is usually small and short. In some insects it consists of two or, rarely, of several, distinct parts. Cf. TROCHANTIN, 1.

tro′chan·ter′ic (trō′kăn·tĕr′ĭk), adj. Anat. & Zool. Of or pertaining to a trochanter or trochanters.

trochanteric fossa. Anat. A depression at the base of the internal surface of the great trochanter of the femur, for the attachment of the tendon of the obturator externus muscle.

tro′chan·te′ri·on (trō′kăn·tē′rĭ·ŏn), n. [NL.] Anthropom. The highest point upon the greater trochanter.

tro·chan′tin, tro·chan′tine (trō·kăn′tĭn), n. 1. Zool. The proximal of the two segments into which the trochanter of the leg of an insect may be divided, often united with, and sometimes regarded as belonging to, the coxa.
2. Anat. The lesser trochanter of the femur. Rare.
— tro′chan·tin′i·an (trō′kăn·tĭn′ĭ·ăn), adj.

tro′chate (trō′kāt), adj. Zool. a Trochal. b Trochiferous.

tro′che (trō′kē; 277), n. [Gr. trochos anything round or circular, a wheel, prop., a runner, fr. trechein to run. Cf. TROCHEE.] Pharm. A medicinal tablet or lozenge, esp. one used as a demulcent, as for soreness or irritation in the throat; strictly, one of circular form.

troche (trŏch), n. [OF.] A button with three or more jewels; a similar cluster of deer's tines. Obs.

troch′e·am′e·ter (trŏk′ē·ăm′ē·tĕr), n. [Gr. trochos wheel + -meter.] An instrument to count the revolutions of a wheel.

tro′chee (trō′kē), n. [L. trochaeus, fr. Gr. trochaios (sc. pous), fr. trochaios running, fr. trechein to run. Cf. TROCHE, TRUCK a wheel.] Pros. A foot of two syllables, the first long and the second short, as in the Latin word ante, or the first accented and the second unaccented, as in the English word motion; a choreus.

tro′chee·ize (-īz), v. t. To change into a trochee; to render trochaic.

Troch′el·min′thes (trŏk′ĕl·mĭn′thēz), n. pl. [NL. See TROCHO-; HELMINTHES.] Zool. A phylum of invertebrates developing from trochophores and including the Rotifera, usually the Gastrotricha. Cf. DINOPHILEA, HISTRIOBDELLA. — troch′el·minth (trŏk′ĕl·mĭnth), n.

Troch′i·dae (trŏk′ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See TROCHUS.] Zool. The family of the suborder Rhipidoglossa comprising the top shells. — tro′chid (trō′kĭd), n.

tro·chif′er·ous (trō·kĭf′ĕr·ŭs), adj. [Gr. trochos wheel + -ferous.] Zool. Having a trochal disc or organ.

tro′chi·form (trō′kĭ·fôrm; trŏk′ĭ-), adj. [Trochus + -form.] Zool. Shaped like a top or a top shell; pert. to the Trochidae.

tro′chil (trō′kĭl; trŏk′ĭl), n. [Cf. F. trochile. See TROCHILUS.] = TROCHILUS, 1 a. Obs.

Tro·chil′a (trō·kĭl′ȧ; trŏk′ĭ·lȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trochos a wheel.] Bot. A genus of fungi (family Phacidiaceae) having long, one-celled, hyaline ascospores.

Troch′i·li (trŏk′ĭ·lī), n. pl. [NL. See TROCHILUS.] Zool. A suborder of Micropodiformes consisting of the hummingbirds.

tro·chil′ic (trō·kĭl′ĭk), adj. [See TROCHILICS.] Of or pertaining to rotary motion; having power to draw out or turn round. "By art trochilic." Camden.

tro·chil′ic, n. = TROCHILICS. Obs.

tro·chil′ics (-ĭks), n. [Gr. trochilia the sheaf of a pulley, roller of a windlass, fr. trechein to run.] The science of rotary motion, or of wheelwork. See -ICS.

Tro·chil′i·dae (-ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Trochilus + -idae.] Zool. The family of picarian birds consisting of the hummingbirds. — tro·chil′i·dine (-dĭn; -dīn; 156), adj.

tro·chil′i·dist (trō·kĭl′ĭ·dĭst), n. [See TROCHILUS.] One who studies hummingbirds. Rare.

troch′i·line (trŏk′ĭ·lĭn; -līn; 156), adj. [See TROCHILUS.] Of or pertaining to the hummingbird family; trochilidine.

troch′i·lus (-lŭs), n.; pl. -ILI (-lī). [L., a kind of small bird, an annular molding, etc., fr. Gr. trochilos, fr. trechein to run.] 1. a A crocodile bird. b Any of several Old World warblers, as the goldcrest or the willow warbler. c A hummingbird.
2. [cap.] A genus of hummingbirds, formerly extensive, but now restricted to the long-tailed Jamaican species T. polytmus and T. scitulus.
3. Arch. = 1st SCOTIA.

tro′ching (trō′kĭng), n. [OF. troche cluster, group. See 2d TROCHE.] A small point of a stag's antler.

tro′chis·ca′tion (trō′kĭs·kā′shŭn), n. [LL. trochiscus a pill + -ation.] The process of forming troches or lozenges.

tro·chis′cus (trō·kĭs′kŭs), n.; pl. -CI (-kĭs′ī). [LL., fr. Gr. trochiskos a small ball, dim. of trochos a wheel. See 1st TROCHE.] Pharm. A kind of tablet or lozenge; a troche.

tro′chite (trō′kīt), n. [Gr. trochos a wheel.] A wheel-like joint of the stem of a fossil crinoid. — tro·chit′ic (trō·kĭt′ĭk), adj.

troch′le·a (trŏk′lē·ȧ), n. [L., a case or sheaf containing one or more pulleys, fr. Gr. trochilia. See TROCHILICS.] 1. Anat. A structure likened to a pulley, as the articular surface on the medial condyle of the humerus, which articulates with the ulna, or the fibrous ring, in the inner upper part of the orbit, through which the tendon of the trochlear muscle of the eye passes, or the smooth depression on the front of the femur between the condyles.
2. Mach. A pulley. Obs.

troch′le·ar (trŏk′lē·ĕr), adj. [L. trochlea block or pulley.] 1. Anat. Shaped like, or resembling, a pulley; pertaining to a trochlea or to the trochlear muscle.
2. Bot. Pulley-shaped; round, and narrow in the middle, like the wheel of a pulley.

trochlear fossa. The depression for the attachment of the trochlea of the superior oblique muscle (see OBLIQUE, 4 b).

troch′le·ar′i·form (trŏk′lē·ăr′ĭ·fôrm), adj. Trochlear.

troch′le·a′ris (trŏk′lē·ā′rĭs), n. [NL.] Anat. a The trochlear muscle. b The trochlear nerve.

trochlear muscle. Anat. & Zool. The superior oblique muscle of the eye. See OBLIQUE, 4 b.

trochlear nerve. Anat. & Zool. A nerve of the fourth cranial pair. In man they are the smallest of the cranial nerves and are motor nerves supplying the superior oblique, or trochlear, muscle of the eye. They issue from the dorsal aspect of the brain stem on either side of the anterior medullary velum.

troch′le·ar′y (trŏk′lē·ĕr′ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Anat. Trochlear.

troch′le·ate (-āt), adj. Trochlear.

troch′le·i·form′ (trŏk′lē·ĭ·fôrm′), adj. [See -IFORM.] Trochlear.

troch′o- (trŏk′ō-). Also troch-. A combining form, Greek trocho-, troch-, from trochos, meaning wheel, as in Trochodendron, Trochelminthes. Cf. -TROCH.

troch′o·ce·pha′li·a (-sē·fā′lĭ·ȧ), troch′o·ceph′a·ly (-sĕf′ȧ·lĭ), n. Also troch′o·ceph′a·lus (-lŭs). [trocho- + Gr. kephalē head.] Anat. An abnormal roundness of the skull, caused by premature union of the frontal and parietal bones. — troch′o·ce·phal′ic (-sē·făl′ĭk), adj.

Troch′o·den·dra′ce·ae (trŏk′ō·dĕn·drā′sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. trocho- + Gr. dendron tree; — from the verticillate leaves.] Bot. A small family of trees (order Ranales), the katsura-tree family, distinguished from the Magnoliaceae in having apetalous flowers and in not being aromatic. The three genera are Trochodendron, Euptelea, and Cercidiphyllum (see these terms), all of eastern Asia. — troch′o·den·dra′ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Troch′o·den′dron (-dĕn′drŏn), n. [NL. See TROCHODENDRACEAE.] Bot. A genus of evergreen trees, type of the Trochodendraceae, found in Japan and Korea. The only species, T. aralioides, is cultivated for ornament. It has bright-green flowers in racemes, and brown fruit.

tro′choid (trō′koid), n. [Gr. trochos a wheel + -oid; cf. F. trochoïde. See TROCHE.] 1. A curve generated by a point on a circle which rolls on a straight line; — used in naval architecture in apportioning the displacement in the afterbody of a vessel.
2. Anat. A pivot joint.
3. Geom. A roulette (which see).

tro′choid, adj. 1. Trochiform.
2. Of, pertaining to, or resembling, a top shell, or any mollusk of the genus Trochus.
3. Anat. Admitting of rotation on a longitudinal axis.
4. Geom. Trochoidal.

tro·choi′dal (trō·koi′dăl), adj. 1. = TROCHOID, 2 & 3.
2. Geom. Of, pertaining to, or having the properties of, a trochoid, or roulette.
— tro·choi′dal·ly, adj.

tro·choi′des (trō·koi′dēz), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trochoeidēs round like a wheel, fr. trochos wheel + eidos form.] Anat. A pivot joint, as that of the odontoid process within the atlas.

tro·chom′e·ter (-kŏm′ē·tĕr), n. [trocho- + -meter.] An odometer for vehicles.

troch′o·phore (trŏk′ō·fōr; 181), n. [trocho- + -phore.] Zool. A form of free-swimming larva characteristic of various aquatic invertebrates, as many worms, rotifers, mollusks, etc., in typical cases having a bilaterally symmetrical, ovoid, or pyriform body with an equatorial preoral circlet of cilia. There are a mouth, an intestine, an anal opening, an apical sensory plate, and sometimes nephridial tubes, also frequently a second ciliated band behind the mouth. Cf. CEPHALOTROCHA, Illust.

Troch′o·sphaer′i·da (-sfĕr′ĭ·dȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TROCHOSPHERE.] Zool. An order of tailless, globular rotifers, of one genus, Troch′o·sphae′ra (-sfē′rȧ), having the trochal disc represented by an equatorial circlet of cilia.

troch′o·sphere (trŏk′ō·sfēr), n. [trocho- + sphere.] Zool. A trochophore. — troch′o·spher′i·cal (-sfĕr′ĭ·kăl), adj.

Troch′o·zo′a (trŏk′ō·zō′ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. trocho- + zoa.] Zool. In some classifications, a group of Invertebrata including all those whose early larval stage is normally a trochosphere, as the annelids and mollusks. — troch′o·zo′ic (-ĭk), adj.

troch′o·zo′on (-zō′ŏn), n. [NL.] Zool. Any one of the Trochozoa or of a hypothetical ancestral organism.

Tro′chus (trō′kŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trochos a wheel.] Zool. a The type genus of Trochidae. See TOP SHELL. b [not cap.]; pl. TROCHI (-kī). A trochal disc.

-trochus. See -TROCH.

trock′er·y (trŏk′ĕr·ĭ), n. [See 2d TRUCK; -ERY d.] Small articles, collectively. Scot.

tro′co (trō′kō), n. [It. trucco a kind of game with balls on a table; cf. Sp. truco a game resembling billiards.] An old English game, supposed by some to have suggested billiards, played on a lawn with wooden balls and cues with spoon-shaped iron tips. Points are scored by sending the player's ball through an iron ring on a pivot in the center of the field or by caroming on the other balls. Called also lawn billiards.

troc′to·lite (trŏk′tō·līt), n. [G. troktolit, fr. Gr. trōktēs a nibbler, a sea fish (taken as meaning trout) + lithos stone.] Petrog. A variety of gabbro consisting principally of labradorite spotted by dark grains of olivine; — so called from its fancied resemblance to the speckled skin of a trout.

trod (trŏd), v. t. To trace; to track. Now Dial. — v. i. To tread; walk. Local, U. S. trod, n. [AS. See TRODE.] Now Dial. a Track; path; footpath. b Footstep; tread. c Course of action.

trod, past tense & past part. of TREAD.

troe′ger·ite, trö′ger·ite (trû′gĕr·īt), n. [After R. Tröger, inspector of mines in Saxony.] Mineral. A hydrous arsenate of uranium, $(UO_2)_3(AsO_4)_2.12H_2O$, occurring in lemon-yellow crystals.

Troe·ze′ni·an (trē·zē′nĭ·ăn), adj. [Gr. Troizēnios.] Of or pertaining to Troezen, a city of ancient Argolis. — n. One of the people of Troezen.

troft (trŏft; 185), n. A trough. Local, U. S.

trog (trŏg), n. [Cf. TRUCK change.] Barter; bargain. — trog, v. i. & t. Both Scot.

trog′ger (trŏg′ĕr), n. A peddler; a dealer in old clothes; a vagrant. Scot.

trog′gin (-ĭn), n. Peddlers' wares, collectively. Scot.

trog′lo·dyte (trŏg′lō·dīt), n. [L. troglodytae, pl., fr. Gr. trōglodytēs one who creeps into holes, fr. trōglē a hole, cavern (fr. trōgein to gnaw) + dyein to enter.] 1. Ethnol. One of any savage race that dwells in caves, natural or artificial; a cave dweller.
2. Hence, figuratively, a person resembling or suggesting a troglodyte (sense 1), as in appearance, ways of living, or degradation or brutality of nature.
3. An anthropoid ape, as the chimpanzee.
— trog′lo·dyt′al (-dĭt′ăl), adj. — trog′lo·dyte, adj.

Trog′lo·dy′tes (trŏg′lō·dī′tēz; trō·glōd′ĭ·tēz), n. [NL. See TROGLODYTE.] Zool. a A genus of wrens, in older and broader usage including the common European wren and many others, in restricted modern use limited to the American house wren and near allies. b Incorrectly, a genus of anthropoid apes containing the gorilla and chimpanzee.

trog′lo·dyt′ic (trŏg′lō·dĭt′ĭk), adj. [L. troglodyticus, fr. Gr. trōglodytikos.] Of or pertaining to a troglodyte, or dweller in caves; hence, primitive in character; suggesting the prehistoric nature; also, coarse, brutal, or degraded, in appearance, ways of living, or nature.

trog′lo·dyt′i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Troglodytic.

Trog′lo·dyt′i·dae (-ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Troglodytes + -idae.] Zool. The family consisting of the wrens, formerly including also the thrashers, mockingbirds, and allied forms. As sometimes regarded, it is a subfamily of Timaliidae called Trog′lo·dy·ti′nae (-dĭ·tī′nē).

tro′gon (trō′gŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trōgōn, pres. part. of trōgein to gnaw.] Any of numerous nonpasserine birds constituting the family Trogonidae, noted for the brilliant color and luster of their plumage. They inhabit tropical forests in America, Africa, and India, but chiefly in America, where the most beautiful species (see QUETZAL) is found. They have a short, stout, dentate bill, and are unique in having heterodactylous feet. A common coloration is shimmering green on the back and rose pink and white on the under parts. The trogons constitute an order, Trogon′i·for′mes (trō·gŏn′ĭ·fôr′mēz), coextensive with a family Tro·gon′i·dae (-gŏn′ĭ·dē). Also [cap.], the typical and largest genus of trogons, including most American species.

tro′gon·oid (trō′gŏn·oid), adj. [trogon + -oid.] Like, or pertaining to, the trogons.

trogs, troggs (trŏgz), n. pl. Troth. Scot. & Ir trogs, troggs, n. pl. Clothes; togs. Scot.

trogue (trōg), n. [Var. of TROUGH.] Mining. A wooden trough, forming a drain. Local, Eng.

Tro′ia·des (trō′yȧ·dēz), n. pl. [Gr. Trōiades Trojan women.] A tragedy, by Euripides, of the scenes that follow the capture of Troy, esp. of the trials of Hecuba.

Tro′ic (trō′ĭk), adj. [L. Troicus, fr. Gr. Trōikos, fr. Trōs. See TROJAN.] Of or pertaining to Troy, the Troad, or Trojan War; Trojan.

troi′ka (troi′kȧ), n. [Russ.] A vehicle drawn by three horses abreast; also, a team of three horses abreast. Russia.

tro′i·lite (trō′ĭ·līt), n. [After Dominico Troili, an Italian of the 18th century.] Mineral. Native ferrous sulphide, FeS, occurring in meteorites. Some regard it as identical with pyrrhotite.

Tro′i·lus (trō′ĭ·lŭs; troi′lŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Trōilos.] A son of Priam, killed by Achilles. He is prominent in medieval Troy legend, and is the hero of Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde and Shakespeare's Troilus and Cressida. He seduces Cressida through her uncle Pandarus. She is the daughter of Calchas, the Trojan high priest, who deserted to the Greeks; and when she is sent to her father in exchange for Antenor, she deserts Troilus for the Greek Diomedes.

Tro′i·lus and Cres′si·da (krĕs′ĭ·dȧ). A play of uncertain date (1603?), by Shakespeare. See TROILUS; PANDARUS. The story is medieval, not classic, in origin, resting ultimately on Dictys Cretensis and Dares Phrygius.

Tro′i·lus and Cri·sey′de (krĭ·sā′dē). A poem by Chaucer, based on earlier Italian and French versions of the story. See TROILUS.

tro′i·lus but′ter·fly′ (trō′ĭ·lŭs). [See TROILUS.] A large American butterfly (Papilio troilus). It is black, with yellow marginal spots on the front wings, and blue on the rear.

Troilus.

Trois′-Ê′vê′chés′ (trwȧ′-zȧ′-vĕ′shȧ′), n. [F., lit., three bishoprics.] A district of ancient France, consisting of the three bishoprics of Metz, Toul, and Verdun, and their dependencies, in Lorraine.

‖Trois′ Mous′que·taires′, Les (lā trwȧ′ mōōs′kē·târ′). [F.] See THREE MUSKETEERS.

trois point (trwä point). [F. trois three.] Backgammon. The third point from the outer edge on each player's home table.

Tro′jan (trō′jăn), adj. [L. Trojanus, fr. Troja, Troia, Troy, fr. Tros, fr. Gr. Trōs, Trōos, Tros, the mythical founder of Troy.] Of or pertaining to ancient Troy or its inhabitants.

Tro′jan, n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Troy.
2. One who shows the pluck, endurance, determined energy, or the like, attributed to the defenders of Troy; — used chiefly in the phrase like a Trojan.
3. A gay or somewhat disreputable companion. Old Slang.
4. One opposed to introducing the study of Greek in English universities at the time of the Reformation. Hist.

Trojan group. Astron. A group of asteroids exemplifying a particular solution of the problem of three bodies in that their average position continually makes with the sun and Jupiter approximately an equilateral triangle.

Trojan horse, the. See WOODEN HORSE.

Trojan War. In Greek legends, the ten years' war waged by the confederated Greeks under Agamemnon against the tro′char (trō′kär). Var. of TROCAR.

---

tro′chart. Var. of TROCAR.

troched, adj. [OF. troché.] Branched, as a stag's horn. Obs.

tro′che·ize (trō′kē·īz), v. i. Var. of TROCHEEIZE.

tro·che′us, n. Var. of TROCHEE. Obs.

tro′chi (trō′kĭ), n., pl. of TROCHUS [CHUS b.] troch′i·lop′o·dous (trŏk′ĭ·lŏp′ō·dŭs), adj. [NL., fr. Gr. trochilos a pulley + -podous.] = TROCHALOPODOUS.

tro′chisk (trō′kĭsk), n. [F. trochisque.] = 1st TROCHE. Obs.

trochoid joint. = PIVOT JOINT.

-trochous. See -TROCH.

trock (trŏk), n. & v. Var. of TRUCK. Scot. & N. of Eng.

troc′le·a. Trochlea. Ref. Sp.

trod′den, past part. of TREAD.

trode. Archaic past tense of TREAD.

trod′n. Trodden. Ref. Sp.

tro′fy. Trophy. Ref. Sp.

troggs. Var. of TROGS.

trogh. † THROUGH, TROUGH.

trog′lo·dite. Troglodyte. Ref. Sp.

trog′lo·dyt′ish (trŏg′lō·dĭt′ĭ·tĭsh), adj. See -ISH.

trog′lo·dyt′ism (-dĭt·ĭz′m), n. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of TROGONIFORMES.

Tro·go′nes (trō·gō′nēz), n. pl.

Tro·gyl′li·um (trō·jĭl′ĭ·ŭm; -gĭl′ĭ·ŭm). Bib.

troil, v. t. [OF. troiller to deceive.] To beguile; deceive. Obs.

Troilus verse. = RHYME ROYAL.

‖Tro′ja fu′lit. [L.] = FUIT ILIUM.

Trojans and their allies, caused by the carrying off of Helen by Paris and ending in the destruction of Troy. Its events are told in the Iliad, Odyssey, and Aeneid, by the cyclic poets, in medieval romances, etc. Its traditional date is about 1200 B.C. See 1st PARIS, 1; ACHILLES.

troke (trōk), v. t. & i. To barter; traffic; exchange; also, to deal or negotiate. — trok'er (trōk'ĕr). Both Scot.

troke, n. [Cf. TRUCK exchange.] Scot. a Barter; an exchange; a bargain. b Petty wares; trash. c Business dealings; a piece of business.

troll (trōl), n. [ON. & Sw. troll, Dan. trold. Cf. TRULL.] Teut. Myth. A supernatural being, conceived sometimes as a dwarf, sometimes as a giant, fabled to inhabit caves, hills, and like places. See DWARF, 2; GIANT, 1.

troll (trōl), v.; TROLLED (trōld); TROLL'ING. [ME. trollen to roll, to wander, perh. fr. OF. troller to ramble, F. trôler to drag about, to ramble, prob. of Teut. origin; cf. G. trollen to roll, ramble, sich trollen to be gone, MHG. trollen to run with short steps. Cf. TROLLEY, TROLLOP.] Transitive: 1. To move circularly; to revolve; turn; wag. Obs.

To dress, and troll the tongue, and roll the eye. Milton.

2. To roll; bowl; trundle.
3. To send about; to circulate, as a vessel in drinking.
4. a To sing the parts of in succession, as of a round or catch. b To sing loudly or freely. c To celebrate in song; to sing of. "That all tongues shall troll you." Beau & Fl. d To speak or recite in a rolling voice, or rapidly.
5. To angle for with a trolling line, or with a hook drawn along the water; hence, to allure; entice.
6. To angle in. "Trolls the finny deep." Goldsmith.

—, Intransitive: 1. To roll; to run, ramble, or walk about; to move around; to circulate; as, to troll in a coach and six; also, to pass from hand to hand, as a drinking goblet. Archaic.
2. To wag, as the tongue; to speak rapidly.
3. To take part in a troll; to sing or play in a jovial manner; to sound with a rolling tone; of a melody, to be constantly in mind.
4. To fish, esp. by drawing the hook along or through the water, as with a long line behind a moving boat.

troll, n. 1. Act of moving round; routine; repetition.
2. A song sung in parts successively; a catch; round.
3. A reel used on a fishing rod. Now Rare.
4. The lure, as a spoon, used in trolling; also, the line with its lure and hook, used in trolling.
5. (pron. trōl) A trolley, or coster's cart. Chiefly Eng.
6. (pron. trōl) A slovenly or loose woman; a trollop. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

troll'-drum' (trōl'drŭm'), n. [See 1st TROLL.] A drum employed for shamanistic or magical purposes; — used especially in reference to the practices of the Lapps.

trol'le-ite (trōl'ĕ-īt), n. [After H. G. Trolle-Wachtmeister, Sw. chemist.] Mineral. A hydrous phosphate of aluminum.

troll'er (trōl'ĕr), n. One who or that which trolls; as: a A singer of catches or rounds. b One who fishes with a troll.

trol'ley, trol'ly (trōl'ĭ), n.; pl. -LEYS, -LIES (-ĭz). [Prob. fr. TROLL to roll.] 1. Local, Eng. Any of various vehicles; as: a A kind of handcart or barrow. b A narrow cart drawn by an animal. c A market cart. d A low cart, also a kind of sledge, used in farming. e A kind of railroad dump car. f A low two-wheeled truck, as for moving lithographic stones in a shop.
2. A small wheeled car used for moving lumber from a portable sawmill to the yard. It runs on a wooden track.
3. A wheeled carriage running on an overhead rail or track, as on a parcel railway in a shop or store; esp., the wheeled truck of a traveling crane or of a ropeway, from which the load is suspended. See CRANE, Illust.
4. A movable block used on a cable in skidding logs.
5. Elec. Railways. a A current collector operating in connection with a trolley wire. A bow trolley has a bow-shaped, current-collecting member mounted on a frame or pole. A pantograph trolley is a current collector carried by a collapsible pantograph frame. A wheel trolley consists of a grooved wheel carried at the end of a trolley pole, the wheel making rolling contact with the trolley wire. b An electric car; a trolley car.
6. Mining. A small truck used underground. Eng.

☞ PHRASES are:

trolley attendant	trolley gong	trolley shoe trolley block	trolley guard	trolley spring trolley bracket	trolley hoist	trolley track trolley carrier	trolley insulator	trolley tracking trolley clip	trolley maker	trolley wagon trolley cord	trolley pole	trolley wheel trolley fork	trolley rail	trolley wire trolley frog

—off his trolley. Mentally disorganized; unable for the time to follow a reasonable and sensible course. Slang.

trol'ley, trol'ly, v. t. & i. To convey by, or to ride on, a trolley car. Colloq.

trol'ley, trol'ly (trōl'ĭ), n. Short for TROLLEY LACE.

trolley car. A car, esp. a passenger car, running on tracks with motive power derived through a trolley (see TROLLEY, n., 5 a); — in English use called a tramcar or tram.

trolley catcher. Electric Cars. A spring ratchet device for checking and holding the trolley rope when the trolley jumps the wire, while permitting gradual movements of the rope.

trolley harp. Elec. = HARP, n., 7.

trolley, or trolly, lace. [Flemish trolle (cf. D. drol) a kind of coarsely woven thread.] An English bobbin lace copied from old Flemish patterns, having a net ground and a heavy twisted thread outlining parts of the design.

trolley line. Elec. Railways. A system of transportation by means of trolley cars.

trolley locomotive. See ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE.

trol'ley-man, trol'ly-man (trōl'ĭ-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A man who works on a trolley or electric car; esp., a motorman or conductor of an electric car.

trolley retriever. Electric Cars. A trolley catcher with a supplementary movement to pull down the pole.

trolley road. = TROLLEY LINE.

troll'flow'er (trōl'flou'ĕr), n. A flower or plant of the genus Trollius; a globeflower.

trol'li-mog (trōl'ĭ-mŏg), n. A slipshod, dirty woman; trollop. Dial. Eng.

troll'ing (trōl'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TROLL. Hence: n. Act of one who trolls; specif., fishing with a troll.

Trol'li-us (trŏl'ĭ-ŭs). n. [NL., fr. Hung. torolya, name of the herb.] Bot. A genus of herbs (family Ranunculaceae), the globeflowers, natives of north temperate regions, having palmately lobed leaves. Several are cultivated for their large yellow or lilac flowers with sepals and petals colored alike. The fruit consists of a head of follicles.

troll'man (trōl'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A wizard; a worker of magic. Cf. 1st TROLL.

trol'lol' (trōl'ŏl'), v. t. & i. To troll, as a song.

trol'lop (trōl'ŭp), n. [From TROLL to roll, to stroll.] A slovenly woman; a slattern; also, a loose woman.

trol'lop, v. i. [See TROLLOP, n.] 1. To work, walk, or act, in a sluggish or slovenly manner; to slump or slouch along. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
2. To dangle or hang soggily; to be bedraggled. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
3. To gad about; to hurry hither and thither; also, to act as a trollop; to behave in a wanton manner. Colloq.

trol'lop, v. t. To beat; thrash. Dial.

Trol·lop'e·an (trŏl·ŏp'ē·ăn), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of the works or the style of, Anthony Trollope, English novelist. — Trol·lop'e·an·ism, n.

trol'lop·ish (trŏl'ŭp·ĭsh), adj. Like, or characteristic of, a trollop; slovenly.

trol'lops (trŏl'ŭps), n. A sloven; slattern. Scot. & Dial.

trol'lop·y (-ŭp·ĭ), adj. Trollopish.

troll plate (trōl). Mach. A rotative disk with spiral ribs or grooves, by which several pieces, as the jaws of a chuck, can be moved radially in or out.

trol'ly (trŏl'ĭ), n. A trollop; a sloven. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

trol'ly. Variant of TROLLEY.

trom'ba (trŏm'bä; It. trōm'bä), n.; pl. TROMBE (-bā). [It.] Music. a A trumpet. b An organ stop imitating its tone quality.

‖trom'ba da ti·rar'si (trōm'bä dä tē·rär'sē). [It.] Music. A trumpet with a slide; a small trombone.

trom'ba ma·ri'na (mä·rē'nä). [It.] Music. = TRUMPET MARINE.

trom'bi·di'a·sis (trŏm'bĭ·dī'ă·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Trombidium + -iasis.] Veter. Infestation with chiggers.

Trom·bid'i·um (trŏm·bĭd'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Zool. A genus of red mites having the legs attached in two groups. It is the type of a family, Trom'bi·di'i·dae (trŏm'bĭ·dĭ'ĭ·dē). See CHIGGER b.

Trombidium (T. irritans). Much enlarged.

trom'bone (trŏm'bōn; trŏm·bōn'), n. [It., aug. of tromba trumpet, fr. OHG. trumba; cf. F. trombone. See TRUMP trumpet.] 1. Music. a A powerful brass wind instrument with a cupped mouthpiece. It was anciently called sackbut. In its modern form it consists of a long cylindrical metal tube bent twice upon itself and ending in a bell. The first crook (called the slide) is movable and by holding this slide at any one of the seven positions (see POSITION, 8 c) the player can control the length of the vibrating column and thus produce any pitch within the compass of the instrument.

Trombone.

In forte passages the tone is noble and powerful, but soft tones of rich and mellow quality are possible through light and well-controlled blowing. There are several sizes but the tenor trombone is most common both in band and orchestra. Its compass is E–b♭′ (see PITCH, Illust.). See VALVE TROMBONE. b A player on this instrument. c A large-scale organ stop of a quality like that of the trombone (sense a).
2. Mil. An early gun of the blunderbuss type, having a large trumpet-shaped muzzle.

trom'bone, v. t. & i. To sound like a trombone; to play the trombone. Rare.

trombone coil. A continuous steam or hot-water coil in which each intermediate section of pipe is connected at its ends by return bends to the parallel section on either side.

trom'bon·ist (trŏm'bŏn·ĭst; trŏm·bŏn'ĭst), n. A player on the trombone.

trom'bon·y (trŏm'bŏn·ĭ; trŏm·bŏn'ĭ), adj. Resembling or suggesting a trombone or its sound. Colloq.

trom'mel (trŏm'ĕl), n. [Cf. G. trommel a drum.] Ore Dressing. A screen, usually of cylindrical or conical shape, mounted on a revolving and slightly inclined longitudinal shaft. It is used for screening, or sizing, rock, ore, coal, etc.

tro·mom'e·ter (trō·mŏm'ĕ·tĕr), n. [Gr. tromos trembling + -meter.] An instrument for measuring or detecting minute earth tremors. — trom'o·met'ric (trŏm'ō·mĕt'rĭk), trom'o·met'ri·cal (-rĭ·kăl), adj. — tro·mom'e·try (trō·mŏm'ĕ·trĭ), n.

trompe (trŏmp), n. [F. Cf. TRUMP a trumpet.] An apparatus, as for a Catalan forge, in which air is sucked through sloping holes in the upper end of a large vertical wooden tube by a stream of falling water. The water is discharged below, and the air is led to the furnace. A fall of 30 feet gives an air pressure of about 2 lb. per square inch.

tromp'il (trŏm'pĭl), n. [F. trompilles, pl.] An aperture in a trompe.

trom·pil'lo (trŏm·pē'yō; 170), n. [Sp.] A weedy nightshade (Solanum elaeagnifolium) ranging from the central United States to South America, with silvery foliage, violet, blue, or white flowers, and a roundish berry widely used by the natives to curdle milk; — called also prairie berry, purple nightshade, and silver-leaved nightshade.

tro'na (trō'nä), n. [Sw., fr. reduced form of Ar. naṭrūn. See NATRON.] Mineral. A gray-white, or yellowish-white, monoclinic combination of normal and acid sodium carbonate, $Na_2CO_3NaHCO_3.2H_2O$, in crystals or fibrous or columnar masses as a deposit from certain soda-brine springs and lakes; — called also urao. It has an alkaline taste. H., 2.5–3. Sp. gr., 2.11–2.14.

tro'na·dor' (trō'nä·thôr'; 112), n. [Mex. Sp.] A Central American, Mexican, and West Indian woody herb (Abutilon trisulcatum); also, its bast fiber, used for ropes, nets, etc.

tron'age (trŏn'ĭj), n. [AF. trone steelyard.] A medieval toll or duty for compulsory weighing of coarse goods, esp. wool, at the public trone; also, the act of weighing such goods, or the right of demanding the toll.

tronc (trôn), n. [F.] Literally, alms box; — used in tronc system, a system of pooling tips in use among waiters.

trondh'jem·ite (trŏn'yĕm·īt), n. [From Trondhjem, Norway.] Petrog. A leucocratic, acid plutonic rock composed of white oligoclase-andesine, quartz, rare dark minerals, and sometimes a small amount of potash feldspar.

trone (trōn), n. [OF., fr. L. trutina a balance, fr. Gr. trytanē.] 1. Often pl. Any of various weighing machines, specif. one for heavy wares, still used in some towns, having two horizontal bars crossing each other, and beaked at the extremities; also, sometimes, a spring balance. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
2. Scot. a = TRONE WEIGHT. b A market place, or market. c The pillory.

trone, v. i. & t. [Cf. TRANT, v. i.] To play truant (from). Both Scot. & Dial. Eng.

trone. Scot. variant of TRUANT.

tron'er (trōn'ĕr), n. [ML. tronarius. See TRONAGE.] An official who weighed merchandise and collected the tronage. Obs.

trone weight. An old standard of weight formerly used in Scotland, abolished in 1618. The pound contained 21 to 28 ounces avoirdupois.

‖tronk (trŏngk), n. [S. Afr. D., fr. Pg. tronco tree trunk, stock, prison, fr. L. truncus. See TRUNK.] A prison; jail; lockup. S. Africa.

troo'lie, or troo'ly, palm (trōō'lĭ). [Galibi tourlouri, touroulia.] One of the immense leaves of the bussu, used for thatching; also, the palm itself.

troop (trōōp), n. [F. troupe, fr. troupeau, fr. LL. troppus herd, of Teut. origin; cf. AS. throp, thorp, a crowd, village. See THORP; cf. TROUPE, TROUPIAL.] 1. A collection of people or, formerly, also of things; a company.
2. Loosely, a considerable number; a quantity; a lot.

Troops of Indians in scalp locks and war paint. Parkman.
A scattered troop of seventy or eighty horses. W. H. Hudson.

3. Soldiers collectively; an armed force; — usually in pl.; as, victorious troops. "The plumed troop." Shak.
4. A company of actors; a troupe. Now Rare

A troop of strolling players. Edgar Lee Masters.

5. See BOY SCOUT.
6. Mil. A body of cavalry, a division of a squadron, commanded by a captain; the unit of formation of cavalry, corresponding to the company in infantry. Formerly, also, a company of horse artillery; a battery.

Syn. — See COMPANY.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:
troop-lined, troop-thronged, troop train.

— the troops. We, or I; — a jocose, British soldiers' phrase used esp. by Australians; as, the troops could do with a bit of leave.

troop, v.; TROOPED (trōōpt); TROOP'ING. Intransitive: 1. To move or gather in crowds or troops; as, trooping to school.
2. To march on; to go forward, off, or away, esp. as one of a throng or number.
3. To associate; to consort in company. Archaic.

A snowy dove trooping with crows. Shak.

—, Trans.: To unite with, or form into, a troop or troops. troop the colors. Mil. In the British Army, to perform a ceremony consisting essentially in carrying the colors, accompanied by the band and escort, slowly before the troops drawn up in single file and usually in a hollow square, as in London on the sovereign's birthday.

troop duck. The greater scaup duck.

troop'er (trōōp'ĕr), n. [Cf. F. troupier soldier.] 1. A soldier in a body of cavalry; a cavalryman; also, his horse.
2. An army transport, or troopship. Rare in U. S.
3. A mounted policeman; specif., one of a body of State constabulary operating chiefly in rural districts. Australia & U. S.

troop'fowl' (trōōp'foul'), n. The scaup duck. Local, U. S.

troop leader. In the British Boy Scout Movement, a scout, usually the one previously senior patrol leader, who acts as leader for the troop as a whole.

troop school. Mil. In the United States, a unit in the system of military education for commissioned officers, warrant officers, and enlisted men, at which are given basic courses for commissioned officers, and tactical and technical courses for warrant officers and enlisted men.

troop'ship' (trōōp'shĭp'), n. A vessel built or fitted for the conveyance of troops; a transport.

troosh'lach (trōōsh'lăk), n. [Cf. Gael. trusdaireachd filthiness.] Rubbish; trash. Scot.

troost'ite (trōōst'īt), n. [After Gerard Troost, of Nashville, Tenn.] Mineral. See WILLEMITE.

troost'ite (trōōst'īt), n. [After L. J. Troost, French chemist.] Metal. A solid solution of carbon in iron occurring in heat-treated steel as a transition substance between martensite and sorbite and having properties intermediate between the properties of these. It is formed either in quenching by the rapid cooling of austenite through the critical range (primary troostite), or in tempering by reheating of martensite (secondary troostite). — troost·it'ic (trōōst·ĭt'ĭk), adj.

trop-. Chem. A combining form from atropine, denoting relation to atropine.

‖trop (trō), adv. [F.] Too much; too. Cf. DE TROP.

tro'pa·co·caine' (trō'pă·kō·kān'; -kō'kān; -kō'kă·ēn; -ĭn), n. [Trade name for benzoylpseudotropeine.] Chem. & Pharm. A white crystalline alkaloid, $C_{18}H_{19}NO_3$, obtained from coca leaves, esp. those grown in Java, or prepared synthetically. It acts like cocaine, but is about one half as toxic. The hydrochloride is used as a local anesthetic.

tro·pae'o·lin, tro·pe'o·lin (trō·pē'ō·lĭn), n. Also -line. Any of a series of orange or orange-yellow azo dyes, so called because colored like nasturtium flowers (Tropaeolum); as, tropaeolin OO (see DYE, Table).

Tro·pae'o·lum (trō·pē'ō·lŭm), n. [NL., dim. fr. Gr. tropaion trophy. See TROPHY. So named because the climbing plant was considered as representing ancient trophies, with its shield-shaped leaves and its flowers suggesting gilded helmets spattered with blood and punctured with lances.] Bot. a A genus of tropical American diffuse or climbing pungent herbs constituting the family Tro·pae'o·la'ce·ae (-lā'sē·ē) (order Geraniales). They have lobed or dissected peltate leaves and showy, variously colored flowers succeeded Tropaeolum (T. majus).

trold. Trolled. Ref. Sp. trole. ✝ TROLL. trol'dom, n. See -DOM. trol'ley-er, n. = BOGIEMAN. trol'ley-ful, n. See -FUL. trol'lop-ee' (trŏl'ŭp·ē'), n. A loose dress for women. Obs. trolly lace. Var. of TROLLEY LACE. trol'ly-lol'ly, n. A burden in old songs. Obs. [MAN. trol'ly-man. Var. of TROLLEY-trom'bash. Var. of TRUMBASH. trombe, n. [It. tromba.] A hand grenade; also, a mortar for rockets. Obs. trombe. Var. of TRUMPE. tromp (trŏmp). Dial. var. of TRAMP, v. tromp. Var. of TROMPE. tromp, trompe. ✝ TRUMP.
trom'ple. Dial. var. of TRAMPLE.
tron (trŏn). Scot. var. of TRONE, weighing machine. [Obs. tron, past tense of TRINE, to go.
tron'cheon, tronchon, tronchoun. ✝ TRUNCHEON. troncke. ✝ TRUNK.
trone. ✝ THRONE.
tronsoun. ✝ TRUNCHEON.
tron weight. Var. of TRONE WEIGHT. troop'er-ess, n. Fem. of TROOPER. troop'er's oint'ment. = MERCURIAL OINTMENT. troop'i·al (trōōp'ĭ·ăl). Var. of TROUPIAL. troop'mesl', adv. [troop + -mesl.] By crowds. Obs. troopt. Trooped. Ref. Sp. troop'wise', adv. See -WISE. troot (trōōt). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TROUT.
Tro·pae'o·la'ce·ae (trō·pē'ō·lā'·sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. See TROPAEOLUM. — tro·pae'o·la'ceous (-shŭs), adj.
tro·pa'ion (trō·pā'yŏn; -pī'ŏn), n. [Gr.] = TROPHAEUM by a fruit composed of three distinct rugose carpels. T. majus is the well-known Indian cress, or garden nasturtium. T. peregrinum is the canary-bird flower. Cf. NASTURTIUM, 2. b [not cap.] A plant or flower of this genus.

trop'al (trŏp'ăl), adj. Math. Of, or pertaining to, a trope.

-tro·pal (-trō·păl). A combining form denoting turning. See -TROPIC.

tro·pa'ri·on (trō·pā'rĭ·ŏn; 79), n.; pl. TROPARIA (-ä). [Gr., dim. of tropos. See TROPE.] Eastern Ch. Hymnody. A stanza, esp. one in an ode (see ODE, 2), printed as a single prose sentence, but divided into rhythmic clauses by its caesuras. Troparia were, and still chiefly are, patterned after a hirmos, or model stanza. A troparion not so constructed is called idiomelon.

tro'pate (trō'pāt), n. [See -ATE.] Chem. A salt or ester of tropic acid.

trope (trōp), n. [F. or L.; F. trope, fr. L. tropus, fr. Gr. tropos a turning, turn; akin to Gr. tropē a turn, trepein to turn, Skr. trapate he is ashamed (turns away), and prob. to L. turpis foul, base. Cf. TROPHY, TROPIC, TURPITUDE.] 1. A phrase, sentence, or clause, with which the sung parts of the Mass (Introit, Kyrie, etc.) were farsed in the Middle Ages. Tropes were abolished by Pius V. Hist. 2. A statement of the basis of certain reasoning or argument; a topical head or heading.

The reasons for doubt are given in the form of the ten tropes.
— Encyc. Brit., 11th Ed.

3. Math. A multiple or other geometric singularity reciprocal to a node.

4. Medieval Music. Any one of certain melodic formulas gradually developed in Gregorian music, occasionally employed at the close of psalms and responses.

5. Rhet. The use of a word or expression in a different sense from that which properly belongs to it, for giving life or emphasis to an idea; also, an instance of such use; a figure of speech. Tropes are chiefly of four kinds: metaphor, metonymy, synecdoche, and irony.

-trope (-trōp). A combining form, Greek -tropos, from tropos or tropē a turning [see TROPE], denoting an instrument which rotates, reverses, or reflects, as in rheo*trope*, sema*trope*; esp., one exhibiting optical effects, as in chroma*trope*, thauma*trope*.

-trope. An adjectival combining form, Greek -tropos, from tropos, meaning turning, equivalent to -tropic, as in anis*otrope*, dexio*trope*, hemi*trope*.

tro·pe'ic (trō·pē'ĭk), adj. [Gr. tropis keel.] Zool. Resembling a keel.

tro'pe·ine (trō'pē·ēn; -ĭn), n. Also -in. Chem. Any of a series of esters of the alkaloid tropine, esp. those artificially prepared. All are crystalline bases.

tro'per (trō'pĕr), n. [OF. tropier.] A book containing the tropes (sense 1); also, prob., a book containing sequences. Hist.

tro·pe'sis (trō·pē'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tropē a turning. See TROPISM.] In the philosophy of Haeckel, the rudimentary will or tendency to action possessed by all substance.

tro·phae'um (trō·fē'ŭm), n.; pl. -PHAEA (-ä). [L. See TROPHY.] Gr. & Rom. Antiq. A monument commemorating a victory.

troph'al·lax'is (trŏf'ăl·lăk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. troph- + Gr. allaxis exchange.] Biol. Exchange of food, as from salivary or other glands, between organisms; the association of different organisms on the basis of such a (unilateral or mutual) exchange. Trophallaxis occurs in various social insects, taking place between young and adult or, in ants and termites, between them and their guests. — troph'al·lac'tic (-lăk'tĭk), adj.

troph'e·de'ma (trŏf'ē·dē'mä), n. [NL., fr. troph- + edema.] Med. Chronic hereditary edema. It affects the legs and feet.

tro·phe'ma (trō·fē'mä), n. [NL., fr. troph- + Gr. haima blood.] Anat. & Zool. The blood of the uterine mucous membrane, which nourishes the embryo.

troph'e·sy (trŏf'ē·sĭ), n. [Gr. trophē nourishment.] Med. Defect in nutrition due to disorder of the trophic nerves. — tro·phe'si·al (trō·fē'zĭ·ăl), adj.

tro'phi (trō'fĭ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. trophos a feeder.] Zool. a The mouth parts of an arthropod (as an insect), collectively, including the labrum, labium, maxillae, mandibles, and lingua, with their appendages. b The masticating organs of a rotifer, including the incus and the two mallei. — tro'phal (-făl), adj.

-tro'phi·a (-trō'fĭ·ä). [NL.] Var. of -TROPHY, as in cac'o·tro'phi·a.

troph'ic (trŏf'ĭk), adj. Also, rarely, troph'i·cal (-I·kăl). [Gr. trophikos nursing.] Physiol. & Plant Physiol. Pertaining to nutrition; as, trophic nerves, those believed to influence nutrition. — troph'i·cal·ly, adv. — tro·phic'i·ty (trō·fĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n.

-troph'ic (-trŏf'ĭk). See -TROPHY.

tro'phied (trō'fĭd), adj. Adorned with trophies; as, the long, trophied banquet hall.

Tro'phis (trō'fĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trophos feeder; — from use of leaves as fodder.] Bot. A small genus of tropical American trees of the mulberry family (Moraceae), having alternate leaves, small, dioecious green flowers in usually spicate or racemose clusters, and a nearly round, thin-fleshed fruit with a single, rather large seed.

troph'ism (trŏf'ĭz'm), n. [troph- + -ism.] a Nutrition. b Trophicity.

troph'o- (trŏf'ō-), troph-. A combining form, Greek tropho-, troph-, from trephein, to nourish, meaning food, nurture, used to denote connection with, or relation to, nutrition, as in trophopathy, trophesy, troph'o·phyte, troph'o·spore.

troph'o·bi·o'sis (-bī·ō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tropho- + -biosis.] Zool. Symbiosis in which there is a mutual exchange of food; trophallaxis. — troph'o·bi·ot'ic (-ŏt'ĭk), adj. — troph'o·bi'ont (-bī'ŏnt), n.

troph'o·blast (trŏf'ō·blăst), n. [tropho- + -blast.] Embryol. A special layer of ectodermic tissue developed on the outer surface of the blastodermic vesicle of many mammals. It destroys the tissues of the uterus with which it comes in contact, and is supposed to supply nutrition to the embryo and to secure the attachment of the egg to the wall of the uterus. It becomes differentiated into an outer syncytial, or plasmodial, layer (trophoderm), and an inner cellular layer (Langhans's layer). See LANGHANS'S LAYER. In later stages it degenerates and mostly disappears. — troph'o·blas'tic (-blăs'tĭk), adj.

troph'o·chro'ma·tin (-krō'mä·tĭn), n. [See TROPHO-.] Biol. Chromatin supposed to be concerned with nutritive functions only. Cf. IDIOCHROMATIN.

troph'o·cyte (trŏf'ō·sīt), n. [tropho- + -cyte.] Zool. One of the large cells that form the fat body of insects.

troph'o·disc (trŏf'ō·dĭsk), n. [tropho- + disc.] Zool. A mass of endoderm serving to nourish eggs or spermatozoa in the gonophores of certain hydrozoans.

troph'o·dy·nam'ics (-dĭ·năm'ĭks; -dĭ-), n. The dynamics of nutrition. See -ICS. — troph'o·dy·nam'ic (-ĭk), adj.

troph'o·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk), adj. [tropho- + -genic.] Biol. Brought about by or resulting from differences in food or feeding; not blastogenic, as the various castes of social insects. — troph'o·gen'e·sis (-ē·sĭs), tro·phog'e·ny (trō·fŏj'ē·nĭ), n.

tro·phol'o·gy (trō·fŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [tropho- + -logy.] Physiol. The science of nutrition.

troph'o·ne'ma (trŏf'ō·nē'mä), n.; pl. -NEMATA (-nē'mä·tä; -nĕm'ä·tä). [NL., fr. tropho- + -nema.] Zool. In viviparous elasmobranchs, one of the glandular filaments, or villi, developed from the inner uterine surface, which secrete a nutritive fluid for the embryo.

troph'o·neu·ro'sis (-nū·rō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tropho- + neurosis.] Med. Any trophic disorder, as atrophy of the skin, due to defective action of the nerves concerned with the nutrition of the part involved. — troph'o·neu·rot'ic (-rŏt'ĭk), adj.

Tro·pho'ni·an (trō·fō'nĭ·ăn), adj. [L. Trophonianus, fr. Trophonius, fr. Gr. Trophōnios.] Gr. Relig. Of or pertaining to Trophonius, said to have built the first temple of Apollo at Delphi. He was worshiped after death at a celebrated cave in Boeotia, where inquirers went for purificatory and mystic experience giving knowledge of the future world. The oracle was probably under Orphic influence. Trophonius seems to have been originally an earth-god.

troph'o·nu'cle·us (trŏf'ō·nū'klē·ŭs), n. [NL., fr. tropho- + nucleus.] 1. Biol. In ciliate protozoans, one (usually the larger) of a pair of nuclei supposed to be concerned with nutrition.

2. Zool. In trypanosomes and allied forms, the true nucleus, regarded as primarily trophic or metabolic in function. Cf. KINETONUCLEUS.

tro·phop'a·thy (trō·fŏp'ä·thĭ), n. [tropho- + -pathy.] Med. Any disorder of nutrition.

troph'o·phore (trŏf'ō·fōr; 181), n. [tropho- + -phore.] Zool. One of certain amoeboid cells giving rise to gemmules in sponges. — tro·phoph'o·rous (trō·fŏf'ō·rŭs), adj.

troph'o·plasm (trŏf'ō·plăz'm), n. [tropho- + -plasm.] Biol. a The nutritive or vegetative cell substance;—distinguished from the idioplasm. b The less active substance of the cytoplasm; — distinguished from the kinoplasm or archoplasm. — troph'o·plas·mat'ic (-plăz·măt'ĭk), troph'o·plas'mic (-plăz'mĭk), adj.

troph'o·plast (trŏf'ō·plăst), n. [tropho- + -plast.] Bot. A plastid.

troph'o·some (-sōm), n. [tropho- + 2d -some.] The nutritive zooids of a hydroid, collectively. — troph'o·so'mal (trŏf'ō·sō'măl), adj.

troph'o·sphere (-sfēr), n. [tropho- + sphere.] Embryol. The trophoblast of the hedgehog.

troph'o·spon'gi·a (-spŏn'jĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. tropho- + -spongia.] Anat. The vascular spongy mucous membrane between the wall of the uterus and the trophoblast. — troph'o·spon'gi·al (-ăl), adj.

troph'o·spon'gi·um (-spŭn'jĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. tropho- + -spongium.] Biol. An intracellular canal system thought by some to be the Golgi apparatus, by others to be ingrowths of surrounding cells.

troph'o·tax'is (trŏf'ō·tăk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tropho- + -taxis.] Biol. A form of chemotaxis in which the stimulating agent may serve as food to the organism.

troph'o·ther'a·py (-thĕr'ä·pĭ), n. [tropho- + -therapy.] Med. Treatment of disease by nutritional measures.

troph'o·thy'lax (-thī'lăks), n. [NL., fr. tropho- + Gr. thylax pouch.] Zool. In certain ant larvae, a depression or pocket on the under side of the body behind the mouth in which food is placed by the attendant worker ants.

troph'o·trop'ic (-trŏp'ĭk), adj. Biol. Characterized by, or of or pertaining to, trophotropism.

tro·phot'ro·pism (trō·fŏt'rō·pĭz'm), n. [tropho- + -tropism.] Biol. A tropism, usually considered a form of chemotropism, in which food or a nutritive substance constitutes the orienting factor.

troph'o·zo'ite (trŏf'ō·zō'ĭt), n. [tropho- + Gr. zōion animal + -ite.] A sporozoan during its growth phase.

troph'o·zo'oid (-oid), n. [tropho- + -zooid.] Zool. An imperfect zooid or individual of the sexual generation of certain free-swimming tunicates. It never becomes sexually mature or detached from its parent.

tro'phy (trō'fĭ), n.; pl. -PHIES (-fĭz). [F. trophée, fr. L. tropaeum, trophaeum, fr. Gr. tropaion strictly, a monument of the enemy's defeat, prop., neut. adj., fr. tropē a turn, esp., a turning about of the enemy, a putting to flight or routing him. See TROPE.] 1. Gr. & Rom. Antiq. A memorial of a victory raised on the field of battle, or, in case of a naval victory, on the nearest land, and sometimes in the chief city either of the victorious or the conquered people. It consisted originally of armor, weapons, etc., of the defeated enemy fixed to the trunk of a tree or to a post on an elevated site, with an inscription, and a dedication to a divinity.

2. The representation of such a memorial, as on a medal; esp., Arch., an ornament representing a group of arms and military weapons, offensive and defensive.

3. Anything taken from an enemy and preserved as a memorial of victory, as arms, flags, standards, etc.

4. Any evidence or memorial of victory or conquest; as, the trophies of the chase; a tennis or a golf trophy.

5. Anything kept as a memento of something gained; also, any memorial or memento; as, trophies of an earlier civilization. "On every grave a lying trophy." Shak.

Syn. — Prize, reward, palm, laurels.

tro'phy, v. t. To place trophies on or in. Rare.

-tro·phy (-trō·fĭ). A combining form, Greek -trophia, from trephein to nourish, denoting nutrition, nourishment, nurture, as in eu*trophy*, noso*trophy*, pedo*trophy*, and the words in the list below. Corresponding adjectives are formed in -troph'ic (-trŏf'ĭk).

cacotrophy	hypertrophy	neurotrophy
embryotrophy	hypotrophy	osteotrophy galactotrophy	lipotrophy	phototrophy histotrophy	lymphotrophy tro'phy cress. = NASTURTIUM, 2.

trophy money, trophy tax. An annual tax for militia equipment by housekeepers, now levied only in the City of London. Eng.

trophy room. A room for the keeping and exhibition of trophies.

-tro'pi·a (-trō'pĭ·ä). [NL.] Ophth. A combining form, Greek -tropia, from tropē, a turning, denoting a condition of deviation in the visual axes, as in eso*tropia*, hyper*tropia*.

trop'ic (trŏp'ĭk), adj. [atropine + -ic.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating a white crystalline acid, $C_9H_{10}O_3$, known in three optically different modifications; α-phenylhydracrylic. The inactive form is obtained by decomposition of atropine and certain other alkaloids.

trop'ic, n. [L. tropicus of or belonging to a turn, i. e., of the sun, fr. Gr. tropikos of the solstice, tropikos (sc. kyklos) the tropic or solstice, fr. tropē a turning. See TROPE.] 1. Either of the solstitial points; figuratively, boundary; limit. Obs.

2. Astron. Either of the two small circles of the celestial sphere, on each side of and parallel to the equator, at a distance of 23° 27′, which the sun reaches at its greatest declination north or south. The northern circle is called the Tropic of Cancer, and the southern the Tropic of Capricorn, from the two signs at which the tropics touch the ecliptic.

3. Geog. a Either of the two parallels of terrestrial latitude corresponding to the celestial tropics, and called by the same names. b [often cap.] pl. The region lying between these parallels of latitude, or near them on either side; — usually with the; as, life in the tropics.

trop'ic, adj. Of or pertaining to the tropics; tropical. "Certain gorgeous tropic butterflies." Beebe.

trop'ic, adj. Tropistic.

-trop'ic. [See TROPE.] A combining form, Greek -tropos, turning + -ic, used to denote turning, changing, or tending to turn or change, esp. in a (specified) manner or in response to a (specified) stimulus, as in bacterio*tropic*, enantio*tropic*, geo*tropic*, helio*tropic*, iso*tropic*, photo*tropic*. Cf. -TROPISM.

trop'i·cal (trŏp'ĭ·kăl), adj. [See TROPIC.] 1. Of, pertaining to, characteristic of, or incident to, the tropics; being within the tropics; as, tropical latitudes, heat, fruits.

2. [L. tropicus, fr. Gr. tropikos, orig., of turning. See TROPE.] Rhetorically changed from its exact original sense; being of the nature of a trope; figurative; metaphorical.

-trop'i·cal. A combining form of tropical, as in circum*tropical*, Neo*tropical*.

tropical almond. The Malabar almond.

tropical American mahogany. = MAHOGANY, 2.

tropical apricot. See MAMMEA.

tropical boil. = ORIENTAL SORE.

tropical chlorosis. Med. Ancylostomiasis.

tropical duckweed. The water lettuce.

tropical dysentery. See DYSENTERY.

Trop'i·ca'li·a (trŏp'ĭ·kā'lĭ·ä), n. pl. [NL. See TROPICAL.] Zoogeog. The marine realm that includes all tropical coral-reef seas, or those within the isocrymal lines of 68° F. — Trop'i·ca'li·an (-ăn), adj.

trop'i·cal'i·ty (trŏp'ĭ·kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. State of being tropical.

trop'i·cal·ize (trŏp'ĭ·kăl·īz), v. t. To render tropical in character, conditions, appearance, or the like.

tropical lilac. The plant Duranta repens. See DURANTA.

trop'i·cal·ly, adv. In a tropical manner; esp., figuratively, by the use of tropes.

tropical month. See MONTH, 1 b. tropical seal. The West India seal.

tropical signs. Astrol. The zodiacal signs beginning at the tropics; Cancer and Capricorn. See SIGN, 12.

tropical sore. = ORIENTAL SORE.

tropical splenomegalia. = KALA AZAR.

tropical ulcer. = ORIENTAL SORE.

tropical year. The solar year; the period occupied by the sun's center in passing from one equinox to the same again, having a mean length of 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 45.5 seconds. It is 20 minutes, 23.5 seconds shorter than the sidereal year, on account of the precession of the equinoxes.

Tropical zone. Biogeog. In America, the zone lying next below the Austral and occupying chiefly the region between the tropics. It is locally divided into humid and arid sections.

tropic bird. Any of several totipalmate birds constituting the genus Phaëthon, found chiefly in tropical seas, often far from land. They have some resemblance to terns, but are more nearly allied to the frigate bird and the gannets. The plumage is of a satinlike texture and mostly white with a few black markings. The central pair of tail feathers is greatly elongated and the bill is bright-colored. The yellow-billed tropic bird (P. lepturus), the red-billed tropic bird (P. aethereus), and the red-tailed tropic bird (P. rubricauda) are the principal species.

1/24

Yellow-billed Tropic Bird (Phaëthon lepturus).

Tropic of Cancer. The parallel of latitude that is 23° 27′ north of the equator. It is the northernmost latitude reached by the overhead sun. See ZONE, Illust.

Tropic of Capricorn. The parallel of latitude 23° 27′ south of the equator. It is the southernmost latitude reached by the overhead sun. See ZONE, Illust.

trop'i·co·pol'i·tan (trŏp'ĭ·kō·pŏl'ĭ·tăn), adj. [tropic + Gr. politēs citizen.] Inhabiting all tropical countries. — n. Any tropicopolitan animal.

trop'i·dine (trŏp'ĭ·dēn; -dĭn; 157), n. Also -din. [See TROPINE.] Chem. An oily alkaloid, $C_8H_{13}N$, of coniine-like odor, obtained by the chemical dehydration of tropine.

trop'i·do- (trŏp'ĭ·dō-). Zool. A combining form from Greek tropis, tropidos, a ship's keel, used chiefly in generic names.

Trop'i·do·lep'tus (-lĕp'tŭs), n. [NL., fr. tropido- + Gr. leptos small.] Paleontol. A genus of brachiopods widely distributed in Devonian formations. It has a concavo-convex shell wide at the hinge and marked by broad, rounded ribs.

tro'pine (trō'pēn; -pĭn; 157), n. Also -pin. [From ATROPINE.] Chem. A poisonous, colorless, crystalline base, $C_8H_{15}NO$, formed by hydrolysis of atropine and other solanaceous alkaloids.

tro'pism (trō'pĭz'm), n. [Gr. tropē a turning.] 1. Biol. Involuntary movement of an organism or any of its parts involving turning or curvature and axial orientation and induced either automatically or in response to one or more stimulating influences, as a chemical agent, light, etc. Cf. CHEMOTROPISM, GEOTROPISM, PHOTOTROPISM. Tropisms may depend upon sensory excitation and response of the organism as a whole, as in blowfly larvae, which turn and creep away from the light, or, esp. in plants, upon differtro'pa·ry (trō'pə·rĭ), n. = TROPARION.

---

tro·pe'o·lin, n. Var. of TROPAEOLIN. troph-. = TROPHO-.

tro·phe'al (trō·fē'ăl), adj. Of or bearing trophies. Obs.

troph·ec'to·derm (trŏf·ĕk'tō·dûrm), n. [troph- + ectoderm.] = TROPHOBLAST.

Troph'i·mus (trŏf'ĭ·mŭs). Bib.

troph'o·derm (trŏf'ō·dûrm), n. [tropho- + -derm.] See TROPHOBLAST.

Tro·pho'ni·us (trō·fō'nĭ·ŭs), n. [L.] See TROPHONIAN.

troph'o·sperm (trŏf'ō·spûrm), troph'o·sper'mi·um (-spûr'mĭ·ŭm), n. [tropho- + -sperm. See TROPHI.] Bot. Placenta. Obs.

troph'y·less, adj. See -LESS.

troph'y·wort' (trō'fĭl·wûrt'), n. = NASTURTIUM, 2.

-trop'ics, the. See TROPIC, n., 3 b.

ential growth, as of seed shoots, which turn upward, however the seeds are planted. A tropism is positive when the orientation is toward the source of stimulation, and negative when away from it. When not qualified as positive or negative, various tropisms are sometimes understood to be positive. See TAXIS, 2.
2. Figuratively, any innate tendency to react in a definite manner to stimuli; a natural inborn inclination.

-tro·pism (-trō·pĭz′m). [See -TROPIC; -ISM.] A combining form, 2d -trope + -ism, denoting tendency to turn, affinity for, tropism, in nouns corresponding to adjectives ending in -tropic, as in:

chemotropism	gamotropism	parasitotropism
chromotropism	geotropism	phototropism cytotropism	heliotropism	selenotropism exotropism	hydrotropism	thermotropism galvanotropism	neurotropism tro′pis·mat′ic (trō′pĭz·măt′ĭk), adj. Of the nature of tropism.

trop′ist (trŏp′ĭst), n. [See TROPE.] One who deals in tropes; specif., one who avoids the literal sense of the language of Scripture by explaining it as mere tropes.

tro·pis′tic (trō·pĭs′tĭk), adj. Biol. Of or pertaining to, or characteristic of, tropism.

tropo-. A combining form from Greek tropos, turn, turning, change, as in tropometer.

trop′o·log′ic (trŏp′ō·lŏj′ĭk), adj. Topological.

trop′o·log′i·cal (-I·kăl), adj. [Gr. tropologikos. See TROPOLOGY.] Characterized or varied by tropes; tropical. — trop′o·log′i·cal·ly, adv.

tro·pol′o·gize (trō·pŏl′ō·jīz), v. i.; -GIZED (-jīzd); -GIZ′ING (-jīz′ĭng). To use in a topological sense, as a word; to make a trope of. Rare.

tro·pol′o·gy (-jĭ), n.; pl. -GIES (-jĭz). [LL. tropologia, fr. LGr. tropologia, fr. Gr. tropos a trope + logos discourse; cf. F. tropologie.] 1. A tropologic, or figurative, mode of speech or writing; also, a method of interpreting Scripture in which great stress is laid on the tropical, or figurative, sense of the language.
2. A treatise on tropes.

tro·pom′e·ter (trō·pŏm′ē·tĕr), n. [tropo- + -meter.] Med. A device to measure rotation, as of the eyeball or a bone in its socket.

trop′o·pause (trŏp′ō·pôz), n. [Gr. tropos (as in troposphere) + pausis a ceasing. See PAUSE, n.] Meteorol. The top of the troposphere.

trop′o·phil (trŏp′ō·fĭl), adj. Ecology. Tropophilous.

tro·poph′i·lous (trō·pŏf′ĭ·lŭs), adj. [tropo- + -philous.] Ecology. Thriving under alternating periods of dryness and moisture or of heat and cold; adapted to seasonal changes; as, tropophilous vegetation.

trop′o·phyte (trŏp′ō·fīt), n. [tropo- + -phyte.] Ecology. A tropophilous plant, as the deciduous trees of temperate regions, which drop their leaves in winter, and those of the tropics which are without foliage in the dry season. — trop′o·phyt′ic (fĭt′ĭk), adj.

trop′o·sphere (-sfēr), n. [F. troposphère, fr. Gr. tropos a turn, but in sense as if fr. trope a turn or change + F. sphère sphere. See TROPE; SPHERE.] Meteorol. All that portion of the atmosphere below the stratosphere. It is that portion in which temperature generally rapidly decreases with altitude, clouds form, and convection is active.

trop′o·ster′o·o·scope′ (-stĕr′ō·ō·skōp′), n. [tropo- + stereoscope.] A stereoscope essentially of two adjustable tubes side by side provided with caps to hold the images observed.

-tro·pous (-trō·pŭs). [See TROPE.] Bot. A combining form, Greek -tropos, from tropein, to turn denoting turned or curved, in a (specified) way, as in anatropous, campylotropous, heterotropous. Corresponding nouns denoting state are formed in -tro·py (-trō·pĭ).

trop′o·yl (trŏp′ō·ĭl; -ēl), n. [1st tropic + -oyl as in benzoyl.] Chem. The univalent radical, $C_8H_9O_2$, of tropic acid. Cf. BENZOYL.

‖trop′po (trŏp′pō), adv. [It.] Too much; — chiefly in musical directions, as in non troppo presto, not too fast.

trop·tom′e·ter (trŏp·tŏm′ē·tĕr), n. An instrument for measuring the angular distortion of a bar or piece undergoing a torsion test.

-tro·py (-trō·pĭ). [See TROPE.] A combining form, Greek -tropē, -tropia, from tropē, meaning turning, used to denote: a See -TROPOUS. b = -TROPISM.

tro′pyl (trō′pĭl; -pēl), n. Chem. a Commonly, tropoyl. b The univalent radical, $C_8H_{14}N$, of which tropine is the hydroxide.

Tros (trŏs), n. [Gr. Trōs.] Gr. Myth. Mythical founder of Troy.

tros·te′ra (trŏs·tā′rà), n. [Am. Sp., fr. Sp. trastera lumber room, garret.] A cupboard of Spanish colonial origin. Southwestern U. S.

trot (trŏt), v.; TROT′TED; TROT′TING. [ME. trotten, fr. OF. troter (F. trotter), fr. OHG. trottōn to tread; akin to E. TREAD.] Intransitive: 1. To ride, drive, or proceed at a trot. See TROT, n., 1.
2. To run; jog; hurry.
3. To use a trot, or "pony," in study. Slang, U. S.
—, Trans.: 1. To drive, ride, or cause to go at a trot.
2. To move, ride, or drive around or along at a trot; as, to trot the show ring.
3. To use a trot, or "pony," in studying. Slang, U. S.
4. To draw (one) out so as to make sport of; to ridicule.

trot in double harness. To live in wedlock. Slang.

trot out. To lead or bring out, as a horse, to show his paces; hence, to bring forward, as for exhibition. Slang.

trot (trŏt), n. [OF., fr. troter. See TROT, v.] 1. A gait of the horse and other quadrupeds in which the legs move in diagonal pairs. In a fast trot all four feet are off the ground twice during each stride. See GAIT, n., 3.
2. Hence, the sound made by a horse going at this gait; also, a race between trotters; a trotting race; Rare, a trip made on horseback.
3. A jogging pace, as of one hurrying; hence, Colloq., brisk movement; as, servants on the trot all day.
4. A toddler; a child; a tot. Now Rare.
5 An old woman; — in contempt. Archaic & Dial.
6. A translation; a "pony." Slang, U. S.

trot, n. Fishing. A trotline (which see) or one of the short lines with hooks which are attached to it at intervals.

trot, v. i. In fishing, to use a trotline.

trot′co′zy (trŏt′kō′zĭ), n. A covering for the head and shoulders worn when riding. Scot.

troth (trŏth; trōth; 185; 277), n. [ME. trouthe, trouthe, fr. AS. trēowth. See TRUTH; cf. BETROTH.] 1. Faith; belief. Obs.
2. Faith; fidelity; pledged faith; as, plighted troth.
3. Truth; verity; veracity; as, by my troth. Shak.
4. Betrothal. Archaic.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:
troth-contracted, troth-keeping, troth-telling.

troth, v. t.; TROTHED (trŏtht; trōtht); TROTH′ING. To pledge; to betroth.

troth (trŏth). Var. of TROUGH. Local, U. S.

troth′less (trŏth′lĕs; trōth′-; -lĭs), adj. a Archaic. Disloyal; faithless. b Obs. Wanting in truth.

troth′plight′ (-plīt′), n. Betrothal. — adj. Betrothed; pledged. Both Archaic.

troth′plight′, v. t. To betroth. Archaic.

troth ring. A betrothal ring. Rare.

trot′line′ (trŏt′līn′), n. Fishing. A stout line reaching across a stream or for some distance from one bank, bearing at frequent intervals single hooks hung by short lines.

trot′ter (trŏt′ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which trots; esp., a horse trained to be driven in trotting matches.
2. One who runs errands, as a messenger or carrier. Brit.
3. The foot of an animal, esp. when used for food; as, pig's trotters; also, humorously, the human foot.

trot′ter, n. A fisherman who uses a trotline.

trotter cases. Boots; shoes. Slang.

trot′tie (trŏt′ĭ), n. Toddler. — trot′tie, adj. Both Colloq.

trot′tles (trŏt′lz), n. Sheep's dung. Dial. Eng.

‖trot′toir′ (trō′twär′), n. [F., fr. trotter to trot. See TROT.] A footpath; pavement; sidewalk. — trot′toired′ (-twärd′), adj. Both Rare.

trot′ty (trŏt′ĭ), adj. Going at a trot; hence, lively; brisk. Colloq.

Trot′wood, Miss (Mrs.) Betsey (trŏt′wŏŏd). The abrupt, severe, and eccentric but kindhearted, aunt of the hero in Dickens's David Copperfield.

trou′ba·dour (trōō′bà·dōōr; -dôr; -dōr; 199), n. [F., fr. Pr. trobador, fr. trobar to find, to compose in verse (F. trouver), prob. fr. (assumed) VL. tropare (cf. LL. contropare to compare), perh., to invent. See CONTRIVE; cf. TROUVÈRE, TROVER.] 1. One of a class of lyric poets and poet-musicians who flourished from the 11th to the end of the 13th century, chiefly in Provence, the south of France, and the north of Italy. They often were knightly amateurs, and cultivated a lyrical poetry intricate in meter and rhyme and usually of a romantic amatory strain. Cf. TROUVÈRE.
2. Hence, any strolling minstrel; loosely, anyone who in music, verse, or rhetorical prose, promotes some cause.
Mr. Bryan is one of the great troubadours . . . troubadouring is the thing he does best. E. G. Lowry.
— trou′ba·dour, adj.

trou′ba·dour, v. i. To act the part of a troubadour.

troubadour fiddle. Music. The stringed instrument on which the troubadour accompanied himself.

trou′ble (trŭb′l), v.; TROU′BLED (-′ld); TROU′BLING (-lĭng). [ME. trublen, troblen, fr. OF. trubler, trobler, troubler, tourbler, turbler, fr. (assumed) VL. turbulare, for L. turbidare. See TURBID.] Transitive: 1. To put into confused motion; to disturb; agitate.
An angel . . . troubled the water. John v. 4.
2. To check; interfere with; disarrange. Obs.
3. To agitate mentally or spiritually; to bother; worry.
Now is my soul troubled. John xii. 27.
The boy . . . so troubles me 'T is past enduring. Shak.
4. To afflict physically, as an illness; to harm; impair the health of.
5. To put to exertion, inconvenience, or the like; — used in polite phraseology; as, I will not trouble you to do it.
—, Intransitive: 1. To become turbid, as water; to become obscured or dark, as the sky before a storm. Obs.
2. To take trouble, or pains, or make an effort; as, it was kind of him to trouble to call.
3. To worry or be agitated; as, do not trouble about it.
Syn. — Stir, disquiet; perturb, distress, grieve, annoy, molest.
Ant. — Calm, quiet; comfort, solace, soothe.

trouble the waters. To disturb the peace; to cause trouble.

trou′ble, n. [OF. truble, tourble (F. trouble). See TROUBLE, v.] 1. State of being troubled; uneasiness; annoyance; also, an instance of distress, annoyance, or the like.
Lest the fiend . . . some new trouble raise. Milton.
2. One who or that which causes disturbance, annoyance, or the like; an annoying or injurious event, experience, or the like, or a person responsible for such.
Alack, what trouble was I then to you! Shak.
3. Civil disorder; public unrest, demonstrations of dissatisfaction, etc.; as, we watched with concern the trouble in the neighboring State; labor troubles.
4. Exertion; labor; pains; as, he took the trouble to call.
5. A condition of ill health, physical distress, or the like; also, an ailment; affliction; as, lung trouble; specif., Dial. Eng., labor in childbirth.
Syn. — Misfortune, adversity, affliction, sorrow; distress, anxiety, perplexity, perturbation, worry; disturbance, disorder. See EFFORT.
Ant. — Well-being, prosperity; happiness, pleasure, cheer, content, gladness, felicity; serenity, calmness.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

trouble-bringing, adj.	trouble-haunted	trouble-saving, adj.
trouble-free	troublemaker	trouble-tossed trouble-giving, adj.	troublemaking	trouble-worn

— to borrow trouble. See borrow trouble, under BORROW, v.

trou′ble, adj. [OF.] Obs. a Troubled; disturbed. b Turbulent; stormy.

trou′bled·ly (trŭb′ld·lĭ), adv. In a troubled manner.

troubled waters. Figuratively, a state of agitation, discord, or the like.

trou′ble–house′ (trŭb′l·hous′), n. One who disturbs a household.

trouble man. A man employed to locate causes of trouble and to correct troubles, as on light and power circuits, gas lines, automobile repair shops, etc.

trou′ble·ment (trŭb′l·mĕnt), n. State of trouble. Colloq. & Dial.

trou′ble–mirth′ (-mûrth′), n. A spoilsport.

trou′bler (trŭb′lĕr), n. [OF. trobleor (F. troubleur).] One who or that which troubles.

trouble shooter. A trouble man. Colloq. — trouble shooting.

trou′ble·some (trŭb′l·sŭm), adj. 1. Giving trouble or anxiety; disturbing; vexatious.
This troublesome world. Bk. of Com. Prayer.
2. Characterized by disturbance; turbulent. Archaic.
3. Afflicted; distressed. Archaic.
4. Requiring or involving sustained effort, attention, study, etc.; difficult; burdensome; wearisome.
Syn. — Annoying, bothersome, distressing; difficult, burdensome, oppressive.
Ant. — Satisfying, comforting, pleasant; easy, facile.
— trou′ble·some·ly, adv. — trou′ble·some·ness, n.

trou′bling (trŭb′lĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TROUBLE. Hence: adj. That troubles. — trou′bling·ly, adv.

trou′blous (trŭb′lŭs), adj. [OF. troubleus.] 1. Turbid; muddy. Obs.
2. Full of trouble; troubled; afflicted; hence, agitated; stormy.
A tall ship tossed in troublous seas. Spenser
3. Causing trouble; turbulent; disturbing.
My troublous dream. Shak.
4. Restless; unquiet; disturbed.
— trou′blous·ly, adv. — trou′blous·ness, n.

trou′bly (trŭb′lĭ), adj. Suffering trouble, fear, anxiety, or the like.

‖trou′–de–loup′ (trōō′d′lōō′), n.; pl. TROUS-DE-LOUP (trōō′-). [F., fr. trou hole + de of + loup wolf.] Mil. A pit in the form of an inverted cone or pyramid, having a pointed stake in the middle, and forming one of a group constructed as an obstacle to the movements of an enemy; — usually in pl. The pits are called also trapholes.

Section of Trous-de-Loup.

trough (trŏf; dial. trôth is widespread in America, and known in England; by Amer. bakers, often trō; by Brit. bakers, often trou; 185), n. [ME. trough, troph, fr. AS. trog, troh; akin to D., G., & ON. trog, Sw. tråg, Dan. trug, and, as being made of wood, to E. TREE. Cf. TRUG.] 1. A large, usually fixed, boxlike, open vessel, long and comparatively shallow, as one used to hold water or fodder for cattle.
2. A bowl, tank, or basin, usually of wood, in which something is kneaded, washed, brewed, tanned, or the like.
3. A conduit for water, etc., as a walled drain, a wooden channel forming the headrace of a mill, a gutter for rain water under the eaves of a roof, etc. Now Dial.
4. a Any long, narrow or shallow channel or depression, as between waves or hills; as, the trough of the sea. b The concave portion of a water wave.
5. A tomb or coffin. Now Dial.
6. A person who swills liquor; a toper.
7. The place where a grindstone stands; — from the oblong vessel of water under a running grindstone.
8. A boat or canoe shaped somewhat like a trough for cattle; esp., a dugout; also, a cradle. Obs.
9. Chem., etc. A pneumatic trough.
10. Elec. The partitioned chamber of a trough battery.
11. Electroplating. The vessel for the metallic solution.
12. Geol. Any elongated structural depression, as a graben.
13. Metal. A fire-clay box in which iron bars are subjected to the cementation process.
14. Meteorol. An elongated area of low barometric pressure, usually with a minimum pressure at each end, between two anticyclones.
15. Mining. A buddle or other vessel in which slimes are sorted in water.

trough, v. t. To make into, or treat in, a trough. — v. i. To feed like a pig. Rare.

trough, adj. Of, pertaining to, or like a trough.

trough battery. Elec. A voltaic battery contained in a vessel divided into cells by partitions. In one form the elements, copper and zinc plates, form the partitions.

trough conveyor. A band conveyor with the sides of the band turned up to form a trough.

trough gutter. Arch. A troughlike gutter of rectangular or V-shaped section, usually one hung below the eaves of a house.

trough′ing (trŏf′ĭng), n. Troughs collectively; material for troughs; a conduit of troughs.

trough keel. Shipbuilding. A keel in a metal vessel, usually a yacht, in the form of a trough into which molten lead is poured as ballast.

trough roof. a An M roof. b U. S. & Can. A roof of hollowed-out split logs, laid from ridge to eaves.

trough room. A room with troughs, as for fish culture.

trough′ster (trŏf′stĕr), n. [See -STER.] A feeder at a trough.

Trough′ton lev′el (trou′t'n; trô′t'n). [After Edward Troughton (1753–1835), Eng. instrument maker.] A dumpy level.

trough′way′ (trŏf′wā′), n. The channel of a trough.

trough′y (-ĭ), adj. Having deep troughs.

trounce (trouns; 232), v. t.; TROUNCED (trounst); TROUNC′ING (troun′sĭng). [Formerly, to terrify, possibly fr. ME. traunce fear. See TRANCE.] To thrash or punish severely; hence: a To flog or cudgel. b To defeat. c To scold; censure. d Now Dial. To indict; sue.

trounce (trouns; trŏns), n. [See TRANCE.] A long tiring ramble or journey. Dial. Eng. — v. i. To ramble, tramp, or take a tedious journey. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

troun′cer (troun′sĕr), n. One who trounces; specif., Naut., a waister.

trou′pand (trou′pănt), n. [Cf. F. troupe flock.] The common roller. S. Africa.

troupe (trōōp), n. [F., troop. See TROOP.] A company or troop, esp. of performers on the stage.

troupe, v. i. To travel in a troupe.

troup′er (trōōp′ĕr). A member of a troupe; esp., an actor.

troup′i·al (trōōp′ĭ·ăl), n. [F. troupiale, fr. troupe flock, troop; — from their habit of congregating in large flocks. See TROUPE.] In a broad sense, any bird of the family Icteridae, including the American blackbirds, grackles, and orioles. More usually, one of the larger brilliant yellow-and-black or orange-and-black orioles of Central and South America; esp. Icterus icterus, of northern South America, naturalized in the West Indies.

trouse (trous), n. [AS. trus, prob. fr. ON. tros leaves and twigs used as fuel. See TRASH.] = 1st TRASH, 3. Now Dial.

---

trop′o·caine′ (trŏp′ō·kān′), n. = TROPACOCAINE. [Ref. Sp.] tro·pof′i·lous. Tropophilous. trop′o·lite. Tropophyte. Ref. Sp. trosse. † TRUSS.
trossers. † TROUSERS.
troth′ful, adj. See -FUL. troth′like′, adj. See -LIKE. trotht. Trothed. Ref. Sp. troth′tell′ing, adj. Truthtelling. Obs.
trot′let, n. See -LET.
tro′tol (trō′tŏl; -tōl), n. See TRINITROTOLUENE. [NITROTOLUENE.] tro′tyl (trō′tĭl; -tēl), n. See TRI-trouage. † TREWAGE. trou′ba·dor. Var. of TROUBADOUR. trou′ba·dour′ish, adj. See -ISH. trou′ba·dour·ism, n. See -ISM.
— trou′ba·dour·ist, n. trou′ba·ble (trŭb′l·d·b'l), adj. Causing trouble. Obs. trou′blance, n. Pain. Obs. trou′bld. Troubled. Ref. Sp.
trou′bled·ness, n. See -NESS. trou′ble·proof′ (66), adj. See -PROOF. trou′ble·state′, n. A disturber of the public peace. Obs. trou′ble·town′, n. A person who is a public nuisance. Obs. trou′ble·world′, n. = TROUBLETOWN. Obs. trough′ful (trŏf′fōōl), n. See -FUL. trough′like′, adj. See -LIKE. trough′-shaped′, adj. See -SHAPED. trough′wise′, adv. See -WISE. troul. † TROLL.
trou′ ma′dame′ (trōō′ mä′dăm′). [F. trou-madame.] See BAGATELLE, 2. troump. † TRUMP.
trouch′man. † TRUCHMAN. trounst. Trounced. Ref. Sp. trous′-de-loup′, pl. of TROU-DE-LOUP.

---

trouse (trōōz; trouz), n. [See TROUSERS.] a Obs. Trews; also, trousers. b Archaic. Knee breeches.

trou'ser (trou'zĕr), n., sing. of TROUSERS: esp., one leg or half of a pair of trousers.

trou'ser, adj. Of, pertaining to, or for, trousers; as, trouser buttons, leg, pocket, stretchers.

trou'ser, v. i. To pocket. Slang.

trou'sered (trou'zĕrd), adj. 1. Wearing trousers; masculine. 2. Colored; — of a pipe bowl. Stevenson.

trou'ser-ettes' (-zĕr-ĕts'), n. pl. [See -ETTE.] Bloomers.

trou-se'ri-an (trou-zē'rĭ-ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to trousers.

trou'ser-ing (trou'zĕr-ĭng), n. Material for trousers.

trouser presser. A tailor who presses and creases trousers. — trou'ser-press', v. t.

trou'sers (trou'zĕrz), n. pl.; sing., Rare, TROUSER. [Formed, on model of drawers, fr. trouse (trews), fr. Ir. & Gael. triubhas, prob. fr. OF. trebus, fr. LL. tubraci. Cf. TREWS, TROUSE.] 1. Trews. Obs. exc. Hist.
2. An outer garment of men or boys, extending from the waist to the knee or, oftener and almost always with men, to the ankle, and covering each leg separately. Orig. they were of the nature of long hose or tight drawers and were worn esp. by sailors and soldiers. Cf. BREECHES.
3. The baggy pantaloons worn in the Near East.
4. Pantalets. Now Rare.
— to wear the trousers. See under WEAR, v.

‖trousse (trōōs), n. [F. See TRUSS; cf. TROUSSEAU.] A case for small implements; as, a surgeon's trousse.

trous'seau' (trōō'sō'; trōō'sō), n.; pl. TROUSSEAUX (-sō'), TROUSSEAUS (-sōz'; -sōz). [From OF. trousseau a bundle and F. trousseau bundle, bride's outfit, dim. of trousse a bundle, truss. See TRUSS.] 1. A bundle. Obs.
2. The collective personal outfit of a bride, including clothes, jewelry, and the like.

‖trousse'queue' (trōōs'kū'), n. [F.] A crupper.

trout (trout), n.; pl. TROUT, sometimes TROUTS (trouts). See PLURAL, Note. [AS. truht, fr. LL. tructa, tructus, fr. Gr. trōktēs a sea fish with sharp teeth, from trōgein to gnaw.] 1. Any of certain fishes of the family Salmonidae and genus Salmo (and in America also of the genera Salvelinus and Cristivomer), averaging much smaller in size than the salmons, and highly esteemed by anglers on account of their gameness, finely flavored and rich flesh, and handsome (usually mottled or speckled) coloration. Most of them live all the year in fresh water, many requiring clear cold streams and lakes, but others are anadromous. Authorities are not agreed in regard to the number of forms (esp. of the genus Salmo) deserving recognition as species. Two species, the brown, or river, trout Salmo fario, inhabiting fresh water, and the sea trout S. trutta, which is anadromous, are usually recognized in Great Britain. In western North America, among many forms of the genus Salmo, the cutthroat trout, steelhead, and rainbow trout are the most important. The most widely distributed trout of eastern North America is the brook, or speckled, trout (Salvelinus fontinalis). It is finely and irregularly barred with dark olive or black above and has small round red spots on the sides. The Dolly Varden trout of the Pacific slope is an allied species. See also 4th CHAR, NAMAYCUSH, OQUASSA.

Brook Trout (Salvelinus fontinalis).

2. Any of various other fishes, as, in Australia and New Zealand, certain troutlike fishes of the family Galaxiidae; in Louisiana, the largemouthed black bass; in the valleys of the Colorado and Gila rivers, a cyprinoid fish (Gila elegans); on the middle and southern Atlantic coast of the U. S., any weakfish. Cf. SEA TROUT, 2; ROCK TROUT.
3. A dish of one or more of any of these varieties of fish prepared and cooked as food; — always sing. in this sense.
4. A trusty servant or friend. Obs.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

trout brook	trout fishing	trout stream trout-famous	trout-haunted trout, v. i. & t. To fish for trout.

trout bass. = TROUT PERCH c.

trout'bird' (trout'bûrd'), n. American golden plover. U. S.

trout'-col'ored, or -col'oured (-kŭl'ĕrd), adj. White, with spots of black, bay, or sorrel; as, a trout-colored horse.

trout'er (-ĕr), n. One who fishes for trout.

trout'flow'er (-flou'ĕr), n. Any plant of the genus Erythronium. U. S.

trout fly. Any fly used in fishing for trout.

trout'let (trout'lĕt; -lĭt), n. Also trout'ling (-lĭng). A fingerling.

trout lily. A troutflower.

Trou'ton's law or rule (trou't'nz). [After F. T. Trouton, Eng. physicist.] Physical Chem. The principle that the molecular heats of vaporization of different substances are proportional to their absolute boiling points.

trout perch. Either of two small American fresh-water fishes: a Percopsis omiscomaycus of the central and eastern United States. b Columbia transmontana of the Columbia River basin, having an adipose fin like the Salmonidae, but in other characters resembling the perches. c The smallmouthed black bass. See BLACK BASS, 1.

trout shad. The squeteague. Local, U. S.

trout'y (trout'ĭ), adj. 1. Containing many trout, as a stream.
2. Resembling a trout, as in color or markings.

trout'y, n. A little trout.

‖trou'vaille' (trōō'vä'y'), n. [F.] A lucky find or windfall.

trou'vère' (trōō'vâr'), n. [F., fr. OF. trovere, fr. trover to compose. See TROUBADOUR.] One of a school of poets who flourished in northern France from the 11th to the 14th century. Their works, which are typically the chansons de geste, are of a prevailingly narrative character. Cf. TROUBADOUR.

trou'veur' (trōō'vûr'), n. A trouvère.

‖tro'va-to're (trō'vä-tō'rā), n.; pl. TROVATORI (-rē). [It.] Troubadour.

Tro'va-to're, Il (ēl). An opera (1853) by Verdi.

trove (trōv), n. [OF. trové, past part. See TROVER.] A thing found. Cf. TREASURE-TROVE.

trove (trōv), v. t. [OF. trover (F. trouver).] To find out. Obs.

tro'ver (trō'vĕr), n. [OF. trover to find (F. trouver); inf. as n. See TROUBADOUR; cf. TREASURE-TROVE.] Law. a Literally, a finding; hence, any coming into possession. b Originally, an action of trespass on the case to recover damages against one who found goods, and would not deliver them to the owner on demand; hence, in modern common law, an action which lies in any case to recover the value of goods wrongfully converted by another to his own use. In this case the finding, though necessary to be alleged, is an immaterial fact or a fiction and not necessary to be proved, the conversion or wrongful detention being considered to be the gist of the action.

trow (trō), n. [Dial. var. of TROUGH.] a Sing. or pl. Scot. & Dial. Eng. A kind of catamaran or double boat, through the opening in the center of which salmon are speared. b A fishing boat with an open well for keeping fish alive. c Brit. Any of various boats, barges, and smacks.

trow (trō), v. i. & t. [ME. trowen, fr. AS. trēowan, trēowian; akin to AS. trūwian, ON. trūa, Goth. trauan, and to AS. trēow faith, belief. See TRUE.] 1. Obs. a To believe; trust. b To hope; expect.
2. To think or suppose. Archaic.
A better priest, I trow, there nowhere none is. Chaucer.
☞ I trow, or trow, was formerly sometimes added to questions to express contempt or indignant surprise.
What is the matter, trow? Shak.

trow, n. Belief; fancy; faith. Rare.

trow (trou; trō). Var. of TROLL. Scot.

trow (trō). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of TROUGH.

trow'el (trou'ĕl), n. [ME. truel, fr. OF. troele, truele (F. truelle), fr. LL. truella, dim. of L. trua a ladle (whence L. trulla a trowel); prob. akin to Gr. torynē a stirrer, ladle, G. quirl a stirrer, MHG. twirel, OHG. dwirl, ON. thvara, AS. thwiril. Cf. TRULLAN, TWIRL.] Any of various hand tools or implements, consisting of a flat or, less commonly, Trowels. 1 Garden; 2 Curbing; 3 Corner (outside); 4 Guttering; 5 Pointing; 6, 10 Brick; 7 Plastering; 8 Circle, or Cove (inside); 9 Radius.

curved blade with a handle, used esp. by bricklayers, plasterers, molders, etc., to apply, spread, shape, and smooth loose or plastic material; also, a scooplike or flat-bladed gardening implement for taking up and setting small plants, etc.

trow'el (trou'ĕl), v. t.; TROW'ELED (-ĕld) or TROW'ELLED; TROW'EL-ING or TROW'EL-LING. To smooth, dress, shape, mix, or apply, with or as with a trowel. — trow'el-er (-ĕl-ĕr), n.

trowel bayonet. A spade bayonet.

trow'el-beak' (trou'ĕl-bēk'), n. A broadbill (bird).

trow'el-man (-măn), n. A workman who uses a trowel.

trow'ie (trou'ĭ; trō'ĭ), adj. [From TROW troll.] Belonging to, or influenced by, a troll. Scot.

trow'ing (trō'ĭng), n. Belief; creed; opinion.

trowles'worth-ite (trōlz'wûrth-īt), n. [From Trowlesworthy, Devonshire, England.] Petrog. An altered granite chiefly of orthoclase, fluorite, and tourmaline.

trow'man (trō'măn), n. One who keeps a trow (sense b).

trowth (trōth), n. [See TROTH, TRUTH.] Troth; truth. Obs. exc. Scot. — interj. In truth. Scot.

troy (troi), adj. Pertaining to or designating the system of weights (troy weights) commonly used in England and the United States for gold, silver, etc.; — so named from Troyes in France. In this system —

1 pound (lb. t.) = 12 ounces (0.82286 lb. av. or 373.2418 g.)
1 ounce (oz. t.) = 20 pennyweights (1.09714 oz. av. or 31.1035 g.)
1 pennyweight (dwt.) = 24 grains (0.87771 dr. av. or 1.5552 g.)

The ounce, however, is now preferably divided decimally for weighing bullion. The troy pound thus contains 5,760 grains. It became well known in England during the 14th and 15th centuries and in 1527 replaced the Tower pound (5,400 grains) as the legal mint standard. The troy pound, or more correctly the troy ounce, is also the basis of apothecaries' weight. The Scotch troy weight, or Dutch weight, was a system of weights formerly used in parts of France, the Netherlands, and Scotland. In it the stone contained 16 pounds; the pound (7,609 grains or 493 grams) contained 16 ounces. It was prohibited in 1707, but long continued in use.

troy, n. Troy weight.

Troy'town' (troi'toun'), n. A place or state of confusion. Dial. Eng.

tru'an-cy (trōō'ăn-sĭ), n. Act, instance, or habit, of playing truant, or state of being truant; as, addicted to truancy.

tru'and-ise (trōō'ăn-dīz), n. [OF.] Obs. a Fraudulent begging. b Idleness.

tru'ant (trōō'ănt), n. [OF. truant a vagrant, beggar (F. truand), of Celt. origin; cf. W. tru, truan, wretched, miserable, truan a wretch, OIr. trōg, miserable, Gael. truaghan a poor, distressed, or wretched creature, truagh wretched.] 1. A vagrant; a vagabond. Obs.
2. One who stays away from business or any duty; esp., one who stays out of school without leave.
I have a truant been to chivalry. Shak.

tru'ant, v. i. [Cf. MF. truander.] Orig., to be a vagrant; now, to idle away time, esp. while shirking some duty; to play truant. — v. t. To idle away (time). Rare.

tru'ant, adj. 1. Wandering from business or duty; idle, and shirking duty; esp., absent from school without leave; as, a truant boy.
2. Like, or characteristic of, a truant; as, a truant mood.
Syn. — See VAGRANT.
— tru'ant-ly, adv. — tru'ant-ness, n.

tru'ant-ism (trōō'ănt-ĭz'm), n. Habitual truancy.

truant officer. A school officer charged with investigating, and in part dealing with, cases of truancy.

tru'ant-ry (trōō'ănt-rĭ), n. Orig., roguery; now, truancy.

truant school. A disciplinary institution to which habitual truants are transferred for control and instruction.

trub (trŭb), n. [Cf. TRUFFLE.] 1. A truffle. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. A squat or wanton woman. Old Slang.

tru'bu (trōō'bōō), n. [Malay tĕrubo' (the fish), written as tĕrubok.] The roe (used as food after salting and drying) of an East Indian fish (Alosa toli) of the family Clupeidae; also, the fish.

truce (trōōs), n. [ME. trewes, triwes, treowes, pl. of trewe a truce, prop., pledge of fidelity, truth, fr. AS. trēow fidelity, faith, troth; akin to ON. trūggwa, OHG. trūwwa, G. treue, and AS. trēowe true, faithful. See TRUE.] 1. A suspension of arms by agreement of the commanders of opposing forces, esp. one of considerable duration; a temporary cessation of hostilities; an armistice; also, Obs., peace.
It is hardly possible to draw a clear line of distinction between suspensions of arms, truces, and armistices, though in their more marked forms they are readily to be distinguished. See Vattel (liv. iii. ch. xvi. § 233), Halleck (ii. 342–7), Bluntschli (§§ 668–9), and Calvo (§ 2130). W. E. Hall (Footnote).
2. Hence, intermission of action, pain, or contest; temporary cessation; brief quiet.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

trucebreaker	truce-hating, adj.	trucemaking
trucebreaking	trucemaker	truce-seeking, adj.

— a truce to or with. Let us have respite from.

truce, v. i. & t. To make, or end with, a truce.

truce flag. A flag of truce.

Truce [also not cap.] of God (Treuga Dei). The cessation of hostilities between armies or man and man during part of the week, as from Wednesday evening to Monday morning and during certain holy seasons, enjoined, and imperfectly enforced in western Europe, by the church from 1027 to as late as the 13th century. Existing with this was the institution, established about 990, of the Peace of God (Pax Dei), or Peace of the Church (Pax Ecclesiae), which withdrew from private feudal warfare the unarmed ecclesiastic and the husbandman.

‖Truch'sess (trōōk'zĕs), n.; pl. -SESSEN (trōōk'zĕs-ĕn). [G.] Ger. Hist. The grand master of a king's or prince's household.

tru'cial (trōō'shăl), adj. Of, pertaining to, or bound by the conditions of, a truce; — used esp. with reference to certain Arab tribes (see TRUCIAL CHIEF), or their territory.

Trucial chief. The chief, or leader, of any of certain Arab tribes of the Oman coast which, at various times since 1820 (esp. in 1853), have entered into treaty obligations with Great Britain to co-operate in maintaining the maritime peace of the Persian Gulf and adjacent waters, for which purposes they have joined in a league (Trucial League).

tru'ci-da'tion (trōō'sĭ-dā'shăn), n. [L. trucidatio.] Slaughter.

truck (trŭk), v.; TRUCKED (trŭkt); TRUCK'ING. [F. troquer, of unknown origin.] Transitive: 1. To exchange; to give in exchange; to barter; as, to truck knives for gold dust.
2. To deal with or pay on the truck system.
3. Obs. a To acquire or dispose of by barter. b To traffic in; peddle.
—, Intransitive: 1. To exchange commodities; to barter.
To truck and higgle for a private good. Emerson.
2. To negotiate or traffic, esp. underhandedly.
3. Now Dial. a To have intercourse with. b Scot. To potter.

truck (trŭk), n. [F. troc, troque, fr. troquer. See TRUCK to barter.] 1. Barter; hence, a trade, bargain, or deal.
2. Intercourse; dealing; association; business; as, he would have no truck with such people. Collog. & Dial.
3. Commodities appropriate for barter, or for small trade; small commodities; esp., in the United States, vegetables raised for the market; as, garden truck.
4. Payment of wages in goods instead of cash. In England it is now forbidden, except in husbandry, by the Truck Acts, 1831 to 1896. See TRUCK SYSTEM.
5. Small articles of little value; hence, rubbish. Collog.

truck, adj. 1. Of or pertaining to the truck system.
2. Consisting of or dealing in garden truck.

truck (trŭk), n. [Prob. fr. L. trochus an iron hoop, fr. Gr. trochos a wheel, fr. trechein to run. Cf. TROCHEE, TRUCKLE, v.] 1. A small wheel, as of a vehicle; specif., a small strong wheel, as of wood or iron, for a gun carriage.
2. A small, usually circular, wooden disk, variously used; specif.: a A small wooden cap at the summit of a flagstaff or a masthead, usually having holes in it for reeving flag or signal halyards. b One of the balls in a rib-and-truck parrel. See RIB-AND-TRUCK PARREL.
3. Any of numerous vehicles for transporting heavy articles; esp.: a A kind of handbarrow or handcart consisting essentially of a strong, braced frame terminating in a pair of handles at one end and supported on a pair of small heavy wheels with broad rim (fig. 1 in Illust.). b A small heavy rectangular frame supported on four small wheels, used instead of rollers for moving heavy objects, as on a floor (fig. 4 in Illust.). c Any of various small flat-topped cars for pulling or pushing by hand, with or without a handle and sometimes with stakes or vertical ends to prevent the load from falling off (figs. 2 and 3), used in shops, railroad stations, etc., for moving heavy articles. d Any strong heavy cart or wagon, horse-drawn or self-propelled, for heavy hauling. e Brit. An open railroad freight car; a railway goods wagon; — disting. esp. from a van. f U. S. A rubble car. g Agric. Mach. A tongue truck.

Trucks, 3. 1 Warehouse, or Railroad; 2 Stake; 3 Wagon; 4 Dolly.

trou'ser-dom, n. See -DOM.	trout'like', adj. See -LIKE.	trow'el-ful, n. See -FUL.	Troyes (trwä), n. See TREATY, NIAN.	Tro-ze'ni-an, Var. of TROEZE.	tru'ant-ship, n. See -SHIP.
trou'ser-less, adj. See -LESS.	trove'less, adj. See -LESS.	trow'el-shaped' adj. See -SHAPED.	Table. [Var. of TRENOVANT.]	tru, ✝ TROW, TRUCE, TRUE.	tru'bl, tru'bld, tru'blous, tru'bl-sum. Trouble; troubled; troublous; troublesome. Ref. Sp.
trouss, ✝ TRUSS. [TRUTH.	trow, ✝ TRUE.	trowel. Var. of TRAWL.	Troy'no-vant (troi'nŏ-vănt),	tru'age. ✝ TREWAGE.
trouth, ✝ TROY, WOMAN; TRUANT;	trow'a-ble, adj. Credible. Obs.	trowl (trōl). Var. of TROLL. Obs. exc. Dial. [TROUSERS.	troy ounce. See 1st OUNCE, 1 b; WEIGHT, Table.	tru'ant-cy (trōō'ănt-sĭ), n. = TRUANCY. Rare.	truce'less, adj. See -LESS.
trout'ful, adj. See -FUL.	trow'and-ise, n. = TRUANDISE. Obs.	trow'sers (trou'zĕrz). Var. of	troy pound. See 3d POUND, 1;	tru'ant-like', adj. See -LIKE.	truch'man (trŭch'măn), n. [F. trucheman, of Ar. origin. See DRAGOMAN.] Interpreter. Obs.
trouthe. ✝ TROTH, TRUTH.	trowans. ✝ TRUANT.	Troy'an-ish, adj. = TROJAN. Obs.	troy weight. See TROY, adj.; WEIGHT, Table.	tru'ant-ly, adj. = TRUANT. trout'i-ness, n. See -NESS.	trowd. Trowed. Ref. Sp.
trout'less, adj. See -LESS.	trow'ed. Troweled. Ref. Sp.

4. A swiveling carriage, consisting of a frame with one or more pairs of wheels and the necessary boxes, springs, etc., to carry and guide one end of a locomotive or a railroad car, etc. Trucks are necessary in turning sharp curves.

Railway Truck.

5. A large automotive vehicle for freight transportation.

truck (trŭk), adj. Of, pert. to, or for a truck or trucks; working with or at trucks.

truck, v. t. To load or transport on a truck or trucks. — v. i. To transport goods by truck; to be employed in driving a truck.

truck'age (trŭk'ĭj), n. Exchange. Rare. Milton.

truck'age, n. Money paid for the conveyance of goods on a truck; freight; also, conveyance by trucks.

truck box. An open body on a motor truck.

truck car. A rubble car.

truck driver. See DRIVER.

Truck'ee (trŭk'ē), n. A river of California and Nevada.

Truckee pine. The Jeffrey pine.

Truckee trout. The trout Salmo henshawi.

truck'er (trŭk'ĕr), n. a A barterer. b Obs. exc. Scot. A huckster; a peddler. c U. S. A truck farmer.

truck'er, n. One who trucks goods; a truck driver.

truck farm. A farm on which vegetables are raised for the market. U. S. — truck farmer. — truck farming.

truck garden. A garden where vegetables are raised for market. — truck gardener. — truck gardening.

truck horse. A draft horse.

truck house. A storehouse for goods used for or received in barter, as formerly in the trading with Indians.

truck'ing (trŭk'ĭng), n. Bartering; also, truck farming.

truck'ing, n. Process or business of carting goods on trucks.

truck'le (trŭk''l), n. [Dim. of truck a wheel; or from the kindred L. trochlea a block, sheaf containing one or more pulleys. See TRUCK a wheel.] 1. A small wheel, as a pulley wheel or sheave; a trundle.
2. a Now Dial. A castor. b A truckle bed.
3. A one-horse low-wheeled car. Chiefly Ir.
4. A small barrel-shaped cheese. Dial. Eng.

truck'le, v. t. & i. To roll or move on castors; to trundle.

truck'le, v. i.; -LED (-'ld); -LING (-lĭng). [From truckle in truckle bed.] 1. To sleep in a truckle bed. Obs.
2. [In allusion to the fact that the truckle bed on which the pupil slept was rolled under the large bed of the master.] To yield or bend obsequiously to the will of another.
Religion itself is forced to truckle to worldly policy. Norris.
3. To truck; barter; deal. Rare.
Syn. — Fawn, toady. Ant. — Domineer, tyrannize.

truckle bed. [truckle, n. + bed.] A low bed on wheels, that may be pushed under another bed; a trundle bed.

truck'ler (trŭk'lĕr), n. One who truckles.

truck'ling (-lĭng), adj. That truckles.—truck'ling·ly, adv.

truck'man (trŭk'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). [From TRUCK barter.] One who does business in the way of barter.

truck'man, n. [From TRUCK a carriage.] One who drives a truck, or whose business it is to convey goods on trucks.

truck'mas'ter (-mȧs'tĕr; 83), n. An officer in charge of trade with Indians, esp. among the early settlers. U. S. trucks (trŭks), n. sing. & pl. [It. trucco.] A table game like billiards played with little bowls. Obs. exc. Hist.

truck'ster (trŭk'stĕr), n. [truck + -er.] 1. A trafficker.
2. A grower of, or dealer in, truck for market.

truck system. The system of paying wages in kind instead of cash or money. Cf. 2d TRUCK, 4.

truck'way' (trŭk'wā'), n. A roadway for trucks.

truc'u·lent (trŭk'ū·lĕnt; trōō'kū-; 277), adj. [MF. or L.; MF. truculent, fr. L. truculentus, fr. trux, gen. trucis, wild, fierce, of uncert. origin.] 1. Feeling or evincing savage or barbarous ferocity; cruel; scathing.
2. Destructive. Rare. "Truculent plagues." Harvey.
3. Erroneously, mercenary; base.
Syn. — See FEROCIOUS. Ant. — See GENTLE.
— truc'u·lence (-lĕns), truc'u·len·cy (-lĕn·sĭ), n. — truc'u·lent·ly, adv. — truc'u·lent·ness, n. Rare.

tru·dell'ite (trōō·dĕl'īt), n. [After H. W. Trudell, of Philadelphia.] Mineral. A hydrous basic aluminum chloride and sulphate, occurring in amber-yellow masses.

trudge (trŭj), v. i.; TRUDGED (trŭjd); TRUDG'ING (trŭj'ĭng). [Orig., to pack, to be off, possibly fr. F. trousser to pack, with -dg as in grudge. See TRUSS, v. t. & v. i.] To walk or march on foot steadily, esp. toilsomely or wearily; also, to depart; be on one's way. — v. t. To trudge along, over, or with; as, to trudge the floor.

trudge, n. 1. One who trudges; trudging.
2. A tramp or walk, esp. a weary one.

trudg'en stroke, or trudg'en (trŭj'ĕn), n. Swimming. A racing stroke in which a double overarm motion is used and the legs execute a scissors kick; — so called from its use by an amateur named John Trudgen, but often erroneously written trudgeon.

(1-3 Positions in the Trudgen Stroke.

trudg'er (trŭj'ĕr), n. One who trudges.

true (trōō; 242), adj.; TRU'ER (trōō'ĕr); TRU'EST. [ME. trewe, fr. AS. trēowe faithful, trusty; akin to AS. trēow fidelity, faith, troth, OFris. triuwe, adj., treuwa, n., OS. triuwi, adj. trewa; n., D., trouw, adj. & n., G. treu, adj., treue, n., OHG. gitriuwi, adj., triuwa, n., ON. tryggr, adj., trū, n., Dan. tro, adj. & n., Sw. trogen, adj., tro, n., Goth. triggwa, adj., triggwa, n., trauan to trust, OIr. derb certain, OPruss. druwis faith, and prob. to E. TREE. Cf. TRIG, adj., TROW, TRUCE, TRUST, TRUTH.]
1. Steady in adhering to friends, promises, allegiance, or the like; faithful; loyal; not false, fickle, or perfidious; as, a true friend, charge, etc.; true to his word.
2. Honest; just; upright; as, a true man. Archaic.
3. To be relied upon; certain; as, a true indication.
4. Conformable to fact; in accordance with the actual state of things; correct; not false, erroneous, inaccurate, or the like; as, a true relation or narration; a true history; a declaration is true when it states the facts; — often used elliptically for it is true, truly, doubtless.
5. Constant in telling truth; truthful; veracious.
Dare to be true: nothing can need a lie. Herbert.
6. Sincere; unfeigned; void of deceit; as, true love.
7. Properly so called; ideally or typically such; not counterfeit or adulterated; genuine; as, true balsam; a true Christian; true justice.
True piety is cheerful as the day. Cowper.
8. Right; proper; such as it should be; as, presented in their true order and bearings.
9. Legitimate; rightful; as, the true owner.
10. Placed, fitted, or formed, accurately; as, the corner of the square is not true.
11. Conformable to a standard, rule, or pattern; exact; accurate; correct; as, a true copy; a true likeness of the original; a gallop is called true when the horse gallops on the right foot when turning to the right, on the left foot in turning to the left.
Making his eye, foot, and hand keep true time. Scott.
12. Conformable to nature or reality; as, true stories.
13. Constant in direction; steady; — of winds.
14. Biol. Genuine; real; not deviating from the essential characters of a class; as, a lizard is a true reptile; a whale is a true, but not a typical, mammal. Cf. TYPICAL, adj., 2.
15. Geog. & Surveying Determined with reference to the earth's axis rather than the Magnetic Poles; as, true north; true west; a true bearing.
☞ For many true phrases, see the second word.
Syn. — Steadfast, unfaltering, devoted; authentic, pure; faithful, precise; lawful; reliable, unerring. See REAL.
Ant. — Perfidious, false, fickle; spurious, imitation, counterfeit; erroneous, incorrect, wrong; inaccurate, inexact; untrustworthy. See FALSE, SPURIOUS.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives or their derivatives) are:

true-blooded	trueheartedly	true-souled true-breasted	trueheartedness	true-spirited true-eyed	true-mannered	true-stamped true-grained	true-paced	true-toned truehearted	true-seeming	true-tongued

— true as steel, the gospel, touch (that is, touchstone), etc. Absolutely true, to be relied on, etc.

true (trōō), adv. 1. Truly; specif.: faithfully; truthfully; accurately; genuinely; rightly; authentically.
2. Biol. Conformably to parental type; purely; without change; as, a variety comes true from seed.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

true-aimed	true-divining	true-run true-based	true-felt	true-speaking true-begotten	true-heroic	true-spelling true-believing	true-made	true-spoken true-dealing	true-meaning	true-strung true-derived	true-meant	true-sublime true-devoted	true-noble	true-sweet true-disposing	true-ringing	true-thought true (trōō), n. [AS. trēow. See TRUCE.] 1. Obs. a Fidelity. b Compliance; agreement; compact. c A truce; a respite. d Truth. e A true or trusty person; a truelove; specif. [cap.], Christ.

2. That which is true; ultimate truth; reality; — usually with the.
3. State of being true or accurate, as in alignment, adjustment, or the like, as in phrases in true, out of true.

true (trōō), v. t.; TRUED (trōōd); TRU'ING (trōō'ĭng) or TRUE'ING. 1. To verify. Rare.
2. To make true; to bring, as by a light turning cut, to its exact and correct condition as to form, place, angle, adjustment, etc.; — often with up or off; as, to true up a board, that is, to make one or more of its surfaces a true plane; to true up work in a lathe.

true. Var. of TROW. Scot.

true anomaly. See ANOMALY, 3 a.

true bill. Law. A bill of indictment returned by the grand jury so endorsed. See INDICTMENT, 2.

true blue. 1. Originally, some especially fast blue dye or color, probably that of Coventry blue.
2. The blue color adopted from old association of blue with constancy and fidelity by the Covenanters, or Scottish Presbyterians; hence, Presbyterianism.
3. Thoroughgoing or uncompromising loyalty, fidelity, or orthodoxy.

true'-blue' (66), adj. Of unswerving loyalty; — used esp. of parties or groups which adopted blue as their special color; as, true-blue Presbyterians; a true-blue Tory.

true'-blue', n. A true-blue person.

true'born' (trōō'bôrn'; 66), adj. Genuinely such by birthright.

true branching. See BRANCHING, n.

true'bred' (trōō'brĕd'; 66), adj. 1. Of a genuine or right breed.
2. Being of real breeding or culture; — used of persons.

true bug. Any member of the Hemiptera or Homoptera.

true course. Navig. The angle of a ship's track with the true meridian.

true dagga. = DAGGA a.

true discount. See DISCOUNT, n., 1 b.

true error. See ERROR, n., 9.

true'-false', adj. Containing both what is true and what is false. Hence, true-false test, a test in which an individual is required to distinguish true statements from false.

true flint. See POTTER'S FLINT.

true fresco. See FRESCO, 2 a.

true horizon. = HORIZON, n., 5 b.

true inwardness. The esoteric reality.

true level. See LEVEL, n., 6.

true life. Life as lived rather than as portrayed. — true'-life', adj.

true'love' (trōō'lŭv'), n. [Cf. AS. trēowlufu faithful love.]
1. Faithful love; — now usually as two words.
2. One truly beloved or loving; a sweetheart.
3. A lover's symbol, probably a truelove knot. Obs.
4. a The herb Paris. b The trillium Trillium erectum.

truelove knot. A complicated knot with symmetrical parts and not readily untying, emblem of mutual love; — called also true'-lov'er's knot.

Truelove Knots.

true'man (trōō'măn), n. A faithful or honest man. Archaic.

true'ness, n. [AS. trēowness.] Quality of being true; faithfulness; reality; genuineness; also, exactness of adjustment.

true pelvis. See PELVIS b.

true'pen'ny (trōō'pĕn'ĭ), n. An honest or trusty fellow. — adj. True; genuine.

true plane. In workshop parlance, a plane surface (of metal) made by repeated scraping with a scraper and testing with a surface plate.

true power. Elec. See WATT.

tru'er (trōō'ĕr), n. One who or that which trues; esp., a device for truing abrasive wheels.

true ratio. Elec. In an instrument transformer, the ratio of the root-mean-square primary current or voltage to the root-mean-square secondary current or voltage under specified conditions.

true ribs. Anat. Ribs whose costal cartilages connect directly with the sternum, in man the first seven pairs.

true ruby. See RUBY, n., 1.

true skin. Anat. The derma.

true stitch. An embroidery stitch taken through the material and exactly alike on both sides.

true time. Apparent, or solar, time; mean time.

true value. Value determined by finding out what one could reasonably expect to get for a property under normal market conditions, rather than by applying some arbitrary mode of assessment fixed by the legislature. See VALUE, 14.

true vocal cords. Anat. See VOCAL CORDS.

true white precipitate. Ammoniated mercury.

true wind. Nav. The wind at any point not affected by the motion of the observer. Cf. APPARENT WIND.

truff (trŭf), n. [OF. truffe, trufe.] Obs. a A piece of trifling. b Scot. A trick. c Rare. A truffle.

truff (trŭf), v. i. [OF. truffer, trufer, to deceive.] To trifle. Obs. — v. t. To deceive; to steal. Scot.

truff, n. = BULL TROUT a.

truff. Var. of TURF. Scot.

‖truffes (trŭf), n. pl. [F.] Truffles.

truf'fle (trŭf''l; trōō·f'l; trōōf''l; 277; see note below), n. [MF. trufle, truffe, fr. Pr. trufa or It. truffa, fr. Oscan-Umbrian form (cf. VL. tufera) for L. tuber tumor, knob, truffle. See TUBER; cf. TRIFLE.] a Any of various European edible subterranean sac fungi of the genus Tuber; also, the edible ascus fruit, commonly oblong, with a warty or rugose and blackish surface, highly esteemed as a delicacy. T. melanosporum yields the best French truffles. b Any of the related fungi of the order Tuberales, esp. of Terfezia, etc. Cf. FALSE TRUFFLE.

Truffle.

☞ Walker (1791) recognizes only trōō·f'l, long the preferred pron.; Smart (1836) has trōōf''l; trŭf''l is recent, but apparently prevails in present good usage.

truf'fle, v. i. To gather truffles. — truf'fler (-lĕr), n.

truf'fled (-'ld), adj. Cooked, stuffed, garnished, or the like, with truffles.

trug (trŭg; trōōg), n. [See TROUGH.] Local, Eng. a An old measure for wheat. See MEASURE, Table. b A trough, or tray. c A kind of coarse basket made of strips of wood. d A milk pail.

trug (trŭg), n. Also, Obs., trug·mal'lion (-măl'yŭn). A wench; prostitute. Now Dial.

tru'ism (trōō'ĭz'm), n. [From TRUE.] An undoubted or self-evident truth, esp. one too obvious or unimportant for mention; use of such statements.
Syn. — See COMMONPLACE.

tru'is·mat'ic (trōō'ĭz·măt'ĭk), adj. Also tru·is'tic (trōō·ĭs'tĭk), tru·is'ti·cal (-tĭ·kăl). Of or pertaining to truisms.

‖trui'té' (trwē'tā'), adj. [F., fr. truite trout.] Having a delicately reticulated surface; — applied to porcelain, etc.

trull (trŭl), n. [Cf. G. trolle, trulle; perh. akin to Dan. trold an elf, imp, Sw. troll a goblin, ON. troll a giant, fiend, demon. Cf. 1st TROLL.] 1. A trollop; strumpet.
2. A girl; wench; lass. Obs.

trull (trŭl; trōōl). Var. of TROLL. Obs. exc. Dial.

Trul'lan (trŭl'ăn), adj. [ML. trullus dome, fr. L. trulla ladle, scoop. See TROWEL.] Eccl. Hist. Of, pertaining to, or designating, two church councils held in the trullus, a domed apartment of the imperial palace at Constantinople. The first Trullan Council was held in 680–681, and is known as the sixth Ecumenical Council. The second Trullan Council or Synod was held in 692, and is regarded as ecumenical by the Greeks, but not by the Latins. It is called also the Quinisext Council.

trull'er (trŭl'ĕr; trōōl'ĕr), n. Mining. One who trolls ore in a wheelbarrow. Chiefly Cornwall.

Trul'li·ber, Parson (trŭl'ĭ·bĕr). A coarse, brutal, uncharitable clergyman in Fielding's Joseph Andrews.

trul'li·za'tion (trŭl'ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ-), n. [L. trullissatio, fr. trullissare to trowel, plaster.] Act of laying on plaster with a trowel.

trul'lo (trōōl'lō), n.; pl. -LI (-lē). [It. dial.] Archaeol. A kind of rough stone building in southern Italy, akin to the nuraghe.

tru'ly (trōō'lĭ), adv. [AS. trēowlīce. See TRUE.] 1. In a true manner; as: a Sincerely; honestly; faithfully; as, to be truly attached to one; truly sorry. b In agreement with fact; with truth; also, unfeignedly; genuinely; as, to state facts truly. c Exactly; accurately; justly; hence, properly; rightly; as, to estimate truly the evidence. "A pageant truly played." Shak. d Conformably to law; legally; legitimately. e Conformably with nature; realistically. f Without variation, esp. from crossbreeding.
2. In fact; in deed; in reality; in truth; — often used for emphasis or interjectionally; as, truly, she is fair.

tru'ly, adj. That is really such. Chiefly Dial.

tru'ly (trōō'lĭ; trŭ'lĭ), n. In the phrase by my truly, on my word. Scot. & N. of Eng.

trum'bash (trŭm'băsh), n. Also trom'bash. [Sudan Ar. trumbāsh, of Sudanic origin, appar. fr. Zandeh (Niam-Niam).] A throwing weapon of hardwood, flattened and sharply curved at one end, used by natives of the Sudan.

---

truck'ful, n. See -FUL. trucking house. = TRUCK HOUSE. truck'l. Truckle. Ref. Sp. truck'like', adj. See -LIKE. truck'load', n. See -LOAD. truc'u·len'tal, adj. = TRUCULENT. Rare. [(-dē). = TRULLO.] trud'do (trōōd'dō), n.; pl. -DI trudgd. Trudged. Ref. Sp. trudge'man. † TRUCHMAN. trudgen crawl. See 2d CRAWL, 2. trudg'eon. Erron. var. of TRUDGEN.
‖ tru'di·tur di'es di'e. [L.] Day is pushed forth by day; one day hurries on another. Horace (Odes, II. xviii, 15).
Tru'dy (trōō'dĭ), n. Dim. of GERTRUDE, EMMENTRUD. true. † TRUCE. true'like', adj. See -LIKE.
true'ly. † TRULY.
truf'fe·like', adj. See -LIKE.
truf'fi·esque' (trŭ·fĭ'ĕ·ĕsk'; trōō·fĭ'ĕ-; trōōf'-), adj. See -ESQUE. trufle. † TRIFLE, TRUFFLE. trug'ging house. Also trug'ging place. A brothel. Obs. tru'ish, adj. See -ISH. trul'li·bub. † TRILLIBUB.

‖tru′meau′ (trü′mō′), n. [F.] Medieval Arch. A central pillar in some large doorways, supporting the tympanum.

trum′mel (trŭm′ĕl), n. [D. trommel drum, tin box.] A round tin box for cake or bread. Local, U. S.

trump (trŭmp), n. [ME. trumpe, trompe, fr. OF. trompe, of Teut. origin; cf. OHG. trumpa, trumba, trumpet, ON. trumba. See DRUM; cf. TROMBONE, TRUMP to deceive, TRUMPET, TRUNK a proboscis.] 1. A wind instrument of music; a trumpet, or sound of a trumpet. Chiefly Poetic.

The wakeful trump of doom. Milton.

2. a Obs. A trumpeter. b Figuratively, that which summons or proclaims as does a trumpet.

3. A jew's-harp. Scot. & Ir.

4. A tube; specif., the trachea (of a crane); also, a proboscis. Obs.

trump, v. i. & t.; TRUMPED (trŭmpt); TRUMP′ING. [OF. tromper. See TRUMP a trumpet.] To sound, make a sound like, or proclaim by, a trumpet. Now Rare.

trump (trŭmp), n. [A corruption of triumph; cf. F. triomphe a triumph, a game of cards, a trump. See TRIUMPH; cf. 2d RUFF.] 1. Card Playing. a One of a particular suit (usually determined by chance for each deal) any card of which takes any card of the other suits. b Loosely, the suit so distinguished; as, clubs are trumps. c = TRUMP CARD.

2. An old card game like whist; — called also ruff.

3. A good fellow (man or woman). Colloq.

— a trump in one's way. An obstruction or hindrance. Obs.

trump, v.; Transitive: 1. To play a trump on when one of another suit has been led.

2. To nonplus; outdo; beat; cap.

3. To impose unfairly; to palm off. Obs.

—, Intransitive: To play a trump on a trick.

trump in one's way. To cast or get in one's way in order to impede. Obs.

trump up. a Obs. To adduce; allege. b To devise; to concoct or construct with unfairness; to fabricate; as, to trump up a charge.

trump, v. i. [F. tromper to deceive, se tromper de to mock; the same word as OF. tromper to blow a trumpet. See TRUMP trumpet; cf. TRUMPERY.] To impose on; deceive. Obs.

trump card. The card turned up as trump; also, loosely, any card of the trump suit; hence, the most important means of obtaining one's end in any matter; as, the production of the missing letter proved a trump card.

trumped′-up′ (trŭmpt′ŭp′), adj. Unfairly or unscrupulously concocted; as, a trumped-up excuse.

trump′er (trŭmp′ĕr), n. [F. tromper to deceive; cf. F. trompeur a deceiver.] A deceiver. Obs. exc. Scot.

trump′er·y (-i), n.; pl. -ERIES (-iz). [F. tromperie deceit, fr. tromper to deceive. See TRUMP to deceive.] 1. Deceit; fraud; trickery. Archaic.

2. Something deceptively showy; hence, things of no value; rubbish; trash; nonsense.

3. Formerly, rites, relics, decorations, or ceremonial observances, regarded as trumped up or vain.

4. Weeds or other impediments to growing plants. Dial.

trump′er·y, adj. Deceptively showy; trashy; worthless. — trump′er·i·ness, n.

trum′pet (trŭm′pĕt; -pĭt; 119), n. [ME. trumpete, fr. OF. trompette, dim. of trompe. See TRUMP trumpet.] 1. A wind instrument consisting of a long metal tube, commonly once or twice curved, with cup-shaped mouthpiece, and ending in a bell. It is typical of the well-known and ancient family of instruments giving their tones by the vibration of the player's lips against the mouthpiece of a long tube. Besides its fundamental tone, a series of harmonics can be produced by varying the force of blowing and the embouchure. Other tones are variously secured, as by means of finger holes and keys, as in the obsolete key bugle and serpent; by a slide, as in the trombone; or by valves, as in the modern cornet-à-pistons, which last give easily all the scale tones of its compass. The modern trumpet used in both bands and orchestras has a brilliant tone of noble quality. It is usually built in B♭ and has a compass of e–bb. See PITCH, Illust. It is a transposing instrument, the trumpet in B♭ sounding a whole step lower than the notation indicates.

Modern Trumpet with Pistons.

2. A trumpeter; hence, one who praises or acts as the mouthpiece of renown.

3. Fig., that by which proclamation or warning is sounded.

The cataracts blow their trumpets from the steep. Wordsworth.

4. An 8-ft. organ reed stop with a trumpetlike tone.

5. A natural or artificial trumpet-shaped object, as a trumpet shell or the flare of a car coupling.

6. A trumpet-shaped instrument for collecting, directing, or intensifying, sounds; as, an ear or speaking trumpet.

7. a pl. Southern U. S. Any of several pitcher plants having long trumpet-shaped leaves, esp. Sarracenia flava. b The trumpet-shaped flower of any of several plants of the genera Datura, Campsis, Bignonia, etc.

8. A sound as of a trumpet; esp., an elephant's cry; also, a hum, as of a mosquito or gnat.

9. Mach. A funnel, or short flaring pipe, used as a guide or conductor, as for yarn in a knitting machine.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

trumpet-blowing trumpet-loud trumpet-tongued trumpet-hung trumpet-toned trumpet-voiced trum′pet, adj. Of, pertaining to, or like, a trumpet.

trum′pet, v.; TRUM′PET·ED; TRUM′PET·ING. [Cf. F. trompeter.] Intransitive: To sound loudly, or with a tone like a trumpet; to utter a trumpetlike cry, as elephants.

—, Transitive: 1. To sound on a trumpet; to utter with a trumpetlike sound or cry.

2. To publish by or as if by sound of trumpet; to noise abroad; to proclaim; as, to trumpet good things.

3. To summon, banish, or denounce by or as by sounding a trumpet.

4. To make flaring like the bell of a trumpet.

trumpet animalcule. Any trumpet-shaped infusorian of Stentor or an allied genus.

trumpet arch. Arch. A diagonal arch, or squinch, of conical form.

trumpet ash. The trumpet creeper. Eng.

trum′pet·bush′ (trŭm′pĕt·bŏŏsh′; trŭm′pĭt-; 119), n. The yellow elder.

trumpet call. A call sounded on a trumpet; hence, any loud or urgent summons; specif., Music, a fanfare.

trumpet conch. A trumpet shell.

trumpet creeper. A North American woody vine (Campsis radicans) having pinnate leaves and large, red, trumpet-shaped flowers.

trum′pet-creep′er fam′i·ly. The Bignoniaceae.

trumpet daffodil. A variety of the common daffodil with a conspicuous corona. See DAFFODIL b.

trum′pet·er (trŭm′pĕt·ẽr; -pĭt-), n. 1. One who sounds or plays a trumpet; specif., a soldier, sailor, or herald, who signals with a trumpet.

2. One who or that which proclaims, publishes, or announces.

3. Any of several large long-legged and long-necked South American birds of the genus Psophia, esp. P. crepitans of Guiana and Brazil, called also agami. They are forest dwellers, highly gregarious and easily domesticated, often kept, in Brazil, to protect poultry. The head and beak are very fowllike, the soft plumage mostly blackish with yellowish green or purplish iridescence on neck and breast. Their cry is loud, clear, and prolonged. P. leucoptera has the wings partly white; P. ochroptera has the same parts ocherous. b The trumpeter swan. c A pigeon of a domestic breed originating in Russia and having a shell crest and heavily feathered feet.

Trumpeter (Psophia crepitans).

4. a Any of several Australian and New Zealand marine spiny-finned fishes (family Latrididae), esp. a choice food fish (Latris hecateia) which is silvery with olive longitudinal stripes and reaches a weight of 60 to 80 pounds. The name is extended to other fishes which make a trumpeting noise when caught, as the trumpeter perch and the trumpeter whiting. b The queensland trumpeter.

trumpeter fish. = TRUMPETER, 4.

trumpeter muscle. A buccinator.

trumpeter perch. A small striped food fish (Therapon quadrilineatus) of Australia.

trumpeter swan. A North American wild swan Cygnus buccinator) noted for its sonorous voice. It is found chiefly from the Mississippi Valley westward, but is becoming rare. It is pure white and has no yellow on the lores.

trumpeter whiting. An Australian whiting (Sillago maculata).

trumpet fish. a = BELLOWS FISH a. b A flutemouth.

trumpet flower. Any plant having trumpet-shaped flowers; also, the flower of such a plant. Specif.: a The trumpet creeper. b The trumpet honeysuckle. c The cross vine. d The datura. e The yellow elder. f The yellow oleander.

trumpet fly. A botfly.

trumpet honeysuckle. A North American honeysuckle (Lonicera sempervirens) with coral-red or orange flowers.

trumpet hypha. Bot. One of the conducting cells in the tissues of the stems of brown algae of the family Laminariaceae. They are long cells with swollen ends.

trum′pet·ing, n. 1. Act of one that trumpets.

2. Mining. A channel or passage partitioned off from a shaft or left behind the lining, usually running along one corner of the latter. Chiefly Local, Eng.

trumpet lily. a The garden lily Lilium longiflorum of Japan; also, its flower. Cf. BERMUDA LILY. b = CALLA, 2.

trumpet major. Mil. Chief trumpeter of a band or regiment.

trumpet marine. Music. A medieval bowed instrument, trumpet-shaped and about six feet long with one long gut string sounding natural harmonics in playing. Its tone was powerful but coarse, like a rough trumpet tone.

trumpet milkweed. The wild lettuce Lactuca canadensis; — in allusion to its hollow stem and milky juice.

trumpet narcissus. The trumpet daffodil.

trumpet plant. = TRUMPET, 7 a.

trumpet reed. A ditch reed. W. Ind.

trum′pet·ry (trŭm′pĕt·rĭ; -pĭt-), n. Trumpets, or their sound.

trumpet seaweed. = SEA TRUMPET, 1.

trum′pet-shaped′, adj. Bot. Tubular with the limb dilated.

trumpet shell. Any large marine univalve shell belonging to Triton or an allied genus.

Trumpet-shaped Flower of Trumpet Creeper.

trumpet tree. The trumpetwood.

trumpet vine. a The trumpet creeper. b The trumpet honeysuckle.

trum′pet·weed′ (trŭm′pĕt·wēd′; -pĭt-), n. a Any of several herbs; as: (1) The wild lettuce Lactuca canadensis. (2) The boneset Eupatorium perfoliatum. (3) The joe-pye weed E. maculatum. b = SEA TRUMPET, 1.

trum′pet·wood′ (-wŏŏd′), n. A tropical American tree (Cecropia peltata) having hollow stems used for wind instruments, and large peltate leaves.

trum′pet·y (trŭm′pĕ·tĭ; -pĭ·tĭ), adj. Trumpetlike in sounds.

trum′pie (trŭm′pĭ), n. A jaeger gull. Orkney I.

trump′-poor′ (trŭmp′pŏŏr′; 66; 199), adj. Card Playing. Lacking general strength because strong only in trumps.

trump signal. Whist. A signal to one's partner to lead trumps, made by playing an unnecessarily high card, followed by a lower one of the same suit, when not attempting to win the tricks.

trun′cage (trŭng′kĭj), n. [ML. truncagium, fr. L. truncus trunk.] A due in tree trunks for tenure of land. Hist.

trun′cal (trŭng′kăl; -k′l), adj. Of or pertaining to the trunk (sense 1).

trun′cate (-kāt), v. t.; -CAT·ED (-kāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CAT·ING (-kāt·ĭng). [L. truncatus, past part. of truncare to cut off, mutilate, fr. truncus trunk. See TRUNK; cf. TRENCH.] 1. To cut off; to lessen by cutting; to lop.

2. Cryst. To replace, or cut off, by a plane, as an edge, esp. when equally inclined to the adjoining faces.

trun′cate (-kāt), adj. [L. truncatus, past part.] Truncated; as: a Bot. & Zool. Having the end square or even, as if cut off. b Zool. Lacking the apex; — said of certain spiral shells in which the apex of the young shell breaks off naturally.

Truncate Shell (Truncatella truncatula). a Adult; b Young Shell.

trun′cat·ed (-kāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Cut off or cut short; hence: a Lopped off; maimed. b Shortened; abbreviated; as, a truncated account or view.

2. Cut off by a line or plane. See TRUNCATE, v. t., 2.

3. Zool. Truncate.

truncated cone or pyramid. Geom. The part left of a cone or pyramid whose vertex is cut off by a plane, usually parallel to the base.

Truncated Pyramid.

truncated cube. Math. A solid bounded by six equal regular octagons and eight equal regular triangles, formed by cutting off the corners of a cube, — one of the 13 Archimedean solids.

truncated cuboctahedron. See CUBOCTAHEDRON.

truncated icosahedron. Math. A polyhedron of 20 regular hexagonal and 12 regular pentagonal faces, formed by cutting off the corners of a regular icosahedron.

truncated icosidodecahedron. Math. An Archimedean solid formed of 62 regular faces, 30 equal squares, 20 equal hexagons, 12 equal decagons, by cutting off the corners of the icosidodecahedron.

truncated octahedron. Math. An Archimedean solid having as faces 6 equal squares and 8 equal regular hexagons, formed by cutting off the corners of a regular octahedron; tessarescaedecahedron.

Trun′ca·tel′la (trŭng′kă·tĕl′ă), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. truncatus, past part.] Zool. A genus of small snails having a small, somewhat cylindrical shell, truncate in the adult, and the ctenidium replaced by a pulmonary sac. They occur usually on land near the sea, occasionally in both salt and fresh water. It is the type of a family, Trun′ca·tel′li·dae (-ĭ·dē) of the suborder Taenioglossa. See TRUNCATE, Illust.

trun·ca′tion (trŭng·kā′shŭn), n. [LL. truncatio.] 1. Act or process of truncating; state of being truncated; hence, mutilation; also, the place where a thing is truncated.

2. Cryst. The replacement of an edge or solid angle by a plane, esp. one equally inclined to the adjoining faces.

Truncation, 2.

trun·ca′to- (-tō-). A combining form from Latin truncatus, denoting truncately, as in trun·ca′to·ro·tund′, trun·ca′·to·sin′u·ate.

trun′ca·tor (trŭng′kā·tĕr), n. One who or that which truncates.

trunch (trŭnch; 105), n. [F. tronche. See TRUNCHEON.] A stake; post. Obs.

trunch, adj. Also trunched (trŭncht). Short and thick. Dial.

trun′cheon (trŭn′chŭn; 105), n. [ME. tronchoun the shaft of a broken spear, broken piece, fr. OF. tronchon, var. of tronçon (F. tronçon), fr. (assumed) VL. truncio, fr. L. truncus stem, trunk. See TRUNK.] 1. A fragment, esp. of a lance or spear. Archaic.

2. A short staff or cudgel; a spear shaft; club. Archaic.

3. A baton, or staff of command or authority; now esp., a policeman's club.

4. A cutting from a plant for use in grafting.

5. Obs. a A trunk or stem, esp. one with branches lopped off, to hasten growth. b An intestinal worm in horses.

trun′cheon, v. t. 1. To splinter or cut into fragments. Obs.

2. To beat with a truncheon.

trun′cheoned (trŭn′chŭnd), adj. Having a truncheon.

trun′cheon·er (-chŭn·ẽr), n. A person armed with a truncheon. Obs.

‖trun′cus (trŭng′kŭs), n. [L., trunk.] Anat., Bot., & Zool. = TRUNK, n., 1 & 3.

‖trun′cus ar·te′ri·ō′sus (är·tē′rĭ·ō′sŭs). [NL. Cf. ARTERY.] Anat. & Zool. In anamniotes and early developmental stages of amniotes, that portion of the arterial system within the pericardium connecting the ventricle and ventral aorta. It consists of the conus arteriosus bulbus aortae, and a tubular region, not differentiated from, and sometimes regarded as a part of, the ventral aorta. Sometimes, narrowly, the term is restricted to that part between the bulbus aortae and ventral aorta.

trun′dle (trŭn′d'l), n. [For trendle, fr. AS. trendel a circle, ring, disk; prob. influenced by trundle, v. See TREND, v.] 1. (pron. also trŭn′′l, trōōn′d'l, trōōn′′l.) A round or circular object; a trindle; specif.: Chiefly Dial. a A little wheel, as of a barrow; a caster. b A hoop, as a playing hoop, or the iron hoop of a wheel. c A round or oval wooden tub. Cf. TRINDLE, n., 1.

2. a A low-wheeled cart or truck. b A trundle bed.

3. A motion or sound as of something moving upon little wheels or rollers; a rolling motion or the sound due to it.

4. Course; path; also, departure. Dial. Eng.

5. Mach. A lantern pinion; also, any of its bars.

6. Her. A quill of gold thread, as borne by the Embroiderers' Company.

7. Music, A roller for transmitting movement in the drawstop action of an organ. See STOP, Illust.

trun′dle (trŭn′d'l), v.; TRUN′DLED (-d'ld); TRUN′DLING (-dlĭng). [Prob. fr. OF. trondeler to roll, of Teut. origin. See TRUNDLE, n., TREND, v.] Transitive: 1. To cause to roll; to roll along; bowl; as, to trundle a hoop or a ball; twirl.

2. To cause to revolve; rotate, as a merry-go-round; also, to whirl or twirl, as a mop.

3. To roll on little wheels, as a bed, wheelbarrow, gun carriage; to wheel (a person).

4. To take or get out of the way.

—, Intransitive: 1. To go or move on or as if on small wheels; as, a bed trundles under another.

2. To roll, or go by revolving, as a hoop; also, to twirl.

3. To go in a wheeled carriage or on wheels; hence, to go quickly or easily; also, to go with a rolling gait.

4. Cricket. To bowl. Colloq.

trundle bed. A low bed, usually on trundles, that can be pushed under a higher bed; a truckle bed.

trun′dle·head′ (trŭn′d'l·hĕd′), n. 1. Gearing. One of the disks forming the ends of a lantern pinion or wheel.

2. Naut. The drumhead of a capstan; esp., the drumhead of the lower of two capstans on the same axis.

trun′dler (-dlĕr), n. One who or that which trundles.

trun′dle·shot′ (-d'l·shŏt′), n. Old Ordnance. A sharpened iron bar with a lead ball near each end, which turned over in flight.

trun′dle·tail′ (-tāl′), n. A curly-tailed dog; a cur. Archaic.

trun′dling chest (-dlĭng). A wheeled vehicle; a cart or coach. Old Slang.

trunk (trŭngk), n. [F. tronc, fr. L. truncus. See THRONG; cf. TRUNCATE, TRUNCHEON.] 1. a The main stem, or body, of a tree, apart from limbs and roots. b The body of an animal or of man, apart from the head or the head and limbs; also, Obs., a corpse.

2. a A tank or pool for keeping fish alive. b An open box from which fish are sold. c A lobster pot.

3. The main body of anything as distinguished from offshoots, appendages, or the like; as, the trunk of an artery.
4. [Confused with trump, fr. F. trompe proboscis, trumpet See TRUMP a trumpet.] a The long, muscular, tubular extension of the nose of the elephant, having the nostrils at its tip; the proboscis. It serves as a prehensile organ, either by coiling about the object to be seized, or by the use of a small movable grasping process at its tip. It is used to convey food to the mouth, in drinking (water being sucked up and blown into the mouth), as a weapon, and otherwise. Also, less often, the proboscis of some other animal. b Slang. A person's nose.
5. A box or chest, usually covered with leather or cloth, or sometimes made of leather, canvas, or metal, for containing clothes or other goods, esp. one used to convey the effects of a traveler; — in England called box.
6. A long, large box, pipe, or conductor, of plank or metal plates, for various uses, as for conveying air to a mine or to a furnace, water to a mill, grain to an elevator, etc.
7. pl. Nincholes. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
8. A trunk line.
9. Obs. a A box or coffer. b A speaking tube. c A case for explosives, rockets, etc. d A long tube through which pellets of clay, peas, etc., were driven by the breath. e = 6th SCALE, 2 a. f A telescope.
10. Arch. The shaft of a column or pilaster.
11. Bot. See ISOETES.
12. pl. Costume. Trunk hose; also, close-fitting short breeches, worn by athletes, swimmers, etc.
13. Games. = BAGATELLE, 2. Obs.
14. Mach. See TRUNK ENGINE.
15. Mining. a A wooden box, sometimes on sledge runners, for conveying debris from a small heading. b A wooden box conduit for carrying air to mine workings. c A long box or launder for conveying slimes, etc. d Eng. A long box or sluice in which ores are separated from slimes.
16. Naut. a The roof, and the upper part of the sides, of a cabin projecting above the upper deck of a vessel. b A box or funnel around an opening in the bottom of a vessel, rising inside above outside water level, as for a centerboard. c The casing around a hatch continued between two decks to a hatch above or below, making a shaft. When it extends above the upper deck its top is called a trunk deck.
17. Organ Building. A wind trunk.
18. Teleph. A circuit between two telephone exchanges or telephone switching devices for making connections between subscribers.
19. Zool. The thorax of an insect.

trunk (trŭngk), v. t. 1. To enclose in a trunk or casing.
2. Mining. To separate (slimes, etc.) by means of a trunk, for further treatment. Eng.

trunk up. To uproot with the trunk.

trunk, adj. 1. Of or pertaining to the trunk or a trunk (in various senses).
2. Designating, or pertaining to, a main railroad, telegraph, telephone, or other line, esp. all of any such line between two termini or principal terminals; as, trunk call (in telephony), operator, wire, working, etc.

trunk (trŭngk), v. t.; TRUNKED (trŭngkt); TRUNK'ING. [L. truncare. See TRUNCATE.] To lop off; to curtail; truncate; maim. Obs.

trunk'back' (-băk'), n. The leatherback turtle.

trunk breeches. Trunk hose. Obs. exc. Hist.

trunk cabin. Naut. A cabin with a trunk, to give more headroom. See TRUNK, 16 a.

trunk deck. Shipbuilding. The top of a hatchway trunk that projects several feet above the upper deck; often, also, several such tops joined so as to form a kind of deck.

trunk dial. A spring-driven clock with the case continued some way below the large dial to accommodate a long pendulum.

trunked (trŭngkt), adj. 1. Having a trunk.
2. Clad in trunks.
3. Her. With trunk of specified tincture.

-trunked. A combining form of trunked, denoting having (so many or such) trunks, as in:

large-trunked	single-trunked	strong-trunked short-trunked	straight-trunked	well-trunked trunked, adj. Truncated; having the head cut off. Obs.

trunk engine. Mach. a A steam engine the piston rod of which is a pipe (called a trunk) of sufficient diameter to enable one end of the connecting rod to be attached to the crank and the other end to pass within the pipe and be pivoted to the piston, giving compactness. b An engine having a trunk piston, as most internal-combustion engines.

trunk'fish' (trŭngk'fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-ĕz; -Iz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. Any of several fishes of warm seas, constituting the family Ostraciidae (order Plectognathi), having an angular body covered with a rigid integument of bony plates, leaving only the jaws, fins, eyes, and tail free to move. Ostracion and Aracana, having the carapace of four-angled cross section, and Lactophrys, having it three-angled, are the chief genera. Cf. COWFISH, 2.

Trunkfish (Lactophrys triqueter).

trunk hatch or hatchway. A hatch connected with one above or below by a trunk. See TRUNK, 16 c.

trunk hose. Short full breeches, originally part of the hose, reaching about halfway down the thigh, often paned (cut in vertical bands revealing satin lining) and usually padded, worn chiefly in the late 16th and early 17th centuries. — trunk'-hose', adj.

French Nobleman, 16th century, wearing slashed Trunk Hose.

trunk'ing (trŭngk'ĭng), n. 1. Act of one that trunks.
2. A casing, as that used to protect electrical conductors.

trunk line. Chiefly U. S. & Canada. a A line connecting an inland commercial center or centers with the seaboard; also, a system handling long-distance through traffic. b Any similar main line, as a canal or a telegraph system.

trunk'nose' (trŭngk'nōz'), n. The elephant seal. trunk piston or plunger. In a single-acting engine or pump an elongated hollow piston, open at the end, in which the end of the connecting rod is pivoted. The piston rod, crosshead, and stuffing box are thus dispensed with.

trunk room. See ROOM.

trunk scald. A winter sunscald. See SUNSCALD.

trunk sleeve. A style of sleeve having a part, usually the upper part, made wide and full, like trunk hose. Obs.

trunk steamer. A freight steamer having a high hatch coaming extending almost continuously fore and aft, but not of whaleback form at the sides Cf. TURRET STEAMER.

trunk turtle. The leatherback turtle.

trunk whale. The sperm whale.

trunk'work' (trŭngk'wŭrk'), n. Work done on a trunk. Obs.

trun'nion (trŭn'yŭn), n. [F. trognon a core, stalk, of obscure origin; cf. TRUNK.] Either of two opposite pivots, journals, or gudgeons, usually cylindrical and horizontal, projecting one from each side of a piece of ordnance, the cylinder of an oscillating engine, a molding flask, a converter, etc., and supported by bearings, to provide a means of swiveling or turning.

Trun'nion, Commodore Hawser. An eccentric character in Smollett's Peregrine Pickle. He is retired from service because of injuries, but retains his nautical and military habits, keeping garrison in his house, obliging his servants to sleep in hammocks and to take turns on watch, etc.

trunnion band. Ordn. In built-up guns, the band to which the trunnions are attached.

trunnion carriage Ordn. The top carriage of a mortar.

trunnion chain. Mil. A chain by which a gun is slung by the trunnions, as under a cart.

trunnion cradle. Ordn. A part of the carriage of certain cannon, having branching arms, in the ends of which the trunnions of the gun rest.

trun'nioned (trŭn'yŭnd), adj. Having trunnions.

trunnion hoop. Ordn. A trunnion band.

trunnion jig. Mach. A jig mounted on trunnions so that, when the work is once set in it, the jig can be swung and clamped in several specified positions for the machining operations.

trunnion plate. Ordn. a = RIMBASE a. b A metal plate lining the bearings, or recesses, in which the trunnions rest.

trush (trŭsh), n. [Var. of TRUSS.] In Kent, a hassock or cushion for kneeling on in church.

tru'sion (trōō'zhŭn), n. [ML. trusio, fr. L. trudere, trusum, to thrust, shove.] Act of pushing or thrusting. Rare.

truss (trŭs), v. TRUSSED (trŭst); TRUSS'ING. [ME. trussen, fr. OF. trusser, trousser, torser, prob. fr. (assumed) VL. torciare, fr. torca bundle, torch. See TORCH; cf. TROUSSEAU, TRUDGE.] Transitive: 1. To pack into a bundle or bundles; to bundle; hence, to make ready by packing; — often with up; as, to truss up tents, utensils, etc.
2. Hence, to bind, tie, or fasten, in any manner; to secure closely or tightly; — often with up.
3. To fasten by or as by a skewer, as a fowl's wings to its body in cooking; to skewer; — often with up.
4. Archaic. a To arrange; to dress, as hair. b To fasten or arrange the clothing of; esp., to tighten and tie, as laces, strings, etc. c To take fast hold of; to seize and hold firmly; also, to seize and bear off, as a bird its prey. d To hang; — usually with up.
5. Obs. a To load; lade. b To carry away. c To betake (oneself); — used reflexively. d To tuck in.
6. Chiefly Arch. & Engin. To support by a truss; to strengthen or stiffen, as a beam or girder, by a brace or braces, esp. so as to constitute a truss. See TRUSS, n., 7.
7. To bind together the staves of (a barrel), producing a bulging form and such a deformation of the staves as will keep the hoops in place.
8. Naut. To furl (a sail).

—, Intransitive: Obs. a To pack; be off; to depart; to go. b To become shrunk. c To be hanged.

truss (trŭs), n. [ME. trusse, fr. OF. trousse, fr. trousser. See TRUSS, v.] 1. A bundle; pack; package.

Bearing a truss of trifles at his back. Spenser.

2. A measured quantity of hay or straw. In England it is regulated by statute as 56 lb. of old or as 60 lb. of new hay, or as 36 lb. of straw, but in usage it varies locally.
3. A padded garment worn under armor, to protect the body from friction; also, Rare, a woman's stomacher. Obs.
4. pl. Tight drawers or breeches. Obs.
5. A frock; a costume. Dial.
6. Arch. A bracket or modillion.
7. Engin. An assemblage of members, such as beams, bars, rods and the like, so combined as to form a rigid framework; that is, one which cannot be deformed by the application of exterior force without deformation of one or more of its members. Properly, a truss should be in the form of a triangle or of a combination of triangles, because this is the only polygon whose shape cannot alter without changing the length of its sides. When so designed, the only strains in the members will be those of tension and compression. A long truss is often called a girder.
8. Hort. A compact flower cluster at the top of a stem.
9. Naut. An iron band around a lower mast, with a pivoted attachment to a lower yard at the center, to keep the yard in position and allow it to be braced around; formerly, a rope connection serving the same purpose.
10. Surg. An appliance to support a weakened, injured, or deformed part of the body through which deeper contents may protrude. It is used especially in cases of hernia.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:
truss-bound, truss-galled, trussmaker, trussmaking.

truss (trŭs), adj. 1. Compactly framed. Obs.
2. Used in trussing; as, a truss hoop or barrel.

truss beam. A beam reinforced by a truss (rod) or formed of straight or cambered pieces joined by trussing.

truss bow (bō). Naut. A semicircular, jointed portion of a truss holding the center of a lower yard to the mast.

truss bridge. A bridge supported mainly by trusses.

trussed (trŭst), adj. 1. Packed; close-knit.
2. Provided with a truss, as a bridge.

trus'sell (trŭs'ĕl; -I), n. [OF. troussel. See TROUSSEAU.] The upper or reverse die used in coining. See PILE, 6. Obs.

truss'er (trŭs'ĕr), n. 1. A bundle or bandage. Obs.
2. a One who trusses articles, as casks, fowl, hay, etc. b One that trusses; specif., in coopering, a trussing machine. c A plant bearing trusses.

truss'er·y (-I), n. [See TRUSS; cf. TROUSSEAU.] Luggage. Obs.

truss hoop. Naut. The band of a truss, encircling the mast; also, one of the truss bands which encircle a yard.

truss'ing (trŭs'ĭng), adj. That trusses; specif., Her., depicted as seizing or holding (its prey); — said of a bird of prey.

truss'ing, n. 1. Act of one who trusses.
2. Engin. a The members forming a truss. b Trusses in general, or the trusses and framework of any structure. c Stiffening or bracing with struts, ties, etc., as in a truss.

truss'ing, adj. For trussing or being trussed.

trussing bed. A takedown bed. Obs. exc. Hist.

trussing machine. A machine for forcing truss hoops on casks.

truss rod. A diagonal rod for trussing a wooden beam, or a tie rod in a truss.

truss'work' (trŭs'wŭrk'), n. Work consisting of trusses.

trust (trŭst), n. [ME. trust, trost (also trist, trest), fr. (or perh. akin to) ON. traust confidence, security (Dan. & Sw. tröst comfort, consolation); akin to G. trost, Goth. trausti a convention, covenant, AS. trŭwian to trust, ON. trŭa, AS. trēowe faithful; cf. ML. trustis trust, protection. See TRUE; cf. TRUST, v., TRYST.] 1. Assured reliance on the integrity, veracity, justice, friendship, or other sound principle, of a person or thing; confidence; faith; belief.

Most take things upon trust. Locke.

2. Assured anticipation; dependence upon something future or contingent, as if present or actual; hope.

Such trust have we through Christ. 2 Cor. iii. 4.

3. Quality of being reliable; trustworthiness. Now Rare.

Trusses, 7. 1 Bowstring; 2 K; 3 Lattice; 4 Lenticular; 5 Quadrangular; 6 Hammer Beam; 7 Scissors; 8 Saw-tooth; 9 King, or King-post; 10 Inverted King or King-post; 11 Queen, or Queen-post; 12 Inverted Queen or Queen-post; 13 Bollman; 14 French, Belgian, or Cambered Fink; 15 Fink without Camber; 16 Fan Fink; 17 Fink (obsolete form); 18 Howe with Inclined Top Chords; 19 English, or Cambered Howe; 20 Howe with Parallel Chords; 21 Pegram; 22 Petit with Parallel Chords, or Baltimore; 23 Petit with Curved Top Chord, or Pennsylvania; 24 Post; 25 Pratt with Inclined Top Chords; 26 Pratt with Parallel Chords; 27 Curved Chord, or Camel-back, Pratt; 28 Warren, or (rarely) Zigzag; 29 Quadrangular, or Double Intersection, Warren; 30 Whipple, or Murphy.

trunk'ful, n. See -FUL, 2. trunk'less, adj. See -LESS. trunk'mak'er, n. See MAKER. trunk'way', n. = TRUNK, 16 c. trun'nel (trŭn''l). Var. of TREENAIL. trun'nion-less, adj. See -LESS. trus, trust. Truss. Ref. Sp.
truse. † TRUCE, TRUSS. trus'sel (trŭs''l; trŏs''l), trus'- sel·tree', trus'sle. Vars. of TRESTLE, etc.

4. The person or thing in which confidence is reposed; ground of reliance; as, they made penance their trust.
5. The condition, obligation, or right, of one to whom anything is confided; responsible charge or office.

[I] serve him truly that will put me in trust. Shak.

6. Custody; charge; as, a child committed to his trust.
7. Credit given; esp., reliance on future payment for merchandise or other property delivered; as, to sell on trust.
8. That which is committed or entrusted to one; specif.: a A duty, task, or charge, imposed in faith or confidence or by any relation; as, parenthood imposes a trust. b That committed or entrusted to one to be used or cared for in the interest of another; as, public office is a public trust.
9. Law. An equitable right or interest in property distinct from the legal ownership thereof; a use (as it existed before the Statute of Uses); also, a property interest held by one person for the benefit of another. Trusts are active, or special, express, implied, constructive, etc. (see these terms). A trust created by a living donor who prescribed in the instrument of gift how the income shall be used and how the principal sum shall be invested or reinvested is sometimes called a living trust. In a passive trust the trustee simply has title to the trust property, while its control and management are in the beneficiary.
10. A combination of firms or corporations formed by an agreement legally establishing a trust (sense 9), whereby stockholders in the separate corporations exchange their shares for shares representing proportionate interest in the principal and income of the combination, and surrender to the trustees the management and operation of the combined firms or corporations.
11. A permanent organization of any kind controlling the commercial policy of a number of establishments operated independently, esp. when such an organization is strong enough to control the prices of a line of products in a wide range of markets, suppressing or disregarding competition.

☞ Synonymous terms are: CARTEL, CONFERENCE, CORNER, MONOPOLY, POOL, SYNDICATE, TRUST. A MONOPOLY is the exclusive control of the supply of any commodity in a given market, no matter how obtained. A group of financiers organized to profit by such control is known as a SYNDICATE. Purely temporary and local control, as on the stock or produce exchange on a selling day, constitutes a CORNER. More permanent control, based on agreements regarding output or earnings, constitutes a POOL; when based on any form of intercorporate relation, it is currently known as a TRUST, whether there is any actual trust agreement or not. A CARTEL, in European use a pool or a trust, which may be sanctioned by public authority, sometimes also in British use in place of the older term conference, commonly denotes an association of rival firms of different nations joining by mutual agreement in activities in restraint of trade.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

trust agreement	trust-controlled	trust officer trust beneficiary	trust-controlling, adj.	trust-regulating, adj.
trust-bolstering, adj.	trust maker	trust-ridden trust-breaking, adj.	trustmonger	trust-winning, adj.

Syn. — TRUST, CONFIDENCE, RELIANCE, DEPENDENCE, ASSURANCE. TRUST is an absolute and assured resting on that which is its object, and is often more instinctive, less reasoned, than CONFIDENCE, which is apt to suggest somewhat definite grounds of assurance; as, "O God . . . in thee is my trust" (Ps. cxli. 8); "He was a gentleman on whom I built an absolute trust" (Shak.); "those in whom we had no confidence, and who reposed no confidence in us" (Burke); "No subterfuge or pleading shall win my confidence again" (Cowper). RELIANCE and DEPENDENCE are commonly more objective than trust and confidence, and suggest the act or state as well as the feeling; as, no reliance (or dependence) can be placed on his word; he acted in reliance (or dependence) on the promise that had been made. ASSURANCE, as here compared (cf. CONFIDENCE), adds to trust the element of certitude; as, "Faith is the assurance of things hoped for, a conviction of things not seen" (Heb. xi. 1, Am. R. V.). Cf. DEPENDENCE, BELIEF, RELIABLE.

Ant. — Distrust, suspicion, apprehension. See DOUBT.

— in trust. Held by a trustee. See TRUST, n., 9. — on or upon trust. With the sole basis of personal confidence.

trust (trŭst), v.; TRUST'ED; TRUST'ING. [ME. trusten, trosten (also tristen, tresten), prob. fr. ON. treysta, reflexive, to trust, rely; akin to ON. traust, n. See TRUST, n.] Intransitive: 1. To have trust, or confidence; to rely.

More to know could not be more to trust. Shak.

2. To be confident, as of something future; to hope.

I will trust and not be afraid. Is. xii. 2.

3. To sell or deliver on trust; to give credit.

—, Trans.: 1. To place confidence in; to rely on; confide or repose faith in; as, I cannot trust him or his word.
2. a To commit, or consign, as to one's care; to confer as a trust; as, he trusted his wealth to my care. b To allow to be or go somewhere or to do something without fear or misgiving; to venture confidently.

To trust thee from my side. Milton.

3. To give credence to; to believe; credit.

Trust me, you look well. Shak.

4. To hope or expect confidently; — usually with a phrase or infinitive clause as object; as, I trust we may meet.

I trust to come unto you, and speak face to face. 2 John 12.

5. To invest with a trust; to commission confidentially; to entrust; — used with with before that entrusted.

Whom, with your power and fortune, sir, you trust. Dryden.

6. To give credit to; to sell to in confidence of future payment; as, most merchants trust their customers.

trust to or unto. To depend or rely on.

trust, adj. 1. Obs. a Secure. b Reliable.
2. Held in trust; as, trust property; trust funds.

trust buster. U. S. A Federal district attorney or other public officer who seeks, under the antitrust laws, to secure the dissolution of trusts or one who attempts, usually for political ends, to secure their conviction. — trust busting. — trust'-bust'ing, adj. All Polit. Slang.

trust certificate. a A document defining the participatory interest of the holder in the trust which issues it, as contrasted with a trust bond or debenture, which is evidence of a fixed prior claim or lien. b A negotiable certificate carrying dividend rights, issued by the controlling board of a trust to those who have deposited corporate securities with them, the voting power of the securities being vested in the trustees.

trust company. a Any corporation formed for the purpose of acting as trustee. b U. S. A bank organized under State laws for handling trusts and also performing all the ordinary banking functions except the issuing of bank notes.

trust deed. Law. A deed conveying in trust, — often used as a mortgage.

trus·tee' (trŭs·tē'), n. 1. Orig., a person regarded with trust or to whom something is entrusted; now, one trusted to keep or administer something.
2. Law. a A person, whether real or juristic, to whom property is legally committed in trust; one entrusted with property for another. b U. S. One in whose hands the effects of another are attached by the trustee process.

trus·tee', v. t. To make a trustee of or over; specif.: Law. a To commit (property) to the care of a trustee; as, to trustee an estate. b U. S. To attach by the trustee process. See GARNISHMENT, n., 2 b. — v. i. To serve as trustee.

trustee bank, trustee savings bank. See SAVINGS BANK.

trus·tee'ism, n. The system of committing to the care of trustees.

trustee process. Law. The process of attachment by garnishment (which see). Cf. EQUITABLE GARNISHMENT. U. S.

trustee security. See SECURITY.

trustee stock. Finance. High-grade stock or bonds in which trust funds may be legally invested. Colloq.

trust'er (trŭs'tĕr), n. 1. One who trusts, or credits; specif.: a One who believes or accepts a thing as true. b One who gives credit; a creditor.
2. Scots Law. One who creates a trust; — correl. of trustee.

trust'ful (trŭst'fŏŏl; -fl), adj. a Obs. Trustworthy. b Full of trust; confiding. — trust'ful·ly, adv. — trust'ful·ness, n.

trust fund. Money, securities, or other like property, settled or held in trust.

trust'i·fy (trŭs'tĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). To form into a trust (esp. in sense 11) or trusts. — v. i. To form a trust or trusts. — trust'i·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ·kā'shŭn), n.

trust'ing, adj. That trusts; having trust; trustful. — trust'ing·ly, adv. — trust'ing·ness, n.

trust institution. A corporation engaged in the business of administering estates and trusts.

trust'less, adj. That may not be trusted; also, distrustful. — trust'less·ly, adv. — trust'less·ness, n.

trust'man (trŭst'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One whose occupation is handling trusts, in the service of a trust institution. — trust'wom'an (-wŏŏm'ăn), n.

trust mortgage. See MORTGAGE, 1.

trust officer. An officer of a trust institution.

trust receipt. a Banking. A trust agreement between a bank and its debtor, whereby the bank gives up possession of collateral security to the debtor without abandoning its title to the security, the debtor agreeing to hold the security in trust for the bank, and if the security is sold, to hold the proceeds in trust for the bank, and to pay them to the bank in settlement of the indebtedness. b Com. A receipt given by an importer to one (as a bank) who has loaned money upon the imported goods, vesting title in the lender, although the goods are in the possession of the importer.

trust'wor'thy (trŭst'wŭr'thĭ), adj. Worthy of trust or confidence; reliable. — trust'wor'thi·ly (-thĭ·lĭ), adv. — trust'wor'thi·ness (-thĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

Syn. — See RELIABLE. Ant. — Irresponsible; sly, tricky.

trust'y (trŭs'tĭ), adj.; TRUST'I·ER (-tĭ·ĕr); TRUST'I·EST. 1. Reposing trust or confidence; trustful; confiding.
2. Admitting of being safely trusted; justly deserving confidence; trustworthy; reliable; as, a trusty servitor.
3. Involving trust; as, a trusty business. Rare. Shak.

Syn. — See RELIABLE.

trust'y, n. A trusty or trusted person; specif., U. S., a convict considered trustworthy and allowed special privileges.

truth (trōōth; 242), n.; pl. TRUTHS (trōōthz; trōōths). [ME. truth, truthe, treuthe, trouthe, treowthe, fr. AS. trēowth, trīewth. See TRUE; cf. TROTH.] Quality or state of being true or faithful; hence: 1. Fidelity; constancy. Archaic.

Whispering tongues can poison truth. Coleridge.

2. Veracity; sincerity in character, action, and speech; genuineness in expressing feeling or belief.

If this will not suffice, it must appear That malice bears down truth. Shak.

3. a True religion; orthodoxy; spiritual reality.

Grace and truth came by Jesus Christ. John i. 17.

b Conformity with higher, or with ideal, standards.

Truth crushed to earth shall rise again. Bryant.

4. a Abstractly, conformity to fact or reality; the property in a conception, a judgment or proposition, a belief, an opinion, of being in accord with what is, has been, or must be; as, to seek the truth; historical truth. b Anything, as a judgment, proposition, etc., which has this property; something which is true; as, the truths of science; to tell the truth.

☞ There are three main types of truth (and of truths): (1) Existential, actual, or extensional truth; that is, exact conformity between the judgment and externally existent things in their actual status and relations. This class includes truths learned by observation or experiment (empirical truths). (2) Formal, logical, or intensional truth; that is, the true elaboration of concepts, meanings, or implications; as, the truth of a definition; the truth that certain premises give a certain conclusion. Such truths are relatively independent of external existence or nonexistence (necessary truths). (3) Normative, ethical, or ideal truth; that is, the truth about values or an ought. Such truths are presumably not determinable simply by the existence or nonexistence of things, or by logic alone, without reference to something further such as the human will or objective ideals. Some would add: (4) Metaphysical or transcendental truth; that is, the truth of fundamental reality, conceived as being partly or wholly transcendent of perceived actuality and experience.

☞ Theories of truth are: (1) That it consists simply in accord between ideas in the mind and an independently existent reality — characteristic of naïve realism. (2) That it represents the apprehension of certain objective essences, which external objects may embody or participate in — characteristic of Plato and certain other logical realists. (3) That the ultimate criterion of truth is the coherence of all its parts, or separate truths, with one another and with experience; — called the coherence theory of truth. (4) That an idea has truth when it is, or is capable of being, a pragmatically successful guide to action; that its essence is successful prediction; — called the pragmatic theory of truth.

5. [cap.] a Abstract truth (sense 4 a) personified as a goddess. b Christian Science. A synonym for God.
6. That which is true; as: a Real state of things; fact; reality; actual being or nature. Shak. b A true statement or proposition; an established principle, fixed law, verified fact, or the like; as, the great truths of morals. c The body of such truths collectively.

7. Agreement with represented reality; verity; in architecture, avoidance of deceits and imitations; in art, conformity with nature or conviction.
8. Reality; actual existence.

To feel the truth and stir of day. Tennyson.

9. Conformity to rule; exactness; close correspondence with an example, mood, object of imitation, or the like.
10. Obs. a Troth; pledge; agreement; promise; betrothal. b Faith; trust. c Belief. d Uprightness; integrity.
11. Hegelianism. The fully realized result. The truth of the acorn is the oak tree; the truth of being is becoming.
12. Mach. Accuracy or correctness of formation, adjustment, or position; — chiefly in phrase out of truth. Eng.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

truth-armed	truth-dictated	truth-perplexing truth-bearing	truth-filled	truth-revealing truth-cloaking	truth-guarding	truth-seeking truth-cowed	truth-instructed	truth-shod truth-declaring	truth-led	truth-speaking truth-denying	truth-loving	truth-tried truth-desiring	truth-mocking	truth-writ truth-destroying	truth-passing

Syn. — TRUTH, VERACITY, VERITY, VERISIMILITUDE. TRUTH is in general conformity to fact or reality; VERACITY is (esp. habitual) observance of the truth; as, "An honest mind and plain, he must speak truth" (Shak.); "This same truth is a naked and open daylight" (Bacon); "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John viii. 32); "to vindicate [Geoffrey's] veracity as an historian" (Pope); "a man of perfect veracity in thought, word, and deed" (Carlyle); "It [Tennyson's charm] lay in a great veracity of soul" (T. Watts-Dunton). VERITY is the quality of being true or real; the word often denotes an assured tenet; as, "I could almost as soon doubt the Gospel verity as his veracity" (Coleridge); the eternal verities. VERISIMILITUDE is resemblance to truth or reality; as, "There is no verisimilitude in the characters, but there is verisimilitude in the thoughts; they are true to life, and are always passing through our minds" (Jowett); "Scott . . . satisfied himself with seeking verisimilitude rather than antiquarian accuracy" (Walter Raleigh). Cf. REAL, HONEST.

Ant. — Falsity, falsehood, falseness, untruth, error, wrongness, fallacy, lie, untruthfulness.

— in truth. In reality; in fact. — of a truth. In reality; certainly. — the truth. Among those who hold a particular belief, truth (sense 4 a) as imparted peculiarly to them.

truth (trōōth), v. t. Rare. a Obs. To betroth. b To assert as true; to declare; affirm. c To make true (sense 10). — v. i. To act or speak with truth. Rare.

truth'a·ble (trōōth'ā·b'l), adj. Correct. Rare.

truth'ful (trōōth'fŏŏl; -fl), adj. Disposed to or characterized by truth; veracious; rendering reality accurately. — truth'ful·ly, adv. — truth'ful·ness, n.

Truthful James. A character in short poems of F. Bret Harte, often as the supposed speaker.

truth lover. One who loves the truth.

truth seeker. One who endeavors to ascertain truth.

truth serum. A drug administered to induce temporary truthfulness.

truths'man (trōōthz'măn; trōōths'-), n. A man devoted to truth.

truth speaker. One who speaks the truth.

truth'tell'er (trōōth'tĕl'ĕr), n. One who tells the truth. — truth'tell'ing, n. & adj.

tru'ti·nate (trōō'tĭ·nāt), v. t. [L. trutinatus, past part. of trutinari, fr. trutina a balance, fr. Gr. trytanē.] To weigh; balance; consider. Obs. — tru'ti·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n. Obs.

Trut'ta (trŭt'ȧ), n. [ML. trutta trout. See TRUTTACEOUS.] Zool. A subgenus (sometimes a genus) including the black-spotted trouts. They differ from the typical trouts (Salmo) in being marked with small black spots and in having smaller scales and fewer vertebrae. The brown trout of Europe, the rainbow trout, and the cutthroat trout of America, are examples.

trut·ta'ceous (trŭ·tā'shŭs), adj. [NL. trutaceus, fr. ML. trutta trout, fr. LL. tructa. See TROUT.] Pertaining to or like a trout.

trux·il'lic (trŭks·ĭl'lĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating any of a group of crystalline acids derived from cyclobutane and having the formula $C_{10}H_{16}O_4$; specif., designating the stereoisomeric 2,4-diphenyl-1,3-cyclobutanedicarboxylic acids, as α-truxillic acid (obtained by hydrolysis of α-truxilline). The isomeric 3,4-diphenyl-1,2-cyclobutane-dicarboxylic acids are now usually called truxinic acids. β-Truxinic acid (formerly, and still sometimes, called β-truxillic acid) is obtained by hydrolysis of β-truxilline.

trux·il'line (-ēn; -ĭn; 157), n. Also -lin. [From Truxillo, better Trujillo, Peru.] Chem. Either of two isomeric, white, amorphous alkaloids, $C_{26}H_{40}N_2O_6$, obtained from Truxillo coca and distinguished by the prefixes α- and β-. The mixture of the two was originally named cocamine.

try (trī), v.; TRIED (trīd); TRY'ING. [ME. trien to select, pick out, fr. OF. trier to sift, cull, pick out, of obscure origin; cf. Pr. & Catalan triar. Cf. TRIAL.] Transitive: 1. To cull out or separate as being proved the best, most useful, or the like; to separate, as one sort from another; — often with out; as, to try out the wild grain from the good. Archaic.
2. To essay by choice; attempt; endeavor; undertake.

Let us try . . . to found a path. Milton.

3. To test, prove, or make trial of, by or as by actual experiment for determining relative truth, usefulness, accuracy, strength, or other quality; to put to proof; to test; as, life tries all. "Let the end try the man." Shak.
4. To demonstrate to be such; prove.

He hath still been tried a holy man. Shak.

5. To settle by a test; specif., to decide by an appeal to arms; as, to try rival claims by a duel; to try conclusions by a trial at law.

Left I the court, to see this quarrel tried. Shak.

6. a To use experimentally; to experiment with; as, to try a new remedy or a new horse; also, to test experimentally; as, to try one's luck. b To experiment or practice upon; to treat experimentally; as, to try a sick child with various remedies; to try a convalescent's appetite with dainties.
7. To strain; to subject to excessive and harmful uses or tests; as, the light tries his eyes.
8. a To subject to afflictions or trials; to afflict.

These are the times that try men's souls. Thos. Paine.

b To torment; annoy; irritate; as, a child whose teasing sorely tries his mother.

trust. ✝ TRUSS.

trust'a·ble (trŭs'tȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — trust'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — trust'a·ble·ness, n. — trust'a·bly, adv.

trus·tee'ship, n. See -SHIP.

trust'en (trŭs'n), v. i. Trust. Obs. exc. Dial.

trus'tice, n. [Cf. TRUST, n.] Trusting; negotiation. Obs.

trust'i·hood, n. See -HOOD.

trust'i·ly (trŭs'tĭ·lĭ), adv. of TRUSTY. See -LY.

trust'i·ness, n. See -NESS.

trus'tle (trŭs'l; trŏŏs'l). Dial. Eng. var. of TREESTLE.

trust'ly, adv. Trustily. Obs.

trute. ✝ TROUT.

truth'i·fy (trōōth'ĭ·fī), v. i. = TRUTH. [n. See -NESS.

truth'i·ness (trōōth'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs), truth'less, adj. See -LESS. — truth'less·ly, adv. — truth'lessness, n.

truth'like', adj. See -LIKE. — truth'like'ness, n.

truth'ness, n. Truth. Obs.

tru'tine, n. [L. trutina. See TRONE.] A balance. Obs. [Eng.

truv'at (trŭv'ăt), n. = 1st TRIVET.

truwage. ✝ TREWAGE.

truwes. ✝ TRUCE.

Tru·xil'lo co'ca (trōō·hē'yō; 170; 260). See COCA, n., 2.

trux·in'ic ac'id (trŭks·ĭn'ĭk). See TRUXILLIC.

9. To melt out, and procure in a pure state, as oil, tallow, lard, etc.; to render; — often with out; as, to try out whale oil from the blubber.

The words of the Lord are pure words: as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times. Ps. xii. 6.

10. To attempt to seduce (a woman) or cover (a mare).

11. Obs. a To select; choose. b To sift; strain out; hence, to sift out; ascertain. c To purify or refine, as metals. d To experience; to know by experience.

12. Carp. & Mech. To fit or finish with accuracy; specif., to plane with the trying plane; — usually with up.

13. Law. To examine or investigate judicially; to examine by witnesses or other judicial evidence and the principles of law; to conduct the trial of; as, to try a criminal.

—, Intransitive: 1. To sit in judgment. Obs.

2. To prove something by experiment; to make trial.

3. To endeavor; to make an effort, attempt, or search.

4. To do; fare; as, how do you try? Dial. Eng.

5. Naut. To lie, in a gale, head to the wind under very little canvas. Archaic.

Syn. — TRY, ATTEMPT, ESSAY, ENDEAVOR. TRY is the general and familiar word; ATTEMPT is more formal, and commonly implies a certain degree of effort; ESSAY is somewhat bookish, and emphasizes the idea of experiment or tentative action; ENDEAVOR heightens the implication of striving or exertion, sometimes suggesting high or aspiring effort. Cf. TRIAL, EFFORT.

try a fall. To try a bout at wrestling.

try and. To try to; — with an infinitive. Colloq.

try back. To return over a course; hark back; revert.

try conclusions. To match strength or skill in order to discover the superior; — usually with with.

try for. a To endeavor to come to, attain, or obtain. b In and near Pennsylvania and elsewhere in the Appalachian Mountain regions, to treat a sick person by magic; — said esp. of hex doctors.

try it on. To make experimental use of something, especially to get the better of another. Slang.

try on. To put on, as a garment, to ascertain whether it fits the person.

try one's hand. To attempt for the first time tentatively; — usually with at.

try on the dog. a To test (food) by a dog's acceptance or rejection. b To test (a theatrical production) by provincial performance.

try out. To make a preliminary or experimental test of the ability, efficacy, etc., of. Colloq.

try (trī), n.; pl. TRIES (trīz). 1. A trial; test. Shak.

2. A screen, or sieve, for grain. Obs.

3. An attempt; an experimental trial; — usually with at. Colloq.

4. a In Rugby football, a score (counting three points) made by grounding the ball on or behind the opponents' goal line; — so called because it entitles the side making it to a try at goal, a place kick for a goal (counting two points more if successful). Cf. TOUCHDOWN. b In American football, short for TRY FOR POINT.

—at try. Lying to. Obs.

try, adj. Choice; good. Obs.

try cock. a Steam Boilers. Any of two or more cocks arranged one above the other to ascertain the water level; a gauge cock. b A cock for withdrawing a small quantity of liquid, as for testing.

try'er-out' (trī'ĕr-out'), n. One who tries out.

try for point. Amer. Football. An attempt, made after scoring a touchdown, to score a goal, again carry the ball across the opponents' goal line, or complete a forward pass in the opponents' end zone, so as to score an additional point.

try'gon (trī'gŏn), n. [L. See TRYGONIDAE.] A sting ray.

Try·gon'i·dae (trī·gŏn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. trygon sting ray, fr. Gr. trygōn.] Zool. Syn. of DASYATIDAE. See STING RAY.

try gun. A gun with its stock adjustable to allow the user to determine the size and shape of stock best suited to him.

try'house' (trī'hous'), n. A house for trying blubber or lard. See TRY, v. t., 9.

try'ing (-ĭng), adj. That tries. — try'ing·ly, adv. — try'ing·ness, n.

try'ing, n. Act of one who tries.

try'ing, adj. Fitted for, or used in, trying.

trying plane. A jointer. See 4th PLANE, 2.

try'ma (trī'mȧ), n. [Gr., hole.] Bot. A nutlike drupe, in which the epicarp and mesocarp separate as a somewhat fleshy or leathery rind from the hard 2-valved endocarp. The walnut and hickory nut are examples.

tryms (trĭmz). Var. of THRYMSA.

try'—on', n. Act or instance of trying on; Slang, an attempt, esp. at deceit.

try'out' (trī'out'), n. 1. In sports, a test by which the fitness of a contestant to remain in a certain class is determined.

2. A performance or opportunity for demonstration given as a test. Colloq., U. S.

tryp (trĭp), n. A trypanosoma.

try'pa (trī'pȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trypa hole.] A pore in the front wall of the zooecium of a polyzoan. — tryp'i·ate (trĭp'ĭ·ăt), adj.

tryp'an blue (trĭp'ăn). [From Trypanosoma.] A disazo dye derived from tolidine and H acid, used as a remedy for distemper in dogs and for certain protozoan infections, and as a direct dye for cotton under various names, as direct blue 3 B.

tryp'a·no- (trĭp'ȧ·nō-), trypan-. A combining form, Greek trypano-, trypan-, from trypanon, meaning a borer, trepan, as in trypanosome; specif., Med., trypanosome, as in tryp'a·no·cid'al, tryp'a·no·cide', tryp'a·nol'y·sis, tryp'a·no·lyt'ic. See -CIDE, -LYTIC, etc.

tryp'a·no·ly'sin (-lĭ'sĭn), n. [trypano- + -lysin.] A specific immune body causing the dissolution of trypanosomes.

Tryp'a·no·so'ma (trĭp'ȧ·nō·sō'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. trypanon auger + sōma body.] Zool. A genus of parasitic flagellate protozoans (family Trypanosomatidae) having the anterior flagellum expanded into a delicate undulating membrane which runs down the side of the body and sometimes projects as a second flagellum behind; also [not cap.], a parasite of this genus. They infest the blood of various animals, including man, being usually transferred by the bite of some species of insect which is an intermediate host of the parasite, and some cause serious or fatal disease. Trypanosoma gambiense (transmitted by the fly Glossina palpalis), causing the sleeping sickness of Africa; T. evansii, causing surra; T. brucei (transmitted by the tsetse fly), causing nagana (very fatal to domestic animals in parts of Africa); and T. cruzi, causing Chagas' disease in South America, are examples. — tryp'a·no·so'mal (-mȧl), tryp'a·no·so·mat'ic (-sō·mȧt'ĭk), tryp'a·no·som'a·tous (-sōm'ȧ·tŭs; -sō'mȧ·tŭs), tryp'a·no·som'ic (-sōm'ĭk), adj.

Tryp'a·no·so·mat'i·dae (-sō·mȧt'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See TRYPANOSOMA; -IDAE.] Zool. A family of protozoans (order Protomonadina) typified by the genus Trypanosoma.

tryp'a·no·some' (trĭp'ȧ·nō·sōm'; trĭ·păn'ō-), n. Zool. A protozoan parasite of the genus Trypanosoma.

tryp'a·no·so·mi'a·sis (-sō·mī'ȧ·sĭs), n. [NL. See TRYPANOSOMA; -IASIS.] Med. Disease due to infection by trypanosomes; infestation of the body with trypanosomes.

tryp'an red (trĭp'ăn). Pharm. A disazo dye derived from benzidine and beta-naphthylamine and used as a remedy in trypanosomiasis and inflammation of the lymph glands.

Tryp'ars·am'ide (trĭp'ärs·ăm'īd; -ĭd; trĭp·ärs'ȧ·mī'd; -mĭd), n. [trypanosome + ars- + amide.] Pharm. A trade-mark for a trypanocidal agent used in the treatment of African sleeping sickness and syphilis of the central nervous system; hence [sometimes not cap.], the preparation bearing this trade-mark.

Try·pet'i·dae (trī·pĕt'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Trypeta, type genus (fr. Gr. trypētēs a borer) + -idae.] Zool. A family of acalyptrate muscoid flies, having a piercing ovipositor, and having the wings usually banded or spotted. It includes a number of important pests of various fruits. The type genus is Try·pe'ta (trī·pē'tȧ). — tryp'e·tid (trĭp'ĕ·tĭd), n. & adj.

Try·phe'na (trī·fē'nȧ), n. [L. Tryphaena, fr. Gr. Tryphaina.] Lit., delicate; luxurious; — fem. proper name.

Try·pho'sa (trī·fō'sȧ), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tryphōsa.] Lit., luxurious; dainty; — feminine proper name.

try plane. A trying plane.

tryp'o·graph (trĭp'ō·grȧf), n. [Gr. trypan to pierce through + -graph.] A kind of mimeograph. — tryp'o·graph'ic (-grăf'ĭk), adj.

try'—pot' (trī'pŏt'), n. A metallic pot used on whalers or on shore for rendering blubber.

tryp'sin (trĭp'sĭn), n. [G., fr. Gr. tryein to rub down, wear out (hence, to digest) + pepsin. Cf. AMYLOPSIN.] Biochem. a A proteolytic enzyme present in the pancreatic juice, differing from pepsin in acting in a neutral or alkaline medium and in producing a more thorough decomposition of the protein substances. b Any of several similar enzymes, occurring in other animal juices and in various plants.

tryp'sin·ize (-īz), v. t. Bacteriol. & Biochem. To subject to the action of trypsin.

tryp·sin'o·gen (trĭp·sĭn'ō·jĕn), n. [trypsin + -gen.] Biochem. The antecedent of trypsin, a substance contained in the cells of the pancreas and giving rise to the trypsin.

tryp'tase (trĭp'tās), n. Biochem. Any enzyme of the trypsin type.

tryp'tic (trĭp'tĭk), adj. [From TRYPSIN.] Physiol. Relating to trypsin or to its action; produced by trypsin; as, tryptic digestion.

tryp'tone (trĭp'tōn), n. [G. trypton, fr. Gr. tryein to rub down + pepton peptone.] Biochem. A peptone produced by the action of trypsin.

tryp'to·nize (trĭp'tō·nīz), v. t. Biochem. To convert into tryptone.

tryp'to·phan (-făn), tryp'to·phane (-fān), n. [tryptic + -phane.] Biochem. A crystalline amino acid, $C_{11}H_{12}N_2O_2$, a product of tryptic digestion, which gives a red or violet color on oxidation; β-3-indyl-alanine. It is essential to animal life.

try'sail' (trī'sāl'; naut. trĭ's'l), n. Naut. a A fore-and-aft sail bent to a gaff, hoisted on a lower mast or a small mast (trysail mast) close abaft, and usually connected to, a lower mast, and used chiefly as a storm sail; — called also spencer when at the foremast or mainmast. b In a yacht, a small and strongly made sail, either triangular or with a very short gaff, set in place of the mainsail in heavy weather.

try square. An instrument consisting of two straightedges secured at right angles to each other and used for laying off right angles, and testing whether work is square; — called also right-angle gauge.

Try Square.

tryst (trĭst; trīst; 277: in Scot. & Dial. trĭst only), n. [ME. trist, triste, tristre, fr. OF. triste, tristre, a place for watching or waiting (in hunting), an ambush (F. tître), prob. of Scand. origin. See TRUST, v. & n.] 1. An appointment to meet; a meeting; also, an appointed place of meeting; a trysting place; as, to keep tryst.

2. A set time; an appointed term. Rare.

3. a Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng. A market or fair; esp., a fixed annual cattle market; as, the tryst of Falkirk. b A meeting or gathering of people, esp. for merrymaking.

4. A betrothal; engagement; also, an agreement of any sort. Scot.

tryst, v.; TRYST'ED; TRYST'ING. [See TRYST, n.] Transitive: 1. To agree to meet at a certain time or place; to make tryst with. Chiefly Scot.

2. Scot. a To appoint; fix; engage. b To afflict; visit; — of evil or good fortune. c To engage for marriage; to betroth. d To invite; beguile.

3. To bespeak; order beforehand. Scot. & Ir.

—, Intransitive: 1. To agree upon a meeting; to make a tryst; also, to meet. Chiefly Scot.

2. Obs. a To fall together in time. b To come to terms.

tryst'er (trĭs'tĕr; trīs'tĕr), n. One who trysts or comes to a tryst.

tryst'ing (-tĭng), n. An appointment; tryst.

trysting day. An arranged day of meeting or assembling.

trysting place. An agreed meeting place; rendezvous.

try'works' (trī'wûrks'), n. A brick furnace in which trypots are placed; also, the furnace with the pots.

tsam'ba (tsăm'bȧ), n. [Tibetan tsampa, written rtsampa.] Barley parched and ground; — the chief cereal food in and near Tibet.

tsan'tsa (tsăn'tsȧ), n. [Jivaro.] A shrunken head as prepared by Jivaran tribes.

tsa, n. = CHA, tea.

tsien (chyĕn). Var. of CH'IEN.

‖tsi'gane'. Var. of CZIGANY.

Tsi·ha'lis. Var. of CHEHALIS.

Tsim'shi·an (tsĭm'shĭ·ăn), adj. = CHIMMESYAN.

Ts'in. Var. of CH'IN.

Tsin. Var. of CHIN.

tsing. Var. of CHING.

Tsing. = TA CH'ING.

tsouen. Var. of TS'UN.

Ts'ao (tsou), n. Chinese Hist. One of the rival states during the 5th century B.C.

tsat'lee' (tsăt'lē'), n. [Cant. pron. of Chin. (Pek.) Ch'i²-li⁴, lit., seven li, a place noted for silk producing.] Raw Chinese silk from the province of Hupeh, formerly considered the finest.

T scale. Psychol. & Educ. A scale for expressing the results of all tests in comparable form, based upon the performance of a representative group of twelve-year-old children, their average being called 50 units, and their standard deviation being taken as 10 units. Raw scores can then be converted into T scores, which usually lie between 15 and 85 units on the scale.

tscheff'kin·ite (chĕf'kĭn·īt), n. [After K. V. Tscheffkin; or Chevkin, Russ. general.] Mineral. A silicotitanate of the cerium metals with iron and calcium, occurring in velvet-black masses. H., 5–5.5. Sp. gr., 4.5.

tset'se (tsĕt'sē), n., or, tsetse fly. [S. Afr. D. tsetse, of Bantu origin; cf. Sesuto ntsintsi, ntsi, fly, Nyanja nchenche, Swahili nzi, Ila inzhi; prob. of imitative origin.] A fly (Glossina morsitans), family Muscidae, of central and southern Africa, which by its bite conveys to various animals as cattle, horses, and goats, the parasite (Trypanosoma brucei) that causes nagana, and renders certain districts uninhabitable for these domestic animals during certain seasons. A closely related species (G. palpalis) is the carrier of the trypanosome T. gambiense causing sleeping sickness in man. The Rhodesian form of this disease is caused by T. rhodesiense which, as well as nagana, is carried by the tsetse. See SLEEPING SICKNESS, 1.

Tsetse Fly (Glossina morsitans). (× 1½) tsetse fly disease. Nagana. Africa.

Tshi (chwē), adj. Designating a linguistic stock of Negroes of the Gold Coast of West Africa, comprising the Ashanti, Fanti, Akim, Akwapim, and other tribal groups. — n. The Tshi language, the chief language of the Gold Coast. The two main groups of dialects are the Fanti and the Akan (Akim, Akwapim). Called also Twi. See SUDANIC LANGUAGES.

Tsil·ta'den (tsĭl·tȧ'dĕn), n. An Indian of a band of Chiricahua Apache, associated with the Pinaleños. See PINALEÑO.

tsine (tsīn), n. [Burmese (t)saiñ written as cuiñ.] The banteng.

tsing'tau'ite (tsĭng'tou'īt), n. [From Tsingtao, Shantung, China.] Petrog. A porphyritic granite porphyry with phenocrysts of orthoclase in a fine-grained groundmass of quartz and alkali feldspar.

tsi·ol'o·gy (tsĭ·ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. A dissertation on tea.

T slot. A T-shaped slot. — T'-slot', adj.

T'—slot' cut'ter. Mach. A small side-milling cutter with a necked-down shank, for completing the bottoms of T slots.

Tso Chüan (dzō jwän). Chinese Literature. A Chinese writing, for centuries considered a commentary on the Ch'un Ch'iu, but probably of independent origin. See FIVE CLASSICS.

Tso·ne'ca (tsō·nā'kä), n. A Tehuelche.

Tso·ne'can, Tso·ne'kan (-kăn), adj. Designating, or pertaining to, the linguistic family of South American Indians comprising the Tehuelches, and, according to some philologists, including also the Onas of Tierra del Fuego. Cf. FUEGIAN, PATAGONIAN, TEHUELCHE.

T square. a A ruler having a crosspiece or head at one end, used in making parallel lines and as a support for triangles used in drawing lines at different angles to the ruler; — so called from its shape. It is laid on a drawing board and guided by the crosspiece, which is pressed against the straight edge of the board. b Rare. A try square.

tst, interj. A hissed sound enjoining silence.

T steak, n. A steak with a T-shaped bone.

tsu'ba (tsōō'bȧ), n. [Jap.] The metal guard of the Japanese sword, often elaborately decorated.

Tsu'ga (tsū'gȧ), n. [NL., fr. Jap. tsuga larch.] Bot. A small genus of evergreen trees (family Pinaceae), the hemlocks or hemlock spruces, distinguished by the drooping branches, linear leaves with persistent petiole bases, and reflexed cones. Two species occur on the Atlantic coast of North America, two on the Pacific coast; the rest are Asiatic. See HEMLOCK, 2.

tsu'meb·ite (tsōō'mĕb·īt; sōō'-), n. [From Tsumeb, Otavi dist., South-West Africa.] Mineral. A hydrous basic lead copper phosphate occurring in small emerald-green monoclinic crystals. H., 3.5. Sp. gr., 6.1.

ts'un (tsōōn), n [Chin. (Pek.) ts'un⁴.] A unit of measure equal to one tenth of a ch'ih in old and new (metric) units. See CH'IH.

tsu·na'mi (tsōō·nä'mē), n. [Jap., storm wave.] A seismic disturbance of the ocean; a great sea wave produced by submarine earth movement or volcanic eruption.

Tsung'—li' Ya'men (dzōōng'lē' yä'mĕn). [Chin. (Pek.) tsung³ general + li³ managing + ya²men² office.] The Chinese board or department of foreign affairs through which, from its establishment in 1861 until 1901, communications to the throne and the Six Departments of the government were addressed by the foreign ministers. See WAI-WU PU.

tsung'tu' (dzōōng'dōō'). [Chin. (Pek.) tsung³ general + tu¹ superintendent.] A viceroy or governor general, formerly the highest provincial official in China, with civil and military authority over one or more provinces.

tsu·tsu'ga·mu'shi mite (tsōō·tsōō'ngä·mōō'shē). [Jap. tsutsugamushi, fr. mushi bug.] A small Japanese mite (Trombidium akamushi), the carrier of kedani fever.

Tsu'tsu·tsi (tsōō'tsōō·jē), n. [Jap. tsutsuji.] Any of several Asiatic azaleas, mostly Japanese, with more or less persistent leaves, and showy flowers. Among garden favorites included in the group are Azalea indica and A. yedoense.

Tu'a·mo'tu·an (tōō'ä·mō'tōō·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to the Tuamotu Archipelago, or its inhabitants. — n. One of the natives of the Tuamotu Archipelago; also, their language; Tuamotu.

tu·an' (tōō·ăn'), n. [Malay.] Sir; — applied to Europeans or to a gentleman of any race. Malaysia.

try'a·ble, try'al. Vars. of TRIABLE, TRIAL.

tryme. † TREMBLE.

tryne. † TRAIN, TREEN, TRINE.

trypan-. = TRYPANO-.

Tryp'a·ne'i·dae (trĭp'ȧ·nē'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. trypanon auger.] Syn. of TRYPETIDAE. — tryp'a·ne'id (-ĭd), n. & adj.

tryp'a·no·so'ma·cide (trĭp'ȧ·nō·sō'mȧ·sīd), n. See -CIDE. — tryp'a·no·so'ma·cid'al (-sĭd'ăl; -ĭ'ăl), adj.

tryp'a·no·so'ma·to'sis (-tō'sĭs), n. [NL.] = TRYPANOSOMIASIS.

Try'phon (trī'fŏn), Bib.

tryp'to·gen (trĭp'tō·jĕn), n. [See -GEN.] = TRYPSINOGEN.

try't (trīt). Scot. var. of TRIED.

tsa'dik. Var. of SADDIK.

tsar (tsär), tsar'e·vitch, tsa·ri'na, etc. Vars. of CZAR, etc.

Tsat'ti·ne. = 1st BEAVER, 8.

Tscekh (chĕk). Var. of CZECH.

Tscher·kess' (chĕr·kĕs'), n. = CIRCASSIAN.

tschi·bouque'. Var. of CHIBOUK.

Tsech (tsĕk). Var. of CZECH.

tse're, n. Heb. Gram. Var. of SERE.

tse·sar'e·vitch. Var. of CESAREVITCH.

tses'se·be, tses'se·by (tsĕs'ē·bĭ). Vars. of SASSABY.

tsu'bo (tsōō'bō), n. sing. & pl. [Jap.] See MEASURE, Table.

Tsu'ma (tsōō'mä), n. See QUETZALCOATL.

Tsu'shi'ma (tsōō'shē'mä), n. See BATTLE, Table.

TT. See SHOT, n., 11.

tu. Var. of TEW.

tu. Var. of THOU, TO. Obs. exc. Dial.

tu (dōō), n. sing. & pl. [Chin. (Pek.) tu⁴, a degree.] See MEASURE, Table.

tu'a (tōō'ä), n. = TUI. Phil. I.

tua, tuae. † TWO.

tualle. † TOWEL.

Tu·a'la·ti (tōō·ä'lä·tĭ), n. = ATFALATI.

Tu'a·ma'tef (tōō'ä·mä'tĕf). Var. of DUAMUTEF. See AMENTI.

Tu'a·mo'tu (-mō'tōō), n. See AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES.

tu'an (tū'ăn). Variant of TAGUAN.

tu·an' mu'da (tōō·ăn' mōō'dä). [Malay tuan lord + muda young.] Second son; in Sarawak, [caps.] a title of the (Eng.) heir presumptive.

‖tu'ant' (tū'ănt'), adj. [F.] Killing; deadly; trenchant.

Tua'reg (twä'rĕg), n. [From Touareg, Berber pron. of Ar. Tawāriq, pl. of Tāriq.] One of the dominant nomads of the central and western Sahara, perhaps descendants of the ancient Gaetulians. They have preserved their Hamitic speech in great purity, as also their alphabet, derived probably from the Punic, but have adopted the Moslem religion. They are very tall, of regular features, and occasionally light-haired. The men wear a cloth wrapped about the face but their women go unveiled. They are divided also as Imohagh, in the north, and Imochagh or Imoshagh, in the south. Cf. TIFINAGH.

tu'art (tōō'ĕrt), n. Also too'art, tou'art, tew'art. [Native name.] An Australian white gum (Eucalyptus gomphocephala) yielding hard durable timber used for shipbuilding.

tu'a·ta'ra (tōō'ä·tä'rä), n. Also tu'a·te'ra (-tā'rä). [Maori tuatāra, fr. tua on the farther side (the back) + tara spine.] A large iguanalike reptile (Sphenodon punctatum) formerly common in New Zealand, but now confined to certain islets near the coast. It is the only surviving rhynchocephalian and has a pineal body which shows distinct traces of having functioned as an eye in past ages. It reaches a length of two and a half feet, is dark olive-green with small white or yellowish specks on the sides, and has yellow spines along the back, except on the neck.

Tuatara. (⅛)

tu'ath (thōō'ä; tōō'ä), n. [Ir. See DUTCH.] Irish Hist. A state (sense 14); also, the territory occupied by a tuath.

Tu'a·tha De Da'nann (thōō'ä·hä dē dä'nän). [OIr. tribes or folk of the goddess Danu.] The gods of the pagan Irish. According to tradition they came from the northern parts of Europe and landed in Ireland in clouds of mist. After defeat by the Milesians, they betook themselves to Tír na nOg and became identified with the fairy people. Cf. FIRBOLG.

tub (tŭb), n. [ME. tubbe, tobbe, fr. MD. (& MLG.) tubbe, tobbe (D. tobbe); prob. akin to OHG. zubar, G. zuber, zober.] 1. A bucketlike vessel, wide and low, usually about the size of a half barrel, originally formed with wooden staves, round bottom, and hoops.

2. A tubfish. Local, Eng.

3. Something shaped like, or likened to, a tub; as: a An old form of pulpit. b Slang. A slow-moving boat or vessel. c A very corpulent person. d Local, U. S. An old-fashioned hand-drawn fire engine.

4. The amount which a tub will hold; the contents of a tub; as, a tub of butter, of tea. A tub of oysters varies from ½ to 3 bushels. See MEASURE, Table.

5. A vessel to contain water for bathing or tubbing; a bathtub; hence, the act or process of bathing or tubbing; as, a morning tub. Colloq.

6. A small cask; esp., a keg or cask holding about four gallons, formerly used by smugglers; as, a tub of gin.

7. A sweating tub; a sweating in a tub. Obs.

8. Mining. a A box or bucket in which coal or ore is sent up a shaft. b A keeve. c A tram used underground. d A puddling tub.

9. Naut. a Rare. A cylindrical band attached to a gaff or yard and sliding on the mast as the spar is hoisted or lowered. b A pair-oared gig with a place for a coach in the stern. c A rack for topsail halliards. See 8th RACK, 14.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tub-brained	tub-keeping, adj.	tubmaking
tub-coopering, adj.	tubmaker	tub-shaped

— the Tub. The school of cynics; — from the tradition that Diogenes lived in a tub.

-tub (-tŭb). A combining form of tub, as in bath*tub*, wash*tub*.

tub (tŭb), v.; TUBBED (tŭbd); TUB'BING. Transitive: 1. To wash or bathe in a tub.

2. To plant or set in a tub; as, to tub a plant.

3. Mining. To line with tubbing; to keep back (water) by tubbing (sometimes with off). See TUBBING, 1 b.

4. Rowing. To coach in a tub (sense 9 b). Slang.

——, Intransitive: 1. To use a bathing tub; to take a bath. Colloq.

2. To undergo washing; as, rayons that tub well.

3. Rowing. To practice in a tub (sense 9 b). Slang.

tub, adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or like, a tub; using or kept in a tub or tubs.

2. = WASH, adj., 3; as, tub goods, silk, dresses.

tu'ba (tū'bä), n.; pl. TUBAE (-bē), TUBAS (-bäz). [L., trumpet. See TUBE.] 1. [NL.] Anat. A tube.

2. Music. a A large, deep-toned saxhorn with from three to five valves; — called also bass saxhorn. The most common sizes are: the tenor (euphonium), E♭ bass, and BB♭ double bass. The latter two are called bombardons, or, when circular in form, helicons or sousaphones. The four-valve E♭ bass with a compass of EE♭–eb' (see PITCH, Illust.) constitutes the bass of the brass section in the modern orchestra. The four-valve BB♭ bass with a range of BBB♭–b♭ (see PITCH, Illust.) is the contrabass of the modern band. b A powerful organ reed stop of 8-foot pitch.

Bass Tuba.

3. Rom. Antiq. A trumpet in the form of a straight tube with flaring mouth, usually of bronze.

tu'ba (tōō'bä), n. [Ar. (fr. Aram.) ṭūba blessed, misinterpreted as meaning tree.] A mythical tree growing in the Mohammedan jenna, or paradise.

tu'ba (tōō'bä), n. [Tag.] 1. The physic nut. Phil. I.

2. In Malaysia, esp. the Philippines, any of several fish poisons derived from the sap, bark, or seeds, of various plants, esp. cocculus indicus, the physic nut, species of Dalbergia, Croton tiglium, etc.

tu'ba (Span. & Eng. pron. tōō'bä; Tagalog tōō·bä'), n. [Tag.] a The fermented sap of various palms, esp. the nipa and coconut palms, extensively extracted in the Philippine Islands for the manufacture of alcohol. b A strongly alcoholic liquor (beno) distilled from the sap when fermented.

Tu'ba (tōō'bä), n. sing. & pl. One of the Tatarized Samoyed.

‖tu'ba au'di·ti'va (tū'bä ô'dĭ·tī'vä). [NL.] The Eustachian tube.

tub'age (tŭb'ĭj), n. [Cf. F. tubage.] 1. Tubing.

2. Ordn. Formerly, act or process of inserting in a gun, usually a smoothbore gun of large caliber, a tube of wrought iron or steel, increasing the strength but decreasing the caliber of the gun.

3. Surg. Intubation.

tub'al (tūb'ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to a tube, esp. a Fallopian tube.

tub'al, n. A Fallopian tube.

Tu'bal (tū'băl), n. Bib. A son of Japheth. Gen. x. 2.

Tu'bal–cain' (-kān'), n. Bib. Son of Lamech, a teacher of artificers in brass and iron. Gen. iv. 22.

tubal pregnancy. Med. Ectopic pregnancy in a Fallopian tube.

tu'ba·phone (tū'bä·fōn), n. [1st tuba + -phone.] A form of xylophone having, instead of wooden bars, a row of brass tubes.

tu'bar (tū'bĕr), adj. Tubular.

tu'bate (-bāt), adj. Having or forming a tube or tubes; tubiform; tubular; as, a tubate gland.

‖tu'ba u'te·ri'na (tū'bä ū'tĕ·rī'nä). [NL.] The Fallopian tube.

tub'ba·ble (tŭb'ä·b'l), adj. Suitable for tubbing.

tub'bal (tŭb''l), n. [Cf. TWIBIL.] A mattock. Dial. Eng.

tub'beck (tŭb'ĕk), n. [Burmese tupet, written as tupak, shawl.] A sash, usually red, worn by women. Burma.

tub'ber (tŭb'ĕr), n. One who makes or works with tubs; a cooper.

tub'ber, n. One who tubs.

tub'ber (tŭb'ĕr), n. [Cf. TUBBAL.] A kind of pickax. Cornwall.

tub'bie (tŭb'ĭ), n. A cooper; also, his helper. Brit.

tub'bing (tŭb'ĭng), n. 1. The making of tubs; also, materials for making tubs.

2. Act of using a tub, as for bathing or washing.

3. Act or practice of rowing in a tub (sense 9 b).

4. Engin. & Mining. A lining of timber or metal for a shaft; esp., a watertight shaft lining consisting of a series of cast-iron cylinders bolted together, used in sinking through water-bearing strata.

tub'bish (tŭb'ĭsh), adj. Like a tub.

tub'boe (tŭb'ō), n. [Also tubba; cf. Fanti odube yaws.] Med. Yaws of the soles of the feet or palms of the hands.

tub butter. Butter marketed in wooden tubs.

tub'by (tŭb'ĭ), adj.; TUB'BI·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); TUB'BI·EST. Resembling or suggesting a tub; as: a Tub-shaped; round, thick, and clumsy. b Sounding dull and without resonance; wanting elasticity or freedom of sound; as, a tubby violin.

tub desk. A desk with an open top having divisions for filing cards.

tube (tūb; 242), n. [F., fr. L. tubus; akin to L. tuba a trumpet. Cf. 1st TUBA.] 1. a A hollow cylinder, of any material, to convey liquids or gases or for some other purpose; as, a fire tube; a water tube; a condenser tube (see CONDENSER, 2 e & f); the tubes of a tubular bridge; a friction tube; the tube of a musical instrument; bronchial tube; a priming tube, etc. Cf. PIPE. b Any similar hollow conduit, often oval, square, or polygonal in section.

☞ The word tube is arbitrarily associated with certain articles or devices not customarily called pipes, and vice versa, although tube and pipe are practically synonymous mechanically; as, iron pipe; glass or rubber tube; gas pipe; boiler tube.

2. Something with a tube or tubelike part as its chief feature, as a gun or telescope. "Glazed optic tube." Milton.

3. A cannon; a firearm. Poetic.

4. A cylindrical metal container from which pastes may be squeezed; as, a tube of tooth paste.

5. Short for INNER TUBE, TEST TUBE, TUBULAR SKATE.

6. A pipe (sense 11 a). Obs.

7. Bot. The narrow basal portion of a gamopetalous corolla or a gamosepalous calyx; also, the united part of a monadelphous androecium.

8. Elec. An electron tube.

9. Elec. & Magnetism. A space, usually assumed to be tubular in form, bounded by lines of force or induction; — called specif. tube of force, or tube of induction. It is the geometrical figure formed when in any vector field a small closed curve is drawn, and through each point of this curve there is drawn a line, prolonged in both directions from the curve, having the direction at each point coinciding with the direction of the vector at that point. If the vector is a solenoidal one, each tube so formed will either have its ends on the boundary of the field or be closed on itself forming a ring or loop. It is customary to consider the entire vector field filled with such tubes and to make them of such cross sections that the number of tubes passing through a unit area perpendicular to the tubes equals the value of the vector at that point. The total number of tubes passing through any surface will then equal the flux of the vector.

10. Ordn. The inner cylinder of a built-up gun, usually extending from the inner face of the breechblock to the muzzle. It carries the rifling on its inner surface and is surrounded by the jacket and hoops, if any are used.

11. Railroads. A tunnel for an underground, or tube, railway; also, Colloq., a tube railway.

12. Surg. A cannula.

13. Zool. a A more or less cylindrical, sometimes crooked or spirally twisted, case secreted or constructed by many annelids, a few larval insects, and other animals, for protection or concealment. b One of the siphons of a bivalve mollusk.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tube-bearing, adj.	tube-fed	tube-shaped tube brazer	tube-filling, adj.	tubesmith tube-curing, adj.	tubemaker	tube-straightening, adj.
tube-drawing, adj.	tubemaking	tube-weaving, adj.
tube-drilling, adj.	tube-rolling, adj.	tubework tube-eyed	tube-scraping, adj.	tubeworks tube (tūb), v. t.; TUBED (tūbd); TUB'ING (tūb'ĭng). To furnish with, enclose in, or pass through, a tube or tubes; as, to tube a well; to tube media in bacteriology; also, to form into a tube; to make tubular; as, to tube yarn. — v. i. To go by underground, or tube, railway. Colloq.

tube, adj. Of, pertaining to, or like, a tube; used or employed in connection with tubes.

tube casts. Med. Casts of the tubules of the kidney found in the urine, which are granular, hyaline, etc.

tube coral. An organ-pipe coral or allied fossil coral.

tube culture. Bacteriol. A culture in a test tube.

tube door. A door in the smoke chamber of some boilers to permit of access to the fire tubes.

tube'flow'er (tūb'flou'ĕr), n. An East Indian shrub (Clerodendron siphonanthus) having white flowers with a long slender corolla tube.

tube foot. Zool. One of numerous small tentaclelike flexible tubular processes of starfishes, sea urchins, and most holothurians, bearing at the end an adhesive sucker and employed in crawling, or in holding on to objects, and serving also in respiration and as tactile organs. Their cavity is part of the water-vascular system.

tube'form' (tūb'fôrm'), adj. Tubiform.

tube generator. Radio. A generator of alternating current in which electron tubes are used to convert the applied electric power into radio-frequency power.

tube'head' (tūb'hĕd'), n. A tube plate.

tube'heart'ed (-här'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Zool. Having pulsating sinuses functioning as a heart.

tube'man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). Brit. 1. Naut. A boiler-tube sweeper.

2. An employee on an underground, or tube, railway.

tube mill. A grinding mill consisting of a long revolving tube containing flint pebbles or steel balls or slugs. It is used esp. in cement manufacturing, for pulverizing ore, etc.

tube'–nosed' (tūb'nōzd'), adj. Zool. Having the nostrils prolonged in the form of horny tubes, as in the petrels.

tube of a vector field. Math. A tubular surface formed by all the lines of a vector field that pass through a given closed contour.

tube of Bel·lī'ni (bĕl·lē'nē). [After Lorenzo Bellini, It. anatomist.] Anat. Any one of the large excretory ducts of the uriniferous tubules of the kidney, opening on the free surface of the papillae.

tube of electric force. The electrostatic tube of force.

tube of Fer'rein' (fĕ'răn'). [After A. Ferrein (1693–1769), French anatomist.] Anat. Any one of the tubes which form the pyramids of Ferrein of the kidney.

tube of force, tube of induction. See TUBE, n., 9.

tube of magnetic flux. The magnetic flux.

tube of magnetic force. The magnetic tube of force.

tube plate or sheet. Engin. A plate or sheet perforated with holes for the reception of tubes, as in a boiler.

tub'er (tūb'ĕr), n. A workman engaged on tubes, as an annealer, boiler-tube fitter, creeler, or skewerer.

tu'ber (tū'bĕr), n. [L., a hump, swelling, knob, truffle; akin to Gr. typhē a plant used as stuffing for beds, ON. thūfa a mound, knoll, AS. thūf tuft, and ult. to L. tumere to swell. See TUMID; cf. PROTUBERANCE, TRUFFLE, TUBERCULOSIS, TUBEROSE.] 1. Bot. a A short fleshy, usually underground stem or shoot bearing minute scale leaves with buds or "eyes" in their axils, as the potato and the Jerusalem artichoke. See BULB, 1. b [cap.] A genus of fungi (family Tuberaceae) characterized by subterranean tuberlike ascomata. See TRUFFLE.

Tubers of Jerusalem Artichoke.

2. Loosely, a potato; any similar underground structure.

3. Anat. A tuberosity, tubercle, or protuberance.

Tu'ber·a'ce·ae (tū'bĕr·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See TUBER.] Bot. A family of fungi typifying the order Tuberales. — tu'ber·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

tube railway. An underground railway.

Tu'ber·a'les (tū'bĕr·ā'lēz), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. An order of subterranean sac fungi; the truffles. They have tuberlike ascocarps varying in size from that of an acorn to that of a large apple, and asci collected in a wholly enclosed hymenial layer.

tuber aster. A tuberous perennial aster (Aster gracilis) of the southeastern United States, with rough foliage and corymbose violet-rayed flower heads.

tu'ber·a'tion (tū'bĕr·ā'shŭn), n. Formation of tubers.

‖tu'ber ci·ne're·um (tū'bĕr sĭ·nē'rē·ŭm). [L., ashy hump.] Anat. An eminence of gray matter on the lower surface of the brain between the optic tracts and in front of the corpora albicantia. Its upper surface forms part of the floor of the third ventricle. Its lower surface bears the infundibulum to which the pituitary body is attached.

tu'ber·cle (tū'bĕr·k'l), n. [L. tuberculum, dim. of tuber; cf. F. tubercule, MF. also tubercle. See TUBER.] 1. Any of various small knoblike prominences or excrescences, esp. on some part of an animal or plant.

2. Anat. & Zool. a A prominence on the crown of a molar tooth. b A small rough prominence (smaller than a tuberosity) on a bone, for the attachment of one or more muscles or ligaments, as that on the front of the head of the tibia for the ligamentum patellae, that on the femur at the upper part of the junction of the neck and great trochanter (see TROCHANTER), that on the ulna at the base of the coronoid process, etc. c An eminence near the head of a rib which articulates with the transverse process of a vertebra. d Any of several prominences in the central nervous system which mark the nuclei of various nerves; as, the acoustic tubercle.

3. Bot. a A nodule on the roots of leguminous plants. b A small tuber. c A tuberous root which bears adventitious buds, simulating a tuber.

4. Med. a A small rounded morbid growth in the substance of an organ or in the skin; esp., the specific lesion of tuberculosis, which is a translucent grayish nodule of the size of a millet seed in turn made up of microscopic structures, also called tubercles, consisting of collections of lymphocytes, epithelioid cells, and giant cells, usually with a central region of necrosis. b Tuberculosis.

tubercle bacillus. Bacteriol. & Med. The microorganism Mycobacterium (syn. Bacillus) tuberculosis, which causes tuberculosis. It was discovered in 1882 by the German physician and bacteriologist Robert Koch.

tu'ber·cled (tū'bĕr·k'ld), adj. Tuberculated.

tubercled orchis. The green rein orchis.

tu'ber·cle of Dar'win (där'wĭn). The Darwinian tubercle.

tu'ber·cle of Ro·lan'do (rō·lăn'dō). [See ROLANDIC.] The tuberculum cinereum.

tu·ber'cu·lar (tū·bûr'kū·lĕr), adj. Of, pertaining to, like, or of the nature of, a tubercle or tubercles; having tubercles; tuberculated. Specif.: Med. a Nodular; as, tubercular leprosy. b Loosely, tuberculous.

☞ The best authorities employ tuberculous for qualifying lesions of tuberculosis, and restrict tubercular to the nonspecific sense of nodular.

— tu·ber'cu·lar·ly, adv. — tu·ber'cu·lar·ness, n.

---

tuarn, n. See 2d TEW.

tu'a·te'ra (tōō'ä·tā'rä). Var. of TUATARA.

tuberon. † TIBURON.

tu'ba·tox'in (tū'bä·tŏk'sĭn), n. Chem. = ROTENONE.

Tu'ba·tu·la'bal (tōō'bä·tōō·lä'bäl), n. See KERN RIVER INDIAN.

tub'ba (tŭb'ä), n. = TUBBOE.

tub'bi·ness, n. See -NESS.

tub'bist, n. A tub preacher. Obs.

tubd. Tubbed. Ref. Sp.

tub drubber. = TUB PREACHER.

tube drawer. See DRAWER.

tube'ful, n. See -FUL.

tube'less, adj. See -LESS.

tube'let, n. See -LET.

tube'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tu'ber·cled. Tubercled. Ref. Sp.

tu'ber·cle·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tubercul-. See TUBERCULO-.

tu·ber'cu·la, n., pl. of TUBERCULUM.

tu·ber′cu·lar (tū·bûr′kū·lĕr), n. A person having tuberculosis.

Tu·ber·cu·la′ri·a (tū·bûr′kū·lā′rĭ·ȧ; 79), n. [NL.] Bot. A genus of fungi with red or pink sporodochia, typifying the family Tuberculariaceae.

Tu·ber′cu·la′ri·a′ce·ae (-ā′sē-ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A large, mainly saprophytic, family of imperfect fungi (order Moniliales) having the conidia formed typically in sporodochia. — tu·ber′cu·lar′i·a′ceous (-lâr′ĭ·ā′shŭs; 79), adj.

tu·ber′cu·lar·ize (tū·bûr′kū·lĕr·īz), v. t.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZING (-īz′ĭng). [tubercular + -ize.] Med. To infect with tuberculosis; to tuberculize. — tu·ber′cu·lar·i·za′tion (-ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ĭ·zā′shŭn), n.

tu·ber′cu·late (-lāt), adj. [NL. tuberculatus.] Tuberculated; also, tubercular. — n. The aggregate of tubercules in an iron pipe. — tu·ber′cu·late·ly, adv.

tu·ber′cu·lat′ed (-lāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Having, or characterized by, a tubercle or tubercles; as, a tuberculated surface. — tu·ber′cu·lat′ed·ly, adv.

tu·ber′cu·la′tion (-lā′shŭn), n. 1. Formation of, or affection with, tubercles; a growth of tubercles.
2. The collection of tubercules on iron pipes.

tu·ber′cu·la′to- (tū·bûr′kū·lā′tō-). A combining form from NL. tuberculatus, tuberculate, denoting tuberculately, as in tuberculatogibbous, tuberculatonodose, tuberculatoradiate, tuberculatospinous.

tu′ber·cule (tū′bĕr·kūl), n. [F. See TUBERCLE.] 1. Bot. Any tuberous root.
2. A tubercle.
3. A small knob or button of rust formed on the inside of an iron pipe.

tuberculi-. A combining form from Latin tuberculum, tubercle, as in tu·ber′cu·lif′er·ous, tu·ber′cu·li·form′. See -FEROUS, -FORM.

tu·ber′cu·lide (tū·bûr′kū·lĭd; -līd), tu·ber′cu·lid (-lĭd), n. [F.] Med. A tuberculous lesion of the skin, taking on a variety of forms, and due partly, at least, to toxic products of the tubercle bacillus.

tu·ber′cu·lin (-lĭn), n. Also tu·ber′cu·line (-lĭn; -lēn). Immunol. A sterile liquid containing the growth products of, or specific substances extracted from, the tubercle bacillus. The form first prepared (old tuberculin) by boiling, filtering, and concentrating, a bouillon culture of tubercle bacilli, was put forth as a cure for tuberculosis by Koch in 1890 (Koch's lymph). In various forms it is now used in the diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis, esp. in children and cattle. The tuberculin test, as commonly applied, consists in the injection of tuberculin under or into the skin; it has little or no effect in nontuberculous subjects, but causes inflammation at the site of the injection, often with a general rise in temperature, in tuberculous subjects.

tu·ber′cu·lin′ic ac′id (-lĭn′ĭk). Biochem. An acid obtained from the tubercle bacillus. It is held to be a nucleic acid.

tu·ber′cu·lin·ize (tū·bûr′kū·lĭn·īz), v. t. Med. To treat with tuberculin until its effects are secured. — tu·ber′cu·lin·i·za′tion (-ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ĭ·zā′-), n.

tu·ber′cu·lize (-līz), v. t. To infect with tuberculosis; to make tuberculous. — tu·ber′cu·li·za′tion (-lĭ·zā′shŭn; -lī·zā′shŭn), n.

tu·ber′cu·lo- (tū·bûr′kū·lō-), tubercul-. A combining form from Latin tuberculum, tubercle, as in tuberculosis; specif.: a Tuberculous, as in tu·ber′cu·lo·cele′, tu·ber′cu·lo·ther′a·pist, tu·ber′cu·lo·ther′a·py. See -CELE, etc. b The tubercle bacillus, as in tu·ber′cu·lo·troph′ic, tuberculin. c Tuberculosis, as in tu·ber′cu·lo·ma′ni·a, tu·ber′cu·lo·pho′bi·a. See -MANIA, -PHOBIA.

tu·ber′cu·lo·ci′din (-sī′dĭn), n. [See TUBERCLE; -CIDE.] Biochem. A special substance contained in tuberculin, supposed to be the active agent of the latter freed from various impurities.

tu·ber′cu·lo·der′ma (-dûr′mȧ), n. [NL., fr. tuberculo- + -derma.] Med. Tuberculosis; a tuberculous lesion of the skin.

tu·ber′cu·loid (tū·bûr′kū·loid), adj. [tubercul- + -oid.] Med. Resembling a tubercle.

tu·ber′cu·lo′ma (-lō′mȧ), n.; pl. -LOMATA (-mȧ·tȧ), -LOMAS (-mȧz). [NL., fr. tubercul- + -oma.] Med. A localized growth of tissue caused by the bacillus of tuberculosis; a tuberculous nodule.

tu·ber′cu·lo·pro′te·in (-lō·prō′tē·ĭn; -tēn), n. [tuberculo- + protein.] Med. & Bacteriol. The protein of the bacillus of tuberculosis.

tu·ber′cu·lo·sec·to′ri·al (-sĕk·tō′rĭ·ȧl; 181), adj. [tuberculo- + sectorial.] Zool. Designating a type of lower molar found in many carnivorous mammals, as the dog, which is laterally compressed with sharp anterior cusps and a heel composed of low blunt cusps.

tu·ber′cu·losed (tū·bûr′kū·lōst), adj. Med. Affected with tuberculosis; made tuberculous.

tu·ber′cu·lo′sis (tū·bûr′kū·lō′sĭs; tū′bĕr-), n. [NL. See TUBERCLE; -OSIS.] 1. An infectious disease caused by the tubercle bacillus (Mycobacterium tuberculosis) and characterized by the production of tubercles (see TUBERCLE, 4). The commonest seat of human tuberculosis is the lungs, but other organs are often involved, as the lymph glands, intestines, serous membranes, larynx, bones, kidneys, suprarenal glands, skin, and generative organs. The disease may generalize (see MILIARY TUBERCULOSIS), affecting almost all the internal organs. Tuberculosis is common in domestic animals, affecting particularly cattle, swine, and chickens. Human, bovine, and avian types of tubercle bacilli are distinguished, the first affecting man, the second cattle, and the third domestic fowls. Both bovine and avian types affect swine. The bovine type of disease is transmissible, through milk, to human beings, esp. children.
2. Plant Pathol. Any one of several different bacterial diseases of plants in which enlargements or pockets are formed, as olive knot, a disease of the sugar beet, etc.

-tu·ber′cu·lo′sis. A combining form of tuberculosis, as in: fibrotuberculosis, nephrotuberculosis, paratuberculosis, pseudotuberculosis, scrofulotuberculosis.

tu·ber′cu·lo·tox′in (tū·bûr′kū·lō·tŏk′sĭn), n. [tuberculo- + -toxin.] Med. Any toxic substance from the tubercle bacillus.

tu·ber′cu·lous (tū·bûr′kū·lŭs), adj. a Orig., having, or characterized by, tubercles; tubercular. b Med. Affected with, or of the nature of, tuberculosis; caused by, or due to the bacillus of, tuberculosis; as, tuberculous meningitis; tuberculous pleuritis; tuberculous peritonitis. Cf. TUBERCULAR. — tu·ber′cu·lous·ly, adv. — -lous·ness, n.

tu·ber′cu·lum (-lŭm), n.; pl. -CULA (-lȧ). [L. See TUBERCLE.] A tubercle.

‖tu·ber′cu·lum ci·ne′re·um (tū·bûr′kū·lŭm sĭ·nē′rē·ŭm). [NL.] Anat. An elevation on the lateral aspect of the medulla oblongata produced by the spinal trigeminal tract and its nucleus.

tuber fern. A common tropical fern (Nephrolepis cordifolia) with bright-green leaves on shaggy stipes.

tuberi-. A combining form for tuber, as in tu·ber·if′er·ous, tu′ber·i·form′. See -FEROUS, -FORM.

tu′ber·in (tū′bĕr·ĭn), n. [From TUBER.] Biochem. A globulin, the typical protein of the potato tuber.

tuber indexing. Greenhouse growing of single eyes from tubers to test their freedom from disease.

tu′ber·ize (tū′bĕr·īz), v. i. To form or develop tubers. — tu′ber·i·za′tion (-ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ĭ·zā′-), n.

tuber moth. The potato moth.

tu′ber·oid (tū′bĕr·oid), adj. [tuber + -oid.] Bot. Resembling a tuber.

tu′ber·ose (tū′bĕr·ōs; see -OSE), adj. Tuberous.

tube′rose′ (tūb′rōz′; tū′bĕr·ōs; 277), n. Also, erron., tube rose. [NL. tuberosa, prop. fem. of L. tuberosus tuberous; cf. F. tubéreuse. See TUBEROUS.] A Mexican bulbous herb (Polianthes tuberosa) commonly cultivated in gardens for its spike of fragrant white lilylike flowers.

tu′ber·os′i·ty (tū′bĕr·ŏs′ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [F. tuberosité.] 1. a Now Rare. State or quality of being tuberous. b A swelling.
2. An obtuse prominence; specif., Anat. & Zool., any of certain large prominences on bones, usually serving for the attachment of muscles or ligaments, as the lateral eminences of the head of the tibia, the rough eminence on the ischium on which the body rests when sitting, that on the inner front aspect of the radius for the attachment of the biceps tendon, or any of certain prominences on the cuboid and navicular bones of the foot. Also, the tubercle of a rib.

tu′ber·ous (tū′bĕr·ŭs), adj. [F. tubéreux, fr. L. tuberosus. See TUBER.] 1. Covered with knobby or wartlike prominences; knobbed.
2. Bot. Consisting of, bearing, or like, a tuber or tubers. — tu′ber·ous·ly, adv. — tu′ber·ous·ness, n.

tuberous begonia. See BEGONIA, 2.

tuberous pea. = HEATH PEA a.

tuberous root. A thick fleshy root like a tuber, but having no buds or scale leaves. Tuberous roots are often fascicled, as in the dahlia. — tu′ber·ous-root′ed, adj.

tuberous water lily. A water lily (Nymphaea tuberosa) resembling the common N. odorata, but with larger and odorless flowers.

tuber root. = BUTTERFLY WEED a.

tube saw. A tubular saw.

tube set. A radio receiving set containing electron tubes.

tube sheet. A tube plate.

tube shutter. Nav. The shutter closing the outboard end of a submerged torpedo tube.

tubes of Mie′scher (mē′shĕr). Zool. & Med. Miescher's tubes. See SARCOSPORIDIA.

tube spinner or weaver. Any of various spiders that construct a flat web connected with a tubular nest in which the spider hides. They belong to Tegenaria, Agelena, and other genera.

tube transmitter. Radio. A transmitting set using a tube generator.

tube weaver. A tube spinner.

tube well. A driven well.

tube worm. Any annelid building, and living in, a tube, as a serpulid.

tube wrench. A pipe wrench.

tub fast. An old treatment for the pox, by sweating in a close place, or tub, and fasting. Obs.

tub′–fast′ (tŭb′făst′), adj. See -FAST.

tub′fish′ (tŭb′fĭsh′), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-ĕz; -īz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. The sapphirine gurnard. Local, Eng.

tub front. A block front. Eng.

tub′hunt′er (tŭb′hŭn′tĕr), n. A parasite; sponger. Obs.

tubi-. A combining form from Latin tubus, a tube.

tu′bi·cen (tū′bĭ·sĕn), n. [L.] Rom. Antiq. A trumpeter.

tu·bic′i·nate (tū·bĭs′ĭ·nāt), v. i. [L. tubicen a trumpeter.] To blow a trumpet. — tu·bic′i·na′tion (-nā′shŭn), n.

Tu·bic′o·la (tū·bĭk′ō·lȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TUBI-; -COLOUS.] Zool. & Paleontol. An order of annelidan worms, which inhabit tubes of their own construction. The tubes may be membranaceous, chitinous, calcareous, or formed by the agglutination of foreign particles.

Tu·bic′o·lae (-lē), n. pl. [NL., fr. tubi- + L. colere inhabit.] Zool. a = SEDENTARIA a. b A division of spiders that construct tubular nests.

tu·bic′o·lar (-lĕr), adj. Tubicolous.

tu·bic′o·lous (-lŭs), adj. [tubi- + -colous.] 1. Living in a tube which it constructs, as certain annelids.
2. Spinning a tubular web; as, tubicolous spiders.
3. Of or pertaining to the Tubicola or Tubicolae.

tu′bi·corn (tū′bĭ·kôrn), adj. [tubi- + L. cornu horn; cf. F. tubicorne.] Zool. Hollow-horned. — n. A hollow-horned ruminant.

tu′bi·cor′nous (-kôr′nŭs), adj. Tubicorn.

tu′bi·fa′cient (-fā′shĕnt), adj. [tubi- + -facient.] Zool. Secreting or constructing a tube.

tu′bi·fer (tū′bĭ·fĕr), n. [tubi- + -fer.] An animal that bears a tube. — tu·bif′er·ous (tū·bĭf′ĕr·ŭs), adj.

Tu′bi·fex (tū′bĭ·fĕks), n. [NL. See TUBIFACIENT; cf. PONTIFEX.] Zool. A genus of slender red or brown oligochaete worms having four bundles of setae on each segment and living in tubes in fresh or brackish water. It is the type of the family Tu′bi·fic′i·dae (-fĭs′ĭ·dē).

tu′bi·flo′rous (tū′bĭ·flō′rŭs), adj. [tubi- + -florous.] Tubuliflorous.

tu′bi·form (tū′bĭ·fôrm), adj. Tubular in form; tubeform.

tu′big (tōō′bĭg), n. [Tag.] Water. Phil. I.

tu′bik (tōō′bĭk), n. [Var. of TUPEK.] A skin tent used by Eskimos.

tu′bi·lin′gual (tū′bĭ·lĭng′gwȧl), adj. [tubi- + L. lingua tongue.] Zool. Having a tubular tongue, as honey eaters.

Tu′bi·lus′tri·um (-lŭs′trĭ·ŭm), n. [L.] Rom. Relig. The Feast of Trumpets, held on March 23, in honor of Mars, and again May 23, in honor of Vulcan, when the battle horns (tubae) were consecrated. See MARS, 1.

tu′bi·nar′i·al (-nâr′ĭ·ȧl; 79), tu′bi·nar′ine (-ĭn; -īn), adj. [tubi- + L. nares nostrils.] Zool. With nostrils tubular; pertaining to the Procellariiformes (syn. Tubinares).

tub′ing (tŭb′ĭng), n. 1. Act of making tubes.
2. A series of tubes; tubes, collectively; a length or piece of a tube; material for tubes; as, leather tubing.
3. Tubular seamless casing.
4. Mach. A special grade of high-test pipe fitted with threads and couplings of special design.

Tü′bing·en (tü′bĭng·ĕn), adj. Of, pert. to, or named from, Tübingen, Germany, the seat of an ancient university; also, of or pert. to the Tübingen school; as, Tübingen theology.

Tübingen school. Theol. a A school of theology founded by Gottlob Christian Storr, professor of theology at Tübingen 1777–97, which stood for Biblical supernaturalism. b Esp., a school of theology founded by Ferdinand Christian Baur, professor of theology and church history at Tübingen 1826–60. Baur subjected the New Testament to radical treatment, making out, by applying the Hegelian dialectic to church history and the New Testament, an original Petrine or Jewish party, an opposing Pauline or Gentile party, and a reconciling Johannine party in the primitive church, from which last came most of the New Testament books in the 2d century.

tu·bip′a·rous (tū·bĭp′ȧ·rŭs), adj. [tubi- + -parous.] Zool. Secreting material for forming a tube, as certain glands of some annelids, etc.

Tu·bip′o·ra (-ō·rȧ), n. [NL., fr. tubi- + -pora.] Zool. The genus consisting of the organ-pipe coral. It constitutes a family, Tu′bi·por′i·dae (tū′bĭ·pôr′ĭ·dē). — tu′bi·pore (tū′bĭ·pōr; 181), adj. & n. — tu·bip′o·rid (tū·bĭp′ō·rĭd), n. — tu·bip′o·roid (-roid), tu·bip′o·rous (-rŭs), adj.

tub′man (tŭb′mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). 1. Obs. a A tub preacher. b A cooper.
2. A lavatory attendant. Eng.
3. In slaughterhouses and packing houses, a tender of the tubs in which hog carcasses are scalded preparatory to dehairing.
4. Eng. Law. One of the two most experienced barristers in the (former) Court of Exchequer; — so called from the tub, used as a measure, beside which he took his stand. Cf. 2d POSTMAN; see EXCHEQUER, 3.

tu′bo- (tū′bō-). A combining form from Latin tubus, a tube, denoting tubular and; specif.: a Zool. Of tubular and another (specified) form, as in tu′bo·la·bel′late. b Anat. & Med. (1) Pertaining to a tube, esp. an oviduct, and; — in adjectives, as in:

tuboabdominal	tuboovarian	tubo-uterine tuboligamentous	tuboperitoneal	tubovaginal tuboovarial

(2) Pertaining to the Eustachian tubes (and), as in tu′bor·rhe′a, tu′bo·tym′pa·nal. See -RRHEA, TYMPANAL.

tu′bo·cu·ra′rine (-kū·rȧ′rēn; -rĭn; 157), n. Also -rin. [G. tubocurarin, fr. tubocurare curare shipped in bamboo reeds (tubes).] Chem. An alkaloid, $C_{14}H_{21}NO_4$, in curare.

tub preacher. A ranting, dissenting preacher. — tub′–preach′, v. t. & i. — tub preaching. — tub′–preach′ing, adj.

tub′–sized′ (tŭb′sīzd′), adj. Designating paper treated by passing through a tub or vat containing a sizing solution, as of gelatin or starch; — contrasted with engine-sized. — tub′–size′, v. t.

tub thumper. A ranter who thumps the pulpit or speaker's desk. — tub′–thump′, v. t. & i. — tub thumping. — tub′–thump′ing, adj.

tu′bu·lar (tū′bū·lĕr), adj. [L. tubulus, dim. of tubus tube, pipe. See TUBE.] 1. Having the form of, or consisting of a tube or tubes; fistular; as, a tubular snout; a tubular calyx. Also, made or provided with tubes.
2. Of, pert. to, or sounding as if produced through, tubes.

tubular boiler. See BOILER, 6.

tubular breathing. Med. A respiratory sound of the air traveling through the larger bronchial tubes heard on auscultation over the lungs in certain diseases and resembling that caused by the passing of air through the trachea. It occurs when the finer air passages are obstructed by exudate.

tubular bridge. a A bridge supported chiefly by steel tubes. b A plate-girder bridge in the form of a rectangular tube.

tubular chimes or bells. A set of metal tubes for simulating bell effects in orchestral music.

tubular girder. A plate girder having two or more vertical webs with a space between them and solid members joining them top and bottom to form a tube of rectangular cross-section with one or more cells.

tubular goods. Fabrics knit in tubular forms on a cylindrical knitting machine, and used in the making of hosiery and underwear.

Tubularia (T. indivisa). A Hydranth with Clusters of Male Gonophores (c c′); b Blastostyle bearing the Gonophores; h Chitinous Sheath of Hydrocaulus; i Internal Tube; m Mouth; p Proboscis; t Outer Tentacles; t′ Inner Tentacles. B Cluster of Female Gonophores. C A group of Zooids of the same Species, with their Hydrocauli adhering at h′; r Hydrorhiza.

Tu′bu·la′ri·a (tū′bū·lā′rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Zool. a A genus of hydroids, order Anthomedusae, having the hydranths with two circles of tentacles at the summits of long, slender, usually simple, stems. The gonophores are adelocodonic, of small size, and cluster at the bases of the outer tentacles. It is the type of a large and widely distributed family, Tu′bu·la·ri′i·dae (-lȧ·rĭ′ĭ·dē). b [not cap.] A hydroid of this genus.

tu′bu·lar′i·ty (-lăr′ĭ·tĭ), n. State of being tubular.

tubular lock. A rim lock with the tumblers contained in a fixed tube which usually projects through the door.

tubular pile. A pile consisting of a steel tube driven into the ground and subsequently filled with concrete, after the enclosed earth has been removed.

tubular roller. Agric. Mach. See ROLLER, n., 1 a.

tubular saw. A crown saw, esp. one having considerable length compared to its diameter; a tube saw.

tubular skate. An ice skate having the frame composed of tubing. See SKATE, Illust.

tu′bu·late (tū′bū·lāt), adj. Also tu′bu·lat′ed (-lāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119). [L. tubulatus. See TUBULE.] a Provided with a tube. b Having the form of a tube.

tu′bu·late (-lāt), v. t.; -LAT′ED (-lāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT′ING (-lāt′ĭng). To form into, or to provide with, a tube or a tubulure; as, a tubulated bottle or retort. — tu′bu·la′tor (-lā′tĕr), n.

---

tubercular leprosy. See LEPROSY. [= TUBERCULATE.] tu′ber·culed (tū′bĕr·kūld), adj.
tu·ber′cu·lose (tū·bûr′kū·lōs), adj. = TUBERCULATE. tu′ber·less, adj. See -LESS.

tuberon. ✝ TIBURON.
tub′ful (tŭb′fōōl), n.; pl. -FULS (-fōōlz). See -FUL.
Tu′bi·a′nites (tū′bĭ·ā′nīts), n. pl. D. Bib.
Tu′bi·e′ni (tū′bĭ·ē′nī), n. pl. Bib.

Tu′bi·flo·ra′les (tū′bĭ·flō·rā′lēz), n. pl. [NL. See TUBI-; FLORAL.] Syn. of CAMPANULALES.
Tu′bi·na′res (tū′bĭ·nā′rēz; 79), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of PROCELLARIIFORMES.

tub′let, n. See -LET.
tub′like′, adj. See -LIKE.
tub′ster, n. A tub preacher. Obs. tub′tail′, n. A hooped skirt. Obs.
tu′bu·lar-flow′ered, adj. See -FLOWERED.

Tu′bu·la′ri·ae (tū′bū·lā′rĭ·ē; 79), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of ANTHOMEDUSAE. — tu′bu·lar′i·an (-lăr′ĭ·ăn), adj. & n.
Tu′bu·lar′i·da (-lăr′ĭ·dȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of ANTHOMEDUSAE. — tu′bu·lar′i·dan (-dăn), adj. & n.
tu′bu·lar·ly, adv. of TUBULAR. tu′bu·lar-pneu·mat′ic ac′tion. See ORGAN, 1 b (2). tu′bu·lar′y, adj. = TUBULAR. Obs.

tu'bu·la'tion (tū'bū·lā'shŭn), n. Act of shaping or making a tube, or of providing with a tube; arrangement of tubes; also, a tube or tubulure; as, the tubulation of a retort.

tu'bu·la·ture (tū'bū·lȧ·tûr), n. Chem. A tubulure.

tu'bule (tū'būl), n. [F. or L.; F. tubule, fr. L. tubulus, dim. of tubus tube, pipe. See TUBE.] A small pipe or fistular body; a little tube.

tu'bu·let (tū'bū·lĕt), n. [tubule + -et.] A small tubule.

tubuli-. A combining form for tubulus, as in tu'bu·lif'er·ous, tu'bu·li·form'. See -FEROUS, etc.

Tu'bu·li·bran'chi·a'ta (tū'bū·lĭ·brăng'kĭ·ā'tȧ), n. pl. [NL, fr. tubuli- + L. branchia a gill.] Zool. An artificial group of gastropod mollusks including those having a tubular shell, as the genus Vermetus. — tu'bu·li·branch' (tū'bū·lĭ·brăngk'), n. — tu'bu·li·bran'chi·an (-brăng'kĭ·ăn), adj. & n. — tu'bu·li·bran'chi·ate (-āt), adj. & n.

Tu'bu·li·den·ta'ta (-dĕn·tā'tȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TUBULE; DENTATE.] Zool. An order (or suborder) of edentates consisting of the aardvarks, with teeth composed of a cluster of upright parallel vasodentine columns traversed by individual pulp canals. — tu'bu·li·den'tate (-dĕn'tāt), adj.

Tu'bu·lif'er·a (-lĭf'ĕr·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See TUBULE; -FEROUS.] Zool. a In some classifications, a group of Hymenoptera comprising the families Proctotrypidae and Chrysididae, or the Chrysididae alone, which have a tubular ovipositor. b A suborder of Thysanoptera, including those which have the last segment of the abdomen tubular. — tu'bu·lif'er·an (-ăn), n.

tu'bu·li·flo'ral (tū'bū·lĭ·flō'rȧl), adj. [tubuli- + floral.] Having tubular flowers.

tu'bu·li·flo'rous (-flō'rŭs), adj. [tubuli- + -florous.] Bot. Having all the flowers with tubular corollas, — said of plants of the order Campanulales, esp. of the family Carduaceae.

Tu'bu·lip'o·ra (-lĭp'ō·rȧ), n. [NL. Cf. TUBULE, TUBIPORA.] Zool. A genus of cyclostomate polyzoans having tubular calcareous calyculi. It is the type of a family, Tu'bu·li·por'i·dae (-lĭ·pōr'ĭ·dē). — tu'bu·li·pore' (tū'bū·lĭ·pōr'; 181), n. — tu'bu·lip'o·rid (-lĭp'ō·rĭd), n. — tu'bu·lip'o·roid (-roid), adj.

Tubulipora (T. serpens).

Tu'bu·li·za'tion (-lĭ·zā'shŭn; -lĭ·zȧ'-), n. Surg. The enclosing of cut ends, esp. of nerves, in a slowly absorbable tubule, as of paraffin.

tu'bu·lo- (tū'bū·lō-). Med. A combining form from Latin tubulus, denoting: a Due to a tubule; fistulous; as in tu'bu·lo·der'moid. See DERMOID. b Tubular and, as in tu'bu·lo·rac'e·mose, tu'bu·lo·sac'cu·lar, tu'bu·lo·stri·a'to. See RACEMOSE, etc.

tu'bu·lous (tū'bū·lŭs), adj. [See TUBULE.] 1. Like, or in the form of, a tube; specif.: a Tubular. b Bot. Having, or made up of, tubular florets.
2. Containing, or consisting of, tubes or tubules.
— tu'bu·lous·ly, adv. — tu'bu·lous·ness, n.

tubulous boiler. A water-tube boiler. See BOILER, 6.

tu'bu·lure (tū'bū·lûr), n. [F. tubulure.] Chem. A short tubular opening, as at the top of a retort; a tubulation.

tu'bu·lus (tū'bū·lŭs), n.; pl. -BULI (-lī). [L., a small tube. See TUBULE.] 1. A tubule.
2. Bot. a In certain fungi (family Polyporaceae), one of the tubes or hymenial pores. b In some sac fungi, the neck.
3. Zool. A tubular extensile ovipositor of certain flies.

tub wheel. 1. A danaïde.
2. A drum, used like a tumbling barrel, for washing skins.

Tu·ca'na (tū·kā'nȧ), n.; gen. TUCANAE (-nē). [NL.] Astron. A modern constellation of the Southern Hemisphere, not far from the pole on the side opposite the Southern Cross; the Toucan.

tu'can·de'ra (tōō'kăn·dā'rȧ), n. [Pg. tocandera, tocandeira, fr. Tupi tocanguira, tucanguira, fr. tocan, tucan, toucan + quira bird; — so called from its size.] A fierce powerful stinging ant (Paraponera clavata) of Brazil.

‖tu'chun' (dōō'jŭn'), n. [Chin. (Pek.) tu¹-chün¹, lit., overseer of troops.] In China, 1916–1923, the title of the military governor of a province; — superseded by tupan.

tu'chun'ate (-āt), n. The office or jurisdiction of a tuchun. — tu'chun·ism (-īz'm), n. — tu'chun'ize (-īz), v.

tu'-chung' bark (dū'jōōng'). The bark of Eucommia ulmoides, said to yield a tonic. See EUCOMMIA. China.

tuck (tŭk), v.; TUCKED (tŭkt); TUCK'ING. [ME. tuken to tug, stretch, reprove, fr. AS. tūcian to illtreat; akin to MD. & MLG. tucken, tocken, to tug, G. zucken, zücken, to jerk, and to E. TUG.] Transitive: 1. Obs. a To afflict with punishment or torture; to torment. b To scold; upbraid. c To tug off; pluck; gather.
2. To pull up in a fold or folds and fasten; to shorten or tighten by drawing up or together in folds; — usually with up; as, to tuck up one's skirt or one's sleeves; also, Now Rare, to draw up and gird the clothes of.
3. To fold in the loose or hanging ends of so as to confine; to secure (something) in place by pushing its edges under; also, to cover or wrap snugly or tightly; — with in, up, etc.; as, to tuck in one's shirt, or a blanket around a child; to tuck up a stray lock; to tuck the children in bed.
4. To put (something) where it will be held tightly or snugly; to press, cram, or poke; as, to tuck a book under one's arm or a dress into a bag; hence, to put where concealed or easily forgotten; — with away.
That fellow of mine — where did you tuck him away? Conrad.
5. To take (fish) from a net with a tuck seine.
6. Now Dial. a To nip or pinch, as with the fingernail. b To put (an infant) into small clothes, or shortclothes.
7. To hamper or cramp by restrictions; also, to wear out; to exhaust; — with up. Colloq., Brit.
8. Slang. a To hang (a person); — with up. b To put away (food or drink); to consume; eat; — with in. c To send or put (to bed, sleep, etc.); — with off. d To make a burdensome addition of; — with on.
9. Sewing. To make a tuck or tucks in, so as to shorten or ornament; as, to tuck a dress.
10. Textiles. To dress, or full, (cloth). Now Local, Eng.
—, Intrans.: 1. To draw up or together in or as in folds.
2. To make a tuck or tucks.
3. To eat; esp., to eat greedily; to stuff; — with in and into. Slang.
4. Textiles. To work as a fuller. Now Local.

tuck one's tail. To be reduced to shame or confusion; — abbr. from the longer phrase, tuck one's tail between one's legs, as a dog so often does when scolded or punished. Colloq.

tuck (tŭk), n. [From TUCK to draw up.] 1. Act or instance of tucking; also, something formed by tucking; specif., a fold made, as in a garment, either in a cluster, as for decoration, or singly, as for shortening, and secured by stitching.
2. Hence, something that takes care of surplus length, size, etc., in the manner of a tuck; as, to take a tuck or two in an article going to press.
3. Short for TUCK SEINE.
4. Slang. a Also tuck'-in', tuck'-out'. A feast; a spread. b Sweet stuff; jams, sweetmeats, etc. c Appetite for food.
5. [Perh. a different word.] Vital spirit; energy; life. Colloq., U. S.
It seemed to . . . take the tuck all out of me. Mark Twain.
6. Bookbinding. Also tuck'-in'. A flaplike extension of a book cover, that folds over and fits into a slot or band on the opposite side.
7. Fancy Diving. In a dive of the somersault type, a series of movements in which a diver clasps his ankles with his hands and rolls himself into a ball in order to increase the rate of his spin. See SOMERSAULT, 2.
8. Naut. Act of tucking a strand or rope between or under other strands; also, the joint so made.
9. Shipbuilding. The part of a vessel where the ends of the lower planks meet under the stern.

tuck (tŭk; tōōk), v. t. [ONF. toquer (F. toucher) to touch, strike. See TOUCH.] Now Chiefly Scot. To sound (a drum or trumpet); to beat. — v. i. a To sound, as a drum. b To blow gustily, as a wind.

tuck, n. [From TUCK to beat.] A sound of or as of a drumbeat or trumpet blast.
Danced silently to the tuck of drum. J. G. Fraser.

tuck (tŭk), n. [F. estoc. See ESTOC.] A rapier. Obs. exc. Hist.

tuck'a·hoe (tŭk'ȧ·hō), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Lenape p'tuckqueu it is globular, Virginian tockawhonghe; — applied to bulbous roots used as food. Cf. TUCKET ear of corn.] 1. Either of the American plants Peltandra virginica, the arrow arum, and Orontium aquaticum, the golden club; also, the rootstock of either, which was cooked and eaten by the Indians. Called also Indian bread or loaf. Obs.
2. The large edible sclerotium of a subterranean fungus (Poria cocos). It is firm and white inside with a hard brown exterior.
3. [cap.] An inhabitant of Virginia east of the Blue Ridge. U. S. tuck box. School Slang. A box of "tuck" from home. Cf. 2d TUCK, 4 b. Brit.

tucked up (tŭkt). 1. Contracted; appearing as if drawn in or up; — said specif. of the flanks or walls of the abdomen of a horse or other animal.
2. Hampered; cramped; also, exhausted. Colloq., Brit.

tuck'er (tŭk'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which tucks; specif.: a Now Local. A fuller of cloth. b A device on a sewing machine for making tucks. c Agric. Mach. The mechanism of a hay press or baler which makes the ends of the bales neat and square.
2. Originally, a narrow piece of linen or lace folded across the breast or attached to a woman's gown; later, a chemisette or detachable collar of some thin material. See BIB AND TUCKER.
Her dress (which had no tucker) sloped away from her thin shoulders. Edith Wharton.
3. Daily food; meals; board; rations; also, food in general. Chiefly Australian.

tuck'er, v. t. To provide with food. Chiefly Australian.

tuck'er, v. t.; TUCK'ERED (-ĕrd); TUCK'ER·ING. [Cf. E. dial. tucked up hampered for room, exhausted from overwork.] To tire; fatigue to exhaustion; — usually with out. Colloq., U. S.

tuck'er, n. A state of weariness. Colloq. U. S.

tucker bag. A bag used by travelers in the bush to hold foodstuff (tucker). Australia.

Tuck'er cir'cles. [After Robert Tucker, Eng. mathematician.] Math. The circles each through the six points in which the sides of a variable triangle A'B'C' meet the noncorresponding sides of a given triangle ABC, with which it is homothetic, the symmedian point of ABC being the center of similitude.

tuck'er·in', n. A chambermaid. Slang, Brit.

tuck'er·man'i·ty (tŭk'ĕr·măn'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). Quality or characteristic of a conventional type of sonnet; — in scornful allusion to H. T. Tuckerman (1813–71) and his Petrarchan sonnets.

tuck'et (tŭk'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [See TUCK fanfare; cf. TOCCATA.] A trumpet flourish or fanfare.

tuck'et, n. [Prob. of Algonquian origin; cf. Lenape p'tuckqueu it is round, goes in at the ends, Massachuset petuhki. Cf. TUCKAHOE.] An unripe ear of Indian corn, or maize. Local, U. S.

tuck'ing (tŭk'ĭng), n. Act of one who or that which tucks; also, something made by a tucker; hence: a A tuck, or tucks collectively. b Cotton, linen, or other fabric, tucked and sold by the yard or length.

tuck'ing, adj. That tucks; used in or for tucking or making a tuck or tucks.

tuck'ner (tŭk'nĕr), n. A boat carrying a tuck seine. Hist.

tuck pointing. Masonry. The finishing of joints along the center lines with a narrow ridge of putty or fine lime mortar. — tuck'-point'ed, adj. — tuck pointer.

tuck seine. A seine about 70 fathoms long, very deep in the middle, used to take fish from a larger seine.

tuck'shop' (tŭk'shŏp'), n. A confectioner's shop. Slang, Brit.

tuck'y (tŭk'ĭ), n., or tucky lily. The common spatterdock.

tu'co tu'co (tōō'kō tōō'kō), tu'cu tu'cu (-kōō). [Sp. tucotuco, tucutucu, fr. Guarani tucutucu, from its cry uttered under ground.] Any South American octodont burrowing rodent of the genus Ctenomys; esp., C. brasiliensis. Tuco tucos resemble the North American pocket gophers, but lack cheek pouches.

tu·cum' (tōō·kōōm'), n. [Pg.] = TUCUMA.

tu·cu'ma (tōō·kōō'mȧ; tōō'kōō·mȧ'), n. [Pg. tecuma, tucuma, tucumá, tucum, fr. Tupi tucumã.] a Any of several Brazilian palms of the genus Astrocaryum, esp. A. tucuma, the leaf bases of which yield a coarse fiber used for ropes, hats, etc.; also, the fiber itself, and the fruit of certain edible species. See ASTROCARYUM. b A low spiny palm (Bactris setosa) yielding a similar but inferior fiber; also, the fiber.

-tude (-tūd). A suffix, French -tude and Latin -tudo, in nouns, chiefly from adjectives and participles, equivalent to -ness, as in amplitude, plenitude, rectitude, altitude, fortitude, gratitude, multitude. Cf. 1st -TE; -NESS.

Tu·desque' (tū·dĕsk'), adj. [F. tudesque. See TEDESCO.] German; — used esp. of the language.

Tu'dor (tū'dĕr), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to a royal family of England descended from Owen Tudor of Wales, who married Catherine, the widow of Henry V. The reigning members were Henry VII, Henry VIII, Edward VI, Mary, and Elizabeth; the period of their sovereignty (Tudor age or period) extended from 1485 to 1603. See Bosworth Field, under BATTLE, Table.
2. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, the Tudor period, or esp., of the literature or architecture of that period; as, Tudor drama.

Tu'dor, n. 1. a A member of the Tudor family. b A person, esp. a poet, of the Tudor period.
2. A style of type.

This is 10-point TUDOR Black.

Tudor arch. A four-centered, obtusely pointed, arch, characteristic of English architecture of the Tudor period. See ARCH, Illust. (10).

Tudor architecture or style. The latest variety of English Gothic, that under the Tudors, characterized by flat four-centered arches, shallow moldings, and a profusion of paneling on the walls; the Perpendicular style. See ARCHITECTURE, Table.

Tu'dor·esque' (tū'dĕr·ĕsk'), adj. Of, or resembling, the manner or style of the Tudor period.

Tudor flower. A trefoil flower used in the decorations of the late English Gothic art.

Tudor rose. The Red Rose of the House of Lancashire and the white rose of the House of Yorkshire united to form the royal badge of England on the marriage of Henry VII of Lancaster to Elizabeth of York in 1486 at the close of the civil war.

‖tu·e'bor (tū·ē'bôr). [L.] I will defend; — motto of Michigan.

tue'i'ron (tū'ĭ'ĕrn), n. [See TUYÈRE.] 1. = TUYÈRE.
2. pl. A pair of blacksmith's tongs.

Tues'day (tūz'dĭ; 89; 242), n. [ME. Tuesdai, Tiwesday, fr. AS. Tīwesdæg; akin to ON. Týsdagr, Tīrsdagr, OFris. Tīesdei, OHG. Ziestac. A trans. of LL. Martis dies day of Mars, in terms of the Teut. god of war. See ZEUS; DAY.] The third day of the week; the day following Monday.

tu'fa (tōō'fȧ; tū'fȧ), n. [It. tufo soft, sandy stone, fr. L. tofus, tophus, tufus, of obscure origin. Cf. TOPH, TOPHUS, TUFF.] Geol. a A porous rock formed as a deposit from springs or streams; — usually applied to calcareous deposits (travertine), in the phrase calcareous tufa. b Tuff.

tu·fa'ceous (tōō·fā'shŭs; tū-), adj. [Cf. It. tufaceo, L. tofaceus, tofacius. See TUFA.] Of, pertaining to, or like, tufa.

tu·fan' (tōō·fän'), n. [Ar. ṭūfān. See TYPHOON.] A violent storm. India.

tuff (tŭf), n. [F. tuf, fr. It. tufo. See TUFA.] A rock composed of the finer kinds of volcanic detritus, usually more or less stratified, and in various states of consolidation; — called also tufa. There are many varieties.

tuff·a'ceous (tŭf·ā'shŭs), adj. Of, pert. to, or like, tuff.

tuff'ing (tŭf'ĭng), n. Tufts of wool woven about a bell rope to provide a handgrip.

tuft (tŭft), n. [ME. tuft, fr. OF. tufe, tofe, toffe (F. touffe), prob. of Teut. origin; cf. D. tuife, and G. zopf a weft of hair, pigtail, top of a tree. See TOP summit; cf. TOFF.] 1. A small cluster of elongated flexible parts or outgrowths, as hairs, feathers, blades of grass, arising close together or attached at the base, but free at their opposite ends.
2. Specif.: a An imperial (sense 7); a goatee. b A crest of a bird. c The top point.
3. More broadly, a cluster; clump; as, a tuft of plants.
Green lake, and cedar tuft, and spicy glade. Keble.
4. A gold tassel formerly worn by titled students at Cambridge and Oxford; also, one who wears such a tuft. Slang.
5. One of the clusters of looped or cut threads finishing a tufted quilt, mattress, etc.; hence, a button or leather disk used in place of such.
6. Anat. A coil of capillaries; as, a Malpighian tuft in the kidney.
7. Textiles. One of the clusters of extra warp or filling yarns drawn through the web so as to produce a surface of raised loops, or when these are cut, a pile.

tuft, v.; TUFT'ED; TUFT'ING. Transitive: 1. To provide with a tuft or tufts; to adorn, as a cap, with a tuft.
2. Specif., to secure padding in (a quilt, mattress, cushioned seat or back, etc.) by drawing stitches tightly through at regular intervals and marking each depression with a tuft (sense 5).
3. To beat, as a covert, for deer; to rouse (game) by beating.
—, Intransitive: To grow in, or form, a tuft or tufts.

tuf·taf'fe·ta (tŭf·tăf'ĕ·tȧ), n. [See TUFT; TAFFETA.] A silk fabric having a pattern formed by tufts, or pile. See TUFT, n., 7. Hist.

tuf·taf'fe·ta, adj. Made of or clothed in tuftaffeta. Obs.

tuft'ed (tŭf'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj.
1. Having a tuft or tufts; finished or decorated with tufts.
2. Growing in tufts or clusters; tufty.
The tufted crowtoe, and pale jessamine. Milton.

tufted buttercup. A low perennial buttercup (Ranunculus fascicularis) usually growing in tufts in the cooler parts of North America, with yellow flowers and prominently beaked fruits.

tufted columbine. A European meadow rue (Thalictrum aquilegifolium) with columbinelike leaves.

Tufted Coquette (Lophornis ornatus). ⅓ tufted coquette. A Central American hummingbird (Lophornis ornatus) having a large crest and cervical tufts; also, any of various allied species.

tu'bu·lose (tū'bū·lōs), adj. = TUBULOUS.

Tu'bus As'tro·nom'i·cus (tū'bŭs ăs'trō·nŏm'ĭ·kŭs). [NL.] Astron. Telescopium.

tub'wom'an, n. See -WOMAN.

Tu·ca'no (tōō·kä'nō), n. See BETOYAN.

tuch. Obs. var. & ref. sp. of TOUCH.

tu'chet (tū'kĕt). Var. of TEWIT.

tu'chit (tū'kĭt). See TEUCHAT.

tucht, tuch'y. Touched; touchy. Ref. Sp.

tuck (tŭk). Dial. var. of took, past tense of TAKE.

Tuck, Friar. See FRIAR TUCK.

tuck'erd. Tuckered. Ref. Sp.

tuck'-in', n. a = 2d TUCK, 4 a. b = 2d TUCK, 6.

tuck net. = TUCK SEINE.

tuck'-out', n. = 2d TUCK, 4 a.

tuck plate. Shipbuilding. = OXTER PLATE.

tuck·too' (tŭk·tōō'), n. [Imitative.] = TOKAY (lizard).

tu'cu·man' (tōō'kōō·mون'), n. = TUCUMA. [TUCUMA.]

Tu·cu'na (tōō·kōō'nȧ). Var. of tu'cu tu'cu. = TUCO TUCO.

tu'del (tōō'dl), v. i. [Cf. G. dudeln, E. TOOTLE.] = 1st TOODLE.

tue (tū; tū). Scot. & dial. Eng var. of TEW.

tue. Var. of TUI, bird.

tu'el. Var. of TEWEL.

tu'el. † TOWEL.

tuf. Tough. Ref. Sp.

tuf. Tuff. Ref. Sp.

tu'fa·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tuf'en. Toughen. Ref. Sp.

tuff. † TOUGH, TUFT.

tuffe, n. A turban. Obs.

tuf'fet (tŭf'ĭt; -ĕt). Dial. var. of TUFT. [PHOON.]

tuffon, tufloon, tufon. † TYtuft (tŭft). Var. of TOFT, TUFF. Obs. exc. Dial.

tufted duck. a An Old World duck (Nyroca fuligula) having a tufted head, but in most characters similar to the scaup ducks. b Local, U. S. The ring-necked duck.
tufted hair grass. a The tussock grass Poa flabellata. b A slender wiry grass (Deschampsia caespitosa) of the North Temperate Zone. tufted loosestrife. A bog or marsh herb (Naumburgia thyrsiflora) of the North Temperate Zone, related to the loosestrifes. It has small yellow flowers in heads or close racemes. tufted pansy. The horned violet. tufted pochard. The tufted duck. tufted puffin. See PUFFIN, 1. tufted titmouse. A titmouse (Baeolophus, syn. Parus, bicolor) ashy gray in color with a pointed crest, found in the eastern United States, chiefly south of New England.
tuft'er (tŭf'tĕr), n. [tuft, v. + -er.] 1. One who or that which tufts.
2. Hunting. A hound used to drive deer out of cover. tuft'hunt'er (tŭft'hŭn'tĕr), n. One who seeks association with tufts; a snob (sense 4); hence, any toady or sycophant. See TUFT, n., 4. — tuft'hunt'ing, n. & adj.
tuft'ing (tŭf'tĭng), n. The act of one that tufts; tufted work in upholstery; tufts collectively. tuft tree. In New Zealand, the common ti tree Cordyline australis; — there commonly called cabbage tree. It is frequently cultivated for its terminal tuft of showy leaves.
tuft'y (tŭf'tĭ), adj. 1. Abounding with tufts; tufted.
2. Growing in tufts or clusters.
Where tufty daisies nod at every gale. W. Browne.
tug (tŭg), v.; TUGGED (tŭgd); TUG'GING (tŭg'ĭng). [ME. tuggen, toggen, intens.; akin to E. tow to drag. See 2d TOW; cf. TOGGLE, TUCK to draw up.] Transitive: 1. To ply or pull at strenuously; to strain at.
There sweat, there strain, tug the laborious oar. Roscommon.
2. To pull or draw with great effort; to drag; haul; as, to tug a car out of the mire.
3. Specif.: a To lug. b To tow with a tugboat.
4. To handle or treat roughly; to maul. Obs.
—, Intransitive: 1. To pull with great effort; to strain in labor; as, to tug at the oar; to tug against the stream.
2. To strive or contend vigorously; to struggle. Now Rare.
3. To exert oneself to the utmost; to toil; labor; drudge; as, to tug all one's life.
tug, n. 1. Act or an instance of tugging; a violent or strong pull or strain; as, give it a tug; to feel a tug on a fishline.
2. Specif.: a A hard struggle; a supreme effort. b Violent strife; tussle.
3. A trace, or drawing strap, of a harness; any rope, chain, etc., used in pulling something along.
4. A vehicle for conveying timber, etc. Dial. Eng.
5. = KING'S SCHOLAR. College Slang, Eng.
6. Mining. An iron hook of a hoisting tub, to which a tackle is affixed.
7. Naut. Also tug'boat' (tŭg'bōt'). A strongly built, powerful steam or power vessel, used for towing and now also for attendance on vessels; — called also towboat.
tug'boat'man (tŭg'bōt'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One employed on a tugboat. tug chain. A short chain at the end of a harness tug, to attach it to the whippletree; also, the entire tug when made of chain; — called also heel chain.
Tu'gend-bund' (tōō'gĕnt-bōōnt'), n. [G., league of virtue.] Ger. Hist. A patriotic secret society (1808–15) which aimed to destroy Napoleonic power in Germany.
tug'ger (tŭg'ĕr), n. One who or that which tugs; specif., Mining, a small portable hoist usually mounted on a column and driven by air or electricity. tug'ger-y (-ĭ), n. Tugging; specif., Slang, an examination for a king's scholarship. See TUG, n., 5. tug'ging (-ĭng), adj. That tugs. — tug'ging-ly, adv.
tugh'ra (tōōg'rä; -rä'), n. Also tough'ra. [Turk. ṭughra.] The official signature of former sultans of Turkey. It was an intricate flourish of peculiar shape, originating in the 14th century and customarily used on decrees and state documents, on the Turkish flag, on coins, etc. tug iron. An iron hook or button to which a tug or trace may be attached, as on a wagon shaft.
tug of war. a A decisive contest; a struggle for supremacy; as, when Greek meets Greek, then comes a tug of war. b An athletic contest in which a number of men pull on a rope against an equal number.
tug'-of-war'ring, n. The act of engaging in a tug of war. tu'gui (tōō'gē), n. [Tag.] A kind of yam (Dioscorea sativa). Phil. I.
tu'i (tōō'ē), n. A Philippine tree (Dolichandrone spathacea), family Bignoniaceae, used as a dyewood. Its seeds also yield a native remedy for nervous complaints.
tu'i (tōō'ē), n. [Maori.] The parson bird.
Tui'ler-ies (twē'lĕr-ĭz; twēl'rē'), n. A royal palace in Paris, begun under Catherine de' Medici in 1564, enlarged by Henry IV and Louis XIV, and later connected by wings with the Louvre. It was famous as the scene of revolutionary incidents. In 1871 it was burned by the Commune. tuille (twēl), n. [F. tuile tile, fr. L. tegula. See TILE.] In plate armor, one of the hinged plates before the thigh. See ARMOR, Illust. tuil-lette' (twē-lĕt'), n. [F. tuilette.] A small tuille, for protecting the hip. tuil'yie, tuil'zie (tōōl'yĭ; tīl'yĭ), n. & v. [OF. tooillier to pull or drag about. See TOIL, v.] Quarrel; struggle. Scot. & Dial.
tu'ism (tū'ĭz'm), n. [L. tu thou + E. -ism.] 1. The use of the second person, as in apostrophe or in rhetorical evasion of the first person; also, an instance of such.
2. Philos. The theory that thought centers in an ideal or second self, or other person.
Tu-is'to (tū-ĭs'tō) n. [L., of Teut. origin.] Teut. Myth. In Tacitus, the mythical father of Mannus, progenitor of the Germanic peoples. tu-i'tion (tū-ĭsh'ŭn), n. [OF. tuicion, MF. tuition, fr. L. tuitio, -onis, protection, guarding, fr. tueri, tuitus, tutus, to watch, guard, protect; prob. akin to OIr. tüath to the left, northern (with eastern orientation), prop., lucky, favorable, Goth. thiuth that which is good. Cf. INTUITION, TUTOR.] 1. Protection; care; custody; esp., the care of a tutor or guardian over a pupil or ward; guardianship. Now Rare.
2. The act or profession of teaching; the services of a teacher or teachers; instruction; as, to give or seek tuition in Latin; the fees for tuition.
3. The price of, or payment for, instruction.
4. A teaching or monition; — contrasted with intuition.
Syn. — See INSTRUCTION.
tu-i'tion-al (tū-ĭsh'ŭn-ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to tuition.
tu-i'tion-ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr-ĭ), adj. Tuitional. tu'i-tive (tū'ĭ-tĭv), adj. Rare. a Tutorial. b Learned; — opposed to intuitive.
tuke (tūk), n. Also tewke. [Origin uncert.] One of several fabrics used in the 15th and 16th centuries; specif., canvas.
tuk'ra (tōōk'rä), n. [Hind. ṭukṛā piece, bit, scrap.] A disease or malformation of the leaves and shoots of the mulberry tree in India, caused by the feeding of a mealy bug (Phenacoccus hirsutus).
Tu'ku-lōr' (tōō'kōō-lôr'), Tu'ku-ler' (-lĕr'), n. [F. Toucouleurs, pl., fr. Wolof Tokoror, fr. Tekrur (Futa), district in Senegal.] One of a group of Negro tribes in East Senegal. They are a mixed Negroid people, tall and black, chiefly Mohammedans, and are warlike and vigorous. tu'la met'al (tōō'lä). An alloy of silver, copper, and lead, made at Tula in Russia, used in making niello. tu'la-re'mi-a, tu'la-rae'mi-a (tōō'lä-rē'mĭ-ä), n. [NL., fr. Tulare Co., Calif. + -emia, -aemia.] Med. & Veter. A disease of rodents, man, and some domestic animals, caused by a microorganism (Pasteurella tularensis, syn. Bacterium tularense) transmitted by insects, esp. the deer fly. Occasionally it is transmitted to men by handling infected animals. In man, it produces an irregular fever which continues for several weeks.
tu'la-si (tōō'lä-sē), n. = TULSI. tul'chan (tŭl'kăn), tul'chin (-kĭn), n. [Gael.] A stuffed calfskin, used to induce a cow to give milk. Hence, tulchan bishop, one of the bishops appointed in the Reformed Presbyterian Church of Scotland in 1572, who consented to hand over the larger part of the revenues of their dioceses to the lay patrons who had obtained their appointment; — popularly so called. Obs. exc. Hist.
tu'le (tōō'lē), n. [Sp., fr. Nahuatl tollin rush.] a Either of two large bulrushes (Scirpus lacustris and S. acutus) growing abundantly on overflowed land in the southwestern United States and adjacent Mexico, esp. in California, at the junction of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, where large tracts are known as tule lands. b Any of several marsh or aquatic plants other than sedges, as the cattail, the pickerelweed, and the giant reed Arundo donax.
tule chicken or hen. The American coot. Calif. tule goose. The white-fronted goose Anser albifrons gambeli. tule mint. [See TULE.] The Canada mint. Calif. tule potato or root. The wapatoo. Calif. tule wren. A marsh wren (Telmatodytes palustris paludicola) of the western United States.
tu'li-ac (tū'lĭ-ăk), n. The skua gull. Local, Eng. tu'lip (tū'lĭp), n. [Obs. D. tulipa (D. tulp), obs. F. tulipan (F. tulipe), fr. colloq. Turk. tülbend turban; — so called (in Europe) from the resemblance of the flower to a turban. See TURBAN.] 1. a Any plant of the genus Tulipa; also, its flower or bulb. Tulips have been so long in cultivation that the common garden types are not referable to any existing wild species, though the dwarf early-blooming tulips are commonly classed as Tulipa suaveolens, while the later tall forms are considered to belong to T. gesneriana. Holland is still the center of tulip cultivation (see TULIPOMANIA), though bulbs for the market are now also raised in the United States. Horticulturally, tulips are classed under two main divisions: early-flowering and May-flowering tulips. Among the May-flowering tulips are found such garden favorites as cottage, breeder, Darwin, and parrot, tulips (see these terms), each containing a multitude of horticultural varieties. Many wild species, as Tulipa greigi, T. oculus-solis, T. clusiana, T. praecox, etc., are also cultivated. b In South Africa, any plant of the genus Homeria (family Iridaceae), some of which are poisonous to cattle. They somewhat resemble garden tulips.

Tulips.

2. Someone or something as gorgeous or showy as a tulip.
3. A small charge of an explosive. Mil. Slang.
4. Ordn. The swell of the metal at the muzzle of an old-fashioned gun. Now Rare.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:
tulip bed tulip-fancying, adj. tulip-growing, adj.
tulip fancier tulip grower tulip-shaped, adj.
Tu'li-pa (tū'lĭ-pä), n. [NL.] Bot. A large genus of Eurasian bulbous herbs, the tulips, having coated bulbs, linear or broadly lanceolate leaves, and commonly a single showy flower, with six equal perianth segments and six hypogynous stamens. See TULIP, Illust.
tulip blight. Tulip fire.
tulip ear. An erect, pointed ear, as of certain dogs. — tu'lip-eared', adj.
tulip fire. Plant Pathol. A destructive disease of tulips caused by Botrytis tulipae, producing brown lesions on leaves, petals, scapes, and bulb, sometimes killing extensive areas.
tu'lip-flow'er (tū'lĭp-flou'ĕr), n. An Australian timber tree (Stenocarpus sinuatus) the tough, hard, light-colored wood of which is used in cabinetwork. tu'lip-if'er-ous (-ĭf'ĕr-ŭs), adj. [See -FEROUS.] Bearing tulips or tuliplike flowers. tu'lip-ist (tū'lĭp-ĭst), n. One devoted to growing tulips.
tulip mold. Plant Pathol. Tulip fire; also, the fungus causing the disease.
tu'lip-o-ma'ni-a (tū'lĭp-ō-mā'nĭ-ä), n. [NL., fr. tulip + -mania.] A mania for acquiring or growing tulips; specif., such a mania which prevailed in Holland about 1634. The consequent wild speculation in bulbs was ended by governmental interference. — tu'lip-o-ma'ni-ac (-ăk), n.
tulip orchid. A Mexican epiphytic orchid (Cattleya citrina) much grown for its usually solitary, pendent, very showy, fragrant flower which is yellow throughout except for a white-bordered lip.
tulip poplar. = TULIP TREE, 1.

tulip poppy. A cultivated perennial poppy (Papaver glaucum) of Asia Minor, having cup-shaped scarlet flowers.
tulip root. Plant Pathol. A disease of various plants and cereals caused by a small nematode worm (Tylenchus dipsaci), and characterized by bulblike swellings in the stem, distortions of leaves, etc.
tulip shell. Any of various large, handsomely colored, marine shells of the family Fasciolariidae, esp. Fasciolaria tulipa, which is found on the coast of the southern United States.

Tulip Shell.

tulip tree. 1. A tall North American timber tree (Liriodendron tulipifera) having truncate, somewhat lobed leaves, and large, tuliplike, greenish-yellow flowers. Its soft white wood (called whitewood, poplar, or yellow poplar) is much used for cabinetwork, woodenware, etc.

Tulip Tree, 1. 1 Flower and Leaves; 2 Fruit. (⅛)

2. Any of various other trees with tulip-shaped flowers; as: a The majagua. b The bendy tree. c The banana shrub. d In Australia: (1) The waratah. (2) The tree Lagunaria pattersonii (family Malvaceae). tu'lip-wood' (tū'lĭp-wōōd'), n. 1. Wood of the tulip tree (Liriodendron); whitewood.
2. The handsome striped or variegated wood of any of several trees, or any of the trees themselves: a The rose-colored wood of a Brazilian tree (possibly Physocalymma scabberimum, family Lythraceae), much used by cabinetmakers for inlaying; also, the tree. b In Australia: (1) The wood of the tree Harpullia pendula, often distinguished as Moreton Bay tulipwood; also, the tree. (2) The wood of the emu apple, or sour plum; also, the tree.
tu'lip-wood', n. The color auburn. tu'lip-y (tū'lĭp-ĭ), adj. Full of tulips. tu'li-san' (tōō'lē-sän'), n.; pl. -SANES (-sē'nēs). [Tag.] A bandit or ladrone. Luzon, Phil. I. tulk (tŭlk), v. t. [ON. tūlka to interpet.] To address. Obs. tulk, n. [Cf. ON. tūlkr interpreter, spokesman. Cf. TULK to address.] A man; soldier; knight. Obs.
Tul'ke-pa'la (tōōl'kā-pä'yä), n. An Indian of a Yuman tribe, formerly of southwestern Arizona, now living on the San Carlos Reservation in that State.
Tul'king-horn', Mr. (tŭl'kĭng-hôrn'). In Dickens's Bleak House, a discreet old bachelor lawyer with a large clientele among noble families.
tulle (tōōl; F. tül), n. [F., fr. the town Tulle, France.] A thin, soft, and fine, plain or dotted net, commonly of silk, used for veils, dresses, etc.
Tul'li-an (tŭl'ĭ-ăn), adj. [L. Tullianus, fr. Tullius, a Roman gens.] Belonging to, or in the style of, Tully (Marcus Tullius Cicero); Ciceronian.
Tul'li-a'num (-ā'nŭm), n. [L.] Rom. Antiq. The state prison or dungeon at Rome, the building of which was attributed to Servius Tullius. See MAMERTINE. tul'li-bee (tŭl'ĭ-bē), n. [Can. F. toulibi, fr. Cree otonabi, lit., mouth water, fr. oton his mouth + -abi, -dbuy, suffix indicating a (specified) liquid; — so named from its insipid taste.] a A whitefish (Argyrosomus tullibee) found in the Great Lakes and other waters of northern North America. b A whitefish (Leucichthys tullibee) found in Lake Winnipeg and neighboring waters.
Tul'li-ver, Mag'gie (tŭl'ĭ-vĕr). The tragic heroine of George Eliot's Mill on the Floss, a miller's daughter whose ardent, imaginative nature led her unwittingly into situations which ran counter to the conventional standards of the community and brought on her the condemnation of her beloved and uncompromising brother Tom Tulliver.
Tul'ly (tŭl'ĭ), n. Marcus Tullius Cicero; — a formerly used English variant of Tullius. See CICERO, in Biog.
Tul'ly (tŭl'ĭ), n. [From Tully, town near Syracuse, New York.] Geol. A minor subdivision of the American Upper Devonian. See GEOLOGY, Chart.
Tul'ly's pow'der (tŭl'ĭz). [After W. Tully (1785–1859), Am. physician.] Pharm. An anodyne and antispasmodic powder composed of a mixture of morphine sulphate, camphor, powdered glycyrrhiza, and precipitated calcium carbonate. tul'si, tool'si, or tool'sy (tōōl'sē), n. [Hind. tulsī, fr. Skr. tulasī.] The holy basil. It is grown as a sacred plant in many Hindu homes. India.
Tu'lu (tōō'lōō), n. a sing. & pl. One of an advanced Dravidian people in India on the coast near Mangalore. b See DRAVIDIAN LANGUAGES.
Tu-lu'nid (tōō-lōō'nĭd), n. A Mohammedan dynasty which established itself in Egypt sometime in the 9th century; — so called from its founder, Ahmed ben Tulun, the son of a Turkish freedman. tul-war' (tŭl-wär'; -wôr'), n. Also tul-waur'. [Hind. talwār, fr. Skr. taravārī.] A curved saber or scimitar used in the Orient, esp. in northern India.
tum (tŭm), v. t.; TUMMED (tŭmd); TUM'MING. [Origin unknown.] Woolen Mfg. To card (wool) as a preliminary to finer carding; to open or tease out (wool) before carding; also, sometimes, to mix (various grades or colors of wool).
tum (tŭm), n. [Imitative.] The sound of a plucked string, as of a banjo; — usually tum'-tum'.
tum, v. i. To make a tum or tum-tum (sense 1). tu'ma'ta-ku'ru (tōō'mä'tä-kōō'rōō), n. [Maori.] A New Zealand shrub or tree (Discaria toumatou), family Rhamnaceae, having stout, Tumatakuru (Discaria toumatou). (¼) tuft'ed-eared', adj. See -EARED. tuft'ed-necked', adj. See -NECKED. tuft'i-ly, adv. of TUFTY. tuft'let, n. Dim. of TUFT. tugd. Tugged. Ref. Sp. tugen. Past tense pl. of TEE, draw. Obs. tug'less, adj. See -LESS. tug'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tug'man (tŭg'măn), n. = TUGBOATMAN. tu'grik (tōō'grĭk), n. [Mongol dughurik, lit., round thing, wheel.] See COIN, Table.
tu-gu'ri-um (tū-gū'rĭ-ŭm), n. = TEGURIUM. [Obs. exc. Dial.] tulk (tŭk; tŭk). Var. of TOOK.
tuk (tōōk). Obs. exc. dial. past & past part. of TAKE.
tuke. † TUCK. [TWANA.] tul'pa'lip (tŭl'pä-lĭp'lĭp), n. See tu-la're (tōō-lä'rē), n. [Sp.] = TULE LAND.
Tul-bagh'i-a (tŭl-bäg'ĭ-ä), n. [NL., after Ryk Tulbagh, Dutch governor of Cape Colony, 1751–71.] Bot. Syn. of AGAPANTHUS. tul'ze. † TULSI.
tule. † TOOL, TULYIE, TULY. tu'le-ma' ar'row-root' (tōō'lĭ-mä'). [Corrupt. of TOUS-LES-MOIS.] = TOUS-LES-MOIS. tu'li-pant', † TURBAN. tul'i-pe (tŭl'ĭ-pē), tul'i-pi (-pĭ). Vars. of TULLIBEE. [S. Africa.] tu'lip-grass', n. = TULIP, 1 b. tu'lip-like', adj. See -LIKE.
tulle. † TILL, to entice, TOLL.
Tu-los'to-ma (tū-lŏs'tō-mä), Tu-los'to-ma/co-se (-mā'kō-sē). Vars. of TYLOSTOMA, TYLOSTOMACEAE. tu'ly, n. [Perhaps orig. from the name of a place.] A scarlet dye or color. Obs. tul'yie (tōōl'yĭ; cf. CAPERCAILLIE). Var. of TULYIE. tum (tōōm), n. sing. & pl. [Sw.] See MEASURE, Table.
Tum (tōōm). Var. of TEM.
tum. Var. of TOOM. Obs. exc. Dial. tŭm (tŭm), n. [Estonian.] See MEASURE, Table.
tu-main', tu-man'. † TOMAN. tu-ma'sha. Var. of TAMASHA. tu'ma'tu-ku'ru, n. = TUMATAKURU. tumb. † TOMB.

sharp spines used by the Maoris for tattooing; — called also matagouri and wild Irishman.

tum·bak' (tŭm·băk'), tum·bak'i (-ĭ), or tum·bek' (-bĕk'), tum·bek'i (-ĭ), n. [Ar. tunbak, tunbāk, Turk. tanbāku, colloq. tumbeki, both fr. Per. tanbāku, ult. (prob. through F. tabac, or It. tabacco) fr. Sp. tabaco. See TOBACCO.] A coarse Persian tobacco.

tum'ble (tŭm'b'l), v.; TUM'BLED (-b'ld); TUM'BLING (-blĭng). [ME. tumblen, freq. of tumben, tomben, to dance, to jump, fr. AS. tumbian to turn heels over head, to dance violently; akin to MLG. tummelen to turn, leap, dance, D. tuimelen to fall, Sw. tumla, Dan. tumle, ON. tumba; prob. orig. of imitative origin; cf. Rumanian tumbă somersault. Cf. TUMBREL.] Intransitive: 1. To dance; to leap, spring, etc., rhythmically; now, usually, to perform acrobatic feats, esp. without apparatus, such as somersaults, handsprings, etc.

2. To fall suddenly and violently; to be precipitated; to lose one's balance and fall; as, to tumble from a scaffolding; to tumble down on the ice.

3. Hence, to collapse; to break down; as, the wall finally tumbled; also, of stocks, etc., to fall suddenly and sharply in price or value.

4. To roll over, or to and fro; to roll or toss about; as, the waves tumble and toss.

5. To move, go, come, pass, jump, etc., in a hasty disorderly manner; to rush forward confusedly or clumsily; as, the dogs came tumbling at his call; the boys tumbled out of the bus.

6. To turn end over end, as a tumbler pigeon in falling, etc.; specif., Gun., to turn end over end in the air, as a projectile.

7. To come inadvertently; to stumble; run; happen; — with into, on, or upon; as, to tumble into an old friend in Paris.

8. To slope or veer; to batter. See TUMBLE HOME (in phrases, below).

9. To tumble to something. See TUMBLE TO, below.

—, Transitive: 1. To cause to tumble, or fall or roll (over or down); to precipitate; pitch; throw down; overthrow; as, to tumble one in wrestling or a hare with a shot; to tumble over a barrel.

2. Hence: a To throw without care or intent; to fling recklessly or in a heap; as, to tumble clothes into a bag. b To toss about; to throw or drive here and there.

Tumbled about like a football. Smollet.

3. To disorder; rumple; tousle; disheveled.

One gets so tumbled in such a crowd. Jane Austen.

4. To turn over as in searching or considering; to throw about in a hasty examination; as, to tumble books about to find one of interest.

5. To whirl in a tumbler or tumbling barrel, as for polishing (metal), softening (leather goods), or drying (clothes).

6. Print. To turn (a sheet to be backed up) from top to bottom instead of from right to left.

tumble home. Shipbuilding. To incline inward, above the water line or greatest breadth; — said of the sides of a ship. Cf. WALL-SIDED.

tumble in. a To tumble home. b Colloq. To go to bed.

tumble to. Slang. a To understand without being told; to become aware of. b Brit. To accept by yielding to; to fall in with.

tumble up. a Colloq. To get out of bed; to rise. b Dial. To roll hay into bundles for pitching. c Naut. To go or come quickly on deck.

tum'ble (tŭm'b'l), n. 1. Action or an act of tumbling, in any sense; as, to take a tumble, or fall; to practice a tumble; the tumble of the waves.

2. A tumbled state; disorder; messy condition; heap or mass; as, the room was in a tumble; a tumble of books, papers, pipes, etc.

3. a = TUMBLING BARREL. b = LICKER-IN.

tum'ble-bug' (-bŭg'), n. Any of various scarabaeid beetles (as species of the genera Scarabaeus, Canthon, Copris, and Phanaeus) which form globular masses of dung, which they roll and bury in holes excavated in the ground. The beetles lay their eggs in these balls, which serve as food for the larvae.

Tumblebug (Phanaeus carnifex).

tumble cart or car. Formerly, a rough dumpcart with wheels solid and made fast to the axle.

tum'bled (tŭm'b'ld), adj. Subjected to tumbling; thrown down; disordered; tousled; disheveled.

tum'ble-down' (-b'l-doun'), adj. Ready to fall; dilapidated; ruinous, as a shanty. — n. A tumble-down building.

tumble grass. = WITCH GRASS b. tumble home. Shipbuilding. Act or fact of tumbling home. See tumble home, under TUMBLE, v.

tumble mustard. The tall sisymbrium (Sisymbrium altissimum).

tum'bler (tŭm'blĕr), n. 1. One who tumbles; esp., one who performs acrobatic tricks, as somersaults, etc.

2. A dog of a breed formerly used in coursing rabbits.

3. One who procures or entices victims for swindlers. Obs. Slang.

4. A drinking glass without a foot or stem, orig. made with a pointed or convex base so that it could not be set down until empty; also, the contents of a tumbler.

5. A kind of cart; a tumble cart or a tumbrel. Chiefly Dial.

6. Any of certain domestic pigeons having the habit of tumbling, or somersaulting backward in flight or on the ground. The short-faced tumblers rarely tumble, being bred mainly for color, carriage, shape, etc. They have a very short bill, a high bulging forehead, and a strutting carriage. Cf. ALMOND TUMBLER. The common tumblers and the rollers have a longer bill and head, and are bred for their aërial performances.

7. A movable obstruction in a lock, consisting of a lever, latch, wheel, slide, pin, or the like, which must be adjusted to a particular position by a key or other means before the bolt can be thrown. See LOCK, n., 1, Illust. 2.

8. [cap.] A member of one of the ruffianly London bands of the early 18th century. Cf. MOHOCK, n., 2. Obs. exc. Hist.

9. [cap.] A Dunker; — a derisive nickname alluding to the baptismal ceremony of the Dunkers, in which the person is thrice plunged face forward into the water.

10. a The pupa of a mosquito; — so called because of its tumbling movements. b = TUMBLEBUG.

11. A device or mechanism for tumbling (see TUMBLE, v. t., 5); specif.: a A clothes-drying device consisting of a revolving cage in which hot air is agitated by fan action. b Leather Mfg. A drum in which hides are washed and softened, etc. c Metal. = TUMBLING BARREL.

12. One who tumbles or operates a tumbler; specif.: a Leather Mfg. = DRUMMER, 2 a. b Metal. = BARRELER.

13. A kind of toy, usually a figure of a person, so formed and weighted as to rock or tumble at a slight touch.

14. Firearms. A piece attached to, or forming part of, the hammer of a gunlock, on which the mainspring acts and in which are the notches for the sear point to enter.

15. Mach. a A projecting piece on a revolving shaft or rockshaft, for actuating another piece, as the click which moves the rack in a striking mechanism one tooth for each blow struck. See ROCKSHAFT. b The movable part of a tumbler gear.

16. Naut. A pin, or one of a pair of pins, engaging the ends of a ring stopper and shank painter.

17. Weaving. In certain looms, one of the levers from which the harness is suspended; a tippler.

tumbler bearing. Mach. Any of the intermediate swiveling or pivoted bearings for a square shaft (with fixed end bearings), which can be knocked aside by a traveling crab or the like moving along, and gearing with, the square shaft, as in a gantry, etc.

tumbler cart. A horse-drawn two-wheeled farm cart with a tanklike box for handling liquid or semiliquid materials.

tumbler cup. A cup with a pointed or convex bottom. See TUMBLER, n., 4.

tumbler gear. Mach. Any of various reversing or speed-changing gears, used esp. in modern machine tools, in which one or more idle wheels are journaled in a swinging frame which is moved and clamped in position by the operator. — tumbler gearing.

One Form of Tumbler Gear. A Driver; B Driven Wheel; C D Idle Wheels (all indicated by their Pitch Circles); E Rocking Frame, coaxial with B. Directions of rotation are indicated by arrows. Gear is reversed by swinging E to the left so that D gears with both A and B, and C is out of gear entirely.

tumbler pigeon. = TUMBLER, 6.

tumbler switch. Elec. See SWITCH, n., 5.

tum'ble-weed' (tŭm'b'l-wēd'), n. In the United States, any plant which habitually breaks away from its roots in the autumn, and is driven by the wind, as a light, rolling mass, over the fields and prairies. The commonest tumbleweeds are the bugseed, the winged pigweed, the herb Psoralea lanceolata, the wild indigo Baptisia tinctoria, the Russian thistle, and species of Amaranthus (as A. graecizans).

tum'bli·fi·ca'tion (tŭm'blĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [tumble + -fication.] A tumbling or tossing as at sea. Jocose.

tum'bling (tŭm'blĭng), adj. That tumbles or is a tumbler; used for tumbling; as, a tumbling girl, room, or stone. — tum'bling·ly, adv.

tumbling barrel. A revolving cask or barrel in which small metal parts are polished, as by mutual attrition, or in which small castings are put to break out their cores; — called also rattle barrel, rattler, rumble, rumbler, etc.

Foundry Tumbling Barrel.

tumbling bay. An overfall in a canal; a weir.

tumbling box. A tumbling barrel for small objects.

tumbling mustard. The tall sisymbrium (Sisymbrium altissimum).

tumbling pigweed. The green amaranth Amaranthus retroflexus.

tumbling rod. Mach. A rod having a cam or lever rigidly attached to transmit an intermittent motion.

tumbling shaft. Mach. A camshaft or lay shaft. Cf. TUMBLING ROD.

tumbling verse. Pros. An irregular form of early English verse, having four stresses, but no prevailing type of foot and no regular number of syllables.

tum'bly (tŭm'blĭ), adj. Inclined to tumble; tumble-down; also, tumbled; in a tumble, or mess.

tum'brel (tŭm'brĕl), tum'bril (-brĭl), n. [ME. tomerel, tumerel, fr. OF. tomberel, tumeril, a tip cart (F. tombereau), fr. tomber to fall, tumble, upset, dance, leap, and tumer to dance, turn somersaults, of Teut. origin; cf. OHG. tümōn, tümalōn, to turn around (G. taumeln to reel, stagger, tummeln to turn around), of LG. origin. See TUMBLE.] 1. An instrument of torture; specif., a cucking stool. Hist.

2. A cart; specif., a farmer's dumpcart or wagon, esp. one of a rude type used for manure; — also applied to the vehicles used to convey condemned persons to the guillotine during the French Revolution, from the fact that common manure carts were sometimes used. Archaic & Hist.

3. Obs. a A barge, or flat-bottomed boat. b A lumbering or a drunken person; also, his belly.

4. An osier or willow cage for fodder. Local, Eng.

5. Mil. A two-wheeled cart accompanying troops, to convey tools, cartridges, etc. Archaic.

tum'bu fly (tōōm'bōō), [Of Bantu origin; cf. Senga lumbu a stinging fly (which in some other languages would have pl. tumbu), Kongo & Swahili mbu mosquito.] An African fly (Cordylobia anthropophaga), family Muscidae, whose larva lives as a subcutaneous parasite in various mammals and rarely in man.

tu'me·fa'cient (tū'mĕ·fā'shĕnt), adj. [L. tumefaciens, -entis, pres. part. of tumefacere to tumefy, fr. tumere to swell + facere to make.] Med. Producing swelling; tumefying.

tu'me·fac'tion (-făk'shŭn), n. [F. tuméfaction.] 1. Act of tumefying, or state of being tumefied.

2. A tumor; swelling.

tu'me·fy (tū'mĕ·fī), v. t.; TU'ME·FIED (-fīd); TU'ME·FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [F. tuméfier, fr. L. tumere to swell + -ficare (in comp.) to make; cf. L. tumefacere to tumefy. See TUMID; -FY.] To swell; to cause to swell, or puff up; to inflate. — v. i. To rise in a tumor; to swell; to become swelled.

tu·mes'cent (tū·mĕs'ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [L. tumescens, -entis, pres. part. of tumescere to swell up, v. incho. fr. tumere to swell. See TUMID.] Slightly tumid or swollen. — tu·mes'cence (-ĕns; -'ns), n.

tum'fie (tŭm'fĭ), n. A stupid or awkward person. Scot.

tu'mid (tū'mĭd), adj. [L. tumidus, fr. tumere to swell. See TOMB; cf. TUBER, TURGID.] 1. Swollen, enlarged, or distended, esp. as a result of disease; as, tumid legs or flesh.

2. Bulging; protuberant; formed as if swollen.

So high as heaved the tumid hills. Milton.

3. Figuratively: a Of style, etc., pompous; inflated; bombastic; turgid. b Teeming; bursting.

Syn. — Bloated, bulging, plethoric. See TURGID.

— tu'mid·ly, adv. — tu'mid·ness, n.

tu·mid'i·ty (tū·mĭd'ĭ·tĭ), n. [LL. tumiditas.] Quality or state of being tumid.

tum'mals, tum'mels (tŭm''lz), n. sing. & pl. [Corn. tomals.] A great quantity or heap. Cornwall.

tum'mer (tŭm'ĕr), n. a Woolen Mfg. One who tums, or cards. b Cotton Mfg. A small drum similar to the doffer for transferring the cotton from the first to the second cylinder in double carding.

tum'mock (tŭm'ŭk), n. [Dim. fr. Gael. tom hillock.] A hillock. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

tum'my (tŭm'ĭ), n. Stomach. Humorous.

tu'mor, tu'mour (tū'mĕr), n. [OF. or L.; OF. tumour (F. tumeur), fr. L. tumor. See TOMB.] 1. A swelling or distending; a tumid condition. Obs.

2. A swollen or distended part; a protuberance. Now R.

3. Figuratively: a Pomposity; arrogance. b Turgidity of style; bombast. Both Now Rare.

4. Any morbid swelling; specif., Med., an abnormal mass of tissue, not inflammatory and independent in character, arising without obvious cause from cells of pre-existent tissue, possessing no physiological function, and characteristically unrestrained in growth and structure; — often called a true tumor; a neoplasm. Cf. -OMA.

tu'mored, tu'moured (tū'mĕrd), adj. Swollen with or as with a tumor.

tu'mor·like' (tū'mĕr·līk'), adj. See -LIKE.

tu'mor·ous (tū'mĕr·ŭs), adj. [LL. tumorosus inflated.] 1. Obs. a Tumid; swollen. b Overwrought; overweeningly proud or vain. c Inflated; bombastic.

2. Med. Of or pertaining to a tumor or tumors.

tump (tŭmp; tōōmp), n. [Cf. W. twmp, twm, and E. TUMMOCK.] Local, Eng. a A hillock. b A tumulus. c A clump of trees on a height. d A heap. — v. t. & i. To form a tump (around or about). Local, Eng.

tump (tŭmp), v. t. [See TUMPLINE.] To drag or carry, as a slain deer, by a tumpline. Local, U. S.

tump'line' (tŭmp'lĭn'), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Massachuset tâmpân a pack strap, Abnaki mâdûmbi.] A kind of sling formed by a strap slung over the forehead or chest and used by one carrying a pack on his back or in hauling game, etc. U. S. & Canada.

tum'–tum' (tŭm'tŭm'), n. 1. Also tum'–ti–tum' (-tĭ-tŭm'). [Imitative.] A reiterated tum; a strumming.

2. [Perh. imitative of the sound of beating.] A dish made in the West Indies by beating boiled plantain quite soft in a wooden mortar.

tum'–tum', v. i. To make a tum-tum (sense 1); to strum.

tum'tum (tŭm'tŭm), n. [Appar. corrupt. of TANDEM.] A dogcart. Anglo-Ind.

tu'mu·lar (tū'mū·lĕr), adj. [L. tumulus a mound; cf. F. tumulaire. See TUMULUS.] Consisting of, pertaining to, or resembling, a tumulus.

tu'mu·lar'y (-lĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -lĕr·ĭ), adj. Tumular.

tu'mu·late (-lāt), v. t. [L. tumulatus, past part. of tumulare to tumulate. See TUMULUS.] To entomb. — tu'mu·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. Both Rare.

tu'mu·lose (-lōs; see -OSE), tu'mu·lous (-lŭs), adj. [L. tumulosus, fr. tumulus a mound.] Full of small hills or mounds; tumular. — tu'mu·los'i·ty (-lŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n.

tu'mult (tū'mŭlt or, esp. Brit., -mŭlt), n. [OF. or L.; OF. tumulte, fr. L. tumultus; akin to Skr. tumula noise, noisy, and L. tumere to swell. See TOMB.] 1. The commotion or agitation of a multitude, usually with great uproar and confusion of voices; as, tumult in the city.

2. Hence: a An uprising or riot among the people; a popular disturbance. b Obs. A rioting mob.

3. Violent commotion with confusion of noises; turbulence combined with din; as, the tumult of the elements.

4. Violent agitation of mind or feelings; highly disturbing mental or emotional excitement; a violent outburst; as, to give way to a tumult of grief; the tumult of the passions.

Syn. — Uproar, ferment, disturbance, disorder, confusion, noise, bluster, hubbub, bustle, riot.

Ant. — Peace, quiet, calm, repose, serenity. tu'mult (tū'mŭlt), v. t. & i. To cause a tumult (among).

tu'mult·er (tū'mŭl·tĕr), n. One who makes or takes part in a tumult. Obs.

tu·mul'tu·ar'y (tū·mŭl'tū·ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. tumultuarius; cf. F. tumultuaire.] 1. Composed of or waged by a disorganized multitude; characterized by mob action or lawlessness.

A tumultuary attack of the Celtic peasantry. Macaulay.

2. Characterized by haste and confusion; done, carried on, formed, etc., precipitately and without plan; hence, haphazard; impetuous; aimless; senseless. "Those . . . less interested, rushed into a tumultuary discussion." Scott.

3. Tumultuous; characterized by, or of the nature of, a tumult. Now Rare.

— tu·mul'tu·ar'i·ly, adv. — tu·mul'tu·ar'i·ness, n.

tu·mul'tu·ar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). A tumultuary, or undisciplined, force.

‖tu'mul·tu·o'so (tōō'mōōl·tōō·ō'sō), adj. [It.] Music. Tumultuous; impetuous; — a direction.

tu·mul'tu·ous (tū·mŭl'tū·ŭs), adj. [L. tumultuosus; cf. F. tumultueux.] 1. Characterized or attended by or making tumult or tumults; full of turbulence, commotion, agitation, etc.; as, a tumultuous uprising, meeting, throng.

2. Tending or serving to cause or incite a tumult. Obs.

Syn. — Disorderly, noisy, confused, violent, agitated, disturbed, boisterous, lawless, riotous.

Ant. — Placid, calm, peaceful, orderly.

— tu·mul'tu·ous·ly, adv. — tu·mul'tu·ous·ness, n.

tu'mu·lus (tū'mū·lŭs), n.; pl. -LI (-lĭ). [L., hillock, sepulchral mound. See TOMB.] An artificial hillock or mound, as over a grave, esp. over the grave of a person buried in ancient times; a barrow.

tumulus scab. See POTATO SCAB.

Tu'mu·pa'sa (tōō'mōō·pā'sä), n. See TACANA.

---

tum·beck'. † TOMBAC.

tumbester, n. [ME. tombes, tumbes, to dance. See TUMBLE; -STER.] A female dancer. Obs.

tum'bl. Tumble. Ref. Sp.

tum'ble-dung', n. = TUMBLEBUG.

tum'bler-ful, n. See -FUL.

tum'bler-like', adj. See -LIKE.

tum'bler-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED.

tum'bler-wise', adv. See -WISE.

Tum·bo'a (tŭm·bō'ä), n. [NL., fr. the native name, tumbo, at Mossamedes, Angola.] Bot. Syn. of WELWITSCHIA.

tume (tūm; tŭm). Var. of TOOM. Obs. exc. Dial.

tu'mer·ic (tū'mĕr·ĭk). Var. of TURMERIC.

Tu'mi·on (tū'mĭ·ŏn), n. Bot. Syn. of TORREYA.

tum'mel, tum'mle (tŭm''l; tōōm''l). Scot. & dial. Eng. vars. of TUMBLE.

tum'phy. Var. of TUMPIE.

tu'mu·li, n., pl. of TUMULUS.

tu·mul'tu·ate (tū·mŭl'tū·āt) p. i. & t. [L. tumultuatus, past part. of tumultuari to make a tumult.] = TUMULT, v. — tu·mul'tu·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. Both Now Rare.

tun (tŭn), n. [ME. tonne, tunne, a tun, fr. AS. tunne a tun, tub, a large vessel; akin to OHG. tunna, G. tonne a ton, tun, MLG. tunne, MD. tonne, D. ton, ON. & Sw. tunna, Dan. tønde; ult. of Celtic origin. See TUNNEL; cf. TON.] 1. A large cask; an oblong vessel bulging in the middle, like a pipe or puncheon, and girt with hoops; a wine cask.
2. Hence, the capacity of a tun. See MEASURE, Table.
3. A large vessel, as a vat, tub, jar, etc.; — obsolete exc. specif., Brewing, a fermenting vat.
4. Someone or something suggestive of a tun, as a paunchy person, or a paunch.
5. A chimney; also, a chimney pot. Now Dial. Eng.
6. A drinking cup or bowl. Archaic.
7. 100,000 of (gold) gulden; — always tun of gold. Obs.

tun, v. t.; TUNNED (tŭnd); TUN'NING. 1. To put into a tun or tuns; to cask; to store in or as in tuns; — often used with up.
2. To drink excessively of (liquor); to guzzle.
3. To fill up (a tun, etc.) as with liquor.

tun (tōōn), n. [AS. tūn. See TOWN.] A.-S. Hist. A town. See 2d -TON.

tun (tōōn), n. [Maya.] The 360-day year of the Mayan calendar.

tu'na (tōō'nä), n. [Sp., fr. Taino tuna.] Any of various flat-jointed prickly pears of the genus Opuntia, esp. O. tuna, common in tropical America; also, the edible fruit. The name is extended to several related species of the southwestern United States, as O. engelmanni, etc.

tu'na (tōō'nä), n.; pl. TUNA or TUNAS (-näz). See PLURAL, Note. Also tuna fish. [Am. Sp., fr. Sp. atún (see TUNNY), after E. tunny.] 1. A tunny, esp., on the California coast, Thunnus saliens, and on the Florida coast, Neothunnus allisoni, both species prized as game and food fishes. See TUNNY, Illust.
2. The flesh of this fish, used as food.

tu'na (tōō'nä), n. [Maori.] An eel (Anguilla sucklandii) of New Zealand waters; — also loosely applied to other South Sea eels.

tun'a·ble (tŭn'ä·b'l), adj. 1. Producing harmonious or sweet sounds; tuneful; melodious.
And tunable as sylvan pipe or song. Milton.
2. Being in tune; not out of tune or harmony; agreeable; pleasing. "Any rhythmical swing tunable to modern ears." Saintsbury.
3. Capable of being tuned, or adjusted in pitch; also, Rare, capable of being musically or poetically expressed.
Some thought that perched there, tame and tunable. Browning.
— tun'a·ble·ness, n. — tun'a·bly, adv.

tu'na cheese (tōō'nä). A cheeselike product made in Mexico from certain opuntias (tunas). It is chocolate-colored, pleasantly flavored, and wholesome.

tu'na oil (tōō'nä). See OIL, Table II.

tun'bel'ly (tŭn'bĕl'ĭ), n. A potbelly. — tun'bel'lied (-ĭd), adj.

Tun'bridge ware, or Tun'bridge (tŭn'brĭj), n. Inlaid hardwood forming boxes, toys, etc.; — from Tunbridge Wells, Kent, England.

tun'ca (tŭng'kä), n. [Hind. tankhā (written tankhwāh), fr. Per. tankhāh (written tankhwāh).] India. 1. An assignment on the revenue of a locality in favor of an individual.
2. The wages of a servant hired by the month.

tund (tŭnd), v. t. & i. [L. tundere.] To pound or bruise; to beat, esp. with a stick. — tun·da'tion (tŭn·dā'shŭn), n. Obs.

tun'dish' (tŭn'dĭsh'; tŏŏn'-), n. A funnel. Now Dial. Eng.

tun'dra (tōōn'drä; tŭn'-), n. [Russ., of Lappic origin.] One of the level or undulating treeless plains characteristic of northern arctic regions in both hemispheres. The tundras mark the limit of arborescent vegetation; they consist of black mucky soil with a permanently frozen subsoil, but support a dense growth of mosses and lichens, as the reindeer moss, and dwarf cespitose herbs and shrubs, often showy-flowered.

tune (tūn; 242), n. [ME. tun, tune, vars. of tone. See TONE.] 1. A sound; tone; esp., tone of voice. Now Rare.
2. A succession of musical tones constituting a melody; also, the musical setting of a ballad, psalm, lyric, etc.; an air; — chiefly applied to short compositions of simple construction whether unison or harmonized; as, a dance tune; hymn tunes; to the tune of Annie Laurie. See AIR, 18 b.
3. Hence: a Any rhythmical succession of sounds, whether musical or not; as, the tune of a brook. b Distinguishing or characteristic intonation in speaking; specif., Phonet., speech tune, or speech melody.
A foreigner is known at once by his "tune." A. J. Ellis.
4. The state or capacity of giving tones of proper pitch; correct intonation; the condition of an instrument when adjusted so as to harmonize with itself or with others; harmonious accordance; agreement of a voice or instrument in pitch; as, the piano is not in tune; to sing out of tune.
5. Hence, state of being mentally or emotionally in harmony, adjustment, or readiness; right frame of mind or attitude; mood. "We are always more in tune for some pleasures." H. Sidgwick. "Individuals a little out of tune with the times." Willa Cather.
6. Characteristic or prevailing temper or tones; song (sense 5); as, to make a person change his tune. Colloq.
7. Musical pitch; now, figuratively, pitch, or degree; height.
She alone could touch him . . . to anything like such a tune. H. James.
8. Physics. By extension, harmony or accordance as regards vibrations other than sound; as, to place the receiver of a radio system in tune with the transmitter so as to respond to impulses given out by the latter.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
tunemaker, tunemaking, tune-skilled.
— to call the (or one's own) tune. To dictate the course or procedure to be followed. Colloq.
— to the tune of. To the amount of. Colloq.

tune (tūn), v.; TUNED (tŭnd); TUN'ING (tūn'ĭng). [From TUNE, n.; cf. ENTUNE, v.] Transitive: 1. To adjust (a voice or instrument) to a given musical pitch or temperament; to cause to be in tune; as, to tune a piano or a violin.
2. To put in tune with itself or another; to make the parts of form or operate as a harmonious whole; to attune (one to another). "That has a mind well strung and tuned." Cowper.
3. To adapt in pitch, tone, or esp., mood; to make harmonious; to change the tune or tenor of.
For now to sorrow must I tune my song. Milton.
4. To train or form with a particular end in view; to make responsive to one's wishes.
5. To express in song; to utter musically; also, to provide with a tune. "Tune his praise." Milton.
Leave such to tune their own dull rhymes. Pope.
6. Now Rare. a To set the tune or pitch for, as congregational singing. b Poetic. To produce tunes from; to play.
The Cupids tune his lyre. Pope.
7. Elec. To bring (a circuit) into tune with another by adjusting its inductance or capacity (see TUNE, n., 8).
—, Intransitive: 1. To utter musical tones; to sing; also, Dial., to hum.
2. To sound in tune; to be attuned; harmonize.

tune in. Radio. To adjust the receiving apparatus to resonance with the frequency of a particular transmitting station from which signals are to be received.

tune out. Radio. To keep (signals, messages, or the like) from affecting receiving apparatus by tuning or adjusting the latter so that it will not respond to their frequency.

tune up. a To adjust instruments for playing together; to tune an instrument to the proper pitch. b Colloq. To begin to sing or play; to break into song. c Mach. To make the necessary adjustments, esp. the finer adjustments, which are necessary to bring an engine, as an automobile or airplane engine, into first-class running condition.

Tu·ne'ho (tōō·nā'hō), n. An Indian of a group of Chibchan tribes of Boyacá, Colombia, comprising the Chitas, Guacicos, Morcotes, Pedrazas, Tuneboos proper, and Sinsigas. See CHIBCHAN.

tuned (tūnd), adj. Put in tune; harmonized; melodious; also, furnished with a tune or tunes.

-tuned (-tūnd). A combining form of tuned, as in: multiple-tuned, silver-tuned, slow-tuned, timbertuned.

tune'ful (tūn'fŏŏl; -fl), adj. 1. Tunable; harmonious; melodious; musical; as, tuneful songs or rhymes.
2. Producing tunes; uttering or giving forth musical notes or melodies; as, tuneful birds.
Syn. — Concordant, euphonious.
Ant. — Discordant, jangling, harsh.
— tune'ful·ly, adv. — tune'ful·ness, n.

tune'less (-lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. 1. Not tuneful; unmelodious; as, tuneless verse.
2. Not producing or incapable of producing music; unheard; as, tuneless harps or birds.
— tune'less·ly, adv. — tune'less·ness, n.

tun'er (tūn'ĕr), n. 1. One who tunes. Specif.: a One whose occupation is to tune musical instruments. b One who tunes up engines, looms, etc.
2. Something used for or in tuning. Specif.: a = TUNING PIPE. b A device for tuning an organ flue pipe, consisting of an adjustable flap or opening near its top, by which the vibrating length of the air chamber may be changed. c Elec. An instrument for tuning an electric circuit. d Radio. The part of a radio receiving set consisting of the circuit or circuits used to tune in.

Tun'ga (tŭng'gä), n. [NL., fr. Pg. (in Brazil) tunga.] Zool. See SARCOPSYLLA.

tung'ate (tŭng'āt), n. [tung oil + -ate.] A salt or ester of one or more of the fatty acids of tung oil.

Tung'–hu' (dōōng'hōō'), n. The eastern Tatars.

tun'go (tŭn'gō), n. [Native name.] A rat kangaroo. S. Australia.

tung oil (tŭng). a A poisonous, pungent, fixed drying oil obtained from the seeds in the nuts of the tung tree (Aleurites fordii) and allied species; — called also wood oil and nut oil. Tung oil contains glyceryl esters of unsaturated acids and is the most powerful drying oil known. It is used as a substitute for linseed oil in paints, varnishes, and linoleum, as a waterproofing agent, etc. b Japanese wood oil.

tun'–great' (tŭn'grāt'), adj. Having the circumference of a tun. Obs.

tung'state (tŭng'stāt), n. Chem. A salt or ester of tungstic acid.

tung'sten (tŭng'stĕn), n. [Sw., fr. tung heavy + sten stone. See HEAVY.] 1. Chem. A metallic element of the chromium family found combined in certain minerals, as wolframite and scheelite. Symbol, W (wolfram); at. no., 74; at. wt., 183.92. When pure, it is white and ductile (though it is more readily obtained in a grayish impure form, hard and brittle). It is as heavy as gold, and has the highest melting point of any of the metals (melting at about 3370° C. or 6098° F.), whence its wide use for electric-light filaments, sparking points for automobiles, electrical contacts, etc. It is also used for alloying steel (see TUNGSTEN STEEL) and for other purposes. Its chief valences are four, five, and six.
2. Mineral. Scheelite, or calcium tungstate. Obs.

tung·sten'ic (tŭng·stĕn'ĭk), adj. Of, pertaining to, or containing, tungsten.

tung'sten·if'er·ous (tŭng'stĕn·ĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. See -FEROUS.

tung'sten·ite (tŭng'stĕn·īt), n. Mineral. A tungsten sulphide, WS_2, occurring in small lead-gray folia. H., 2.5.

tungsten lamp. An electric glow lamp having filaments of metallic tungsten. Such lamps, because of the refractory nature of the metal, may be maintained at a very high temperature and require an expenditure of one watt per candle power, or less.

tungsten ocher. Mineral. Tungstite.

tungsten steel. Metal. Steel containing tungsten and noted for its tenacity and hardness, even under a considerable degree of heat. Ordinary tungsten steel used for tools, etc., contains 0.5 to 7 per cent tungsten; that used for permanent magnets contains 5 to 6 per cent tungsten; high-speed steels contain 14 to 18 per cent tungsten together with other alloying elements. See SELF-HARDENING; STEEL, n., 1.

tungsten trioxide. Chem. A compound, WO_3, occurring naturally as tungstite, and obtained artificially as a yellow crystalline powder.

tung'stic (tŭng'stĭk), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or containing, tungsten; — said esp. of compounds in which tungsten has a valence of six.

tungstic acid. a Formerly, tungsten trioxide. b Now, any of various acids corresponding to the above oxide; specif., the simplest one, H_2WO_4, analogous in composition to chromic acid and obtained as a yellow solid. See META-TUNGSTIC ACID, PARATUNGSTIC ACID.

tungstic anhydride or oxide. = TUNGSTEN TRIOXIDE.

tung'stite (tŭng'stīt), n. Mineral. Native tungsten trioxide, WO_3, a yellow or yellowish-green pulverulent mineral; — called also tungstic ocher.

tung'sto- (tŭng'stō-). Chem. A combining form denoting the presence of tungsten.

tung'sto·si·lic'ic (tŭng'stō·sĭ·lĭs'ĭk), adj. Chem. Solicotungstic; specif., designating a white crystalline acid to which the formula $H_8SiW_{12}O_{40}.20H_2O$ has been assigned.
— tung'sto·sil'i·cate (-sĭl'ĭ·kāt) [see -ATE, 3 b], n.

tung tree (tŭng). [Chin. (Pek.) yu²- t'ung², in which yu² means oil.] a A Chinese tree (Aleurites fordii) grown for the oil of its seeds, which is used for varnishes and paints. See TUNG OIL. b Also, any of certain related species of Aleurites.

Tun·gus', Tun·guz' (tōōn·gōōz'), n. 1. sing. & pl. One of a Mongoloid people widely spread over Eastern Siberia and numbering about 100,000. They seem to be related to the Manchu. Some are now Christians; others are Lamaists; many are pagans. Their modes of life vary according to habitat, but many are still nomads.
2. Also Tun·gus'ic (-ĭk). The language of the Tungus. See URAL-ALTAIC LANGUAGES.
— Tun·gus', adj. — Tun·gus'ic (-ĭk), Tun·gus'i·an (-ĭ·ăn), adj.

tu'nic (tū'nĭk), n. [F. or L.; F. tunique, fr. L. tunica, ult. fr. same source as Gr. chitōn. See CHITON.] 1. Rom. Antiq. An undergarment worn by both sexes, with or without sleeves, reaching to or below the knees, and girdled.
2. A hip-length or longer blouse or coat, usually belted.
3. Bot. A natural integument; as, the tunic of a seed.
4. Eccl. = TUNICLE, 2.
5. Mil. Any undress coat worn by British soldiers. Colloq.
6. Zool. & Anat. A mantle, as of a tunicate; a tunica.

Tu·ni'ca (tōō·nē'kä), n. sing. & pl. An Indian of a Tonikan tribe. See TONIKAN.

‖ tu'ni·ca (tū'nĭ·kä), n.; pl. -CAE (-sē). [NL. See TUNIC.] A tunic; specif., Anat. & Zool., an enveloping or covering membrane or layer of tissue.

‖ tu'ni·ca ad'ven·ti'ti·a (ăd'vĕn·tĭsh'ĭ·ä). [NL.] = AD VENTITIA.

‖ tu'ni·ca al'bu·gi'ne·a (ăl'bū·jĭn'ē·ä). [NL.] Anat. A white fibrous capsule, esp. of the testis, ovary, eye, or spleen.

‖ tu'ni·ca e·las'ti·ca (ē·lăs'tĭ·kä). [NL.] Anat. a = MEDIA, n., 2. b The elastic lamina of the intima.

‖ tu'ni·ca ex·ter'na (ĕks·tûr'nä), ‖ tu'ni·ca in·ter'na (ĭn·tûr'nä). [NL.] See THECA FOLLICULI.

‖ tu'ni·ca in'ti·ma (ĭn'tĭ·mä). [NL.] = INTIMA, n.

‖ tu'ni·ca me'di·a (mē'dĭ·ä). [NL.] = MEDIA, n., 2.

tu'ni·ca pal·ma'ta (păl·mā'tä). [L., fr. palmatus embroidered with palm branches.] Rom. Antiq. An embroidered tunic worn by generals celebrating a triumph.

tu'ni·car'y (tū'nĭ·kĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -kĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-iz). [L. tunica a tunic.] Zool. A tunicate. Obs.

tu'ni·car'y, adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to a tunic, or covering membrane.

Tu'ni·ca'ta (tū'nĭ·kā'tä), n. pl. [NL. See TUNICATE.] Zool. A subphylum and class of marine chordates equiv. to Urochorda (or a class constituting the subphylum Urochorda), including the ascidians, salpas, and appendicularians; — so called from the characteristic cuticular outer covering (test, or tunic) of the body.

tu'ni·cate (tū'nĭ·kāt), n. One of the Tunicata.

tu'ni·cate, adj. [L. tunicatus, past part. of tunicare to clothe with a tunic, fr. tunica tunic.] 1. Bot. Covered with a tunic; coated with layers; specif., having numerous concentric coats or layers, as an onion; — applied to bulbs of this type.
2. Zool. a Having a tunic, or mantle; of or pertaining to the Tunicata. b Having each joint buried in the preceding funnel-shaped one, as in the antennae of certain insects.

‖ tu'ni·ca va'gi·na'lis (tū'nĭ·kä văj'ĭ·nā'lĭs). [NL.] Anat. The pouch of serous membrane covering the testis, derived from the peritoneum.

tu'ni·cin (tū'nĭ·sĭn), n. Biochem. A substance in the test, or body covering, of many tunicates, much like the cellulose of plants.

tu'nicked (tū'nĭkt), adj. Having or wearing a tunic.

tu'ni·cle (tū'nĭ·k'l), n. [L. tunicula a little tunic, coat, or membrane, dim. of tunica a tunic; cf. OF. tunicle.] 1. A small or short tunic; an outer covering or vesture; also, an integument. Now Rare.
2. R.C.Ch. a The upper vestment worn by a subdeacon at Mass, etc. In form and ornamentation, according to present usage, it is like the dalmatic. b A similar short, closefitting vestment (or tunic) used by a bishop at pontifical ceremonies, and worn under the dalmatic.

tun'ing (tūn'ĭng), n. The act or process of one who tunes; also, the condition of being tuned; specif., Radio, adjustment of receiving apparatus to resonance with the received waves. Cf. FLAT TUNING, SHARP TUNING, etc.

tuning bar. Music. A tuning instrument used especially by orchestras and consisting of a steel bar that is set on a resonance box and gives the pitch when struck.

tuning coil. Elec. A tuner consisting of a single coil of variable inductance. See TUNER, 2 c.

tuning cone. Music. A hollow metal cone used in tuning open organ pipes. Its point is pushed into the pipe to increase the flare and raise the pitch; its base is pressed over the pipe to decrease the flare and lower the pitch.

tuning fork. Music. A steel instrument consisting of two prongs and a handle, which, being struck, gives a certain fixed tone. It is useful for tuning instruments, and for ascertaining a standard pitch, since its tone is nearly free from harmonics, and is not affected by moderate differences of temperature.

Tuning Fork.

tuning hammer. Music. A hammer-shaped wrench with heads hollowed to fit over the tuning pins, used in tuning pianos.

tuning hole. Music. The hole near the top of an organ pipe which regulates the length of the vibrating air column, either by means of a sliding cover, or by the manipulation of a curled strip of metal.

tuning horn. = TUNING CONE.

tuning key. = TUNING HAMMER.

tuning lever. = TUNING HAMMER.

tuning pin or peg. Music. A pin to which the strings are fastened, as in pianos and in instruments of the violin family.

tuning pipe. Music. A pitch pipe; specif., one of a set of pitch pipes used especially for tuning stringed instruments.

tuning slide. SEE SLIDE, n., 10 c. tuning wrench. = TUNING HAMMER.

1, 2 Forms of Tuning Hammer tun. Obs. & ref. sp. of TON. tun, n. = 1st TOON. India.

tu'na·cle (tū'nä·k'l). Var. of TUNICLE. tun'dag·slat'ta (tōōn'däg·slăt'tä), n. sing. & pl. [Icel. tundagslátta.] See MEASURE, Table. tun'der (tŏŏn'dĕr). Obs. exc. dial. var. of TINDER. [ROARER a.] tun'dun (tŭn'dŭn), n. = BULL-tune. † TUN. tune'a·ble (tūn'ä·b'l). Var. of TUNABLE. — tune'a·bly, adv. — tune'a·ble·ness, n. tune'some (tūn'sŭm), adj. = TUNEFUL, 1. Rare.
tune'ster (-stĕr), n. See -STER. tun'ey (tŭn'ĭ), adj. Var. of TUNY. tun'ful, n. See -FUL. tung. Tongue. Obs. & Ref. Sp. tung, n. Short for TUNG TREE. tun'gah. † TANGA. [DUNGAN.]
Tun·gan' (tŭn·gän'), n. Var. of TUNGH. Tongued. Ref. Sp. tunge. † TONGUE. tun'hoof' (tŭn'fŏŏf'), n. [AS. tūn enclosure. See ALEHOOF.] = GROUND IVY a. Now Dial. Eng.
‖ tu'ni·cae, tu'ni·cae ad'ventiti·ae (tū'nĭ·sē ăd'vĕn·tĭsh'ĭ·ē), tu'ni·cae va'gi·na'les (văj'ĭ·nā'lēz). Pls. of TUNICA, TUNICA ADVENTITIA, TUNICA VAGINALIS.
Tu'ni·can (tōō'nē·kăn), adj. = TONIKAN. tu'ni·cat'ed (tū'nĭ·kāt'ĕd; -ĭd 119), adj. = TUNICATE. tunicated bulb. See BULB, 1. tu'niced. Var. of TUNICKED. tu'nic·less, adj. See -LESS.
tun'i·ness (tūn'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 191), n. See -NESS.

Tu'nis grass (tū'nĭs). [From Tunis (now Tunisia), N. Africa.] A North African grass (Sorghum virgatum) valued for forage.

Tu·ni'sian (tū·nĭzh'ĭ·ăn); -nĭzh'ĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pert. to Tunisia or the city of Tunis or their inhabitants. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Tunisia or Tunis. They are mostly Berbers and Arabs, with some French and Italians. 2. The North Arabic dialect of Tunisia.

tunk (tŭngk), n. & v. t. & i. [Imitative. Cf. THUMP.] Rap; thump. Dial.

tunk'et (tŭngk'ĭt), n. An expletive used as a substitute for "devil," "hell," or the like. Dial.

tun'moot' (tŭn'mōōt'), n. [AS. tūngemōt. See TOWN; 1st MOOT.] A town meeting. Hist.

tun'nel (tŭn'ĕl; -l), n. [OF. tonel, tonnel (F. tonneau), tun, cask, F. tonnelle a semicircular, wagon-headed vault, a tunnel net, an arbor, dim. of tonne a tun, fr. early ML. tunna, of Celt. origin; cf. OIr. tonn skin, hide. See TUN; cf. TONNEAU.] 1. A broadmouthed net or snare for game, having a pipelike extension that narrows at the end. Now Rare. 2. A chimney flue; a smokestack; also, a pipe or tube. Now Rare. 3. A funnel, or cone-shaped device for pouring. Now Local. 4. A subterranean passageway, esp. one nearly horizontal and open at both ends as to provide a path for a road, railroad, canal, etc., or for a sewer or drain. Cf. SUBWAY; TUBE, n., 11. 5. A tunnellike passage, canal, or excavation; specif., a burrow. 6. Mining. A horizontal or nearly level passage in a mine, esp. one of considerable length, as an adit; also, loosely, any drift, level, crosscut, or gangway. See MINE, Illust. 7. Shipbuilding. The tubelike watertight passage, through which the propeller shaft passes, between the stern tube and either the afterpeak bulkhead or a dwarf bulkhead terminating a small chamber called the stuffing-box recess. Called also shaft alley, shaft tunnel.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

tunnel-boring, adj. tunnel miner tunnel-shaped tunnelmaker tunnel pit tunnelway tunnelmaking tunnel shaft tun'nel (tŭn'ĕl; -l), v.; TUN'NELED (-ĕld; -'ld) or TUN'NELLED; TUN'NEL·ING or TUN'NEL·LING. Transitive: 1. To provide with, or catch in, a tunnel, or tunnel net. 2. To form into or like a tunnel, or pipe. Obs. 3. To make a tunnel or tunnellike opening through or under, by excavating, blasting, boring, burrowing, etc.; to dig, etc., a tunnel through or under; as, to tunnel a mountain or a river; to tunnel the snowdrifts. 4. To make (one's way) by digging or burrowing a tunnel; also, with out, to extricate or rescue by digging a tunnel; as, to tunnel out a snowbound family.

—, Intransitive: 1. To dig, cut, blast, etc., a tunnel; to construct a tunnel. 2. To burrow or excavate as in the soil or in plant tissues, as certain insects.

tunnel anemia. Med. Ancylostomiasis.

tunnel disease. Med. a Caisson disease. b Ancylostomiasis.

tun'neled, tun'nelled (tŭn'ĕld; -'ld), adj. Having a tunnel; formed by tunneling or like a tunnel; also, enclosed in or drawn through a tunnel.

tun'nel·er, tun'nel·ler (-ĕl·ĕr), n. 1. One who tunnels; specif.: a One who uses a tunnel, or tunnel net. b One employed in or on a tunnel, esp. in its excavation or construction. 2. A machine used in tunneling, as one used in mining to cut a drift, or an annular groove so that the drift may easily be made, in a single operation.

tunnel head. Metal. The top of a smelting furnace where the materials are put in.

tun'nel·ing, tun'nel·ling (tŭn'ĕl·ĭng), n. The action or occupation of one that tunnels; also, a tunnel or a series of tunnels.

tun'nel·ite, tun'nel·lite (-īt), n. An advocate of a tunnel, esp. a submarine tunnel under the Strait of Dover.

tunnel kiln. A tunnel-shaped kiln through which the material to be dried, fired, or burned, is moved slowly, usually on cars or trucks.

tun'nel·man (tŭn'ĕl·măn; tŭn'l-), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A signalman placed at a tunnel.

tunnel net. A long conical net for game or fish; a tunnel (sense 1); also, a fyke.

tun'nel of Cor'ti (kôr'tē). Anat. See ORGAN OF CORTI.

tunnel right. Mining. The mineral right in an area included in a length of 3,000 feet along an exploratory tunnel from its portal and a depth of 1,500 feet on each side of it, given to one who drives the tunnel. U. S. Mining Law.

tunnel sickness. = TUNNEL DISEASE.

tunnel stern. A form of stern employed in vessels navigating shoal waters, the bottom being curved upward in the form of an inverted U and the propeller working in this tunnel.

Tunnel Stern.

tunnel vault. Arch. = BARREL VAULT.

tunnel weaver. Any territelarian spider.

tunnel worm. The hookworm Ancylostoma duodenale.

tun'ner (tŭn'ĕr; tōōn'-), v. t. To put (ale, etc.) in tuns or casks. Dial. Eng.

tun'ner (tŭn'ĕr; tōōn'-), n. Local, Eng. a One who tuns liquor. b A brewer's workman in charge of a tun. c Dial. A funnel.

tun'ner·y (tŭn'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -NERIES (-Iz). A place for, or the business of, tunning.

tun'ny (tŭn'ĭ), n.; pl. -NIES (-Iz), sometimes TUNNY. See PLURAL, Note. [F. thon, fr. Pr. ton, fr. L. thunnus, thynnus, fr. Gr. thynnos, thynos, of obscure origin.] Any of several oceanic mackerellike fishes of the family Thunnidae, esp. Thunnus thynnus, sometimes distinguished as great tunny, found in all warm seas; a tuna (see 2d TUNA). It sometimes reaches a length of ten feet, and a weight of a thousand pounds or more, and is extensively caught in the Mediterranean. On the northern Atlantic coast of America a closely allied species (T. secundodorsalis) is called horse mackerel; on the Pacific coast, a third species (T. saliens) is much sought for as a game fish. The flesh is coarse and oily, but is often eaten; the oil, esp. from the liver, is sometimes used in currying leather. The little tunny (Gymnosarda alleterata) of the Mediterranean and North Atlantic, and the long-finned tunny, or albacore (see ALBACORE a), are smaller species.

Tunny (Thunnus thynnus). (1/30) tu'no (tōō'nō), n. [Sp., of Chibchan or Mosquitoan origin; cf. Rama túnü, Mosquito túno.] A Central American tree (Castilla fallax), closely related to the Central American rubber tree, but producing an inferior, nonelastic rubber; also, the gum (tuno gum).

tun pail. A brewer's funnel.

tun shell. Any of the large marine shells of the genus Dolium (syn. Tonna).

Tun Shell (Dolium perdix). tun'y (tŭn'ĭ), adj. Having a tune or tunes; tuneful; melodious. Colloq.

tup (tŭp), n. [ME. tuppe, tupe, of unknown origin.] 1. A ram (male of the sheep). 2. One like a ram; specif., a cuckold. Dial. 3. Any of various devices acting by impact; as: a The ram or monkey, or falling weight, of a pile driver, drop hammer, etc.; specif., the heavy head of a steam hammer in which the upper pallet is secured. b A paver's mallet.

tup, v.; TUPPED (tŭpt); TUP'PING. Transitive: 1. To cover; — said of a ram. 2. To butt, as a ram does. Local, Eng. 3. To beat or upset with a tup (sense 3).

—, Intransitive: 1. To butt, as a ram. 2. To copulate, as a ram.

Tu·pa'ia (tū·pä'yä), n. [NL., fr. Malay tupai squirrel.] Zool. The principal genus of squirrel shrews, type of a family, Tu'pa·i'i·dae (tū'pä·ĭ'ĭ·dē). b [not cap.] A squirrel shrew.

tu'pa·ki'hi (tōō'pä·kē'hē), n. [Maori.] The tutu.

‖tu'pan' (dōō'bän'), n. [Chin. (Pek.) tu^1-pan^4, fr. tu^1 oversee + pan^4 manage.] In China during the 1920's, title of the military governor of a province. Cf. TUCHUN.

tu·pa'ra (tōō·pä'rä), n. [Maori corrupt. of E. two-barrel.] A double-barreled gun. Dial., New Zealand.

tu'pek (tōō'pĕk), tu'pik (-pĭk), n. [Western Esk. toopik, tupek, tent.] An Eskimo summerhouse made of material other than snow, esp. a tent of sealskins. Cf. IGLOO, 1.

tu'pe·lo (tōō'pē·lō), n.; pl. -LOS (-lōz). [Creek eto opēlwv, lit., swamp tree, fr. eto tree + opēlwv swamp.] a The black gum (Nyssa sylvatica); also, any other tree of the genus Nyssa, esp. N. aquatica of the southeastern United States. b The wood of any of these trees.

tupelo gum. The tupelo or its wood.

tup'-head'ed (tŭp'hĕd'ĕd; -ĭd; 66; 119), adj. Sheep-headed; stupid.

Tu·pi' (tōō·pē'), n. a Any Tupian Indian. b Strictly, any Indian of the group of Tupian tribes forming the northern division of that stock and dwelling in the valleys of the Amazon, the Tapajós, and the Xingú. See TUPIAN. Cf. GUARANI. c The language of the Tupis; esp., the northern dialect, Ñeêngatu or lingua geral, as distinguished from Guarani or Abañeême, the southern dialect. Both have developed under missionary influence from Abañeênga, or primitive Tupi, and are mutually intelligible. The northern dialect was adopted by the Jesuits in Brazil as the language of evangelization, and by the Portuguese colonists for communication with the Indians. It still serves as a lingua franca in the valley of the Amazon. See GUARANI, n., b.

Tu·pi'an (-ăn), adj. Pertaining to or designating an important linguistic family of South American Indians, comprising more than a hundred tribes, and occupying many scattered areas in Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, French Guiana, Paraguay, and Peru. The most extensive of these areas are the northern, in the valley of the Amazon with a large expansion to the south in the valleys of the Tapajós and the Xingú, and the southern, in the valley of the Paraná, south of the tropic of Capricorn. See GUARANI, TUPI b. The native culture of the Tupis was in some respects superior to that of any other South American Indians outside of the Andean region. Their pottery and their work in polished stone was particularly notable. When uninfluenced by European civilization, they live in semipermanent villages and subsist by hunting, fishing, and a primitive agriculture. Cf. ARAWAKAN, CARIBAN, TAPUYAN.

Tu·pi'-Gua·ra·ni' (tōō·pē'gwä'rä·nē'), n., or Tu·pi' Gua'·ra·ny'. 1. = TUPI, n., b. 2. The language of the Tupis, including both the northern and southern dialects, which are usually considered separate languages. See GUARANI, n., b; TUPI, n., c.

— Tu·pi'-Gua·ra'ni·an (-gwä·rä'nĭ·ăn), adj.

Tu'pi·nam'ba (tōō'pē·näm'bä), n. An Indian of an extinct Tupian tribe, or of any of a large group of closely related tribes, now extinct, which formerly occupied the banks of the lower Amazon, and part of the coast of Brazil. The principal tribes were: the Caites, Cariyos, Nengahibas, Potiguaras, Tamoyos, Taramembes, Tupinambas proper, and the Tupinaquis. See TUPI.

tup lamb. A male lamb; hence, a son.

tup'man (tŭp'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A man who breeds, or deals in, tups. Dial. Eng.

Tup'man, Tra'cy (trā'sĭ). In Dickens's Pickwick Papers, a very amorous member of the Pickwick Club.

Tup·pe'ri·an (tŭ·pēr'ĭ·ăn), adj. Of, pertaining to, or in the manner or spirit of the Proverbial Philosophy, a long series of trite moralizings in blank verse by M. F. Tupper (1810–89); hence, uninspired; commonplace. — Tup·pe'ri·an, n. — Tup'per·ish (tŭp'ĕr·ĭsh), adj. — Tup'per·ism (-Iz'm), n. — Tup'per·ize (-Iz), v. i.

tu·pu'na (tōō·pōō'nä), n. sing. & pl. [Maori.] A grandparent or ancestor exclusive of a parent. New Zealand & Polynesia.

tup'-yeld' (tŭp'yĕld'; tĭp'-), adj. [See TUP; YELD, adj.] Of a ewe, barren. Scot.

tuque (tük), n. [Can. F. See TOQUE.] A kind of warm cap for winter wear, made from a knit bag with closed tapered ends, by pushing one end up in the other. Also, a similar tight-fitting knitted cap of a single thickness gathered in at the peak and worn with the bottom folded back. Cf. WATCH CAP.

‖tu quo'que (tū kwō'kwē). [L.] Thou also; — a retort charging an adversary with being or doing the same as oneself.

tur (tōōr), n. [Hind. tūar, fr. Skr. tuvarī.] The pigeon pea. India.

tur (tōōr), n. [Russ.] 1. Aurochs; urus. 2. Any of several Caucasian wild goats, as Capra cylindricornis of the eastern, C. severtzowi of the western, and C. caucasica of the central Caucasus.

tu'ra·cin (tū'rä·sĭn), n. Biochem. An amorphous reddish-violet pigment containing copper, obtained from certain feathers of several species of touraco. Cf. UROPORPHYRIN.

Tu'ra·cus (tū'rä·kŭs), n. [NL. See TOURACO.] Zool. The typical genus of touracos, including those with feathered nostrils.

Tu·ra'ni·an (tū·rā'nĭ·ăn), n. 1. Ethnol. a Hist. A member of any of the peoples of Ural-Altaic stock; vaguely, a member of any division of a supposed nomadic people who preceded the Aryans in Europe and Asia. b Rare. A member of any tribe or nationality of Turkic or Tataric stock. 2. Turanian languages collectively. See TURANIAN, adj.

Tu·ra'ni·an, adj. [Per. Tūrān the region north of the Oxus, Turkestan.] Of, pertaining to, or designating, the agglutinative languages of Asia and Oceania, esp. those now commonly called the Ural-Altaic languages; also, of pertaining to, or designating, the people who speak those languages. Hist. — Tu·ra'ni·an·ism (-Iz'm), n.

Tu·ran'ism (tū·rān'Iz'm), n. = TURANIANISM.

tu·ran'ose (tū·rān'ōs; tōō·rān'ōs), n. [G. turanos, fr. Turan Turkestan; — because got from Turkestan manna. See TURANIAN.] Chem. A crystalline reducing sugar, $C_{12}H_{22}O_{11}$, resulting from the partial hydrolysis of melezitose.

turb (tûrb), n. [OF. to(u)rbe, fr. L. turba. See TURBID.] Crowd; clump. Obs. exc. Hist.

tur'ban (tûr'băn), n. [Turk. and F.; F. turban, earlier turbant, tulban, tolliban, fr Turk. dülbend, colloq. tülbend, a length or square of muslin, a turban, fr. Per. dulband turban, sash. Cf. TULIP.] 1. A headdress worn by men in the Levant and by most Moslems of the male sex, consisting of a cap, with a sash, scarf, or shawl, usually of cotton or linen, wound about it, and sometimes hanging down the neck. 2. Hence: a A Moslem. b Mohammedanism. c An emblematic representation of a turban (sense 1) on a Moslem tombstone (turban stone). 3. A headdress likened to an Oriental turban; as: a A headdress resembling a turban fashionable among women in Europe and America in the early 19th century. b A bandanna, or square of cotton cloth, worn by negro women in the W.st Indies and the southern United States. c A kind of woman's or child's hat with no brim or with brim turned up close to the crown. 4. A turban squash. 5. Cookery. An entree, fillet, or the like, served in a drum-shaped case or built up or rolled into a drum shape.

One form of Turban, 1.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

turban-crested, turban-crowned, turban-shaped.

tur'ban, v. t. To provide with or as with a turban; to decorate in turban fashion.

turban buttercup. Any of several double-flowered buttercups, all derived from Ranunculus asiaticus, and common garden favorites. They have yellow flowers often nearly two inches across.

tur'baned (tûr'băndd), adj. Wearing a turban; carved with a turban (the emblem).

turban lily. A European lily (Lilium pomponium) cultivated for its deep-red, spotted, turban-shaped flowers.

turban squash. A variety of squash in which the fleshy receptacle does not extend over the ovary, which therefore protrudes like a cap or turban.

turban stone. See TURBAN, n., 2 c.

tur'ban·top' (tûr'băn·tŏp'), n. a An edible sac fungus (Gyromitra esculenta) with a wrinkled, somewhat globular, pileus. b One of the helvellas, or saddle fungi, esp. Helvella mitra.

turban toque. A toque encircled with a twisted or folded fabric trimming.

tur'ba·ry (tûr'bä·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [OF. turberie, tourberie, peat bog, fr. tourbe peat, of Teut. origin; cf. ML. turbaria turbary, fr. turba turf, peat. See TURF.] Eng. Law. An easement to dig turf or peat on another's land; also, the ground where turf is dug.

turbary hog or sheep. A type of hog or sheep domesticated in prehistoric times; — so called because its remains are found in turbary or peat formations of the period.

tur'beh (tōōr'bĕ), n. [Turk. türbeh, fr. Ar. turbah.] A small domelike edifice over a Mohammedan tomb, esp. over the tomb of a person of rank or importance.

Tur'bel·la'ri·a (tûr'bĕ·lā'rĭ·ä; 79), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. turbellae a bustle, stir, dim. fr. turba disturbance; — so named because the cilia cause tiny currents in the water. See TURBID.] Zool. The class of flatworms consisting of the planarians. It formerly included the nemerteans also.

One of the Turbellaria (Macrostomum aurium). a Otolith; m Mouth, n Body Cavity containing Food; c, c', d Male Organs; e, e' Ovaries.

tur'bel·lar'i·an (-lâr'ĭ·ăn), adj. Zool. Of or pertaining to the Turbellaria. — n. A turbellarian worm.

tur·bes'cen·cy (tûr·bĕs'ĕn·sĭ; -'n·sĭ), n. A condition of becoming turbid.

tur'bid (tûr'bĭd), adj. [L. turbidus, fr. turbare to disturb, fr. turba a disorder, tumult, crowd; akin to Gr. tyrbē. Cf.

Tunisian crochet. = TRICOT STITCH.

tun'ish, adj. See -ISH.

tun'ist (tŭn'ĭst), n. = TUNER, n., 1 a. [DUNKER.]

Tunk'er (tŭngk'ĕr), n. Eccl. = tunk'ing fit (tŭngk'ĭng). See 5th FIT, n., 4. tun'land' Var. of TONNLAND.

tun'like', adj. See -LIKE.

tun'na (tŭn'nä), n.; pl. TUNNOR (-nĕr). [Sw. See TUN.] See MEASURE, Table.

tun'nage. Var. of TONNAGE.

tun'na smjors' (tŭn'nä smyûrs'). [Icel. tunna smjörs tun of butter.] See WEIGHT, Table.

tunns. † TON, TUN.

tun'nel·ist, n. = TUNNELER, n., 1.

tun'nelled, tun'nel·ler, etc. Vars. of TUNNELED, TUNNELER, etc.

tun'nel·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tun'nel·ly, adj. = TUNNELLIKE.

Tun'nit (tŭn'ĭt), n. = TORNIT.

tunn'land' (tŏōn'lănd'; tŭn'-), n. sing. & pl. [Sw.] See MEASURE, Table.

tunny oil. See OIL, Table II.

tun of gold. See 1st TUN, 7.

tu'nu (tōō'nōō). Var. of TUNO.

tu'pan'ship, n. See 2d -SHIP (5).

tup'-eld' (tŭp'ĕld'). Var. of TUP-YELD.

Tu·pi' (tōō·pē'), adj. = TUPIAN.

tu'pik, n. Var. of TUPEK.

Tu'pi·na'qui (tōō'pē·nä'kē), n. See TUPINAMBA.

tup'pence (tŭp'ĕns), tup'pen·ny (tŭp'ĕn·ĭ). Colloq. for TWOPENCE, TWOPENNY.

tup'pen·ny-ha'pen·ny (-hā'pĕn·ĭ), adj. Colloq. for TWOPENNY-HALFPENNY.

Tu'py (tōō'pĭ). Var. of TUPI.

tu'ra-co', tu'ra-cou', tu'ra-koo'. Vars. of TOURACO.

tur'ban-esque', adj. See -ESQUE.

tur'ban-ette', n. Dim. of TURBAN.

tur'ban·less, adj. See -LESS.

tur'ban·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tur·ban'to, n. † TURBAN.

tur'ban·wise', adv. See -WISE.

turbation, n. [OF. turbacion, fr. L. turbatio.] Disturbance; disquiet. Obs.

tur'bel·lar'i·form (tûr'bĕ·lâr'ĭ·fôrm), adj. See -FORM.

tur'bet. † TURBIT, TURBOT.

tur'beth. † TURPETH.

CONTRIVE, DISTURB, PERTURB, TROUBLE, TURBINE, TURBULENT.] 1. Having the lees or sediment disturbed; roiled; — used of liquids; as, turbid water or wine; also, of air, etc., cloudy; heavy with smoke or mist.
2. Hence: a Not clear or translucent; clouded; muddy; dull; impure; polluted. b Confused in thought or feeling; muddled; not lucid.
Syn. — TURBID, MUDDY. Anything is TURBID when its clearness is disturbed, esp. by the stirring up of sediment of any sort; that is MUDDY which is turbid with mud; both words are used figuratively (muddy being the stronger) of that which is confused, disturbed, or cloudy; as, "the turbid ebb and flow of human misery" (M. Arnold); "Joubert had far less smoke and turbid vehemence in him than Coleridge" (id.); "'Turbid ecstasy' is surely not . . . good. . . . Turbid rather suits the muddy kind of inspiration which London porter confers" (Lamb); his thinking is muddy. Cf. DARK.
Ant. — Clear, limpid, pellucid. See TRANSPARENT.
— tur·bid'i·ty (tûr·bĭd'ĭ·tĭ), tur'bid·ness, n. — tur'bid·ly, adv.
tur·bi·dim'e·ter (tûr'bĭ·dĭm'ē·tĕr), n. [ML. turbiditas turbidity + -meter.] An instrument for comparing the turbidity of liquids by viewing light through them and determining how much light is cut off by them; also, loosely, a nephelometer. — tur'bi·dim'e·try (-trĭ), n. — tur'bi·di·met'ric (-dĭ·mĕt'rĭk), adj.
tur'bi·na'ceous (tûr'bĭ·nā'shŭs), adj. [Erron. fr. ML. turba turf.] Of or pertaining to peat, or turf. Rare.
tur'bi·nage (tûr'bĭ·nĭj; tûr'bē'nàzh'), n. [F. See TURBINE.] Sugar Mfg. Process of separating sugar crystals and molasses by turbines or centrifugals. tur'bi·nal (tûr'bĭ·năl; -n'l), adj. [L. turbo, turben, -inis, a top, whirl. See TURBINE.] Anat. & Zool. Rolled in a spiral; scroll-like; turbinate; — applied to the thin, plicated, bony or cartilaginous plates covered with olfactory and mucous membrane borne on the walls of the nasal chambers. There are usually several of these plates in each nasal chamber. The turbinals of man are commonly called turbinated bones or nasal conchae. In fishes turbinal has been applied to bones otherwise called nasals.

Turbinate, 2. Capsule of Ludwigia.

tur'bi·nal, n. A turbinal bone or cartilage.
tur'bi·nate (tûr'bĭ·nāt), adj. [L. turbinatus, fr. turbo, turben, -inis, a whirl, top.] 1. Anat. & Zool. Turbinal.
2. Bot. Shaped like a top, or inverted cone; narrow at the base and broad at the apex.
3. Zool. Spiral with whorls decreasing rapidly from base to apex; — said of certain shells.

Turbinate, 4. Shell of Marsenina prodita. a Front view; b Dorsal view. Natural size.

tur'bi·nate (-nāt), v. i. & t. To spin or fashion like a top; to whirl. — tur'bi·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n. tur'bi·nate (-nāt), n. Rare. a A turbinate shell. b A turbinated bone. tur'bi·nat'ed (-nāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Turbinate. turbinated bone. Anat. A turbinal bone or process. In man there are three such bones or processes, borne on the lateral wall of the nasal fossa on each side. The inferior and largest is a separate curved bony plate, horizontally placed and separating the inferior and middle meatuses in the nose. The middle and superior turbinated bones are merely processes of the ethmoid. Now called nasal conchae.
tur'bi·na'to- (tûr'bĭ·nā'tō-). A combining form from Latin turbinatus, cone-shaped, denoting conically, as in: turbinatoconcave, turbinatocylindrical, turbinatoglobose, turbinatostipitate.
tur'bine (tûr'bĭn; -bīn; 277), n. [F., fr. L. turbo, -inis, that which spins or whirls round, whirl; akin to L. turbare to disturb. See TURBID.] A rotary engine actuated by the reaction, impulse, or both, of a current of fluid subject to pressure. A turbine usually consists of a series of curved vanes on a central spindle arranged to rotate, the whole being enclosed by a casing provided with passageways which permit the inlet and outlet of the fluid in a desired manner. Turbines are classified primarily according to the actuating fluid employed, as water (or hydraulic), steam, gas, mercury-vapor, etc.; and also according to the principal direction of fluid flow, as: the parallel-flow, or axial-flow, turbine, in which water enters the turbine through fixed guide blades, passing axially and spirally through the passages and discharges in a direction parallel to the turbine spindle; the radial-flow turbine, including the outward-flow turbine, in which water flows axially into the machine, passing through it radially, and discharging radially outward from the rim, and the inward-flow turbine, in which water enters from the circumference, passing radially inwards, and escaping axially; the mixed-flow turbine, combining the inward-flow and parallel-flow types. Cf. PELTON WHEEL, WATER WHEEL.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
turbine-driven, turbine-engined, turbine-propelled.
tur'bi·nec'to·my (tûr'bĭ·nĕk'tō·mĭ), n. [turbinal + -ectomy.] Surgical removal of one or more turbinated bones.
tur'bined (tûr'bĭnd; -bīnd), adj. Having, or propelled by, a turbine or turbines.
Tur'bi·nel'la (tûr'bĭ·nĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. turbo, -inis, a top.] Zool. A genus of large marine snails (suborder Stenoglossa) having a thick, heavy, pear-shaped shell, with conspicuous folds on the columella. It is the type of a family, Tur'bi·nel'li·dae (-lĭ·dē). — tur'bi·nel'loid (-oid), adj.

Turbinella (T. pyrum), Ceylon. (½) tur'bin·er (tûr'bĭn·ĕr; -bīn·ĕr), n. A turbine-propelled vessel. Rare.

Tur·bin'i·dae (tûr·bĭn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A family of mollusks (suborder Rhipidoglossa) of which Turbo is the type.
tur·bin'i·form (tûr·bĭn'ĭ·fôrm; tûr'bĭ·nĭ·fôrm'), adj. [See TURBO; -FORM.] Zool. Shaped like a shell of the genus Turbo. tur'bi·noid (tûr'bĭ·noid), adj. [See -OID.] Zool. Resembling Turbo.
tur'bi·not'o·my (-nŏt'ŏ·mĭ), n. [turbinal + -otomy.] Surg. The operation of cutting into the turbinated bones. — tur'bi·no·tome' (tûr'bĭ·nō·tōm'), n.
tur'bit (tûr'bĭt), n. [Prob. fr. L. turbo a top.] One of a breed of fancy pigeons derived from the owl pigeons and having a short head and beak, a frilled breast, a peak or a shell crest, variously colored wings except the quills, and a white body.
tur'bit·teen' (tûr'bĭ·tēn'), n. [From TURBIT.] One of a breed of Oriental frilled pigeons having a short bill, rounded head, white body, and colored shoulders and head markings.
Tur'bo (tûr'bō), n. [L. turbo, -inis, a top. See TURBINE.] Zool. 1. A large genus of marine snails typifying the family Turbinidae, usually having a heavy turbinate shell, pearly inside, with a rounded aperture and a calcareous operculum.

Turbo. a T. marmoratus; b c Operculum of T. smaragdus.

2. [not cap.] pl. -BINES (-bĭ·nēz), -BOS (-bōz). A shell of this genus or of the family Turbinidae.
tur'bo- (tûr'bō-). A combining form for turbine, meaning: a Coupled directly to a driving turbine, as in tur'bo·blow'er, tur'bo·com·pres'sor, tur'bo·dy'na·mo, tur'bo·ex·cit'er, tur'bo·fan', tur'bo·gen'er·a'tor, tur'bo·pump', etc. b Consisting of a turbine, as in tur'bo·ma·chine', a machine of the nature of a turbine, tur'bo·mo'tor, tur'bo·ven'ti·la'tor, etc.
tur'bot (tûr'bŭt), n. sing. & pl. [ME., fr. OF. tourbout (F. turbot), fr. OSw. törnbut. See THORN; BUTT flatfish. Cf. THORNBUT.] 1. a A large European flatfish (Psetta maxima) highly esteemed as a food fish. It often weighs from 30 to 40 pounds. Its color on the upper side is brownish with small scattered tubercles. The lower, or blind, side is white. b Any of numerous flounders more or less like the true turbot, as the halibut, Hypsopsetta guttulata in California, and Ammotretis guntheri in New Zealand. c Locally, as in the West Indies, any of several triggerfishes and filefishes.

Turbot (Psetta maxima).

2. The flesh of the turbot used for food.
tur'bu·lence (tûr'bū·lĕns), n. [F. or L.; F. turbulence, fr. L.L. turbulentia.] Quality or state of being turbulent; state of disturbance, violent agitation, or great perturbation; a situation or event characterized by such; as, to check the turbulence of the strikers; the revolutionary turbulences of 1793.
Syn. — Agitation, commotion, disturbance, impetuosity, tumultuousness, unruliness, rioting, uproar.
Ant. — Calm, peace, quiet, repose, serenity, tranquillity. tur'bu·len·cy (-lĕn·sĭ), n. Turbulence. tur'bu·lent (-lĕnt), adj. [F. or L.; F. turbulent, fr. L. turbulentus, fr. turba disorder, tumult. See TURBID.] 1. Disposed or given to insubordination and disorder; causing or inciting violence, great unrest, or disturbance; as, the turbulent subjects of the king; a turbulent populace.
2. Being in a state of violent commotion; characterized by great agitation or tumult; tempestuous; as, the turbulent ocean; a turbulent reign.
3. Causing turbulence; having a disturbing or exciting effect.

Whose heads that turbulent liquor fills with fumes. Milton.

4. Thermodyn. Pertaining to a process in which the system or substance is in equilibrium only when in the initial and final stages.
— tur'bu·lent·ly, adv. — tur'bu·lent·ness, n. tur'co (tōōr'kō), n. [Sp. turco, turca, fr. Araucan thurcu.] A small, short-tailed, South American clamatorial bird (Hylactes megapodius). Chile.
Tur'co (tûr'kō), n.; pl. -COS (-kōz). [F. turco, fr. Sabir turco an Algerian, fr. It. turco a Turk; — Algeria was under Turkish rule from 1518 to 1830. See TURK.] 1. A Turk; also, a Moor. Rare.
2. Mil. A member of the force of French Algerian infantry, composed of natives with a sprinkling of French, the chief officers being French. Their uniform has been of the zouave type. The technical name is Algerian tirailleurs.
Tur'co- (tûr'kō-). Var. of TURKO-.
Tur'co·man (tûr'kō·măn), n.; pl. -MANS (-măn). a Var. of TURKOMAN. b A Turkoman carpet. tur'co·pole (-pōl), n. [ML. turcopolus. See TURCOPOLIER.] A kind of light-armed soldier of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. Hist. tur'co·po·lier' (-pō·lēr'), n. [OF. turcopolier, turcoplier, fr. turcople a kind of light-armed soldier, fr. ML. turcopulus, -polus, fr. LGr. tourkopolos, lit., son of a Turk.] A high official of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, ex officio the commander of the turcopoles. Hist.
turd (tûrd), n. [AS. tord.] 1. Ordure; filth; also, a piece of dung. Now Low.
2. Someone or something vile or contemptible. Obs.
Tur'de·tan (tûr'dē·tăn; tûr·dē'tăn; 91), adj. Designating or belonging to an ancient Iberian people who came under Phoenician influence very early, perhaps in the 2d millennium, B.C.
Tur'di·dae (tûr'dĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See TURDUS.] Zool. A widely distributed family of singing birds containing the true thrushes and a greater or less number of allied groups, often including the bluebirds, wheatears, stonechats, Old World warblers, Old World redstarts, solitaires, and water ouzels, and the mockingbirds and thrashers. In the above broad sense it includes many subfamilies, the true thrushes constituting the subfamily Tur·di'nae (tûr·dĭ'nē). The Old World warblers (subfamily Sylviinae), water ouzels (see CINCLUS), and mockingbirds and thrashers (Miminae), are often made separate families. — tur'dine (tûr'dĭn; -dīn; 156), adj.
tur'di·form (tûr'dĭ·fôrm), adj. [L. turdus a thrush + -form.] Zool. Having the form or structure of a thrush. tur'doid (tûr'doid), adj. [Turdus + -oid.] Zool. Thrushlike.
Tur'dus (tûr'dŭs), n. [L., a thrush. See STRUTHIO.] Zool. A genus of thrushes typifying the family Turdidae containing the European blackbird, the missel, fieldfare, ring ouzel, etc., and the American robin. Syn. Merula.
tu·reen' (tū·rēn'; tōō-; 277), n. [F. terrine, fr. (assumed) VL. terrinus earthen, fr. L. terrenus, fr. L. terra earth. See TERRACE; cf. TERRINE.] A large, deep vessel from which soup is served at the table.
turf (tûrf), n.; pl. TURFS (tûrfs), TURVES (tûrvz). [AS.; akin to D. turf peat, G. torf (fr. LG.), OHG. zurba turf, Sw. & ON. torf turf, peat, Dan. törv, Skr. darbha a kind of grass, a tuft of grass. Cf. TURBARY.] 1. The upper stratum of earth and vegetable mold filled with the roots of grass and other small plants, so as to form a kind of mat; sward; sod; also, a piece or slab of this upper stratum cut or pared off; a sod; rarely, a clod.
2. A slab of peat, esp. when used or ready for fuel; peat. See PEAT.

Blowing the turves to a whiter heat. Joseph Campbell.

3. Usually with the. The (or a) track or course for horse racing; hence, horse racing as a sport, business, or sphere of interest.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

turf-boring	turf-cutting	turf-laid turf-bound	turf-digging	turf-roofed turf-built	turf-forming	turf-spread turf-clad	turf-grown	turf-walled turf-covered

turf (tûrf), v.; TURFED (tûrft); TURF'ING. Transitive: 1. To cover with turf or sod; as, to turf a bank or border; hence, to lay under the turf; to bury.
2. To dig for turf; to take the turf from; — sometimes with out.
——, Intransitive: To gather turfs. Dial. Eng.
turf, adj. 1. Of or pertaining to turf or the turf; made of turf; as, turf roofs, fires, or stacks; turf gambling or sports; turf correspondents.
2. Of or pertaining to turfing; used in or for turfing; as, turf time; turf knife, spade, or plough. turf, n. [Cf. TERVE.] A turned-up part of a CAP, sleeve, etc. Obs. turf, v. t. To decorate with a turf. See 4th TURF. Obs. turf accountant. Horse Racing. A bookmaker. turf ant. A small European ant (Lasius flava) which makes small ant hills on heaths and commons.
turf cake. A teacake baked in the ashes of a turf fire. Brit.
turfed (tûrft), adj. Covered with turf or turfs.

A Steam Turbine. Outer Casing with Stationary Vanes shown in Vertical Longitudinal Section; Inner Revolving Barrel with Attachments shown in the round at the right, and in section at the left. The steam at its highest pressure acts on the short Vanes at the right, and as its pressure decreases it meets the longer Vanes on the larger parts of the Barrel. Black Vanes are stationary; light, are moving in all cases. Arrows show the course of the Steam. 1, 2 Main and Secondary Admission Pipes; 3 Edges of Stationary Vanes fastened to and projecting inward from Casing (4). [In detailed drawing B, 3 a & 3 b are Stationary Vanes held between Casing (4) and Retaining Ring (5); 3 c, 3 d, 3 e, 3 f, Similar Vanes shown in section and broken away from Casing.] 6 Retaining Rings surrounding Moving Vanes; 7 Moving Vanes shown in section attached to, and projecting outward from, Moving Barrel (8). [In fig. B, 6 a, 6 b, 6 e, 6 f, are Moving Vanes between Barrel (8) and Retaining Ring (9); 6 c, 6 d, Moving Vanes with Retaining Ring removed.] 10, 11, 12 Balancing Pistons against which the steam is brought by Equalizing Pipes (13, 14, 15), to offset the thrust effect; 16 Shaft; 17, 18 Journal Bearings; 19 Thrust Bearing. B A Row of Stationary Vanes (black), and Moving Vanes (light) revolving in direction of Arrow 20. C Diagram showing cross section of Vanes and of the course of the Steam.

tur·bil'lion (tûr·bĭl'yŭn). Var. of TOURBILLION. turbine centrifugal pump. Mach. See PUMP, 1. turbine interrupter. = JET INTERRUPTER. tur'bine-like', adj. See -LIKE. turbit. ✝ TURBOT, TURPETH. tur'bith (tûr'bĭth), n. [ME. turbyte, fr. OF. turbit (F. turbith), fr. Ar. turbad, colloq. tirbid, fr. Per. tirbid. Cf. TURPETH.] = TURPETH. tur'ble. ✝ TROUBLE.
tur'ble (tûr'b'l), adj. Corrupt. of TERRIBLE. tur'bo (tûr'bō), n. = TURBINE. Colloq. tur'bo·al'ter·na'tor, n. See ALTERNATOR. tur'bot-like', adj. See -LIKE. tur'bu·lous, adj. [See TURBULENT; cf. TROUBLOUS.] Turbulent. Obs.
Tur'cian (tûr'shăn), adj. Also Tur'cic (-sĭk). = TURKISH. Rare.
Tur'ci·fi·ca'tion (tûr'sĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), Tur'cism (tûr'sĭz'm), Tur'cize (-sīz). Vars. of TURKIFICATION, TURKISM, TURKIZE.
Türck's' col'umn (türks). Anat. = DIRECT PYRAMIDAL TRACT. tur'cois. Var. of TURQUOISE. ture (tōōr). Var. of TURE. tu·reen'ful, n.; pl. -FULS. See -FUL. turf'age (tûr'fĭj), n. See -AGE. turf'dom, n. See -DOM.

turf'en (tûr'fĕn), adj. Made of turf; turfed.

turf hog. = TURBARY HOG.

turf'ing (tûr'fĭng), adj. That turfs or makes turf; used by one who turfs; as, turfing spades, irons, or tools.

turfing daisy. A low, densely-tufted, perennial herb (Chrysanthemum tchihatchewii) of Asia Minor, with small white heads, used as a ground cover in dry places.

turf'ite (tûrf'ĭt), n. A turfman; — often contemptuous. Colloq.

turf'man (tûrf'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A votary of the turf, or horse racing.

turf moss. A peat bog. Dial.

turf webworm. Grass webworm.

turf'y (tûr'fĭ), adj.; TURF'I-ER (-fĭ-ĕr); TURF'I-EST. 1. Abounding with turf; made of, or covered with, turf; as, turfy land or roofs.

2. Having the nature or appearance of turf; as, turfy loam.

3. Of, pertaining to, or smacking of the turf, or horse racing; as, turfy talk.

tur'gent (tûr'jĕnt), adj. [L. turgens, -entis, pres. part. of turgere to swell. See TURGID.] Now Rare. a Swelling or swollen; tumid. b Pompous; puffed up. c Inflated; bombastic. — tur'gent·ly, adv.

tur·gesce' (tûr·jĕs'), v. i.; TUR·GESCED' (-jĕst'); TUR·GESC'ING (-jĕs'ĭng). [L. turgescere, v. incho. fr. turgere to swell.] To become turgid; to swell or be inflated. Rare.

tur·ges'cence (-jĕs'ĕns; -ns), n. [Cf. F. turgescence. See TURGESCENT.] 1. Act of swelling; state or quality of being turgescent.

2. Pompousness; inflation; bombast; turgidity.

3. Physical Chem. Stiffening resulting from swelling.

4. Physiol. Turgor.

tur·ges'cen·cy (-ĕn·sĭ; -'n·sĭ), n. Quality or condition of being turgescent.

tur·ges'cent (-ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [L. turgescens, -entis, pres. part. of turgescere; cf. F. turgescent. See TURGESCE.] Becoming turgid, distended, or inflated; swelling; growing big.

tur'gid (tûr'jĭd), adj. [L. turgidus, fr. turgere to swell; akin to L. tumere to swell. See TUMID.] 1. Distended by some internal agent or expansive force; in a normal or abnormal state of distention; inflated; swollen; tumid; bloated; as, turgid limbs; healthy living cells are turgid.

2. Swelling in style or language; vainly ostentatious; bombastic; pompous; as, a turgid style of speaking.

Syn. — TURGID, TUMID, BOMBASTIC, GRANDIOSE, GRANDILOQUENT, MAGNILOQUENT. TURGID and TUMID imply inflation of style; BOMBASTIC is stronger, and suggests extravagance or rant; as, "My poems have been rightly charged with . . . a general turgidness. I have . . . used my best efforts to tame the swell and glitter both of thought and diction" (Coleridge); "Shall gentle Coleridge pass unnoticed here, to turgid ode and tumid stanza dear?" (Byron); "a theatrical, bombastic, windy phraseology" (Burke). GRANDIOSE, as here compared (cf. GRAND), implies pompousness of speech; GRANDILOQUENT and MAGNILOQUENT suggest an affectedly large and lofty utterance; as, "Marlowe . . . pushes grandiosity to the verge of bombast" (Lowell); "F. was . . . grandiloquent, yet courteous. His delivery of the commonest matters of fact was Ciceronian" (Lamb); "She was a trifle more magniloquent than usual, and entertained us with stories of colonial governors" (Thackeray). Cf. REDUNDANCY, OSTENTATIOUS.

Ant. — Dry, dull, barren; concise, compendious, pointed. — tur·gid'i·ty (tûr·jĭd'ĭ·tĭ), tur'gid·ness, n. — tur'gid·ly, adv.

tur'gite (tûr'jĭt), n. [From Turginsk, copper mine, Ural Mts.] Mineral. An iron ore intermediate between hematite and limonite, consisting of hydrous ferric oxide, $2Fe_2O_3 \cdot H_2O$; — called also hydrohematite.

tur'goid (tûr'goid), n. Physical Chem. A substance which undergoes turgescence.

tur'gor (tûr'gôr), n. [LL., a swelling, turgidity, fr. turgere to swell.] 1. Turgescence; also, turgidity.

2. Physiol. The state of normal turgidness and tension in living cells; specif., Plant Physiol., the distention of the protoplasmic layer and cell wall by the fluid contents. Turgor is essential to growth and to the movements of many parts of plants. Wilting, or loss of turgor, in higher plants results from stoppage of the water supply.

Tu'ri (tōō'rē), n. sing. & pl. One of a Pathan tribe in the upper Kurram Valley, India.

tu'ri·ca'ta (tōō'rĭ·kā'tă), n. [Sp., of Mex. Ind. origin.] A Mexican tick (Ornithodoros turicata) common on hogs and cattle and annoying to man.

Tu'rin (tū'rĭn; tū·rĭn'), n. A city in Italy.

Turin grass. = COUCH GRASS, 1 a.

Turin nut. A fossil walnut in Upper Tertiary deposits near Turin.

Turin Papyri. See PAPYRUS, n., 3.

tu'ri·o (tū'rĭ·ō), n. [See TURION.] A turion.

tu'ri·on (-ŏn), n. [L. turio, -onis, a shoot, sprout, tendril.] Bot. A scaly shoot developed from a bud on a subterranean rootstock. — tu'ri·on·lĭ'er·ous (-lĭ'ĕr·ŭs), adj.

tur'ja·ite (tûr'jä·ĭt), n. [See TURJITE.] Petrog. A coarse-grained plutonic rock composed of melilite, nephelite, and biotite, with accessory melanite, perovskite, magnetite, and apatite, and occasionally olivine.

tur'jite (tûr'jĭt). [From Turja, Kola Peninsula, Russia.] Petrog. A dike rock composed of yellow mica, analcite, garnet, calcite, and a little aegirite and apatite.

Turk (tûrk), n. [OF. turc, fr. ML. Turcus, fr. Turk., Ar., & Per. Turk, of obscure origin. Cf. TURCO, TURKEY, TURQUOISE.] 1. A member of any of the groups of Asiatic peoples speaking Turkic languages who dwell in the region ranging from the Adriatic to the Okhotsk. They are mixed racially, but are generally regarded as chiefly of the same ancestry as the Mongols.

2. A native or inhabitant of Turkey or the Turkish republic; any member, either Seljuk or Osmanli, of the dominant race of the former Ottoman Empire; also, sometimes, any Moslem subject of the former Turkish Sultan.

3. Hence: a Now Rare. One of the Moslem faith. b One exhibiting any quality attributed to Turks, such as duplicity, sensuality, or brutality. c Obs. A representation or image of such a person; a bugaboo.

4. [not cap.] A scimitar or sword. Obs.

5. A Turkish horse; specif., a race of horses related to the Arabs.

6. [not cap.] The plum curculio; also, the larva of certain other destructive beetles.

7. pl. Turkish bonds.

Turk, adj. & adv. Turkish.

Tur·ka'na (tōōr·kä'nä), n. pl. A tribe similar to the Masai living between Lake Rudolf and the Nile, East Africa. See MASAI.

tur'ken' (tûr'kĕn'), n. [turkey + hen.] a A hybrid of a turkey and a chicken (no embryo has ever been hatched). b A chicken inheriting a naked-neck characteristic.

tur'ken (tûr'kĕn), v. t. [Cf. OF. torquer, fr. L. torquere.] To turn or twist about. Obs.

Turk'er·y (tûr'kĕr·ĭ), n. [Turk + -ery as in popery.] The Turkish race, customs, etc.; also, Obs., Mohammedanism.

tur'kess (tûr'kĕs; -kĭs), v. t. [Cf. 2d TURKEN.] To alter in form or character, esp. for the worse. Obs.

Tur'key (tûr'kĭ), n. [See TURK.] 1. The former Turkish Empire in the southeast of Europe and southwest of Asia, or the modern republic, chiefly in Asia.

2. Obs. a A turquoise. b = TURK, n., 5. c Turkey leather.

3. See CRIMEAN WHEAT; WHEAT, 2.

tur'key (tûr'kĭ), n.; pl. -KEYS (-kĭz), rarely -KEY. See PLURAL, Note. [From turkey cock, first applied to the guinea cock, which was imported from Africa through Turkey into Europe and with which the Am. bird was for a time identified. See TURKEY.] 1. Either of two species of large American birds of the family Meleagridae one of which (Meleagris gallopavo) is of wide range in North America, represented by several subspecies in different regions, and is widely kept in domestication in most parts of the world. It formerly occurred wild from southern Mexico to New England and Canada, but now is hardly found north of Virginia. It has handsome plumage with a bronze luster, a naked carunculated head, and whitish tips to the upper tail coverts and tail feathers in the typical subspecies (that of Mexico), or chestnut tips to the same in the Eastern subspecies. The male is fond of strutting with the feathers puffed out and the tail spread. The domesticated turkeys are derived from the Mexican. Several color varieties are bred (bronze, buff, black, slate, pure white, and deep reddish brown). The other wild species is the ocellated turkey (which see).

Turkey Cock, strutting. (1/20)

Eastern Turkey (Meleagris gallopavo silvestris).

2. The flesh of any of these birds used as food.

3. In Australia: a A bustard (Austrotis australis). b A brush turkey (which see).

4. Slang, U. S. & Canada. a An arrogant or pompous fashion of talking, walking, etc. b A lumberman's kit.

tur'key·back' (-băk'), n. The greater yellowlegs, esp. one of large size. Local U. S.

turkey beard. Any American plant of the genus Xerophyllum.

Turkey berry. = PERSIAN BERRY.

tur'key·ber'ry (tûr'kĭ·bĕr'ĭ), n. a In the West Indies: (1) Either of two plants (Solanum mammosum and S. torvum); also, their fruit. (2) Also turkeyberry tree. The tree Cordia collococca; also, its berry. b In the United States: (1) The coralberry. (2) = PARTRIDGEBERRY a.

turkey bird. The wryneck. Local, Eng.

turkey blossom. The yellow caltrop.

Turkey blue. = TURKISH BLUE.

turkey bur. The common burdock.

tur'key·bush' (tûr'kĭ·bōōsh'), n. A tropical African spiny shrub (Caesalpinia oligophylla) introduced into Australia and forming dense weedy scrub.

turkey buzzard. An American vulture (Cathartes aura) common in South and Central America and in the southern United States, but rare north of Pennsylvania. It is blackish brown, with the nearly naked wrinkled skin of the head and foreneck red. It is about five feet in spread of wings and very graceful in flight. It feeds on carrion only. The variety of the United States is C. aura septentrionalis.

Turkey Buzzard.

turkey call. The gobbling sound made by a turkey cock; also, an instrument imitating such a sound and used as a decoy by hunters of wild turkey.

Turkey carpet. A Turkish carpet; also, in English use, an Oriental rug. — Tur'key–car'pet·ed, adj.

turkey claw. = SMALL CORALROOT.

turkey cock. A male turkey; also, a strutting, pompous person.

Turkey coffee. Mocha. See COFFEE, 2.

Turkey Company. = LEVANT COMPANY.

turkey corn. The squirrel corn.

Turkey cup sponge. See TURKEY SPONGE.

Tur'key·dom (tûr'kĭ·dŭm), n. The Turkish empire or state.

tur'key–feath'er fu'cus. The peacock's-tail (Padina pavonia).

turkey fig. a The common cultivated fig (Ficus carica). b Australasia. = INDIAN FIG b.

tur'key·foot' (tûr'kĭ·fōōt'), n. Any of several North American grasses of the genus Andropogon; — so called from the shape of the spike.

turkey gnat. A small black fly (Simulium meridionale) that injures poultry in the southern and western U. S. turkey gobbler. A turkey cock. Colloq.

turkey grape. A woody vine (Vitis linescomii) of the southeastern United States; also, its black, bloomy, pleasant-tasting fruit.

turkey grass. Cleavers. Local, Eng.

Turkey gum. See GUM ARABIC.

turkey hen. a Obs. A guinea hen. b The mature female turkey Turkey hone. Turkey stone.

Tur'key·ism (tûr'kĭ·ĭz'm), n. Sympathy with or admiration for Turkish people or institutions.

Turkey leather. A kind of oil-tawed leather, used for bookbindings, etc. Brit.

turkey louse. A biting louse (Lipeurus gallipavonis) that infests turkeys and eats their feathers.

Turkey morocco. Morocco made in Turkey, or as in Turkey.

turkey mullein. A prostrate soft-leaved annual weed (Eremocarpus setigerus), family Euphorbiaceae, of the Pacific coast of the United States, on the small black seeds of which turkeys are said to fatten, and whose herbage is used by Indians to stupefy fish.

Turkey oak. An oak (Quercus cerris) which grows throughout the Levant.

turkey oak. a U. S. The southern red oak Quercus rubra. b The oak Quercus catesbaei, of dry, sandy barrens in the southern United States. It has shining leaves with three to five falcate, bristle-tipped lobes suggesting a turkey's toes.

Turkey oilstone. Turkey stone.

Turkey opium. See OPIUM, n., 1.

turkey pea. U. S. 1. a The squirrel corn. b The hoary pea. c The harbinger-of-spring.

2. Pharm. = DEVIL'S-SHOESTRINGS, 2.

turkey pod. The mouse-ear cress.

Turkey red. 1. a A brilliant, durable red produced upon cotton by means of alizarin (or, formerly, madder) in connection with an aluminum mordant and oil or other fatty matter. See DYE, Table. b Cloth dyed with this red.

2. A color, yellowish-red in hue, of high saturation and low brilliance. Called also Turkish red, Adrianople red. Cf COLOR.

— Tur'key–red' (66), adj.

Tur'key–red' bleach. A process of bleaching cotton cloth preparatory to dyeing with Turkey red. The successive operations are: washing, boiling in water, boiling in caustic soda solution, steeping in dilute sulphuric acid (sour), and final washing.

Turkey–red oil. Dyeing. a An inferior grade of olive oil used in producing Turkey red. b A sulphonated vegetable oil, as castor oil, used with alizarin, as a mordant for basic colors on cotton, etc. See SULPHONATED OIL.

Turkey rhubarb. Chinese rhubarb, formerly imported through Turkey.

Turkey sponge. Any of certain superior commercial sponges of the Adriatic and Mediterranean seas; specif., Euspongia officinalis mollissima, the Turkey cup sponge, with fine elastic durable fibers, called also Turkey solid sponge when not cup-shaped, and E. o. adriatica, the Turkey toilet sponge, of fine quality but less valuable.

Turkey stone. Also Turkey slate. 1. A turquoise. Now R.

2. A kind of whetstone or oilstone from Turkey; novaculite.

Turkey toilet sponge. See TURKEY SPONGE.

turkey trot. A ragtime dance of the period of the World War danced with the feet well apart and with a characteristic rise on the ball of the foot, followed by a drop upon the heel. — tur'key–trot', v. i.

Turkey umber. a See UMBER, 1. b = RAW UMBER, 2. — Tur'key–um'ber, adj.

turkey vulture. The turkey buzzard.

Turkey wheat. a Obs. Indian corn. b Crimean wheat.

Turkey, or turkey, work. 1. A textile imported from the Orient, in designs and sizes suitable for upholstery.

2. A kind of tapestry work imitating this.

— tur'key–worked', adj.

Turk Gregory. Pope Gregory VII; — so nicknamed because of his assertion of papal supremacy. See HILDEBRANDINE.

Tur'ki (tōōr'kē), adj. [Per., fr. Turk. See TURK.] 1. Designating or pertaining to the group (East Turki) of Turkic languages including Jagatai, or the groups including Jagatai and Turkish (Osmanli), or the groups included in the Turkic subfamily. See URAL-ALTAIC LANGUAGES.

2. Designating, or pertaining to, the peoples of Turkic speech, including the Osmanlis and Chuvashes in Europe and the Uigurs, Seljuks, Uzbeks, Turkomans, and other Tatar tribes in Asia. They are mostly Mohammedans.

Tur'ki, n. a The Turki languages. b One of the Turki peoples.

Tur'kic (tûr'kĭk), adj. 1. Designating or pertaining to a subfamily of the Ural-Altaic languages, or the peoples speaking these languages, esp. the two Turki groups. The Turkic languages spoken over a vast area by diverse peoples, are characterized by remarkable uniformity, by agglutination, and by vowel harmony. Their chief modern representative is Osmanli Turkish. See URAL-ALTAIC LANGUAGES, Table.

2. Loosely, equivalent to TURKISH.

Tur'kic, n. The Turkic subfamily of languages.

Turk'i·cize (tûr'kĭ·sīz), v. t. To cause to become like the Turks.

Turk'i·fy (-fī), v. t. [Turk + -fy.] [also not cap.] To make or render Turkish. — Turk'i·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ·kā'shŭn), n.

tur'kis (tûr'kĭs), n. pl. [OF. turcaises, turquoises (F. tricoises), prob. fr. (assumed) D. trekijzer iron for drawing or pulling, but influenced by OF. turcois Turkish.] Pincers; nippers. Scot.

tur'kis (tûr'kĭs), n. Turquoise. Archaic.

Turk'ise (tûr'kīz). Var. of TURKIZE.

Turk'ish (tûr'kĭsh), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, Turkey or the Turks.

2. Of, pertaining to, or designating, the Turkic subfamily of Ural-Altaic languages, or, specif., the prevalent language of Turkey, Osmanli.

— Turk'ish·ly, adv. — Turk'ish·ness, n.

Turk'ish, n. The language spoken by Turks, esp. by those of Turkey; Osmanli. It has been much influenced in vocabulary by Arabic and Persian, and has a considerable literature written in an Arabic alphabet, with several Persian characters. In 1928 the Turkish government decreed the adoption of the Roman alphabet. See TURKIC.

tur'kish, v. t. [From or influenced by Turkish, adj. Cf. TURKESS.] = TURKESS. Obs.

Turkish bath. A kind of bath, orig. introduced from the East, in which a profuse perspiration is induced in a superheated room, after which the body is washed, rubbed, kneaded, etc.

Turkish bean. = SCARLET RUNNER.

Turkish blue. A color, reddish-blue in hue, of medium saturation and low brilliance. It is slightly redder and of slightly higher saturation than Delft blue. Called also Turkey blue. Cf. COLOR. — Turk'ish–blue', adj.

Turkish boxwood. Boxwood (Buxus sempervirens).

Turkish, or Turkey, carpet. A kind of handmade one-piece carpet made in Asia Minor, having a deep, generally woolen pile with a weft of different material; also, an English carpet woven in the Turkish manner. See ORIENTAL RUG.

Turkish coffee. A decoction of pulverized coffee in thin sugar sirup, served with the grounds.

---

turf'i·ness (tûr'fĭ·nĕs; -nĭs), n. See -NESS. turf'less, adj. See -LESS. turf'like', adj. See -LIKE. turft. Turfed. Ref. Sp. turf'wise', adv. See -WISE.

tur'gen·cy, n. = TURGIDITY. Now Rare.
tur·ges'ci·ble (tûr·jĕs'ĭ·b'l), adj. [See -ABLE.]
turgy, n. White magic; intercourse with good spirits. Obs.

Turk'dom, n. See -DOM.
Turk'ess, n. Fem. of TURK. tur'key·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tur'key's·beard'. Var. of TURKEY BEARD. turkies. † TURQUOISE.

Turk'ish-cres'cent red. A color, reddish red-yellow in hue, of high saturation and low brilliance; — called also chrysanthemum. Cf. COLOR.

Turkish delight or paste. A confection of jellylike or gummy consistency, usually cut in cubes and dusted with sugar.

Turkish Empire. The Ottoman Empire (which see). The Empire terminated with the declaration of the Turkish Republic by the National Assembly on Oct. 29, 1923.

Turkish geranium oil. = PALMAROSA OIL. See OIL, Table I.

Turkish knot. See KNOT n., 6.

Turkish Kurdistan (rug). See KURDISTAN.

Turkish manna. Trehala.

Turkish music. = JANIZARY MUSIC.

Turkish paste. Turkish delight.

Turkish pepper. The bonnet pepper; also, the paprika made from it.

Turkish pound. A Turkish gold coin, the lira. See COIN, Table.

Turkish red. = TURKEY RED.

Turkish Revolution. See REVOLUTION, Table.

Turkish rocket. A European cress (Bunias orientalis), family Brassicaceae, used as a potherb.

Turkish rug. A Turkish carpet.

Turkish saddle. Anat. = SELLA TURCICA.

Turkish style. See SARACENIC ARCHITECTURE.

Turkish tobacco. A very aromatic tobacco grown in certain districts in Turkey, Greece, Syria, and elsewhere in the Levant and used in cigarettes.

Turkish, or turkish, towel or toweling. A cotton or linen towel or towel fabric having rough surfaces formed by raised loops or a thick pile.

Turkish walnut. The English walnut.

Turkish wheat. = TURKEY WHEAT a.

Turk'ism (tûr'kĭz'm), n. Turkish customs, beliefs, institutions, and principles; also, Rare, a Turkish idiom.

Turk'ize (tûr'kīz), v. t. To render Turkish.

Turk'man (tûrk'mǎn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A native or inhabitant of (Turkmenistan) the Turkomen Soviet Republic; a Turkoman.

Turk'men (-mĕn), adj. Turkmenian; as, the Turkmen Republic.

Turk·me'ni·an (tûrk·mē'nĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pert. to the Turkomans or their country, the Turkomen Soviet Republic. — n. A Turkoman.

Tur'ko- (tûr'kō-). Also Tur'co-. [See TURCO-.] A combining form, Medieval Latin Turco-, from Turcus, meaning Turk, used to denote: a Turkic or Turki, as in Turko-Tatar. b Turkish, as in Turkophobe. c Turkish and; — in adjectives, as in Turko-Greek.

Turko-Albanian	Turko-Italian	Turkophilism
Turko-Bulgar	Turkologist	Turkophobe
Turko-Bulgarian	Turkology	Turkophobist
Turko-Byzantine	Turkomania	Turko-popish
Turko-Cretan	Turko-Mongol	Turko-Tatar
Turko-Egyptian	Turko-Persian	Turko-Tataric
Turko-German	Turkophil	Turko-Teutonic
Turko-Greek	Turkophile	Turko-Ugrian
Turko-Imamic	Turkophilia	Turko-Venetian

Tur'ko-I·ra'ni·an (tûr'kō·ĭ·rā'nĭ·ăn), adj. Ethnol. Designating, or pertaining to, a mixed racial type represented by the Baluch, Brahui, and Afghans, and characterized chiefly by stature above mean, fair complexion, dark, or sometimes gray, eyes, brachycephaly, and very long, prominent, and moderately narrow, nose. — n. A member of any race of this type.

Tur'ko-I·tal'ian War. A war (1911–12) waged successfully by Italy against Turkey because of alleged ill-treatment of Italian nationals and refusal to grant trade concessions in Tripoli.

Tur'ko·man (tûr'kō·mǎn), n.; pl. -MANS (-mǎnz). [Per. Turkmān Turklike.] 1. A member of any of a group of tribes of East Turkic stock dwelling in the Turkomen and Uzbek soviet republics and in the Kazak and Kara-Kalpak autonomous republics, and numbering about 500,000. They are closely related to the Kirghiz and the Uzbek. They are tall, brown-skinned, dolichocephalic, bearded, energetic, chiefly Mohammedan Sunnites, and seminomadic.
2. The Turki language of the Turkomans. See URAL-ALTAIC LANGUAGES, Table. — Tur'ko·man'ic (-mǎn'ĭk), adj.

Turkoman carpet or rug. A kind of carpet or rug made or believed to have been made by the Turkomans. Important varieties are: Afghan, Bokhara, Yomud, Tekke. See ORIENTAL RUG.

Tur'ko-Ta'tar, adj. = TURKIC.

Tur'ko-Ta'tar, n. A division of the Turkic languages spoken in Central Asia and Eastern Siberia.

Turk's'-cap', n. 1. a Short for TURK'S-CAP LILY. b = TURK'S-HEAD, 1.
2. A fez-shaped tea cozy. Rare.

Turk's'-cap' lil'y. Either of two lilies having nodding flowers with strongly revolute perianth segments: a The garden lily Lilium martagon, with rather small, dull purple flowers. b The American wild species Lilium superbum, with flowers resembling those of the tiger lily.

Turk's-cap moss. The urn moss Physcomitrium turbinatum.

Turk's'-head', n. 1. A globular, West Indian cactus (Cactus intortus), deeply furrowed and spiny, with a fez-like cap of whitish hairs from which the red flowers and fruit arise; — often called Turk's-cap.
2. a = POPE'S HEAD. b = TURK'S-HEAD PAN.
3. Naut. A knot of turbanlike form worked on a rope with a piece of small line.

Turk's-head grass. = HARE'S-TAIL GRASS.

Turk's-head pan or tin. A round cake pan with a central tube permitting even baking.

Turk's-herb' (tûrks'ûrb'), n. Herniary.

Turk's'-tur'ban, n. a = TURBAN BUTTERCUP. b The tube-flower.

tur'lough (thûr'lŏk), n. [Ir. turloch, fr. tur dry. See LOCH.] A winter lake, dry or marshy in summer. Ir.

Tur'lu·pin (tûr'lû·pĭn), n. [F.] Fr. Eccl. Hist. A member of a sect of the 13th and 14th centuries, like the Brothers and Sisters of the Free Spirit; — a nickname.

turm (tûrm), n. [OF. turme, fr. L. turma.] A troop; company; specif., a turma. Archaic.

tur'ma (tûr'mȧ), n. [L.] Rom. Antiq. A subdivision of the cavalry complement of a legion, orig. 30 men, and later 32 men.

tur'mer·ic (tûr'mĕr·ĭk), n. [Earlier tormerik, tormarith, tarmaret, fr. F. terre-mérite (NL. terramerita, turmerica), fr. ML. terra merita, lit., deserved, or deserving, earth.]
1. An East Indian herb (Curcuma longa); also, its aromatic rootstock, in commerce usually in the form of powder. It is used as a condiment, esp. in India in curry powders, as a yellow dye, in preparing turmeric paper, and as a medicine. See CURCUMIN. Also, any closely related species yielding similar products.
2. Any of several other plants yielding colored juices or dye products; as: a Bloodroot. b Any of several Australian trees or shrubs of the genera Acronychia and Zieria (family Rutaceae), esp. Z. smithii, the sand-fly bush, with aromatic foliage and small white flowers. The bark is used for tanning and dyeing.

tur'mer·ic (tûr'mĕr·ĭk), adj. Of, pert. to, or obtained from, turmeric.

turmeric paper. Chem. Paper impregnated with turmeric, used as a test for alkaline substances, which turn it from yellow to brown, and for boric acid, which turns it red-brown.

turmeric root. a Bloodroot. b Orangeroot.

turmeric tree. = TURMERIC, 2 b.

tur'mit (tûr'mĭt), tur'met (-mĕt). Dial. vars. of TURNIP.

tur·moil' (tûr·moil'; tûr'moil), v. t. [See TURMOIL, n.] To harass; disquiet; worry; upset; toss. Now Rare. — v. i. a Obs. To be in a state of confusion or unrest; to be agitated. b Now Dial. To toil; labor.

tur'moil (tûr'moil; formerly also tûr·moil'), n. [Origin uncert.; perh. fr. OF. tremouille the hopper of a mill, fr. L. tremere to tremble; influenced by E. turn and moil. Cf. TREMBLE.] 1. A state of turbulence; physical or mental agitation or unrest; harassing confusion of sounds, movements, thoughts, etc.; tumult.

This chasm, with ceaseless turmoil seething. Coleridge.

2. Harassing labor; trouble; drudgery. Rare.

And there I'll rest, as after much turmoil,
A blessed soul doth in Elysium. Shak.

Syn. — Ferment, disquiet, perturbation, confusion.

Ant. — Calm, peace, tranquillity, quiet.

tur·moil'er (tûr·moil'ĕr; tûr'moil-), n. One who makes or causes turmoil.

turn (tûrn), v.; TURNED (tûrnd); TURN'ING. [ME. turnen, tournen, fr. AS. turnian, tyrnan, combined with OF. torner, turner (F. tourner), both fr. L. tornare to turn in a lathe, to round off, fr. tornus a lathe, fr. Gr. tornos a turner's chisel, a carpenter's tool for drawing circles; akin to E. THROW. Cf. ATTORNEY, CONTOUR, DETOUR, RETURN, TOUR, TOURNAMENT, TOURNIQUET, TURNIP.] Transitive:

I. To move circularly.
1. To cause to revolve about, or as if about, a center; to rotate; as, to turn a wheel or a spindle.
2. Hence: a To revolve mentally; to consider from various aspects; to think over; to ponder; — often with over; as, to turn a project over in one's mind. b To perform or execute by revolving, as handsprings.
3. To shape or fashion (anything) by applying a cutting tool to it while revolving; to form in a lathe; as, to turn the legs of tables; to turn ivory or metal; hence, to shape or mold gracefully, neatly, etc., as if on a lathe; to give a finished or well-rounded form to; to fashion or perform skillfully; as, to turn a phrase or a song.

His limbs how turned, how broad his shoulders spread. Pope.

4. To cause (a mechanical device, etc.) to move around far enough or enough times to effect a desired end, as of locking, opening, shutting, etc.; as, to turn the key in a lock, a cock on a gas range, a screw tight; hence, to shut, open, release, lower, etc., by so operating a mechanism; — usually with an adverb, as down, off, or up; as, turn on the water; turn down the light.
5. To cause to change position, posture, or part exposed, by moving through an arc of a circle; to move around a center so as to see or to show another side or angle of; to set in another direction; as, to turn a chair to the light, the pages of a book, or a patient in bed; to turn a child face about; hence, specif., to turn the leaves of; to search through or read; as, to turn many books in one's life.
6. To present by or as if by a turn in position; to exhibit; — often in figurative expressions; as, to turn one's back on every friend.

Turn the cheek even to the smiter's hand. Shelley.

II. To reverse.
7. To make the uppermost or outermost side or part of the undermost or inmost; to invert; to reverse the sides or surfaces of; as, to turn griddlecakes, an hourglass, or silk used for a collar.
8. Specif.: a To dig or plow so as to bring the lower soil to the surface; as, the soil should be turned after the harvest. b To make over (a dress, coat, etc.) by reversing the material; as, this dress has been turned.
9. To reverse the order or disposition of; to change drastically the arrangement of things in; as, to turn things topsy-turvy; to turn a room upside down.
10. To upset; specif.: a To derange; unsettle; as, sorrow has turned his brain. b To sicken (the stomach); to nauseate.
11. To put, pour, cast, etc., by turning, esp. by inverting a container or operating a cock, faucet, etc.; as, turn the flour into the bin; turn some water into this pitcher.

III. To direct; to make go, move, etc., in another or a specified direction.
12. To cause to have or take another course or direction; to divert; deflect; to bend or change the course of; as, to turn the channel of a stream, or a team around a corner; to turn one's steps (Archaic, oneself) home.
13. To change the drift, tendency, expected result, etc., of; as, to turn the talk; a few votes turned the election.
14. To divert from an intention, project, mood, or the like; to induce to change one's purpose, attitude, etc.; as, nothing could turn their hearts.
15. To influence (one) so as to make him change religion, way of life, attitude, etc.; specif.: a Now Rare. To make change for the better; to convert. b Rare To make change for the worse; to pervert. c To prejudice; to infuse with hatred; as, to turn a child against his mother.
16. Hence: a To lead or put (one), as to trouble, by influencing or causing to be involved; — chiefly with to. "To think of the teen that I have turned you to." Shak. b To bring by a change in attitude, judgment, or the like; — with to or into; as, to turn religion into ridicule.
17. To make go back; to reverse the direction of; specif.: a To cause to retreat; to check; repel; keep out or off; as, to turn the attacking party by sharp fire; this fence won't turn hogs. b To make go back in use, application, etc.; to cause to rebound, recoil, or react.

Lady Flora found the joke was turned against her. L. Strachey.

c To make look back; to avert; as, turn your eyes from this.
18. To move, esp. from a point of rest, so as to aim, point, make play, etc.; to direct; — with into, on, to, upon, etc.; as, to turn a hose on a fire, one's glance in, or away from, a given direction; it was time to turn one's thoughts to business, to study.
19. To direct the employment or use of; to apply; to devote; as, to turn everything to account; to turn one's talents to the service of one's country.
20. To make go, or move, elsewhere, or to a specified place; to drive; dismiss; order off; — often with away, off, out of, etc.; as, to turn one adrift; to turn the cows to pasture; to turn the offender out of his home.
21. To make move or stir; to cause to rise, fall, etc.; — chiefly in set phrases; as, to turn the scales; though astounded, he did not turn a hair.
22. To keep (money, goods, etc.) moving, circulating, or passing in trade; more narrowly, to dispose of (a stock) to make room for another; also, to make or gain by buying, selling, etc.; as, unable to turn a penny in the present market.
23. To change direction by making a turn around or about; to take a circular or elliptical path around; to travel, sail, drive, etc., around; as, the ship has turned Cape Horn; to turn a corner at full speed.
24. To pass or go beyond (an age, amount, etc.); as, the fund has turned the thousand dollar point; she has turned her twentieth year.
25. To give or have a bent to; to incline; — commonly in past part.; as, a nation always turned to thoughts of war.
26. Obs. a To make over; transfer; — now turn over. b Rare. To lead astray; deceive. c To return; render back.

IV. To change.
27. To transform; to metamorphose; as, grief has turned his nature.
28. To alter in character, form, quality, aspect, effect, etc.; to convert; — usually with to or into; as, to turn sorrow to joy, blue to green, or prose into verse.
29. Specif.: a To translate; to render in another language. b To phrase differently; to give a different cast or form to (a phrase, etc.).
30. To ferment; to make acid or sour; to curdle, etc.; as, to turn cider or milk.
31. To change (a person or thing) so as to make (such); to affect so as to be or become; as, to turn one sick; fright turned her pale; age turned the silk yellow.
32. To dispose of by exchanging for an equivalent; as to turn stock into cash or real estate into personal property.

V. To make curve; to give a curved form to.
33. To make a fold, crook, curve, or bend in as by pressure or meeting resistance; to form, arrange, affect, etc., by twisting or bending; as, to turn a lead pipe; to turn a razor edge in honing; hence, to turn the edge or point of, to blunt; to render dull, harmless, teethless, etc.; as, opposition turned the edge of his ambitious design.
34. To cut off the rind or skin of (a fruit, etc.) in a narrow spiral strip.
35. Arch. To construct (an arch).
36. Knitting, Lacemaking, etc. To perform the operations necessary to make the curved form of (a heel of a sock, a scallop, etc.).

Looking down at her as she sat turning a heel. Barrie.

——, Intransitive: I. To move circularly.
1. To move around in circles or in a circle, or through an arc of a circle; to revolve; rotate; swing; pivot; whirl or wheel around; as, the wheel turned rapidly, the gate creaked as it turned on its hinges; he turned on his heels.
2. Hence: a Of the head or brain, to become giddy or dizzy; to reel. "I 'll look no more Lest my brain turn." Shak. b To hinge; depend; as, the decision turns on a single fact. c To center; to concentrate attention; as, the discussion turned upon the feasibility of the scheme. d To swing; to come in course; as, the talk turned to other subjects. e To come by turning leaves of a book; as, turn to the third chapter.
3. To operate a lathe; also, to admit fashioning on a lathe; as, ivory turns well.

II. To be or become reversed.
4. To reverse one's or its course or direction; to go backward or in the opposite direction; to recede; as, his luck has turned; stocks turned in the last hour; specif., of a tide, to change from ebb to flow, or flow to ebb.
5. Obs. a To retrace one's way; return. b To flee; desert; — with to. "All will revolt from me, and turn to him." Shak.
6. To have a reactive effect or outcome; specif.: a Now Rare. To recoil; to bring disaster by way of reaction; — with upon; as, war turns upon those who provoke it. b To redound; to come or flow back as a consequence.

Afflictions shall turn to our advantage. Wake.

7. To reverse one's course of action, policy, attitude, etc.; specif.: a To change from submission or friendliness to resistance or opposition; rebel; as, the worm will turn. b To make retaliation; to vent resentment or wrath; as, to turn upon one's accuser; the people finally turned upon the dictator and ousted him.

III. To take a direction.
8. To take a specified or implied direction; to direct oneself or itself; to direct one's steps, one's thoughts, one's gaze, etc.; as, at night, his thoughts turned to many things forgotten during the day; when the bell rings, all turn to their desks; everyone turned to the speaker when he arose; also, to direct one's efforts or interests; to turn one's hand; to devote or apply oneself; as, to turn to medicine as a profession.
9. To take a different direction or course; to change one's or its direction; to be deflected or diverted; to shift; as, to turn from the road where it turns to the north; the wind has turned.
10. Specif.: a To turn one's head (sometimes one's body) to see someone or something behind or to the side; to face about, esp. in order to see; to glance back or to the side; as, he heard but did not turn; she turned after they passed without recognizing each other. b To avert one's eyes; as, she turned from the sight. c To divert one's attention, thoughts, etc., from something implied or specified; — with to; as, let us turn from this to a more pleasing subject; he turned to religion in his old age. d To incline from a horizontal or straight line; to move from a point of rest; as, these scales will turn on the weight of a hair. e To be variable or inconstant.

IV. To change.
11. To be changed, altered, or transformed; to change one's (or its) nature, color, character, etc.; also, to become (such) by a change or changes; to grow; as, water turns to ice; to turn Mohammedan; to turn sour, afraid, or pale.
12. Specif.: a To become acid, rancid, or putrid; to sour, as milk. b To become mentally deranged. c To be nauseated; — said of the stomach. d To change color; — esp. of leaves. e Chiefly Ir. To change one's religion; esp., to become a Catholic or a Protestant. Cf. TURNCOAT.

V. To curve.
13. To become curved or bent; hence, of an edge, to be blunted; as, this razor will not turn in honing.

---

tur'kle (tûr'k'l), n. Corrupt. of TURTLE.
Turk'like', adj. See -LIKE.
Tur'ko. Var. of TURCO. tur'kois. Var. of TURQUOISE.
Tur'ko·man·ize, v. i. See -IZE. tur'ky. Turkey. Ref. Sp. tur'lu·pin·ade', n. A low or dry jest. Obs. tur'ma·lin. Turmaline. Ref. Sp. tur'ma·line (tûr'mȧ·lĭn). Mineral. Var. of TOURMALINE. tur'ment. Var. of TORMENT. Obs. exc. Dial.
tur·moild'. Turmoiled. Ref. Sp.
tur·moil'ous, adj. Troublous. Obs. tur'mut. Var. of TURMIT.

VI. Technical senses.

14. [G. turnen, fr. OHG. turnēn to turn, fr. L. tornare.] Gymnastics. To practice or perform exercises.

15. Mil. & Nav. To execute a turn. See TURN, n., 24 & 26.

16. Naut. To change direction by tacking.

17. Obstetrics. To bring down the feet of a child in the uterus, in order to facilitate delivery.

18. Print. To use inverted type of the same thickness as a temporary substitute for a sort which is exhausted.

— to be turned. To be advanced in age beyond; — often with of. Dial. — *which way to turn. What course to follow in a crisis, an embarrassing situation, etc.

turn a blind eye. To refuse to see; to be oblivious.

turn about. a Obs. To revolve; rotate. b To face about; to reverse one's policy, course, etc.

turn a, or the, cold shoulder to. To treat with neglect or indifference; to snub.

turn a corner. = TURN THE CORNER.

turn a deaf ear. To refuse to listen.

turn a flange. Mach. To form a flange on, as around a metal sheet or boiler plate, by stretching, bending, and hammering, or rolling the metal.

turn after. To take after. Dial.

turn again. a To turn back; to return; to revert. b Obs. (1) = TURN, v. i., 7. (2) = TURN, v. i., 13.

turn a hair. To show a sign of discomposure or disturbance; — used in negative constructions.

turn a, or one's, hand. a To engage in manual work; to be or become employed. b To make an effort, esp. a slight effort; as, he will not turn a hand to help me.

turn a hostile force, turn the enemy's flank, or the like. Mil. To pass round it, and take an attacking position behind it or upon its side; to flank.

turn and wind. To move or cause to move in a circuitous or winding path or course; hence, to make pliant or docile. Now Rare.

turn around one's (little) finger. To be able to influence (one) with great ease; to get what one wants out of a (person).

turn away. a To avert or be averted; avoid; evade. b To dismiss as from one's home or service; also, to decline the application of; as, the hotels turned away hundreds last week. c To leave or start to leave; to go away; depart.

turn back. a To return, esp. in rejecting.

> We turn not back the silks upon the merchants,
> When we have soiled them. Shak.

b To cause to return or retrace one's steps; hence, to drive back or away; to repel. c To go, move, fold, etc., in the reverse direction. d To refuse to go ahead or carry on; as, he was not one who would turn back under strain. e U.S. To return.

turn bridle. To ride back; to retreat.

turn by. To pass over; reject.

turn color. a To grow pale. b To blush; flush.

turn down. a To fold or double down; as, to turn down one's coat collar. b To turn upside down; to invert; as, to turn down cards or a wineglass. c To lower, or reduce in size, by turning a valve, stopcock, or the like; as, turn down the lights. d To take a downward course, direction, or curve; as, the corners of his mouth turn down. e To refuse to accept; to reject; to decline; as, to turn down a proposal, an order, or a candidate. f Chiefly Brit. To liberate or release for stocking purposes; as, to turn down foxes.

turn flukes. Of a whale, to raise the tail and dive.

turn head. To face boldly; to make a stand (against).

turn in. a To send or put in; now usually, to deliver up; to hand over; as, to turn in his expense account. b = TURN UNDER b. c To bend or direct so as to bend inward; as, his toes turn in. d To turn from a road or path so as to enter; as, let us turn in here. e Colloq. To go to bed.

turn into. = turn in d, above.

turn king's evidence. See KING'S EVIDENCE.

turn loose. a To set free, as a tied horse, so as to have the run of a pasture; hence, to free from all restraints; to permit (one) to go one's own way. b Colloq., U.S. To discharge; to fire.

turn off. a To dismiss; discharge. b Obs. To give over; consign. c Now Rare. To divert; deflect; also, to be deflected; to go in a different direction. d To distract attention from as by a turn (sense 6). e To accomplish; execute; turn out. f To shut off, or stop the passage of, by a valve, stopcock, or the like; to shut (a faucet, etc.) so as to prevent flow through; as, to turn off the water, the gas, the tap. g Slang. (1) To hang, as a criminal. (2) To marry. h Brit. To putrefy; decay; become unfit for eating; — of food, etc. i Mach. (1) To remove (material) by the process of turning. (2) To fashion into a desired form by turning.

turn on. a To cause to flow by turning a valve, stopcock, or the like; to give passage to; as, to turn on steam. b To hinge on. See TURN, v. i., 2 b.

turn one's, or the, back on or upon. a To abandon; desert. b To treat with contempt; to reject or refuse unceremoniously.

turn one's coat. To change one's uniform or colors; to go over to the opposite party.

turn one's face to the wall. To give up hope of living; to know one is about to die; also, to die.

turn one's hand. a Now Rare. To lay one's hand (on or upon), esp. to kill. b See turn a hand, above.

turn one's tale. To change one's tune, story, or attitude. Obs.

turn one's thumb down. = turn down e, above.

turn out. a To drive out; to expel; as, to turn a man out of office or out of a lodging. b To put to pasture, as cattle or horses. c To produce as the result of labor; to furnish in a completed state. d To turn inside out; to reverse. e To put out, or extinguish, by turning a stopcock, valve, or the like; as, to turn out the lights. f Western U.S. To abandon, as worn-out land. g To pour out, remove, empty out (the contents of something); also, to empty by pouring out or putting out the contents of; as, to turn out the bag of sugar; to turn out a room for a weekly cleaning. h To bend or point outward; to cause to point outward; as, his toes turn out. i Colloq. To rise from bed. j Colloq. To come or go out; to leave, esp. one's home, to go (to), or in exchange (for); as, to turn out to a lecture or for an evening's bridge. k To prove in the result or end (to be); to become eventually or in maturity (such or so); to fulfill or satisfy expectations (so, so far, etc.); as, he has turned out very well or a successful man; the crops turned out poorly. "To be sure Enoch's marriage did not turn out. He himself brought it to an end." S. Anderson. l To equip, dress, finish, etc., in an elaborate or meticulous fashion; as, he is the best turned out man in London. m Mil. To call (the guard) to attention.

turn over. a To upset or be upset; overturn; to roll over. b To reverse the parts, layers, or units, of, successively; to turn (soil); to search (papers, clothes, etc.) by turning or moving each. c To think over; to revolve in the mind. d To read or examine, as a book, while turning the leaves. e To transfer; hand over; as, turn over a business to another. f Obs. To hang. g Colloq. To handle in business; to do business to the amount of; as, he turns over millions a year. h To receive and dispose of (a given stock of merchandise).

turn over a new leaf. To make a radical change, usually for the better, in one's way of living or doing.

turn state's evidence. See STATE'S EVIDENCE.

turn tail. To refuse to face danger or opposition; to run away. "Lord Russell rather turned tail." Henry Adams.

turn the cat in the pan. To give a dexterous turn to an affair, a situation, etc.; to turn something into something else as by a trick.

turn the corner. To pass the critical stage; hence, to begin to improve, or to succeed.

turn the die or dice. To change fortune.

turn the edge or point of. See TURN, v. t., 33.

turn the head or brain of. To make giddy, wild, insane, or the like; to cause to become infatuated.

turn the scale or balance. a To register weight; — with at; as, it turns the scale at 60 pounds. b To change the preponderance; to decide or determine something doubtful; to prove decisive.

turn the tables. a To bring about a reversal of the relative conditions or fortunes of two contending persons or parties; — from the idea of reversing a game board. Cf. TABLE, n., 13. b To show that an argument advanced for or against a thesis actually favors the other side.

turn the trick. To bring about the desired result or effect. Slang.

turn tippet. To make a change. Obs.

turn to. a To tend or trend towards. b To apply oneself to work; to set to work; to act vigorously; as, all turned to; all were turned to the task. c To have recourse or resort to; to look to for assistance; specif., to refer to; to consult; as, he had no one to turn to; turn to the dictionary when you are not certain of a meaning. d To use, employ, sell, etc., so as to acquire (profit, advantage, etc.) turn to windward. Naut. To beat to windward.

turn turtle. Naut. To capsize bottom upward; — said of a vessel; hence, loosely, to overturn; as, an automobile turned turtle.

turn under. a To bend or fold or be bent or folded, downward or under. b Agric. To put, as soil, manure, etc., underneath from the surface by plowing, digging, or the like turn up. a To turn or be turned so as to bring the bottom side on top or to the outside; as, to turn up one's coat collar; the brim turns up. b To bring from beneath to the surface, as in plowing, digging, etc.; as, to turn up buried treasure; hence, to find or be found; esp., to appear eventually or suddenly, after having been lost, not seen, etc.; as, the book will turn up some day; he always turns up when least expected. c To happen, or occur, unexpectedly; as, something always turns up to interfere with our plans. d To give an upward curve to; to tilt; as, to turn up the nose in disdain. e To raise or increase by turning a valve, stopcock, or the like; as, to turn up a light. f To turn out to be. "Northanger turned up an abbey." Jane Austen. g To look up (as a word) in a book. h To shorten, as a skirt, by increasing the width of the hem; also, Obs., to face a turned-up part of a sleeve, or the like (with a fabric or color). i To cause to lie supine; hence, to kill. j Obs. Slang. To offer (oneself) as a prostitute. k Now Slang. (1) To turn loose; to free. (2) To abandon; relinquish. l Bookbinding. To remove the round in the back of (a book) preparatory to trimming the front or fore edge. Cf. TRINDLE. m Naut. (1) To tack. (2) To sight (a place). (3) To call (a crew) on deck.

turn up one's toes. To die. Slang.

turn- (tûrn-). A combining form of the verb turn, denoting: a That turns, as in turnkey. b For turning, as in turnbuckle. c That is turned, as in turnover.

-turn. A combining form of the verb turn, as in overturn.

turn (tûrn), n. [Cf. OF. tour, torn, fr. L. tornus. See TURN, v.]

I. A turning around.

1. The action or an act or instance of turning or moving about or as if about a center or axis; revolution; rotation; esp., a single revolution or turning motion; as, the turn or turns of a wheel; twists and turns of the head.

2. Hence, something that revolves, or turns around; specif.: a A lathe; now, a watchmaker's lathe. b Now Dial. A spinning wheel. c = TOUR, n., c.

3. A round, wind, twist, or coil, of a rope, cord, wire, etc., as about a pin, post, or core; also, a convolution, as a whorl.

4. A reeling; a spell of faintness, dizziness, etc.; an attack; Colloq., a nervous start or shock, as from surprise; as, his sudden appearance gave me a turn.

5. A single trip including the return; specif.: a Obs. A tour; a trip. b A short walk, ride, or drive, over a certain course and back or in a circuit; as, a turn in the park. c Chiefly Dial. A round trip made by one team in hauling logs, taking grist to a mill, etc.; also, the quantity carried or work done during such a trip.

II. A turning in a given or different direction.

6. Act or an instance of turning, or giving or taking a direction or a different or reverse direction; a changing of course, position, drift, etc.; a turning in a specified or implied direction, aside, back, face about, etc.; as, we must make a turn at the next street; to await the turn of the tide; a sudden turn in the ball's flight.

7. Hence: a A deflection or deviation from a straight course, a normal development, a manifest trend, etc.; a change in tendency, drift, policy, or the like; as, matters have taken a bad turn; to await a turn in one's luck. b A change of direction in conditions or affairs; hence, an occasion; — chiefly in at every turn, that is, constantly. c Turning point; esp., a place or time when something takes a different direction or course; as, to stop at a turn in the road; to expect a turn in a sick man's condition tonight. d A deviation from the right, usual, or expected, course of procedure; an artifice; trick; stratagem.

8. A hanging; — so called from the practice of causing the criminal to stand on a ladder which was turned over. Obs.

III. Something done or occurring in or out of a course.

9. A deed; esp., a service, office, or the like, performed out of the usual course; an incidental or opportune deed as it affects another; as, to do one an ill turn; one good turn deserves another.

10. The place, time, or opportunity, accorded an individual or unit in a scheduled or alternating order; due course or an orderly arrangement making a time, opportunity, or place, for each person or thing; esp., the chance or opportunity which comes to each one in alternation; as, you must await your turn; it will come in turn; it will be his turn to laugh later.

11. Hence, something that comes in turn, or at intervals, usually regular intervals; specif.: a A period affording opportunities of a specified kind, as for work; a spell; as, to get a turn of work on the harvest. b Hence, Colloq., a job; a piece of work; — often a hand's turn, an act of manual labor. c Brit. The period during which one of the persons or groups successively employed is on duty; a shift; a tour. d pl. Colloq. Monthly courses; menses.

12. A try or trial; specif., a bout; set-to; contest; as, a turn at wrestling.

13. A special occasion or exigency; particular need or requirement; as, mere money will not serve his turn.

IV. Something different or denoting difference.

14. A change; a variation; a difference in type, kind, etc.

> To express all turns and varieties of passions. Hooker.

15. Special form or style; specif.: a Characteristic quality, mode, fashion, etc. "The turn and genius of our language." Gray. b The shape, mold, etc., in which something is fashioned; cast; as, a man of an evil turn of countenance; notice the turn of her neck and arms. c A turning, or skillful fashioning; something that is turned, or gracefully or neatly executed; as, felicitous turns of expression; also, a well-turned phrase or passage. d A special twist, construction, or interpretation, as in telling a story; as, to give the old legend a new turn.

16. Natural or special ability or aptitude; inclination; bent; as, a turn for mechanics or languages; of an inquiring turn of mind; also, Rare: a The fashion, or vogue. b Genius. c A quality of character.

V. Technical senses:

17. Coursing. A sudden change, of less than a right angle, in direction made by the quarry when hotly pursued; as, the hounds gave the hare a turn. Cf. WRENCH, n., 3 b.

18. Faro. Any single act of drawing cards, two at a time, from the dealing box. There are 25 turns to each deal.

19. Furriery. A bundle of 60 skins.

20. Gram. Voice; — a proposed term.

21. Law. = TOURN.

22. Lead Mining. A pit sunk in some part of a drift. Dial. Eng.

23. Math. a = DIRECTIONAL COEFFICIENT. b = COMPLEX UNIT.

24. Mil. A drill maneuver in which troops in line change direction without preserving their alignment. The pivot file faces in the new direction, and the others move up and place themselves in succession in the new line. Cf. WHEEL.

25. Music. An ornament consisting of four tones, the first being a degree above, and the third a degree below, the principal tone which comes in the second and fourth positions. The back, or inverted, turn begins with the tone below instead of the tone above. The time value of the four tones depends largely on the tempo of the composition. See Illust. for the sign and its interpretation.

Turn, 25. 1 As written; 2 As performed. a With Sign over the note; b With Sign following; c With Chromatic; d Inverted, or Back, Turn.

26. Nav. A change of course by a vessel in formation; as, the ship astern made a good turn; a simultaneous change of course by the ships of a unit; as, the division made two successive 90° turns.

27. Print. A type placed bottom up, as in the space needed for one not at hand, or an inverted letter or group.

28. Shoemaking. A woman's fine, light, single-soled shoe or slipper made by sewing upper and sole together both wrong side out, removing the last, turning right side out, attaching the heel, and finishing. See TURNED.

29. Stock Exchange. a A complete transaction, that is, one involving a purchase and sale of securities, or vice versa. b Colloq., Eng. The middle price between the stock jobber's buying and selling prices.

30. Theater. A short act or piece of any kind, esp. one for a variety show; also, its performer.

31. Veter. = TURNABOUT, 5.

Syn. — TURN, TWIST, CAST, are all more or less familiar or colloq. TURN (with to or, more commonly, for) suggests bent, tendency, or inclination; it may also denote characteristic form of expression; TWIST is colloq. for bias; CAST is more general, and suggests stamp, mold, style, or the like; it is often equivalent to tinge, shade, dash (cf. VEIN, COLOR, TASTE); as, "He told his father . . . that he had 'no turn to economy'; but a thief might as well plead that he had 'no turn to honesty'" (Mme. d'Arblay); "I never had the least turn for dress" (id.); "That is your Whiggish twist" (G. Eliot); "New situations give a different cast of habit, inclination, temper, taste" (Cowper); "what there is of a religious cast in the volume" (id.). Cf. BENT, TENDENCY, GIFT, PREDILECTION.

— by turns. a One after another; alternately; in succession. b At intervals. "[They] feel by turns the bitter change." Milton. — *in turn. In due order of succession.

— on the turn. In course of turning, or at the point of turning. — *out of turn. Not in turn. — *to a turn. Exactly; perfectly; as, done to a turn; — from the practice of cooking on a revolving spit. — *turn about, or turn and turn about. = by turns a, above.

turn (tûrn). Var. of TOURN.

turn'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

turn'a·bout' (tûrn'ȧ·bout'), n. 1. Also turn'-a·bout'-face'. The action or an instance of turning about; esp., a changing from one side, allegiance, etc., to another.

2. A person who changes or advocates change; a radical.

3. Something that revolves; as: a Obs. A turnstile. b U.S. A merry-go-round.

4. Nav. A turn of 180°; a turn of 16 points; a reversal of course by simultaneous ship movements.

5. Veter. A disease of cattle due to inflammation of the brain, characterized by trembling, gritting the teeth, giddiness, staggering, and coma.

turnado. Var. of TORNADO. Obs.

turn'a·gain' (-ȧ·gĕn'; -ȧ·gān'), n. Rare. a Obs. A maze; a winding. b Obs. An obstacle to progress. c A refrain. — turn'a·gain', adj.

turn and bank indicator. Aeronautics. An instrument combining the functions of a turn indicator and an inclinometer.

turn'a·way' (tûrn'ȧ·wā'), n. A turning away; one who turns away, or deserts. Rare.

turn'back' (-băk'), n. 1. A coward.

2. A turned-back part, as of a sleeve or shoe.

3. Harness. A strap that connects the hames and the hip strap. Local, U.S.

turn bench. A watchmaker's lathe.

turn bolt. A bolt that operates by turning.

turn'bout' (tûrn'bout'), n. = TURNBUCKLE a.

turn bridge. A pivot bridge or swing bridge.

turn'broach' (tûrn'brōch'), n. A turnspit. Archaic.

turn'buck'le (-bŭk'l), n. Mach. a A loop or sleeve with a screw thread at one end and a swivel at the other, or a right-and-left screw link, used for tightening a rod, stay, etc.

One form of Turnbuckle.

b A gravitating catch, as for fastening a shutter, the end of a chain, or a hasp.

Turn'bull's blue (tûrn'bŏŏlz). Chem. A dark-blue amorphous pigment having a coppery luster, formed as a precipitate when potassium ferricyanide and a ferrous salt are brought together in solution. It is regarded by some as ferrous ferricyanide, $Fe_3[Fe(CN_6)]_2$, and by others as identical with soluble Prussian blue. See PRUSSIAN BLUE.

turn'cap' (tûrn'kăp'), n. A chimney cap which turns with the wind so as to present its opening to the leeward.

turn'coat' (-kōt'), n. One who forsakes his party or his principles; a renegade; apostate.

turn'coat', v. i. To be or become a turncoat. — turn'coat·ism (-ĭz'm), n.

turn'cock' (tûrn'kŏk'), n. 1. A stopcock with a plug which is turned in opening or closing.

2. A person employed to turn on or off water supplied intermittently, as to dwellings, tanks, etc.

turn'–crowned' (-kround'), adj. Having, as some pigeons, the feathers on the crown turned, or reversed.

turn'down' (-doun'), adj. 1. Capable of being turned down; specif., Elec., designating, or pertaining to, an incandescent lamp with a small additional filament which can be made incandescent when only a small amount of light is required.

2. Made to wear with the upper part turned down; as, a turndown collar.

turn'down', n. Act of turning down; rejection; also, something turned down, as a turndown collar.

turn'dun (tûrn'dŭn), n. A bull-roarer.

turned (tûrnd), past tense & past part. of TURN; — used also, as a predicate adjective, in combination with adverbs to express the direction or manner in which something is turned, as in:

turned-back	turned-on	turned-over turned-down	turned-out	turned-up turned-in

-turned. Turned, part. adj., used in combinations, as in:

engine-turned	triple-turned	well-turned ill-turned		wheel-turned turned comma. Print. A comma inverted, appearing in reversed form at the top of the line.

turned trump. Whist. A card, belonging to the dealer, turned to determine the trump suit. Cf. DECLARED TRUMP.

tur'nel (tûr'nĕl), n. [Origin uncert.] A tub. Obs. exc. Dial.

turn'el (tûr'nĕl), n. [OF. tornel. See TURN, v.] A thing that turns, as a terret, windlass, or turnbuckle. Obs.

turn'er (tûr'nĕr), n. [Cf. F. tourneur.] 1. One who or that which turns, as a utensil for turning cakes in cooking, a device in a sawmill for turning over logs, one who or a device that turns over the collars and wristbands on shirts, etc.

2. pl. Furniture made by turning in a lathe. Obs.

3. One employed by the copyists of manuscript texts to insert the elaborate initials and capitals; also, Rare, a translator. Obs. exc. Hist.

4. A variety of tumbler pigeon. Obs.

5. Mach. a One whose occupation is to form articles with a lathe. b A tool used for turning.

☞ PHRASES are:

brass turner	chair turner	muffin turner
brush turner	die turner	rough turner button turner	loom turner	spool turner turn'er (tûr'nĕr; G. tŏŏr'nĕr), n. [G., fr. turnen, v., fr. F. tourner. See TURN, v.] Literally, a person who practices athletic or gymnastic excercises; specif., a member of a Turnverein.

tur'ner (tûr'nĕr), n. [F. tournois.] A 17th-century billon coin of Scotland, modeled on the tournois and worth twopence.

Tur'ner·a (tûr'nĕr·ȧ), n. [NL., after William Turner (d. 1568), Eng. herbalist.] Bot. A large genus of tropical American plants typifying the family Turneraceae. They are herbs and shrubs having alternate leaves and solitary axillary yellow flowers, the peduncle and petiole often coherent. The drug damiana is obtained chiefly from the Mexican species T. diffusa. T. ulmifolia is the yellow alder.

Tur'ner·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of mostly tropical American herbs or shrubs (order Hypericales) having flowers with five stamens, three styles, and a free ovary. — tur'ner·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Tur'ner·esque' (-ĕsk'), adj. Resembling or suggesting the work of the painter J. M. W. Turner; of the character of Turner's paintings. — Tur·ne'ri·an (tûr·nē'rĭ·ăn), adj.

turner hall. A turnhall. See TURNHALLE.

turner harp. A harp seal three years old. Newfoundland.

turner hood. A hooded seal three years old. Newfoundland.

Tur'ner·ism (tûr'nĕr·ĭz'm), n. A mannerism, or characteristic of the style, of the painter J. M. W. Turner.

tur'ner·ite (-īt), n. [After Edward Turner (1798–1837), Eng. chemist and mineralogist.] Mineral. A variety of monazite, in small yellow or brown crystals.

turn'er–off', n. One who turns off certain kinds of work, as by a machine, from a lathe, etc.; esp., a finisher (of hosiery).

Tur'ner's yel'low (tûr'nĕrz). a The color lemon yellow. b See LEAD OXYCHLORIDE.

turn'er·y (tûr'nĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). [Cf. F. tournerie.]

1. Art or process of fashioning solid bodies into cylindrical or other forms by means of a lathe.

2. Ornamentation or, collectively, things or forms made by a turner or in the lathe.

> Chairs of wood, the seats triangular, the backs, arms, and legs loaded with turnery. Walpole.

3. A machine shop, esp. one containing lathes.

tur'ney. Variant of TOURNEY, n. & v. Now Rare.

tur'ney (tûr'nĭ), n. [See TOURNOIS.] A 14th-century base silver coin of Ireland, modeled on the tournois.

turn file. A burnisher for turning up slight burrs on the teeth of a combmaker's file.

turn'gate' (tûrn'gāt'), n. A turnstile.

‖Turn'hal'le (tŏŏrn'häl'ĕ), n. Also Anglicized, turn'hall' (tûrn'hôl'). [G. See 2d TURNER; HALL.] A building used as a school of gymnastics.

Tur·nic'i·dae (tûr·nĭs'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See TURNIX; -IDAE.] Zool. The family containing the button quails. See TURNIX. It is the chief family of a suborder (Turni'ces [tûr·nī'sēz]) of Gruiformes. — tur'ni·cine (tûr'nĭ·sĭn; -sīn; 156), adj.

Tur'ni·co·mor'phae (tûr'nĭ·kō·môr'fē), n. pl. [NL. See TURNIX; -MORPHOUS.] Zool. A superfamily equiv. to Turnices. — tur'ni·co·mor'phic (-fĭk), adj.

turn'–in', n. That which turns in, or is turned in; specif., Bookbinding, the portion of a book covering which overlaps the three edges of both boards and is secured smoothly to them. — turn'–in', adj.

turn indicator. Aeronautics. An instrument showing when the direction of the line of flight, or the direction of the projection of that line on a horizontal plane, is altering. Some kinds show also the rate of turn, in terms either of the angular velocity or of the radius of curvature.

Turn Indicator based on gyroscopic principles. 1 Wheel driven at high speed by stream of air from Jet (2); 3 Venturi Tube, connected by tubing with Nipple (4), for drawing air from chamber; 5 Frame, mounted on pivots, to which Disk (6, 6) is attached; 7, 7 Spring, connected to Pin (8) on disk and also to frame, to resist rotation of disk and maintain vertical position of Pointer (9, 9); 10 Pin riding between prongs of Fork (11, 11) in such a way that the pointer swings in a direction opposite to the rotation of the disk.

turn'ing (tûr'nĭng), n. 1. Act or course of one who or that which turns; specif.: a Rotation about an axis; a wheeling or circling. b A winding; bend; flexure; as, the turnings of the road. c Deviation from the way or proper course; also, a reversal of course; an about-face. d Act of walking to and fro; a stroll; turn; also, act of changing direction; a wheeling around. e Act of one who turns over the earth, as in plowing, or a page of a book, as in reading.

2. The place of a turn; an angle or corner, as of a road.

3. Turnery (in sense 1); forming by use of a lathe; specif., act of shaving leather-hard pottery on a lathe with a thin steel tool before firing.

☞ Turning (in this sense) is prefixed to definitions in this Dictionary to indicate the field in which the word or sense is typically used.

4. Hence, figuratively, framing; fashioning; as, the neat turning of a phrase.

5. pl. The pieces, or chips, detached in the process of turnery from the material turned; also, the work itself.

6. A part, as of cloth, turned or folded under to prevent a raw edge; a fold.

7. In furniture, etc., the shape or workmanship of a turned member; as, a trumpet (shaped) turning; fine turning.

8. Mil. A maneuver by which an enemy or a position is turned.

9. Obstetrics. Act of bringing down the feet of the child to facilitate delivery; version.

turn'ing, adj. That turns (in various senses).

> Easily the gentle air > Wafts the turning season on. Housman.

turning arbor. Horol. An arbor on which pieces are mounted for turning in a lathe.

turning basin. An enlargement at the end of a canal or a narrow channel to permit boats to turn around.

turning bridge. See DRAWBRIDGE.

turning chisel. See WOODWORKING CHISEL; CHISEL, Illust.

turning engine. a An engine lathe. b A small engine for turning over a larger engine, as for inspection or adjustment.

turning gouge. See WOODWORKING CHISEL.

turning movement. Mil. A form of attack in which a command is separated into two parts, which operate out of mutual supporting distance, one of which is to hold the enemy while the other is to make a wide detour and strike him in the flank or rear. See ENVELOPMENT.

turning pair. Kinematics. See PAIR, n., 7.

turning pendant. Horol. A device to keep the bow of a watchcase from twisting off.

turning piece. A board template used instead of a built-up centering in turning a small arch.

turning plow. Agric. Mach. A moldboard plow. See PLOW, 1.

turning point. a The point or place of turning, in any sense; as, the turning point of a disease or of a man's career; the turning point of a graph. b Surv. In differential leveling, a point, the height of which is determined before the leveling instrument is moved, used to determine the height of the instrument after the resetting.

turning rest. Mach. A rest, as a T rest, for a turning tool.

turning saw. A compass saw.

turning spur. Railroads. A spur track with a curved branch returning to the main line, so arranged that a locomotive or train may turn about by leaving the main track and returning to it facing in the opposite direction.

turning square. Lumber Trade. A square piece of lumber suitable for turning into a roller.

turning traverse. Fort. A trench traverse not connected with the parapet and so allowing passing in front of as well as behind it.

turning value. Math. A maximum or minimum value; — said of a function.

tur'nip (tûr'nĭp), n. [Formerly turnep, appar. fr. turn, or F. tour a turn, turning lathe + ME. nepe a turnip, fr. AS. nǣp, fr. L. napus. See TURN, n. & v.; NAVEW.]

1. a The thick edible root of either of two biennial herbs (Brassica rapa and B. napobrassica); also, either of these plants. The first species has hairy leaves and greatly flattened roots, much broader than long. The second species includes forms more properly called Swedish turnip, or rutabaga. Turnips are eaten boiled and are also grown as food for stock. The young leaves are sometimes eaten as greens. b A dish of these roots boiled, seasoned, and often mashed or creamed; as, to have turnip for dinner.

2. With a qualifying word, any of several plants having turniplike roots, as Indian turnip, wild turnip, etc.

3. Slang. a A watch; esp., a large inferior watch. b Humorous. Fellow; chap; also, blockhead.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

turnip-bearing	turnip-headed	turnip-stemmed turnip-eating	turnip-leaved	turnip-tailed turnip-fed	turnip-pointed	turnip-yielding turnip-growing	turnip-shaped tur'nip, adj. Of or pertaining to turnips or things made of turnips; used for turnips.

tur'nip, v. t. a To grow turnips on. b To feed (stock) with turnips.

turnip aphid. a The cabbage aphid. b A greenish plant louse (Rhopalosiphum pseudobrassicae) destructive to turnips and related vegetables.

turnip bean. The yam bean.

turnip cabbage. a The kohlrabi. b The rutabaga.

turnip flea, or turnip flea beetle. = STRIPED FLEA BEETLE. See FLEA BEETLE.

turnip fly. a The turnip flea. b The adult of the cabbage maggot. c The turnip sawfly.

turnip foot. See BALL FOOT.

turnip grass. A grass (Panicum bulbosum) of the southwestern United States and adjacent Mexico, used for hay; — so called from the bulbous base of the stems.

turnip jack. A turnip flea.

turnip leaf miner. The maggot of a small fly (Scaptomyza flaveola) imported into America from Europe, and destructive to turnips and allied vegetables.

turnip louse. The turnip aphid.

turnip maggot. The larva of the turnip fly. See TURNIP FLY b. turnip nigger. See TURNIP SAWFLY. Colloq., Eng.

turnip parsnip. A kind of parsnip with a turnip-shaped root.

tur'nip–pate' (tûr'nĭp·pāt'), n. Head; noddle. Slang.

turnip radish, tur'nip–root'ed rad'ish. A race of radishes with somewhat spherical roots.

tur'nip–root'ed, adj. Having a round, flattened, turniplike root.

turnip–rooted cabbage. The rutabaga.

turnip–rooted celery. The celeriac.

turnip–rooted chervil. The edible, spindle-shaped tuber of a European biennial (Chaerophyllum bulbosum); also, the plant itself.

turnip–rooted parsley. A variety (Petroselinum hortense radicosum) of the common parsley, with a thickened parsniplike root; — often called Hamburg parsley.

turnip sawfly. A European sawfly (Athalia spinarum) which cuts slits on the margins of turnip leaves in which to lay its eggs. Its larvae are called black niggers, blackjacks, or turnip niggers.

turnip shell. Any of several large, thick, marine shells of Rapa and allied genera of the group Rachiglossa.

tur'nip–stemmed' cab'bage. The kohlrabi.

turnip tops. The fresh leaves of the turnip, used as greens.

tur'nip·weed' (tûr'nĭp·wēd'), n. The joe-pye weed Eupatorium purpureum.

tur'nip·wood' (-wŏŏd'), n. a The bastard rosewood. b The Australian rosewood Dysoxylum fraserianum. Its fresh bark smells like a rutabaga.

tur'nip·y (-ĭ), adj. Like a turnip, as in shape, taste, etc.

Tur'nix (tûr'nĭks), n. [NL., fr. L. coturnix a quail.] Zool. a A genus of small three-toed birds of southern Europe, Asia, and northern Africa, often called button quails, or hemipodes. They have many anatomical peculiarities and show relationship to the plovers and sand grouse. They are mostly buffy or brown, variously striped, barred, and vermiculated with black. They are chiefly solitary and live on grassy plains. Together with the genus Pedionomus it constitutes the family Turnicidae. Syn. Hemipodius. b [not cap.] Any bird of this genus; a button quail.

Turnix.

turn'key' (tûrn'kē'), n.; pl. TURNKEYS (-kēz'). 1. A person who has charge of the keys of a prison; a warder.

2. Dentistry. An obsolete instrument with a hinged claw, used for extracting teeth by turning with a twist like a key.

turn'–key' job. Any job or contract in which the contractor agrees to complete the work to a certain specified point, and to assume all risk.

Turnkey, 2.

turn meter. Aeronautics. An instrument similar to a turn indicator, but which shows quantitatively the rate of turn in terms of the angular velocity or the radius of curvature.

turn of a hair. The narrowest chance, or closest approach without contact.

turn'off' (tûrn'ôf'; 185), n. a A turning off (in various senses); also, a place where one turns off. b Completed product, as of a loom. — turn'off', adj.

turn of life. Med. Change of life.

turn of mind. Natural bent or inclination; as, a technical turn of mind.

turn of the bilge. See BILGE.

turn'out' (tûrn'out'), n. 1. Act of coming forth; Scot., a stroll; a walk.

2. A labor strike or striker. Colloq., Chiefly Eng.

3. A gathering of persons for a special purpose. Colloq.

4. Act of turning out or getting up (from bed); also, the appointed time for turning out, or, Mil., a signal for turning out. Colloq.

5. A place where something turns out, or branches off; as, on the highway just beyond the turnout to the white church; also, a widened space in a highway to enable vehicles to pass each other.

6. A clearing out, or emptying; also, a cleaning or overhauling in the process of which there is a clearing out or emptying; as, she gave the rooms a good turnout.

7. An equipage; a coach or carriage together with the horses, attendants, etc.; as, a stylish turnout; by extension, any equipment or manner of furnishing; as, the turnout of the book reflects credit on the publishers; also, clothes; costume, esp. for a particular occasion or function; getup; as, he quickly put his turnout on and attended to his customers; Mrs. Blank topped a fawn turnout with a black velvet hat. Colloq.

8. Net quantity of produce yielded; output; product.

9. A device or structure, as a joint of pipe, through which material, as water from an irrigation canal, is released.

10. Railroads. A track arrangement enabling locomotives and cars to pass from one track to another. It consists of a switch and frog with all connecting and operating parts.

turn'o'ver (-ō'vĕr), adj. Admitting of being turned over, made with a part turned over; as, a turnover collar, etc.

turn'o'ver, n. 1. Act or result of turning over; an upset; spill; as, a bad turnover in a carriage; an acrobat's turnover on the trapeze.

---

turnd. Turned. Ref. Sp. tur'nep (tûr'nĕp). Var. of TURNIP. Obs. exc. Dial.

Tur'ner, Nat. See NAT TURNER'S INSURRECTION. [l. turn'-fur'row, n. = MOLDBOARD, turn'gid'dy, n. Vertigo. Obs.

— turn'gid'di·ness, n. Obs.
turn'greys', n. [See TURN;

GRECE, GREE, a step.] A winding staircase. Obs. Scot. turn'ing·ness, n. See -NESS.

turn'ing-tree', n. Gallows. Obs. tur'nip·like', adj. See -LIKE. tur'nip-sick', adj. See -SICK.

tur'nip·wise', adv. See -WISE. turnor. † TURNER.
tournour. † TOURNEYER.

---

2. A turning from one side, place, direction, or the like, to its opposite; a shift; as, before the verdict was given, there had been a complete turnover of sentiment among the spectators.
3. A reorganization with a view to a shift in personnel; a shake-up; as, he found that his operating force needed a thorough turnover.
4. A part turned or folded over, as the leaf of a book, the flap of an envelope, a welt in a shoe, etc.
5. A semicircular pie or tart made by turning one half of a circular crust over the other, enclosing the fruit, etc.
6. An apprentice in any trade who is handed over from one master to another to complete his time. Eng.
7. = SLICE, n., 4 d.
8. A small shawl to fold across the shoulders. Local, Eng.
9. The amount of business done; by extension, business activity; as, gilt-edged securities were firm but the turnover small; esp., the amount of material on which some process has been performed; as, the turnover of a mine, machine, etc.; by extension, the rate at which material is processed.
10. Movement, as of goods, animals, or people, into, through, and out of, a place, considered all as a single process; as, a rapid turnover of patients in a well-organized hospital; the daily turnover of hogs in the stockyards; esp., Com., the receipt, placing on sale, and disposal, of a given stock of merchandise; also, the rate at which goods are sold. Cf. sense 11, below.
11. Econ. a A cycle of purchase, sale, and replacement, of a stock of goods; as, a turnover four times a year; also, the value of goods involved in the process; as, the turnover of British trade in 1929. b The number of persons hired within a given period to replace those leaving or dropped from a working force, or the ratio of this number to the number in the average force maintained; as, a turnover of 50 per cent a year; — called, specif., labor turnover.
12. Journalism. = RUNOVER, n.
13. Politics. In an election, a marked shift of votes from one party to another.

turnover door. A door that opens by turning over from a vertical position to a horizontal position above the opening, the top moving inward along a track and the bottom upward in guides.

turnover hinge. A hinge designed so that the door to which it is attached can be swung open flat against the wall.

turnover tax. A tax on gross receipts. Brit.

turn'-pen'ny (tûrn'pĕn'ĭ), n.; pl. -PENNIES (-IZ). One who is anxious to turn a penny, that is, to make a profit.

turn'pike' (-pīk'), n. [turn + pike a sharp point, or pike a weapon.] 1. A revolving frame with pikes, used as a cheval-de-frise; also, a turnstile. Obs. exc. Hist.
2. A toll bar or tollgate; also, a turnpike road.
3. A winding spiral stairway. Scot.
4. A small cake of meal scalded and allowed to ferment, sometimes used in breadmaking.

turn'pike', adj. Of, pertaining to, or having to do with, a turnpike or turnpikes; as, the turnpike law.

turn'pike' (tûrn'pīk'), v. t.; -PIKED' (-pīkt'); -PIK'ING (-pīk'ĭng). To form, as a road, in the manner of a turnpike road; to throw into a rounded form, as the path of a road.

turnpike geranium. = JERUSALEM OAK a.

turnpike man. A man who collects tolls at a turnpike.

turn'pik'er (tûrn'pīk'ĕr), n. One who travels the turnpike.

turnpike road. A road that has, or had formerly, turnpikes, or tollgates, established by law to collect from users tolls to defray the cost of building, repairing, etc.

turn'pin' (tûrn'pĭn'), n. A pin that turns; esp., Plumbing, a tapered hardwood pin or spike used to open the ends of lead pipe, etc.

turn'plate' (-plāt'), n. a A turntable. b Mining. = TURNSHEET.

turn'plow', turn'plough' (tûrn'plou'), n. Agric. Mach. A moldboard plow. See PLOW, 1.

turn'-round' (-round'), n. A turning around; also, a place or opportunity to turn around; in shipping, the process of entering port, discharging cargo and passengers, reloading, and leaving port.

turn'row' (-rō'), n. A strip of land at the side or end of a field, often uncropped, upon which a plow, etc., may be turned at the end of the furrow.

turn'screw' (-skrōō'), n. A device to turn a screw; a screw driver or wrench.

turn'-serv'er (-sûr'vĕr), n. One who looks out solely for his own interests. — turn'-serv'ing, n. & adj.

turn'sheet' (-shēt'), n. Mining. A heavy, flat, iron or steel plate used in place of rails at track intersections, and on which cars are turned from one line to another; — called also turnplate.

turn sign. Music. The sign of a turn, ∾ or ∽.

turn'skin' (tûrn'skĭn'), n. One able to change into an animal, as a werewolf; — rendering Latin versipellis.

turn'sole' (-sōl'), n. [F. tournesol, fr. Sp. tornasol, or fr. It. tornasole, fr. tornare to turn (fr. L. tornare) + sole the sun, fr. L. sol. See TURN; SOLAR. Cf. HELIOTROPE.] 1. a Any of several plants whose flowers or stems are supposed to follow the movement of the sun; specif.: (1) The heliotrope. (2) The sunflower. (3) The sun spurge. (4) A double-flowered form of Tulipa suaveolens of southern Russia. b A European annual herb (Chrozophora tinctoria), family Euphorbiaceae, the juice of which is turned blue by ammonia.
2. a A purple dye obtained from the turnsole (sense 1 b). b Litmus.

turn'spit' (-spĭt'), n. 1. One who turns a spit.
2. A small dog of a breed with long body and short crooked legs, formerly used to turn a spit.
3. = ROASTING JACK. Rare.

Turnstile, 1.

turn'stile' (-stīl'), n. 1. Orig., a post with four arms pivoted on the top, set in a passageway of any kind so that a person may pass only by turning the arms. Their original use was to prevent the passage of cattle, horses, etc.
2. A similar device, as at a doorway, to register the number of persons passing through, etc.
3. Mach. A device resembling in appearance a turnstile, (sense 1) by the hand turning of which the turret slide of a lathe is traversed.

turn stitch. = 3d PURL, 4.

turn'stone' (tûrn'stōn'), n. A migratory shore bird of the genus Arenaria, ploverlike in form and habits, but allied also to the sandpipers. The common turnstone (Arenaria interpres), widely distributed in the Old World and occurring in Alaska, has the upper parts variegated with black and chestnut, the breast black, and the abdomen white. It is represented in most parts of America by the very similar ruddy turnstone (A. i. morinella). The black turnstone (A. melanocephala), which has the head and breast brownish black with no chestnut, is chiefly confined to the North American Pacific coast.

Common Turnstone (Arenaria interpres).

turn'ta'ble (tûrn'tā'b'l), n.
1. A revolvable platform; as: a A structure that supports a platform or track and revolves in a horizontal plane for turning wheeled vehicles. b Any swiveling platform supporting a swing bridge, a pile driver, etc. c A revolvable device used on restaurant tables to hold a sugar bowl, saltcellar, etc. d A support having horizontal bearings to support a bar upon which a reel can turn when winding or unwinding rope.
2. Photog. A metal ring containing an inner rotatable ring which may be set up by means of a screw clamp. The outer ring is usually set into the camera base band. Projecting pins on the inside of the inner ring engage directly with the tripod legs, thus avoiding the use of a tripod head.

turn'tail' (-tāl'), n. a One who turns tail and runs away; hence, a deserter; coward. b A term coined to express the supposed literal meaning of the term culvertage on the erroneous assumption that it came through French from Latin culus rump, tail, and vertere to turn.

turn'-to' (tûrn'tōō'), n. a A fight. b A turning of one's attention and efforts to the business at hand.

turn'-tree' (-trē'), n. Mining. A windlass drum. Eng.

turn'-un'der (-ŭn'dĕr), n. A turning under, as of soil; also, a curving at or toward the under side; amount of such curvature.

turn'up' (-ŭp'), adj. Turned up or straight; made or fitted to be turned up; as, a turnup collar. Cf. TURNDOWN, 2.

turn'up', n. Chiefly Slang. a A disturbance; a fuss; esp., a fist fight; a set-to. b One who or that which comes into prominence or appears suddenly. c Something turned up, as a card, the hem of a garment, brim of a hat, etc. d A stroke of luck.

turnup bed. A folding bed.

turnup card. The card turned face up on the top of the stock. See STARTER, n., 5; 3d TRUMP, 1.

Tur'nus (tûr'nŭs), n. [L.] In Vergil's Aeneid, the chief of the Rutuli, an Italian tribe, and a rival of Aeneas for Lavinia.

Tur'nus but'ter-fly'. [See TURNUS.] The northern yellow form (Papilio glaucus turnus) of the tiger swallowtail.

‖Turn'ver-ein' (tōōrn'fĕr-īn'), n. [G., fr. turnen to exercise + verein a club, association. Cf. TURNHALLE.] An association of gymnasts and athletes. Cf. TURNHALLE.

turn'wrest' (tûrn'rĕst'), turn'wrist' (-rĭst'), adj. Agric. Mach. Of, pertaining to, or designating, a swivel plow.

Tu·ro'ni·an (tū-rō'nĭ-ăn), adj. [L. Turones, a people in Gaul, whence F. Tours, a town in France, Touraine, an old province of France.] Geol. Pertaining to or designating a subdivision of the European Upper Cretaceous. See GEOLOGY, Chart. — Tu·ro'ni·an, n.

turp (tûrp), v. t. To turpentine. Slang.

tur'pen·tine (tûr'pĕn·tīn), n. [OF. turbentine, tourbentine, terbentine (F. térébenthine), fr. L. terebinthinus of the turpentine tree, fr. terebinthus the turpentine tree, fr. Gr. terebinthos, terminthos, of uncert. origin. Cf. TEREBINTH.] 1. a A yellow to brown semifluid oleoresin, the exudation of the terebinth tree; — called specif. Chian turpentine. It is the turpentine of the older writers. b An oleoresin derived from various coniferous trees. American turpentine is the product of various pines, esp. of the Georgia pine and the loblolly P. taeda. Canada turpentine or Canada balsam is yielded by the balsam fir; Venice, Venetian, or larch, turpentine, by the European larch; Strasbourg turpentine, by the silver fir; French, or Bordeaux, turpentine, by the cluster pine; Russian turpentine, chiefly, by the Scotch pine; German, Austrian, Swedish, etc., turpentines, by the Scotch or various other European pines. These crude turpentines are obtained as exudates from incisions in the tree trunks. They are at first yellowish viscous liquids of characteristic odor and taste, but on exposure usually thicken and solidify.
2. Popularly: a The essential oil obtained from the various turpentines (sense 1) by distillation (usually with steam); — called preferably oil of turpentine and also spirits of turpentine, gum spirit, etc. The oil is a colorless or slightly yellowish, mobile, inflammable liquid, of characteristic odor and pungent biting taste; on exposure to air it solidifies by oxidation. It consists chiefly of a mixture of terpenes, and is widely used in the arts, as in paints, varnishes, etc., and also in medicine. b A similar, but usually inferior, oil obtained from pine and other resinous woods (esp. stumps, waste wood, and small branches) by distillation or destructive distillation, or by extraction with solvents; — called also oil of turpentine, or (preferably) wood turpentine, wood spirits of turpentine, etc.
3. Bot. a = TURPENTINE TREE, 2 b. b Turpentineweed.

tur'pen·tine, v.; -TINED (-tĭnd); -TIN'ING (-tĭn'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To saturate or rub with turpentine; to apply turpentine to.
2. To extract turpentine from (pine trees) by scarifying or wounding the surface, thereby causing the resin to exude.
—, Intransitive: To collect or make turpentine.

turpentine beetle. Any of several bark beetles of the genus Dendroctonus, esp. D. valens, the red turpentine beetle, and D. terebrans, the black turpentine beetle, whose larvae live under the bark of pine stumps or trees.

turpentine camphor. 1. Camphor prepared synthetically from oil of turpentine.
2. Pinene hydrochloride, which has a camphorlike odor and appearance.

turpentine gum. Gum in the form of white incrustations formed in and about the excavations of the tree in the collection of turpentine.

turpentine moth. Any of several small moths (family Tortricidae), whose larvae eat the tender shoots of pine and fir trees, causing an exudation of pitch or resin.

turpentine oil. = TURPENTINE, 2.

turpentine orchard. A stand of yellow pine that is bled for turpentine.

turpentine pine. The Georgia pine.

turpentine plant. Turpentineweed.

turpentine shrub. = PRAIRIE DOCK a.

Turpentine State. North Carolina; — so called because it produces much turpentine.

turpentine substitute. Specif., a petroleum distillate intermediate between gasoline and kerosene.

turpentine sunflower. = PRAIRIE DOCK a. turpentine tree. 1. Any tree yielding turpentine. See TURPENTINE, 1 b.

2. a The terebinth tree. b In Australia and New Zealand, any of several trees yielding a resinous fluid; as: (1) Syncarpia laurifolia. (2) Any of several Australian gum trees (Eucalyptus). (3) The tarata. (4) The tallowwood.

tur'pen·tine·weed' (tûr'pĕn·tĭn·wēd'), n. Any of several North American herbs with an actual or fancied turpentine odor; as: a Any of various species of Silphium, as the prairie dock, rosinweed, etc. b The blue-curls Trichostema lanceolatum.

tur'pen·tin'ic (-tĭn'ĭk), adj. Also tur'pen·tin'ous (tûr'pĕn·tĭn'ŭs), tur'pen·tin'y (-ĭ). Of or pertaining to turpentine; like turpentine.

tur'peth (tûr'pĕth; -pĭth), n. [ML. turpethum. See TURBITH.] 1. The root of a tropical Asiatic and Australian vine (Ipomoea turpethum), formerly used in medicine as a purgative; — called also vegetable turpeth and Indian jalap. Also, the plant.
2. Also turpeth mineral. A basic mercuric sulphate, $HgSO_4.2HgO$, obtained as a heavy yellow powder by the action of hot water on the normal sulphate. It is sometimes used in medicine as a purgative.

tur'peth·in (-ĭn), n. [turpeth + -in.] Chem. A glucoside, $C_{34}H_{56}O_{16}$, obtained as a brownish-yellow amorphous powder from the dried sap or root of the turpeth (Ipomoea turpethum).

tur'pid (tûr'pĭd), adj. [Irreg. fr. L. turpis.] Low; vile; also, cowardly. — tur'pid·ly, adv. Both Rare.

tur'pi·fy (tûr'pĭ·fī), v. t. [L. turpis base + E. -fy; cf. L. turpificatus made foul.] To besmirch. Obs.

Tur'pin, Archbishop (tûr'pĭn). A celebrated knight of the Charlemagne romances, who died by the side of Roland. He bears little or no resemblance to the historical Archbishop Turpin.

‖tur'pis cau'sa (tûr'pĭs kô'zȧ). [L.] Law. A base or immoral cause or consideration, such a one not being sufficient to support a contract.

‖tur'pis con·trac'tus (kŏn·trăk'tŭs). [L.] Law. An immoral contract.

tur'pi·tude (tûr'pĭ·tūd), n. [F., fr. L. turpitudo, fr. turpis foul, base. See TROPE.] Inherent baseness or vileness of principle, words, or actions; depravity.

turps (tûrps), n. Oil, or spirits, of turpentine. See TURPENTINE, 2. Colloq.

tur'quoise (tûr'koiz; tûr'kwoiz; 277), n.; pl. TURQUOISES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119), sometimes TURQUOISE. Formerly also tur·cois', tur·kois'. [F. turquoise, prop. fem. of OF. turcois, turquois, turqueis, Turkish; — because first brought from or through Turkey. See TURKEY.] 1. Mineral. A blue, bluish-green, or greenish-gray, hydrous basic aluminum phosphate, $Al_2(OH)_3PO_4.H_2O$, containing a little copper. It usually is in reniform masses with a botryoid surface. H., 6. Sp. gr., 2.60–2.83. It takes a high polish, and when a beautiful sky blue is valued as a gem. The most famous mines are in Persia. It is also found elsewhere, as in Arizona and New Mexico. It sometimes changes to a green tint.
2. The color turquoise blue.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:
turquoise-blue turquoise-encrusted turquoise-studded turquoise-colored turquoise-hued turquoise-tinted tur'quoise, adj. 1. Of turquoise; set, or set off with, turquoises; turquoise-colored.

2. Of the color turquoise blue.

tur'quoise·ber'ry (-bĕr'ĭ), n.; pl. -BERRIES (-ĭz). A Tasmanian herb (Drymophila cyanocarpa), family Liliaceae, with white flowers and blue fruits.

turquoise blue. The color of choice mineral turquoise, greenish green-blue in hue, of medium saturation and high brilliance; — called also turquoise. Cf. TURQUOISE GREEN, BLUE TURQUOISE, COLOR.

turquoise green. A color, bluish-green in hue, of medium saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

turr (tûr), v. i. & t. [Origin unknown.] To butt. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

turr (tûr), n. [Burmese tūriya, fr. Pali turiya, fr. Skr. tūrya a musical instrument.] Music. A Burmese three-stringed viol.

turr (tōōr). Dial. var. of TURF.

tur'rel, tur'rell (tûr'ĕl), n. A boring tool used by coopers. Obs.

tur'ret (tûr'ĕt; -ĭt; 245), n. [ME. turet, toret, touret, fr. OF. torete, tourete, dim. of tur, tor, tour, tower. See TOWER.] 1. A little tower, often a merely ornamental structure at one of the angles of a larger structure.
2. A small metal ring, as a terret. Obs.
3. A holder for several tools; specif., Mach., a pivoted toolholder in a machine tool, by which each of various tools can be presented in quick succession to the work; — called also turrethead. See 2d LATHE, n., 1.
4. Her. a A small tower on top of a larger. b = TURRET.
5. Mil. Antiq. A movable tall building, often of a square form, sometimes having as many as twenty stories, usually moved on wheels, and carrying soldiers, engines, rams, ladders, casting bridges, and other necessaries for breaching or scaling a wall or firing over it into a besieged place.

Turret ("Tourelle de Marat") of Marat's house in Paris.

6. Nav. & Mil. A tower, or tower-like structure, heavily armored and usually revolving, within which heavy guns are mounted. Turrets are used on vessels of war and, less commonly, in land fortifications. On war vessels turrets are always of the revolving type, usually containing two or three guns of not less than 6 or, in the United States Navy, 8 inches caliber. The first practical example of the type was the turret of the U. S. S. Monitor, designed by John Ericsson in 1862.
A turret is essentially a circular armored structure which protects the breech portion of the guns and revolves with them, and in which elliptical ports are cut . . . ; while the armor of a barbette is fixed, the whole of the gun when in its firing position being above it and unprotected, the barbette armor protecting the loading and other machinery only. Encyc. Brit.
7. Railroads. The elevated central portion of the roof of a passenger car. Its sides are pierced for light and air.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
turret-shaped, turret-topped, turret-turning, adj.

turn'poke', n. A large fighting cock. Obs. turns, n. = TURN, n., 2 a. turn'sick', adj. Affected with vertigo. Obs. [= GID.] turn'-sick', -sick'ness, n. Veter.
turn'sol' (tûrn'sŏl'). Var. of TURNSOLE. turn'tip'pet, n. A turncoat. Obs. turn'way', n. Also turn'tale'. An apostrophe. Obs. tur'quen. Var. of 2d TURKEN. Obs. tur·quet', n. [Cf. F. turquet, a kind of little dog, prop., a little Turk.] A player in Turkish attire. Obs. tur'quois. Var. of TURQUOISE. tur'quois·like', adj. See -LIKE.

tur'ret (tûr'ĕt; -ĭt; 119; 245), v. t.; TUR'RET-ED; TUR'RET-ING. To equip or ornament with a turret or turrets.

Her head turreted with violet hair. Symons.

turret angle-rack tool. Mach. A tool for turning short tapers in a turret lathe.

turret captain. Nav. In the United States Navy, a first-class petty officer appointed to the command of a turret crew, ranking next to the officer while in a turret.

turret clock. A clock for a turret or tower, having one or more dials separate from the movement.

turret cutter. Coal Mining. A coal cutter adjustable to various heights of coal cutting and mounted on a pivoted frame; — called also overcutter and top-cutter.

turret deck. A narrow superstructure running from stem to stern on the upper deck of a steam cargo vessel having a rounded gunwale and sides curved inward convexly.

turret drier. Leather Mfg. A wooden building of several, usually five, stories, with ventilating and heating devices, used for drying leather.

turret drill. Mach. A single-spindle or gang drill in which the spindle supports a turretlike head carrying a number of tools, and so designed that each tool may in turn be brought to a position suitable for performing its function.

tur'ret-ed, adj. 1. Furnished with a turret or turrets; specif.: a Zool. Designating shells in which the whorls form a high conical spiral. b Her. Towered.

2. Shaped like a turret.

turret gun. A gun of large caliber designed to be mounted in a revolving turret.

tur'ret-head' (tûr'ĕt-hĕd'; tûr'ĭt-), n. A TURRET. See TURRET, n., 3. turret lathe. See 2d LATHE, 1.

turret ship. A war vessel, on which heavy guns are mounted within one or more armored revolvable turrets.

turret slide tool. Mach. A vertically or horizontally adjustable slide that supports one or more cutting tools for use with a turret lathe.

Turreted Shell (Trophon clathratus gunneri). Nat. size.

turret spider. Any wolf spider, genus Lycosa, that builds a tube of twigs and mud to lengthen its burrow.

turret steamer. A whaleback steamer with hatch coamings extending almost continuously fore and aft.

turret taper tool. Mach. A tool held in the turret of a turret lathe and used for turning tapers.

tur'ri-cal (tûr'ĭ-kăl), adj. Of, pertaining to, or resembling, a turret, or tower.

tur·ric'u·la (tŭ-rĭk'ū-lȧ), n.; pl. -LAE (-lē). [L., a little tower.] Art. Any tower-shaped utensil, as a candlestick, esp. in ornamental design.

tur·ric'u·lar (-lĕr), adj. Turret-shaped.

tur·ric'u·late (-lăt), -lat'ed (-lā'tĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. [L. turricula little tower, turret.] a Having, or formed like, a small turret or turrets. b Zool. Of shells, turreted.

tur·rif'er·ous (tŭ-rĭf'ĕr-ŭs), adj. [L. turris tower + -ferous.] Bearing towers.

tur'ri-form (tûr'ĭ-fôrm), adj. [L. turris tower + -form.] Tower-shaped. Rare.

tur·rig'er·ous (tŭ-rĭj'ĕr-ŭs), adj. [L. turriger. See -GEROUS.] Turriferous. Rare.

Tur·ril'e·pas (tŭ-rĭl'ē-păs), n. [NL., fr. L. turris tower + Gr. lepas limpet.] Paleontol. A genus of peculiar barnaclelike crustaceans of the early and middle Paleozoic. The shell is high, with four to six rows of overlapping plates.

tur'ri-lite (tûr'ĭ-līt), n. [NL. Turrilites, fr. L. turris tower + Gr. lithos stone.] Paleontol. Any of a genus (Tur'ri-li'tes (tûr'ĭ-lī'tēz) of Cretaceous ammonoid cephalopods having a spiral, sinistral, turreted shell with the later whorls more or less separate. By some the genus is regarded as the type of a family, Tur'ri-lit'i-dae (-lĭt'ĭ-dē).

Turrilite (Turrilites catenatus).

tur'ri-lit'i-cone (tûr'ĭ-lĭt'ĭ-kōn), n. [See TURRILITE; CONE.] Paleontol. Any ammonite asymmetrically coiled like a gastropod with a high spire.

Tur'ri-tel'la (tûr'ĭ-tĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., fr. L. turris tower.] a Zool. A genus of marine gastropods having an elongated turreted shell, composed of many whorls with a rounded aperture, and a horny multispiral operculum. It is the type of a family, Tur'ri-tel'li-dae (-ĭ-dē), of the suborder Taenioglossa. b [not cap.] Any shell of this genus or family. — tur'ri-tel'lid (-ĭd), n. & adj. — tur'ri-tel'loid (-oid), adj.

Turritella (T. imbricata). Nat. size.

turse (tûrs), n. [Var. of TRUSS.] A bundle; load. Scot. — v. t. & i. To truss; to pack up or off; to be off; — also used reflexively. Obs. exc. Scot.

Tur'sha (tûr'shȧ), n., pl. [Etruscan. Cf. TOWER.] A prehistoric people of the Mediterranean, perhaps ancestors of the historic Tyrrhenians.

tur'si·o (tûr'sĭ-ō), n. [NL., fr. L. tursio dolphin, porpoise.] The bottle-nosed dolphin of the North Atlantic, the best-known species of a genus, Tur'si·ops (-ŏps).

tur'tle (tûr't'l), n. [ME., fr. AS. turtle, masc. turtla, fr. L. turtur, of imitative origin.] A turtledove. Archaic.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:
turtle-billing, adj., turtle-haunted, turtle-winged.

tur'tle, v. i. To make love like a turtledove.

tur'tle (tûr't'l), n.; pl. TURTLES (-t'lz), sometimes TURTLE. See PLURAL, Note. [Corrupt. by sailors (after turtle dove) of F. tortue. See TORTOISE.] 1. a Orig., any marine reptile of the order Chelonia; a sea turtle; now, any reptile of that group; a tortoise, in the broadest sense of that word. Besides the bony shell (composed of an upper convex shield, or carapace, and a lower flattened shield, or plastron) which encloses the trunk, and into which in many species the head, limbs, and tail, may be withdrawn, and the toothless horny beak, the Chelonia have many anatomical peculiarities and form a group which was already differentiated in the Triassic. It now occurs in most parts of the world except the colder regions, and comprises land, fresh-water, and marine, forms. All are oviparous, and most of them bury their eggs in beaches and sandbanks, the young digging their way out when they hatch. Turtles develop slowly, and some live to a great age. Some are herbivorous, but the majority are carnivorous. The flesh of many, as the green turtle and diamond-back terrapins, is esteemed as food. Some writers have tried to restrict the term turtle to the aquatic Chelonia (or even to the marine forms only, as originally), calling the others tortoise (or, sometimes, the fresh-water forms terrapin). The restriction is not warranted by modern usage, though sea turtles are rarely called tortoise, and land turtles oftener tortoise than turtle. Cf. TERRAPIN. b The flesh of certain turtles, as the terrapin, the green turtle, etc., prepared, cooked, and served as a dish.

Spotted Turtle (Clemmys guttata).

2. The ancient Greek stater of Aegina, having a turtle for its type.

3. The color cocoa.

4. Printing. A curved box, one or more newspaper columns in width, into which specially cast linotype matter or a stereotype plate may be locked for attachment to a cylinder on a rotary press, as for addition of late news matter to a previously stereotyped page.

5. Railroads. A tie plate. U. S. & Canada.

— to turn turtle. See turn turtle, under TURN.

tur'tle (tûr't'l), v. i.; TUR'TLED (-t'ld); TUR'TLING (-tlĭng). To catch turtles, esp. as an occupation.

tur'tle-back' (-băk'), n. 1. A part rounded similarly to the back of a turtle, or something having such a back.

2. A helmet shell (Cassis tuberosa), Jamaica.

3. A raised obstruction, sometimes illuminated, placed in the pavement at a street intersection for the guidance of traffic.

4. Archaeol. A leaf-shaped artifact of stone chipped flat on one side and rounded on the other, assumed to be a blank form from which an implement might be chipped.

5. Furniture. An oval boss.

6. Shipbuilding. A convex deck at the bow or stern, rarely extending from bow to stern, of a vessel, so made to shed the seas quickly; — called also turtle deck.

tur'tle-back', adj. Also tur'tle-backed'. Having a back shaped like that of a turtle.

turtleback scale. The common brown scale of the orange. See ORANGE SCALE, Illust.

turtle-back shooting. Archery. Shooting with high trajectory to hit a target laid flat on the ground.

tur'tle-bloom' (tûr't'l-blōōm'), n. The turtlehead Chelone glabra.

turtle cowrie. A large handsome cowrie (Cypraea testudinaria) in coloration resembling the shell of a tortoise.

turtle crawl. a The trail of a tortoise between its nest and the water. b A pen in which turtles are kept.

turtle deck. Shipbuilding. = TURTLEBACK, 6.

tur'tle-dom (tûr't'l-dŭm), n. [See -dom.] The world of turtles; esp., Colloq., the community of those who feast upon turtles; — applied to local officialdom. Eng.

tur'tle-dove' (-dŭv'; 66), n. [See 1st TURTLE.] 1. Any Old World wild dove of Streptopelia (syn. Turtur) or other allied genus, esp. the common European species (S. turtur), noted for its plaintive cooing and affectionate disposition. It is mostly cinnamon brown with a white-bordered back patch on each side of the neck and white-tipped outer tail feathers. The turtledove of Scripture is believed to be S. senegalensis, or possibly the ringdove (S. risoria).

Turtledove (Streptopelia turtur).

2. a Local, U. S. The mourning dove. b A small Australian dove (Stictopeleia cuneata) of terrestrial habits.

3. Fig., a person who is demonstratively affectionate.

4. A nearly neutral gray (slightly reddish), of medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

tur'tle-dove', v. i.; -DOVED' (-dŭvd'); -DOV'ING (-dŭv'ĭng). To be affectionately demonstrative, like turtledoves.

tur'tle-foot'ed, adj. Slow-footed.

turtle grass. a The eelgrass Zostera marina. b A submerged marine plant (Thalassia testudinum), family Hydrocharitaceae, of the coasts of Florida and the West Indies, with elongated linear leaves and dioecious flowers.

turtle green. A color, yellowish yellow-green in hue, of low saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

tur'tle-head' (tûr't'l-hĕd'), n. Any American herb of the genus Chelone, esp. C. glabra; — called also snakehead, and balmony.

tur'tle-ize (-īz), v. t. To make gentle, like a turtledove.

turtle neck. The neck of a turtle; something resembling or suggesting the neck of a turtle; as, a sweater with a turtle neck. — tur'tle-neck', adj.

turtle peg. A detachable sharp steel spearhead attached to a cord, used in harpooning sea turtles. — turtle pegger. — turtle pegging.

turtle plate. = TURTLE, n., 4.

tur'tler (tûr'tlĕr), n. 1. One who hunts turtles or their eggs.

2. One who deals in turtles.

turtle shell. a The shell of a turtle. b Tortoise shell. c Turtle cowrie.

turtle stone. A calcareous concretion divided in the interior by cracks partly or wholly filled by crystallized minerals; a septarium; — so called from its resemblance when polished to the back of a turtle.

tur'tlet (tûr'tlĕt; -tlĭt; 119), n. A young or small-sized turtle. Rare.

tur'tling (-tlĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TURTLE.

tur·to'sa (tûr-tō'sȧ), n. The African oak.

tu·ru'ri (tōō-rōō'rē), n. [Of Tupian origin; cf. Tupi tururi, name of several trees from which fiber for textiles is obtained.] A woody vine (Paullinia grandiflora) of the Andes; also, its tough bast fiber, used for rope-making.

tur'us (thōōr'ŭs), n. [Ir.] A journey; tour; pilgrimage. Ir.

Tur'vey-drop (tûr'vĭ-drŏp), n. A selfish old dandy in Dickens's Bleak House. He lived on the earnings of his son, a dancing master, who revered him as a model of deportment. — Tur'vey-drop'dom (-drŏp'dŭm), n. — Tur'vey-drop'i-an (-drŏp'ĭ-ăn), adj.

tur'war (tûr'wȧr), n. [Hind. tarvar, the shrub, fr. Skr taru a tree.] A tanbark yielded by the East Indian shrub Cassia auriculata.

tur·wär' (tûr-wär'). Var. of TULWAR.

Tu·sa'yan (tōō-sä'yăn), adj. Designating or pertaining to the Hopi Indians, their country, or their pueblos. Cf. HOPI.

Tus'ca·loo'sa se'ries (tŭs'kȧ-lōō'sȧ). [From Tuscaloosa Co., Ala., fr. Choctaw Tascalusa, name of a chief, lit., black warrior; cf. Black Warrior, river in Ala.] Geol. The Comanchean (Lower Cretaceous) system of Alabama and adjacent States.

Tus'can (tŭs'kăn), adj. [L. Tuscanus, fr. Tuscus a Tuscan, Etruscan. See TOWER.] 1. a Rare. Etruscan. b Of or pertaining to Tuscany in Italy.

2. Arch. Of, pertaining to, or designating, one of the five classical orders. It is of Roman origin and is rudely plain in style. See ORDER, n., 18 b & Illust.

3. Hatmaking. Of or pertaining to certain plaits made from punta, or to the color of punta. Cf. TUSCAN, n., 2.

Tus'can, n. 1. a A native or inhabitant of Tuscany. b The standard dialect of Italian. See ITALIAN, n., 2; INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table.

2. Hatmaking. a The color of punta. b Any of various plaits, as leghorn, made from punta.

Tuscan atrium. Rom. Antiq. An atrium whose ceiling is supported by four horizontal beams crossing at right angles, and without columns.

Tuscan brown. A color, reddish red-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Tus'can·ism (tŭs'kăn-ĭz'm), n. Literary style of, or considered like that of, the Italians who made Tuscan their standard; a Tuscan characteristic or idiom.

Tus'can·ize (-īz), v. t. & i. To conform to Tuscan.

Tuscan red. 1. A color, yellowish-red in hue, of medium saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

2. A purplish-red pigment, one of the iron reds, made by treating ferric oxide with an alizarin lake.

Tuscan school. The style or school of painting in Tuscany from Giotto to Michelangelo, esp. in: (1) the Florentine school, noted for composition, drawing, and intellectual qualities, and represented by Masaccio, the Lippis, Botticelli, Ghirlandaio, Verrocchio, Fra Bartolommeo, and Andrea del Sarto; and (2) the Sienese school, noted for tenderness and refinement, and represented by Duccio di Buoninsegna, Simone Martini, and the Lorenzetti.

Tus'ca·ny (tŭs'kȧ-nĭ), n. 1. A region of west central Italy. See in Gaz.

2. The color colcothar.

Tus'ca·ro'ra (tŭs'kȧ-rō'rȧ), n.; pl. -RORA, -RORAS (-rȧz). One of a tribe of Iroquoian Indians formerly living on the Neuse and Tar rivers in North Carolina. It was conquered by the English in 1713, and the remnant joined the Five Nations, forming the Six Nations. It is now settled about equally in New York and Ontario. See IROQUOIS Tuscarora rice. = WILD RICE a.

‖Tusch (tōōsh), n. [G.] Music. a A flourish of trumpets and drums. b A flourish by the brass-wind instruments of an orchestra in token of applause.

tusch'e (tōōsh'ĕ), n. Also tushe, touche, etc. [G. tusche, fr. F. toucher to touch.] A lithographic drawing or painting material of the same nature as lithographic ink. It is also used as a resistant in the etching process. One variety is made by melting together yellow wax, 2 parts; mutton tallow, 2; Marseilles soap, 6; shellac, 3; lampblack, 1–2.

Tus'cu·lan (tŭs'kū-lăn), adj. [L. Tusculanus.] Of or pertaining to the ancient Tusculum, about fifteen miles southeast of Rome on a mountain. It had numerous villas of Romans (Pompey, Brutus, Cicero, etc.).

Tusculan Disputations. A collection of philosophical discussions by Cicero, in dialogue form, in five books; — so called because staged at his Tusculan villa.

tush (tŭsh), n. [ME. tusch, fr. AS. tusc; akin to OFris. tusk, tusch, and to Goth. tunthus tooth. See TOOTH; cf. TUSK.] A long, pointed tooth; a tusk; specif.: a A horse's canine. b A small or dwarfed tusk in certain Indian elephants.

tush (tŭsh), interj. An exclamation expressing impatient reprobation or contempt; as, tush, tush! do not speak of it. — n. The sound made by this exclamation; disdain or contempt thus expressed.

tush, v. i.; TUSHED (tŭsht); TUSH'ING. To express contempt, disdain, or rebuke, by exclaiming "Tush!"

Tush (tōōsh), Tush'in (tōōsh'ĭn), n. sing. & pl. One of a tribe of Georgians north of Tiflis.

tushed (tŭsht), adj. [From TUSH, n.] Having tushes; tusked.

Tush'e·paw (tōōsh'ĕ-pô), n. An Indian of a Shahaptian tribe.

tush'er (tŭsh'ẽr), n. One who indulges often in the interjection "Tush." Rare.

tush'er·y (-ĭ), n. Practice of using frequently the interjection "Tush"; also, the class of people or of literature using this interjection to give an archaic flavor to language or setting.

Tu'si·ta'la (tōō'sē-tä'lä), n. [Samoan.] Teller of tales; — an epithet applied by his Samoan friends to Robert Louis Stevenson.

tusk (tŭsk), n. [ME. tusk, tuz, fr. AS. tuz, var. of tusc. See TUSH tooth.] 1. In many animals, as the elephant, walrus, narwhal, wild boar, etc., an elongated greatly enlarged tooth which projects when the mouth is closed and serves to dig up food, as a weapon, etc. Most tusks are canine teeth; those of elephants are incisors.

2. Hence, any long protruding tooth.

3. Carp. A kind of small tenon. See TUSK TENON.

Syn. — See TOOTH.

tusk, v.; TUSKED (tŭskt); TUSK'ING. Transitive: 1. To dig or turn up with the tusk; also, to gash or gore in the manner of an elephant with the tusk.

2. To equip or adorn with or as with tusks.

3 To cut up (a barbel).

—, Intransitive: 1. To thrust or dig up the ground with the tusk or tusks.

2. To bare or gnash the teeth. Obs.

tusk, v. t. [Cf. ON. tuskast to wrangle, Nor. dial. tuska to make a noise, to tumble about.] Hunting. To beat (woods). Obs.

tusk, n. [Cf. TUSSOCK.] A tuft. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

tusk, n. [See TORSK.] = CUSK a. Scot.

tus'kar (tŭs'kẽr), n. [ON. torfskeri a turf cutter.] A peat spade. Scot.

tusked (tŭskt), adj. 1. Furnished with or having tusks.

2. Her. Having teeth or tusks of a specified tincture.

---

tur'ret-like', adj. See -LIKE.
tur'ri-bant † TURBAN. tur'ri-cle (tûr'ĭ-k'l), n. [L. turricula.] = TURRET. Rare.
turrion. † TORRION. turrited. † TURRETED. turruf. Var. of TARAF. turs. † TRUSS.
Tur·se'noi (tĕr-sē'noi), n. pl. See ETRUSCAN, n., 1. tur'sion, n. Also tur'son. The tursio. Obs. [Var. of TARTAN.] Tur'tan (tûr'tăn), Assyr. Antiq. tur'tl. Turtle. Ref. Sp. tur'tle-like', adj. See -LIKE. tur'tle-mouthed' (tûr't'l-mouthd'; -mouth'), adj. See -MOUTHED. tur'tur, n. [From OF. t(o)urtre, and L. turtur.] A turtledove; also, the cooing sound made by one. Obs. turuf. Var. of TARAF.
turves. Pl. of TURF.
tus'ar (tŭs'ẽr). Var. of TUSSAH.
Tus'can-col'ored, adj. See -COLORED.
Tus'can-like', adj. & adv. See -LIKE. tushe. Erron. for TUSCHE. tusht. Tushed. Ref. Sp.

Tus·ke'gee (tŭs·kē'gē), n. An Indian of a small Muskhogean tribe formerly living in eastern Alabama. They became confederated with the Creeks and lost their tribal identity. See CREEK.

tusk'er (tŭs'kĕr), n. An elephant, or a wild boar, having large tusks.

tusk shell. A toothshell.

tusk tenon. Carp. A tenon strengthened by one or more smaller tenons (tusks) underneath forming a steplike outline.

Tusk Tenon.

tusk'y (tŭs'kĭ), adj.; TUSK'I·ER (-kĭ·ĕr); TUSK'I·EST. Having a tusk or tusks.

tus'sah (tŭs'ä), tus'seh (-ā), n. Also tus'ser (tŭs'ĕr), tus'sore (-ōr). [Hind. tasar, fr. Skr. tasara, trasara, a shuttle.] a An Oriental silkworm (Antheraea paphia, syn. mylitta) of the family Saturniidae, producing a brownish silk (see TUSSAH SILK); also, the silk itself. b A wild and cultivated silkworm (A. pernyi) of China producing a similar silk (see PONGEE); also, the silk itself.

Tussah Moth (Antheraea paphia, syn. mylitta). (¼) tussah, or tusseh, silk. The strong, coarse fiber produced by various undomesticated Asiatic silkworms, esp. the tussah silkworms Antheraea paphia, syn. mylitta, and A. pernyi; also, cloth which is woven from it. It takes dye poorly and is, therefore, usually woven in its natural dark fawn color. See PONGEE, 1 a; SHANTUNG.

tus'sal (tŭs'ăl), adj. [L. tussis cough.] Med. Pertaining to, or manifested by, cough.

tus·sic'u·lar (tŭ·sĭk'ū·lĕr), adj. [LL. tussicularis, fr. tussicula, dim. of tussis a cough.] Of or pert. to a slight cough.

Tus'si·la'go (tŭs'ĭ·lā'gō), n. [L., coltsfoot.] Bot. A Eurasian genus of herbs (family Carduaceae) having as the only known species T. farfara, the coltsfoot.

tus'sis (tŭs'ĭs), n. [L.] Med. A cough.

tus'sive (-ĭv), adj. Med. Pert. to, or caused by, a cough.

tus'sle (tŭs''l), v. i.; TUS'SLED (-'ld); TUS'SLING (-lĭng). [Freq. of ME. tusen, tousen (in comp.). See TOUSE, TOUSLE.] To struggle, as in sport; to scuffle; wrestle. — v. t. To struggle or scuffle with; also, Dial., to convey or accomplish with a struggle.

tus'sle, n. A physical contest or struggle; scuffle; figuratively, a rough argument or controversy.

tus'sock (tŭs'ŭk), n. [Cf. Sw. dial. tuss a wisp or handful of hay.] 1. A tuft, as of grass, twigs, hair, or the like; esp., a dense tuft or bunch of grass or sedge.
2. Tussock grass.
3. Short for TUSSOCK MOTH, TUSSOCK SEDGE.

tus'socked (-ŭkt), adj. Having, or characterized by the presence of, tussocks; also, covered with tussock grass.

tus'sock·er (-ŭk·ĕr), n. A tramp; sundowner. N. Z.

tussock grass. a A tall, stout, cespitose, strong grass (Poa flabellata), valuable for fodder, introduced into Scotland from the Falkland Islands. b The Australian grass Poa caespitosa. c The smut grass. d The great bulrush. e Any sedge (Carex) which forms dense tufts in wet meadows or boglands, esp. the tussock sedge (Carex stricta).

tussock moth. Any of numerous dull-colored moths of the family Lymantriidae whose larvae (tussock caterpillars) are covered with long tufts or brushes of hair. The larvae, esp. those of the white-marked tussock moth (Hemerocampa leucostigma), eat the leaves of various shade and fruit trees and often become serious pests. In most of the common species the females are wing less.

Tussock Moth (Hemerocampa leucostigma). a Male; b Female; c Larva. Nat. size.

tussock sedge. A common North American sedge (Carex stricta), growing in dense, tufted clumps. Its wiry stems and leaves are much used in making matting.

tus'sock·y (tŭs'ŭk·ĭ), adj. Having the form of tussocks; full of, or covered with, tussocks or tufts.

tus'sore (tŭs'ōr), n. a Var. of TUSSAH. b The color seashell pink.

tut (tŭt), n. [Origin uncert.; cf. F. tout all, L. totus, and E. TOTE the whole.] Piece; — in the phrases upon tut, and by the tut or by tut (that is, by tutwork). Dial. Eng.

tut (tŭt; t' -suction click), interj. An exclamation expressing: a Impatience at something trivial. b Mild rebuke. — n. An utterance of "Tut!"

tut, v. i.; TUT'TED; TUT'TING. To express disdain, impatience, rebuke, or the like, by exclaiming "Tut!"

tut (tŭt; tōōt), n. [Origin unknown.] A game of ball, as rounders; also, a base in rounders.

tut, n. Music. In lute playing, the staccato produced by damping a vibrating string with the finger.

tut (tŭt), n. A hassock. Dial. Eng.

tut (tōōt). Var. of TOOT, peep. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

tu·ta'ni·a (tū·tā'nĭ·ä), n. [From tutenag, and after Wm. Tutin (fl. 1770), Birmingham manufacturer + Britannia metal.] A silver-white alloy of tin with certain other metals, as antimony and copper, used for tableware. Varieties are known as English, German, Spanish, etc., tutania, differing much in composition.

tut'ball (tŭt'bôl'; tōōt'-), n. [See TUT game.] Stoolball; rounders. Local, Eng.

tute (tūt), v. t. & i. To tutor. Jocose.

tu·tee' (tū·tē'), n. [tutor + -ee.] One who is being tutored. College Slang, U. S.

tu·te'la (tū·tē'lä), n., pl. -LAE (-lē). [L. See TUTELAGE.]
1. Roman & Civil Law. The right or power of a tutor over his ward, or his relation to the ward or pupil. The kinds of tutela correspond to those of the tutor (which see).
2. [cap.] See GENIUS, 1.

tu'te·lage (tū'tē·lĭj), n. [L. tutela protection. See TUITION.] 1. Act of guarding or protecting; guardianship; protection; as, the king's right of seignory and tutelage.
2. State of being under a guardian or tutor; also, the right or power of a tutor over his pupil; tutela; the care or protection enjoyed.
3. Teaching; instruction.
Syn. — Teaching, tutorship, tutorage, oversight.

tu'te·lar (tū'tē·lĕr), adj. [LL. tutelaris. See TUTELARY.] Tutelary.

tu'te·lar'y (-lĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -lĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. tutelarius See TUTELAGE.] 1. Having the guardianship or charge of protecting a person or a thing; guardian; protecting; as, tutelary goddesses.
2. Of or pertaining to a guardian, or to the protection afforded by a guardian; as, tutelary authority.

tu'te·lar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). A tutelary deity.

Tu·te'lo (tōō·tā'lō), n.; pl. -LOS (-lōz). An Indian of an extinct Siouan tribe dwelling successively upon the Roanoke and Dan rivers in Virginia and North Carolina, in central Pennsylvania, and finally in New York and Canada with the Cayugas.

tu'te·nag (tū'tē·năg), n. Also tu'te·nague. [Pg. tutenaga, tutanaga (whence F. toutenague), fr. Tamil tuttanāgam impure zinc, fr. Skr. tuttha blue vitriol + nāga lead, tin. See TUTTY.] Com. Crude zinc; also, an alloy rich in zinc, as paktong or bidri.

tu'tin (tōō'tĭn; -t'n), n. [2d tutu + -in.] Chem. A poisonous crystalline glucoside, $C_{11}H_{20}O_7$, obtained from the tutu and other species of Coriaria.

Tu'ti·vil'lus (tū'tĭ·vĭl'ŭs), n. In medieval legend, a demon who collected the fragments of words which the priests skipped over or mutilated in the service, and bore them to hell.

tut'ly (tŭt'lĭ), adv. In capricious, irritable manner; captiously. Dial., U. S.

tut'man (tŭt'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). [From TUT a piece.] A tutworker. Local, Eng.

tut money. Pay for tutwork, overtime, etc. Dial. Eng.

tut'-mouthed' (tŭt'moutĥd'; -moutht'), adj. Having a projecting jaw. Obs. exc. Scot.

‖tu'toie'ment' (tū'twä'mänⁿ'), n. [F.] The use of the second person singular of pronouns and verbs in familiar address. See TUTOYER.

tu'tor (tū'tĕr; 242), n. [ME. tutor (fr. L.), tutour, fr. OF. tutour (F. tuteur), fr. L. tutor, fr. tueri, tuitus, tutus, to watch, protect. See TUITION; cf. TUTELARY.] 1. A guard or keeper; a guardian. Obs.
2. One who has charge of the instruction of another in any branch, or in various branches, of learning; specif.: a A private teacher or instructor. b Eng. Univ. A college officer (usually a fellow) who supervises the study, discipline, etc., of undergraduates specially assigned to him. c In some American colleges and universities, a teacher ranking below an instructor; at Harvard and some other colleges, a teacher who gives individual instruction. Cf. ACADEMIC RANK.
3. A manual of instruction; a textbook. Obs.
4. Roman & Civil Law. One who has the charge of the person and estate of a pupil, or child under the age of puberty (which see). Cf. CURATOR, 1; GUARDIAN, 2. There are three main classes of tutors: the tutor testamentary or nominate, L. ‖tu'tor tes'ta·men·ta'ri·us (tū'tôr tĕs'tä·mĕn·tā'rĭ·ŭs), one nominated by the father by will; the tutor at law, tutor legitim, or legitimate tutor, L. ‖tu'tor le·gi'ti·mus (lē·jĭt'ĭ·mŭs), one becoming tutor by operation of law; and, failing either of these, the tutor dative, L. ‖tu'tor da·ti'vus (dä·tī'vŭs), one appointed by a magistrate. See DATIVE, 3 c. At Roman law originally only a male agnate could be a tutor at law, but Justinian allowed cognates also to be tutors. In the Scots common law only male relatives on the father's side can become tutors.

tu'tor (tū'tĕr), v.; TU'TORED (-tĕrd); TU'TOR·ING. Transitive: 1. To have the guardianship, tutelage, or care, of.
2. To teach; instruct, esp. in a special subject or for a particular occasion.
3. To treat sternly, as a tutor might.
4. To pamper; humor; indulge. Dial.
—, Intransitive: 1. To do the work of a tutor, or instructor; esp., Colloq., U. S., to give private instruction as a tutor.
2. To be tutored, or instructed, esp. privately; as, he tutored in Latin through the first term. Colloq., U. S.
Syn. — School, ground, coach.

tu'tor·age (tū'tĕr·ĭj), n. Office, function, or work, of a tutor; tutorship; also, a charge made for tutoring.

tu'tor·er (-ĕr), n. Tutor; instructor.

tu'tor·ess (-ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. a A woman tutor. b An instructress.

tu'tor·hood (-hŏŏd), n. a State of being a tutor; office or function of a tutor; also, tutors collectively. b State of being tutored, or under guardianship or instruction.

tu·to'ri·al (tū·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. [L. tutorius.] Of or pertaining to, or exercised by, a tutor; as, a tutorial position.
— tu·to'ri·al·ly, adv.

tu·to'ri·al, n. A conference of a student with his tutor.

tutorial system. A system of instruction, usually collegiate, in which each student's work is supervised by a tutor, who often acts also as instructor, advisor, and intermediary in official business with the school or college.

tu·to'ri·ate (tū·tō'rĭ·ĭt; 181), n. [See TUTORIAL; 1st -ATE.] Tutors collectively; the tutorial body, as in a college.

tu'tor·ism (tū'tĕr·ĭz'm), n. Tutorship. Rare.

tu'tor·ize (-īz), v. t. To act as tutor to. Rare. — tu'tor·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n. Rare.

tu'tor·ly (-lĭ), adj. Pertaining to or befitting a tutor.

tu'tor·ship, n. Office, duty, care, function, or practice, of a tutor; guardianship; tutelage; instructorship.

tu'tor·y (tū'tĕr·ĭ), n. Tutorage; tutelage. Obs, exc. Law.

tu'toy·er' (tū'twä'yā'), v. t. [F., fr. tu thou.] To address familiarly, as with the second person singular of pronouns and verbs instead of the formal second person plural; — from the use of the second person singular form in French to express this familiar relationship. Cf. TUTOIEMENT.

tut'san (tŭt'săn), n. [F. toute-saine, lit., all-healing prob. fr. ML. See TOTAL; SANE.] A Eurasian St.-John's-wort (Hypericum androsaemum), from which a healing salve is made in Spain. Hence, any other species of this genus.

tut'ster (tŭt'stĕr), n. A tutworker. Local, Eng.

‖tut'ta (tōōt'tä), adj.; fem. of TUTTO; pl. -TE (-tā). [It.] All; whole.

‖tut'ta for'za (fôr'tsä). [It.] Music. Fortissimo.

‖tut'ti (tōōt'tē), adj., masc. pl. of TUTTO. [It.] Music. For all voices or instruments together; — opposed to solo.

tut'ti (tōō'tē), n.; pl. -TIS (-tēz). a A passage performed by all the players or singers. b The total tonal effect produced by an orchestra or chorus performing together; as, to swell the mass, or tutti, of the orchestra.

tut'ti–frut'ti (tōō'tē·frōō'tē), n. [It., lit., all fruits.] A confection consisting of different kinds of preserved fruits. — adj. Flavored with, or containing, various fruits.

tut'ti·man, tut'ty·man (tŭt'ĭ·măn), n. Tithingman. Eng.

‖tut'to (tōōt'tō), adj. masc. pl. -TI (-tē). [It.] All; entire; — chiefly in musical directions.

tut'-tut' (tŭt'tŭt'; see TUT), interj. A reduplication of tut, expressing mild surprise, reproof, etc. — n. The sound or expression of the interjection "Tut-tut." — v. i. To say "Tut-tut"; to express mild reproof or objection by this interjection.

tut'ty (tŭt'ĭ), n. [F. tutie, through Ar. fr. Per. tūtiyā', fr. Skr. tuttha, also tūtaka, of unknown origin; cf. Marathi, Beng., etc. tutiyā, fr. Per. Cf. TUTANIA, TUTENAG.] A yellow or brown amorphous substance obtained as a sublimation product in the flues of smelting furnaces of zinc, and consisting of a crude zinc oxide.

tut'ty (tŭt'ĭ), adj. [Cf. TETTY.] Testy. Dial. Eng.

tut'ty, n. Flower; nosegay. Now Dial. Eng.

tu'tu', tu'tuh' (dōō'dōō'), n. [Chin. (Pek.) tu¹-tu¹ commander in chief.] In China, 1911–16, the title of the military governor of a province. Cf. TUCHUN.

tu'tu (tōō'tōō; collog. tōōt), n. [Maori, abbr. of tutupakihi.] A New Zealand shrub (Coriaria ruscifolia) having angled branches and drooping panicles of handsome flowers. Its leaves yield a poison; the fruit also is poisonous, though its juice is harmless.

Tutu (Coriaria ruscifolia). a Pistillate Flower; b Staminate Flower. (¼) tu'tu·lus (tū'tū·lŭs), n. [L.] Rom. Antiq. A coiffure, Etruscan in origin, in which the hair is plaited in conical form above the forehead. It was worn by the flamen and his wife.

Tu·tu'ni (tōō·tōōt'nē), n. An Indian of a group of closely related Athapascan tribes formerly dwelling on the coast of Oregon, now on the Siletz reservation in that State.

tut'work' (tŭt'wûrk'), n. [See TUT piece.] Piecework. Dial. Eng. Specif.: Mining. In Cornwall, excavation paid for by measure or by weight, an extra credit being usually allowed for timberwork and a debit charged for certain sundries, as candles, explosives, tools, etc., supplied by the mine owner. — tut'-work'er (-wûr'kĕr), n.— tut'-work'man (-wûrk'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). Cf. TRIBUTE, n., 5.

‖tu'um (tū'ŭm), n. [L.] Thine; — used in the phrase meum and tuum. See MEUM.

tu–whit' (tōō-hwĭt'), n. & interj. A word imitating notes of the owl; — often with tu-whoo. — v. i. To utter the cry tu-whit or tu-whoo.

tu–whoo' (tōō-hwōō'), n. & interj. See TU-WHIT. — v. i. To utter the cry tu-whoo.

tux·e'do (tŭk·sē'dō), n.; pl. -DOS, -DOES (-dōz). Often shortened to TUX (tŭks). [From the name of a country club at Tuxedo Park, near Tuxedo Lake, N. Y., fr. Lenape p'tukasĭ, an esoteric term for wolf, lit., he has a round foot, the name of the Wolf subtribe of the Delawares.] An evening dress for men's wear on occasions not requiring the formal full dress suit. See EVENING DRESS, 2 b. tuxedo coat or jacket. See EVENING DRESS, 2 b. tu'yère' (twē'yâr'; tü'yâr'; twēr), n. [F., fr. stem of tuyau a pipe. See TEWEL.] A nozzle through which the air blast is delivered to a forge, blast furnace, etc.

tuyère arch. Tuyère notch.

tuyère box. An air belt or air chamber from which air is supplied to the tuyères in a Bessemer converter, etc.

tuyère notch. An opening in the wall of a furnace hearth or crucible for a tuyère.

Tu'yu·nel'ri (tōō'yōō·nā'rē), n. An Indian of a tribe, constituting a distinct stock, in southeastern Peru. — adj. Pertaining to or designating the linguistic family of the Tuyuneiris.

tu'za (tōō'sä; tū'zä), n. [Sp., fr. Nahuatl tuzan, tozan.] A pocket gopher. Mexico.

Tuz'la (tōōs'lä), n. A central Anatolian rug very similar to Konia.

Tvash'tar (twŭsh'tär), n. Also Tvash'tri (-trē). [Skr. Tvaṣṭṛ.] Vedic Myth. The divine artificer; maker of the divine weapons and all manner of objects of skill. Cf. VISHVAKARMA.

Twad'dell (twŏd'l), n., or Twad'dell's hy·drom'e·ter (-'lz). [After the inventor.] A form of hydrometer for liquids heavier than water, graduated with an arbitrary scale such that the readings when multiplied by .005 and added to unity give the specific gravity.

twad'dle (twŏd''l), v. i. & t.; TWAD'DLED (-'ld); TWAD'DLING (-lĭng). [See TWATTLE.] To talk in a weak and silly manner; to prate; prattle; gabble.

twad'dle, n. a Silly talk; gabble; trash and nonsense; also, bombastic talk; fustian. b A twaddler.
The cant and twaddle that's talked of boxing. T. Hughes.

Twad'dle. Erroneous for TWADDELL.

---

tusk'ish, adj. See -ISH. tusk'less, adj. See -LESS. tusk'like', adj. See -LIKE. tusk't. Tusked. Ref. Sp. tusk'wise', adv. See -WISE. tus'sa. Var. of TUSSAH. tus'sac (tŭs'ăk). Var. of TUSSOCK. [GRASS.] tussac grass. Var. of TUSSOCK. tus'sar (tŭs'ĕr). Var. of TUSSAH.
tus·seel'dar'. ✝ TAHSILDAR. tus'seh (tŭs'ē), tus'ser (-ĕr). Vars. of TUSSAH. tus'sel. Var. of TUSSLE. tus'sid. Tussled. Ref. Sp. tus'soch. Var. of TUSSOCK. tus'sor (tŭs'ĕr). Var. of TUSSAH. tus'suck. Var. of TUSSOCK. tus'sur. Var. of TUSSAH. tu'ta·ment, n. [L. tutamentum.] Protection. Obs. tutch. Var. of TOUCH. Obs. exc. Dial. tute (tūt). Var. of TOOT, peep. tutel, n. The beak; mouth; lip. Obs. [tattle. Obs.] tutel, v. i. To whisper; talk; tut'ele (tū'tĕl), n. [F. tutelle, fr. L. tutela. See TUTELAGE.] = TUTELAGE. Obs. tuth (tŭth; tōōth). Var. of TOOTH. Obs. exc. Dial. [Obs. tutia, n. [See TUTTY.] = TUTTY. tut'ie. Var. of 1st TOTTY. tu'ti·or·ism (tū'shĭ·ôr·ĭz'm; tū'tĭ·-), n. [L. tutior, compar. of tutus safe.] See PROBABILISM, 2. — tu'ti·or·ist, n. [Scot. tutivillar, n. A wrongdoer. Obs. tut'ler, n. A tattler; talebearer; a person of evil tongue. Obs. tu'tord. Tutored. Ref. Sp. tu'tor·less, adj. See -LESS.
tu'tor·sick', adj. See -SICK.
‖tu'toy·ê' (tü'twä'yā'). French past part. of TUTOYER. tu'tress, tu'trice, tu'trix, n. = TUTORESS. Rare. tuts. = TUT. Scot. & Ir.
‖tut'te, adj., pl. of TUTTA.
‖tut'te le cor'de (tōōt'tā lā kôr'dā). [It.] Music. = TRE CORDE.
Tut'tle's com'et (tŭt'lz). [After Horace P. Tuttle (b. 1839), Am. astronomer.] See COMET, Table.
Tut'tle tooth (tŭt'l). See SAW, n., Illust. tu'wi (tōō'wē), n. = TUI. Phil. I. tux (tŭks), n. Short for TUXEDO. tuz (tŭz), n.; pl. TUZZES. [Cf. TOUSE.] A lock of hair. Obs. tuz'sle. Var. of TUSSLE. Dial. tuz'zy-mus'zy (tŭz'ĭ·mŭz'ĭ), n. [Cf. dial. tuzzy ruffled, ragged, disheveled, and E. touse.] Posy; nosegay. Obs. [Obs. exc. Dial. twa (twā; twō). Var. of TWO.
twad'dl. Twaddle. Ref. Sp. twad'dld. Twaddled. Ref. Sp. twad'dle-dom, n. See -DOM. twad'dle-ize, v. i. See -IZE.

twad'dle-ment (twŏd''l-mĕnt), n. Twaddle. Rare.
twad'dler (-lĕr), n. One who writes or talks twaddle. twad'dly (-lĭ), adj.; TWAD'DLI-ER (-lĭ-ĕr); TWAD'DLI-EST. Twaddling; resembling or suggesting twaddle. twad'dy (twŏd'ĭ), n. Idle trifling; twaddle. Rare. twag (twăg), n. A word to announce success. Thieves' Slang. Obs. twag'ger (twăg'ĕr), n. A lamb. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. twain (twān), adj. & n. [ME. twein, tweien, tweyne, fr. AS. twēgen, masc. See TWO.] Two. Now Chiefly Poetic.
And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain. Matt. v. 41.
— in twain. In halves; into two parts; asunder. Dryden.
twain, v. t. & i. [See TWAIN, adj.] To sunder. Archaic. twain cloud. Cumulo-stratus. twale (twāl), n. Twilight. Dial. twal'pen-ny (twal'pĕn-ĭ; twôl'-; twäl'-), n. [twal twelve + penny.] A shilling Scots. See SHILLING, n., 2 a. — twal'pen-ny-worth (-wûrth'). Both Scot.
twalt (twält; twôlt), adj. Twelfth. Scot.
Twa'na (twä'nä), n. An Indian of a group of three closely related Salishan tribes of western Washington: the Colcine, Skokomish, and Tulalip. twang (twăng), v.; TWANGED (twăngd); TWANG'ING (twăng'-ĭng). [Of imitative origin; cf. TANG a sharp sound.] Intransitive: 1. To sound with a quick, harsh, ringing noise, as that made by a tense bowstring suddenly released.
2. To produce a twang or twangs, as from a musical instrument played by plucking the tense strings.
3. To speak with or have a nasal twang, as a person's voice.
4. To make a shot with or as with a bow; hence, by extension, to make a guess or conjecture; to surmise. Rare.
—, Transitive: 1. To make to sound with a twang.
Sounds the tough horn, and twangs the quivering string. Pope.
2. To express with or as with a twang or twanging instrument; to play (a tune or composition) on a stringed instrument, as a banjo, guitar, mandolin, etc.
3. To utter or pronounce with a nasal twang.
4. To discharge (an arrow) from a bow.
twang, n. 1. A harsh, quick, ringing sound, like that of a tense bowstring pulled and suddenly released.
2. Hence: a A sharp vibrant nasal tone; — often called nasal twang; also, enunciation or utterance characterized by such a tone. "A twang in his discourse." Arbuthnot. b A sound likened to or suggesting the nasal twang or the twang of a bowstring, as the croak of a bullfrog.
3. A sharp slap or blow, as that delivered by the release of the drawn bowstring.
— twang'y (twăng'ĭ), adj.
twang (twăng), n. = TANG, a flavor, taste. twang (twăng; twäng), n. A twinge. Scot. & Dial. Eng. twang'er (twăng'ĕr), n. a A player on a stringed instrument. b Slang. Anything unusually large or outstanding. twan'gle (twăng'g'l), v. i. & t. [Freq. of twang.] To twang. Rare. — n. A twang. Rare.
twan'gler (twăng'glĕr), n. One that twangles. twank (twăngk; twängk), v. i. & t. To sound or cause to sound like a twang sharply cut off; to slap smartly. — twank'er (-ĕr), n. Both Chiefly Dial. Eng.
twank (twängk), n. = 2d TWANG. Rare.
Twan'kay tea (twăng'kā). [From Chin. (Pek.) T'un²-ch'i (or -hsi), town in Anhwei province, lit., the camp by the stream.] A kind of green tea. See TEA, 1 b. twank'ing (twängk'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TWANK. Hence: adj. That twanks; also, peevish; twanky. — twank'ing-ly, adv. Both Chiefly Dial.
A poor twanking woman like her. T. Hardy. twank'y (twängk'ĭ; twängk'ĭ), adj. Peevish. Dial. Eng. twarl'y (twär'lĭ), adj. [Cf. QUARREL.] Peevish. Dial. twat (twŏt), n. Some part of a nun's garb. Erron. Browning.
twatch'el (twăch'ĕl), n. [Cf. ANGLETWITCH.] An earthworm. Archaic.
twat'ter-light' (twŏt'ĕr-lĭt'), n. Twitterlight; twilight. R. twat'tle (twŏt''l), v.; TWAT'TLED (-'ld); -TLING (-lĭng). [Cf. TATTLE, TWADDLE.] Intransitive: To talk much and idly; to prate; chatter; twaddle; as, a twattling gossip.
—, Transitive: 1 To tell or repeat foolishly. Now Rare.
2. To make much of; to fondle, as a pet. Dial. Eng.
twat'tle, n. Act of prating; idle talk; twaddle. twat'tle, adj. Trifling; petty. Obs. twat'tle-bas'ket, n. A prattler. twat'tler (twŏt'lĕr), n. One who twattles. twat'tling (-lĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TWATTLE. Hence: adj. Gossiping; also, trivial. — n. Gossiping chatter; idle talk. Both Rare.
tway (twā), adj. & n. [ME. twei. See TWAIN.] Two. Archaic.
tway'blade' (twā'blād'), n. [See TWAY; BLADE. Cf. TWY-BLADE, TWIBIL.] Any of several orchids having a pair of leaves; esp., any species of Listera or Liparis. twaz'zy (twăz'ĭ), adj. Peevish. Dial. Eng.
tweak (twēk), v. t. & i.; TWEAKED (twēkt); TWEAK'ING. [ME. twikken, orig. the same word as twicchen; cf. LG. twikken. See TWITCH.] To pinch and pull with a sudden jerk and twist; to jerk; to twitch; snatch; as, to tweak the nose. "The fifty acres the commissioners had tweaked from his father." Kaye-Smith.
tweak, n. 1. Act of tweaking; a sharp pinch or jerk; a twist or twitch as, a tweak of the nose.
2. Trouble; distress; agitation. Obs. tweak (twēk), n. A harlot. Obs.
tweak'er (-ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which tweaks.
2. A slingshot. Slang, Eng.
tweak'y (-ĭ), adj. Of the nature of a tweak, or twitch; hence, sharp or biting. Colloq.
Some marmalade . . . not quite to his taste. "A bit tweaky," he pronounced it. Booth Tarkington.
twee (twē), n. [Imitative.] A thin, piping note, as of certain small birds. twee (twē), n. [From etwee. See TWEEZE.] = TWEEZE. Obs. tweed (twēd), n. [By error fr. tweel, Scot. form of twill, but associated with the Tweed river. See TWILL.] 1. A soft flexible fabric, of wool except in some inferior kinds, dyed, often in two or more colors, before weaving, and used esp. for suits and coats.
2. A tweed suit; in pl., tweed clothing.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
tweed-clad, tweed-covered, tweed-suited.

tweed (twēd), adj. Made of tweed; as, a tweed suit.
tweed'ed (twēd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Wearing tweeds.
2. Twilled.
twee'dle (twē'd'l), v. i. & t. [Prob. imitative. Cf. TWIDDLE.] a To sing or whistle; to play (an instrument). b [Influenced by wheedle.] To wheedle by music; to cajole.
twee'dle, n. A sound of tweedling. twee'dle. Var. of TWIDDLE. Obs. exc. Dial.
twee'dle-dee' (twē'd'l-dē'), n. 1. An unskillful fiddler; also, a shrill, piping, high-pitched instrument; — often used as a contrast to twee'dle-dum' (-dŭm'), a low-pitched instrument.
2. One of two things practically alike; — used with tweedledum. See TWEEDLEDUM AND TWEEDLEDEE. twee'dle-dee', v. i. To sing or play in a high, piping tone.
twee'dle-dum' and twee'dle-dee' (twē'd'l-dŭm', -dē'). [See TWEEDLE.] 1. Two things practically alike; — a phrase coined by John Byrom in his satire On the Feuds between Handel and Bononcini.
2. [caps.] Characters in Lewis Carroll's Through the Looking Glass.
Tweed Ring (twēd). U. S. Hist. A group of Tammany Hall politicians under the leadership of William M. Tweed, who between 1865 and 1871 got political control of New York City and robbed it of many millions of dollars. It was broken up in 1871, Tweed being convicted and imprisoned.
tweed'y (twēd'ĭ), adj. Of tweed; resembling or suggesting tweed. tweeg (twēg), n. [Lenape tuechque, twi'kw.] The hellbender. tweel (twēl), n. A clay covering for the mouth of a glass furnace. tweel (twēl). Scot. var. of TWILL.
'tween (twēn), prep. Aphetic form of ATWEEN; also, contr. of BETWEEN; — formerly written tween.
'tween'-brain', n. Anat. The diencephalon.
'tween'-deck', adj. Located or carried between decks.
'tween decks. = BETWEEN DECKS.
'tween'light' (twēn'lĭt'), n. Dawn or, esp., evening, as the period between night and day.
tweesh (twēsh), tweesht (twēsht), tweest (twēst), prep. Between. Scot.
tweet (twēt), n. A low chirping note; — often reduplicated, tweet'-tweet'. — v. i. To utter a tweet. tweeze, tweese (twēz), n. [For twees, etwees, pl. of etwee, fr. F. étui a case, sheath, box, fr. OF. estui; cf. OF. estuier, estoier, to enclose, put in a case. Cf. ETUI, TWEEZERS.] 1. A surgeon's case of instruments. Obs.
2. pl. Tweezers.
tweeze, v. i. & t. To wrench; squeeze; twist. Scot. tweez'er (twēz'ĕr), v. t.; TWEEZ'ERED (-ĕrd); TWEEZ'ER-ING. To draw with or as with tweezers. — v. i. To use tweezers. — n. A small instrument case; an etui. Obs. tweez'er (twēz'ĕr), n. American merganser. Local, U. S. tweez'ers (twēz'ĕrz), n. pl. [See TWEEZE.] 1. A small pincerlike implement for grasping or extracting.
2. A tweeze, or surgeon's instrument case. Obs.
tweil (twēl), v. i. To toil; struggle. Dial. Eng. twelfth (twĕlfth), adj. [ME. twelfthe, twelfte, fr. AS. twelfta; akin to D. twaalfde, G. zwölfte.] 1. Next in order after the eleventh; — the ordinal of twelve.
2. Constituting one of twelve equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.
twelfth, n. 1. The quotient of a unit divided by twelve; one of twelve equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.
2. The unit or object next after the eleventh in any series.
3. [cap.] Short for TWELFTH-DAY, TWELFTHTIDE.
4. Music. a An interval comprising an octave and a fifth. b A tone at this interval. c An organ stop giving tones at this interval above the pitch indicated by the notation.
Twelfth Amendment. U. S. Const. The amendment providing for the separate election of president and vice-president, in force Sept. 25, 1804. twelfth'-cake', n. Also Twelfth'-night' cake. A cake made for a Twelfth-night celebration, containing a bean or sometimes a coin. Pieces are allotted to the company, the person getting the bean acting as master (or mistress) of ceremonies.
Twelfth'-day', n. = TWELFTHTIDE. twelfth nerve. Anat. The hypoglossal nerve.
Twelfth'-night', n. The evening of January 6, the feast of Epiphany, or Twelfth-day, the concluding period of medieval Christmas festivities; less correctly, the eve of the Epiphany, or January 5.
Twelfth Night, or What You Will. A comedy (probably acted 1599–1600, but not published until 1623) by Shakespeare. See VIOLA; MALVOLIO; OLIVIA; BELCH, SIR TOBY. twelfth'-sec'ond, n. Physics. A unit for the measurement of small intervals of time, such that 10^{12} (one trillion) of these units make one second.
Twelfth'tide' (twĕlfth'tĭd'), n. The twelfth day after Christmas; Epiphany; — called also Twelfth-day.
twelve (twĕlv), adj. [ME. twelve, twelf, fr. AS. twelf; akin to OFris. & OS. twelif, D. twaalf, G. zwölf, OHG. zwelif, ON. tólf, Goth. twalif, Lith. dvylika; — lit., (ten and) two left (over). See TWO; LOAN. Cf. ELEVEN.] 1. One more than eleven; two and ten; twice six; a dozen; — often with ellipsis of the noun; as, the most impulsive of the Twelve (Apostles).
2. That has the number twelve; as, room twelve.
3. Twelfth. Obs.
☞ Twelve is combined with a noun, often with the suffix -ed added to the combination, to form compound adjectives, such compounds being usually hyphened, as in:

twelve-acre	twelve-handed	twelve-rayed twelve-armed	twelve-hole	twelve-seated twelve-banded	twelve-horsepower	twelve-shilling twelve-button	twelve-inch	twelve-sided twelve-candle	twelve-labor	twelve-spoke twelve-carat	twelve-legged	twelve-spotted twelve-cut	twelve-line	twelve-starred twelve-dram	twelve-minute	twelve-stone twelve-feet	twelve-oared	twelve-stranded twelve-foot	twelve-ounce	twelve-thread twelve-footed	twelve-part	twelve-towered twelve-fruited	twelve-pint	twelve-verse twelve-gated	twelve-point	twelve-word twelve-gemmed	twelve-pound	twelve-year twelve (twĕlv), n. 1. The number greater by a unit than eleven; the sum of ten and two; twice six; twelve units or objects; a dozen.

2. A symbol representing twelve units, as 12, XII, or xii.
3. pl. = DUODECIMO.
4. Something having as an essential feature twelve units or members, as a domino with twelve spots, or pips.
5. Twelve o'clock; — often combined with the number of minutes past the hour; as, twelve-twenty.
— the Twelve. The Twelve Apostles. See APOSTLE, 1.
Twelve Apostles. a Bib. See APOSTLE, 1. b Mormon Ch. See APOSTLE, 4.
Twelve Apostles of Ireland (or Erin). Twelve disciples of St. Finnian (d. 550) at the school of Clonard, who, in turn, became founders of schools or monasteries and were famous as teachers or missionaries. twelve'-bore', adj. = TWELVE-GAUGE. See GAUGE, n., 9, Note; 3d BORE, 3. twelve'-day' writ. Eng. Law. A writ in a certain summary procedure on negotiable paper. twelve disciples. See the disciples under DISCIPLE. twelve'fold' (twĕlv'fōld'), n. An amount twelve times as much or as many.
twelve'fold', adj. Consisting of twelve things or parts; twelve times as much or as many; as, a twelvefold division.
twelve'fold' (66), adv. To twelve times as much or as many.
twelve'-gauge', adj. Firearms. See GAUGE, n., 9, Note.
twelve'-hour' (twĕlv'our'), adj. a Scot. Belonging to twelve o'clock noon. b Consisting of twelve hours. c Turning once in twelve hours, as a wheel.
twelve hours. Usually in form twal hours. Scot. a Noon; sometimes, midnight. b Refreshment at noon.
twelve'-hours', adj. Scot. Midday. twelve'-mile', adj Of or pertaining to twelve miles; as, the twelve-mile limit, or the extended limit of the marine belt (see THREE-MILE) included in the territorial waters of a state, chiefly for enabling a government better to act against vessels engaged in illegal trade.
twelve'month' (twĕlv'münth'), n. A year, which consists of twelve calendar months.
twelve'-month'ly, adv. Annually; yearly.
Twelve Nights. Teutonic Folklore. The twelve nights from Christmas to Epiphany, during which was orig. the old pagan festival of the winter solstice, when the gods, esp. Woden and his wife, Frigg, with the good spirits, held their procession. It is the time of the Wild Hunt (which see) and of the activity of Holda, Perchta, etc.
Twelve Peers or Paladins of France. The douzepers. See DOUZEPERS, 1. twelve'pence (twĕlv'pĕns), n. The sum of twelve pence; a shilling. twelve'pen-ny (-pĕn-ĭ; -pĕn'ĭ), adj. Sold for, worth, or costing, a shilling; hence, figuratively, of relatively little worth.
twelve'-point' sphere (of an orthogonal tetrahedron). Geom. The sphere through the centroids of the faces, their orthocenters and the points one third the distance from the orthocenter to the four vertices; analogous to the nine-point circle of a triangle.
twelve'-pound'er, n. See 1st POUNDER, 2.
Twelve Prophets. The Minor Prophets. See OLD TESTAMENT. twelve'score' (twĕlv'skōr'; 66), adj. Twelve times twenty.
twelve'-spot'ted as-par'a-gus bee'tle. An asparagus beetle (Crioceris duodecimpunctata).
Twelve Tables. Rom. Hist. A celebrated body of Roman laws, framed 451–449 B.C. The first ten of the tables were framed by patrician decemvirs elected in 452. They took office in 451, and their laws were published on ten bronze tables in 450. Then their powers were extended a year or new decemvirs were elected, and framed more laws, which were probably the source of the two additional tables published under the consuls Valerius and Horatius in 449. The laws were largely declaratory of previously existing customary secular law, and applied to patricians and plebeians alike. In them religious rules and sanctions are secondary. The tradition that they were based on the report of commissioners sent to Greece is not certainly authentic. twelve'-wired' bird of par'a-dise. A bird of paradise (Seleucides ignotus).
twelve'-year-old', n. A person, animal, or thing of the age of twelve years. — adj. Of the age of twelve years.
Twem'low, Mr. Mel'vin (twĕm'lō). In Dickens's novel Our Mutual Friend, a poor relation of a peer, and hanger-on at the edge of aristocratic society.
twen'ties (twĕn'tĭz), the. The numbers twenty to twenty-nine inclusive; specif., the years numbered twenty to twenty-nine in a person's life or in a particular century.
twen'ti-eth (twĕn'tĭ-ĕth; -ĭth; 119), adj. [ME. twentithe, fr. AS. twentigotha. See TWENTY.] 1. Next in order after the nineteenth; tenth after the tenth.
2. Constituting one of twenty equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.
twen'ti-eth, n. 1. The quotient of a unit divided by twenty; one of twenty equal parts into which anything is or may be divided.
2. The unit or object coming next after the nineteenth in any series.
Twentieth Amendment. U. S. Const. See CONGRESS, n., 4; cf. Lame Duck Act, under LAME DUCK b. twen'ti-eth-cen'tu-ry, attrib. adj. Of or pertaining to the twentieth century.
twentieth-century cut or brilliant. See BRILLIANT, n., 1. twen'ty (twĕn'tĭ), adj. [ME. twenty, twenti, fr. AS. twēntig, twentig; akin to OFris. twintich, OS. twēntig, D. & LG. twintig, OHG. zweinzug, G. zwanzig, Goth. twai tigjus two tens. See TWAIN, TWO; TEN.] 1. One more than nineteen; twice ten; — often with ellipsis of the noun; as, mature at twenty (years of age).
2. Indefinitely, many; ever so many.
3. That bears the number twenty; as, room twenty.
4. Twentieth. Obs.
twen'ty, n.; pl. TWENTIES (-tĭz). 1. The number greater by a unit than nineteen; the sum of twelve and eight, or twice ten; twenty units or objects; a score.
2. A symbol representing twenty units, as 20, XX, or xx.
3. Something having as an essential feature twenty units or members; specif.: a A squad or company of twenty men. b pl. A size of yarn of which twenty thicknesses will just fill a half-inch tube. c See TWENTIES, THE.

twad'dle-mon'ger, n. See -MONGER. twad'dle-some, adj. See -SOME.
twad'dling, pres. part. & verbal n. of TWADDLE.—twad'dling-ly, adv.
twae (twā), twae'some (-sŭm), twae'three'. Scot. vars. of TWO, TWOSOME, TWO-THREE.
twa'fauld' (twä'fôld'; -fäld'), twa'fald'. Scot. vars. of TWOFOLD. twaite (twāt). Var. of THWAITE. twalte (twält), n., or twaite shad. See SHAD. Local, Eng. twal, twall (twäl; twôl; twäl), twal hours (ōōrz). Scot. vars. of TWELVE, TWELVE HOURS. twane. Obs. past tense of TWINE. twangd. Twanged. Ref. Sp. twang-dil'low (twăng-dĭl'ō), n. Harping; twanging. Obs. twang'i-ness, n. See -NESS. twan'kle (twängk'k'l), v. t. = TWANGLE. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
't wa'n't (twŏnt; twōnt). Dial. contraction of it was not.
't was (twŏz; 71). A contraction of it was.
twa'some. Scot. var. of TWO-SOME.
tweag (twēg). Dial. var. of TWEAK. tweakt. Tweaked. Ref. Sp. twech. † TOUCH. twee'did. Tweedled. Ref. Sp.
Tweed'side' burr (twēd'sīd'). See 1st BURR, 13 a. tween'ie. Var. of TWEENY.
'tween'-watch', n. = DOGWATCH. tween'y (twēn'ĭ), n. Short for BETWEENMAID. tweer. † TWIRE, TUYÈRE. tweez. Tweeze. Ref. Sp.

twel (twĕl), twelf (twĕlf). Vars. of TWELVE. Obs. exc. Dial. twel (twĕl). Dial. var. of TILL, prep. twelf'hyn'de (twĕlv'hĭn'dē), n. See HYNDE. — twelf'hyn'de man. twelfth'ly, adv. of TWELFTH. twell, twel (twĕl). Dial. var. of TILL, prep.

twelv. Twelve. Ref. Sp. twelve'hyn'de, n. Twelfhynde. See HYNDE. — twelve'hyn'de man. (MORRIS.) twelve-men's morris. See 4th. twelve'mo (twĕlv'mō), n. & adj. = DUODECIMO, n. & adj.
Twelve'tide', n. = TWELFTHTIDE. Obs. twen'ti-eth-ly, adv. of TWENTIETH.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

twenty-acre	twenty-hour	twenty-pound twenty-carat	twenty-inch	twenty-round twenty-centimeter	twenty-knot	twenty-second twenty-cubit	twenty-line	twenty-seven twenty-day	twenty-man	twenty-seventh twenty-dollar	twenty-mark	twenty-shilling twenty-eight	twenty-mesh	twenty-six twenty-eighth	twenty-meter	twenty-sixth twenty-fifth	twenty-mile	twenty-third twenty-first	twenty-minute	twenty-thread twenty-five	twenty-nigger	twenty-three twenty-foot	twenty-nine	twenty-ton twenty-four	twenty-ninth	twenty-two twenty-fourth	twenty-one	twenty-wood twenty-gauge	twenty-ounce	twenty-word twenty-grain	twenty-payment	twenty-yard twenty-gun	twenty-plume	twenty-year twen'ty–eight', n. [So named from its note.] A West Australian yellow-collared parakeet (Barnardius zonarius semitorquatus).

Twen'ty–first' A·mend'ment. U. S. Const. An amendment repealing the Eighteenth (prohibition) Amendment, passed by Congress in March, 1933, approved by the necessary thirty-six states by Nov. 7, 1933, and effective December 6, 1933.

twen'ty·fold' (twĕn'tĭ·fōld'), adj. Twenty times as many or as large; twenty times over. — twen'ty·fold', n.

twen'ty–four'mo (-fōr'mō; 181), adj. Bookbinding & Print. Having 24 leaves to a sheet; as, a twenty-fourmo, or 24mo, book. — n. A size of a book, or of its pages, resulting from folding each sheet into 24 leaves, measuring about 3¾ x 6 inches, as a maximum; also, a book of such size.

twen'ty–fourth' of May. Empire Day (which see).

twen'ty·mo (twĕn'tĭ·mō), adj. [See -MO.] Bookbinding & Print. Having 20 leaves to a sheet. — n. A book whose pages are formed by folding a sheet into 20 leaves.

twen'ty–one', n. Cards. = VINGT-ET-UN.

Twen'ty–one' De·mands'. A series of demands of far-reaching character made by Japan upon China Jan. 18, 1915, presented, with certain omissions, as an ultimatum May 7, 1915, and accepted by China two days later. They secured for Japan railway, mining, and industrial privileges, and a promise from China not to cede or lease territory along her coast.

twenty–one point cassino. See CASSINO.

Twen'ty–ounce', n. A widely grown variety of fall apple with very large yellowish-red fruit.

twen'ty–pen'ny (twĕn'tĭ·pĕn'ĭ), adj. Designating a size of nails. See -PENNY.

twenty questions. A guessing game; — from the number of questions allowed before guessing.

twen'ty–sec'ond, n. Music. a An interval of three octaves. b A tone at this interval.

twen'ty–three', n. 1. In railway telegraphy, a signal to signify a message of the greatest urgency.
2. A number signifying the end or completion; hence, a command to go or move away; as, he said twenty-three, so I had to skip. Slang.

twi- (twī-). [AS.; akin to ON. tvī-, Skr. dvi-. See TWO, TWICE.] A prefix used with nouns and adjectives, and meaning two, double, doubly, twice, as in twi-faced, twi'–cir'cle.

Twi (twē), n. = TSHI.

twi'–banked', adj. Having two banks (of oars).

twi'bil', twi'bill' (twī'bĭl'), n. [AS. twibill, fr. twi- two + bill, bil, an ax, hoe, bill. See TWI-; BILL a cutting instrument.] 1. A double-headed battle-ax. Hist.

Since at Byzantium many a year ago
My father bore the twibil valiantly. William Morris.

2. A kind of mattock, or ax; esp., a tool like a pickax, but having, instead of the points, flat terminations, one perpendicular to it.
3. A tool for making mortises. Obs.
4. A reaping hook, esp. for cutting beans. Local, Eng.
5. = ROARING BOY. Obs.

twi'billed' (-bĭld'), adj. Armed or provided with a twibil.

twice (twīs), adj. Happening or done twice.

twice (twīs), adv. [ME. twies (where the s is the adverbial ending; see -WARD), twie, fr. AS. twigea, twiga, twiwa; akin to twi- (in comp.) two, G. zwie-, OHG. zwi-, ON. tvī-, L. bi-, Gr. di-, Skr. dvi-, and E. two. See TWO.] 1. Two times; once and again; on two separate occasions; as, he tried twice.
2. Doubly; in twofold quantity or degree; as, twice the sum; he is twice as fortunate as his neighbor.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

twice-abandoned	twice-audited	twice-cheated twice-abolished	twice-authorized	twice-chosen twice-absent	twice-avoided	twice-cited twice-accented	twice-baked	twice-claimed twice-accepted	twice-balanced	twice-collected twice-accomplished	twice-bankrupt	twice-commenced twice-accorded	twice-baptized	twice-commended twice-accused	twice-barred	twice-committed twice-achieved	twice-bearing	twice-competing twice-acknowledged	twice-beaten	twice-completed twice-acquired	twice-begged	twice-compromised twice-acted	twice-begun	twice-concealed twice-adapted	twice-beheld	twice-conceded twice-adjourned	twice-beloved	twice-condemned twice-adjusted	twice-bent	twice-conferred twice-admitted	twice-bereaved	twice-confessed twice-adopted	twice-bereft	twice-confirmed twice-affirmed	twice-bested	twice-conquered twice-agreed	twice-bestowed	twice-consenting twice-alarmed	twice-betrayed	twice-considered twice-alleged	twice-bid	twice-consulted twice-allied	twice-bit	twice-contested twice-altered	twice-blamed	twice-continued twice-amended	twice-blessed	twice-converted twice-angered	twice-blooming	twice-convicted twice-announced	twice-blowing	twice-copyrighted twice-answered	twice-boiled	twice-corrected twice-anticipated	twice-borrowed	twice-counted twice-appealed	twice-bought	twice-cowed twice-appointed	twice-branded	twice-created twice-appropriated	twice-broken	twice-crowned twice-approved	twice-brought	twice-cured twice-arbitrated	twice-buried	twice-damaged twice-arranged	twice-called	twice-dared twice-assaulted	twice-canceled	twice-darned twice-asserted	twice-canvassed	twice-dead twice-assessed	twice-captured	twice-dealt twice-assigned	twice-carried	twice-debated twice-associated	twice-caught	twice-deceived twice-assured	twice-censured	twice-declined twice-attained	twice-challenged	twice-decorated twice-attempted	twice-changed	twice-decreed twice-attested	twice-charged	twice-deducted twice-defaulting	twice-needed	twice-salvaged twice-defeated	twice-negligent	twice-sampled twice-deferred	twice-negotiated	twice-sanctioned twice-defied	twice-nominated	twice-saved twice-delayed	twice-noted	twice-scared twice-delivered	twice-notified	twice-scattered twice-demanded	twice-numbered	twice-scolded twice-denied	twice-objected	twice-scorned twice-depleted	twice-obligated	twice-sealed twice-deserted	twice-occasioned	twice-searched twice-deserved	twice-occupied	twice-secreted twice-destroyed	twice-offended	twice-secured twice-detained	twice-offered	twice-seen twice-diminished	twice-offset	twice-seized twice-dipped	twice-omitted	twice-selected twice-directed	twice-opened	twice-sensed twice-disabled	twice-opposed	twice-sent twice-disappointed	twice-ordered	twice-sentenced twice-discarded	twice-originated	twice-separated twice-discharged	twice-orphaned	twice-served twice-discontinued	twice-overdue	twice-set twice-discounted	twice-overtaken	twice-settled twice-discovered	twice-overthrown	twice-severed twice-disgraced	twice-owned	twice-shamed twice-dismissed	twice-paid	twice-shared twice-dispatched	twice-painted	twice-shelled twice-divided	twice-pardoned	twice-shelved twice-divorced	twice-parted	twice-shielded twice-doubled	twice-partitioned	twice-shot twice-doubted	twice-patched	twice-shown twice-drafted	twice-pensioned	twice-sick twice-drugged	twice-permitted	twice-silenced twice-dyed	twice-persuaded	twice-sketched twice-earned	twice-perused	twice-soiled twice-effected	twice-petitioned	twice-sold twice-elected	twice-pinnate	twice-soled twice-enacted	twice-placed	twice-solicited twice-encountered	twice-planned	twice-solved twice-endorsed	twice-pleased	twice-sought twice-engaged	twice-pledged	twice-sounded twice-enlarged	twice-poisoned	twice-spared twice-ennobled	twice-pondered	twice-specified twice-essayed	twice-posed	twice-spent twice-evaded	twice-postponed	twice-spinning twice-examined	twice-praised	twice-stabbed twice-excelled	twice-predicted	twice-staged twice-excused	twice-preferred	twice-stated twice-exempted	twice-prepaid	twice-stolen twice-exiled	twice-prepared	twice-stopped twice-exposed	twice-prescribed	twice-straightened twice-expressed	twice-presented	twice-stress twice-extended	twice-preserved	twice-stretched twice-fallen	twice-pretended	twice-stricken twice-false	twice-prevailing	twice-struck twice-favored	twice-prevented	twice-subdued twice-felt	twice-printed	twice-subjected twice-filmed	twice-procured	twice-subscribed twice-fined	twice-professed	twice-substituted twice-folded	twice-prohibited	twice-sued twice-fooled	twice-promised	twice-suffered twice-forgiven	twice-promoted	twice-sufficient twice-forgotten	twice-proposed	twice-suggested twice-forsaken	twice-prosecuted	twice-summoned twice-fought	twice-protected	twice-suppressed twice-foul	twice-proven	twice-surprised twice-fulfilled	twice-provided	twice-surrendered twice-gained	twice-provoked	twice-suspected twice-garbed	twice-published	twice-suspended twice-given	twice-punished	twice-sustained twice-granted	twice-pursued	twice-sworn twice-grieved	twice-qualified	twice-tabled twice-guilty	twice-questioned	twice-taken twice-handicapped	twice-quoted	twice-tamed twice-hazarded	twice-raided	twice-taped twice-healed	twice-read	twice-taught twice-heard	twice-realized	twice-taught twice-helped	twice-rebuilt	twice-tempted twice-hidden	twice-recognized	twice-tendered twice-hinted	twice-reconciled	twice-terminated twice-hit	twice-reconsidered	twice-tested twice-honored	twice-recovered	twice-thanked twice-humbled	twice-redeemed	twice-thought twice-hurt	twice-re-elected	twice-threatened twice-identified	twice-refined	twice-thrown twice-ignored	twice-reformed	twice-tied twice-imposed	twice-refused	twice-torn twice-improved	twice-regained	twice-touched twice-incensed	twice-regretted	twice-trained twice-increased	twice-rehearsed	twice-transferred twice-indulged	twice-reimbursed	twice-translated twice-infected	twice-reinstated	twice-transported twice-injured	twice-rejected	twice-treated twice-insulted	twice-released	twice-tricked twice-insured	twice-relieved	twice-tried twice-invented	twice-remedied	twice-trusted twice-invited	twice-remembered	twice-turned twice-issued	twice-remitted	twice-undertaken twice-jailed	twice-removed	twice-undone twice-judged	twice-rendered	twice-united twice-kidnaped	twice-rented	twice-unpaid twice-knighted	twice-repaired	twice-upset twice-lamented	twice-repeated	twice-used twice-leagued	twice-replaced	twice-uttered twice-learned	twice-reported	twice-vacant twice-left	twice-reprinted	twice-vanished twice-lengthened	twice-requested	twice-varnished twice-levied	twice-required	twice-ventured twice-liable	twice-reread	twice-verified twice-listed	twice-resented	twice-vetoed twice-loaned	twice-resisted	twice-victimized twice-lost	twice-restored	twice-violated twice-mad	twice-restrained	twice-visited twice-maintained	twice-resumed	twice-voted twice-marketed	twice-revenged	twice-waged twice-married	twice-reversed	twice-waived twice-mastered	twice-revised	twice-wanted twice-mated	twice-revived	twice-warned twice-measured	twice-revolted	twice-wasted twice-menaced	twice-rewritten	twice-weaned twice-mended	twice-rich	twice-welcomed twice-mentioned	twice-right	twice-whipped twice-merited	twice-risen	twice-widowed twice-met	twice-roasted	twice-wished twice-missed	twice-robbed	twice-withdrawn twice-mistaken	twice-roused	twice-witnessed twice-modified	twice-ruined	twice-won twice-mortal	twice-sacked	twice-worn twice-mourned	twice-sacrificed	twice-wounded twice-named	twice-said	twice-yielded twice-necessitated

— at twice. Archaic or Dial. a At two different times or operations; as, to pay a debt at twice. b At the second time or operation; as, to succeed at twice.

twice'–born' (66), adj. 1. Born a second time; reincarnated.
2. Regenerate; — an epithet applied to one who has experienced a spiritual rebirth, or fundamental moral and religious renewal, this being effected, presumably, by divine agency.
3. Hinduism. Spiritually born again; — applied to the three upper castes, esp. the Brahman, regarded as spiritually reborn by investiture with the sacred thread. See CASTE, n., 2. Cf. REGENERATION, n., 6.

twice'–laid' (66), adj. a Made from the ends of rope and strands of used rope; as, twice-laid rope. b Designating a dish made from leftovers, esp. of salt fish. c Hence. made from odds and ends, refuse, etc.

You twice-laid thing from Port Mahon! Masefield.

twic'er (twīs'ĕr), n. [From TWICE.] 1. One who does a thing twice, or who does two things; esp., in English trade cant, a printer who works both as compositor and pressman.
2. Something twice as large, strong, valuable, etc., as expected. Slang.

twice'–stabbed' la'dy·bird'. A small black predatory beetle (Chilocoris bivulnerus), family Coccinellidae, marked with a bright-orange dot on each wing cover.

twice'–told' (66), adj. 1. Told twice, or repeatedly; hence, trite; hackneyed; as, a twice-told tale.
2. Counted twice; computed once and then again.

Twice–Told Tales. A collection of short stories (the first volume, 1837) by Nathaniel Hawthorne. A second volume appeared in 1842, and some later editions add The Snow Image.

twi'child (twĭch'ĭld; -ĭl; -l), n. & adj. [See TWI-; CHILD.] Second childhood; (one) in second childhood. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

Twick'en·ham (twĭk''n·ăm), n. A suburb of London, in which were located the villa of Alexander Pope and the "Gothic Castle" of Horace Walpole (at Strawberry Hill). See in Gaz.

twi'–col'ored, twi'–col'oured, adj. Twice colored; varicolored. "Twi-colored leaves." Aldous Huxley.

twid'dle (twĭd''l), v.; TWID'DLED (-'ld); TWID'DLING (-lĭng). [Prob. imitative; cf. Nor. dial. tvidla to stir. Cf. TWEEDLE, QUIDDLE.] Transitive: To touch lightly, or play with; to twirl; to fiddle with; as, to twiddle one's thumbs; to twiddle a watch key; sometimes, to wriggle. "He twiddled his toes a second time." Kipling.

—, Intransitive: 1. To play or trifle with anything; hence, to be busied with trifles; to act, speak, twitter, or the like, triflingly; to fiddle.
2. To quiver or shake lightly, as a pendent ornament; to tremble; vibrate; twirl.

twid'dle, n. Act of twiddling, or lightly twirling something; a slight twist or twirling motion with or as with the fingers.

twid'dle (twĭd''l). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of TWEEDLE.

twid'dler (-lĕr), n. One who or that which twiddles; as: a One who trifles; a trifler. b Cricket. A twister.

twid'dle–twad'dle, n. [Redupl. of TWADDLE.] Silly, commonplace chatter; twaddle. — twid'dle–twad'dle, adj.

twid'dling (twĭd'lĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TWIDDLE. Hence: adj. That twiddles; hence, trifling.

twiddling line. Naut. a Obs. exc. Hist. A small rope used to steady or secure the wheel. b A cord attached to a gimbal and leading out through the binnacle, by which the compass can be jerked free if caught.

twid'dly (twĭd'lĭ), adj. Twiddling; twisting; as, a twiddly road.

twi'fal'low (twī'făl'ō), v. t. [twi- + fallow.] To plow or fallow for the second time. Obs. — twi'fal'low, n. Obs twi'foil' (twī'foil'), n. [twi- + foil leaf.] The twayblade Listera cordata.

twi'fold' (-fōld'), v. t. To fold double. Poetic.

twi'fold', adj. & adv. [AS. twifeald. See TWI-; cf. TWOFOLD.] = TWOFOLD. — twi'fold'ly, adv. Both Archaic.

twi'–formed' (twī'fôrmd'), adj. Also twi'-form' (-fôrm'). Formed of two elements. Now Rare.

twig (twĭg), v.; TWIGGED (twĭgd); TWIG'GING (twĭg'ĭng). [Gael. tuig, or Ir. tuigim I understand.] Transitive: 1. To understand the meaning of; to comprehend. Colloq.
2. To observe slyly; also, to perceive; discover. Colloq.

As if he were looking right into your eyes and twigged something there which you had half a mind to conceal. Hawthorne.

—, Intransitive: To understand. Colloq.

twig (twĭg), n. [AS. twig, twigge; akin to D. twijg, OHG. zwīg, G. zweig, and to AS. twi- two. See TWI-.] 1. A small shoot or branch; a portion of stem of no definite length or size.

The Britons had boats made of willow twigs, covered on the outside with hides. Raleigh.

2. A divining rod.
3. Anat. A minute branch of a nerve or artery.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

twig-formed	twig-lined	twig-suspended twig-green	twig-strewn	twig-wrought twig, v. t. To beat, as with a twig or twigs; to switch.

twig, n. Fashion; mode; style. Colloq., Eng. & Ir.

A plan she formed for going to the ball in proper twig. S. Lever.

twig, n. & v. [Cf. TWICK.] Pull; twitch; tweak. Dial.

twig, v. i. To be energetic; to work hard. Obs. exc. Dial.

twig beetle. Any of various small beetles, esp. bark beetles, that bore in twigs.

twig blight. Plant Pathol. Any dying back of the terminal branches or twigs of woody plants, as that occurring in fire blight, brown rot, etc. Cf. DIEBACK, WITHERTIP.

twig borer. Any of certain small beetles, or their larvae or the larvae of small moths, which bore in twigs of trees or shrubs, as the apple twig borer, peach twig borer (see these terms).

twig caterpillar. Any of several slender measuring worms (family Geometridae) which assume a resting and protective position on the side of a twig, attached by the anal prolegs.

twig drop. Plant Pathol. The shedding of twigs or small branches caused by nutritional disturbances.

twig gall. Any of numerous galls that develop on the twigs of trees or shrubs.

twigged (twĭgd), adj. Having twigs, as of a specified kind or color; — often used in combination; as, gray-twigged.

twig'gen (twĭg'ĕn), adj. Made of twigs; covered with wickerwork. Archaic & Dial.

twig'ger (-ĕr), n. 1. One who twigs (in any sense).
2. A fornicator. Obs.

twig girdler. = GIRDLER, 4.

twig'gy (twĭg'ĭ), adj.; TWIG'GI·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); TWIG'GI·EST. Of, pertaining to, like, or suggesting, a twig or twigs; as: a Slight, as a twig; thin and delicate.

The sandpipers staggered on twiggy legs. C. Morley.

b Full of or abounding in twigs. "Twiggy trees," Evelyn.

twig insect. A stick insect.

twig'let (twĭg'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A small twig. Rare.

Twenty-five Methodist Articles of Religion. See ARTICLES OF RELIGION.

'twere (twûr; cf. WERE). A contraction of it were.

twey. ✝ TWAY.

twey'fold', adj. Twofold. Obs.

twice'–ac·cen'ed co'tate. See PITCH, Illust.

twice pinnate. See PINNATE.

twicet (twīst; 232). Dial. var. of TWICE.

twich. ✝ TOUCH, TOUGH.

twich. Var. & ref. sp. of TWITCH.

twicht. Twitched. Ref. Sp.

twick (twĭk), n. & v. [AS. twician. See TWITCH; cf. TWEAK.] = 1st & 2d TWITCH. Obs. exc. Dial.

twi'er (twī'ĕr). Corrupt. of TOUPÉE. twi'–faced' (twī'fāst'), adj. [twi- + faced.] Two-faced. Obs.

twi'–forked' (twī'fôrkt'), adj. Bifurcated. Obs.

twig'ful, n. See -FUL.

twight. Obs. past part. of TWITCH. twight. ✝ TWIT.

twig'less, adj. See -LESS.

twig'like', adj. See -LIKE.

twig pruner. Any of numerous small beetles whose larvae bore in twigs of trees cutting them off as if pruned, as those of the genus Hypermallus (see PRUNER, 2) infesting various hardwood trees in America.

Twig Pruner (Hypermallus parallelus). a Imago; b Section of Twig containing Pupa. (× 1¼) twig rush. Any rushlike sedge of the genus Cladium, esp. C. mariscoides, most of which have harsh-edged leaves.

twig'with'y (twĭg'wĭth'ĭ; -wĭth'ĭ), n. [twig + withy.] The osier willow.

twi'light' (twī'lĭt'), n. [ME., fr. AS. twi- two + lēoht light; cf. LG. twelecht, D. tweelicht, G. zwielicht. See TWI-; LIGHT.] 1. The light from the sky between full night and sunrise, or between sunset and full night. Twilight is sunlight scattered once or (the fainter) twice by the atmosphere and its dust. 2. Hence, a faint light; a dubious, obscure, or uncertain, medium through which anything is viewed.

The twilight of probability. Locke.

3. Figuratively, an intermediate state; a condition considered as suggesting the transition from light to darkness; as, people entering the twilight of life.

4. The color twilight blue.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

twilight-enfolded twilight-hushed twilight-seeming twilight-hidden twilight-loving twilight-tinctured twi'light', adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, the twilight; as, twilight dews; twilight thoughts; also, appearing in, or haunting, the twilight; as, a twilight bat. 2. Imperfectly illuminated; shaded; obscure.

O'er the twilight groves and dusky caves. Pope.

3. Suggestive of the condition of twilight, as being intermediate between what is bright and clear and what is dark and obscure. "In the civilized world there prevails a twilight mood which finds expression in all sorts of odd aesthetic fashions." T. Carver.

twi'light', v. t. To illuminate faintly. Rare.

twilight arch. Meteorol. A pinkish band along the eastern horizon, at and after sunset, which slowly rises as the sun descends, and forms an arch with a dark bluish area beneath, being the earth's shadow on the sky.

twilight blue. A color, greenish-blue in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

twilight home. A charitable institution providing a home for aged people. Colloq., Australia.

Twilight of the Gods. = RAGNAROK.

twilight parallel. The small circle of the celestial sphere parallel to the horizon and 18° below it, on the sun's crossing which twilight ceases or dawn begins.

twilight sleep. [Trans. of G. dämmerschlaf.] A condition of partial anesthesia, or subconsciousness, which dulls awareness to pain and softens or effaces memory of pain, as from childbirth. It is produced by hypodermic injection of morphine and scopolamine. Used also figuratively.

twilight state. Psychiatry. A dreamy state, lacking touch with present reality, occurring in epilepsy, hysteria, dementia praecox, and some other abnormal conditions.

twilight vision. Psychol. Rod vision by the dark-adapted eye in dim light; scotopia. See DUPLICITY THEORY, PURKINJE EFFECT.

twi'light'y (twī'lĭt'ĭ), adj. Like or suggestive of twilight.

twilight zone. 1. See OCEANIC AREA.

2. An undefined boundary region where distinctions are not clear, as in political science, economics, racial geography (see GRAY ZONE), or religion.

twi'lit' (twī'lĭt'), adj. Lighted by or as by twilight; dimly illuminated.

twill (twĭl), n. [ME. twile (obs. E. twilly), fr. AS. twili, fr. twi-; cf. G. zwillich twilled cloth. See TWI-; cf. TWEED.] 1. An appearance of diagonal lines or ribs produced in textile fabrics by passing the weft threads over one and under two or more warp threads, instead of over one and under the next.

2. A fabric woven with a twill.

twill, v. t.; TWILLED (twĭld); TWILL'ING. To weave, as cloth, so as to produce the appearance of diagonal lines or ribs on the surface.

twill, v. t. To quill, or flute, as cloth.

twill, n. [Var. of QUILL.] A quill; reed; spool. Dial. Eng.

't will (twĭl; 71). Contraction of it will.

twilled (twĭld), adj. Perhaps, covered with reeds or sedges; reedy; sedgy; or, having ridges; ridgy. The meaning in Shakespeare's Tempest, IV. i. 64, is in dispute.

twill'er (twĭl'ẽr), n. One who or a machine that twills.

twill'-wo'ven, adj. Woven with a twill, as certain fabrics.

twil'ly (twĭl'ĭ), n. Also twilly devil. [Cf. WILLY.] A willow for cleansing or loosening wool, etc.

twill'y, n. [See TWILL.] A kind of coarse woolen stuff. Obs.

twi'-mind'ed, adj. Of two opinions (about a question); doubtful as to which course to pursue, answer to give, etc.

twin (twĭn), adj. [ME., fr. AS. twinn; akin to D. tweeling a twin, G. zwilling, OHG. zwiniling, ON. tvennr, tvinnr, two and two, twin, and to AS. twi- two. See TWI-.] 1. Twain; two. Obs.

2. Made up of two distinct, nearly related, and equal, members; double; twofold.

3. Specif.: a Consisting of, or being, twins, or a pair; as, twin boys. b Composed of two like or nearly related parts or factors; of two parts joined or acting as one. c Bot. Didymous.

4. Standing in the relation of a twin; esp., being one of two born at a birth; as, a twin brother or sister.

5. Cryst. Of the nature of a twin; formed by twinning.

twin, n. 1. A couple; a pair; two. Obs.

2. a One of two persons or things closely related by ties of birth, resemblance, or the like. b Specif., one of two produced at a birth, esp. by an animal that ordinarily brings forth but one at a birth; — chiefly pl. and applied to the young of beasts as well as to human young. Identical twins develop from a single fertilized egg cell by its complete division, or separation in the two-cell stage; they are markedly similar mentally and physically and always of the same sex. Fraternal twins develop from two eggs, are not necessarily of the same sex, and may be quite unlike.

☞ Colloquially, the phrase a pair of twins is commonly used to designate two offspring born at one birth.

3. An aerial of twin, or two similar, strands.

4. pl. [cap.] Astron. = GEMINI, 1 a.

5. Cryst. A compound crystal composed of two or more crystals, or parts of crystals, in reversed position with reference to each other. The relative position of the parts of a twin may be explained by supposing one part to be revolved 180° about a certain axis (the twinning axis), this axis being normal to a plane (the twinning plane) which is usually one of the fundamental planes of the crystal. This revolution brings the two parts into parallel position, or vice versa. A contact twin is one in which the parts are united by a plane surface, called the composition face, usually the same as the twinning plane. A penetration twin is one in which the parts interpenetrate each other, often very irregularly. Twins are also called, according to form, cruciform, geniculate, etc. When more than two simple crystals are involved, the twinning is said to be repeated. Polysynthetic twinning is repeated twinning in parallel, which sometimes, as in the case of the triclinic feldspars, is shown as a series of striations on the surface. Repeated twinning not in parallel, i.e., in which the successive twinning planes are inclined to one another, tends to produce cyclic forms, which often resemble simple crystals of another system.

Twins, 5. A Octahedron showing the Twinning Plane a b c d e f. B Twinned Octahedron (Contact Twins). C Penetration (Cruciform) Twin of Staurolite.

6. Oil Drilling. Usually pl. Any well drilled on the same location as an existing oil well or gas well to tap a different producing formation. An oil well may have four or five twins.

twin (twĭn), v.; TWINNED (twĭnd); TWIN'NING. Intransitive: 1. To bring forth twins.

2. To be mated, or coupled, with another; specif., to be born at the same birth.

—, Transitive: To bring forth as twins; to cause to be twins, or like twins, in any way; to couple; to match; as, eye and hand are twinned in action.

twin-. A combining form of twin, n. or twin, adj., forming adjectives:

twin-balled	twin-headed	twin-spiked
twin-bearing	twin-hued	twin-spired twin-begot	twin-leaved	twin-spot twin-blossomed	twin-lens	twin-striped twin-cylinder	twin-light	twin-towered twin-engined	twin-named	twin-towned twin-existent	twin-peaked	twin-tractor twin-float	twin-power	twin-wheeled twin-forked	twin-roller	twin-wire twin-gun

twin (twĭn), v. t. & i. To part; sever; sunder; deprive (of). Obs. exc. Scot. "Ere that we farther twin." Chaucer.

twin band mill. A mill with both a right-hand and a left-hand saw. The saws are adjustable and may be mounted on separate frames.

twin'ber'ry (twĭn'bĕr'ĭ; -bĕr-ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-ĭz). a A shrubby North American honeysuckle (Lonicera involucrata) with purple involucrate flowers. b = PARTRIDGE-BERRY a.

twin boat, or twin ship. Naut. A vessel whose deck and upper works rest on two parallel hulls, sometimes with a single paddle-wheel between them, as in some river steamers.

twin'born' (twĭn'bôrn'; 66), adj. Born at the same birth.

twin Brethren or Brothers. Castor and Pollux. See DIOSCURI; GEMINI, 1 a.

Twin Cities. St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minnesota; — a nickname.

T winding. Elec. T connection.

twine (twĭn), n. [AS. twīn, prop., a twisted or double thread; akin to D. twijn, ON. tvinni, G. zwirn thread, E. twist, and to AS. twi- two. See TWI-; cf. TWICE, TWIST.] 1. A strong thread composed of two or three smaller threads or strands twisted together, used for various purposes, as for binding small parcels, making nets, and the like. A pound of ordinary four-ply cotton twine is about 5,280 feet in length.

2. Act of twining, or winding, round; a twining.

3. A twist, as formed by winding; a convolution. Rare.

Typhon huge, ending in snaky twine. Milton.

4. An entwining, or interlacing; a twined or interlaced part, or an object distinguished by having such parts; hence, a snarl, or tangle; also, an interlaced branch or spray of a plant, an ivy, etc.

5. A peculiar ocean ripple preceding a southeast gale on the coast of Great Britain; — locally so called.

6. A color, reddish-yellow in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance; — called also anamite, dune. Cf. COLOR.

7. Basketry. A lattice of rods bound closely together by a wrapping of pliable material.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

twine-bound twine holder twine spinner twine braider twinemaker twine-spinning, adj.
twine-colored twinemaking twine-toned twine cutter twine polisher twine-twisting, adj.

twine (twĭn), v.; TWINED (twĭnd); TWIN'ING (twĭn'ĭng). [ME. twynen; akin to D. twijnen to twine, ON. & Sw. tvinna, Dan. tvinde and to E. TWINE, n.] Transitive: 1. To twist together; also, to form by twisting or winding of threads; loosely, to weave; as, fine twined linen.

2. To twist; turn. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

3. To wind, as one thread around another, or as any flexible substance around another body; to wreathe.

Let me twine mine arms about that body. Shak.

4. To wind about; to embrace; entwine; encircle.

Let wreaths of triumph now my temples twine. Pope.

5. To prolong; to stretch out. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

6. To interweave; intermingle; mingle; mix. Obs.

—, Intransitive: 1. To be wound, woven, or twisted, together; to intertwine; twist.

2. To wind; bend; turn; also, to coil or curl, as a vine.

As rivers, though they bend and twine,
Still to the sea their course incline. Swift.

3. To turn round; to revolve. Obs.

4. To warp; to bend out of shape. Obs.

Syn. — Wrap, infold, coil.

twine (twĭn), v. t. & i. [Cf. ME. twinnen to separate, and E. TWIN.] To part; sunder. Scot.

twine. Dial. var. of WHINE.

twin earthquake. See EARTHQUAKE.

twine binder. Agric. Mach. a The binding mechanism of a binder. b A binder using twine to bind the grain or fodder into bundles. — twine'-bind'ing, adj.

twine'bush' (twĭn'bŏŏsh'), n. An Australian shrub (Hakea flexilis).

twin equatorial. Astron. a Two telescopes, often a reflector and a refractor, mounted on the two ends of the declination axis. b Two identical photographic telescopes on the same mounting.

twin'er (twĭn'ẽr), n. One who or that which twines; esp.: a A plant that climbs by twining about a support, as the morning-glory. b A twine reeler (which see); also, its operator.

twine reeler. A kind of machine for twisting twine, esp. twofold yarns; a kind of mule, or spinning machine.

twin'flow'er (twĭn'flou'ẽr), n. Either of the low, prostrate, vinelike plants Linnaea borealis, of northern Europe and Asia, and L. americana, of northern North America. They have opposite leaves and fragrant flowers in pairs on slender, upright stalks. See LINNAEA.

twin'fold' (-fōld'), adj. Twofold.

twinge (twĭnj), v.; TWINGED (twĭnjd); TWING'ING (twĭn'jĭng). [ME. twengen, fr. AS. twengan to pinch, squeeze; akin to ME. twingen to pain, afflict; cf. OFris. thwinga to constrain, D. dwingen, OS. thwingan, G. zwingen, OHG. dwingan to press, oppress, overcome, ON. thvinga, Sw. tvinga to subdue, constrain, Dan. tvinge. Cf. THONG.] Transitive: 1. To afflict; oppress; constrain. Obs.

2. To pull with a twitch; to tweak; twitch. Rare. "He would willingly twinge the cheeks of all nine." Leigh Hunt.

3. To affect with a sharp, sudden pain; to torment with pinching or sharp pains.

A sly spark
Of admiration twinged him like a pain. Amy Lowell.

—, Intransitive: To have a sudden, sharp, local pain, like a twitch; to suffer a keen, darting, or shooting, pain.

twinge, n. 1. A pinch; tweak; twitch.

2. A sudden sharp pain; a darting local momentary pain; as, a twinge in the arm; a twinge of conscience.

Syn. — See PANG.

twin'gle (twĭng'g'l; -'l), v. i. & t. To turn; wind. Scot. & Dial.

twin'gle-twan'gle (twĭng'g'l-twăng'g'l; twĭng''l-twăng''l), n. & v. Also twing'-twang'. Twang.

twink (twĭngk), v. i & t. Twitter; chirp. Rare.

twink, n. The chaffinch. Local, Eng. & Scot.

twink, n. & v. [See TWINKLE.] Wink; twinkle.

twink, v. i. To tinkle; clink. Obs.

twink, v. t. To punish; thrash.

twin'kle (twĭng'k'l), v.; TWIN'KLED (-k'ld); TWIN'KLING (-klĭng). [ME. twinklen, AS. twinclian; akin to ME. twinken to blink, wink, G. zwinken, zwinkern.] Intransitive: 1. To open and shut the eye rapidly or twitchingly; to blink; wink; also, of the eyelids, to open and close rapidly and twitchingly.

The owl fell a moping and twinkling. L'Estrange.

2. To shine with an intermittent light; to flash, or appear to flash, at intervals; to sparkle; scintillate; as, a star that twinkles.

3. To appear at intervals while moving rapidly to and fro or backward and forward; as, feet twinkling in a dance.

The twinkling leaves that twirl on summer trees. F. Thompson.

—, Transitive: 1. To cause to twinkle; to blink; wink; shake. "He would half open his wings, and twinkle them caressingly." Burroughs.

2. To discharge in quick intermittent gleams; as, fireflies twinkle a faint light.

3. To affect or influence by or as if by twinkling. Rare.

twin'kle (twĭng'k'l), n. 1. A closing or opening, or a quick motion, of the eye; a wink or sparkle of the eye.

2. A brief or an intermittent flash or gleam; a flicker; a glimmer; sparkle.

3. The time occupied by a single wink; a twinkling.

twin'kle, v. i. = 1st TINKLE, 2 & 3.

twin'kle-dum (twĭng'k'l-dŭm), n. The strum of a guitar.

twin'kler (twĭng'k'lẽr), n. One who or that which twinkles; specif., in fireworks, a kind of small sparkler.

twin'kles (-k'lz), n. pl. Pine needles. Dial.

twin'kling (twĭng'klĭng), n. 1. Act of one that twinkles; a quick movement of the eye; a wink; twinkle.

2. A momentary variation in brightness of a star, due to the varying density of the air, which produces constantly changing refractive and interference effects; scintillation.

3. The time occupied by a single wink; a moment.

In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye. 1 Cor. xv. 52.

— in the twinkling of a bedstaff or bedpost. Instantaneously; with lightning speed; — orig. from the use of the bedstaff as a weapon. Cf. BEDSTAFF. Now Rare.

twin'kling, adj. That twinkles; gleaming intermittently. — twin'kling-ly, adv.

twin'kly (twĭng'klĭ), adj. Twinkling; sparkling.

twin'leaf' (twĭn'lēf'), n. The plant Jeffersonia diphylla.

twin'-lens' cam'er-a. A camera fitted with two lenses optically corrected to make them identical in their application.

twin'ling (twĭn'lĭng), n. [twin + 1st -ling.] A twin.

twin'ly (-lĭ), adj. Resembling or suggesting a twin in appearance, character, function, or the like.

twin mill. Mach. Either of a pair of straddle mills.

twin'-mo'tor (66), adj. Also twin'-mo'tored. Having two similar motors, as some airplanes.

twinned (twĭnd), adj. Cryst. Formed by twinning.

twin'ner (twĭn'ẽr), n. 1. One who bears twins.

2. An operator of a machine (twinning machine) for cutting two combs out of each blank.

twin'ning (twĭn'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TWIN. Hence: n. 1. The bearing of twins; production of a pair instead of one, as of nut kernels.

2. Loosely, the coupling of two related persons or objects for some special purpose or consideration.

The usual twinning of Homer and Vergil. Saintsbury.

3. Cryst. The assemblage of two or more crystals, or parts of crystals, in reversed position with reference to each other in accordance with some law, called a twinning law; also, a similar assemblage, called secondary twinning, produced by external conditions, sometimes artificial, as by pressure in a rock mass, after formation of the mineral.

twin'ning, n. [See TWIN to separate, TWIN, adj.] Separation. Obs.

twinning axis, twinning plane. See TWIN, n., 5.

twin'-screw', adj. Shipbuilding. Having two propeller screws, one on each side of the plane of the keel, one right-handed and one left-handed.

twig'some, adj. See -SOME.
twil, twild. Twill; twilled. R. S. twi'light'less, adj. See -LESS. twi'light'like', adj. See -LIKE. twill'ing, n. = 1st TWILL, 2. twilt (twĭlt). Var. of QUILT, n. & v. Obs. exc. Dial. twin'a-ble (twĭn'ē-b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
twind, v. t. & i. [From twine, after twined, or wind, v.] To twist; twine. Obs. twind. Twinned. Ref. Sp. twin'dle (twĭn''l), n. & v. = TWIN, n. & v. Obs. exc. Dial. twine'a-ble, adj. See -ABLE. twine'less, adj. See -LESS. twine'like', adj. See -LIKE.
twin'hood, n. See -HOOD. twin'ing-ly (twĭn'ĭng-lĭ), adv. of twining, pres. part. [-ISM b. twin'ism (twĭn''ĭz'm), n. See twin'kl, twin'kid. Twinkle; twinkled. Ref. Sp. [-PROOF twin'kle-proof' (66), adj. See twink'less, adj. See -LESS. twin'like', adj. & adv. See -LIKE. twin'ness (twĭn'nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. See -NESS. [MING. twinning law. See 1st TWIN-twin-screw pump. Mach. A displacement pump consisting of a casing containing two parallel screws with intermeshing threads fitted to prevent backward movement of the fluid.

twin ship. See TWIN BOAT.
twin sister. a A girl born as one of twins. b A twin-flower (Linnaea americana).
twin sisterhood. The relation of being twin sisters; hence, close affinity in interests, sympathies, and ways of life.
twin'-six', n. a An internal-combustion engine having twelve cylinders arranged in two banks of six cylinders each, arranged in a V. b An automobile having such an engine.
twin'some·ness (twĭn'sŭm·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. The state or quality of being as like as twins; resemblance in appearance, sympathies, function, or the like.
Twin Stars. Astron. Castor and Pollux. twin stock. Beekeeping. A beehive containing two colonies of bees.
twin suns. Astron. A binary, or double star, whose components are nearly equal in magnitude.
twin tap. In a surface carburetor, a mixing chamber having two valves, one to regulate the air supply to dilute the mixture from the carburetor proper, and the other the supply of mixture to the engine.
twin telescope. Astron. A twin equatorial. twin'ter (twĭn'tĕr), n. [AS. twiwintre of two years.] A sheep two years old; — also applied to cattle and horses. — twin'ter, adj. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
twin valve. A valve with one supply and two discharge openings.
twin'y (twīn'ĭ), adj. a Of twine; like or suggestive of twine. b Twining; interlacing. twiny leg. The marsh painted cup. Dial. Eng.
twire (twīr), v. i. [Cf. MHG. zwieren.] Obs. exc. Scot. a To glance obliquely; to peer; leer. b To gaze earnestly. c To twinkle; glance; gleam. twire, n. A sly look; leer. Obs. twire, v. t. To curl or twist. Obs. twire, n. A twisted filament; a thread. Obs. twirl (twûrl), v.; TWIRLED (twûrld); TWIRL'ING. [Cf. AS. þwiril a churn staff, a stirrer, flail, þweran, āþweran, to agitate, twirl, G. zwirlen, quirlen, querlen, to twirl, to turn round or about, OHG. dweran, Nor. dial. tvirla to twirl. Cf. TROWEL.] Transitive: 1. To move or turn round rapidly; to whirl round; to turn rapidly with the fingers.

Taught with dexterous hand to twirl the wheel. Dodsley.

2. To twist, as threads; esp., to twist the hairs of (one's mustache, or beard).
3. Baseball. To pitch. Slang.
—, Intransitive: 1. To revolve rapidly; to be whirled round; to spin; whirl.
2. To coil; to writhe in a twisting motion, as a serpent; to twine.
3. Baseball. To pitch. Slang.
Syn. — TWIRL, WHIRL. To TWIRL is to turn lightly and rapidly, esp. with the fingers; WHIRL implies greater velocity or energy of rotation; as, "whirligigs twirled round by skillful swains" (Pope); "The great brand . . . flashing round and round, and whirled in an arch, shot like a streamer of the northern morn" (Tennyson).
twirl, n. 1. Act of twirling; a rapid circular motion; a whirl or whirling; quick rotation.
2. A twist; coil; eddy; convolution.

Do you take off your hat when you meet a dust twirl? J. Stephens.

twirl'er (twûr'lĕr), n. 1. One who or that which twirls; specif.: a Ceramics. One who operates a lathe in making pottery; a turner. b Textile Mfg. A twister.
2. A skeleton key. Slang.
3. Baseball. A pitcher. Slang.
twirl'y (-lĭ), adj. Twisting; curling; coiling. twis'el (twĭs''l; twĭz''l), n. & v. [AS. twisel (in comp.); cf. AS. twislian to fork. See TWI-.] Fork. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. twist (twĭst), v.; TWIST'ED; TWIST'ING. [ME. twisten to twist, to strip of leaves, fr. AS. twist (in comp.) a rope, as made of two (twisted) strands; cf. also ME. twist a twist, tendril, twig, AS. twist a branch; akin to D. twist a quarrel, dissension, G. zwist, ON. tvistra to scatter, separate. See TWINE, n.] Transitive: 1. To unite by winding one thread, strand, or other flexible substance, round another; to form by or as by twining or winding separate threads, strands, or the like, into a single thread; as, to twist yarn or thread; to twist wool or cotton.

Was it not to this end
That thou began'st to twist so fine a story? Shak.

2. Hence, to wreathe; twine; wind; encircle; as, to twist her curls around her finger; to twist silk thread on a reel.

Longing to twist bays with that ivy. Waller.

3. To wrench; turn; contort; twirl into spiral shape; specif.: a To crook spirally; to writhe; convolve. b To distort, as a solid body, by turning one part relatively to another about an axis passing through both; to subject to torsion; as, to twist a shaft. c To compress, constrain, or bring, by or as by torsion; to wring; press; hence, to wring; torment; torture; also, to confuse; perplex.

I felt death mine heart twist. Chaucer.
And with a dexterous jerk soon twists him down. Cowper.

d To turn from the true form or meaning; to pervert; as, to twist a passage cited from an author.
4. To wind into; to insinuate; — used reflexively; as, avarice twists itself into all human concerns.
5. In Obs. uses: a Dial. Eng. To strip of leaves; prune; lop. b To nauseate. c To hang.
6. Life Insurance. To induce (a person), esp. by misrepresentation or trickery, to drop a policy already in force in a company other than that of the twisting agent for one in the agent's company.
—, Intransitive: 1. To be united by being twisted or wound together; to be intertwined.
2. To coil; wind; wreathe.
3. To be contorted or distorted by or as if by torsion; specif.: a To curve in the form of a spiral; to be bent or turned; hence, to writhe. b To move with a turning motion; to revolve in motion; as, a slow twisting ball. c To follow a winding route; to meander; as, the river twisted through the meadows to the sea.
4. To be or become parted or divided; to separate. Obs.
twist round one's finger or little finger. To influence (a person) at will.
twist the lion's tail. To speak or act with the purpose of arousing British resentment. Slang, U. S.
twist (twĭst), n. [See TWIST, v.] 1. That which is formed by twisting, convoluting, or winding together, parts; specif.: a A cord, thread, or anything flexible, formed by winding strands or separate things round each other. b A kind of closely twisted, strong, sewing silk, used by tailors, saddlers, etc. c A kind of tightly twisted cotton yarn. d A roll of twisted dough, baked. e Tobacco in the form of a thick twisted roll.
2. Act or manner of twisting, or state of being twisted; specif.: a The manner of twisting or twining together strands or flexible substances; interlacing or interweaving; hence, a knot, web, or the like, formed by twisting.

He found fault with the length . . . and the twist. Arbuthnot.

b A bending; convolution; flexure; deviation; turning.

Not the least turn or twist in the fibers of any one animal which does not render them more proper for that particular animal's way of life than any other cast or texture. Addison.

c Act of imparting a turning or twisting motion, as to a pitched ball; a twirl; spin; also, the motion thus imparted; as, the twist of a billiard ball. d A wrenching or distorting; a twisting, turning, or straining out of place; a wrench; as, he fell and gave his knee a bad twist. e A strong individual tendency, or bent; a marked inclination; a bias; — often implying tendency in a peculiar or unusual direction; as, a twist toward religious fanaticism.

There must be a peculiar twist in his father's brain. Arnold Bennett.

3. a Torque or torsional stress applied to a body, as a rod or shaft. b Torsional strain. c The angle through which a thing is twisted.
4. A twig, branch, tendril, or spray. Obs.
5. A hinge. Obs.
6. A beverage made by mixing liquors. Slang, Eng.
7. An appetite. Slang, Brit.
8. A woman; a "skirt." Low Slang.
9. a Rare. The bifurcated part of the human frame; fork. b In animals, the fleshing between the hind legs where the thighs come together.
10. The curved tail of certain animals, as the pug.
11. Cordage. The number of turns of the strands of a cord per unit length.
12. Fancy Diving. Any front or back dive in which the diver, beginning usually at the highest point of the diver, executes, in corkscrew fashion but without bending the body, a half turn (half twist) or a complete turn (full twist), the turn being accomplished by twisting the shoulders sideways so that the body follows the movement.
13. Firearms. a A material for gun barrels, consisting of iron and steel twisted and welded together; as, Damascus twist. b The spiral course of the rifling of a barrel.

By twist of rifling is meant the inclination of the groove, at any point, to the axis of the gun. When this inclination is constant, the twist is said to be uniform; when it increases gradually from the breech, the twist is said to be increasing. U. S. Coast Artillery Drill Regs.

14. Glass Mfg. A spiral line, often colored, in the stem of glasses. See AIRTWIST.
15. Plant Pathol. A disease of wheat and rye caused by the fungus Dilophospora alopecuri, in association with the eelworm Tylenchus tritici, which causes earcockle of wheat. See EARCOCKLE.
16. Weaving. One of the threads of a warp, usually more tightly twisted than the filling.
Syn. — See TURN.
— a twist in one's tongue. An impediment in one's speech.
Twist, Oliver. See OLIVER TWIST. twist belting. Belting twisted into a helical curve. twist bit. A boring bit like the twist drill. See SPUR BIT; 1st BIT, 9, Illust. twist drill. A drill having one or more (usually two) deep helical grooves extending from the point to the smooth portion of the shank. See 1st DRILL, 1 a. twist'ed (twĭs'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), past tense & past part. of TWIST. — twist'ed·ly, adv.
twisted beard grass. See GRASS, Table.
twisted cubic. Math. A cubic space curve, cut by an arbitrary plane in three points.
twisted curve. Geom. A space curve; one not lying wholly in a plane. twisted eglantine. The common honeysuckle (Lonicera periclymenum) of Europe. twisted flower. Any plant of the genus Strophanthus. twisted gear wheel, etc. Mach. A screw wheel, esp. one having its axis parallel to another wheel that meshes with it. twisted heath. A low, evergreen shrub (Erica cinerea) of southern Europe, with small, bell-shaped, rosy-purple flowers; — called also Scotch heath. It is naturalized at Nantucket. twist'ed-horn', n. The screw tree.
twisted pine. a The coast form (Pinus contorta) of the lodgepole pine (which see). b The ocote. twisted shovel. Agric. Mach. A shovel cultivator with a curved and twisted surface, used for throwing soil toward the roots of cultivated crops.
twist'ed-stalk', n. Any plant of the genus Streptopus, family Liliaceae, esp. S. roseus of eastern North America. It has a slightly twisted stem, nodding, usually greenish or purplish flowers, and red berries.
twisted surface. Geom. A surface described by a straight line moving according to any law so that two consecutive positions of the line shall in general not be in one plane; a skew surface; scroll.
twisted suture. = HARELIP SUTURE. twist'ened (twĭs't'nd), adj. Twisted; tangled. Dial. Eng.
twist'er (twĭs'tĕr), n. 1. One who twists; specif.: a Weaving. The person who joins warp threads by twisting. b One who rotates, coils, rolls, or bends something. c Colloq. One who grossly exaggerates or who lies; one who turns his statements this way and that to escape telling a truth which may have an unpleasant effect; also, the lie or evasion thus uttered.
2. One that twists, or a device operated by twisting; specif.: a A ball with a combined onward and spinning motion, as in Baseball a curve, in Cricket a break or swerve, in Billiards a ball with English, or side, etc. b A machine or device for twisting in spinning, in manufacture of thread, etc. c = SPANISH WINDLASS. d Agric. Mach. A swivel plow. See PLOW, n., 1. e A device, as a tourniquet, by which a torsion is exerted. f A device used for twisting small stumps out of the ground. g A device, sometimes used in subduing a violent prisoner, by which an arm or hand may be painfully twisted.
3. A tornado, waterspout, sand column, or dust whirl, in which the rotatory ascending movement of a column of air is specially apparent. Local, U. S.
4. A somersault in which the acrobat performs a difficult twist of his body in air.
5. A writhing, twisting movement by which a horse may try to unseat his rider. Colloq.
6. A twisted roll, doughnut, or cruller.
7. A tree having a twisted grain. Local, U. S.
8. The inner part of the thigh, the proper place to rest upon when on horseback. Craig.
9. The mallard. Local, Ill.
10. Carp. A girder. Obs. twist'er, v. t. & i. To wind; turn; twist. Obs. exc. Dial.
twist'i·cal (twĭs'tĭ·kăl), adj. Evasive; sly; underhanded. Dial. or Slang., U. S. twist'i·fi·ca'tion (twĭs'tĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. Something twisting or twisted; esp., Local, U. S., a country-dance in which the dancing couples are continually weaving in and out around a circle.
twist'ing (twĭs'tĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TWIST. Hence: adj. That twists (in various senses). — twist'ing·ly, adv.
twisting machine. A machine for twisting, as thread into fancy yarn, rope strands into cordage, etc.; specif., Silk Mfg., a machine similar to the spinner but twisting the silk in the opposite direction from the spinning. twisting pair. See PAIR, n., 12. twist'i·wise' (twĭs'tĭ·wīz'), twist'i·ways' (-wāz'), adv. [See -WISE; -WAYS.] In a twisty shape or manner; twistily. twis'tle (twĭs''l), n. & v. [See TWIST.] Twist; wrench. Scot. & Dial. Eng. twist stitch. An embroidery stitch made by twisting the thread over and over a straight thread fastened on the material; — called also cord stitch.
twist'y (twĭs'tĭ), adj. 1. Twisted; having a twist or twists; winding; coiling; curving; bending.
2. Fretful; also, evasive; elusive; tricky; dishonest. twist'y, n. The screw tree.
twist'y-wist'y (-wĭs'tĭ), adj. Twisting; winding. Colloq.
twit (twĭt), v. t.; TWIT'TED; TWIT'TING. [ME. atwiten, fr. AS. ætwītan to reproach, blame, fr. æt at + wītan to reproach, blame; orig. to observe, see, hence, to observe what is wrong (cf. the meanings of E. animadvert); akin to G. verweisen to censure, OHG. firwīzan, Goth. fraweitan to avenge, L. videre to see. See VISION, WIT.] To reproach, taunt, or upbraid, esp. by reminding of a fault, defect, misfortune, or the like; to taunt; — now usually followed by with; as, to twit one with low birth.

Aesop minds men of their errors, without twiting them for what is amiss. L'Estrange.

Syn. — See RIDICULE. Ant. — Compliment, praise. twit, n. Act of twitting; a taunting allusion or reminder.
twit, n. An entanglement or unevenness in yarn, usually formed in spinning or drawing.
twit, v. i. Weaving. To develop twits. twit (twĭt), v. i. & n. Twitter; chirp. Dial. Eng. & Scot.
twitch (twĭch), v.; TWITCHED (twĭcht); TWITCH'ING. [ME. twicchen; akin to AS. twiccian, AS. angel*twicce* a worm used for bait, lit., a hook twitcher, LG. twikken to tweak, G. zwicken. Cf. TWEAK.] Transitive: 1. To pull with a jerk or quick motion; to snatch; pluck; as, to twitch one by the sleeve; to twitch off grapes.

Thrice they twitched the diamond in her ear. Pope.

2. Hence, to draw or pluck distractingly; to distract; perplex; confuse. Obs.
3. To fasten or tie tightly; to squeeze; nip. Obs. exc. Dial.
4. Logging. To skid (logs). Northern U. S. & Canada.
5. Mining. To press down upon and close; — said of rock closing upon a lode.
—, Intransitive: 1. To move jerkily, convulsively, or spasmodically; as, muscles twitch nervously.
2. To give a short quick tug or tugs; to pick; pluck; as, his fingers twitched at the bedclothes.
3. To utter taunts; to twit; carp. Rare.
4. Mining. = PINCH, v. i., 7. Obs. exc. Local, Eng.
twitch, n. 1. Act of twitching; a pull with a jerk; a short, sudden, quick pull; as, a twitch at the sleeve.
2. A short spastic contraction of the fibers or muscles; a simple muscular contraction; as, convulsive twitches; often, such a contraction accompanied by sharp pain; a twinge; pang.
3. A pair of tweezers. Obs.
4. A stick with a hole in one end through which passes a loop, to be drawn tightly over the upper lip or an ear of a horse. The stick is twisted to force the animal to keep quiet during a slight surgical operation.
5. A leather thong with a noose secured by a slipknot, used to bind a prisoner's wrists. Span. Amer.
6. Mining. = PINCH, n., 12. Obs. exc. Local, Eng. twitch, n., = TWITCH GRASS. — v. t. & i. To clear (land) of twitch grass. twitch'el (twĭch''l), n. A noose; a twitch (see 2d TWITCH, 4). — v. t. To tie up as with a twitchel. Both Dial. Eng. twitch'el, n. [Cf. AS. twicen a forked road.] A path between hedges. Dial. Eng.
twitch'el·ing (twĭch'ĕl·ĭng), n. A crease in the lower face of a horseshoe in which the nail holes are placed.
Twitch'ell proc'ess (twĭch'ĕl). [After Ernst Twitchell, Am. chemist.] A process for saponifying fats with the use of an aromatic sulphonic acid (Twitchell reagent), which acts as a catalyst. twitch'er (twĭch'ĕr), n. a One who or that which twitches. b pl. Tweezers. c Dial. A hard blow; also, a sharp pang. d = 2d TWITCH, 4.
Twitch'er, Jemmy. a A cunning robber in Gay's Beggar's Opera. b John Montagu, fourth Earl of Sandwich (1718–92); — so called from his use of bribery and political jobbery. twitch'et (twĭch'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [From twitch.] A fit of nervousness; a fidget. Dial., U. S. twitch'et·y (-ĕ·tĭ; -ĭ·tĭ), adj. Fidgety; restless. Colloq.
twitch'fire' (twĭch'fīr'), n. A fire for burning twitch grass from land.

He was a man with wide and patient eyes, gray, like the drift of twitchfires blown in June. John Drinkwater.

twitch grass. [See QUITCH GRASS.] a The couch grass Agropyron repens. b The slender foxtail. twitch road. A logging road. twitch'y (twĭch'ĭ), adj. Fidgety; irritable. Colloq.
twitch'y, adj. Made of, or abounding in, twitch, or couch, grass. Dial. Eng.
twite (twīt), n., or twite finch. [Of imitative origin.] A linnet (Carduelis flavirostris) of northern Europe and Great Britain.

twin'ship, n. See -SHIP. twint, n. [Cf. MD. twint nothing, not a jot, LG. twint, twink, a blinking of the eye, a mere nothing.] A jot; a particle. Obs. twi'rea'son, n. [twi- + reason.] A twofold reason. Obs. twire'-pipe', n. One who peeps or pries. Obs. [or twirl. Obs.] twirk (twûrk), v. i. & n. Twitch] twirld. Twirled. Ref. Sp. twirl'i·gig', n. [From twirl, after whirligig.] = WHIRLIGIG. twis'car (twĭs'kär), n. Var. of TUSKAR. Scot. twis'sle (twĭs''l). Var. of TWIZZLE. Scot. & Dial. Eng. twist'a·ble (twĭs'tă·b'l), n. See -ABLE. twist'er·er, n. Weaving. = TWISTER, 1 a. twist'i·ly, adv. of TWISTY. twist'i·ness, n. See -NESS. twist'less, adj. See -LESS. twitch. † TOUCH.
twitch'i·ly, adv. of TWITCHY. twitch'i·ness, n. See -NESS. twitch'ing·ly, adv. of TWITCHING, pres. part. twite. † THWITE.

twite (twīt), v. t. = TWIT, v. t. Obs. exc. Dial.

twit'lark' (twĭt'lärk'), n. [twit, an imitative syllable + lark.] The meadow pipit. Local, Eng.

twit'ten (twĭt''n), n. [Cf. 2d TWITCHEL.] A narrow passageway. Local, Eng.

twit'ter (twĭt'ĕr), v. [ME. twiteren, of imitative origin; cf. G. zwitschern, OHG. zwizzirōn, D, kwetteren, Sw. qvitra, Dan. kvidre.] Intransitive: 1. To make a succession of small, tremulous, intermitted noises.

The swallow twittering from the straw-built shed. Gray.

2. To titter; giggle.

3. [Perhaps influenced by twitch.] To have a slight trembling of the nerves; to be excited or agitated.

—, Transitive: 1. To utter with a twitter.

2. To shake back and forth; to twiddle. Rare.

3. To spin unevenly, as thread. Scot. & N. of Eng.

twit'ter, n. 1. Act of twittering; a small, tremulous, intermitted noise, as that made by a swallow.

2. A half-suppressed laugh; a titter; giggle; loosely, light conversation interspersed with laughter; chatter.

3. A slight trembling or agitation of the nerves.

4. Plant Pathol. A malformation of the carnation plant induced by insects.

twit'ter, v. t. To twit; taunt.

It doth not become such a one as you to twitter me. Fielding.

twit'ter (twĭt'ĕr), n. [From TWIT.] One who twits.

twit'ter, n. Thin-spun thread; hence, anything slender or feeble. Scot., N. of Eng., & Ir.

twit'ter, n. [See QUITTOR.] Whaling. The refuse of the case of a sperm whale after the oil is pressed out; also, the thick tough tissue lining the case.

twit'ter·a'tion (twĭt'ĕr·ā'shŭn), n. A twitter. Colloq.

twit'ter·er (twĭt'ĕr·ĕr), n. One who or that which twitters.

twit'ter·ing (-ĭng), part. adj. That twitters. — twit'ter·ing·ly, adv.

twit'ter·ing, n. 1. Act of one that twitters; esp., the chirping of small birds, frogs, tree toads, or the like.

2. A slight nervous excitement or agitation, such as is due to desire, expectation, or suspense.

twit'ter·ly (-lĭ), adj. Nervous; trembling. Colloq.

twit'ter·y (-ĭ), adj. Finespun; flimsy. Scot. & Ir.

twit'ting·ly (twĭt'ĭng·lĭ), adv. Tauntingly.

twit'–twat' (twĭt'twŏt'), n. The house sparrow.

twit'ty (twĭt'ĭ), adj. Having twits; uneven; — said of yarn.

'twixt (twĭkst). Aphetic form of ATWIXT; also, a contr. of BETWIXT; — formerly written twixt. Poet. & Dial.

'twixt'brain' (twĭkst'brān'), n. Anat. The diencephalon.

twiz'zle (twĭz''l), n. & v. [Cf. TWISTLE.] Twist; twirl. Dial. & Colloq.

twiz'zle–twig' (-twĭg'), n. A common spart or rush (Juncus articulatus) of the North Temperate Zone. Eng.

two (tōō), adj. [ME. two, twa, prop. fem. & neut., twei, twein, tweien, prop. masc. (whence E. twain), fr. AS. twā, fem. & neut., twēgen, masc., tū, neut.; akin to OFris. twēne, masc., twā, fem. & neut., OS. twēne, masc., twā, fem., twē, neut., D. twee, OHG. zwēne, zwō, zwei, G. zwei, ON. tveir, tvær, tvau, Sw. två, Dan. to, Goth. twai, twos, twa, Lith. du, Russ. dva, Ir, & Gael. da, W. dau, dwy, L. duo, Gr. dyo, Skr. dva, dvi. Cf. BALANCE, BAROUCHE, BETWEEN, BI-, COMBINE, DEUCE, DOUBLE, DOUBT, DOZEN, DUAL, DUEL, DUET, DYAD, REVEL, TO-, TWAIN, TWELVE, TWENTY, TWICE, TWIG, TWILIGHT, TWILL, TWIN, TWINE, TWIST.] 1. One and one; twice one; — often with ellipsis of the noun; as, cut in two. "Two black clouds." Milton.

2. Two different; — an emphatic use; as, there can be no two opinions about this.

☞ Two is combined with a noun, often with the suffix -ed added to the combination, to form compound adjectives, such compounds being written usually with a hyphen, as in:

two-angle	two-gallon	two-position
two-arched	two-grained	two-pound
two-armed	two-groove	two-principle two-aspect	two-grooved	two-pronged two-barred	two-guinea	two-quart
two-barreled	two-gun	two-rail two-base	two-handled	two-ranked two-beat	two-hinged	two-rate two-bedded	two-horned	two-rayed
two-bid	two-horse	two-roomed two-bill	two-horsepower	two-row two-blade	two-hour	two-seated two-bladed	two-humped	two-seeded two-bodied	two-inch	two-shafted
two-bond	two-leaf	two-shanked two-bottle	two-leaved	two-shaped two-branched	two-legged	two-sheave
two-bristled	two-life	two-shilling two-bushel	two-light	two-shillingly
two-capsuled	two-lined	two-shillingness two-celled	two-lobed	two-soused
two-cent	two-lunged	two-spined
two-chamber	two-man	two-spored two-chambered	two-mast	two-spotted two-charge	two-masted	two-stall
two-circle	two-membered	two-stalled two-circuit	two-mile	two-storied two-cleft	two-minded	two-story two-coat	two-minute	two-stream
two-colored	two-monthly	two-stringed two-component	two-named	two-striped two-cylinder	two-necked	two-stroke
two-day	two-needle	two-suit
two-deck	two-nerved	two-syllable two-dimensioned	two-oar	two-teeth two-dollar	two-oared	two-tined
two-eared	two-ounce	two-toed
two-edged	two-parted	two-toothed two-em	two-party	two-topped two-ended	two-pass	two-track
two-eye	two-peaked	two-tusked
two-eyed	two-petaled	two-twisted two-factor	two-piece	two-unit
two-family	two-pile	two-valved
two-figure	two-piled	two-volume two-fingered	two-pipe	two-wheel two-floor	two-place	two-wheeled two-flowered	two-platoon	two-wicked two-fluid	two-plowed	two-woods
two-footed	two-pointe	two-word
two-formed	two-pole	two-year

☞ For the use of the superlative in comparing two persons or things, see COMPARISON, n., 3.

☞ For the expressions first two and two first, see FIRST, adj., Note.

two (tōō), n.; pl. TWOS, Obs. TWOES (tōōz). 1. The number next greater than one; the sum of one and one; two units or objects.

2. A symbol representing two units, as 2, II, or ii.

3. a A group of two individuals; a pair. b In various games or sports, a side or team of two.

4. Something having, or regarded as having, a value of two units, or something marked with a symbol or symbols representing two units; as: a A card, domino, billiard ball, etc., of such value or so marked. b A two-dollar bill. c A stroke, play, etc., scoring two points, runs (as at cricket), or the like. d A bid of two, at cards. e A rubber at bridge won by a margin of "two" (that is, two hundred).

5. Two o'clock; — often combined with a number for the minutes past the hour; as, two-four.

☞ See COMPARISON, n., 3; FIRST, adj., Note.

— two for his heels. Cribbage. A peg of two points for a jack turned up as a starter, — made before playing.

two'–a–day', adj. Occurring, performed, etc., twice daily; — said specif. of vaudeville in which the entire bill is given twice a day. — two'–a–day', n.

two'–a·long', n. Bookbinding. A method of hand sewing in which the threads are fastened on alternate ends of the kettle stitch.

two'–base' hit, or two'–bag'ger (tōō'bāg'ĕr; 66), n. Baseball. A hit on which the batter reaches second base without the aid of an error.

two'–bit', n. = TWO BITS (see 3d BIT, 8 b); hence, a trifling amount; something of small worth. Colloq., U.S. — two'–bit', adj.

two'–block', v. t. Naut. To haul up (an article) so that the two blocks of the tackle are chockablock; also, to hoist to the full extent of the hoist.

two'–blocks', adv. Naut. Chockablock.

two'–bod'ies prob'lem. Physics. The problem of determining the previous or subsequent motion, and the data for computing the places at any time, of two bodies, when given the Newtonian law of gravitation, and the masses of two bodies with their positions and motions at any moment.

two'–by–four' (tōō'bĭ·fōr'), adj. Measuring two units by four; hence, Colloq., small; petty; also, cramped. — n. Something, as a board, that is two-by-four.

two'–cen'tered, two'–cen'tred (66), adj. Of, pertaining to, or having, two centers.

two–centered arch. An arch with intrados curve described from two centers. See ARCH, Illust., (4), (5).

two'–col'or, two'–col'our, adj. Of or pertaining to two colors; specif., designating or pertaining to a photomechanical process in which printing in two colors is used. Cf. COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY.

two'–cy'cle, n. Thermodyn. A two-stroke cycle for an internal-combustion engine. See INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. — two'–cy'cle, adj.

two'–cy'cle en'gine. See INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE.

two'deck'er (66), n. a An old-time war vessel with guns on two decks. b Hence, something having two levels, layers, or the like. — two'–deck'er, adj.

two'–di·men'sion·al, adj. Math. Having two dimensions; having the co-ordinates of its points depending on two independent variables.

two estates. Eng. Hist. The lords and commons. See ESTATE, n., 4.

two'–eye' ber'ry. a The partridgeberry (Mitchella repens). b The twinflower Linnaea americana.

two'–eyes', n. The partridgeberry (Mitchella repens).

two'–faced' (tōō'fāst'; 66), adj. Having two faces; hence, double-dealing; false. — two'–fac'ed·ly (-fās'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; -fāst'lĭ), adv. — two'–fac'ed·ness (-nĕs; -nĭs), n.

two'–fam'i·ly house (66). A house for two families; — applied, according to locality, to houses of different types; as: a A house divided vertically, designed for two families living side by side but separated by a party wall. b A house divided horizontally, designed for two families occupying separate apartments one above the other.

two'–feed'er, adj. Fed by two persons; — said esp. of a printing press, a machine, or the like.

two fifths, or two'–firths', n. See FIFTH, n., 1, Note.

two'–fist'ed (66), adj. a Dial., Eng. Clumsy. b Colloq., U.S. Virile; vigorous; as, a two-fisted fighter; a fine, two-fisted story of life in the Far West.

two'fold' (tōō'fōld'), adj. [Cf. TWIFOLD.] Consisting of two things or parts; twice as much or as many; double; dual; duplex; as, a twofold nature; a twofold sense. — two'fold'ly, adv. — two'fold'ness, n.

two'fold' (66), adv. 1. To twice as much or as many; doubly.

2. So as to be doubled up. Scot.

two'fold', v. t. To fold double.

twofold purchase. A purchase of two double blocks, the standing part of the rope being fast to that from which the hauling part comes.

twofold tackle. See TACKLE, n., 3.

two'–foot', adj. Measuring two feet; two feet long, thick, or wide; as, a two-foot rule.

two'–forked' (-fôrkt'; 66), adj. Divided into two parts, somewhat after the manner of a fork; dichotomous.

Two Gentlemen of Verona, The. A comedy (1591?, pub. 1623) by Shakespeare. See 1st VALENTINE, 2; SILVIA, n., 1; LAUNCE.

two'–hand', adj. a Employing two hands. See DACTYLOLOGY. b Two-handed.

two'–hand'ed (66), adj. 1. Having two hands; — often equivalent to large, stout, or strong. "Two-handed sway." Milton.

2. Used with both hands; as, a two-handed sword.

3. Using either hand equally well; ambidextrous; also, dexterous; ready with one's hands.

4. Requiring two persons for operation, as some saws.

— two'–hand'ed·ly, adv. — two'–hand'ed·ness, n.

two–handed crack. A tête-à-tête. Scot.

two'–head'ed (66), adj. Having, or controlled by, two heads or two chiefs; as, a two-headed commission.

two–headed snake. a Any blind snake of the family Typhlopidae. b The rubber boa. c Popularly, any limbless lizard of the family Amphisbaenidae.

two'–high', adj. Designating, or pertaining to, a rolling mill with two rolls, one over the other. Cf. THREE-HIGH.

two'–leaved' Sol'o·mon's–seal'. The bead-ruby.

two leg. Cricket. = MIDDLE AND LEG.

two'–line', adj. Print. Having the depth of two lines (of the size of type named); as, two-line pica; — sometimes distinguished from double as designating a type that lines with the letter of the second of two lines placed at its side, double denoting type of the same size with its normal shoulder. Double is not now much used, the type being named by its number of points (see POINT SYSTEM) except with reference to use of a letter as an initial, which for two lines is always called two-line. For larger sizes similar adjectives are used, as three-line, four-line, ten-line.

two'ling (tōō'lĭng), n. [two + 1st -ling.] A twin crystal.

two'–lipped' (-lĭpt'; 66), adj. Having two lips; Bot., bilabiate.

two'–mast'er, n. A ship having two masts.

two'–name', adj. Banking. Having or bearing two names; as, two-name paper, that is, negotiable paper on which at least two persons are severally liable as separate makers, or, usually, one as maker and one as endorser. Colloq.

two'ness, n. Quality or state of being two; duality.

Two Noble Kinsmen. A play treating the story of Palamon and Arcite (produced 1625, pub. 1634), often attributed to Shakespeare but now generally thought to be chiefly by Fletcher with some other collaborator.

two old cat. See CAT, n., 6 d.

two or three. A few; several. Cf. TWO-THREE. Colloq.

two'–pair', adj. Situated on the second story, above two flights (pairs) of stairs; as, a two-pair front room.

two pairs. Poker. A pair of one denomination and another of different denomination held in the same hand. They rank between one pair and triplets. The odds against holding them are 20 to 1. Cf. FULL HOUSE.

two'–part', adj. Having two parts, as a founder's flask.

two'–part', n. Two thirds. Scot.

two–part form. See SONG FORM.

two'pence (tŭp'ĕns; in England pron'd tōō pĕns only when two words), n. The sum of two pence; also, a small silver coin of this value, now issued only on special occasions, as for maundy money. See COIN, Table.

two'pen·ny (tŭp'ĕn·ĭ; cf. TWOPENCE), adj. Of the value of, or costing, twopence; hence, cheap; mean.

two'pen·ny, n. a Scot. & Dial. Eng. Weak ale; orig., ale sold at twopence for a quart or more. b Scot. A child's primer.

twopenny grass. The moneywort.

two'pen·ny–half'pen·ny (-hā'pĕn·ĭ; -hāp'nĭ), adj. Of the value of, or costing, twopence halfpenny; hence, petty.

Twopenny Tube. The Central London Railway, an underground electric road or "tube" in London, Eng.; — so called from its uniform fare of twopence. Colloq.

two'–ply' (tōō'plī'), adj. 1. Consisting of two thicknesses.

2. Woven double, as cloth or carpeting, by incorporating two sets of warp thread and two of filling.

3. Of two strands or filaments; as, two-ply cord.

two–ply ingrain carpet. See INGRAIN CARPET.

two'–point', adj. Having, or concerned with, two points.

two–point perspective. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2.

two–point problem. Surv. A problem in plane-tabling in which two points are mapped on the paper and a third is occupied on the ground, to do which a fourth point is occupied temporarily.

two–point threshold or limen. Psychol. The smallest separation at which two points applied simultaneously to the skin can be distinguished from one.

two'–ranked' (-răngkt'; 66), adj. Having two ranks; specif., Bot., distichous.

two'–rev'o·lu'tion, adj. Print. Having a cylinder which makes two revolutions to each impression; — said of printing presses.

two'–rowed' (-rōd'; 66), adj. Having two rows; as, two-rowed barley, a barley having only the central one of the three spikelets of each cluster fertile, so that the spike is two-rowed.

two'–seat'er, n. A vehicle, airplane, or the like, having seats for two. See -SEATER.

two'–sid'ed (-sīd'ĕd; -Id; 66; 119), adj. Having two sides; in Math. applied specif. to a surface, and opp. to one-sided. Hence: a Double-faced; hypocritical. b Law. Bilateral. — two'–sid'ed·ness (-sīd'ĕd·nĕs; -Id·nĭs; 119), n.

two'some (tōō'sŭm; Scot. twä'sŭm), adj. [two + 2d -some.] Consisting of, or done by, two. — n. a Scot. & Dial. A couple. b Colloq. A tête-à-tête. c Golf. Incorrectly, a match between two players; — properly called a single.

two'–speed', adj. Adapted for producing or for receiving either of two speeds;—said of a power-transmitting device.

two'–spot', n. At cards, a two of any suit; hence, an unimportant person or thing. Colloq.

two'–step', n. A ballroom dance executed with a sliding step in march or polka time, popular early in the 20th century; also, a piece of music for this dance. — two'–step', adj. — two'–step', v. i. U.S.

two'–strip'er, n. See STRIPER.

two'–suit'er, n., or two'–suit' hand. Bridge. A hand containing two suits, either strong enough for an opening bid.

two'–third'er, n. Print. A workman, less skilled than a journeyman, who receives about two thirds of a journeyman's wage.

two thirds. See THIRD, n., 1, Note. — two'–thirds', adj.

two'–thirds' rule. U.S. Politics. In Democratic presidential conventions, the rule requiring a vote of at least two thirds of the delegates for nomination.

Two Thousand Guineas. Horse Racing. An annual race for three-year-old colts and fillies, run since 1809 at Newmarket, Eng.

two'–three' (tōō'thrī'; tō'-; Scot. twä'-), adj. Literally, two or three; — used for a few, or, sometimes, a number. Scot. & Dial.

two'–throw' (tōō'thrō'), adj. Mach. a Capable of being thrown or cranked in two directions, usually opposite to one another; as, a two-throw crank; a two-throw switch. b Having two cranks set near together and opposite to one another; as, a two-throw crankshaft.

two'–toed' ant'eat'er. The anteater Cyclops didactylus. See EDENTATA, Illust.

two–toed sloth. See 1st SLOTH, 4.

two'–tongued' (tōō'tŭngd'; 66), adj. Double-tongued; deceitful.

two'–to–one', adj. Mach. Designating, or pert. to, a gear for reducing or increasing a velocity ratio two to one.

twit'ter-boned', adj. [See QUITTOR.] Having an excrescence on the hoof. Obs.

twit'terd. Twittered. Ref. Sp.

twit'ter·light', n. [Cf. TWITTER, v. i.,] Twilight. Obs.

twit'tle, v. i. [Cf. TWITTER, v. i.] To chatter; also, to twitter. Obs.

twit'tle-twat' (twĭt'l·twŏt'), n. A chatterer. Obs.

twit'tle-twat'tle (-twŏt''l), n Also twit'ter-twat'ter. = TITTLE-TATTLE, n.

twiz'zened (twĭz''nd). Dial. Eng. var. of TWISTENED.

Two'-and-a-half' In'ter·na'tion·al. See INTERNATIONAL, n., 2 k.

two-and-a-half stripes. Nav. See LIEUTENANT COMMANDER.

two'-and-one'-half' stripe'er. See STRIPER, n., 2.

two'-charge' rate. See 3d RATE, [7.]

two'-cir'cuit switch. See SWITCH, n., 5. [See THREE-FIELD.]

two'-sys'tem. Eng. Hist.

two'-deck' ves'sel. See DECK, 2.

two'-di·men'sion·al mo'tion. Physics. = UNIPLANAR MOTION.

two'-em' dash. See 2d DASH, 13.

two'-field' sys'tem. Eng. Hist. See THREE-FIELD, adj.

two'-foot' oc'tave. Music. = ONCE-ACCENTED OCTAVE. See PITCH, Illust. [SIOUX.]

Two'-Ket'tle (tōō'kĕt'l), n. See two'-lined' chest'nut bor'er. See CHESTNUT BORER.

two'-line' oc'tave. Music. See PITCH, Illust.

two-part time or measure. Music. See TIME, n., 22.

two'-phase', adj., two'-phas'er (-fāz'ĕr), n. Elec. = DIPHASE, DIPHASER. See PHASE, n., 6.

two'-piece' bow. See 3d BOW, 2.

two'-pin' es·cape'ment. See ESCAPEMENT, 3.

two'-pla·toon' sys'tem. See PLATOON SYSTEM.

Two-Seed-in-the-Spirit Predestinarian Baptists. See BAPTIST, n.

two shots in. See BILLIARDS.

two'-spined' stick'le·back'. See STICKLEBACK.

two'-stroke'-cy'cle en'gine. See INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE.

two'-thirds' speed. Nav. See STANDARD SPEED.

Two to One. See YANKEE-DOODLE, 1.

two'-up', n. A gambling game somewhat like pitch and toss. Two coins are tossed from a small piece of wood called a kip, and bets are laid on their both falling heads or tails, no other fall counting. Australia.

two'-way', adj. Literally, having two ways; in Math., having two ways of variation; as, a two-way series. Specif.: a Passing or allowing passage in either of two directions. b Mech. Designating a cock or valve that will connect a pipe or channel with either of two others at will.

two'-way', n. Math. A spread or extent of two dimensions.

two-way plow. Agric. Mach. A swivel plow. See PLOW, n., 1.

two-way plug. Elec. = CURRENT TAP.

two'-wheel'er, n. A two-wheeled vehicle; specif., a two-wheeled cab or hansom. Colloq.

two'-winged', adj. Having one pair of wings; dipterous.

two-winged fly. A dipteron.

two'-year-old', adj. Of the age of two years. — two'-year-old', n.

Two Years Before the Mast. An account of life as a common sailor (1837), by Richard Henry Dana, the Younger (see Biog.).

Twyne's case (twinz). The early leading case (3 Co. 80) on fraudulent conveyances.

ty (tī). Dial. var. of TIE.

-ty. [AS. -tiġ; akin to D. -tiġ, G. -zig, ON. tigr, Goth. tigus. See TEN.] A suffix in numbers, denoting tens, times ten, as in twen*ty,* thir*ty,* fif*ty.* In ordinal numbers -ty appears as -ti-, as in twenti*eth,* forti*eth.*

-ty. [ME. -tie, -tee, -te, fr. OF. -té, fr. L. -tas, -itas. Cf. -ITY.] A suffix forming abstract nouns of quality, state, condition, and the like, in words from French or Latin, as in beau*ty,* liber*ty,* novel*ty.* Cf. -ITY.

Ty (tü; tē). Var. of TIU, TYR.

Tyb'alt (tĭb'ält), n. [F. Tibaut, OF. also Tibaut, Tiebaut, of Teut. origin. See THEOBALD.] 1. Masc. proper name.

2. A fiery nephew to Lady Capulet in Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet. He kills Mercutio and is slain by Romeo in a duel.

Ty'burn (tī'bûrn), n. A former small tributary of the Thames in London; also, a former place of public execution on it near where is now the Marble Arch, Hyde Park.

Ty·bur'ni·an (tī·bûr'nĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Tyburnia (so called from the Tyburn), a fashionable quarter of London to the north and east of Hyde Park. — Ty·bur'ni·an, n.

Tyburn ticket. [In allusion to Tyburn, the former place of execution.] Eng. Law. Formerly, a certificate given to one who prosecuted a felon to conviction, which (by 10 & 11 Wm. III. c. 23) exempted him or his first assignee from parish and ward offices where the crime was committed.

Tyburn tippet. A hangman's rope or halter. Obs.

Tyburn tree. The gallows, orig. the gallows at Tyburn.

Ty'che (tī'kē), n. [Gr. Tychē.] Gr. Relig. Goddess of fortune. Each city, especially in later times, had its own Tyche, similar to the Roman genius loci. She was the object of a widely extended popular cult, especially in the Hellenistic and Roman periods, and is often represented in art. Cf. FORTUNA.

ty'chism (tī'kĭz'm), n. [Gr. tychē fortune, chance + -ism.] Any theory which conceives chance as an objective reality; esp., a theory of evolution which considers that variation may be purely fortuitous. Cf. UNIFORMITARIANISM, 2.

ty'chite (tī'kīt), n. [Gr. tychē chance; — in reference to its chance discovery.] Mineral. A rare mineral crystallizing in regular octahedrons and having the composition $2MgCO_3 2Na_2CO_3 . Na_2SO_4$. H., 3.5–4. Sp. gr., 2.59.

ty'cho- (tī'kō-), tych-. A combining form, Greek tycho-, tych-, from tychē, meaning fortune, chance, as in ty'cho·po·tam'ic.

Ty·chon'ic (tī·kŏn'ĭk), Ty·cho'ni·an (-kō'nĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pert. to Tycho Brahe or his system of astronomy.

ty'cho·par'the·no·gen'e·sis (tī'kō·pär'thē·nō·jĕn'ē·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tycho- + parthenogenesis.] Zool. Parthenogenesis occurring abnormally in a species.

Ty'cho's star (tī'kōz; tīī'-). Astron. A new or temporary star in Cassiopeia, first seen by Tycho Brahe in November, 1572, which became as bright as Venus, being even visible by day, but not now known, even as a telescopic star.

ty·coon' (tĭ·kōōn'), n. [Jap. taikun, lit., great lord.] 1. A title of the shogun; — used by foreigners in the middle of the 19th century; — not a correct title. See SHOGUN.

2. An industrial magnate. Colloq., U. S.

ty·coon'ate (-ăt), n. The shogunate.

tydd'yn (tĭd'ĭn), n. [W., lit., house hill.] Old Welsh Law. A small farm; a homestead.

Ty'deus (tī'dūs; tĭd'ē·ŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tydeus.] Gr. Lit. One of the "Seven against Thebes" (which see).

Ty·dī'des (tĭ·dī'dēz), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tydeidēs.] Son of Tydeus; — a patronymic of Diomedes.

tyd'ie (tĭd'ĭ), n. A small bird, variously identified as the wren or the blue titmouse. Cf. TIDLEY.

tye (tī), n. 1. Archaic var. of TIE.

2. Mining. A kind of launder for washing ores. Eng.

3. Naut. A chain or rope, one end of which has been taken through the mast, or through a block called the tye block, and is made fast to the center of a yard, the other end being attached to a tackle, by means of which the yard is hoisted or lowered.

tye, v. t. Mining. To wash (ores) in a tye. Eng.

tye, n. [AS. tēag, tēah. Cf. 4th TYE.] A case or casket for jewels. Obs.

tye (tī), n. [AS. tēag a tie, band, enclosure. See TIE, n.] a Obs. A close or enclosure. b Local, Eng. A large pasture or common.

tye (tī), n. Bed; esp., feather bed. Dial. Eng.

ty'ee' (tĭ'ē'), n. [Chinook Jargon, fr. Nootka taiyi chief.] Chief.

tyg, tig (tĭg), n. [Origin uncert.] Ceramics. A kind of drinking cup with two or more handles.

Ty'igh (tĭ'ē; -ĭK), n. An Indian of a Shahaptian tribe now living on Warm Springs reservation, Oregon.

ty'ing (tī'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of TIE. Hence: n. Act of one who ties; specif.: Com. a The requirement of a contract that one party shall purchase specified products exclusively from the second party, or shall maintain prices set by the latter. b The stipulation of a loan contract between two countries that the borrowing country shall expend a loan, or part thereof, on goods of the lending country.

tyke, tike (tīk), n. [ON. tīk a bitch; akin to Sw. tik, MLG. tike.] 1. A dog; cur. "Bobtail tike or trundletail." Shak.

2. A clumsy, churlish, or eccentric person; a country bumpkin. Archaic exc. Scot. & Dial.

3. A lively or mischievous child;—chiefly playful. Colloq.

4. In full Yorkshire tyke. A Yorkshireman; — not regarded as opprobrious.

tyk'en (tĭk'ĕn), tyk'ing (-ĭn), n. Ticking. Scot.

ty'la·rus (tī'lā·rŭs), n.; pl. -LARI (-rī). [NL., fr. Gr. tylē a cushion.] One of the pads on the under surface of birds' toes.

Ty·len'chus (tĭ·lĕng'kŭs), n. [NL., fr. tyl- + Gr. enchos a spear.] Zool. A large, widely distributed genus of nematodes many of which are parasitic on plants. They have, at the anterior end, a hollow spearlike structure for piercing the tissues and sucking the juices of plants. T. tritici causes a disease of wheat, and T. dipsaci attacks alfalfa, red clover, and strawberries.

Ty'ler·ism (tī'lĕr·ĭz'm), n. 1. Theol. The doctrinal system of Bennet Tyler (1783–1858), professor of theology at East Windsor, Conn. (1833–57), who represented in general the theology of Edwards; — opposed to Taylorism.

2. U. S. Politics. Policy or action like President Tyler's (1841–45) in opposing the Whig party which elected him.

Ty'ler·ite (-īt), n. One who practices or upholds Tylerism.

Ty'ler·ize (-īz), v. i.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). U. S. Politics. To practice Tylerism. Obs. or Hist.

tyl'i·on (tĭl'ĭ·ŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tylē a swelling, a pad.] Craniol. The point on the anterior edge of the optic groove at the median line of the skull.

ty'lo- (tī'lō-), tyl-. A combining form, Greek tylo-, tyl-, from tylē, meaning a knob, as in *Tylo*saurus, *tylo*sis.

ty·lo'ma (tĭ·lō'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tylōma.] Med. A callus.

Ty·lop'o·da (tĭ·lŏp'ō·dȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. tylo- + -poda.] Zool. A division of artiodactyl ungulate mammals constituted by the family Camelidae (which see). — ty'lo·pod (tī'lō·pŏd), n. — ty·lop'o·dous (tĭ·lŏp'ō·dŭs), adj.

Ty'lo·sau'rus (tī'lō·sô'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. tylo- + -saurus.] Paleontol. A genus of large pythonomorphous reptiles from the Upper Cretaceous of Kansas, New Mexico, and Texas. They have a short body, long tail, and pentadactyl, paddlelike limbs.

ty'lose (tī'lōs), n. Bot. A tylosis.

ty·lo'sis (tĭ·lō'sĭs), n.; pl. -SES (-sēz). [NL., fr. Gr. tylos a lump, knot.] 1. Bot. An intrusive growth from one cell into the cavity of another, sometimes forming there an irregular mass of cells. Tyloses block up the tracheal cavities during the transformation of sapwood to heartwood.

2. Med. A thickening and hardening; callosity.

ty'lo·ste·re'sis (tī'lō·stē·rē'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tylo- + Gr. sterēsis deprivation.] Surg. The removal of a callus.

Ty'lo·sto·ma'ce·ae (tī'lō·stō·mā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. tylo- + stoma- + -aceae.] Bot. A family of fungi (order Sclerodermatales), the stalked puffballs, having sporocarps similar to the Lycoperdaceae, but with the unchambered gleba raised on a stalk. The principal genus is Ty·los'to·ma (tĭ·lŏs'tō·mȧ).

ty'lo·style (tī'lō·stīl), ty'lo·sty'lus (-stĭ'lŭs), n. [NL. tylostylus, fr. tylo- + Gr. stylos pillar.] Zool. A uniradiate pointed sponge spicule with a knob at the blunt end. — ty'lo·sty'lar (-stĭ'lĕr), adj. — ty'lo·sty'lote (-lōt), adj.

ty'lo·tate (tī'lō·tāt), adj. [See TYLOTE.] Zool. Knobbed at both ends, as a tylote.

ty'lote (tī'lōt), ty·lo'tus (tĭ·lō'tŭs), n. [NL. tylotus, fr. Gr. tylōtos knobbed, fr. tylos knob.] Zool. A slender elongate sponge spicule with a knob at both ends.

ty·lot'ic (tĭ·lŏt'ĭk), adj. Pert. to, or marked by, tylosis.

ty'lo·tox'e·a (tī'lō·tŏk'sē·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tylōtos knobbed + oxys sharp.] Zool. A rodlike sponge spicule tapering toward the ends, one sharp, one knobbed. — ty'lo·tox'e·ate (-ăt), adj.

ty'lus (tī'lŭs), n.; pl. TYLI (-lī). [NL., fr. Gr. tylos knob.] Zool. A central prominence on the upper front side of the head of some Hemiptera.

ty'lwyth teg' (tĭ'lŭth tĕg'). [W. tŷ house + llu throng + teg fair.] Welsh Folklore. The fairies.

tymp (tĭmp), n. [See TYMPAN.] In an open-front iron blast furnace, the stone or the water-cooled iron casting protecting the top of the opening through which molten slag and iron continually pass into the forehearth, the slag flowing over the dam, while the iron is tapped through a lower opening in the dam. In modern practice the blast furnace has a closed front, and slag and iron are tapped periodically through separate openings, thus doing away with the tymp and the forehearth.

tym'pan (tĭm'păn), n. [OF., fr. L. tympanum a kettledrum, panel of a door. See TYMPANUM; cf. TYMP.] 1. a Obs. The tympanum. b Rare. A membrane, or membranous plate.

2. Arch. A panel; a tympanum.

3. Music. a A drum. b A Celtic bowed instrument, probably a kind of crowd.

4. Printing Presses. The sheet of paper, cloth, or other material, placed between the impression surface (platen, impression cylinder, or the like) and the paper to be printed. On hand presses the tympan is double and consists of two parts, usually of cloth, stretched on the tympan frame (consisting of the inner tympan frame over which the tympan is drawn, and an outer tympan frame holding the tympan in place). Between these frames is placed the packing of blankets, rubber, or the like. Tympan is sometimes applied to the tympan frame. In power presses the tympan is a sheet stretched over the platen, as in a job press, or over the impression cylinder, as in a rotary press or in a perfecting press, and covers packing, make-ready, etc. Often a tympan is considered to include also the accompanying backing, the outside sheet then being distinctively called the drawsheet or top sheet. In perfecting presses the tympan over the second impression surface receives the offset (setoff) of the first side printed and is variously devised, as by changing the sheet (shifting, or traveling, tympan), to avoid soiling the printed paper. In lithographic hand presses the tympan is a sheet of blanket or leather or of thin metal (as zinc or copper) placed between the paper to be printed and the scraper or other impressing surface.

tym'pa·nal (tĭm'pȧ·năl), adj. & n. Anat. & Zool. Tympanic.

tympan frame. See TYMPAN, 4.

tym·pan'ic (tĭm·păn'ĭk), adj. [See TYMPANUM.] 1. Like a tympanum, or drum; as, a tympanic membrane.

2. Anat. & Zool. Of or pertaining to the tympanum (in any sense); designating, or pertaining to, the tympanic bone. See TYMPANIC BONE.

3. Arch. Of or pertaining to a tympanum. See TYMPANUM, n., 3.

4. Med. Resonant on percussion, as the abdomen in tympanites.

tym·pan'ic, n. Anat. & Zool. A tympanic bone, nerve, etc.

-tym·pan'ic. A combining form of tympanic, adj., as in intra*tympanic,* masto*tympanic.*

tympanic antrum. Anat. A large air-containing cavity in the mastoid process, communicating with the tympanum. It is often the seat of dangerous inflammation.

tympanic bone. Anat. & Zool. In mammals, a bone of the skull which encloses a part of the tympanum and supports the tympanic membrane. In man it is represented by the tympanic plate, which in the adult fuses with the petrous part of the temporal bone, though forming a distinct incomplete ring (tympanic ring) in the fetus. In many mammals it bears a rounded enlargement, the tympanic bulla (bulla tympani). In the other vertebrates the term has been applied to several bones regarded as representing the above.

tympanic canal. Anat. A minute canal leading into the middle ear and transmitting the tympanic nerve of Jacobson.

tympanic cavity. Anat. The cavity of the middle ear.

tym'pa·ni·chord' (tĭm'pȧ·nĭ·kôrd'; tĭm·păn'ĭ·kôrd), n. The chorda tympani. — tym'pa·ni·chor'dal (-kôr'dăl; -d'l), adj.

tym'pa·nic'i·ty (tĭm'pȧ·nĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Med. The quality of being tympanic; tympany.

tympanic membrane. Anat. & Zool. A thin membrane closing externally the cavity of the middle ear, like the head of a drum. See 1st EAR, 1. In mammals it is deeply located at the bottom of the external auditory meatus, in birds and reptiles more superficially, and in frogs and toads on the surface. Cf. SECONDARY TYMPANIC MEMBRANE.

tympanic nerve. Anat. a A branch of the glossopharyngeal nerve arising from the petrosal ganglion and distributed to the walls of the tympanum of the ear, where it takes part in forming a plexus, the tympanic plexus; — called also Jacobson's nerve. b A branch of the facial nerve to the stapedius muscle.

tympanic notch. Anat. A notch in the tympanic plate (see TYMPANIC BONE), filled by Shrapnell's membrane.

tym'pa·ni·form' (tĭm'pȧ·nĭ·fôrm'; tĭm·păn'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [tympanum + -form.] Resembling a tympanum.

tym'pan·ing, n. Print. Material used in making a tympan.

tym'pa·nism (tĭm'pȧ·nĭz'm), n. Med. Tympanites.

tym'pa·nist (-nĭst), n. [F. tympaniste, fr. L. tympanista, fr. Gr. tympanistēs.] One who beats a drum; now usually, specif., a member of an orchestra who plays the percussion instruments.

tym'pa·ni'tes (-nī'tēz), n. [LL., fr. Gr. tympanitēs, fr. tympanon a kettledrum.] Med. A distention of the abdomen, caused by accumulation of air or gas in the intestinal tract or peritoneal cavity; meteorism. Cf. BLOAT, n., 2.

tym'pa·nit'ic (-nĭt'ĭk), adj. [L. tympaniticus.] Med. Of, pertaining to, or affected with, tympanites; also, hollow-sounding.

tympanitic resonance. Med. The sound produced by percussion of a hollow region, as an abdomen distended with gas.

tym'pa·ni'tis (tĭm'pȧ·nī'tĭs), n. [NL. See TYMPANUM; -ITIS.] Med. Inflammation of the middle ear.

tym'pa·nize (tĭm'pȧ·nīz), v. t. & i. To distend with or as with tympany. Obs.

tym'pa·no (tĭm'pȧ·nō), n.; pl. TYMPANI (-nē). Var. of TIMPANO.

tym'pa·no- (tĭm'pȧ·nō-), tympan-. A combining form from tympanum, denoting: a Of or pertaining to the tympanum, as in *tympano*tomy, *tympan*itis. b In adjectives, tympanal and, as in tym'pa·no·cer'vi·cal, pertaining to the tympanum and cervix.

☞ For words below, see the word with which tympano- in combined:

tympano-Eustachian	tympanomastoid	tympanosquamosal
tympanomalleal	tympanomaxillary	tympanostapedial tympanomandibular	tympanoperiotic	tympanotemporal tym'pa·no·hy'al (-hī'ăl), adj, Anat. & Zool. Of or pertaining to the tympanum and the hyoid arch; designating the proximal segment in the hyoid arch, becoming a part of the styloid process of the temporal bone in adult man. — tym'pa·no·hy'al, n.

tym'pa·no'sis (-nō'sĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Tympanites.

tym'pa·not'o·my (-nŏt'ō·mĭ), n. [tympano- + -tomy.] Myringotomy.

tympan sheet. Print. A sheet on or in a tympan, as, formerly on a hand press, a sheet pasted on the tympan to serve as a guide in laying the sheets evenly for printing; a sheet used in underlaying; now, generally, the outer sheet of a tympan.

Tym'pa·nu'chus (tĭm'pȧ·nū'kŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tympanon (see TYMPANUM, 6) + echein to have.] Zool. The genus of American grouse consisting of the prairie chickens.

tym'pa·num (tĭm'pȧ·nŭm), n.; pl. -NUMS (-nŭmz), -NA (-nȧ). [L., a drum. See TIMBREL; cf. TYMPAN.] 1. Anat. & Zool. a The eardrum, or middle ear. See 1st EAR, 1. b The tympanic membrane.

2. A water-raising wheel resembling a kind of Persian wheel. See PERSIAN WHEEL, Illust.

3. Arch. a The recessed face of a pediment within the frame made by the upper and lower cornices, being usually a triangular space or table. b The space within an arch, and above a lintel or a subordinate arch, spanning the opening below the arch.

4. Bot. = EPIPHRAGM, 2 b.

5. Elec. The diaphragm of a magnetotelephone.

6. Zool. a One of the naked areas, on the neck of the prairie chicken and other grouse, expanded when the esophagus is inflated in display. b = TRACHEAL TYMPANUM (see TRACHEA, 1). c A thin tense membrane covering an organ of hearing in a leg or other part of an insect; also, a membrane in a sound-producing organ that acts as a resonator.

t Tympanum on Leg of a Katydid. Much enlarged.

tym'pa·num. Var. of TYMPANON.

---

two'-wheeled' scrap'er. See SCRAPER, n., 6.

two'-woods' bow. See 3d BOW, 2.

twy-. Var. of TWI-.

twy'blade' (twī'blād'). Var. of TWAYBLADE.

twy'er (twī'ĕr). Var. of TUYÈRE.

twy'hyn'de (twŭ'hĭn'dē; twē'-), n. See HYNDE.—twyhynde man.

twynne. † TWAIN, TWIN.

ty'-ally. † TIAL.

tyauve (tyăv; tyŏv; chyăv; chyŏv). Scot. var. of TAVE.

Ty'bi (tē'bē), n. See EGYPTIAN CALENDAR.

Tych'i·cus (tĭk'ĭ·kŭs). Bib.

ty·con'na (tĭ·kŏn'ȧ), tye·ka'na (tĭ·kā'nȧ). Vars. of TAKKHANA.

ty'er (tī'ĕr). Var. of TIER (one that ties).

ty'er (tī'ĕr). Var. of TAYIR.

tyer. † TEAR, TIER, TIRE.

tyeuve (tyōōv; chyōōv). Scot. past tense of TAVE.

ty·khā'na (tĭ·kā'nȧ). Var. of TAKKHANA.

tyl-. = TYLO-.

tyle'ber'ry (tīl'bĕr'ĭ; -bĕr·ĭ), n. = CORAL PLANT, 2 a. [Archaic.] tyl'er (tīl'ĕr). Var. of TILER.

Ty'ler's Re·bel'lion (tī'lĕrz). See PEASANTS' REVOLT.

Tyll Eu'len·spie'gel. See EULENSPIEGEL, TYLL.

Ty'lo·su'rus (tĭ'lō·sū'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. tylo- + -urus; — in allusion to the caudal keel.] Zool. See NEEDLEFISH.

tym'bal (tĭm'băl). Var. of TIMBAL, kettledrum.

tym'ba·lon (tĭm'bȧ·lŏn), n. Erron. for TIMBAL, kettledrum.

tyme. † THEME, TIME.

tym'pa·neo'to·my (tĭm'pȧ·nē'ō·tō·mĭ), n. [tympan- + -ectomy.] = MYRINGODECTOMY.

tym'pa·ni, n., pl. of TYMPANO tym'pa·nit'i·cal, adj. Tympanitic. Obs. tym'pa·non (tĭm'pȧ·nŏn), n.; pl. TYMPANA (-nȧ). Music. a = TYMPAN. b Rare. = TIMPANO. See TIMPANI.

tym'pa·nous, adj. [tympan- + -ous.] Swollen; bombastic. Obs.

tym′pa·ny (tĭm′pȧ·nĭ), n.; pl. -PANIES (-nĭz). [ML. tympanias, fr. Gr. tympanias, fr. tympanon a kettledrum. See TYMPANITES.] 1. Inflation; distention; hence, conceit; bombast; turgidness. "Thine's a tympany of sense." Dryden.
2. Med. a Tympanites. b Resonance on percussion.
3. Music. a = TYMPAN. b = TIMPANO. See TIMPANI.

tymp stick (tĭmp). Music. A timpani drumstick.

Tyn′dall ef·fect′ or phe·nom′e·non (tĭn′dȧl; -d′l). [After J. Tyndall, Eng. physicist.] Physical Chem. The scattering of a beam of light when passed through a medium containing small suspended particles, as smoky or mist-laden air. The luminous beam or cone so formed is called a Tyndall beam or cone. The entering light is broken up by the particles so that the transmitted beam is complementary in color to the light which is emitted at right angles to it and which is plane-polarized. Blue light so emitted or any blue color so produced is called Tyndall blue.

Tyn′dall·i·za′tion (tĭn′dȧl·ĭ·zā′shŭn; -ĭ·zā′shŭn), n. [After John Tyndall, Eng. physicist.] Fractional sterilization. See STERILIZATION. — Tyn′dall·ize (tĭn′dȧl·īz), v. t.

Tyndall meter, or tyn′dall·me′ter (tĭn′dȧl·mē′tĕr), n. An apparatus for measuring the brightness of the Tyndall beam.

Tyn·da′re·us (tĭn·dā′rē·ŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Tyndareos, also Tyndareōs.] Gr. Myth. The husband of Leda. See LEDA, 1.

Tyn·dar′i·des (tĭn·dăr′ĭ·dēz), n.; pl. -IDAE (-dē). [L., fr. Gr. Tyndaridēs.] A male descendant, or a child, of Tyndareus.

Tyn′wald (tĭn′wôld), n. [Cf. ON. thingvöllr, lit., parliament field. See 1st THING.] An assembly of the legislature of the Isle of Man, composed of: (1) a governor, representing the sovereign; (2) a council which acts as the upper house; and (3) the House of Keys.

typ′al (tīp′ȧl; -′l), adj. Relating to a type or types; belonging to types; serving as a type; typical.

ty·par′chi·cal (tĭ·pär′kĭ·kȧl), adj. Of or pertaining to rulers over type or printing. Nonce Word.

type (tīp), n. [L. typus a figure, image, a form, type, character, fr. Gr. typos the mark of a blow, impression, form of character, model; akin to Gr. typtein to beat, strike, L. stuprum dishonor, stupere to be stunned. See STUB; cf. STUPID, STUPRATE, TIMBREL.] 1. The mark or impression of something; a distinctive stamp; sign; emblem.

The faith they have in tennis, and tall stockings, Short blistered breeches, and those types of travel. Shak.

2. A figure or representation of something to come; a token; sign; symbol; — correlative to antitype.

A type is no longer a type when the thing typified comes to be actually exhibited. South.

3. The general character, form, or structure common to a number of individuals and distinguishing them as a class, group, or kind. See def. 8, below.
4. A particular kind, class, or order; as, the seedless type of orange; criminals of the most dangerous type; also, Colloq., kind; sort; as, he won't stand for that type of thing.
5. That which or one who possesses or exemplifies characteristic qualities; a model; standard; exemplar; as, a novelist whose characters are types; he is the type of chivalry; also, sometimes, an archetype, or original pattern.
6. Anthropol. The pattern or average of the characteristics which define an inbreeding division of man (as a tribe or nation), or of the fundamental characteristics which define a race, or of the characteristics of a homogenous group as determined by measurements on the skeleton or the body, the average and range of variability considered as defining the type for the group.
7. Agric. Of livestock, the combination of characters appropriate to a special kind of use; as, beef type; hence, an animal or group having such a combination of characters.
8. Biol. a A form of being having the morphological and physiological characteristics by which a number of individuals may be classified together. b An individual, species, genus, etc., considered as typical of a higher group. The type may or may not be the ideal representative of its group. c Bot. & Zool. In some classifications, a group or division of animals or plants having the same general plan of structure; — more or less equiv. to class or phylum. d Short for TYPE GENUS, TYPE SPECIES, TYPE SPECIMEN.
9. Biol. & Physiol. A group classified according to the physiological and morphological characters of the individuals and to their specific interreaction; as, a blood type. See BLOOD GROUP.
10. Chem. A simple compound, used as a model or pattern to which other compounds are conveniently regarded as being related, and from which they may be actually or theoretically derived. See TYPE THEORY.
11. Com. A sample of the quality, crop, etc., dealt in when grain, coffee, sugar, or other produce, is sold "to arrive."
12. Cryst. A form of structure common to a group of crystals; also, the group having this form. See SYMMETRY.
13. [cap.] Eccl. Hist. An edict issued by the Emperor Constans II, A.D. 648, repealing the Ecthesis and forbidding all discussion of Monotheletism and Dyotheletism.
14. Math. The simplest of the forms equivalent with respect to a group of transformations.
15. Numis. The figure or object on either side of a coin or medal.
16. Philately. Any one of two or more stamps having identical designs but with minor variations.
17. Print. a A rectangular block, usually of metal or wood, having its face so shaped as to produce, in printing, a letter, figure, or other character; — often used attributively; as, type matter; type body; type face; type design; type gauge; etc. b Such blocks, or the letters or characters impressed, collectively.

Metal Type, 17.

The use of movable type began in China between the years of 1051 and 1058. The inventor's name was Pi Sheng and the types were made of clay. Neither these clay types nor the types of tin, strung on a wire, that followed them, gained very wide use. More widely used were the wooden types carefully described by Wang Cheng in 1314. A number of these wooden types, not in Chinese but in the language of the Uigurs, were found by Dr. Pelliot at Tun Huang and are dated by him at about 1300. The invention of the type mold and the use of metal type is first heard of in Korea, and books printed from metal types appeared in large numbers in Korea during the whole of the fifteenth century. The earliest record of type casting dates from 1403, and the earliest extant book from 1409. Thomas F. Carter.

In the cutting of type by hand, a counterpunch of steel is first prepared, from a design, and is sunk into a bar of soft steel. The outlines of this model letter are tooled and finished to proper shape; smoke proofs are taken to aid in comparison with the original design. After the model letter, or punch, is completed it is hardened and then driven into a bar of copper, producing a strike, or matrix, which is finished and fitted to a mold for casting. The matrix is now usually made by a machine, and the casting is also mechanical. As the type is cast and emerges from the mold, the jet or sprue is broken off, the bottom groove is cut to make the feet. The whole block is planed and finished in a continuous operation. In the illustration, a is the body; b, the face, or part from which the impression is taken; c, the shoulder, or top of the body; d, the counter; e, serifs; f, stem (or shank); g, beard (or neck); h, the nick; i, the groove, made in the process of finishing; j, the feet. The nicks, of which there are on each type from one to four variously grouped, are cast in the mold, and assist the compositor in distinguishing front from back, and also one font from another. The different alphabets of body type used in book composition consist of roman CAPITALS, SMALL CAPITALS, and lower-case letters, and italic CAPITALS and lower-case letters, with accompanying figures, points, ligatures or tied letters, accented letters, and a few special characters, in all over 230 characters.
The three classes of type are these:

black letter roman italic

In England black letter is sometimes called Gothic. Among the derivations and variations of the original three classes, type founders list the following:

old-style roman modern roman old-style italic modern italic cursive sans-serif (Gothic)

The following table shows the old names and the sizes of type used in bookwork; the column of black squares shows the sizes of the corresponding em quad, and the numbers refer to the nearest equivalent in the American point system. See POINT SYSTEM.

Name	Specimen	Em quad	Point
Diamond	abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz		4½
Pearl	abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz		5
Agate	abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwx		5½
Nonpareil	abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvw		6
Minion	abcdefghijklmnopqrstu		7
Brevier	abcdefghijklmnopqrstu		8
Bourgeois	abcdefghijklmnopqrs		9
Long Primer	abcdefghijklmnopqr		10
Small Pica	abcdefghijklmnop		11
Pica	abcdefghijklmn		12
English	abcdefghijklm		14
Columbian	abcdefghijk		16
Great Primer	abcdefghij		18

Excelsior (3 points) and brilliant (3½ points) are seldom used. Before the adoption of the point system, sizes larger than great primer were paragon (or double long primer), double small pica, double pica, double English, double great primer, double paragon, and canon. Above this the sizes were called five-line pica, six-line pica, and so on, increasing by picas. Today, however, in America as well as in Europe, type sizes are almost universally indicated in points, as 8-, 12-, 18-, 24-, 36-, 48-, 60-point, etc. The standard height of type, technically called height-to-paper, is 0.9186 of an inch. According to its width, type is described as standard or normal, condensed, extra-condensed, and extended. The following line illustrates these four different widths:

standard condensed extra-condensed extended

The weight of a type face (its lightness or heaviness of tone) is indicated by the terms standard, lightface, boldface, extrabold.

standard lightface boldface extrabold

18. Psychol. A class of individuals regarded as differing in kind from other classes; as, the blond, the pyknic, or the introvert, type.
19. Symbolic Logic. A classification or order of logical terms; as, individuals, classes of individuals, and classes of classes of individuals, are three different types. According to the theory of types (of Bertrand Russell) the arguments for which a propositional function is significant are restricted to some one type.
Syn. — See EMBLEM.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) and PHRASES are:

type-blackened	type-casting	type matter type block	type-distributing	type measure type cabinet	type-dressing	type plate type case	type gauge	type rack type caster

type (tīp), adj. Typal; serving as the, or a, type.

type (tīp), v.; TYPED (tīpt); TYP′ING (tīp′ĭng). Transitive: 1. To represent beforehand as a type; to prefigure.
2. To produce a copy of; also, to represent; typify.

Let us type them now in our own lives. Tennyson.

3. To typewrite.
4. Med. To determine the type of (a sample of blood), and hence its suitability for use in a blood transfusion. See BLOOD GROUP.
—, Intransitive: To typewrite.

type, n. [Origin uncert.] A small cupola or dome. Obs.

-type (-tīp). A combining form, Greek -typon, from typos, impression, signifying: a Typical form; type; representative; — used chiefly in the natural sciences, as in:

archetype	genotype	plastotype autotype	haplotype	prototype biotype	holotype	topotype coenotype	isotype

b [From type.] Impressed form, stamp, print, as in:

albertype	ferrotype	phototype
ambrotype	intagliotype	stenotype chromotype	linotype	stereotype collotype	lithotype	tintype daguerreotype	monotype	zincotype electrotype

type bar. 1. In a typewriting machine, a bar, or one of a number of bars, bearing type for printing.
2. A bar, or slug, cast with a line of type on its face, as by the Linotype machine.

type characteristic. Hydraul. = CHARACTERISTIC SPEED.

type class. Math. The assemblage of all order types (or ordinals) corresponding to a given transfinite cardinal.

type cutter. An engraver of punches for making type. — type cutting. — type′-cut′ting, adj.

Ty′pee′ (tĭ′pē′), n. An autobiographical novel (1846) by Herman Melville, of adventure in the Typee valley of the Marquesas Islands.

Ty′pees′ (tĭ′pēz′), n. pl. A warlike tribe of Nukuhiva, described by Herman Melville, now written Taipi. Marquesas Islands.

type face. Print. The face of a type, esp. with reference to its shape, form, model, or character.

type founder. One who casts or makes type. — type founding. — type foundry.

type genus. Biol. That genus of a family or subfamily from which the name of the family or subfamily is formed (see FAMILY, n., 8; SUBFAMILY). In practice, the type genus has more often been selected because it was the largest, best-known, or earliest-described genus, or the one first used as the basis of a family or subfamily name, than (as is theoretically preferable) because its structure was most representative of the family as a whole.

type′-high′, adj. Print. Exactly as high as type (usually 0.9186 of an inch).

type′hold′er (tīp′hōl′dĕr), n. A pallet to hold type for stamping by hand.

type locality. a Biol. The place where a type specimen was collected. b Geol. The place whence a geological formation, series, etc., derives its name and where it is typically displayed, or where a fossil, particular kind of igneous rock, or other geologic feature, was first recognized and described.

type metal. An alloy used in making type, stereotype plates, etc., and in backing up electrotype plates. It consists essentially of lead, antimony, and tin, often with a little copper. It expands slightly on cooling, thus preserving in all its sharpness the form of the mold.

type object. The object on which the original scientific description of a given class of objects is based.

type page. The part of a printed page that is covered by the type or letterpress.

typ′er (tīp′ĕr), n. a Colloq. A typist. b Textile Mfg. A marker.

type′script′ (tīp′skrĭpt′), n. a Typewritten matter, esp. copy. b A type that imitates handwriting.

type′set′ (-sĕt′), adj. Made up, or printed, from movable types; — said of some postage stamps, surcharges, or overprints.

type′set′ter (-sĕt′ĕr), n. One who or that which sets type; specif.: a A compositor. b A typesetting machine.

type′set′ting, n. Act or process of setting type. — type′-set′ting, adj.

typesetting machine. Any of various keyboard machines for automatically composing printers' types. One style casts and assembles single metal types; several others assemble matrices and from these cast type lines; still another style assembles matrix bars from which a type line is cast. The first machine to set type mechanically was patented (1822) in England by Dr William Church. The first patents for machines distributing the type after use were those taken out by Étienne Robert Gaudens (England, 1840) and Frederick Rosenberg (America, 1843). Many other attempts followed but the first practical machine for composing and distributing was that of Joseph Thorne (1880), which is still used. Those chiefly used at present are the type-casting machines: the Linotype, invented by Ottmar Mergenthaler (1878), and the Monotype, invented by Tolbert Lanston (1885). See LINOTYPE; MONOTYPE, 3.

type slug. Print. = TYPE BAR, 2.

type species. Bot. & Zool. That species of a genus upon which the generic name depends, theoretically the one most perfectly exemplifying the characters of the genus; a genotype. If the genus originally contained but one species, that species is the type species. Recent authors in describing new genera usually designate a type species for each, but many of the earlier authors described genera of many species without designating one as the type, and much disagreement of later authors has resulted.

type specimen. The specimen or individual on which the original scientific description of a given species or subspecies is based. Cf. COTYPE, TOPOTYPE, PARATYPE.

type station. Archaeol. The place of discovery of prehistoric remains that have been agreed upon as the standard, or type, for a specified culture, as La Madeleine for the Magdalenian epoch.

type theory. Hist. Chem. The theory that chemical compounds, esp. organic ones, are derived by substitution from a limited number of type compounds, as hydrogen (H_2), water (H_2O), ammonia (NH_3), and methane (CH_4). It developed into the modern unitary theory.

type wash. Print. An ink solvent, as gasoline or lye, for cleaning type or plates.

type wheel. A wheel with raised characters on its periphery, used in some typewriters, printing telegraphs, etc.

type′write′ (tīp′rīt′), v. t. & i. To write with a typewriter.

type′writ′er (-rīt′ĕr), n. 1. Any of various instruments or machines for writing in characters similar to those produced by printers' types. In the prevailing designs the characters are produced by striking the paper through an inked ribbon by steel types, the latter being actuated by corresponding keys on a keyboard (see TYPE BAR, TYPE WHEEL). The paper is clipped to a platen which is automatically traversed along with a carriage when a key is struck. A machine for typing letters was patented as early as 1714 by Henry Mill (English); but the prototype of modern machines was that invented (1833) by Xavier Progin (French), having bars of type. Among Americans Charles Thurber is noteworthy as the inventor (1843) of letter spacing by means of a cylinder moving longitudinally. The first practical machine was the combined invention (1867) of three Milwaukee men, Christopher Latham Sholes, Carlos Glidden, and Samuel W. Soulé.
2. One who operates a typewriter.
3. Print. A style of type imitating typewriting.

☞ This is Typewriter type.

☞ PHRASES are:

typewriter brush	typewriter holder	typewriter ribbon typewriter cabinet	typewriter key	typewriter roller typewriter case	typewriter mat	typewriter stand typewriter cover	typewriter oil	typewriter table typewriter desk	typewriter pad	typewriter type typewriter eraser	typewriter paper tynd (tīnd; tĭn). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of TINE, prong.

Tyn′dale's Bi′ble (tĭn′dȧlz; -d′lz). See BIBLE, 2.

tyne. Var. of TINE. [TYNWALD.] Tyne′wald (tīn′wôld). Var. of tyng. † THING. tynke. † THINK.

tynt. † TENT.
typ-. = TYPO-.

type. † TIP.
typet. † TIPPET.

type'writ'ing (tīp'rīt'ĭng), n. Act or art of using a typewriter; also, a print made with a typewriter.

typewriting telegraph. A telegraph system using apparatus similar to a typewriter as transmitter or receiver, or both.

typh-. = TYPHO-.

Ty'pha (tī'fȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. typhē. See TUBER.] Bot. A genus of plants constituting a family, Ty·pha'ce·ae (tĭ-fā'sē-ē), order Pandanales. They are tall erect herbs with sword-shaped leaves and monoecious flowers in dense spikes, the staminate being uppermost. The species are natives of fresh and salt marshes in both hemispheres. They are known as cattail, reed mace, flag, etc.

ty·phe'mi·a, ty·phae'mi·a (tĭ-fē'mĭ-ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. Bacillemia due to typhoid bacilli.

typh' ĭe'ver (tĭf' ē'vĕr), n. Typhus or typhoid fever. Rare.

ty'phi·a (tī'fĭ-ȧ), n. [NL. Cf. TYPHUS.] Med. Typhoid fever.

ty'phic (tī'fĭk), adj. Of or pert. to typhus; also, typhoid.

ty'phi·za'tion (tī'fĭ-zā'shŭn), n. Med. Production of the typhic state, as in an individual or a population.

typhl-. = TYPHLO- (which see), as in:

typhlatonia	typhlectasis	typhlenteritis
typhlatony	typhlectomy

typh·li'tis (tĭf-lī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. typhl- + -itis. See DEAF.] Med. Inflammation of the caecum; — formerly applied to the condition now known as appendicitis. — typh·lit'ic (-lĭt'ĭk), adj.

typh'lo- (tĭf'lō-), typhl-. A combining form from Greek typhlon, the caecum, as in typhlosole. For words below, see the word or element with which typhlo- is combined:

typhloalbuminuria	typholithiasis	typholostenosis typhlocele	typhlomegaly	typhlostomy typhloempyema	typhlopexia	typhlotomy typhloenteritis	typhlopexy	typhlo-ureterostomy typhlohepatitis	typhloptosis

typh·lol'o·gy (tĭf-lŏl'ō-jĭ), n. [typhlo- + -logy.] The scientific study of blindness, its causes, effects, etc.; the branch of science that deals with blindness.

Typh'lo·mol'ge (tĭf'lō-mōl'jē), n. [NL., fr. typhlo- + Molge.] Zool. A genus of aquatic, cave-inhabiting, Texas salamanders having as the only known species T. rathburni, noted for its degenerate eyes.

typh'lo·phile (tĭf'lō-fīl; -fĭl), n. [typhlo- + -phile.] One benevolent to the blind.

Typh·lop'i·dae (tĭf-lŏp'ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Typhlops, type genus (fr. Gr. typhlōps blind) + -idae.] Zool. A widely distributed family of small burrowing snakes having the whole body covered with uniform cycloidal scales, the mouth not distensible, and the teeth restricted to the upper jaw. See BLIND SNAKE a. The typical and best-known genus is Typh'lops (tĭf'lŏps). The Leptotyphlopidae (syn. Glauconiidae) were formerly included in this family. — typh·lop'id (tĭf-lŏp'ĭd; tĭf'lō-pĭd), n.

typh·lo'sis (tĭf-lō'sĭs), n. [Gr. typhlōsis.] Med. Blindness.

typh'lo·sole (tĭf'lō-sōl), n. [Gr. typhlos blind + sōlēn channel.] Zool. A longitudinal fold of the wall projecting into the cavity of the intestine in bivalve mollusks, some annelids, starfishes, and other animals. — typh'lo·so'lar (-sō'lĕr), adj.

ty'pho- (tī'fō-), typh-. Med. A combining form, Greek typho-, typh-, from typhos, meaning vapor, fever stupor, used for typhus and typhoid, as in typhosepsis.

ty'pho·bac'il·lo'sis (tī'fō-băs'ĭ-lō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. typho- + bacillus + -osis.] Med. a Septicemia due to typhoid bacilli. b Any bacillosis with typhoid symptoms.

Ty·pho'ĕ·an (tī-fō'ē-ăn), adj. Of, pert. to, or like, Typhoeus. ☞ Sometimes incorrectly written and pronounced Typhoe'an or Ty·phe'an (tī-fē'ăn).

ty'pho·e'mi·a, ty'pho·ae'mi·a (tī'fō-ē'mĭ-ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. Typhemia.

Ty·phoe'us (tī-fō'ŭs), n. [Gr. Typhōeus, Typhōs.] Gr. Myth. A monster, according to Hesiod a son of Tartarus and Gaea, or of Hera alone, having a hundred heads with fearful eyes and voices. He begot the unfavorable or dangerous winds and tried to gain the sovereignty of gods and men, but was conquered by Zeus with a thunderbolt and buried in Tartarus under Mt. Etna. Later he is identified with Typhon (which see).

ty'pho·gen'ic (tī'fō-jĕn'ĭk), adj. [typho- + -genic.] Med. Producing typhus or typhoid fever.

ty'phoid (tī'foid), adj. [typh- + -oid; cf. F. typhoïde, Gr. typhōdēs. See TYPHUS.] Med. Of or pertaining to typhus or, now, typhoid fever; resembling typhus; stuporous, as in typhus; as, typhoid symptoms. — n. Typhoid fever. See also FOWL TYPHOID.

-ty'phoid. A combining form of typhoid, as in bronchotyphoid, pneumo*typhoid.*

ty·phoi'dal (tī-foi'dăl; -dĭ'l), adj. Med. Of, pertaining to, or resembling, typhoid fever.

typhoid carrier. Med. A carrier of typhoid fever. See CARRIER.

typhoid fever. Med. An infectious febrile disease caused by a bacterium (Eberthella typhi, syn. Bacillus typhosus), the typhoid bacillus, introduced into the system with the food or drinking water, and characterized by inflammation of the intestines, enlargement and necrosis of Peyer's patches (which see), enlargement of the spleen and mesenteric glands, (usually) a peculiar eruption on the abdomen and chest, appearing on the seventh, eighth, or ninth day and consisting of small, slightly elevated, rose-colored spots, which disappear on pressure and come out in successive crops, diarrhea, continued fever, and marked prostration or stupor.

typhoid fly. The housefly.

ty·phoi'din (tī-foi'dĭn; -d'n), n. [typhoid + -in.] Med. A preparation from the typhoid bacillus, analogous to tuberculin from the tubercle bacillus, used as a skin-testing material in the detection of present or previous typhoid infection.

ty'phoid·like' (tī'foid·līk'), adj. See -LIKE.

typhoid spine. Med. A painful state of the spine, occurring sometimes after typhoid fever.

typhoid state. Med. A condition in many diseases, characterized by profound prostration and other symptoms like those of typhus or typhoid fever.

ty'pho·ly'sin (tī'fō-lī'sĭn), n. [typho- + -lysin.] Immunol. A lysin which acts upon typhoid bacilli.

ty'pho·ma·lar'i·a (tī'fō-mȧ-lâr'ĭ-ȧ; 79), n. Med. a A combination of typhoid fever and malaria, frequently reported in the American Civil War. b A disease with typhoid symptoms, assumed to be of malarial origin.

ty'pho·ma·lar'i·al (-ăl), adj. Med. Pertaining to typhoid fever and malaria, or to typhomalaria.

ty'pho·ma'ni·a (tī'fō-mā'nĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., fr. typho- + mania.] Med. A low delirium common in typhus or typhoid fever.

Ty'phon (tī'fŏn), n. [L., fr. Gr. Typhōn. See TYPHOON.] Gr. & Rom. Myth. A monster, according to Hesiod the son of Typhoeus and the father by Echidna of Cerberus, the Chimera, the Sphinx, and other monsters. Later he is identified with Typhoeus and by the Greeks with the Egyptian Set.

Ty·pho'ni·an (tĭ-fō'nĭ-ăn), Ty·phon'ic (tĭ-fŏn'ĭk), adj. Of, like, or pertaining to, Typhon; — usually with reference to the Egyptian Typhon, that is, Set.

ty·phon'ic (tī-fŏn'ĭk), adj. Of, pertaining to, like, or suggestive of, a typhoon.

ty·phoon' (tī-fōōn'), n. [From Chin. (Cant.) tai-fung, (Pek.) ta⁴-fēng¹, lit., great wind, whence Jap. taifū, but influenced in E. by earlier tuphan, tufan, toofan, fr. Ar. ṭūfān, fr. Gr. typhōn, typhōs; akin to Gr. typhos smoke, vapor, Skr. dhūma. See FUME; cf. TYPHOID, TYPHON.] A tropical cyclone occurring in the region of the Philippines or China Sea. See CYCLONE, n., 4.

ty'pho·pneu·mo'ni·a (tī'fō-nū-mō'nĭ-ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. a Pneumonia with typhoid symptoms. b Pneumonia occurring in typhoid fever.

ty'phose (tī'fōs), adj. Med. Resembling typhoid fever.

ty·pho'sis (tī-fō'sĭs), n. [NL.] Typhoid state.

ty'pho·tox'ine (tī'fō-tŏk'sēn; -sĭn; 157), n. Also -in. [typho- + -toxin.] Biochem. A basic compound, $C_7H_{17}NO_3$, formed by growth of typhoid bacilli. It induces in small animals lethargy and liquid excrements.

ty'phous (tī'fŭs), adj. [Cf. F. typheux.] Med. Of or pertaining to typhus; of the nature of typhus.

Typh'u·la (tĭf'ū-lȧ), n. [NL., fr. typh- + -ula.] Bot. A genus of the club fungi (family Clavariaceae) with simple or slightly branched filamentous sporophores.

ty'phus (tī'fŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. typhos smoke, cloud, stupor arising from fever. See TYPHOON.] Med. A serious rickettsial febrile disease lasting two to three weeks and marked by prostration, delirium, and intense red exanthema. It is caused by Rickettsia prowazekii, transmitted esp. by body lice. Called also typhus exanthematicus, jail fever, famine fever, spotted fever, etc.

‖ty'phus ab·do'mi·na'lis (ăb·dŏm'ĭ-nā'lĭs). [NL.] Typhoid fever.

‖ty'phus ex·an'the·ma'ti·cus (ĕks·ăn'thē·măt'ĭ·kŭs). [NL.] See TYPHUS.

typ'ic (tĭp'ĭk), adj. Typical.

-typ'ic. A combining form, -type or -typy + -ic, chiefly in adjectives corresponding to nouns in -type and -typy, as in stereo*typic;* — used also for typical, as in hypo*typic.*

typ'i·cal (tĭp'ĭ-kăl), adj. [ML. typicalis, fr. L. typicus, fr. Gr. typikos, fr. typos type. See TYPE.] 1. Of the nature of a type; representing something by a form, model, or resemblance; emblematic; prefigurative. "The Levitical priesthood was only typical of the Christian." Atterbury. 2. a Combining or exhibiting the essential characteristics of a group; of the nature of a type. b Conforming to a type; as, a typical species or specimen.

Syn. — See REGULAR.

Ant. — Abnormal, exceptional, uncommon.

— typ'i·cal·ly, adv. — typ'i·cal·ness, n.

typ'i·cal'i·ty (tĭp'ĭ-kăl'ĭ-tĭ), n. Typicalness.

typ'i·con (tĭp'ĭ-kŏn), typ'i·cum (-kŭm), n.; pl. -ca (-kȧ), [NL., fr. Gr. typikon, prop. neut. of typikos typical.] Eastern Ch. a A book containing rules and rubrics for divine service; — analogous to the Latin Ordo, but much more explicit. b pl. A short selection of verses taken from the Psalter as expressing the thought of a feast, or the like.

typ'i·fi·ca'tion (tĭp'ĭ-fĭ-kā'shŭn), n. Act of typifying.

typ'i·fier (tĭp'ĭ-fī'ĕr), n. One that typifies.

typ'i·fy (-fī), v. t.; TYP'I·FIED (-fīd); TYP'I·FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [L. typus type + -fy.] 1. To represent by an image, form, model, or resemblance; to prefigure.

Our Saviour was typified, indeed, by the goat that was slain, and the scapegoat in the wilderness. Sir T. Browne.

2. To embody the essential or salient characteristics of; to be the type of; as, the genus Rosa typifies the family Rosaceae, which in turn typifies the order Rosales.

typ'i·fy (tĭp'ĭ-fī), v. t. [type + -fy.] To put in print. R.

typ'ist (tīp'ĭst), n. A person who operates a typewriting machine; a typewriter.

typ'o (tĭ'pō), n.; pl. TYPOS (-pōz). [Abbr. of typographer.] A printer; specif., a compositor. Colloq.

typ'o- (tĭ'pō-; tĭp'ō-), typ-. A combining form, Greek typo-, typ-, from typos, meaning type, image, model, as in typology, typonym.

typ'o·bar' (tĭ'pō-bär'), n. Print. A typesetting machine, now obsolete, that assembled matrices in a line and impressed the line on a bar of soft metal.

typ'o·cos'my (tĭ'pō-kŏz'mĭ; tĭp'ō-), n. [typo- + Gr. kosmos the world.] A system of terms, names, etc., purporting to cover all used in business, art, science, etc., in the world; a universal nomenclature or terminology. Rare.

ty·pog'ra·pher (tĭ-pŏg'rȧ-fĕr; tĭ'-), n. [See TYPOGRAPHY.] A printer, or one who designs or arranges printing; now more esp., a printer of exceptional ability, or one who is a master craftsman.

typ'o·graph'i·a (tĭ'pō-grăf'ĭ-ȧ; tĭp'ō-), n. pl. [NL.] Matters of information or interest about typography.

typ'o·graph'ic (tĭ'pō-grăf'ĭk; tĭp'ō-; 277), typ'o·graph'i·cal (-ĭ-kăl), adj. [Cf. F. typographique.] 1. Of or pertaining to the act or art of representing by types or symbols; emblematic; figurative; typical. Obs.

2. Of, pertaining to, expressed by or in, or concerning, typography or printing; as, typographic art; a typographical error.

— typ'o·graph'i·cal·ly, adv.

ty·pog'ra·phist (tĭ-pŏg'rȧ-fĭst; tĭ'-), n. A student of the art and history of printing. Rare.

ty·pog'ra·phy (-fĭ), n. [F. typographie, fr. ML. typographia. See TYPO-; -GRAPHY.] 1. Act or art of expressing by types or symbols; emblematic representation. Obs.

2. Art of printing with type; use of type to produce impressions on paper, vellum, etc.; also, the style, arrangement, or appearance of matter printed from type.

-ty·pog'ra·phy. A combining form of typography, as in:

autotypography	palaeotypography	stereotypography chromotypography	phototypography	xylotypography heliotypography

ty'po·li·thog'ra·phy (tĭ'pō-lĭ-thŏg'rȧ-fĭ), n. [typo- + lithography.] A branch of lithography in which impressions from printers' types are transferred to stone for reproduction. — ty'po·lith'o·graph'ic (-lĭth'ō-grăf'ĭk), adj.

ty'po·log'i·cal (tĭ'pō-lŏj'ĭ-kăl), adj. Also ty'po·log'ic (-ĭk). a Of or pertaining to types; based upon or concerned with the study of types. b Theol. Of or pertaining to typology.

— ty'po·log'i·cal·ly, adv.

ty·pol'o·gy (tī-pŏl'ō-jĭ), n. [typo- + -logy.] 1. The study of types of individuals.

2. Theol. The doctrine of types or symbols; specif., the doctrine that things in the Christian dispensation are symbolized or prefigured by things in the Old Testament, as the sacrifice of Christ and the Eucharist by the sacrifice of the Paschal Lamb.

— ty·pol'o·gist (-jĭst), n.

ty'po·ma'ni·a (tĭ'pō-mā'nĭ-ȧ), n. A mania for writing for publication. Nonce Word.

ty·pom'e·try (tī-pŏm'ē-trĭ), n. [typo- + -metry.] Print. The measurement of types.

ty'po·nym (tĭ'pō-nĭm), n. [typo- + -nym.] Bot. & Zool. a A name based on an indication of a type specimen or type species, not on a description or diagnosis. b A rejected isogenotype. — ty·pon'y·mal (tī-pŏn'ĭ-măl), ty'po·nym'ic (tĭ'pō-nĭm'ĭk), ty·pon'y·mous (tī-pŏn'ĭ-mŭs), adj.

ty'po·phile (-fīl; -fĭl), n. [typo- + -phile.] A lover of printed matter or typography.

ty'po·ra'ma (-rȧ'mȧ), n. [typo- + Gr. horama a sight, a spectacle.] A facsimile model or representation. Rare.

ty'po·tel'e·graph (-tĕl'ē-grăf), n. A printing telegraph. — ty'po·te·leg'ra·phy (-tē-lĕg'rȧ-fĭ), n.

Ty'po·the'ri·a (tĭ'pō-thē'rĭ-ȧ; tĭp'ō-), n. pl. [NL., fr. typo- + Gr. thērion animal.] Paleontol. A suborder (or order) of small South American Tertiary and Pleistocene mammals somewhat similar to the rodents but allied to the toxodonts. They possessed clavicles, were mostly five-toed, and had simple, persistently growing teeth. The leading family is Ty'po·the·ri'i·dae (-thē-rī'ĭ-dē). — ty'po·there (tĭ'pō-thēr), n.

ty·poth'e·tae (tī-pŏth'ē-tē; tĭ'-; tĭ'pō-thē'tē), n. pl. [NL., fr. typo- + Gr. tithenai to put, set.] Printers; — used in the names of associations of master printers in the United States and Canada.

typp (tĭp), n. [thousand yards per pound.] A unit of count for all yarns. It is the number of thousands of yards weighing one pound.

typ·tol'o·gy (tĭp·tŏl'ō-jĭ), n. [Gr. typtein to beat, strike + -logy.] Theory or lore of spirit rappings. — typ'to·log'i·cal (tĭp'tō-lŏj'ĭ-kăl), adj. — typ·tol'o·gist (tĭp·tŏl'ō-jĭst), n.

typ'y (tĭp'ĭ), adj. Possessing the characteristic form or type; typical. Colloq.

-typy. A combining form, Greek -typia, from typē, impression, used to denote a state, process, or art, of that expressed by a corresponding noun in -type, as in:

artotypy	daguerreotypy	phonotypy
autotypy	electrotypy	phototypy chemitypy	heliotypy	physiotypy chiasmatypy	homotypy	stenotypy chromotypy	lithotypy	stereotypy
collotypy	megatypy	thermotypy

Tyr (tür), n. [ON. Týr. See ZEUS; cf. TIU, TUESDAY.] Teut. Myth. In Norse mythology, a war-god, the son of Odin, by whom he is largely replaced. He is one-handed, having lost one hand at the binding of Fenrir. At Ragnarok he slays and is slain by Garm. Orig. he was probably a sky-god, the chief god of the Teutonic peoples, equivalent to Tiu.

tyr-. = TYRO-.

tyr'a·mine' (tĭ'rȧ-mēn'; tĭr'ȧ-; tĭ-răm'ĭn; tĭ'-), n. Also -ram'in. [tyrosine + -amine.] Biochem. A white crystalline base, $C_8H_{11}NO$, obtained from tyrosine by bacterial action and found also in the secretions of cephalopods and in certain plants, as mistletoe and ergot.

tyrann-. = TYRANNO-.

tyr'an·ness (tĭr'ăn·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. A female tyrant.

Ty·ran'ni (tĭ-răn'ĭ), n. pl. [NL. See TYRANT.] Zool. A suborder of birds (order Passeriformes) having the tendon of the hind toe separate and the intrinsic muscles of the syrinx reduced to usually one pair, the ends of which are inserted on the sides instead of the tips of its cartilaginous semirings. They have little power of song. It comprises the South American ant birds, ovenbirds, and wood hewers, besides the tyrant flycatchers and their allies of both hemispheres (see TYRANNIDAE). Syn. Clamatores (in part).

ty·ran'ni·al (tĭ-răn'ĭ-ăl; tĭ-), adj. Tyrannical. Rare.

ty·ran'nic (tĭ-răn'ĭk; tĭ-), adj. Tyrannical. — -nic·ly, adv.

ty·ran'ni·cal (-ĭ-kăl), adj. [L. tyrannicus, fr. Gr. tyrannikos; cf. F. tyrannique. See TYRANT.] Of or pertaining to a tyrant; befitting a tyrant; unjustly severe in government; despotic; arbitrary; as, a tyrannical prince, rule, act. — ty·ran'ni·cal·ly, adv. — ty·ran'ni·cal·ness, n.

Syn. — See DESPOTIC. Ant. — Fair, just.

ty·ran'ni·cide (-ĭ-sīd), n. [F., fr. L. tyrannicidium the killing of a tyrant, tyrannicida killer of a tyrant, fr. tyrannus tyrant + caedere to kill. See TYRANT; -CIDE.] Act of killing a tyrant; also, one who kills a tyrant. — ty·ran'ni·cid'al (-sīd'ăl; -l), adj.

— the Tyrannicides. Harmodius and Aristogiton, who were associated in slaying Hipparchus; also, a marble group in the Museo Nazionale at Naples representing them and copied probably from the group by Critius and Nesiotes which stood in the market place at Athens.

Ty·ran'ni·dae (tĭ-răn'ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. tyrannus tyrant + -idae.] Zool. A large exclusively American family of passerine birds (order Tyranni), most numerous in South and Central America, but well represented in the United States and Canada; the American flycatchers or tyrant flycatchers. Most of the species are strictly insectivorous and take their prey on the wing. The bill is flattened, often hooked at the tip, and usually bristly at the gape. With the pittas, cotingas, and allied forms, the family constitutes a superfamily, Ty·ran'ni·des (-dēz). The typical subfamily, Tyr'an·ni'nae (tĭr'ȧ-nī'nē), includes the well-known kingbirds, phoebe, etc. — tyr'an·nine (tĭr'ȧ-nĭn; -nīn; 156), adj. — tyr'an·noid (-noid), adj.

One of the Tyrannidae, the Great Crested Flycatcher (Myiarchus crinitus). (⅓) tyr'an·nism (tĭr'ȧ-nĭz'm), n. 1. Tyrannous rule. Rare.

2. Morbid propensity to exercise cruelty.

tyr'an·nize (tĭr'ȧ-nīz), v.; -NIZED (-nīzd); -NIZ'ING (-nīz'ĭng). [F. tyranniser; cf. Gr. tyrannizein to take the part of tyrants.] Intransitive: To act the tyrant; to exercise typ'ey. Var. of TYPY.

ty·pha'ceous (tĭ-fā'shŭs), adj. See -ACEOUS. [PHOEAN.]

Ty·phe'an, adj. Erron. for Ty-ty·phin'i·a (tĭ-fĭn'ĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., fr. typhine, the bacillus of typhoid fever.] Med. = RELAPSING FEVER.

typh'o·lex'i·a (tĭ'fō-lĕk'sĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., fr. typho- + -lexia.] Word-blindness.

typh'lon (tĭf'lŏn), n. [Gr.] = CAECUM. [MIA.]

ty'pho·se'mi·a. Var. of TYPHOE ty·pho'ni·a (tī·fō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. = TYPHOMANIA.

ty·phoon'ish, adj. See -ISH.

ty'pho·sep'sis, n. See -SEPSIS.

typical bathyal zone. See BATHYAL DISTRICT. [DINE.]

typical eurhodine. See EURHO-ty·pog'ra·fer, ty'po·graf'i·cal, ty·pog'ra·fy. Typographer, typographical, typography. Ref. Sp.

ty'po·script (tĭ'pō-skrĭpt), n. = TYPESCRIPT.

ty'ran (tĭ'rănn), n. & v. & adj. = TYRANT. Obs.

ty·ran'ni·ous, adj. [Cf. TYRANNOUS.] = TYRANNICAL. Obs. — ty·ran'ni·ous·ly, adv. Obs.

arbitrary power; to rule with unjust and oppressive severity; — often with over; as, no habit could tyrannize over him. —, Transitive: 1. To treat tyrannically; to oppress.

2. To make tyrannical or oppressive, as a law. Obs.

tyr'an·niz'er (tĭr'ă·nīz'ĕr), n. One that tyrannizes.

tyr'an·niz'ing (-ĭng), adj. That tyrannizes. — ty'ran·niz'ing·ly, adv.

ty·ran'no- (tĭ·răn'ō-; tī-), tyrann-. A combining form, Greek tyranno-, tyrann-, from tyrannos, meaning tyrant, as in ty·ran'no·pho'bi·a. See -PHOBIA.

Ty·ran'no·sau'rus (tĭ·răn'ō·sô'rŭs; tī-), n. [NL., fr. tyranno- + -saurus.] Paleontol. A genus of theropod dinosaurs from the Upper Cretaceous of Montana and Wyoming, closely related to Ceratosaurus. The only known species (T. rex) reached a length of about 47 feet and is the largest carnivorous dinosaur. — ty·ran'no·saur (-răn'ō·sôr), n.

tyr'an·nous (tĭr'ă·nŭs), adj. Tyrannical; unjustly severe; despotic. — tyr'an·nous·ly, adv. — tyr'an·nous·ness, n. Syn. — See DESPOTIC. Ant. — Fair, just.

Ty·ran'nus (tĭ·răn'ŭs), n. [NL. See TYRANNIDAE.] Zool. The typical genus of Tyrannidae, formerly extensive, but now restricted to the kingbird and closely allied species.

tyr'an·ny (tĭr'ă·nĭ), n.; pl. -NIES (-nĭz). [ME. tirannye, fr. OF. tirannie (F. tyrannie); cf. Gr. tyrannia, tyrannis. See TYRANT.] 1. The government or authority of a tyrant in the ancient Greek sense; the office, tenure, or system of administration, of an absolute ruler called a tyrant (which see). Cf. AUTOCRACY, 2.

2. Hence, arbitrary or despotic exercise of power; exercise of power over subjects and others with a rigor not authorized by law or justice, or not requisite for the purposes of government; a tyrannical government; despotism.

Where law ends tyranny begins. Wm. Pitt.

3. A tyrannical act; an instance of cruel or despotic government or discipline; as, petty tyrannies of a master.

4. Severity; rigor; inclemency. "The tyranny of the open night's too rough For nature to endure." Shak.

ty'rant (tī'rănt), n. [ME. tyran, tirant, fr. OF. tiran (F. tyran), tyrant (from confusion with the pres. part. of verbs), fr. L. tyrannus, Gr. tyrannos, orig., lord, prob. of Aegean origin; cf. Etruscan Turan Venus.] 1. An absolute ruler; a sovereign unrestrained by law or constitution; a usurper of sovereignty.

Free governments [in Greece] having superseded the old hereditary sovereignties (basileiai), all who obtained absolute power in a state were called tyrannoi, tyrants, or rather despots; — for the term rather regards the irregular way in which the power was gained, whether force or fraud, than the way in which it was exercised, being applied to the mild Pisistratus, but not to the despotic kings of Persia. However, the word soon came to imply reproach, and was then used like our tyrant. Liddell & Scott.

2. Specif.: a A monarch, or other ruler, who exercises absolute power oppressively or brutally; a despot. b A master or person who exercises unlawful authority, or lawful authority in an unlawful or oppressive manner; one who by taxation, injustice, or cruel punishment, or the demand of unreasonable services, imposes burdens and hardships on those under his control; a cruel master; an oppressor. "This false tyrant, this Nero." Chaucer.

3. Short for TYRANT FLYCATCHER.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

tyrant-bought tyrant-hating, adj. tyrant-ridden tyrantcraft tyrant-quelling, adj. tyrant-scourging, adj.

ty'rant, v. i. To act the tyrant; to tyrannize.

tyrant flycatcher Also tyrant bird. A flycatcher of the family Tyrannidae; an American flycatcher.

tyrant wren. A small yellow crested South American bird (Tyrannulus elatus), formerly included in the Tyrannidae, but now referred to the Cotingidae.

ty·rem'e·sis (tĭ·rĕm'ē·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tyros cheese + emesis vomiting.] Med. Vomiting of curdy matter, as in infants.

Tyr'i·an (tĭr'ĭ·ăn), adj. [L. Tyrius, fr. Tyrus Tyre, fr. Gr. Tyros.] 1. Of or pertaining to ancient Tyre or its people. See PHOENICIAN.

2. Of the color Tyrian purple.

Tyr'i·an, n. [L. Tyrius.] A native of Tyre.

Tyrian alphabet. The Moabite alphabet, which prevailed in Phoenicia during the ascendancy of Tyre.

Tyrian blue. A color, blue in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Tyrian Cynosure. Astron. The constellation Ursa Minor, the guide of the sailors of Tyre.

Tyrian dye. = TYRIAN PURPLE a.

Tyrian Era. See ERA, Table.

Tyrian pink. A color, reddish blue-red in hue, of very high saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Tyrian purple. a A celebrated crimson or purple dye used by the Greeks and Romans, prepared from the adrectal glands of certain mollusks. See PUNICIN. b A color, bluish-red in hue, of very high saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR. — Tyr'i·an-pur'ple, adj.

Tyrian rose. A color, bluish-red in hue, of very high saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

ty·ri'a·sis (tĭ·rī'ă·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. tyro- + -iasis.] Med. a Elephantiasis. b Alopecia.

ty'ro, ti'ro (tī'rō), n.; pl. -ROS (-rōz). [ML., fr. L. tiro a newly levied soldier, a beginner.] A beginner in learning; one who is in the rudiments of any branch of study; a person imperfectly acquainted with a subject; a novice.

Syn. and Ant. — See NOVICE.

ty'ro- (tī'rō-), tyr-. A combining form, Greek tyro-, tyr-, from tyros, meaning cheese, as in *tyro*mancy, *tyro*ma.

Ty·rog'ly·phus (tĭ·rŏg'lĭ·fŭs), n. [NL., fr. tyro- + Gr. glyphein to carve.] Zool. An important genus of mites, most of which feed on animal substances, as the cheese mite, etc. It is the type of a family, Ty'ro·glyph'i·dae (tĭ'rō·glĭf'ĭ·dē). — ty·rog'ly·phid (tĭ·rŏg'lĭ·fĭd), n. & adj.

Tyr'o·lese' (tĭr'ō·lēz'; -lēs'), adj. Of or pertaining to Tirol or its inhabitants. — n. sing. & pl. One of the natives or inhabitants of Tirol.

☞ The spelling Tyrolese is still quite common, although Tirol has largely superseded Tyrol as a geographical term. Cf. TIROLESE.

Tyrolese green. The color malachite green.

Tyr'ol green (tĭr'ōl; G. tē·rōl'). [From Tirol, Austria.] = TERRE-VERTE, 2.

Ty'ro'lienne' (tī'rō'lĭy'ĕn'), n. [F., prop., fem. of tyrolien Tirolese.] 1 A Tirolese peasants' dance, or the song or melody for it, characterized by the yodel.

tyr'o·lite (tĭr'ō·līt), n. [From Tirol, where it occurs.] Mineral. A hydrous copper arsenate occurring in pale-green or bluish-green crystalline masses.

tyrolite green. A color, green in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

ty·rol'o·gy (tĭ·rŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [tyro- + -logy.] Instruction for tyros. Rare.

Tyrol sumac. Venetian sumac.

ty·ro'ma (tī·rō'mȧ), n.; pl. -MATA (-mȧ·tȧ), -MAS (-máz). [NL., fr. tyr- + -oma.] Med. Any cheesy matter or growth. — ty·rom'a·tous (-rōm'ȧ·tŭs; -rō'mȧ·tŭs), adj.

ty·ro·man'cy (tĭ'rō·măn'sĭ), n. [tyro- + -mancy; cf Gr. tyromantis one who divines from cheese.] Divination by means of cheese. Obs.

ty·rone' (tĭ·rōn'), n. [It. tirone. See TYRO.] A tyro. R.

ty·ron'ic (tĭ·rŏn'ĭk), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, a tyro; amateurish. — ty'ro·nism (tĭ'rō·nĭz'm), n.

ty'ro·sin·ase (tĭ'rō·sĭn·ās'; tĭr'ō-; tī·rŏs'ĭ·nās), n. An enzyme that accelerates the oxidation of tyrosine. It occurs in plants and animals.

ty'ro·sine (tĭ'rō·sēn; -sĭn; tĭr'ō-; 157), n. Also -sin. [Gr. tyros cheese.] Biochem. a A white crystalline amino acid, $C_9H_{11}NO_3$, formed in quantity from the decomposition of protein matter by various means, as by pancreatic digestion, by putrefaction as of cheese, by boiling acids, etc.; p-hydroxy-phenylalanine. b By extension, either of two crystal line compounds, ortho and meta isomers of the above, called specif., ortho- (o-) and meta- (m-) tyrosine.

ty'ro·si·nu'ri·a (tĭ'rō·sĭ·nū'rĭ·ȧ; tĭr'ō-), n. [NL., fr. tyrosine + -uria.] Med. The presence or excretion of tyrosine in the urine.

ty'ro·syl (tĭ'rō·sĭl; tĭr'ō-), n. Chem. The univalent radical, $C_9H_{10}NO_2$, of tyrosine. Cf. BENZOYL.

ty'ro·tox'i·con (tĭ'rō·tŏk'sĭ·kŏn; tĭr'ō-), n. [NL., fr. tyro- + Gr. toxikon. See TOXIC.] Biochem. A poisonous substance in putrid cheese and other dairy products, producing symptoms similar to cholera infantum; — so named by Vaughan, according to whom it is identical, in chemical and physiological behavior, with diazobenzene butyrate.

ty'ro·tox'ine (-sēn; -sĭn; 157), n. Also -in. Biochem. A ptomaine obtained from cheese, resembling curare in its effects.

Tyr'rel's case (tĭr'ĕlz). The case (Dyer, 155 a) that held that there could not be a use upon a use.

Tyr·rhe'ni (tĭ·rē'nī), n. pl. [L. See TYRRHENIAN; cf. TURSHA.] The Etruscan people; also, loosely, the supposed immigrant ancestors of the historic Etruscans. See ETRUSCAN.

Tyr·rhe'ni·an (-nĭ·ăn), Tyr'rhene (tĭr'ēn; tĭ·rēn'), adj. [L. Tyrrhenus, Gr. Tyrrhēnos. See TOWER.] Of or pertaining to the Tyrrheni; hence, Etruscan.

Tyrrhenian Transition region. Biogeog. A division almost equivalent to the Mediterranean subregion.

Tyr·tae'an (tĕr·tē'ăn), adj. Of, pertaining to, or in the manner of, the Spartan poet Tyrtaeus, noted as a writer of spirited martial and patriotic songs in the 7th century B.C. ty'son·ite (tī'sŭn·īt), n. [After S. T. Tyson.] Mineral. A fluoride of the cerium metals occurring in hexagonal crystals of a pale-yellow color, and in masses.

Ty'son's gland (tī'sŭnz; -s'nz). = GLAND OF TYSON.

tys'te, tys'tie (tĭs'tĭ; tĭs'-), n. [Of Scand. origin; cf. Nor. teiste, ON. theist, theisti.] The black guillemot. Scot.

tyt, tyte, adv. = TITE, adv.

Ty'to (tī'tō), n. [NL., fr. Gr. tytō owl, of imitative origin.] Zool. A cosmopolitan genus consisting of the barn owls; syns. Strix (sense a), Aluco. It constitutes a family, Ty·ton'i·dae (tĭ·tŏn'ĭ·dē), differing from other owls in having an unnotched sternum and large clavicles fused with it. Cf. STRIGIDAE.

tzar (tsär). Var. of CZAR, the title of the former emperors of Russia.

tza·ri'na (tsä·rē'nȧ). Var. of CZARINA, the title of the former empresses of Russia.

Tzen·tal' (tsĕn·täl'), n.; pl., TZENTALES (-tä'lās). Also Tzen·dal' (-däl'), n.; pl. TZENDALES (-dä'lās). An Indian of a Mayan tribe of central Chiapas, Mexico. See MAYA, n., MAYAN.

‖tzi'gane' (tsē'gȧn'), n. [F. See CZIGANY.] A gypsy, esp. of Hungary. — tzi'gane', adj.

tzon'tle (tsŏn'tlā), n. [Sp. zontle, zoncle, fr. Nahuatl centzoltli four hundred, lit., one head of hair. Cf. TEZCATZONCATL.] An old unit of currency in Mexico, equal to 20 score of beans.

Tzo·tzil' (tsō·tsēl'), n.; pl. TZOTZILES (-tsē'lās). An Indian of a Mayan tribe dwelling in central Chiapas, Mexico. See MAYA, n.; MAYAN.

Tz'u'-chou' (tsōō'jō'), n. [Chin. tz'ŭ²-chou[1], fr. tz'ŭ² porcelain + chou[1] department, district.] A type of ancient (Sung period) Chinese pottery made in Honan province. It has a cream-colored glaze over a buff or gray body.

Tzu'tu·hil' (tsōō'tōō·ēl'), n.; pl. TZUTUHILES (-ē'lās). An Indian of a Mayan tribe dwelling in western Guatemala. See MAYA, n., MAYAN.

Ty·ran'nus (tĭ·răn'ŭs). Bib. ty'rant-like', adj. See -LIKE. ty'rant-ship, n. See -SHIP. tyr'a-sole. Erron. for KITTYSOL. tyre. ✝ TIER.
Tyre (tīr). Bib. tyre, n. A kind of sweet wine. Obs.
tyre (tīr). Var. of TAYIR. tyre. Var. of TIRE (of a wheel). Chiefly Eng.
tyret. ✝ TERRET. tyr'i·an'thine (tĭr'ĭ·ăn'thĭn; -thīn), adj. [Gr. tyrianthinos; cf. F. tyrianthin.] Having a purple color. Obs. [TUM. ty'ro·cin'i·um. Var. of TIROCIN-Tyrr. See TYR.
Tyr·se'noi (tĕr·sē'noi), n. pl. [Gr. Tyrsēnoi. See TOWER.] = TYRRHENI.
Ty'rus (tī'rŭs). Bib. tyxt. ✝ TEXT.
Tza'po·tec' (tsä'pō·tĕk'). Var. of ZAPOTEC. tzar'dom, tzar'ism, tzar'ist, etc. Vars. of CZARDOM, CZARISM, etc. [RINA. tza·rit'za (tsä·rĭt'sȧ), n. = TZAtze'ran (tsē'răn). Var. of DZERAN. tzet'ze. Var. of TSETSE.
‖tzi'ga·ny (tsĭ'gȧn·y). Var. of CZIGANY. tzirid. ✝ JERRID. tzol'kin (tsōl'kēn), n. = TONALAMATL.
Tzo·ne'can. Var. of TSONECAN

U

U, u (ū), n.; pl. U's, u's, Us, us (ūz). 1. The twenty-first letter of the English alphabet. It is a cursive form of the letter V (see V), with which it was formerly used interchangeably, both letters having either vocalic or consonantal value (cf. I and J). As early as the 10th century, however, V came to be used by preference as the capital initial form, and U as the uncial or cursive medial form. The consonantal sound usually occurring initially and the vowel or semivowel sound medially, V gradually became specialized to represent the former and U the latter, but small u and small v were used interchangeably as late as the 15th century. In dictionaries of English, U and V were not given separate alphabetical positions until about 1800. The vowel sound of u in Anglo-Saxon, or Old English, was the sound which it still retains in most of the languages of Europe, that of long oo, as in tool, and short oo, as in wood, but in Modern English u has various sounds. See Pron., §§ 239–253. In cognate words English u and ou correspond to German u, au, Latin u, Greek y, Sanskrit u, as in dumb, G. dumm, Gr. typhlos (blind); young, G. jung, L. juvencus, Skr. yuvaśa; mouse, G. maus, L. mus, Gr. mys, Skr. mūs. See ALPHABET.
2. a An instance of the letter U, u, printed, written, painted, etc. b A printer's type, a stamp, etc., for the letter U, u. c The sound, or any sound, of the letter U.
3. Anything having the shape of the letter U.
4. Short for UNIVERSITY; — usually with the. Slang.
5. As a symbol, used to denote or indicate anyone or anything arbitrarily or conveniently so designated, esp. as the twentieth or (cf. K, n., 4) the twenty-first in order or class.
6. As an abbreviation: see Abbreviations, in Appendix.

U, u, adj. 1. Twentieth or (cf. K, adj., 1) twenty-first in order or class.
2. [cap.] Having the form of capital U; as, a U bar.

ua-. For various words beginning ua-, see corresponding forms beginning VA-, WA-.

ua·ka'ri (wä·kä'rē). Var. of OUAKARI.

uang (wäng), n. [Achinese uĕñ.] The rhinoceros beetle (Oryctes rhinoceros). Malaysia.

Ua'ray·cu' (wä'rī·kōō'), n. An Indian of an Arawakan tribe of western Brazil.

Ua're·ke'na (wä'rā·kā'nä), n. An Indian of an Arawakan tribe of eastern Colombia.

ua·yeb' (wä·yĕb'), n. [Maya.] The five supplementary days added at the end of each year to complete 365 days. See MAYAN CALENDAR.

u'ber·ant (ū'bĕr·ănt), adj. [L. uberans, -antis, pres. part. See UBERATE.] Abundant. Rare.

‖Ü'ber·mensch' (ü'bĕr·mĕnsh'), n.; pl. -MENSCHEN (-mĕn'·shĕn). [G.] Overman; superman. See SUPERMAN.

u'ber·ous (ū'bĕr·ŭs), adj. [ML. uberosus, fr. L. uber.] Fruitful; copious; plentiful; abundant. — u'ber·ous·ly, adv. — u'ber·ous·ness, n.

‖u·ber'ri·ma fi'des (ū·bĕr'ī·mä fī'dēz). [L.] Law. The most perfect good faith. Cf. BONA FIDE.

u'ber·ty (ū'bĕr·tĭ), n. [L. ubertas.] Fruitfulness; plenty.

u'bi·ca'tion (ū'bĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [NL. ubicatio, fr. L. ubi where.] Whereness. Rare.

u·bi'e·ty (ū·bī'ĕ·tĭ), n. [NL. ubietas, fr. L. ubi where.] Quality or state of being in a place; as: a The state of being placed in a definite local relation; position; location. b The abstract quality of being in position; whereness.

U'bi·i (ū'bĭ·ī), n. pl. A tribe of the Istvaeones. See ISTVAEONES.

‖u'bi jus, i'bi re·me'di·um (ū'bī jŭs, ī'bī rē·mē'dĭ·ŭm). [L.] Law. Where there is a right, there is a remedy.

‖u'bi jus in·cer'tum, i'bi jus nul'lum (ĭn·sûr'tŭm, nŭl'·ŭm) [L.] Law. Where the law is uncertain, there is no law.

u'bi·quar'i·an (ū'bĭ·kwär'ĭ·ăn; 79), adj. Ubiquitous. Rare.

U'bi·quar'i·an, n. Eccl. Hist. A ubiquitarian.

‖u·bi'que (ū·bī'kwē). [L.] Everywhere; anywhere.

u·biq'ui·ous (ū·bĭk'wĭ·ŭs), adj. Ubiquitous. Rare.

U'bi·quist (ū'bĭ·kwĭst), n. Eccl. Hist. A ubiquitarian.

u·biq'uit (ū·bĭk'wĭt), v. t. To make ubiquitous. Rare.

u·biq'ui·tar'i·an (ū·bĭk'wĭ·târ'ĭ·ăn; 79), adj. 1. Omnipresent.
2. [cap.] Eccl. Of or pertaining to the Ubiquitarians.

U·biq'ui·tar'i·an, n. [L. ubique everywhere; cf. F. ubiquiste, ubiquitaire. See UBIQUITY.] Eccl. Hist. One of a school of Lutheran divines which held that, as Christ is omnipresent, his body is everywhere, esp. in the Eucharist. — — U·biq'ui·tar'i·an·ism (-Iz'm), n.

u·biq'ui·tar'y (ū·bĭk'wĭ·tĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. ubique everywhere. See UBIQUITARIAN.] Ubiquitous. — u·biq'ui·tar'i·ness (-I·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

u·biq'ui·tar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-Iz). Rare. a One who exists everywhere. b [cap.] A Ubiquitarian.

U·biq'ui·tism (-tĭz'm), n. Ubiquitarianism. Rare. — U·biq'ui·tist (-tĭst), n.

u·biq'ui·tous (ū·bĭk'wĭ·tŭs), adj. [See UBIQUITY.] Existing or being everywhere at the same time; omnipresent.
Syn. — See OMNIPRESENT.
— u·biq'ui·tous·ly, adv. — u·biq'ui·tous·ness, n.

u·biq'ui·ty (-tĭ), n. [L. ubique everywhere, fr. ubi where, for cubi (cf. alicubi anywhere); akin to L. quis who, E. how; cf. F. ubiquité. See WHO.] 1. Presence in more than one place, or in an indefinite number of places, at the same time; omnipresence; as, the ubiquity of God.
The arms of Rome . . . were impeded by . . . the wide spaces to be traversed and the ubiquity of the enemy. C. Merivale.
2. Situation; locality. Obs. B. Jonson.
3. Theol. The doctrine, as formulated by Luther, that Christ's glorified body is omnipresent.

‖u'bi su'pra (ū'bī sū'prä). [L.] Where above (mentioned).

U'-boat' (ū'bōt'), n. [G. U-boot, for unterseeboot. See UNDER; SEA; BOAT.] A submarine; — generally restricted to German or Austrian submarines, as in the World War.

u'bus·su' (ōō'bŏō·sōō'), n., or ubussu palm. [Pg. ubussu, fr. Tupi ubu-ussú. See BUSSU.] The bussu.

U'ca (ū'kä), n. [NL., formerly Uçá, fr. Tupi uça, usá, fiddler crab, whence Pg. uçá a kind of Brazilian ant.] Zool. The genus consisting of the fiddler crabs.

U·cal'e·gon (ū·kăl'ē·gŏn), n. [L. Ucalegon, fr. Gr. Oukalegōn.] In Trojan legend, one of the ancient counselors who sat with Priam on the wall. Aeneas speaks of the flames reaching Ucalegon's house, next to that of Anchises, before he fled from the city. Hence, a next-door neighbor, or a neighbor whose house is on fire.

uch, uche (ŭch), adj. [Cf. AS. ȳlc, var. of ǣlc. See EACH.] = EACH. Obs.

U·che'an (ū·chē'ăn), adj. Pertaining to or designating an American Indian linguistic family, consisting of a single tribe, the Yuchi, or U'chee (ū'chē). See YUCHI.

U'-cut', adj. Cut in the form of the letter U. See U, adj., 2.

u'dal (ū'dăl; ōō'dăl; -d'l), n. & adj., u'dal·er (or u'dal·ler), u'dal·man, etc. Vars. of ODAL, etc. Obs., exc. in Shetland and the Orkney Islands, where udal designates land (udal land) held in fee simple without any charter and free of any feudal character.

u·da'si (ōō·dä'sē), n. [Skr. udāsī, fr. udāsa indifferent, stoical.] Any religious mendicant, esp. a Sikh. India.

ud'der (ŭd'ēr), n. [ME. udder, uddyr, uder, fr. AS. ūder; akin to D. uijer, G. euter, OHG. ūtar, ūtiro, ON. jūgr, Sw. juver, jur, Dan. yver, L. uber, Gr. outhar, Skr. ūdhar. Cf. EXUBERANT.] A mammary gland or milk gland, when large, pendent, and provided with two or more nipples or teats, as in cows.
A lioness, with udders all drawn dry. Shak.

ud'der (ŭd'ĕrz ōōd'-). Var. of OTHER. Obs. exc. Dial.

ud'dered (ŭd'ĕrd), adj. Having an udder or udders.

ud'der·ful (-ĕr·fōōl), adj. Having the udders full.

ud'der·less, adj. Destitute or deprived of an udder; hence, lacking a mother's nourishment; motherless. Poetic.

u·dell' (ū·dĕl'), n. [Var of ALUDEL.] An aludel.

U'di (ōō'dē), n. Also U'dic (-dĭk), U'dish (-dĭsh). A North Caucasian language. See CAUCASIAN, adj., 2.

u'do (ōō'dō), n. [Jap.] A stout Japanese herb (Aralia cordata), the blanched young shoots of which are edible.

u·dom'e·ter (ū·dŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [L. udus wet, moist + -meter.] Meteorol. A rain gauge. — u'do·met'ric (ū'dŏ·mĕt'rĭk), adj. — u·dom'e·try (ū·dŏm'ē·trĭ), n.

u·dom'o·graph (ū·dŏm'ō·grăf), n. [udometer + -graph.] Meteorol. A self-registering rain gauge.

ue-. For various words in ue-, see the forms in VE-.

Uf·fi'zi Gal'ler·y (ōōf·fēt'sē). Also the Uffizi. The art gallery in Florence, Italy, founded by the Medici and containing one of the finest collections of paintings in the world.

ug (ŭg; ōōg), v. i. [ME. uggen, fr. ON. ugga to fear. See UGLY.] To feel fear, disgust, or nausea Scot. & Dial. — v. t. To affect with abhorrence; also, to abhor. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

ug, n. A feeling or object of disgust. Scot. & Dial.

U·gan'da bark (ū·găn'dä; ōō·găn'dä). The bark of a tropical African tree (Brachystegia spicaeformis) yielding a bast fiber used for cordage.

U·gan'dan (-dăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Uganda.

U'ga·ro'no (ōō'gä·rō'nō), n. An Indian of a Samucan tribe of Bolivia. See SAMUCAN.

ug'gle·some (ŭg'l·sŭm), adj. [See UG; 1st -SOME.] Horrible. Archaic.

ugh (ŭ; ōō; ŭK), interj. [Imitative.] An exclamation expressing: a A cough. b An Indian's grunt of assent. c Disgust, horror, or recoil; — usually accompanied by a shudder.

ugh'ten, n. [AS. ūhta.] Morning twilight. Obs.

ug'li·fy (ŭg'lĭ·fī), v. t. [ugly + -fy.] To make ugly. — ug'li·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. — ug'li·fi'er (ŭg'lĭ·fī'ĕr), n.

ug'li·ly (ŭg'lĭ·lĭ), adv. In an ugly manner; with deformity.

ug'li·ness (ŭg'lĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. Quality or state of being ugly; also, an instance of this. In aesthetics, ugliness is the opposite of beauty. The ugly has, however, been conceded to possess aesthetic value by various writers, either as being true to life and having an intrinsic interest of its own, or as enhancing beauty by contrast, or as essential to the attainment of unity in variety (which see). Cf. GROTESQUE.

ug'ly (ŭg'lĭ), adj.; UG'LI·ER (-lĭ·ĕr); UG'LI·EST. [ME. ugly, uglike, fr. ON. ugglígr fearful, dreadful, fr. uggr fear (akin to ON. ugga to fear) + -lígr (akin to E. -ly, like).] 1. Frightful; terrible; horrible. Obs.
2. Offensive to the sight; contrary to beauty; of disagreeable or loathsome aspect; unsightly; hideous.
Like the toad, ugly and venomous. Shak.
3. Hideous or offensive from a moral aspect; repulsive; as, ugly crimes; ugly habits.
4. Ill-natured; cross-grained; quarrelsome; as, an ugly temper; to feel ugly. Colloq., U. S.
5. Unpleasant; disagreeable; likely to cause trouble or loss; as, an ugly rumor; an ugly customer. Colloq.
6. Threatening; — applied to the weather.
Syn. — Ill-favored, unlovely; loathsome; crabbed, cranky.
Ant. — Attractive; pleasant. See BEAUTIFUL.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

ugly-clouded	ugly-faced	ugly-omened ugly-conditioned	ugly-headed	ugly-tempered ugly-eyed	ugly-looking	ugly-visaged ug'ly, adv. Uglily. Now Chiefly Dial.

ug'ly, n. 1. A folding shade for the face, made of silk and wired so as to project from the bonnet, worn about the middle of the 19th century; also, a large sunbonnet. Colloq., Eng.
2. An ugly person or animal. Cf. PLUG-UGLY. Colloq.

ug'ly, v. t. To make ugly.

Ugly Duckling, The. The title of a story (? 1835) by Hans Christian Andersen of a swan hatched by a duck. Hence [not cap.], an unpromising child who develops into a person of unusual beauty, intelligence, or the like.

U'go·lin'o del'la Ghe'rar·des'ca (ōō'gō·lē'nō dĕl'lä gā'rär·dĕz'kä). [It.] A Pisan noble and partisan leader of the 13th century. Having been defeated in a battle with the Ghibellines under Archbishop Ruggieri, he was imprisoned, with two sons and two nephews, and left to starve in the tower of the Gualandi (afterwards — it was pulled down in 1655 — called the Tower of Hunger). Dante has immortalized his name and sufferings, representing him as voraciously devouring the head of Ruggieri in hell, where they are frozen up together in a lake of ice.

U'gri·an (ōō'grĭ·ăn; ū'-), n. A member of the eastern division of the Finno-Ugric peoples, which includes the Magyars, Voguls, and Ostyaks. — adj. Designating or pertaining to the Ugrians; Ugric; Finno-Ugric. — u'gri·an·ize (-Iz), v. t.

U'gric (-grĭk), adj. Designating or pertaining to the languages of the Ugrians. See FINNO-UGRIC LANGUAGES.

U'gro- (-grō-). A combining form denoting Ugrian and, as in U'gro–Al·ta'ic (= URAL-ALTAIC), U'gro–Ar'yan, U'gro–Finn'ic (= FINNO-UGRIC), U'gro–Finn'ish, U'gro–Sla·von'ic, U'gro–Ta·tar'i·an.

U'groid (-groid), adj. Like the Ugrians in type or qualities.

ug'some (ŭg'sŭm; ōōg'-), adj. [See UG.] Frightful; abhorrent; horrid. Now Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng. — ug'some·ly, adv. — ug'some·ness, n.

uh'–huh' (ŭ'hŭ'), interj. [Inarticulate. Cf. UGH, UNH-UNH, EH.] An exclamation signifying an affirmative answer.

uh'lan (ōō'län; ōō·lăn'; ū'lăn), n. [G. uhlan, ulan, fr. Pol. ulan, hulan, fr. Turk. ōghlān a youth, lad. Cf. ICHOGLAN.] 1. One of a certain kind of Tatar militia.
2. Mil. One of a kind of lancers of Tatarian origin, first introduced into European armies in Poland, but especially prominent in the Prussian armies, notably in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. They are armed with lances, pistols, sabers, and, recently, carbines, and are employed chiefly as skirmishers and scouts. Their Oriental dress has been gradually abandoned.

uhl'lo (ŭl'ō; ŭl'-), n. [Maidu ŭlo wampum made of ear shells.] Amer. Indian. A shell currency of abalones formerly used by certain Californian Indians.

Uh'ro–Ru·sin'i·an (ōō'rō·rō·ō·sĭn'ĭ·ăn), adj. Pertaining to a Russian people, descendants of the Ruthenians living in the southern Carpathians.

uht'song' (ōōKt'·ŏng'; 185), uh'ten·sang' (ōōk'tĕn·săng'), n. [AS. ūhtsang, fr. ūht ughten + sang song. See UGHTEN; SONG.] Nocturns or matins. Obs. exc. Hist.

ui-. For various words formerly spelled ui-, see VI-, WI-.

Ui'gur (wē'gōōr), n. 1. A member of a Turkic people who developed a powerful kingdom and a considerable culture in Mongolia and East Turkestan between the 8th and 12th centuries A.D.
2. The language of the Uigurs, an East Turki tongue, with a Buddhist and Moslem literature, written in the Uigur alphabet, which was of Sogdian origin (see SOGDIAN), and from which were derived the scripts of the Mongols, Manchus, and Kalmucks. After the conversion of the Uigurs to Islam the Uigur script was gradually replaced by the Arabic. See URAL-ALTAIC LANGUAGES; cf. ORKHON. — Ui'gur, Ui·gu'ri·an (wē·gōō'rĭ·ăn), Ui·gu'ric (-rĭk), adj.

ui·nal' (wē·năl'), n. [Maya.] A period, or month, of 20 days. See MAYAN CALENDAR.

U·in'ta (ū·ĭn'tä), n. [From Uinta Mts., Utah, fr. Uinta, name of a Shoshonean tribe.] 1. Geol. A subdivision of the nonmarine Eocene of the Cordilleran region, consisting mainly of lacustrine sediments with abundant fossil remains of mammals.
2. Also U·in'tah. An Indian of a division of the Ute, formerly ranging in northeastern Utah, now on reservations in that State. See UTE.

u·in'ta·ite, u·in'tah·ite (ū·ĭn'tä·īt), n. [See UINTA.] Mineral. A black lustrous kind of asphalt, occurring on a large scale in Utah; — called also gilsonite. It is useful in the arts.

U·in'ta·the'ri·um (ū·ĭn'tä·thē'rĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Uinta Co., Wyo. + -therium.] Paleontol. A genus of large herbivorous ungulate mammals of the order Amblypoda from the Eocene of Wyoming, which approached elephants in size and in the conformation of their limbs, and had three pairs of bony protuberances on the skull on the parietal, maxillary, and nasal bones, respectively. They had a pair of canine tusks guarded by downwardly directed processes of the lower jaw, but no upper incisors. The brain was proportionately very small. Syn. Dinoceras. The genus is made the type of a family, U·in'ta·the·ri'i·dae (-thē·rĭ'ĭ·dē). — u·in'ta·there (ū·ĭn'tä·thēr), n.

Uintatherium beds. Geol. The Bridger formation of the Eocene.

uint'jie (oint'yē; ŭnt'-), n. [S.Afr.D.] The edible corm of various plants, mostly Iridaceae. When boiled the corms taste like chestnuts. S. Africa.

Ui'ra·co'cha (wē'rä·kō'chä), n. [Sp., fr. Quechua Uiracocha, prob. lit., foam of the sea, fr. uira, vira, foam, grease + ccocha sea.] A deified culture hero of the Aymaras, later adopted by the Incas and worshiped as the Creator. Many local and tribal gods throughout the empire were identified with him, and before the Spanish conquest he had absorbed most of the gods except those of the official pantheon headed by Inti, the Sun. Through this syncretism he became a god of complex attributes, with many names and titles, and the center of a complicated mythology, in which he was sometimes represented as a white man with a history somewhat similar to that of the Mexican Quetzalcoatl and other American Indian deities. Called also Con Ticsi, Illa Ticsi, Pachacamac. Cf. QUETZALCOATL.

Ui·ri'na (wē·rē'nä), n. An Indian of an Arawakan tribe, dwelling on the Rio Negro in northwestern Brazil.

Ui'ten·hage se'ries (ū'tĕn·häg; Du. oi'tĕn·hä'gĕ). [From Uitenhage, S. Africa.] Geol. The Cretaceous strata of the southern folded belt of the Cape Province, South Africa.

‖uit'lander (oit'lăn'dĕr; ŭt'-), n. [D. See OUTLANDER.] [often cap.] A foreigner; outlander; — applied esp. to British residents in the former South African republics of the Transvaal and Orange Free State. S. Africa.

U

‖u'a ma'u ke e'a o ka a'i·na i ka po'no (ōō'ä mä'ōō kā ā'ē ō kä ī'ē·nä ē kä pō'nō). [Hawaiian.] The life of the land is established in righteousness; — the motto of Hawaii.

uanwit. ✝ WANWIT.

Ua'u·pe' (wä'ōō·pā'), n. = PUINAVI. See PUINAVIAN.

Ub'ben·ite (ŭb'ĕn·īt), Ub'bonite (ŭb'ŏn-), n. = OBBENITE.

u·be' (ōō·bē'). Var. of UBI.

u·be'i·ty (ū·bē'ĭ·tĭ). Var. of UBIETY.

UBIEM. [YAM. Phil. I.]

u·bi' (ōō·bē'), n. [Malay.] = UVI

U'cal (ū'kăl). Bib. [COCAMA.]

U'ca·ya'le (ōō'kä·yā'lā), n. = U-cha'ti-us bronze or met'al (ū·kā'shĭ·ŭs; ōō·kā'tsĭ·ōōs). [After Franz, Baron Uchatius, Austrian general and inventor.] = STEEL BRONZE.

uck'i·a (ŭk'ĭ·ä), n. [Ar. ughīyah, fr. Gr. ounikia, fr. L. uncia. See OUNCE.] See WEIGHT, Table.

'Ud (ŭd), interj. = OD; — chiefly possessive and in composition.

u'dad (ōō'dăd). Var. of AOUDAD.

u·da'lut. Var. of ADAWLUT.

ud'der·like', adj. See -LIKE.

udge. ✝ JUDGE.

U·dol'pho (ū·dŏl'fō), n. See MYSTERIES OF UDOLPHO.

U·dol'pho·ish, adj. See ISH.

'Uds (ŭdz). See 'UD.

ue'ba (wā'bä). Var. of WHIBA (see MEASURE, Table).

U'el (ū'ĕl). Bib.

Ue·ue'te·o'tl (wā·wā'tā·ō'tĕ'; -tĕ), n. = XIUHTECUTLI.

u'fer, n. = UPHER.

U'ga·lak'miut (ōō'gä·lăk'mŭt), n. See ESKIMO.

ugge. Var. of UG, v.

ugh. ✝ YEW.

Ug'ju·lirmiut (ōōg'yōō·lēr'mŭt), n. See ESKIMO.

ug'li·some, adj. [See 1st -SOME.] = UGLY. Rare.

U'go·Finn' (ōō'gō·fĭn'; ū'-), n. See FINN.

Ui'ghur, Ui·ghu'ri·an, Ui·ghur'ic. Vars. of UIGUR, etc.

uil'y, adj. Scot. var. of OILY.

Ui'rad (wē'räd), n. = KALMUCK.

Uis'nech (ōōsh'nĕk). Var. of USNECH.

Ui·to'tan (wē·tō'tăn; -t'n), adj. Pertaining to or designating a South American Indian linguistic family comprising several tribes dwelling in the middle valleys of the Caquetá, Putumayo, and Napo rivers in Colombia, Ecuador, and Peru. See OREJON, 3; WITOTO.

uit·span' (oit·spăn'; -spän'; ūt-), v. t. & i. [See OUTSPAN.] To outspan. S. Africa.

u'ji (ōō'jĭ), n. [Jap., maggot.] A silkworm disease in Japan caused by the parasitic larva of a tachina fly, the uji fly (Sturmia sericaria).

u·kase' (ū·kās'; ū'kās), n. [Russ. ukaz, lit., a command; cf. F. ukase.] 1. In Russia, a published proclamation or imperial order, having the force of law.
2. Hence, any official decree or proclamation.

u'ki'yo-ye (ōō'kĭ'yō-yē), n. [Jap., fr. ukiyo this passing world.] Painting. A Japanese popular school, producing simple paintings and color prints of everyday life. It began in the 17th century, appealing chiefly to the lower bourgeoisie, but gradually became elaborated, till it declined in artistic quality in the 19th century.

U·krain'i·an (ū·krān'ĭ·ăn; ū·krīn'-), adj. Of or pertaining to Ukraine, its people, or their language. — n. a An inhabitant of Ukraine. b The Ukrainian language; Little Russian. See RUSSIAN, n.; cf. RUTHENIAN. c Eccl. A Ruthenian (sense 2).

Ukrainian Greek Catholic. A Uniat Ukrainian; — often so designated in the United States and Canada, where their bishops are directly subject to the Pope.

u'ku·le'le (ū'kŭ·lā'lē; Hawaiian ōō'kōō·lā'lā), n. [Hawaiian, fr. ukulele a flea, fr. uku insect + lele to jump, leap; — so called from the movement of the fingers.] Music. A small guitar of Portuguese origin which became popular in Hawaii about 1877. It has, typically, four strings which are plucked or strummed with the fingers in accompanying songs or dances.

Ukulele.

ul-. For words formerly spelled ul-, see EL-.

u'la (ū'lă), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. oula.] Anat. The gums. See GUM, 1st n.

-ula. See -ULUS.

-ular. [L. -ularis, fr. -ulus + -aris. See -ULE; -AR.] A suffix in adjectives corresponding to nouns in -ula, -ule, -ulum, -ulus, as in regular, cellular, secular, popular.

u'la·tro'phi·a (ū'lă·trō'fĭ·ă), u·lat'ro·phy (ū·lăt'rō·fĭ), n. [NL. ulatrophia, fr. Gr. oulon gum + atrophia atrophy.] Med. Atrophy of the gum tissue.

ul'cer (ŭl'sĕr; 232), n. [L. ulcus, ulceris; akin to Gr. helkos, Skr. arśas hemorrhoids.] 1. Med. A solution of continuity occurring upon the surface of the skin or any of the mucous membranes, resulting from necrosis of the tissues and loss of the covering epithelium; a sore discharging pus. It originates commonly in a superficial infection. It is distinguished from an abscess, which has its beginning, at least, in the depth of the tissues.
2. Figuratively, anything that festers and corrupts like an open sore; a vice in character.

ul'cer, v. i. & t. To ulcerate.

ul'cer·ate (-āt), v. t.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'-ĭng). [L. ulceratus, past part. of ulcerare to make sore, fr. ulcus ulcer.] To affect with or as with an ulcer or ulcers; as, ulcerated sore throat; his heart was ulcerated by rage. — v. i. To undergo ulceration.

ul'cer·ate (-ĭt), part. adj. Ulcerated. Obs.

ul'cer·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [L. ulceratio.] Med. The process of forming an ulcer, or of becoming ulcerous; state of being ulcerated; also, an ulcer.

ul'cer·a'tive (ŭl'sĕr·ā'tĭv or, esp. Brit., -ă·tĭv), adj. Of or pertaining to ulcers.

ulcerative cloacitis. Veter. A contagious disease of fowls, characterized by ulceration of the mucosa of the cloaca and by a chronic discharge.

ulcerative lymphangitis. Pseudoglanders.

ul'cered (ŭl'sĕrd), adj. Ulcerous; ulcerated.

ul'cer·o·mem'bra·nous (ŭl'sĕr·ō·mĕm'brā·nŭs), adj. [See ULCER; MEMBRANE.] Med. Characterized by ulceration and the formation of a membrane, esp. a false membrane.

ul'cer·ous (ŭl'sĕr·ŭs), adj. [L. ulcerosus.] 1. Having the nature or character of an ulcer.
2. Affected with an ulcer or ulcers; ulcerated.
— ul'cer·ous·ly, adv. — ul'cer·ous·ness, n.

‖ul'cus (ŭl'kŭs), n.; pl. ULCERA (-sĕr·ă). [L.] Med. Ulcer.

ul'cus·cle (ŭl'kŭs·'l), ul·cus'cule (ŭl·kŭs'kūl), n. [L. ulcusculum, dim. of ulcus. See ULCER.] A little ulcer. Rare.

‖ul'cus de·cu'bi·tus (ŭl'kŭs dē·kū'bĭ·tŭs). [NL. See ULCER; DECUBITUS.] Med. A bedsore.

u'le (ōō'lā), n., or ule tree. [Sp. ule, hule, fr. Nahuatl olli, ulli, rubber, lit., rubber ball, fr. ol to be round. Cf. GUAYULE.] Any tree (genus Castilla) yielding caucho; also, the caucho itself.

-ule (-ūl). [F. or L.; F. -ule, fr. L. -ulus, -ula, -ulum.] A suffix forming diminutives, as in capsule, floccule, plumule, spicule, tubule. Cf. -ULUS.

u'le·ma' (ōō'lē·mä'), n. [Turk. 'ulema, fr. Ar. 'ulamā' learned men.] a Moslem Law. A body of scholars trained in Moslem religion and law and recognized as authorities in these and cognate fields; specif., formerly a body of Moslem theologians who under the headship of Sheikh ul Islam in Constantinople formed the theocratic element of the Turkish government. b Sometimes, erroneously, a Moslem learned man or Theologian.

u·le'mor·rha'gi·a, u·lae'mor·rha'gi·a (ū·lē'mŏ·rā'jĭ·ă), n. [NL.] Hemorrhage from the gums.

-ulent. [F. or L.; F. -ulent, fr. L. -ulentus.] A suffix denoting abounding in, having in marked amount or degree, as in corpulent, florulent, fraudulent, truculent.

u·ler'y·the'ma (ū·lĕr'ĭ·thē'mă), n. [NL., fr. Gr. oulē scar + NL. erythema.] Med. Any of several skin diseases marked by erythema and scar formation.

u·let'ic (ū·lĕt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. oulon a gum.] Of or pertaining to the gums.

U'lex (ū'lĕks), n. [L., a kind of shrub.] Bot. a A genus of Eurasian spiny shrubs (family Fabaceae) including the common furze, usually destitute of true leaves and having solitary or racemose yellow flowers with a 2-lipped, colored calyx. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

u·lex'ine (ū·lĕk'sēn; -sĭn; 157), n. [See ULEX.] Cytisine from the seeds of the furze Ulex europaeus.

u'lex·ite (ū'lĕk·sīt; ū·lĕk'sĭt), n. [After G. L. Ulex, Ger. chemist.] Mineral. A hydrous sodium calcium borate, in white rounded crystalline masses. H., 1. Sp. gr., 1.65.

U·lid'i·a (ū·lĭd'ĭ·ă), n. The eastern part of Ulster. — U·lid'i·an (-ăn), adj. Ir. Hist.

u·lig'i·nose (ū·lĭj'ĭ·nōs), u·lig'i·nous (-nŭs), adj. [L. uliginosus, fr. uligo, -inis, moisture, fr. udus wet, fr. uvidus. See HUMOR.] Muddy; oozy; swampy; also, growing in muddy places.

u·li'tis (ū·lī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. oulon gum + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the gums.

ull (ŭl). Dial. Eng. var. of WILL, v.

Ull (ōōl), Ullr (ōōl'r), n. [ON. Ullr; akin to AS. wuldor glory, Goth. wulthus.] Norse Myth. One of the Aesir, probably orig. one of the chief gods in very early times. He was the son of Sif, the stepson of Thor, known for beauty and for skill with the bow and on skis.

ul'lage (ŭl'ĭj), n. [OF. eullage, ouillage (cf. Pr. ulhage, oulhage), the filling up of a cask, fr. ouillier, oillier, euillier, aouillier, to fill a wine cask, properly, to fill up to (OF. a, fr. L. ad) the bunghole, lit., eye, fr. ueil, oil, eye, opening, fr. L. oculus eye. See EYE.] 1. Com. a The amount which a vessel of liquor, as a cask, lacks of being full; wanage; deficiency. b Loss of commodities by sifting, as seed, grain, etc., in bags.
2. Liquor dregs or lees. Dial. & Slang, Eng.

ul'laged (-ĭjd), adj. Short of the full measure of its contents; as, an ullaged cask.

ul'la·gone' (ŭl'ä·gōn'), n. [Ir. olagōn, olagān, of imitative origin.] A cry of sorrow; a dirge. — v. i. To wail; lament. — interj. Alas! All Ir.

ul'la grass (ōōl'ä). [Beng. ulu.] An East Indian grass (Themeda gigantea) said to be valuable for paper pulp. It is found also in Australia, where it is called oat grass and kangaroo grass.

ul'ler (ŭl'ĕr), n. [See ULLAGE.] A utensil employed in filling the ullage of a cask.

ul'ling (ŭl'ĭng), n. Act of filling the ullage of a vessel of liquor.

ull'mann·ite (ŭl'măn·īt), n. [After J. C. Ullmann (1771–1821), Ger. chemist.] Mineral. Nickel sulphantimonide, NiSbS, usually containing a little arsenic, and massive, with steel-gray color and metallic luster.

Ul·lo'a's bow or cir'cle (ōōl·yō'ăz). [After Antonio de Ulloa, Sp. scientist.] A fogbow.

ul·lu'co (ōō·yōō'kō; 170), n. [Sp. ulluco, ullucu, fr. Quechua ullucu.] A Peruvian climbing plant (Ullucus tuberosus), family Basellaceae, with tuberous roots used in place of potatoes.

Ul·ma'ce·ae (ŭl·mā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See ULMUS.] Bot. A family of trees and shrubs, the elm family (order Urticales), distinguished by the alternate stipulate leaves and small apetalous perfect or unisexual flowers. There are about 13 genera (as Ulmus, Celtis, Trema, and Planera) and 130 species. — ul·ma'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

ulme (ŭlm), n. [L. ulmus.] = ELM. Obs.

ul'min (ŭl'mĭn), n. [L. ulmus elm + -in.] Any of a group of brown to black organic substances occurring in soil, peat, coal, etc., and obtained artificially by the action of certain reagents on sugars. — ul'mic (-mĭk), ul·min'ic (ŭl·mĭn'ĭk), adj.

ul'mo (ōōl'mō), n. [Sp., fr. Araucan.] The muermo.

Ul'mus (ŭl'mŭs), n. [L., elm. See ELM.] Bot. A genus of trees, the elms, typifying the family Ulmaceae, of wide distribution in temperate regions. They have serrate oblique leaves and often drooping branches; the fascicled perfect flowers unfold before the leaves and are succeeded by orbicular samaras. Most species are valuable ornamental trees. See ELM.

ul'na (ŭl'nä), n.; pl. -NAE (-nē), -NAS (-näz). [L., elbow. See ELL.] 1. An ell.
2. Anat. & Zool. a The postaxial or inner one of the two bones of the forearm or like part of the forelimb of vertebrates above fishes. In man, the ulna and the humerus form the elbow joint, the ulna articulating with the humerus by a deep cavity, the semilunar notch or greater sigmoid cavity, and with the side of the head of the other bone of the forearm (the radius) by a laterally placed articular surface (the lesser sigmoid notch or cavity). The ulna extends beyond the elbow joint, forming a large process (olecranon). In front of the elbow joint is the much smaller coronoid process. The distal and smaller end is called the head. The ulna serves as a pivot in rotation of the hand. In many animals the ulna is fused with the radius, and is then often much reduced. b The hypercoracoid bone of a fish.

ul'nad (ŭl'năd), adv. [See 1st -AD.] Anat. Toward the ulna.

ul'nar (ŭl'nĕr), adj. Anat. & Zool. Of or pertaining to the ulna; on the same side of the forearm as the ulna.

ul'nar, n. Zool. = ULNARE.

ulnar artery. The larger of the two terminal branches of the brachial artery. It runs along the ulnar side of the forearm, giving off near its origin the anterior and posterior ulnar recurrent arteries, small branches to structures of the upper forearm and elbow region.

ul·na're (ŭl·nā'rē; 79), n.; pl. ULNARIA (-rĭ·ä). [NL. See ULNA.] Zool. The third (counting from the radial side) carpal bone or element of the proximal row; — in Human Anat. termed the cuneiform. The so-called ulnare, or ulnar carpal, of birds probably represents the ulnare and centrale and sometimes also the fifth metacarpal.

ulnar nerve. Anat. A large nerve arising from the medial part of the brachial plexus and passing down the inner side of the arm and forearm, resting upon the medial epicondyle of the humerus at the elbow.

ulnar vein. Anat. Any of several veins of the forearm. The anterior and posterior ulnar veins run up the anterior and posterior aspects respectively of the inner side of the forearm and open into the median basilic vein (either separately, or uniting to form a short single trunk, the common ulnar vein), forming with it the basilic vein.

ul'no- (ŭl'nō-). A comb. form from ulna, denoting ulnar and, as in ul'no·car'pal, ul'no·met'a·car'pal, ul'no·ra'dĭ·al.

ul'no·con'dy·lar (-kŏn'dĭ·lĕr), adj. [ulno- + condylar.] Anat. Designating or pertaining to the medial epicondyle of the humerus.

ulnocondylar foramen. The entepicondylar foramen.

ulo-. A combining form from Greek oula, the gums, used to indicate connection with, or relation to, the gums, as in u'lo·car'ci·no'ma, u'lor·rha'gi·a, u·lor'rha·gy, u'lor·rhe'a. See CARCINOMA, -RHAGIA, etc.

U'lo·bor'i·dae (ū'lō·bōr'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Uloborus, type genus, fr. Gr. ouloboros with deadly bite.] Zool. A family of spiders having a cribellum and calamistrum and spinning an orb web. The triangle spider (Hyptiotes cavatus) is an example. The type genus is U·lob'o·rus (ū·lŏb'ō·rŭs). — u·lob'o·rid (-rĭd), n. & adj.

u'loid (ū'loid), adj. [Gr. oulē scar + -oid.] Med. Scarlike.

U'lo·na'ta (ū'lō·nā'tä), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. Formerly, a division of insects nearly equivalent to Orthoptera.

u·lon'cus (ū·lŏng'kŭs), n. [NL., see ULO-; -ONCUS.] Med. A tumor of the gums, as epulis.

U'lo·pho·ci'nae (ū'lō·fō·sī'nē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. oulos woolly + phōkē seal.] Zool. A subfamily consisting of the fur seals.

-u·lose (-ū·lōs). [L. -ulosus, fr. -ulus + -osus. See -ULE; -OSE.] A suffix denoting characterized by or having in marked degree, as in granulose. Cf. -ULOUS.

U'lo·thrix (ū'lō·thrĭks), n. [NL. See ULOTRICHI.] Bot. A genus of green algae typifying the family Ulotrichaceae. The species are common in ponds, etc.; they consist of simple filaments with band-shaped green chloroplasts.

U·lot'ri·cha'ce·ae (ū·lŏt'rĭ·kā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of green algae typified by the genus Ulothrix, classed in the Ulotrichales or Chaetophorales. — u·lot'ri·cha'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

U·lot'ri·cha'les (-lēz), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. a In some classifications, an order, comprising several families of green algae (Chlorophyceae), including the Ulotrichaceae and Ulvaceae (sea lettuces). They have a multicellular thallus consisting usually of simple or branched filaments. Asexual reproduction is effected by zoospores and sexual by fusion of planogametes or of differentiated egg and sperm cells. They grow in fresh or salt water. b Syn. of CHAETOPHORALES (in the broad sense).

u·lot'ri·chan (ū·lŏt'rĭ·kăn), adj. Of or pertaining to the ulotrichi. — n. One of the ulotrichi.

U·lot'ri·ches (-kēz), n. pl. [NL. See ULOTRICHI.] In Haeckel's classification (now obsolete), those races having woolly hair.

U·lot'ri·chi (-kī), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. oulothrix, oulotrichos, woolly-haired, fr. oulos woolly + thrix, trichos, hair.] Anthropol. In Huxley's classification, the races having woolly or crispy hair. — u·lot'ri·chous (-kŭs), adj.

ul·ot'ri·chy (-kĭ), n. Condition of having woolly or crispy hair. See HAIR, n., 2.

-ulous. [See -ULE, -ULOSE.] An adjectival suffix from Latin denoting: a [L. -ulus.] Tending or addicted to; -ive; as in credulous, garrulous, tremulous. b [L. -ulosus.] = -ULOSE, as in fabulous, meticulous, populous.

Ul'ri·ca (ŭl'rĭ·kä), n. [Fem. in L. form of G. Ulrich, fr. OHG. Uolrīch, Uodalrīch, fr. the stem of uodil, uodal, inheritance, home (cf. AS. æthelo nobility, noble family), and rīhhi rich, powerful (G. reich).] 1. Literally, rich; — feminine proper name. F. Ulrique (ül'rēk'); It. Ulrica (ōōl·rē'kä); G. Ulrike (ōōl·rē'kĕ).
2. A hideous old woman in Sir Walter Scott's Ivanhoe. She was the daughter of a Saxon thane and had been the victim of Front de Boeuf's father.

ul'rich·ite (ŭl'rĭk·īt), n. [After Karl Ulrich, Viennese radiochemist.] Petrog. A melanocratic tinguaite-porphyry.

ul'ster (ŭl'stĕr), n. 1. A long, loose overcoat, worn by both sexes, orig. made of frieze in Belfast, Ulster, Ireland.
2. [cap.] Her. Short for ULSTER KING-OF-ARMS.

Ul'ster cus'tom (ŭl'stĕr), Ulster tenant right. [From Ulster, Ireland.] See TENANT RIGHT.

Ulster Cycle. Also Ulster epic cycle. The earlier of the two great cycles of Irish heroic legend (the Fenian being the other), going back, in the earliest known redaction, substantially to the 8th or 7th century. Most of the historical events with which it is connected took place at about the beginning of the Christian era, but the civilization it depicts corresponds to that of the Iliad. Its principal elements consist of the rivalries and wars of Ulster, ruled by King Conchobor, against Connacht, where Queen Medb reigned, and the exploits of Cuchulainn and the champions of the Red Branch. To this cycle belongs the Tain Bo Cuailnge.

ul'stered (ŭl'stĕrd), adj. Wearing an ulster.

ul'ster·ette' (ŭl'stĕr·ĕt'), n. [ulster + -ette.] A light ulster.

Ul·ste'ri·an (ŭl·stē'rĭ·ăn), adj. & n. [From Ulster Co., N. Y.] Geol. Designating a division of the American Middle Devonian. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

ul'ster·ing (ŭl'stĕr·ĭng), n. Cloth for making ulsters.

Ul'ster·ite (ŭl'stĕr·īt), n. [See 1st -ITE, 1.] 1. An Ulsterman.
2. One of a political group of northern Ireland, strongly Protestant and opposed to Home Rule.

Ulster King-of-Arms. Her. See KING-OF-ARMS.

Ul'ster·man (ŭl'stĕr·măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A native or inhabitant of Ulster (now Northern Ireland).

ul·te'ri·or (ŭl·tē'rĭ·ĕr), adj. [L., compar. of ulter (preserved in adv. abl., ultra, ultro, beyond, on the other side), compar. of uls beyond; akin to OL. ollus that, L. olim formerly, and to E. ELSE. Cf. OUTRAGE, ULTIMATE, ULTRA.] 1. Situated beyond, or on the farther side; thither; — correlative of hither.
2. Further; remoter; more distant; succeeding; often specif., beyond what is manifest or avowed; as, ulterior demands or propositions; ulterior views: ulterior motives. — ul·te'ri·or·ly, adv.

ul·te'ri·or, n. The ulterior side or part. Rare. Coleridge.

‖ul'ti·ma (ŭl'tĭ·mä), adj. [L., fem. of ultimus last. See ULTIMATE.] Most remote; farthest; final; last.

ul'ti·ma (ŭl'tĭ·mä), n. [L., fem. of ultimus last.] Gram. & Pros. The last syllable of a word.

ul'ti·ma·cy (ŭl'tĭ·mä·sĭ), n. [From ULTIMATE.] State or quality of being ultimate.

ul'ti·ma ra'ti·o (ŭl'tĭ·mä rā'shĭ·ō). [L.] The last or final argument; the last resort, as force; — often with modifying words, as in: ul'ti·ma ra'ti·o re'gum (rē'gŭm) (of kings), that is, use of military weapons; force; war; ul'ti·ma ra'ti·o re'rum (rē'rŭm) (of things); ul'ti·ma ra'ti·o po'pu·li (pŏp'ū·lī) (of people or commonalty), that is, forcible resistance. Ultima ratio regum was made by Louis XIV an inscription on French cannon.

‖ul'ti·mate (ŭl'tĭ·mĭt), adj. [LL. ultimatus, past part. of ultimare to come to or be at an end, fr. ultimus the farthest, last, superl. of ulter. See ULTERIOR; cf. ULTIMATUM.] 1. Farthest; most remote in space or time; extreme; last; final; as, man's ultimate destiny.
2. Last in a train of progression or consequences; tended toward by all that precedes; arrived at as the last result.
Those ultimate truths and those universal laws of thought which we cannot rationally contradict. Coleridge.

Ui·to'to (wē·tō'tō). Var. of WITOTO.

Ul'tzil·o·poch'tli (wē'tsē·lō·pōch'tlē). Var. of HUITZILOPOCHTLI. [ULKULELE.]

u'ka·le'le, u'ke·le'le, n. Vars. of uke (ūk), n. Short for UKULELE. Colloq.

Uk'nas (ŭk'năz). Bib.

U·krain'er (ū·krān'ĕr; -krīn'-), n. = UKRAINIAN. Rare.

U'ku·sik'sa·lir'miut (ōō'kōō·sĭk'sä·lĭr'mūt), n. See ESKIMO.

u·lae'mor·rha'gi·a. Var. of ULEMORRHAGIA.

U'lai (ū'lī; ū'lā·ī). Bib.

U'lam (ū'lăm). Bib. [ULEMA.]

u'la·ma' (ōō'lä·mä'). Var. of ULEMA.

u'lan. Var. of UHLAN.

ul'cer·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

ul'cer·y, adj. See -Y. ulche. † EACH. [of EULACHON.]

ul'chen. ul'ken (ŭl'kĕn). Vars. of EULACHON.

U'len·spie'gel (ōō'lĕn·shpē'gĕl; -spē'gĕl), n. [G.] = EULENSPIEGEL.

ul'i·can' (ŭl'ĭ·kăn'). Var. of ULCAN.

ul'i·ma' (ŭl'ĭ·mä'). Var. of ULAGONE. Ir.

ul'i·con (ŭ'lĭ·kŏn). Var. of EULICON.

u'li·kan, u'li·kon (ū'lĭ·kăn, -kŏn), n. Vars. of EULACHON.

Ul'la (ŭl'ä). Bib.

ul'lo. Var. of UHLLO.

Ullr (ōōl'r). Var. of ULL.

Ul·ma'ri·a (ŭl·mä'rĭ·ä; 79), n. [NL., fr. medieval name of the gostsbeard, and this from resemblance of its leaves to elm leaves. See ULMUS.] Syn. of FILIPENDULA.

ul'mic (ŭl'mĭk), ul'mous (-mŭs), adj., ul'min (ŭl'mĭn), n. [L. ulmus elm.] See ULMUS.

ul'nage (ŭl'nĭj), ul'nag·er (-nĭ·jĕr). † ALNAGE, ALNAGER.

ul'lo. Var. of UHLLO.

ul'ti·ma'ta (ŭl'tĭ·mā'tä), n. pl. of ULTIMATUM.

3. Incapable of further analysis, division, or separation; elemental; as, an ultimate particle or constituent; specif., Chem., elementary; as, ultimate analysis (see ANALYSIS, 4 b); ultimate composition.
4. Mech. Maximum; as, ultimate strain, strength, etc., or that at the instant of breaking or rupture.
Syn. — Conclusive. See LAST.
Ant. — Initial, beginning; preceding.
— ul'ti·mate·ness, n.

ul'ti·mate (ŭl'tĭ·mĭt), n. That which is ultimate; something final or fundamental.

ul'ti·mate (-māt), v. t. & i.; -MAT'ED (-māt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -MAT'ING (-māt'ĭng). To bring or come to an end or issue; to eventuate; end. Rare.

ultimate analysis. The final analysis; specif., Chem., see ANALYSIS, 4 b. ultimate belief. A first principle incapable of proof; an intuitive truth; an intuition. Sir W. Hamilton.

ultimate buyer. One who buys for personal use.

ultimate consumer. = CONSUMER, 2.

ultimate destination. Internat. Law. The final destination of goods, esp. contraband, under the doctrine of continuous voyage (which see).

ultimate lines. Astrophysics. See RAIES ULTIMES.

ul'ti·mate·ly, adv. Finally; at last; in the end.

ultimate mortality table. See MORTALITY TABLE.

ultimate ratio. Math. The limiting value of a ratio, or that value toward which a ratio tends.

ul'ti·ma'tion (ŭl'tĭ·mā'shŭn), n. Act or result of ultimating; state of being ultimate, or that which is ultimate; ultimatum. Rare.

ul'ti·ma'tum (-tŭm), n.; pl. -TUMS (-tŭmz), -TA (-tȧ). [NL., fr. LL. neut. past part. See ULTIMATE.] 1. A final proposition or condition; esp., the final propositions, conditions, or terms, offered by either of the parties in a diplomatic negotiation; the best terms that a negotiator will offer, the rejection of which usually ends negotiations. 2. The ultimate; the farthest point or stage to be reached; a final objective or end; also, something fundamental.

ul'ti·mo (ŭl'tĭ·mō), adv. [L. ultimo (mense) in the last month.] In the month preceding the present; — usually abbreviated to ult. Cf. INSTANT, adj., 2; PROXIMO.

ul'ti·mo·bran'chi·al (ŭl'tĭ·mō·brăng'kĭ·ăl), adj. [L. ultimus last + branchia + -al.] Embryol. Pertaining to or derived from the last gill pouch, as the ultimobranchial body, a hollow vesicle of the embryo, said to be derived from the fifth pharyngeal pouch.

ul'ti·mo·gen'i·ture (-jĕn'ĭ·tŭr), n. [L. ultimus last + genitura a begetting.] Law. A system of inheritance by which the youngest son succeeds to the estate, as borough-English in England; — opposed to primogeniture.
— ul'ti·mo·gen'i·tar'y (-tĕr'ĭ; -tēr-ĭ), adj.

ul'ti·mum (ŭl'tĭ·mŭm), n. [L.] Ultimate point. Rare.

‖ul'ti·mum mo'ri·ens (ŭl'tĭ·mŭm mō'rĭ·ĕnz). [L., lit., dying last.] Med. The part of the body showing the last movement in dying, as the right atrium, the upper part of the trapezius muscle, or the eyelids.

‖ul'ti·mus he'res or hae'res (-mŭs hē'rēz). [L.] Law. The last heir; — in feudal law often applied to the lord, as the king, taking property when other capable heirs fail.

Ul·to'ni·an (ŭl·tō'nĭ·ăn), adj. [ML. Ultonia Ulster, fr. OIr. Ulaid.] Of or belonging to Ulster. — n. A native or inhabitant of Ulster.

ul'tra (ŭl'trȧ), adj. [L., adv. & prep., beyond, on the other side. See ULTERIOR.] 1. Going beyond others, or beyond due limit; extreme; fanatical; uncompromising; as, an ultra reformer; ultra measures.
2. Fr. Politics. Ultraroyalist. See ULTRA, n., 2.

ul'tra, n. 1. An ultraist; extremist; radical.
2. Fr. Politics. An ultraroyalist; — used chiefly about the 1820's.

ul'tra- (ŭl'trȧ-). [See ULTRA, adj.] A prefix, Latin ultra-, meaning beyond, used to signify: a Beyond in space; on the other side; trans-; as in *ultra*marine, *ultra*montane, *ultra*mundane, *ultra*tropical. b Beyond the range or limits of; transcending; super-; as in *ultra*microscopic. c Excessively, exceedingly, beyond what is common, ordinary, natural, right, proper, or the like; hyper-; as in *ultra*critical, *ultra*modern. Used also with nouns.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

ultra-abolitionism	ultraevangelical	ultramulish
ultra-abstract	ultraexcessive	ultranegligent ultra-academic	ultraexclusive	ultranice ultra-affected	ultraexpeditious	ultranonsensical ultra-aggressive	ultrafantastic	ultraobscure ultra-ambitious	ultrafashionable	ultraobstinate ultra-angelic	ultrafastidious	ultraofficious ultra-Anglican	ultrafederalist	ultraoptimistic ultra-apologetic	ultrafeudal	ultraornate ultra-arbitrary	ultraformal	ultraorthodox ultra-argumentative	ultra-French	ultraorthodoxy ultra-auspicious	ultrafrivolous	ultraoutrageous ultrabelieving	ultragallant	ultrapapist ultrabenevolent	ultra-Gallican	ultra-Peckspniffian ultrabrilliant	ultragenteel	ultraperfect ultra-Byronic	ultra-German	ultrapersuasive ultra-Byronism	ultragood	ultrapious ultra-Calvinist	ultragrave	ultraplausible ultracentralizer	ultraheroic	ultra-Pluralism ultraceremonious	ultrahonorable	ultra-Pluralist ultra-Christian	ultraimperialism	ultrapopish ultrachurchism	ultraimperialist	ultra-Presbyterian ultracivil	ultraimpersonal	ultra-Protestantism ultracomplex	ultrainclusive	ultraproud ultracosmocomitant	ultraindifferent	ultraprudent ultraconfident	ultraindulgent	ultra-Puritan ultraconscientious	ultraingenious	ultra-Puritanical ultraconservatism	ultrainsistent	ultraradical ultraconservative	ultraintimate	ultraradicalism ultracordial	ultrainvolved	ultrarapid ultracosmopolitan	ultra-Julian	ultrareactionary ultracredulous	ultralaborious	ultrarefined ultradandyism	ultralenient	ultrarefinement ultradeclamatory	ultraliberal	ultrareligious ultrademocratic	ultraliberalism	ultraremuneration ultradespotic	ultralogical	ultrarepublican ultradignified	ultraloyal	ultrarevolutionary ultradiscipline	ultra-Lutheran	ultrarevolutionist ultraeducationist	ultra-Lutheranism	ultraritualism ultraeligible	ultraluxurious	ultra-Romanist ultraemphasis	ultramaternal	ultraromantic ultraenergetic	ultramaximal	ultraroyalism ultraenforcement	ultramelancholy	ultraroyalist ultra-English	ultraminute	ultrasanguine ultraenthusiasm	ultramoderate	ultrascholastic ultraenthusiastic	ultramodest	ultraselect ultraepiscopal	ultramorose	ultraserville ultrasevere	ultrastrenuous	ultrauncommon ultrashrewd	ultrastrict	ultraurgent ultrasolemn	ultrasubtle	ultravicious ultraspartan	ultrasystematic	ultraviolent ultraspecialization	ultratechnical	ultravisible ultraspiritualism	ultratense	ultrawealthy ultrasplendid	ultra-Tory	ultra-Whig ultrastandardization	ultra-Toryism	ultrawise ultratrivial	ultrayoung ultrasterile	ultraugly	ultrazealous ul'tra-a·tom'ic, adj. Chem. Designating, or pertaining to, particles smaller than atoms. See ELECTRON, 2.

ul'tra·bas'ic (ŭl'trȧ·bās'ĭk), adj. Extremely basic; — applied, Petrog., to certain igneous rocks, as limburgite, peridotite, etc., very low in silica and rich in ferromagnesian minerals.

ul'tra·bas'ite (-īt), n. [ultrabasic + 1st -ite, 4.] Mineral. A thioantimonite of silver, lead, and germanium with the ultrabasic formula, $Ag_{32}Ge_2Pb_{28}Sb_2S_{61}$ occurring in black, metallic, orthorhombic crystals. H., 5. Sp. gr., 6.

ul'tra·brach'y·ce·phal'ic (-brăk'ĭ·sē·făl'ĭk), adj. [See ULTRA-.] Anthropom. Having a cephalic index of 90 or more than 90. — ul'tra·brach'y·ceph'a·ly (-sĕf'ȧ·lĭ), n.

ul'tra·cen'te·nar'i·an (-sĕn'tē·nâr'ĭ·ăn; 79), n. A person more than a hundred years old. — ul'tra·cen'te·nar'i·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n.

ul'tra·cen'tri·fuge (-sĕn'trĭ·fūj), n. Physical Chem. A very high-speed centrifuge.

ul'tra·con·dens'er (-kŏn·dĕn'sĕr), n. Micros. The condenser of a dark-field microscope.

ul'tra·crep'i·dar'i·an (-krĕp'ĭ·dâr'ĭ·ăn; 79), adj. [L. ultra crepidam beyond the sole (sandal), after ne sutor supra crepidam judicaret let the cobbler stick to his last.] Going beyond one's province or sphere; presumptuous; as, an ultracrepidarian critic. — ul'tra·crep'i·dar'i·an, n. — ul'tra·crep'i·dar'i·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n.

ul'tra·crep'i·date (-krĕp'ĭ·dāt), v. i. [See ULTRACREPIDARIAN.] To go beyond one's sphere or province; to presume.

ul'tra·crit'i·cal (-krĭt'ĭ·kăl), adj. Hypercritical.

ul'tra·dol'i·cho·ce·phal'ic (-dŏl'ĭ·kō·sē·făl'ĭk), adj. Ultradolichocranial. — ul'tra·dol'i·cho·ceph'a·ly (-sĕf'ȧ·lĭ), n.

ul'tra·dol'i·cho·cra'ni·al (-krā'nĭ·ăl), adj. [See ULTRA-.] Anthropom. Having a cephalic index below 65.

ul'tra·el·lip'tic (-ē·lĭp'tĭk), adj. Hyperelliptic.

ul'tra·e'qui·noc'tial (-ē'kwĭ·nŏk'shăl), n. A dweller beyond the equator. Obs.

ul'tra·fid'i·an (-fĭd'ĭ·ăn), adj. [L. ultra fidem beyond faith.] Going beyond faith; ultracredulous. — ul'tra·fid'i·an, n. — ul'tra·fid'i·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n.

ul'tra·fil'ter (ŭl'trȧ·fĭl'tĕr), n. A special dense filter, used for the filtration of a colloidal solution, that holds back the dispersed particles but not the liquid. — ul'tra·fil'ter (-fĭl'tĕr), v. t. & i. — ul'tra·fil'ter·a·bil'i·ty (-ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — ul'tra·fil'ter·a·ble (-fĭl'tĕr·ȧ·b'l), adj. — ul'tra·fil'trate (-trāt), ul'tra·fil·tra'tion (-fĭl·trā'shŭn), n.

ul'tra–Gan·get'ic (-găn·jĕt'ĭk), adj. Beyond (east of) the river Ganges. See ULTRA- a.

ul'tra·gas'e·ous (-găs'ē·ŭs; cf. GASEOUS), adj. Physics. Having the properties exhibited by gases under pressures of one millionth of an atmosphere or less.

ul'tra·ism (ŭl'trȧ·ĭz'm), n. [See ULTRA-.] a The principles of those who advocate extreme measures, as radicalism. b An instance or example of radicalism. — ul'tra·ist (-ĭst), n. & adj. — ul'tra·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

ul'tra·le·gal'i·ty (-lē·găl'ĭ·tĭ), n. A condition of extreme legality or regulation of rights by laws. Maine.

ul'tra·ma·rine' (-mȧ·rēn'), adj. [ML. ultramarinus. See ULTRA-; MARINE.] Beyond the sea.

ul'tra·ma·rine', n. [Cf. Sp. ultramarino. So called because the lapis lazuli was originally brought from beyond the sea, from Asia.] a Formerly, a costly pure blue pigment, prepared by powdering lapis lazuli. b An artificial pigment resembling the above in composition and color, but having commonly a purplish or greenish tinge; — called also French blue, new blue, etc. It is usually prepared by powdering the product from roasting a mixture of kaolin, soda ash, sulphur, and charcoal, and often sodium sulphate (yielding sulphate ultramarine) and silica. It is inexpensive and is extensively used in painting, calico printing, papermaking, bluing, etc. c Any of several pigments, most of which are produced by modifications of the above process, or by replacing the sodium or the sulphur in ordinary ultramarine by other elements; as, ultramarine violet; yellow ultramarine; silver ultramarine. d The color ultramarine blue.

ultramarine ash or ashes. 1. Paint. A delicate gray or bluish-gray pigment got as a residuum from lapis lazuli after the extraction of ultramarine. The old masters used it as a middle or neutral tint for flesh, skies, and draperies.
2. The color of ultramarine ash, varying from blue of high saturation and low brilliance to nearly neutral gray of high brilliance Cf. COLOR.

ultramarine blue. 1. A color, blue in hue, of very high saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
2. The pigment ultramarine.

ultramarine green. a Green ultramarine (pigment). See ULTRAMARINE b. b A color, greenish yellow-green in hue, of low saturation and very low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

ultramarine yellow. a = YELLOW ULTRAMARINE a. See BARIUM CHROMATE. b Light chrome yellow. See CHROME YELLOW.

ul'tra·mi·crom'e·ter (ŭl'trȧ·mī·krŏm'ĕ·tĕr), n. [See ULTRA-.] An extremely sensitive micrometer, as one capable of measuring to one millionth of an inch or less.

ul'tra·mi'cro·scope (-mī'krō·skōp), n. Optics. An apparatus for rendering visible, by scattered light, particles too small to be perceived by the ordinary microscope. It consists of an arc light and lenses for throwing a concentrated pencil of light upon the solid or liquid to be examined, and a compound microscope for viewing it. The microscope is set up in relation to the illuminating beam so that what is actually seen is the light scattered by the small particles, rather than the particles themselves. — ul'tra·mi·cros'co·py (-mĭ·krŏs'kō·pĭ; -mī'krō·skŏp'ĭ), n.

ul'tra·mi'cro·scop'ic (-mī'krō·skŏp'ĭk), ul'tra·mi'cro·scop'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. 1. Too small to be seen with an ordinary microscope; as, ultramicroscopic particles.
2. Of or pert. to an ultramicroscope or ultramicroscopy.

ul'tra·mod'ern (-mŏd'ĕrn), adj. [ultra- c + modern.] Beyond the norm of the modern; extreme in typically modern ideas or tendencies. — ul'tra·mod'ern, n. — ul'tra·mod'ern·ism (-ĕr·nĭz'm), n. — ul'tra·mod'ern·ist (-nĭst), n. — ul'tra·mod'ern·is'tic (-nĭs'tĭk), adj.

ul'tra·mon'tane (ŭl'trȧ·mŏn'tān), adj. [ML. ultramontanus, fr. L. ultra beyond + mons, montis, mountain; cf. F. ultramontain, It. oltramontano. See ULTRA-; MOUNTAIN.] Beyond the mountains; esp., beyond the Alps. Specif.: a Orig., beyond the Alps from Italy, that is north of them; of or pertaining to the countries north of the Alps; tramontane. b Later, beyond the Alps from the countries of central or northern Europe, that is, situated south of the Alps; Italian; hence, of or pertaining to the Italian party in the Roman Catholic Church; esp., of or pertaining to ultramontanism or ultramontanes; supporting ultramontanism. See ULTRAMONTANE, n., 2; ULTRAMONTANISM.

ul'tra·mon'tane, n. 1. One who lives beyond the mountains, esp. the Alps; a foreigner.
2. Specif.: a Formerly, one who lived north of the Alps; hence, one who maintained the rights of the northern churches, such as the Gallican, against the papal supremacy; one opposed to papal supremacy. b One who lives south of the Alps; hence, one identified with the Italian party in the Roman Catholic Church, which favored papal supremacy; now, a Roman Catholic who takes an exaggerated view of papal supremacy.

ul'tra·mon'ta·nism (-mŏn'tȧ·nĭz'm), n. [F. ultramontanisme.] The principles of the ultramontanes, esp. of those advocating extended papal supremacy. — ul'tra·mon'ta·nist (-nĭst), adj. & n.

ul'tra·mun'dane (-mŭn'dān), adj. [L. ultramundanus. See ULTRA-; MUNDANE.] Being beyond the world, or beyond the limits of our system.

ul'tra·na'tion·al·ism (-năsh'ŭn·ăl·ĭz'm), n. Great or excessive devotion to, or advocacy of, national interests, rights, etc., esp. as opposed to international considerations. — ul'tra·na'tion·al, adj., ul'tra·na'tion·al·ist, n. & adj.

ul'tra·par'al·lel (-păr'ȧ·lĕl), adj. [See ULTRA-.] Geom. Not intersecting even at infinity; — said of straight lines in hyperbolic geometry.

ul'tra·pho'to·mi'cro·graph (-fō'tō·mī'krō·grăf), n. A photograph taken through an ultramicroscope.

ul'tra·red' (-rĕd'), adj. Infrared.

ul'tra·son'ic (-sŏn'ĭk), adj. Supersonic.

ul'tra·stel'lar (-stĕl'ĕr), adj. Being or reaching beyond the stars.

ul'tra·trop'i·cal (-trŏp'ĭ·kăl), adj. Beyond the tropics; extratropical; also, having or designating an excessively tropical temperature; warmer than the tropics.

‖ul'tra va·lo'rem (ŭl'trȧ vȧ·lō'rĕm). [L.] Law. Beyond the value.

ul'tra·vi'o·let (-vī'ō·lĕt;*-lĭt; 119), adj. Physics. Outside the visible spectrum at its violet end; — said of rays more refrangible than the extreme violet rays, and opposed to infrared. See LIGHT, n., 18 a; SPECTRUM, 2.

‖ul'tra vi'res (vī'rēz). [Law L., fr. L. ultra beyond + vires, pl. of vis strength.] Beyond power; transcending authority; esp., beyond or exceeding legal power or authority; — used often in relation to acts by corporations in excess of their chartered or statutory rights, or in a more extended sense of the acts of the directors or other agents of the corporation in excess of their powers as such. An act ultra vires in the first sense is void even if unanimously agreed to by all the corporators; an act ultra vires in the second sense does not bind the dissenting members, but may be ratified by them.

ul'tra·vir'tu·ous (-vûr'tū·ŭs), adj. Excessively virtuous; — sometimes with implication of hypocrisy.

ul'tra·vi'rus (-vī'rŭs), n. [NL.] Bacteriol. An ultramicroscopic or filtrable virus.

ul'tra·zo·di'a·cal (-zō·dī'ȧ·kăl), adj. Astron. Outside the zodiac; having a path not confined to the zodiac proper, as Ceres, Pallas, Juno, and many other asteroids.

ul·tro'ne·ous (ŭl·trō'nē·ŭs), adj. [L. ultroneus.] 1. Spontaneous; voluntary.
2. Scots Law. Designating a witness who voluntarily offers testimony without being cited.
— ul·tro'ne·ous·ly, adv. — ul·tro'ne·ous·ness, n.

u·lu (ōō'lōō), n. [Esk.] Among the Eskimos, a woman's knife with a semicircular blade.

u·lu'a (ōō·lōō'ȧ), n. [Hawaiian.] Any of several large cavallas (genus Caranx) of Hawaiian waters highly prized as food and game fishes.

u·lu'hi (ōō·lōō'hē), n. [Hawaiian.] Any of several ferns in Oceania; specif.: a Any species of Platycerium. b Any fern of the genus Gleichenia.

U'lu–juz' (ōō'lōō·yōōz'), n. sing. & pl. One of the major divisions of the Kazak Kirghiz. See KIRGHIZ a.

u'u·lant (ū'ū·lănt; ŭl'-), adj. [L. ululans, pres. part.] Howling; wailing.

u'u·late (-lāt), v. i.; -LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). [L. ululatus, past part. of ululare, of imitative origin.] To howl, as a dog or a wolf; to wail; as, ululating jackals; also, to hoot, as an owl.

u'u·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. [L. ululatio.] A howling, as of a dog or wolf; a wailing.

u'u·la'tive (ū'ū·lā·tĭv; -lȧ·tĭv; ŭl'-), adj. [See ULULATE.] Howling; yelling. Rare.

u'u·la·to'ry (-lȧ·tō'rĭ; 68), adj. Ululant.

u'lu·lu' (ōō'lōō·lōō'), n. [Imitative.] A wail or wailing cry.

-u·lus, -u·la, -u·lum. [L. masc., fem., and neut. diminutive endings.] Noun suffixes forming diminutives, as in mod. ulus, tubu*lus*, formu*la*, siphon*ula*, capit*ulum*, septu*lum.*

Ul'va (ŭl'vȧ), n. [L., sedge.] Bot. A genus of green seaweeds, the sea lettuces, typifying the family Ulvaceae. They have a thin, flat thallus like a lettuce leaf; it is sometimes eaten. See LAVER.

Ul'va (ōōl'vä), n. ‖An Indian of a tribe dwelling on the headwaters of the Bluefields River, or of any of a group of some twenty closely related tribes, of primitive culture, constituting the Ulvan stock, occupying the upper valleys of the rivers of the Mosquito Coast in Honduras and Nicaragua. See ULVAN; cf. CHONTAL.

Ul·va'ce·ae (ŭl·vā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A widely distributed family of several genera of green marine seaweeds (order Ulotrichales) having either a flat or a hollow tubular thallus, and reproducing by the conjugation of planogametes or of zoospores. They are usually classed among the Ulotrichales, but sometimes made a separate order, Ul·va'les (-lēz). — ul·va'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Ul'van (ōōl'vȧn), adj. Pertaining to or designating a linguistic family of Central American Indians, comprising the Ulva. By some philologists their languages are believed to be related to those usually classified as Matagalpan and Mosquitoan. See ULVA.

ul'ti·ma Thu'le (ŭl'tĭ·mȧ thū'lē). [L.] See THULE.

ul'time (ŭl'tĭm), adj. [OF., or fr. L. ultimus.] Ultimate. Obs.

ul·tim'i·ty (ŭl·tĭm'ĭ·tĭ), n. [Cf. ML. ultimitas.] = ULTIMATE. Now Rare.

ul'tion (ŭl'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. ultio.] Vengeance; revenge. Obs.

ul'trage. ✝ OUTRAGE.

ul'tra·hu'man, adj. See ULTRA- b.

‖ul'tra li'ci·tum (lĭs'ĭ·tŭm). [L.] Beyond what is allowable or lawful.

‖ul'tra ma're. [L.] Beyond the sea; foreign lands. Cf. OUTREMER.

ul'tra·Mar'tian, adj. See ULTRA- a.

ul'tra·mi'cron, n. [See ULTRA- b.] Physical Chem. = SUBMICRON. ul'tra·nat'u·ral, adj. See ULTRA- b.

ul'tra·Nep·tu'ni·an, adj. See ULTRA- a.

ul'tra·Pau'line, adj. See ULTRA- b.

ul'tra·plan'et·ar'y, adj. See ULTRA- a.

ul'tra·rap'id pic'ture. See SLOW-MOTION PICTURE.

ul'tra·sim'i·an, adj. See ULTRA- b.

ul'tra·ter·rene', adj. See ULTRA- a.

ul'tra·ter·res'tri·al, adj. See ULTRA- a.

ul'tra·to'tal, adj. See ULTRA- b.

Ul'u·a, n. [NL.] = ULVA.

U'lu-yuz', Var. of ULU-JUZ.

ul·vose' (ŭl·vōs'; see -OSE), adj. [LL. ulvosus.] Full of sedge. Obs.

ul'yie (ŭl'yĭ; -ĭ), ul'zie (-yĭ; -zĭ; -ĭ; cf. CAPERCAILZIE), n. Oil. Scot.

U·lys'ses (ū-lĭs'ēz), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, Ulysses.

U·lys'ses (ū-lĭs'ēz), n. [L., better Ulixes, fr. Gr. Odysseus; akin to Gr. odyssomai I hate. See ODIUM.] 1. Literally, a hater; — masculine proper name.
2. Odysseus; — Ulysses is the commoner form in English literature before the present century.
3. The title and hero of a poem (1842) by Tennyson.
4. Title and hero of a drama (1902) by Stephen Phillips.
5. A novel (1922) by James Joyce.

um (ŭm), pron. [See 'EM them, HEM them.] Them. Dial.

um (ŭm), interj. [Imitative.] A murmured interjection expressing hesitation or indicating inarticulateness.

um (ōōm), interj. See OM.

um-. = UMBE-. Obs.

-um (-ŭm). A suffix, Latin -um, in nouns from or simulative of Latin (cf. -ON), as in forum, medium, opium, phyllum, platinum. See also METAL, n., 8, Note.

U magnet, n. A U-shaped magnet.

u·man'gite (ōō-mäng'gīt; ū-mäng'-), n. [From the Sierra de Umango, mts. in Argentina.] Mineral. A copper selenide, $CuSe.Cu_2Se$, in dark-red masses. H., 3. Sp. gr., 5.62.

U'ma·tĭl'la (ū'mȧ-tĭl'ȧ), n. An Indian of a small Shahaptian tribe of northeastern Oregon.

U·mau'a (ōō-mou'ä), n. An Indian of a group of closely related Cariban tribes in southeastern Colombia. The most important tribes are the Carijonas, the Guaques, and the Hianakotos.

um'be (ŏŏm'bĕ), prep. & adv. [From ON. umb, and fr. AS. ymbe, ymb, embe; akin to OHG. umbi, G. um. See AMBI-.] About. Obs.

um'be-. [See UMBE.] A prefix meaning about, around, as in um'be-cast', to pass or search about, surround. Obs.

um'bel (ŭm'bĕl; -b'l), n. [L. umbella parasol, umbrella. See UMBRELLA.] 1. Bot. a A racemose inflorescence in which the axis is very much contracted, so that the pedicels (known as rays) appear to spring from the same point, and are all of equal length, forming a flat or rounded flower cluster. It is the characteristic inflorescence of the carrot family, of some milkweeds (family Asclepiadaceae), and of various other plants. An umbel in which each pedicel, or ray, bears a smaller or secondary umbel, as in many members of the carrot family (Ammiaceae), is termed compound. Cf. FALSE UMBEL; see INFLORESCENCE, Table & Illust. b Obs. A plant bearing umbels.

Umbel of Wild Onion (Allium vineale).

2. Zool. Any similar arrangement of parts.

um'beled, um'belled (ŭm'bĕld; -b'ld), adj. Bot. Bearing or producing umbels; umbellate.

um·bel'la (ŭm·bĕl'ȧ), n. [L. See UMBEL.] Bot. An umbel.

Um'bel·la'les (ŭm'bĕ·lā'lēz), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. In Lindley's classification, an alliance comprising the umbellifers and allies.

um'bel·lar (ŭm'bĕl·ẽr), adj. Pert. to an umbel; umbellate.

um'bel·late (ŭm'bĕl·ăt), adj. Also um'bel·lat'ed (-ăt'ĕd; -ĭd). [NL. umbellatus.] Bot. Bearing, or consisting of, umbels; umbellike; arranged in umbels. — um'bel·late·ly, adv.

umbellate cyme. A false umbel.

um'bel·let (ŭm'bĕl·ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. Bot. An umbellule.

umbelli-, umbell-. A combining form from Latin umbella (see UMBEL), denoting umbel, umbellate, as in um·bel'li·flo'rous, um·bel'li·form, um'bel·loid.

um·bel'lic (ŭm·bĕl'lĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to, or obtained from, certain umbellifers.

umbellic acid. a Obs. Anisic acid. b An acid, $C_6H_3(OH)_2CH{:}CHCO_2H$, formed as a yellow powder by warming its lactone, umbelliferone, with caustic potash solution; 2,4-dihydroxy-cinnamic acid.

um·bel'li·fer (ŭm·bĕl'ĭ·fẽr) n. [NL. See UMBELLIFEROUS.] Any plant of the carrot family (Ammiaceae).

um'bel·lif'er·one (ŭm'bĕ·lĭf'ẽr·ōn), n. [G. umbelliferon; — so named as derived from Umbelliferae and as being isomeric or polymeric with quinone.] Chem. A colorless crystalline compound, $C_9H_6O_3$, found in the bark of the mezereon and also obtained by the distillation of certain resins from various umbellifers as galbanum, asafetida, etc., and in other ways; 7-hydroxy-coumarin.

um'bel·lif'er·ous (-ŭs), adj. [umbel + -ferous.] Bot. a Producing umbels. b Pertaining to the Umbelliferae.

Um·bel'lu·la (ŭm·bĕl'ū·lȧ), n. [NL. See UMBELLULE.] Zool. A genus of deep-sea Alcyonaria consisting of a cluster of large flowerlike polyps at the summit of a long, slender stem which stands upright in the mud, supported by a bulbous base. It is the type of a family, Um'bel·lu'li·dae (ŭm'bĕ·lū'lĭ·dē).

Umbellula (U. bairdii). a Side View of Polyps and Upper Part of Stem; b Lower End of Stem.

Um·bel'lu·la'ri·a (ŭm·bĕl'ū·lā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), n. [NL. See UMBELLULE.] Bot. A genus of trees (family Lauraceae) having as the only known species U. californica, the California laurel.

um·bel'lu·late (ŭm·bĕl'ū·lăt), adj. Disposed in umbellules.

um'bel·lule (ŭm'bĕl·ūl; ŭm·bĕl'ūl), n. [NL. umbellula, dim. of umbella. See UMBEL.] Bot. One of the small or secondary umbels in a compound umbel.

um·bel'lu·lif'er·ous (ŭm·bĕl'ū·lĭf'ẽr·ŭs), adj. [umbellule + -ferous.] Bot. Bearing umbellules.

um'bel·wort' (ŭm'bĕl·wûrt'), n. [umbel + wort.] An umbellifer.

um'ber (ŭm'bĕr), n. [F. ombre, terre d'ombre, It. terra d'ombra, prob. orig., earth from Umbria, fr. L. Umbria, but confused with It. ombra shade, F. ombre, fr. L. umbra. See UMBRAGE.] 1. A brown earth highly valued by artists as a permanent pigment and used either in the raw state, or calcined or burnt, in which latter case it has a slight reddish hue. Its color is due to manganese and iron oxides. The best variety comes from Cyprus and is called Turkey umber.

2. Either of the colors raw umber or burnt umber.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are: umber-black, umber-brown, umber-colored, umber-rufous.

um'ber (ŭm'bĕr), adj. Of, pertaining to, or resembling, umber; of the color raw umber or burnt umber.

um'ber, v. t.; UM'BERED (-bĕrd); UM'BER·ING. To make umber, as by staining.

um'ber (ŭm'bĕr), n. [OF. umbre (F. ombre), fr. L. umbra. See UMBRAGE.] 1. Shade; shadow. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. The European grayling.
3. [Cf. UMBRERE.] An umbrere, or visor. Obs.
4. Also umber bird. [Cf. UMBRETTE.] The umbrette.

um'ber, v. t. To shade; protect. Now Chiefly Dial.

um'ber·ty (ŭm'bĕr·tĭ), n. Abundance. Obs.

um'be·think' (ŭm'bē·thĭngk'), v. t. & i. [See UMBE.] To bethink oneself; consider; recollect. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

um·bil'ic (ŭm·bĭl'ĭk), adj. = UMBILICAL. Rare.

um·bil'ic, n. [L. umbilicus. See NAVEL.] 1. The navel; the center. Obs. "The umbilic of the world." Sir T. Herbert.
2. Geom. = UMBILICUS, 4 b.

um·bil'i·cal (ŭm·bĭl'ĭ·kăl), adj. [ML. umbilicalis. See UMBILIC.] 1. Of or pertaining to, from, or used at, the navel.
2. Pertaining to or occupying the center; central.
3. Related in the maternal line of descent.

umbilical artery. Anat. & Embryol. Either of a pair of arteries arising from the hypogastric arteries of the fetus of mammals, which pass through the umbilical cord to the placenta, to which they carry the impure blood from the fetus. These arteries, with the corresponding umbilical vein or veins (which see), pertain to, or at least accompany, the allantois in the early stages. With the assumption of the nutritive function by the placenta, these vessels supersede in function those of the yolk sac.

umbilical cord. a Anat. & Embryol. The cord or stalk arising from the navel, which connects the fetus of a mammal with the placenta, and contains the two umbilical arteries and the umbilical vein through which blood circulates between the fetus and the placenta; the navel string. In man it attains an exceptional length (about twenty inches) and a thickness of nearly half an inch, and consists, in the later stages of pregnancy, of little more than the above-mentioned vessels embedded in a mass of gelatinous embryonic connective tissue (jelly of Wharton), invested by an epiblastic epithelium, the other structures present in it in the early stages having become obliterated. b Bot. The funicle.

umbilical fissure. Anat. The anterior part of the longitudinal fissure on the under surface of the liver, which lodges the umbilical vein in the fetus.

umbilical hernia. Med. Hernia of abdominal viscera, as a loop of intestine at the umbilicus.

um·bil'i·cal·ly, adv. of UMBILICAL.

umbilical point. Geom. = UMBILICUS, 4 b. umbilical region. Anat. See ABDOMINAL REGIONS, Illust.

umbilical vein. Anat. & Embryol. A vein, passing through the umbilical cord to the fetus, returning the purified and nutrient blood from the placenta to the fetus. In the human fetus it discharges most of the blood into the portal vein, some directly into the liver, and some (by the ductus venosus) into the inferior vena cava. Two are present in early stages, one afterwards disappearing. After birth, the part in the body degenerates, becoming the round ligament of the liver.

umbilical vesicle. Embryol. In the embryo of most mammals, the yolk sac, or a sac containing fluid representing the yolk sac of oviparous vertebrates. Its cavity communicates, for a time at least, with the embryonic alimentary canal through the umbilicus, by the vitelline duct.

um·bil'i·car (ŭm·bĭl'ĭ·kẽr), adj. Math. Of or pertaining to an umbilicus.

Um'bil·i·ca'ri·a (ŭm'bĭl·ĭ·kā'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. UMBILICUS.] A small genus of foliose umbilicate lichens of the family Gyrophoraceae. U. pustulata is common on rocks in mountains. See ROCK TRIPE.

um·bil'i·cate (ŭm·bĭl'ĭ·kăt), adj. [L. umbilicatus. See UMBILIC.] 1. Depressed in the middle, like a navel; navel-shaped; having an umbilicus; as, an umbilicate smallpox vesicle.
2. Zool. In mollusks, perforate.

um·bil'i·cate (-kăt), v. i. To become umbilicate.

um·bil'i·cat'ed (-kāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Umbilicate.

um·bil'i·ca'tion (-kā'shŭn), n. a A navellike depression, or dimpling. b The state of being umbilicated.

um'bi·lic'i·form (ŭm'bĭ·lĭs'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [L. umbilicus navel + -form.] Navellike.

um·bil'i·cus (ŭm·bĭl'ĭ·kŭs; ŭm'bĭ·lī'kŭs), n.; pl. -LICI (-sī). [L. See UMBILIC.] 1. Anat. & Zool. The scar on the middle of the abdomen where the umbilical cord or the yolk sac was attached; the navel; hence, Vertebrate Embryol., the place (which the navel of the adult marks) where the extraembryonic structures are continuous with those of the body proper of the embryo.
2. Any similar depression or hollow.
3. Bot. a The hilum. b A rootlike attachment of the thallus in certain lichens.
4. Geom. Obs. a A focus. b A point of a surface at which the curvatures of all normal sections are equal, or the indicatrix is a circle. An algebraic surface of degree $n \geq 2$ has $n(10n^2 - 28n + 22)$ umbilics.
5. Gr. & Rom. Antiq. An ornamental ball or boss at each end of the stick on which manuscripts were rolled.
6. Paleog. The stick upon which a papyrus manuscript was rolled, to which the last sheet was attached; also, an ornamental knob, button, or boss, at the ends of such a stick.
7. Zool. a A depression or pit in the center of the base of many spiral shells around which the whorls coil. b A minute pit or depression on the shaft of a feather where the vane begins. c The opening at the basal end of a feather.

u Umbilicus (7 a).

um·bil'i·form (ŭm·bĭl'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [umbilicus + -form.] Shaped like an umbilicus, or navel.

um'bil·root' (ŭm'bĭ·rōōt'), n. [From ME. umble humble, low-growing.] The showy lady's-slipper.

um'ble pie (ŭm'b'l). [See UMBLES.] A pie made of umbles.

um'bles (ŭm'b'lz), n. [Var. of NUMBLES.] Numbles. Obs.

um'bo (ŭm'bō), n.; pl. UMBONES (ŭm·bō'nēz), UMBOS (ŭm'bōz). [L.] 1. The boss of a shield, placed at or near the middle and having, sometimes, a sharp spike.

2. Any elevation suggestive of the boss; a rounded elevation (often accompanied by a corresponding depression on the opposite surface), in a plage, disk, or membrane, as in the tympanic membrane of the ear where the malleus is attached, or as in the cone scales of certain pines.
3. Zool. a Bivalve of the lateral prominences just above the hinge of a bivalve shell; a beak of a shell. It is the first formed part of the valve. b Any boss or protuberance bearing a spine.

Umbo, 3a. Shells showing Umbones (u, u).

um'bo·lat'er·al (ŭm'bō·lăt'ẽr·ăl), adj. [umbo + lateral.] At or pertaining to the sides of the umbo.

um'bo·nal (ŭm'bō·năl; ŭm·bō'năl), adj. Pertaining to, or like, an umbo or umbos.

um'bo·nate (-nāt), adj. [NL. umbonatus. See UMBO.] Having or forming an umbo.

um'bo·nate (-nāt), v. t. To make umbonate. — um'bo·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n.

um'bo·nat'ed (-nāt'ĕd; -ĭd), adj. Umbonate.

Umbonate Pileus of Mushroom.

um'bone (ŭm'bōn), n. [L. umbo, umbonis. See UMBO.] 1. A pistil; a style. Obs.
2. An umbo (sense 3 a).

um·bon'ic (ŭm·bŏn'ĭk), adj. Also um·bo'ni·al (-bō'nĭ·ăl). Umbonal.

um·bon'u·late (ŭm·bŏn'ū·lăt), adj. [Dim. fr. umbonate.] Diminutively or slightly umbonate.

um'bo·nule (ŭm'bō·nūl), n. A small umbo. Rare.

um'bra (ŭm'brȧ), n.; pl. UMBRAE (-brē). [L., a shadow. See UMBRAGE.] 1. a A ghost; a phantom. b Shade; shadow. c A vestige; a mere shadow. d Something which overshadows.

His memory was eclipsed in the umbra of a more compelling personality. Irvin S. Cobb.

2. [L.] Any of several food fishes of the genus Umbrina (family Sciaenidae), esp. the Mediterranean species (U. cirrhosa), which is much esteemed as a market fish.

Umbra (Umbrina cirrhosa).

3. Astron. a The conical shadow projected from a planet or satellite, on the side opposite the sun, within which a spectator could see no portion of the sun's disk. Cf. PENUMBRA, 1. b The central dark portion, or nucleus, of a sunspot. c Formerly, the fainter part of a sunspot; — now called penumbra.
4. Optics. A complete shadow, within which no light is received from a given source. Cf. PENUMBRA.
5. Rom. Antiq. A shadow (sense 14 b).
6. [cap.] Zool. The genus containing the mud minnows.

um·brac'u·late (ŭm·brăk'ū·lăt), adj. Umbraculiform.

umbraculi-. A combining form for umbraculum, as in um·brac'u·lif'er·ous, um·brac'u·li·form'.

um·brac'u·lum (ŭm·brăk'ū·lŭm), n. [L., umbrella, dim. of umbra a shade.] Bot. An umbrella-shaped appendage.

um'brage (ŭm'brĭj), n. [OF. (F. ombrage), fr. L. umbraticus pert. to shade, fr. umbra shadow, of obscure origin. Cf. SOMBER, UMBEL, 1st & 2d UMBER, UMBRA, UMBRELLA, UMBRERE, UMBRETTE.] 1. Shade; shadow. Obs.
2. The shade or shadow from foliage, etc.; hence, that which casts it; foliage.
3. Shadowy resemblance or indication; semblance; trace. Archaic. "No . . . umbrage of reason." Woodward.
4. Suspicion of injury or wrong; offense; resentment; as, to take umbrage at another's advancement.
5. Obs. a Shelter; protection. b Doubt; suspicion or a ground of suspicion. c Disfavor; disesteem; disgrace. d A pretext.
Syn. — See PIQUE.

um'brage, v. t. 1. To shade; also, to overshadow.
2. To give umbrage; to offend.
3. To cloak, as with pretext or disguise. Obs.

um·bra'geous (ŭm·brā'jŭs), adj. [F. ombrageux shy, skittish, suspicious, in OF., also, shady. See UMBRAGE.]
1. Forming or affording a shade, or being shaded; shady; shaded; as, umbrageous trees, foliage, caves.
2. Overshadowed; affording no clear view.
3. Feeling jealousy or umbrage; taking, or disposed to take, umbrage; suspicious.
4. Obscure, as if from being shaded; also, dubious. Obs.
— um·bra'geous·ly, adv. — um·bra'geous·ness, n.

um'bral (ŭm'brăl), adj. Of or pertaining to an umbra. — um'bral·ly, adv.

umbral notation. Math. Any notation in which symbols are used that have no meaning in themselves, but only in connection with other symbols omitted; as where (ks) is written for the constituent in the kth column and sth row of a matrix, as by Vandermonde (1735–96) and Sylvester.

umbral symbol. Math. A symbol indicating substitution in turn of each of n given values followed by addition of the results obtained; as, the umbral symbol α in the expression $x^n y_\alpha$ which stands for $x^n y_1 + x^n y_2 + \ldots + x^n y_n$; — of frequent occurrence in the calculus of tensors.

um'bra·tile (ŭm'brȧ·tĭl; -tīl), adj. [L. umbratilis.]
1. Of, pertaining to, or like, a shadow or shadows; hence, formerly, unreal; unsubstantial.
2. Dwelling in or pursued in seclusion; recluse; private.
3. Affording shade.

um·brat'i·lous (ŭm·brăt'ĭ·lŭs), adj. = UMBRATILE. Obs.

um'bra tree (ŭm'brȧ). [Sp. ombú, fr. Guarani ombú, umbú, but influenced in E. by Sp. umbra shade; cf. Sp. bellasombra umbra tree, lit., beautiful shade. Cf. UMBU-RANA.] A South American tree (Phytolacca dioica) cultivated in southern Europe. It has large dark leaves, and a somber aspect. The juice of its berries is used for coloring wine.

um·brel' (ŭm·brĕl'), n. a Obs. exc. Illit. [From UMBRELLA.] An umbrella. b Obs. [See UMBRIL.] An umbrere, or visor.

U'ma (ōō'mȧ), n. [Skr. Umā.] See DEVI.

U·may'yad (ŭ·mī'yăd). Var. of OMMIAD.

um·bar'ry (ŭm·bĕr'ĭ). Var. of AMBARRE, howdah.

um'be·clad', adj. See UMBE-.

um'be·lap', v. t. [See UMBE.] To wrap round; enfold. Obs.

Um'bel·lif'er·ae (ŭm'bĕ·lĭf'ẽr·ē), n. pl. [NL. See UMBELLIFEROUS.] Bot. Syn. of AMMIACEAE.

um'be·set', v. t. [AS. ymbēsettan.] To encompass. Cf. UMBE-. Obs.

um'bi·lec'to·my (ŭm'bĭ·lĕk'tȯ·mĭ), n. [umbilicus + -ectomy.] = OMPHALECTOMY.

um·bil'i·cal'i·ty (ŭm·bĭl'ĭ·kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Umbilical connection. Obs.

um·bo'nes, n., pl. of UMBO.

um·bra'cious (ŭm·brā'shŭs), adj. [L. umbra shade.] = UMBRAGEOUS. — um·bra'cious·ness, n.

um'bra·cle (ŭm'brȧ·k'l), n. [L. umbraculum.] A shady place. Obs.

um·braid', n. & v. [Cf. UMBE; UPBRAID.] Reproach. Obs.

um·bra'na, n. [Cf. It. ombrina, E. UMBRINE, UMBER, the fish.] The grayling. Obs.

um'brate (ŭm'brāt), v. t. [L. umbratus, past part. of umbrare to shade.] To shadow or foreshadow. Obs. — um·bra'tion (ŭm·brā'shŭn), n. Obs.

um·brat'ic (ŭm·brăt'ĭk), adj. Also um·brat'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl). [L. umbraticus, fr. umbra shade. See UMBRAGE.] Obs. a Foreshadowing. b Secluded.

umbrawe. † OMBRAH.

um'bre. † OMBRE, UMBER.

um·brel'la (ŭm·brĕl'ȧ), n. [It. ombrella (after It. ombra shade), fr. L. umbella, in glosses umbrella (after umbra shade), a little shadow, parasol, umbrella, dim. of umbra shade. See UMBRAGE.] 1. A shade, screen, or guard, carried in the hand for sheltering one from rain, sun, etc. It is of silk, cotton, or other fabric, extended on strips of steel, or other elastic material, fastened to a rod or stick, usually by pivots or hinges so as to allow of being opened and closed with ease. See PARASOL.
2. Anything serving to screen, shelter, or protect.
3. An umbrella-shaped structure or device.
4. Obs. a A disguise. b A sun blind.
5. Naut. A sea anchor.
6. Zool. a The bell-shaped or saucer-shaped structure composed chiefly of jellylike mesogloea which forms the chief part of the body of most jellyfishes. By its contractions, due to muscular ectodermal cells, lining its lower (concave) surface, it serves as a swimming organ. b [cap.] The typical genus of umbrella shells.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:
umbrella maker umbrella man umbrella stand umbrella making umbrella-shaped umbrella-topped um·brel'la, adj. Of, pertaining to, or like, an umbrella; used for umbrellas.

um·brel'la, v. i. To go with umbrellalike motion.

umbrella ant. A leaf-cutting ant; — so called because it sometimes carries bits of leaves over its back.

umbrella bird. Any of several South and Central American birds of the genus Cephalopterus; esp., C. ornatus of Guiana and Brazil. It is about the size of a jackdaw and the male is entirely black with a radiating crest curving forward over the head and a long feathered lappet depending from the breast.

Umbrella Bird. 1/4 s umbrella bush. A small Australian acacia (Acacia oswaldi used for hedges.

umbrella catalpa. A very commonly cultivated tree (Catalpa bignonioides nana) grafted and trimmed as a standard, and grown mostly for its umbrella-shaped crown of leaves, usually under the incorrect name of Catalpa bungei.

um·brel'laed (ŭm·brĕl'ȧd), adj. Provided with, or sheltered by or as by, an umbrella.

umbrella fern. a The common brake (Pteridium aquilinum). b Any Australasian fern of the genus Gleichenia, esp. the Australian G. flabellata.

umbrella fir. The umbrella pine.

umbrella grass. Any of several plants having outspread inflorescence; as: a The Australian millet. b An Australian grass (Aristida ramosa). c Any plant of the genus Fuirena, esp. F. squarrosa.

umbrella leaf. A North American herb (Diphylleia cymosa) with two large peltate stem leaves and a solitary lobed basal one.

umbrella palm. a A pinnate-leaved palm (Hedyscepe canterburyana) native to Lord Howe's Island, but common in cultivation. It has a crown of gracefully recurved leaves. b The umbrella plant Cyperus alternifolius.

umbrella pine. A tall Japanese evergreen tree (Sciadopitys verticillata) having a handsome symmetrical crown, and often cultivated. The needle-shaped leaves are borne in umbrellalike whorls at the ends of the twigs.

umbrella plant. a An African sedge (Cyperus alternifolius) bearing large terminal whorls of slender leaves. It is often cultivated as an ornamental aquatic, like the papyrus, which it resembles. b In the western United States, any of several plants of the genus Eriogonum; — so called from the shape of the flower cluster. c = MAY APPLE a.

umbrella pulley. Mach. A pulley having a skeleton semispherical projecting boss.

umbrella sedge. = UMBRELLA PLANT a. umbrella shell. A marine univalve (suborder Tectibranchia) belonging to Umbrella or a related genus. It has a large thick foot, small head, and small, external, limpetlike shell which only partly covers the body.

Umbrella Pulley.

umbrella tree. a An American magnolia (Magnolia tripetala) having large leaves clustered at the ends of the branches. b In Australia: (1) The tree Brassaia actinophylla (family Araliaceae), having digitate leaves arranged like the ribs of an umbrella. (2) The umbrella bush. c Any of various other trees or shrubs so called from the shape of their leaves or the position of their crown of foliage, as the blue dogwood, the bendy tree, the Malabar almond, and an umbrella-shaped variety (Melia azedarach umbraculiformis) of the China tree.

Umbrette. 1/12

um·brel'la-wort' (ŭm·brĕl'ȧ-wûrt'), n. Any species of Allionia.

um·brette' (ŭm·brĕt'), n. [F. ombrette, NL. umbretta. See UMBER shade.] An African wading bird (Scopus umbretta) allied to the storks and herons. It is about two feet long and has a large head, a heavy bill, and a thick crest on the back of the head. Its color is uniform brown except a few purplish bars on the tail. It builds a bulky nest of sticks with an entrance in the side and sometimes several chambers.

Um'bri·an (ŭm'brĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Umbria, in central Italy, or its inhabitants or their language.

Um'bri·an (ŭm'brĭ·ăn), n. a An inhabitant of modern Umbria. b One of a people occupying that region in ancient times. See ITALIAN, n. c The language of the ancient Umbrians, an Italic tongue of Oscan origin, preserved chiefly in the Eugubine tables. See OSCAN, INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES; cf. EUGUBINE, VOLSCIAN.

Umbrian school. a The group of painters (Gentile da Fabriano, Piero della Francesca, Melozzo da Forli, Perugino, Lo Spagna, etc.) working in the 15th and 16th centuries in several small towns of Umbria, such as Foligno, Barga, Sansepolcro and Gubbio. b The followers and imitators of Raphael; — a loose and inaccurate use.

Um'bri·el (ŭm'brĭ·ĕl), n. 1. In Pope's Rape of the Lock, a moody sprite whom Spleen supplies with sighs and tears.
2. Astron. See URANUS.

um·brif'er·ous (ŭm·brĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [L. umbrifer, fr. umbra a shade + ferre to bear.] Casting a shade; umbrageous. — um·brif'er·ous·ly, adv. ·ous·ness, n.

um'brine (ŭm'brĭn; -brīn), n. [Sp. & It. umbrina. See UMBRA.] Umbra (fish).

Um'bro- (ŭm'brō-). A combining form from Latin Umber, denoting Umbrian and, as in:
Umbro-Etruscan Umbro-Oscan Umbro-Samnite
Umbro-Florentine Umbro-Roman Umbro-Sienese Umbro-Latin Umbro-Sabellian

um·brose' (ŭm·brōs'; see -OSE), adj. [L. umbrosus.] Shady; umbrageous. — um·bros'i·ty (-brŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Both Rare.

um'brous (ŭm'brŭs), adj. [F. ombreux, fr. L. umbrosus.] Overspread with shade.

Um'bun·du' (ōōm'bōōn·dōō'), n. The Bantu language spoken by the Bunda in central Angola. Cf. KIMBUNDU.

um'bu-ra'na (ōōm'bōō·rä'nä), n. [Tupi, fr. umbu umbra tree + rana false. Cf. PACA-RANA, UMBRA TREE, URUCURANA.] A South American timber tree (Torresia cearensis), family Fabaceae, yielding a yellow wood prized for furniture; — called roble in Argentina.

u·me' (ōō·mĕ'; Jap. nmĕ), n. [Jap.] The Japanese apricot.

u'mest (ē'mĭst), adj. [AS. ufemest.] Uppermost. Scot.

‖um'faan (ŭm'fän), n. [S. Afr. D., fr. Zulu umfana boy, dim. of umfo man, person.] A small boy, esp. a Zulu or Kaffir boy employed to look after small children; a nurse. S. Africa.

um'gang' (ōōm'gängs'), n. [AS. ymbgang.] A going round; circuit. Obs.

‖Um'gangs·spra'che (ōōm'gängs·shprä'kĕ), n. [G.] The speech of everyday life; colloquial language; the ordinary speech of cultivated people, intermediate between dialect and literary language.

um'-hum', interj. [See UH-HUH.] An exclamation signifying an affirmative answer, or merely continued attention to a speaker's remarks; — also un-hunh, m-hum. Colloq.

u'mi·ak (ōō'mĭ·ăk), n. Also oo'mi·ac, oo'mi·ak, u'mi·ack. [Eskimo umiak.] An open Eskimo boat about 30 feet long and 8 feet wide, consisting of a wooden frame covered with skins, and propelled usually with broad paddles, by women.

Umiak. u'mi·ri' (ōō'mĭ·rē'), n. [Pg. umiri. See HUMIRIA.] A fragrant balsam derived from South American trees of the genus Humiria, esp. H. floribunda and H. balsamifera of Brazil; also, any of the trees of this genus.

um'laut (ōōm'lout), n. [G., fr. um about + laut sound. See LOUD.] 1. Philol. The change of a vowel caused by partial assimilation to a succeeding sound, esp. the palatalization of a back vowel, as a, o, or u, caused by a (front) i or j originally standing in the following syllable, but now generally lost or altered; vowel mutation; modification; also the vowel resulting from such partial assimilation. Umlaut, though occurring in other Indo-European languages, is esp. characteristic of the Teutonic languages. It was common in Anglo-Saxon and is highly developed in Icelandic. In German the umlauted vowels resulting from a, o, u, followed by old i, are written ä, ö, ü, or ae, oe, ue; as, männer or maenner, men, from mann, man. Examples of forms in modern English resulting from umlaut are: geese, pl. of goose; men, pl. of man; etc. Cf. U- O-UMLAUT.
2. Loosely, the two dots used in German to indicate a vowel affected by umlaut.

um'laut, v. t. To affect, form, or sound, with umlaut.

um'pir·age (ŭm'pĭr·ĭj; ŭm'pī·rĭj), n. [From UMPIRE.] The office, power, right, or authority, of an umpire; also, the act of umpiring; arbitrament.

um'pire (ŭm'pīr), n. [ME. nompere, nounpere, fr. OF. nomper, nonper, uneven (F. non-pair), hence the meaning, uneven, i. e., third, person, fr. non not + per even, equal, peer, F. pair; cf. L. impar uneven, unequal. Umpire, without initial n-, arose through the incorrect division of a numpire as an umpire (cf. APRON). See NON-; PEER an equal.] 1. A person to whose sole decision a controversy or question between parties is referred; now specif., one chosen to rule on the plays of a game, as cricket, baseball, or the like. Cf. REFEREE, n. c.
2. That by which a matter is decided.
The sword is now the umpire to decide. Rowe.
3. Law. A third person who is to decide a matter submitted to arbitrators in case of their disagreement.
Syn. — See ARBITER.

um'pire, v. t.; UM'PIRED (-pīrd); UM'PIR·ING (-pīr·ĭng). To decide or supervise as umpire.
Judges appointed to umpire the matter in contest. South.
— v. i. To act as umpire.

umpire assay. Mining & Metal. An assay to decide the value of a shipment of ore, concentrate, bullion, or like material, when previous assays made by the buyer and seller are not in agreement.

um'pir·ess (ŭm'pīr·ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. A female umpire.

um'ple (ŭm'p'l), n. [OF. omple sort of cloth.] Fine gauze or lawn. Obs.

Ump'qua (ŭmp'kwȧ), n. An Indian of an Athapascan tribe, formerly living on the upper Umpqua River in Oregon, now on the Grande Ronde Reservation in that State.

ump'teen' (ŭmp'tēn'; 66), n. [ump-, indef. syllable for indef. no. + -teen.] A large indeterminate number. — ump'teenth' (-tēnth'; 66), adj. — ump'ti·eth (-tĭ·ĕth; -ĭth; 119), adj. — ump'ty (-tĭ) adj. All Humorous.

ump'tek·ite (ōōm'tĕk·īt), n. [From Umptek, mt. in the Kola Peninsula, Russia.] Petrog. A syenite chiefly of alkalic feldspars and arfvedsonite, and very subordinate nephelite.

um·quhile' (ŭm·hwīl'; -hwĭl'), adv. [See UMBE; WHILE, n.]
1. At times; sometimes. Obs.
2. At one time; once; formerly. Archaic.
3. At some time; later. Obs.

um·quhile', adj. Former; of old; late; deceased. Archaic.

um·set' (ŭm·sĕt'), v. t. [um- + set, v.] To beset round about. Obs.

um'stroke' (ŭm'strōk'), n. [um-, umbe + stroke.] Edge; boundary. Obs.

um suff (ōōm sōōf). [Ar. umm ṣūf sudd, lit., the mother of wool, fr. ṣūf-al-baḥr, a maritime plant, lit., the wool of the sea (also, Nile). Cf. SUFISM.] A wiry grass (Vossia procera) found in the Nile and often making up a considerable part of the sudd in that river.

u'mu (ōō'mōō), n. [Polynesian.] In Polynesia, a native earth oven or baking pit filled with preheated stones upon which bundles or baskets of food wrapped in leaves are placed and covered over with packets of dried leaves.

u'mu-. A prefix in Bantu meaning man, human. See M-.

un- (ŭn-; see note below). [ME. un-, fr. AS. un-, on-, the unaccented form of the accented prefix and- (cf. ANSWER); akin to D. ont-, G. ent-, OHG. int- Goth. and-. See ANTI-.] An inseparable verbal prefix used: a With verbs (esp. when intransitive) to express the contrary, or reversal, and not the simple negative, of the action of the verb to which it is prefixed, as in unbend, uncoil, undo, unfold. b With nouns to form verbs expressing removal or privation of (or release from) the thing, quality, or state expressed by the noun, as in unfrock, unman, unsex, unyoke; also, removal of someone or something from, as in unearth, unfrock, unhorse. Sometimes participles and participial adjectives formed with this prefix coincide in form with compounds of the negative prefix un- (see 2d UN-), as in undone (from undo) meaning unfastened, ruined, and undone (from 2d un- and done) meaning not done, not finished. Un- sometimes merely intensifies a negative already expressed in a word, as in unloose. Cf. DIS-.
☞ Usually unaccented or under secondary accent only, but the accent, or the emphasis, esp. in direct contrast, is often stronger than in 2d un-. See Pron., § 66.

un- (ŭn-; see note below). [ME. & AS. un-; akin to OFris. un-, D. on-, OS., OHG., & G. un-, ON. ō-, ū-, Sw. o-, Dan. u-, W. an-, L. in-, Gr. an-, a-, Skr. an-, a-. See NO, adv.; cf. A- not, IN- not, NE.] An inseparable prefix, signifying not; in-; non-. Un- may be attached to almost any adjective (esp. in derivative forms) or adverb, and (though less freely) to nouns, from which it may be desired to form a corresponding negative. No attempt is here made to enter all the compounds of un- in the Vocabulary. Of those entered, such as are merely negations of the word (which may be coined from another root word and some simple suffix such as -able, -ed, -ing, -like) are in general sufficiently explained by substituting not. Definitions are given for: a Such as have acquired an opposing or contrary meaning, as unfriendly, ungraceful, unpalatable, unquiet, unbelief, unrest, or else a special intensive sense, as unending, unparalleled, undisciplined, undoubted, unsafe. b Such as have the value of independent words, the simple words being less often used, as unconscionable, undeniable, unspeakable, unprecedented, unruly, or the compound being used in a special sense as unaccountable, unalloyed, unbelieving, unpretending, unreserved, or the compound being felt as positive rather than negative, as uncertain, uneven. c Such as are anomalous or provincial, etc., as unpure, for impure, unsatisfaction for dissatisfaction. As distinguished from in- (im-), un- is used primarily with words of native rather than of Latin, origin, and is sometimes confined to a neutral rather than contrary meaning, as in inartistic, unartistic; immoral, unmoral. See also 1st AN-.
☞ Compounds with un-, not, are freely formed with: (1) adjectives, as in uncertain, unfair; (2) nouns and their adjective derivatives in -ful, -like, -some, etc., as in unrepose, unreposeful, unchildlike, unfrolicsome; (3) derivatives of most transitive verbs, such as participial adjectives in -ed and -ing and adjectives in -able, -ive, -ory, as in unendured, unenduring, unendurable, unrestrictive, uncompulsory; (4) adjectives formed by adding -ed to nouns, as in unraftered, untasseled. Corresponding adverbs and nouns are formed from such adjectives by the addition of -ly and -ness, as in unenduringly, unreposefulness.
☞ The accent in compounds of un- often varies with the position of the word, as an un'born' child, a child un'born', etc. See Pron., § 66.

un (ŭn), n. An instance of the use of un-, not; a word formed with un-.

un (ŭn). Colloq. & dial. var. of ONE.

un (ŭn). Dial. var. of HIN, him.

U'na (ū'nȧ), n. [L., fem. of unus one.] 1. A lovely lady in Spenser's Faerie Queene (Bk. I), intended as a personification of Truth. See REDCROSS KNIGHT.
2. Used as feminine proper name.

un'a·bil'i·ty (ŭn'ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Inability.

un·a'ble (ŭn·ā'b'l; 66), adj. Not able; incapable; unqualified; incompetent; inefficient; also, Poetic, impotent; helpless. "Sapless age and weak unable limbs." Shak.
Syn. — See INCAPABLE. See ABLE, POWERFUL, EFFICIENT.
— un·a'ble·ness, n. — un·a'bly, adv.

un·a'ble, v. t. [Cf. 1st UN-.] To disable; to incapacitate. Obs.

U'na boat (ū'nȧ). Naut. A catboat.

un'a·bridged' (ŭn'ȧ·brĭjd'), adj. Not abridged; complete.

un'ab·solv'a·ble (ŭn'ăb·sŏl'vȧ·b'l; -zŏl'vȧ·b'l), adj. That one cannot be absolved from.

un'ac·cept'a·ble (-ăk·sĕp'tȧ·b'l), adj. Not acceptable; not pleasing or welcome. — un'ac·cept'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'ac·cept'a·ble·ness, n. — un'ac·cept'a·bly, adv.

un'ac·ces'si·ble (-sĕs'ĭ·b'l), adj. Inaccessible. — un'ac·ces'si·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'ac·ces'si·ble·ness, n. — un'ac·ces'si·bly, adv.

---

um·brel'la·less, adj. See -LESS.
um·brel'la·like', adj. See -LIKE.
um·brel'la·wise', adv. See -WISE. um·brel'lo. ✝ UMBRELLA. um·brere' (ŭm·brĕr'), n. [MF. embriere a sunshade. See UMBRELLA.] = VISOR, 2. Obs. um·bret', Umbrette. Ref. Sp. um'bril, n. = UMBRELLA. Obs. um'bril, n. [Also umbrel, fr. OF. embrel shade. See UMBRERE.] = VISOR, 2. Hist.
u·meen' (ū·mēn'). Var. of AMEEN.
umh. ✝ UMPH (humph).
Um'mah (ŭm'ȧ). Bib. um'man. Dial. var. of WOMAN.
um·may'ad (ŭ·mĭ'ȧd). Var. of OMMIAD. ump (ŭmp), n. Short for UMPIRE. — ump, v. t. & i. Both Slang.
umph, interj. & v. i. = HUMPH. um'pir·er (ŭm'pīr·ĕr), n. = UMPIRE. Rare. um'pire·ship, n. See -SHIP. um'pir·ism (ŭm'pīr·ĭz'm), n. = UMPIRAGE. umpra. ✝ OMRAH.
um'teen', um'teenth'. Vars. of UMPTEEN, etc.
um·while'. Var. of UMQUHILE. u'my·ak (ōō'mĭ·ăk), n. Var. of UMIAK. um'-yum', interj. = YUM-YUM.
un'a·ban'doned, adj., un'a·based' (-d·bāst'), adj., un'a·bas'ed·ly, adv., un'a·bash'a·ble, un'a·bashed', adj., un'a·bash'ed·ly, adv., un'a·bat'a·ble, un'a·bated (-d·bāt'ĕd; 119), adj., un'a·bat'ed·ly, adv., un'a·bat'ing (-bāt'ĭng), adj., un'a·bat'ing·ly, adv., un'ab·bre'vi·at'ed, adj., un'a·bet'ted, adj., un'a·bet'tedness, n., un'ab·horred', adj., un'a·bid'ing (-d·bīd'ĭng), adj., un'a·bid'ing·ly, adv., un'a·bid'ing·ness, n. See UN-, not.
un·ab'ject, adj., un'ab·jured', adj. See UN-, not.
un'a·bol'ish·a·ble, un'a·bol'ished, adj., un'ab·rad'ed (-ăb·rād'ĕd; 119), adj., un'ab·rase'd', adj., un'a·bridg'a·ble, un·ab'rogat'ed (ŭn·ăb'rō·gāt'ĕd; -ĭd), adj., un'ab·rupt', adj. See UN-, not.
un'ab·sent', v. t. See 1st UN-. un·ab'so·lute, adj., un'ab·solved', adj., un'ab·solv'ed·ness, n. See UN-, not.
un'ab·sorb', v. t. See 1st UN-. un'ab·sorb'a·ble, un'ab·sorbed' (-sŏrbd'), un'ab·sorb'ent, adj., un·ab'stract, adj., un·ab·surd', adj. See UN-, not.
un'a·bun'dance, n., un'a·bun'dant, adj., un'a·bun'dant·ly, adv., un'a·bused' (-d·būzd'), adj., un'ac·a·dem'ic, un'ac·a·dem'ical, adj., un'ac·cel'er·at'ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un'ac·cent', v. t. See 1st UN-. un'ac·cent'ed, un'ac·cen't'uat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un'ac·cept', v. t. See 1st UN-. un'ac·cept'ance, n., un'ac·cept'ant, un'ac·cept'ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un'ac·ces'sion·al, adj., un'ac·ces'so·ry, adj., un'ac·ci·den'tal, adj., un'ac·ci·den'tal·ly, adv., un'ac·ci·dent'ed, adj., un'ac·cli'mat·ed, adj., un'ac·cli·ma'tion, n., un'ac·cli'ma·ti·za'tion, n., un'ac·cli'ma·tized, adj., un'ac·com'mo·da·ble, adj. See UN-, not.
un'ac·com'mo·date, adj. Not adapted; not accommodated; unaccommodated. Obs.

un'ac·com'mo·dat'ed (ŭn'ă·kŏm'ō·dāt'ĕd; -Id; 119), adj. Not accommodated or adapted; also, not having accommodations. — un'ac·com'mo·dat'ed·ness, n.

un'ac·com'mo·dat'ing (-Ing), adj. Not accommodating. — un'ac·com'mo·dat'ing·ly, adv. — un'ac·com'mo·dat'·ing·ness, n.

un'ac·count'a·ble (ŭn'ă·koun'tă·b'l), adj. 1. Not accountable or responsible; free from control.
2. Not to be accounted for; inexplicable; not consonant with reason or rule; strange; mysterious.
3. Uncountable; countless. Obs.
Syn. — Irresponsible; unfathomable.
Ant. — Answerable; understandable, obvious.
— un'ac·count'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'ac·count'a·ble·ness, n. — un'ac·count'a·bly, adv.

un'ac·count'a·ble, n. A person or thing that is unaccountable.

un'ac·count'ed–for', adj. Not accounted for; unexplained.

un·ac'cu·rate (ŭn·ăk'ū·rĕt), adj. Inaccurate. — un·ac'cu·rate·ly, adv. — un·ac'cu·rate·ness, n.

un'ac·cus'tom·ar'i·ly (ŭn'ă·kŭs'tŭm·ĕr'ĭ·lĭ; -ĕr·ĭ·lĭ), adv. As not customary. Obs.

un'ac·cus'tomed (-tŭmd), adj. 1. Not usual; uncommon; strange; new.
What unaccustomed cause procures her hither? Shak.
2. Not habituated; unfamiliar; — with to.
— un'ac·cus'tomed·ly, adv. — un'ac·cus'tomed·ness, n.

‖u'na cor'da (ōō'nä kôr'dä). [It.] Music. Literally, one string; — a direction in piano music to use the soft pedal, which, in some early instruments, shifts the hammers so that they strike only one of the three strings for each tone. In modern grand pianos the shifted hammers strike two strings, but the old term is retained.

un'ac·quaint'a·ble (ŭn'ă·kwān'tă·b'l), adj. Not acquaintable.

un'ac·quaint'ance (-kwān'tăns), n. Quality or state of being unacquainted; want of acquaintance; ignorance.

un'ac·quaint'ed (-tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. 1. Unusual; strange. Obs.
2. Not acquainted; also, inexperienced; lacking knowledge (of).
— un'ac·quaint'ed·ly, adv. — un'ac·quaint'ed·ness, n.

un·ac'tu·al (ŭn·ăk'tŭ·ăl), adj. Not actual. — un'ac·tu·al'i·ty (ŭn'ăk·tŭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·ac'tu·al·ly, adv.

un'a·dapt'a·ble (ŭn'ă·dăp'tă·b'l), adj. Not adaptable. — un'a·dapt'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'a·dapt'a·ble·ness, n. — un'a·dapt'a·bly, adv.

un'ad·di'tioned (ŭn'ă·dĭsh'ŭnd), adj. Untitled. Obs.

un'ad·dress' (ŭn'ă·drĕs'; ŭn·ăd'rĕs), n. Want of address.

‖u'ña de ga'to (ōō'nyä dā gä'tō). [Sp., lit., cat's claw.] Any of various shrubs or trees of the southwestern United States and Spanish America having sharp recurved prickles or thorns, as Pithecolobium unguiscati, Acacia greggii, Celtis iguanaea, Pisonia aculeata, Rosa montezumae, etc.

un·ad'e·quate (ŭn·ăd'ē·kwĭt), adj. Inadequate. — un·ad'e·quate·ly, adv. — un·ad'e·quate·ness, n.

un'ad·her'ent (ŭn'ăd·hēr'ĕnt), adj. Not adherent. — un'ad·her'ence (-ĕns), n. — un'ad·her'ent·ly, adv.

un'ad·vanced' (-ăd·vänst'), adj. Not advanced; specif., unbeneficed. — un'ad·vanc'ed·ly (-vän'sĕd·lĭ; -sĭd·lĭ), adv. — un'ad·vanc'ed·ness, n.

un'ad·vert'en·cy (-vûr'tĕn·sĭ), n. Inadvertency.

un'ad·vis'a·ble (-vīz'ă·b'l), adj. Inadvisable. — un'ad·vis'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'ad·vis'a·ble·ness, n. — un'ad·vis'a·bly, adv.

un'ad·vised' (-vīzd'), adj. 1. Not prudent; indiscreet.
2. Done without due consideration; rash; inconsiderate.
3. Not having been advised; without consultation.
4. Obs. a Unwarned. b Unannounced.
—un'ad·vis'ed·ly (-vīz'ĕd·lĭ), adv.—un'ad·vis'ed·ness, n.

un'ad·vised' (ŭn'ăd·vīzd'), adv. Obs. a Unwarily. b Unexpectedly.

un'af·fect'ed (ŭn'ă·fĕk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Not affected; as: a Free from affectation; plain; simple; natural; real; sincere; genuine; as, unaffected sorrow. b Uninfluenced; untouched or unmoved. c Unaltered. d Exempt from pathological affection. e Obs. Unbiased. — un'af·fect'ed·ly, adv. — un'af·fect'ed·ness, n.

un'af·fec'tion·ate (-fĕk'shŭn·ĭt), adj. Lacking affection; not affectionate. — un'af·fec'tion·ate·ly, adv.

un'af·fied' (ŭn'ă·fīd'), adj. Not affianced or allied. Rare.

un'a·gree'a·ble (ŭn'ă·grē'ă·b'l), adj. Disagreeable; also, unsuitable. — un'a·gree'a·ble·ness, n. — ·gree'a·bly, adv.

un'a·kin' (ŭn'ă·kĭn'), adj. Not akin; unrelated.

u'na·kite (ū'nă·kīt), n. [From the Unaka (Great Smoky) Mts., Tenn. & N. C.] Petrog. A granitic rock consisting of quartz, pink feldspar, and much green epidote. Cf. HELSINGKITE.

u'nal (ū'năl; -n'l), adj. [L. unus one + -al.] Single. Cf. DUAL.

un·al'ien·a·ble (ŭn·āl'yĕn·ă·b'l), adj. Inalienable. — un·al'ien·a·ble·ness, n. — un·al'ien·a·bly, adv.

u'nal·ist (ū'năl·ĭst; ū'n'l·), n. [L. unus one.] Eccl. A holder of but one benefice.

un'al·lied' (ŭn'ă·līd'), adj. Not allied; having no connection or relation; as, unallied species or genera. — un'al·li'ed·ly (-lī'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ), adv. — un'al·li'ed·ness, n.

un'al·loyed' (ŭn'ă·loid'), adj. Not alloyed; unmixed; unqualified; pure; as, unalloyed metals, happiness.

un·almsed' (ŭn·ämzd'), adj. Not having received alms.

un·al'ter·a·ble (ŭn·ôl'tĕr·ă·b'l), adj. Not alterable. — un'al·ter·a·bil'i·ty (ŭn'ôl·tĕr·ă·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·al'ter·a·ble·ness, n. — un·al'ter·a·bly, adv.

un·al'tered (ŭn·ôl'tĕrd), adj. 1. Not altered or changed.
2. Not alterable. Obs.

un'am·bi'tion (ŭn'ăm·bĭsh'ŭn), n. Lack of ambition. Rare.

un'am·bi'tious (-ŭs), adj. Devoid of ambition. — un'am·bi'tious·ly, adv. — un'am·bi'tious·ness, n.

un'a·me'na·ble (ŭn'ă·mē'nă·b'l; -mĕn'ă·b'l), adj. Not amenable. — un'a·me'na·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'a·me'na·ble·ness, n. — un'a·me'na·bly, adv.

un'–A·mer'i·can, adj. Not American; not characteristic of, or consistent with, American customs, principles, etc. — un'–A·mer'i·can·ism (-Iz'm), n.

un'–A·mer'i·can·ize (-Iz), v. t. To render un-American. — un'–A·mer'i·can·i·za'tion (-I·zā'shŭn; -I·zā'-), n.

un·a'mi·a·ble (ŭn·ā'mĭ·ă·b'l), adj. Not amiable. — un·a'mi·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·a'mi·a·ble·ness, n. — un·a'mi·a·bly, adv.

u·na'mo (ōō·nä'mō), n. [Origin unknown.] A South American palm (Jessenia polycarpa), the seeds of which yield an oil.

U'nam Sanc'tam (ū'năm săngk'tăm). [L., acc.] A bull issued by Boniface VIII in 1302 during his quarrel with Philip IV of France, asserting that the Pope is sole head of the church, that the temporal is subject to the spiritual power, and that, to be saved, every human creature must be subject to the Roman Pontiff.

un'a·mu'sive (ŭn'ă·mū'zĭv; -sĭv), adj. Not amusing. Rare.

un·an'ces'tried (ŭn·ăn'sĕs'trĭd; -sĭs·trĭd), adj. Also un·an'ces'tored (-tĕrd). Having no notable ancestry.

un·an'chor (ŭn·ăng'kĕr), v. t. & i. [1st un- + anchor.] To loosen from the anchor or anchorage. Rare.

un'a·neled' (ŭn'ă·nĕld'), adj. Not aneled; not having received extreme unction. Archaic.

un·an'i·mate (ŭn·ăn'ĭ·măt), adj. Unanimated.

u·nan'i·mate (ū·năn'ĭ·măt), adj. Unanimous. — u·nan'i·mate·ly, adv. Both Rare.

u·nan'i·mate (-măt), v. t. To make unanimous.

un·an'i·mat'ed (ŭn·ăn'ĭ·măt'ĕd; -Id; 119), adj. Inanimate; also, not enlivened; dull. — un·an'i·mat'ed·ly, adv. — un·an'i·mat'ed·ness, n.

u·nan'ime, adj. [F.] Unanimous. Obs.

u·nan'i·mism (ū·năn'ĭ·mĭz'm), n. [F. unanimisme.] The doctrine, sponsored by the French writer Jules Romains (b. 1885), that the unifying principles in human groups are more significant, as for representation in literature, than are personal individualities. — u·nan'i·mist, n. & adj. — u·nan'i·mis'tic (-mĭs'tĭk), adj. — u·nan'i·mis'ti·cal·ly (-tĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

‖u'na·ni'mi·ter (ū'nă·nĭm'ĭ·tĕr), adv. Law. Unanimously.

u'na·nim'i·ty (ū'nă·nĭm'ĭ·tĭ), n. [F. unanimité, fr. L. unanimitas.] 1. State or quality of being unanimous.
2. Continuousness without variation.

u·nan'i·mous (ū·năn'ĭ·mŭs), adj. [L. unanimus, unanimis, fr. unus one + animus mind. See ONE; ANIMATE. Cf. UNITY.] 1. Being of one mind; agreeing in opinion, design, or determination; consentient; as, the assembly was unanimous; the members of the council were unanimous in their approval of the report.
2. Formed with or indicating unanimity; having the agreement and consent of all; as, a unanimous opinion, vote.
— u·nan'i·mous·ly, adv. — u·nan'i·mous·ness, n.

unanimous consent. Parl. Practice. In matters of routine or of small importance, the silent consent of an assembly to a matter proposed by the chairman.

un·an'swer·a·ble (ŭn·ăn'sĕr·ă·b'l), adj. Not answerable; irrefutable; conclusive; decisive; also, not responsible. — un'an·swer·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·an'swer·a·ble·ness, n. — un·an'swer·a·bly, adv.

un·an'swered (-sĕrd), adj. 1. Not answered; not replied to; as, an unanswered letter or request.
2. Not refuted; as, an unanswered argument.
3. Not responded to in kind, as affection; unrequited.

un'ap·peal'a·ble (ŭn'ă·pēl'ă·b'l), adj. Not appealable; not subject to appeal. — un'ap·peal'a·ble·ness, n. — un'ap·peal'a·bly, adv.

un'ap·pre·hen'sive (ŭn'ăp·rē·hĕn'sĭv), adj. Not apprehensive or fearful; also, not ready at apprehending or understanding; not cognizant. — un'ap·pre·hen'sive·ly, adv — un'ap·pre·hen'sive·ness, n.

un'ap·pro'pri·ate (ŭn'ă·prō'prĭ·āt), v. t. [1st un- + appropriate, v. t.] To take from private possession; to restore to the possession or right of all, as a monopoly. Rare.

un'ap·pro'pri·ate (-Ĭt), adj. Rare. a Inappropriate; unsuitable. b Not appropriated. — un'ap·pro'pri·ate·ly, adv. — un'ap·pro'pri·ate·ness, n.

un'ap·pro'pri·at'ed (-āt'ĕd), adj. [un- not + appropriated.] 1. Not specially appropriate; of no special application.
2. Not appropriated; specif.: a Not granted to any one to the exclusion of others, as lands. b Not granted for, or applied to, any specific purpose, as moneys.

un'ap·proved' (ŭn'ă·prōōvd'), adj. 1. Not approved.
2. Obs. a Not proved. b Untried.

un·apt' (ŭn·ăpt'; 66), adj. 1. Unadapted; unfit. Obs.
2. Unsuitable; inappropriate; as, an unapt citation.
3. Not accustomed and not likely; not disposed.
I am a soldier and unapt to weep. Shak.
4. Inapt; slow; dull; backward.
— un·apt'ly, adv. — un·apt'ness, n.

un·apt', v. t. To render unapt. Obs.

un·ar'gued (ŭn·är'gūd), adj. 1. Not argued or debated.
2. Not argued against; undisputed.
3. Not censured; — a Latinism. Obs.

un·ark' (ŭn·ärk'), v. i. To disembark from the ark. Rare.

un·arm' (ŭn·ärm'), v. t. [1st un- + arm.] To disarm.

un·armed' (ŭn·ärmd'; 66), adj. [un- not + armed.]
1. Not armed or armored; having no arms or weapons.
2. Nat. Hist. Having no hard and sharp projections, as spines, prickles, spurs, claws, etc.
— un·arm'ed·ly (-ĕd·lĭ), adv. — un·arm'ed·ness, n.

---

un'ac·com'pa·na·ble, un'ac·com'pa·nied, un'ac·com'pa·ny·ing, adj., un'ac·com'plish·a·ble, un'ac·com'plished, adj., un'ac·com'plished·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un'ac·com'plish·ment, n. State of being unaccomplished. Obs.

un'ac·cord', n., un'ac·cord'a·ble, adj., un'ac·cord'ance, n., un'ac·cord'ant, adj., un'ac·cord'ed, un'ac·cord'ing, adj., un'ac·cord'ing·ly, adv., un'ac·cost'a·ble, adj. un'ac·cost'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un'ac·cou'nt'ed, adj., un'ac·cou'tered, un'ac·cou'tred, adj., un'ac·cred'it·at'ed, un'ac·cred'it·ed, adj., un'ac·crued', un'ac·cu'mu·la·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un'ac·cu'mu·late, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'ac·cu'mu·lat'ed, adj., un'ac·cu'mu·la·tive, n., un·ac'cu·ra·cy, n., un'ac·curs'ed, adj., un'ac·cus'a·ble, adj., un'ac·cus'a·bly, adv. See UN-, not.

un'ac·cuse', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'ac·cus'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'ac·cus'tom, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'a·chiev'a·ble, un'a·chieved', un'ach'ing (ŭn·äk'ĭng), adj., un'a·cid'u·lat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un'ac·know'l·edged, adj., un'ac·know'l·edged·ness, un'ac·know'l·edg·ment, n., un'ac·know'l·edg·ing, adj., un'a·cous'tic, adj. See UN-, not.

un'ac·quaint', adj. = UNACQUAINTED. Obs.

un'ac·quaint', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'ac·qui·es'cent, adj., un'ac·quir'a·ble (ŭn'ă·kwīr'ă·b'l), adj., un'ac·quir'a·ble·ness, n., un'ac·quir'a·bly, adv., un'ac·quired' (-kwīrd'), adj. See UN-, not.

un'ac·quit', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'ac·quit'ta·ble, un'ac·quit'ted, adj., un'ac·quit'ted·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un·act', v. i. See UN-. Rare.

un'act·a·bil'i·ty, n. un·act'a·ble, un·act'ed, un·act'ing, adj., un'ac·tin'ic, adj., un·ac'ti·vat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·ac'tor·like', adj., un·ac'tu·at'ed, adj., un'a·cute', adj., un'a·cute'ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un'a·dapt', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'a·dapt', un'a·dapt'ed, adj., un'a·dapt'ed·ly, adv., un'a·dapt'ed·ness, n., un'a·dap'tive, adj. See UN-, not.

un·add', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·add'a·ble, un·add'ed, adj., un'ad·dict'ed, adj., un'ad·dict'ed·ness, n., un'ad·di'tion·al, adj., un'ad·dressed', adj. See UN-, not.

un'ad·he'sive, adj., un'ad·ja'cent, adj., un'ad·ja'cent·ly, adv., un'ad·jo'ined, un'ad·joined', adj., un'ad·journed', adj., un'ad·journ'ment, n., un'ad·judged', adj. See UN-, not.

un'ad·just', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'ad·just'a·bly, adv., un'ad·just'ed, n., un'ad·just'ment, n., un'ad·min'is·tered, adj., un·ad'mi·ra·ble, adj., un'ad·mire', v. t., un'ad·mired', un'ad·mir'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'ad·mis'si·ble, adj., un'ad·mis'sion, n., un'ad·mis'sion, n., un'ad·mit'ta·ble, adj., un'ad·mit'ta·bly, adv., un'ad·mit'ted, adj., un'ad·mit'ted·ly, adv., un'ad·mit'ting, adj., un'ad·mon'ished, adj. See UN-, not.

un'a·dopt', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'a·dopt'a·ble, adj., un'a·dopt'a·bly, adv., un'a·dopt'ed, adj., un'a·dop'tion, n., un'a·dor'a·ble, adj., un'ad·o·ra'tion, n., un'a·dored', adj., un'a·dor'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'a·dorn', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'a·dorn'a·ble, un'a·dorned', adj., un'a·dorn'ed·ly, adv., un'a·dorn'ed·ness, n., un'a·dorn'ment, n., un'ad·ro'it, adj. dr. a, un'a·dul'ter·at·ed, adj., un'a·dul'ter·at'ed, adj., un'a·dul'ter·at'ed·ly, adv., un'a·dul'ter·at'ed·ness, n., un'a·dul'ter·ate·ly, adv., un'a·dul'ter·ous, adj., un'a·dul'ter·ous·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un'ad·van'ced, un'ad·van'ta·geous, adj., un'ad·ven'tured, un'ad·ven'tur·ing, un'ad·ven'tur·ous, adj., un'ad·ven'tur·ous·ly, adv., un'ad·verse', adj., un'ad·verse'ly, adv., un'ad·verse'ness, n., un'ad·ver'tised, adj., un'ad·ver'tise·ment, n. un'ad·ver·tis'ing, adj., un·ad'vocat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·a'er·at'ed (ŭn·ā'ĕr·āt'ĕd), adj., un'aes·thet'ic, un'aes·thet'i·cal, adj., un'a·fea'rd', un·afeared', adj., un·af'fa·ble, adj., un·af'fa·bly, adv., un'af·fect'ing, adj See UN-, not.

un'af·fec'tioned, adj., un'af·fi'anced, adj., un'af·fil'i·at·ed (-āt'ĕd), adj., un'af·fil'i·a'tion, n., un'af·fir·ma'tion, n., un'af·firmed' (-fûrmd'), adj., un'af·fixed', un'af·flict'ed, adj., un'af·flict'ed·ly, adv., un'af·flict'ing, adj., un'af·flic'tion, n. See UN-, not.

un'af·ford'a·ble, adj., un'af·ford'ed, adj., un'af·fran'chised, adj., un'af·fright'ed, adj., un'af·fright'ed·ly, adv., un'af·front'ed, adj., un'a·fire', adj., un'a·float', adj. See UN-, not.

un'a·flow' (ŭ'nă·flō'), adv. Var. of UNFLOW. [adj. See UN-, not.

un'a·fraid', adj., un·Af'ri·can, un·aged' (-ājd'; -ā'jĕd; -jĭd; 119), adj., un·ag'gra·vat'ed (-vāt'ĕd), adj., un·ag'gra·vat'ing, adj., un·ag'gre·gat'ed, adj., un'ag·gre·sion, n., un'ag·gres'sive, adj., un'ag·gres'sive·ly, adv., un'ag·gres'sive·ness, n., un'a·ghast', adj., un·ag'ile, adj., un'a·gil'i·ty, n., un·ag'ing (-ā'jĭng), adj., un·ag'ri·tat'ed (-tāt'ĕd), un·ag'ri·tat'ed·ly, adv., un·ag'ri·tat'ed·ness, n., un'ag·i·ta'tion, n. See UN-, not.

un'ag'o·nize, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·a·grar'i·an, adj., un'a·greed', un'a·gree'ing, adj., un'a·gree'ment, n., un'ag·ri·cul'tur·al, adj., un·aid'a·ble, un·aid'ed, adj., un·aid'ed·ly, adv., un·aid'ing, adj., un·ail'ing, adj., un·aimed', un·aim'ing, adj., un·aired', adj., un·aisled', adj. See UN-, not.

U'na·kho'ta·na' (ōō'nä·kō'tä·nä'), n. See KROTANA.

U'na·lach'ti·go (ōō'nä·läch'tĭ·gō), n. sing. & pl. See DELAWARE.

un·al'ar·ming, adj. See 1st UN-.

un'a·larm', n., un'a·larmed', un'a·larm'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

U'na·las'ka (ōō'nä·läs'kä). See ALEUT.

un·al'co·hol·ized, adj., un·al'der·man·ly, adj., un'a·lert', adj., un'a·lert'ly, adv., un'a·lert'ness, n., un'al·ge·bra'i·cal, adj., un·al'ien·at·ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·al'iened, adj. = UNALIENATED. Obs. [See ESKIMO.]

U'na·lig'mtut (ōō'nä·lĭg'mŭt), n.

un'a·lign'a·ble, un'a·ligned', adj., un'a·like', adj. & adv., un'al·i·men'ta·ry, adj., un'a·live', adj. See UN-, not.

un'al·lay'a·ble, adj., un'al·lay'a·bly, adv., un'al·layed', adj., un'al·leged', adj., un'al·le·gor'i·cal, adj., un'al·le'vi·a·bly, adv., un'al·le'vi·at·ed (-āt'ĕd), adj., un'al·le'vi·a'tion, n., un'al·li'a·ble, adj., un'al·lot'ment, n., un'al·lot'ted, adj. See UN-, not.

un'al·low', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'al·low'a·ble, un'al·lowed', adj., un'al·low'ed·ly, adv., un'al·low'ing, adj., un'al·lur'a·ble, un'al·lured', un'al·lur'ing, adj., un'al·lur'ing·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un'a·lone', adj., un'a·loud', adj., un'al·pha·bet'ed, un'al·pha·bet'ic, un'al·pha·bet'i·cal, adj. See UN-, not.

un'al·ter·a·ble, n., un'al·ter'ing, adj., un·al'ter·nat'ed (-nāt'ĕd), adj., un'a·mal'gam·a·ble, un'a·mal'ga·mat'ed, un'a·mal'ga·mat'ing, adj., un'a·massed', adj., un'a·mazed' (ŭn'ă·māzd'), adj., un'a·maz'ed·ly, adv., un'am·bi·gu'i·ty, n., un'am·big'u·ous, adj., un'am·big'u·ous·ly, adv., un'am·big'u·ous·ness, n. See UN-, not. [not.

un'am·bro'si·al, adj. See UN-, un·am'bush, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'a·mend', n. See 1st UN-.

un'a·mend'a·ble, un'a·mend'ed, adj., un'a·mend'ed·ly, adv., un'a·mend'ing, adj., un'a·mend'ment, n., un'a·merced' (ŭn'ă·mûrst'), adj. See UN-, not.

U·na'mi (ōō·nä'mē), n. See DELAWARE.

un'a·mi'ca·ble, adj., un·am'i·ca·bly, adv., un'a·miss', adj., un'a·mor'ti·za'tion, n., un'a·mor'tized, adj. See UN-, not.

un·am'ple, adj., un·am'pli·fi·a·ble, un·am'pli·fied, adj., un·am'ply, adv., un·am'pu·tat'ed, un'a·pa·ge'ic, un'a·pa·ge'ic·al (ŭn'ă·pă·jē'ĭ·kăl), adj., un'a·mus'a·bly, adv., un'a·mused' (-mūzd'), adj., un'a·muse'ment, n., un'a·mus'ing (-mūz'ĭng), adj., un'a·mus'ing·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un'–A·nac're·on'tic, adj., un'an·a·log'i·cal, un'a·nal'o·gous, adj., un'a·nal'o·gous·ly, adv., un'a·nal'o·gous·ness, n., un'a·n·a·lyt'ic, un'an·a·lyt'i·cal, adj., un'an·a·lyz'a·ble (-līz'ă·b'l), un·an'a·lyzed (-līzd), un·an'a·lyz'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'a·nat'o·miz'a·ble (-mĭz'ă·b'l), adj., un'a·nat'o·mized (-mīzd), adj. See UN-, not.

un·an'ch·ored, adj., un·an'chylosed, adj., un·an'cient, adj., un'an·gel'ic, un'an·gel'i·cal, adj., un·An'gli·can, adj., un·An'gli·cized, adj., un·an'gri·ly, adv., un·an'gry, adj., un·an'gular, adj., un·an'i·mal·ized, adj., un'an·nealed', adj. See UN-, not.

un'an·nex', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'an·nexed', adj., un'an·nex'ed·ly, adv., un'an·nex'ed·ness, n., un'an·ni'hi·la·ble, un'an·ni'hi·lat·ed, adj., un·an'no·tat'ed, adj., un'an·nounced', adj., un'an·noyed', un'an·noy'ing, adj., un'an·nul'la·ble, un'an·nulled', adj., un'a·noint'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·an'swer·ing, adj., un'an·tag'o·nis'tic, un'an·tag'o·niz'a·ble, un·an·tag'o·nized, un'an·tag'o·niz'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'an·tic'i·pat'ed, un'an·tic'i·pat'ing, adj., un'an·tic'i·pa'tion, n., un'an·tic'i·pa'tive, adj. See UN-, not.

un·an'ti·quat'ed, adj., un·an'ti·quat'ed·ness, n., un'an·tique', adj., un'an·tiq'ui·ty, n. See UN-, not.

un'an·ti·ty, n., un·anx'ious, adj., un·anx'ious·ly, adv., un·anx'ious·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un·a·part', adj., un'a·poc'ryphal, adj., un'a·pol'o·get'ic, un'a·pol'o·giz'ing, adj., un'a·pos'ta·tized, adj., un'ap·os·tol'ic, un'ap·os·tol'i·cal, adj., un'ap·os·tol'i·cal·ly, adv., un'a·pos'tro·phized, un'ap·palled', adj. See UN-, not.

un'ap·par'el, v. t. [1st un- + apparel.] To undress. Obs.

un'ap·par'eled, adj., un'ap·par'ent, adj., un'ap·par'ent·ly, adv., un'ap·pa·ri'tion·al, adj., un'ap·pealed', adj., un'ap·peal'ing, adj., un'ap·peas'a·ble, adj., un'ap·peas'a·ble·ness, n., un'ap·peas'a·bly, adv., un'ap·peased', adj., un'ap·peas'ed·ly, adv., un'ap·peas'ed·ness, n., un'ap·pen'daged, adj., un'ap·per·ceived', adj., un'ap·per·tain'ing, adj., un'ap·pe·tiz'ing, adj., un'ap·plaud'ed, un'ap·plaud'ing, un'ap·plau'sive, adj. See UN-, not.

un'ap·pli'a·ble, adj., un'ap·pli'a·ble·ness, n., un'ap·pli'a·bly, adv., un'ap·pli'anced, adj., un·ap'pli·ca·ble, adj., un·ap'pli·cable·ness, n., un·ap'pli·ca·bly, adv., un'ap·plied', un'ap·ply'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'ap·point', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'ap·point'a·ble, adj., un'ap·point'a·ble·ness, n., un'ap·point'ed, adj., un'ap·por'tioned, adj., un·ap'po·site, adj., un·ap'po·site·ly, adv., un'ap·praised', adj. See UN-, not.

un'ap·pre'ci·a·ble, adj., un'ap·pre'ci·a·ble·ness, n., un'ap·pre'ci·a·bly, adv., un'ap·pre'ci·at'ed, un'ap·pre'ci·at'ing, adj., un'ap·pre'ci·a'tion, n., un'ap·pre'ci·a'tive, adj., un'ap·pre'ci·a'tively, adv., un'ap·pre'ci·a'tive·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un'ap·pre·hend'a·ble, adj., un'ap·pre·hend'a·ble·ness, n., un'ap·pre·hend'a·bly, adv., un'ap·pre·hend'ed, un'ap·pre·hend'ing, un'ap·pre·hen'si·ble, adj., un'ap·pre·hen'si·ble·ness, n., un'ap·pre·hen'sion, n. See UN-, not.

un'ap·pren'ticed, adj., un'ap·prised' (ŭn'ă·prīzd'), adj., un'ap·pris'ed·ly, adv., un'ap·pris'ed·ness, n., un'ap·proach'a·bil'i·ty, n., un'ap·proach'a·ble adj., un'ap·proach'a·ble·ness, n., un'ap·proach'a·bly, adv. See UN-, not.

un'ap·prov'ing, adj., un'ap·prov'ing·ly, adv., un'ap·prox'i·mate, adj., un'ap·prox'i·mate·ly, adv., un'a·proned, adj., un'ap·ro·pos', adj. See UN-, not.

un·ap'ti·tude, n., un·ar'bi·trar'i·ness, n., un·ar'bi·trar'i·ness, n., un·ar'bi·trar'y, adj., un·ar'bitrat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·arch', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·arch'des'con, n. See 1st UN-.

un·arched', adj., un'ar·chi·tec'tur·al, adj., un·ar'du·ous, adj., un·ar'gu·a·ble, adj., un·ar'gu·able·ness, n., un·ar'gu·a·bly, adv., un·ar'gu·ing, adj., un'ar·gument'a·tive, adj., un'ar·gument'a·tive·ly, adv., un'a·ris'en (ŭn'ă·rĭz'n), adj., un'a·ris'ing (-rīz'ĭng), adj. See UN-, not.

un'a·ris'to·crat'ic, adj., un'a·ris'to·crat'i·cal·ly, adv., un'ar·ith·met'i·cal, adj., un'ar·ith·met'i·cal·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

unarmed tapeworm. See TAPEWORM.

un·ar′mored, un·ar′moured (ŭn·ärʹmĕrd; 66), adj. Not armored; specif.: Nav. Not protected against gunfire by metal armor plates.

un′ar·ray′ (ŭn′ə·rāʹ), v. t. To undress. Obs.

un·art′ed (ŭn·ärtʹĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Obs. a Ignorant or destitute of the arts. b Not artificial; plain.

un·art′ful (ŭn·ärtʹfo͝ol; -fĭl), adj. Lacking art or craft; artless; also, lacking skill. — un·art′ful·ly, adv. — un·art′ful·ness, n.

un′ar·tic′u·lat′ed (ŭn′är·tĭkʹū·lāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Not articulated; hence, unorganized; structureless.

un′ar·ti·fi′cial (ŭn′är·tĭ·fĭshʹəl), adj. Inartificial. — un′ar·ti·fi′cial·i·ty (-shĭ·ălʹĭ·tĭ), n. — un′ar·ti·fi′cial·ly, adv.

un′ar·tis′tic (-tĭsʹtĭk), adj. Also un′ar·tis′ti·cal (-tĭ·kəl). Not artistic; inartistic. — un′ar·tis′ti·cal·ly, adv.

u′na·ry (ūʹnə·rĭ), adj. [L. unus one + -ary.] Chem. Occurring as molecules of only one kind.

u·nas′i·nous (ū·năsʹĭ·nŭs), adj. [From L. unus one + asinus ass, after unanimous.] Alike in stupidity.

un′as·sent′ed (ŭn′ə·sĕnʹtĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Not assented; — said specif. of stocks or bonds the holders of which refuse to deposit them by way of assent to an agreement altering their status, as in a readjustment.

un′as·soiled′ (-soildʹ), adj. Not assoiled; unabsolved.

un·as′sue·tude (ŭn·äsʹwē·tūd), n. Unaccustomedness.

un′as·sum′ing (ŭn′ə·sūmʹĭng), adj. Not assuming; not bold or forward; not arrogant or presuming; modest; retiring. — un′as·sum′ing·ly, adv. — un′as·sum′ing·ness, n.
Syn. — Shy, diffident, unostentatious.
Ant. — Forward, presumptuous.

un′as·sured′ (ŭn′ə·sho͝ordʹ), adj. 1. Unsafe. Obs.
2. Not assured; not bold or confident.
3. Not insured against loss; as, unassured goods.
— un′as·sur′ed·ly (-sho͝orʹĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ), adv. — un′as·sur′ed·ness, n.

un′a·ton′a·ble (ŭn′ə·tōnʹə·b'l), adj. 1. Inexpiable.
2. Not to be brought into harmony; irreconcilable.

un′at·tached′ (ŭn′ə·tăchtʹ), adj. Not attached; as: a Not adhering. b Having no engagement; free. c Not belonging or assigned to anyone. d Noncollegiate. e Law. Not attached; not taken or arrested. f Mil. & Nav. Not assigned to any specific duty; awaiting orders.

un′at·taint′ed (-tānʹtĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Not attainted; hence, impartial. — un′at·taint′ed·ly, adv.

un′at·tire′ (ŭn′ə·tīrʹ), v. t. [1st un- + attire.] To undress.

u·nau′ (ū·nôʹ; o͞o·nouʹ), n. [F., of Tupian origin; cf. Oyampi unau, Omagua apey-ohne.] The two-toed sloth Choloepus hoffmanni. See 1st SLOTH, 4.

un·au′di·ble (ŭn·ôʹdĭ·b'l), adj. Inaudible. — un·au′di·ble·ness, n. — un·au′di·bly, adv.

un·au′di·enced (ŭn·ôʹdĭ·ənst; -ôdʹyənst), adj. Not given an audience.

un′aus·pi′cious (ŭn′ôs·pĭshʹŭs), adj. Inauspicious. — un′aus·pi′cious·ly, adv. — un′aus·pi′cious·ness, n.

un·au′thor·ize (ŭn·ôʹthĕr·īz), v. t. [1st un- + authorize.] To repudiate.

un·au′thor·ized (-īzd; 66), adj. Not authorized. — un·au′thor·iz′ed·ly (-īz′ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ), adv. — un·au′thor·iz′ed·ness, n.

unauthorized clerk. London Stock Exchange. An attendant to a member on the floor of the exchange, to check bargains, etc., having no power to transact business on behalf of the member.

un′au·tor′i·tied (ŭn′ô·tŏrʹĭ·tĭd), adj. Unauthorized. Obs.

un′a·vail′a·ble en′er·gy (-ə·vālʹə·b'l). Thermodyn. The difference between the heat energy supplied to a system and the available energy of the system. Cf. AVAILABLE ENERGY.

For a reversible cycle, the unavailable energy is $\frac{Q}{T_1}T_2$, in which Q is the quantity of heat taken from the source, T_1 the absolute temperature of the source, and T_2 the absolute temperature of the condenser. Cf. ENTROPY.

‖u′na vo′ce (ūʹnə vōʹsē). [L.] With one voice; unanimously.

un′a·void′a·ble (ŭn′ə·voidʹə·b'l), adj. 1. Not avoidable; incapable of being shunned or prevented; inevitable.
2. Not voidable; incapable of being made null or void.
Syn. — See INEVITABLE.
Ant. — Avoidable, escapable, unnecessary.
— un′a·void′a·ble·ness, n. — un′a·void′a·bly, adv.

unavoidable casualty or accident. An inevitable accident.

unavoidable hemorrhage. Obstetrics. Hemorrhage produced because the placenta is over the mouth of the uterus, so that the placenta must be detached before the child can be born.

un′a·void′ed (ŭn′ə·voidʹĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Not avoided.
2. Unavoidable; inevitable. Obs.

u′na vol′ta. See 1st VOLTA, 3.

un′a·ware′ (ŭn′ə·wärʹ; 79), adj. Not aware; ignorant; also, giving no heed; unwary. — un′a·ware′ness, n.

un′a·ware′, adv. Unawares; — now chiefly in poetry.

un′a·warɛd′ (-wärdʹ), adj. Not made aware. — un′a·war′ed·ly (-wärʹĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ), adv.

un′a·wares′ (-wärzʹ), adv. Without design or preparation; without premeditation; also, suddenly; unexpectedly. "Mercies lighting unawares." J. H. Newman.
— at unawares, or at unaware. Unexpectedly; by surprise.

un′a·wares′, adj. Unperceived; unknown; — with to.

un·backed′ (ŭn·băktʹ; 66), adj. 1. Never mounted by a rider; unbroken. "Unbacked colts." Shak.
2. Not supported or encouraged; unaided.
3. Not backed by bets.
4. Having no back.

un·bag′ (ŭn·băgʹ), v. t. [1st un- + bag.] To pour, or take, or let go, out of a bag or bags.

un·bain′ (o͞on·bānʹ), adj. Disobliging; also, inconvenient. Obs. exc. Dial.

un·balt′ed (ŭn·bôltʹĕd; -ĭd; 66; 119), adj. Not baited.

un·baized′ (ŭn·bāzdʹ; 66), adj. Not covered with baize.

un·baked′ (-bākt′; 66), adj. Not baked; hence, immature.

un·bal′ance (ŭn·bălʹəns), n. Want of balance; derangement. — v. t. To put out of balance.

un·bal′anced (-ənst), adj. [In senses 1 and 2, un- not + balanced; in sense 3, 1st un- + balance.] 1. Not balanced; specif., not in equipoise; having no counterpoise, or having insufficient counterpoise.
2. Com. Not adjusted or brought to an equality of debt and credit; as, an unbalanced account, books.
3. Being, or being thrown, out of equilibrium; hence, disordered or deranged in sense; as, an unbalanced mind.
Syn. — Uneven, one-sided; deranged.
Ant. — Balanced; sane.

un·bal′last (ŭn·bălʹəst), adj. Not ballasted. Obs.

un·bal′last, v. t. -LAST·ED; -LAST·ING. [1st un- + ballast.] To free from ballast; to discharge ballast from.

un·bal′last·ed, adj. Not furnished with ballast; not steadied by ballast; unsteady; as, unballasted vessels, wits.

un·bank′ (ŭn·băngkʹ), v. t. [1st un- + bank.] 1. To remove a bank from, as to permit a stream to overflow.
2. To remove banked ashes from (a fire).

un·banked′ (ŭn·băngktʹ; 66), adj. Not deposited in a bank.

un′bap·tized′ (ŭn′băp·tīzdʹ), adj. Not baptized; hence, heathenish; profane.

un·bar′ (ŭn·bärʹ), v. t. [1st un- + bar.] To remove a bar or bars from; to unbolt; to open. — un·bar′, v. i.

un·barbed′ (ŭn·bärbdʹ; 66), adj. Not barbed; as: a Obs. Unsheared; not shorn. b Unarmed. c Not having a barb.

un·bare′ (ŭn·bârʹ), v. t. [1st un- + bare, v.] To strip; uncover.

un·bark′ (ŭn·bärkʹ), v. t. [1st un- + bark rind.] To deprive of the bark; to decorticate; to strip; as, to unbark a tree.

un·bark′, v. t. & i. [1st un- + bark the vessel.] To disembark. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

un·bar′rel (ŭn·bärʹəl), v. t. [1st un- + barrel.] To remove or release from a barrel or barrels.

un·bat′ed (ŭn·bātʹĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Not bated; unabated.
2. Not blunted, as a sword without a button. Archaic.

un·be′ (ŭn·bēʹ), v. t. [1st un- + be.] To make not to be.
— v. i. To cease to be; to lack being.

un·bear′ (ŭn·bârʹ), v. t. [1st un- + bear to support.] To remove or loose the bearing rein of (a horse).

un·bear′a·ble (-ə·b'l), adj. Not bearable; unendurable.
— un·bear′a·ble·ness, n. — un·bear′a·bly, adv.

un·beard′ed (ŭn·bērʹdĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. [Cf. AS. ungebyrd.] Having no beard.

un·beast′ (ŭn·bēstʹ), v. t. [1st un- + beast.] To deliver from the form or nature of a beast. Rare.

un·beast′ (ŭn·bēstʹ), n. [un-, intensive + beast; cf. D. ondier, G. untier.] Wild beast; monster. Obs.

un·bea′vered (ŭn·bē′vĕrd), adj. Without a beaver or hat; with the helmet beaver open.

un′be·come′ (ŭn′bē·kŭmʹ), v. i. To pass from existence into nonexistence. — v. t. Not to become; to misbecome.

un′be·com′ing (-kŭmʹĭng), adj. [un- not + becoming.] Not becoming; unsuitable; indecorous; improper.
Syn. and Ant. — See IMPROPER.
— un′be·com′ing·ly, adv. — un′be·com′ing·ness, n.

un·bed′ (ŭn·bĕdʹ), v. t. [1st un- + bed.] To rouse from bed; disembed.

un·bed′ded (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Not bedded; as: a Not brought to the marriage bed, as a bride. b Not being in beds or layers.

un′be·fit′ (ŭn′bē·fĭtʹ), v. t. & i. To be unfitting (for).

un′be·fit′ting (-ĭng), adj. Not befitting; unsuitable. — un′be·fit′ting·ly, adv. — un′be·fit′ting·ness, n.

un′be·fool′ (ŭn′bē·fo͞olʹ), v. t. [1st un- + befool.] To deliver from fatuity; to awaken the mind of; undeceive. Rare.

un′be·friend′ (-frĕndʹ), v. t. To fail to befriend. Rare.

un′be·get′ (-gĕtʹ), v. t. To undo the begetting of.

un′be·gilt′ (-gĭltʹ), adj. Not gilded; hence, not rewarded with gold.

un′be·gin′ning (-gĭnʹĭng), adj. Having no beginning. — un′be·gin′ning·ly, adv. — un′be·gin′ning·ness, n.

un′be·got′ (ŭn′bē·gŏtʹ), adj. Unbegotten. Poetic.

un′be·got′ten (-gŏtʹn), adj. Not begotten or generated; also, having never been generated; self-existent; eternal. — un′be·got′ten·ly, adv. — un′be·got′ten·ness, n.

un′be·guile′ (ŭn′bē·gīlʹ), v. t. [1st un- + beguile.] To undeceive. Rare.

un′be·gun′ (-gŭnʹ), adj. Not yet begun; without beginning.

un′be·hov′ing (-hōvʹĭng; hŏovʹĭng), n. State or quality of not deserving.

un·be′ing (ŭn·bēʹĭng), n. Rare. Nonexistence. — un·be′ing, adj.

un′be·jug′gled (ŭn′bē·jŭgʹld), adj. Not deceived by trickery.

un′be·known′ (-nōnʹ), adj. Unknown; also, apart from (one's) knowledge; — often with to.

un′be·knownst′ (-nōnstʹ), adj. Unbeknown. Dial.

un′be·lief′ (-lēfʹ), n. [un- not + belief; cf. AS. ungelēafa.] Withholding of belief; incredulity or skepticism, esp. in matters of religious faith.
Syn. — UNBELIEF, DISBELIEF, INCREDULITY. UNBELIEF may suggest a mere withholding of belief; DISBELIEF implies a positive rejection of what is stated or asserted; as, an attitude of general unbelief, with reference to a given rumor, may be changed by evidence to one of absolute disbelief. In Biblical usage, however, unbelief has the stronger sense of disbelief in divine revelation, as, "He upbraided them with their unbelief" (Mark xvi. 14); "They could not enter in because of unbelief" (Heb. iii. 19). INCREDULITY implies indisposition to believe, or (often) a skeptical frame of mind; as, "the stare of petulant incredulity" (Johnson).
Ant. — Faith, credence, credit. See BELIEF.

un′be·lief′ful (-lēfʹfo͝ol), adj. Unbelieving. — un′be·lief′ful·ness, n.

un′be·liev′a·ble (-lēvʹə·b'l), adj. Not believable; incredible.
— un′be·liev′a·bil′i·ty (-bĭlʹĭ·tĭ), n. — un′be·liev′a·ble·ness, n. — un′be·liev′a·bly, adv.

un′be·lieve′ (-lēvʹ), v. t. & i. To disbelieve.

un′be·lieve′, v. t. To reject from belief.

un′be·lieved′ (-lēvdʹ), adj. 1. Not believed.
2. Obs. a Unbelieving. b Unbelievable.

un′be·liev′er (-lēvʹĕr), n. 1. One who does not believe; an incredulous person; a doubter; a skeptic.
2. A disbeliever; esp., one who does not believe in some given divine revelation; an infidel.
3. One who has not exercised saving faith in Christ.
Syn. — See INFIDEL. Ant. — Believer.

un′be·liev′ing (-ĭng), adj. 1. Not believing; incredulous; doubting; distrusting; skeptical.
2. Disbelieving, esp. some given divine revelation.
— un′be·liev′ing·ly, adv. — un′be·liev′ing·ness, n.

un·belt′ (ŭn·bĕltʹ), v. t. [1st un- + belt.] To ungird; also, to remove, by loosing the belt. — un·belt′, v. i.

un·bend′ (ŭn·bĕndʹ), v.; past tense & past part. UN·BENT′ (-bĕntʹ); pres. part. & verbal n. UN·BEND′ING. [1st un- + bend.] Transitive: 1. To free from flexure; to make, or allow to become, straight; to loosen; as, to unbend a bow.
2. To remit from a strain or from exertion; to set at ease for a time; to relax; as, to unbend the mind from study.
3. Obs. a To slacken. b To uncock.
4. Naut. a To unfasten, as sails, from the spars or stays. b To cast loose or untie, as a rope.
—, Intransitive: 1. To cease to be bent; to become straight or relaxed, as a bow.
2. To relax in severity, stiffness, austerity, or the like; hence, to give oneself to affability, mirth, or amusement; as, to unbend in social diversion.

un·bend′ed (-bĕn′dĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. a Unbent. b Relaxed.

un·bend′er (-dĕr), n. One that unbends. Obs.

---

un′ar·mo′ri·al, adj., un′a·ro′ma·tized, adj., un′a·rous′a·ble, un′a·roused′, un′a·rous′ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un′ar·raign′a·ble (ŭn′ə·rān′ə·b'l), adj., un′ar·raigned′, adj., un′ar·ranged′ (-rānjdʹ), adj., un′ar·rayed′, adj., un′ar·rest′a·ble, un′ar·rest′ed, un′ar·rest′ing, adj., un′ar·riv′al (-rīvʹəl), n., un′ar·rived′, un′ar·riv′ing, adj., un·ar′ro·gance, n., un·ar′ro·gant, adj., un·ar′ro·gat′ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un·ar′ti·cled, adj. See UN-, not.
un′ar·tic′u·late, adj. = INARTICULATE. [not.|
un′ar·tic′u·lat′ed, adj. See UN-,| un′ar·tist′·like′, adj. & adv. See UN-, not.
un′as·cend′a·ble, adj., un′as·cend′a·ble·ness, n., un′as·cend′ed, adj., un′as·cer·tain′a·ble, adj., un′as·cer·tain′a·bleness, n., un′as·cer·tain′a·bly, adv., un′as·cer·tained′, adj. & adv. See UN-, not.
un′as·cribed′ (ŭn′ə·skrībdʹ), adj. [See ASCRIBE.] Not described. Obs.
un′a·shamed′, adj., un′a·shamʹed·ly, adv., un′a·shamʹed·ness, n., un′-ə·si·at′ic, adj. See UN-, not.
un·ask′a·ble, un·asked′, un·asking, adj. See UN-, not.
un′a·sleep′, adj., un′as·persed′, adj., un·as′phalt·ed, adj., un·as′pi·rat′ed, adj., un′as·pir′ing·ness, n., un′as·sail′a·ble, adj., un′as·sail′a·ble·ness, n., un′as·sail′a·bly, adv., un′as·sailed′, un′as·sail′ing, adj., un′as·sas′si·nat′ed, adj., un′as·sault′a·ble, un′as·sault′ed, adj., un′as·sayed′, un′as·say′ing, adj., un′as·sem′bled, adj., un′as·sent′ing, adj., un′as·sert′ed, adj., un′as·ser′tive, adj., un′as·ser′tive·ness, n., un′as·sess′a·ble, adj., un′as·sess′a·ble·ness, n., un′as·sessed′, adj., un′as·sib′i·lat′ed, adj., un′as·sid′u·ous, adj., un′as·sign′a·ble, adj., un′as·sign′a·bly, adv., un′as·signed′, adj., un′as·sim′i·la·ble, adj., un′as·sim′i·lat′ed, un′as·sim′i·lat′ing, un′as·sim′i·la′tive, adj., un′as·sist′ed, un′as·sist′ing, adj., un′as·so′ci·a·ble, adj., un′as·so′ci·a·bly, adv., un′as·so′ci·at′ed, un′as·so′ci·a′tive, adj., un′as·so′ci·a′tive·ness, n. See UN-, not.
un′as·sort′ed, adj., un′as·suage′a·ble, un′as·suaged′, un′as·suag′ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un′as·sum′a·ble, un′as·sumed′, adj., un′as·sur′ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un·as′ter·isk, v. t., un′as·ton′ish, v. t. See 1st UN-.
un′as·ton′ished, adj., un′as·ton′ish·ment, n., un′as·tray′, adj., un′-A·the′ni·an, adj., un′a·thirst′, adj., un′ath·let′ic, adj., un′ath·let′i·cal·ly, adv., un′at·mos·pheric, adj. See UN-, not.
un′a·toned′, un′a·ton′ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un′at·tach′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un′at·tach′a·ble, adj., un′at·tach′a·ble, adj., un′at·tach′a·ble·ness, n., un′at·tack′a·ble, adv., un′at·tacked′, adj., un′at·tain′a·bil′i·ty, n., un′at·tain′a·ble, adj., un′at·tain′a·ble·ness, n., un′at·tain′a·bly, adv., un′-at·tained′, un′at·tain′ing, adj., un′at·tain′ment, n. See UN-, not.
un′at·tainʹ, adj. = UNATTAINTED.
un′at·tem′pered, adj., un′at·tempt′a·ble, un′at·tempt′ed, un′at·tempt′ing, adj., un′at·tend′ance, n., un′at·tend′ant, un′at·tend′ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un′at·ten′tive, adj., un′at·ten′u·at′ed, adj., un′at·test′ed, adj., un′at·test′ed·ness, n., un·At′tic, adj. See UN-, not.
un′at·tired′, un′at·tirʹd), adj., un′at·tract′a·ble, adj., un′at·tract′a·ble·ness, n., un′at·tract′ed, un′at·tract′ing, un′-at·trac′tive, adj., un′at·trac′tive·ness, n., un′at·trib′ut·a·ble, un′at·trib′ut·ed, adj., un′at·tuned′, adj., un·auc′tioned, adj., un·au′dit·ed, adj., un′-Au·ge′an, adj. See UN-, not.
un′aug·ment′a·ble, un′aug·ment′ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un′aus·tere′, adj., un′-Aus·tral′ian, adj., un′au·then′ti·ca, un′au·then′ti·cal, adj., un′au·then′ti·cal·ly, adv., un′au·then′ti·cat′ed, adj., un′au·then·tic′i·ty, n., un·au′thor·ish, adj., un′au·thor′i·ta′tive, adj., un′-au·thor′i·ta′tive·ly, adv., un′au·thor′i·ta′tive·ness, n., un′au·thor′i·tied, adj., un′au·thor′i·tive·ness, n., un·au′thor·iz′a·ble (-īz′ə·b'l), adj. See UN-, not.
un′au·to·mat′ic, adj., un′au·tum′nal, adj. See UN-, not.
un′a·vail′a·bil′i·ty, n., un′a·vail′a·ble, adj., un′a·vail′a·ble·ness, n., un′a·vail′a·bly, adv., un′a·valeʹd, adj., un′a·vail′ful, un′a·vail′ing, adj., un′a·vail′ing·ly, adv. See UN-, not.
un′a·venge′a·ble, adj., un′a·venged′, un′a·venʹging, adj., un·av′e·nued, adj., un·av′eraged, adj., un′a·verred′, adj., un′a·ver′red, adj., un′a·vert′i·ble, adj., un′a·vert′i·ble·ness, n., un′a·vert′i·bly, adv., un·a′vi·an, adj. See UN-, not.
un′a·vised′, † UNADVISED.
un′a·void′al, n., un′a·void′ing, adj., un′a·vouch′a·ble, adj., un′a·vouch′a·ble·ness, n., un′a·vouch′a·bly, adv., un′a·vouched′ (ŭn′ə·vouchtʹ), adj., un′a·vow′a·ble, adj., un′a·vow′a·ble·ness, n., un′a·vow′a·bly, adv., un′a·vowed′, adj., un′a·vow′ed·ly, adv., un′a·wak′a·ble, adj., un′a·wak′a·ble·ness, n., un′a·wake′, un′a·waked′, adj., un′a·wak′ened (ŭn′ə·wāk′ənd), adj., un′a·wak′ened·ness, n., un′a·wak′en·ing, un′a·wak′ing, adj., un′a·ward′a·ble, adj., un′a·ward′a·ble·ness, n., un′a·ward′a·bly, adv., un′a·ward′ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un′a·way′, adj., un·awed′, adj., un·aw′ful, adj., un·aw′ful·ly, adv., un·awk′ward, adj., unawned′, adj., un·ax′led (ŭn·ăkʹs'ld), adj., un·az′o·tized, adj. See UN-, not. [not.|
un′-Bab·y·lo′ni·an, adj. See UN-,| un·back′board′ed, adj., unback′ward, adj., un·badged′, adj., un·baf′fled, un·baf′fling, adj. See UN-, not.
un·bagged′ (ŭn·băgdʹ; 66), part. adj. of UNBAG. un·bagged′, adj., un·bail′a·ble, adj., un·bail′a·ble·ness, n., unbailed′, adj. See UN-, not.
un·bait′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bal′ance·a·ble, adj., un·bal′ance·a·bly, adv. See UN-, not.
unbalanced gyroscope. See GYROSCOPE. un·bal′ance·ment, n., un·bal′anc·ing, adj., un·bal′co·ned, adj. See UN-, not.
un·baleʹ, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·balkedʹ, adj. See UN-, not.
un·bal′lasted, adj. = UNBALLASTED. Obs.
un·bal′lot·ed, adj., un·band′age, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·band′aged, adj., un·band′ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un·band′ed [1st un- + band + -ed], adj. Unfastened. Obs.
un·bane′. Var. of UNBAIN.
un·ban′ished, adj., un·bank′a·ble, adj., un·bank′a·ble·ness, n., un·bank′a·bly, adv., un·bank′rupt, adj., un·ban′nered, adj. See UN-, not.
un′bap·tize′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·barbʹ, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bar′ba·rize, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bar′ba·rous, adj., un·bar′bered, adj., un·bar′gained, adj. See UN-, not.
un·bark′ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un·bar′o·net, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bar′ra·ble, un·barred′, adj., un·bar′reled, adj., un·bar′ren, adj., un·bar′ren·ness, n. See UN-, not.
un′bar·ri·cadeʹ, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bar′ri·cad′ed, adj., un′bar·ri·ca′doed, adj., un·base′, adj., un·based′, adj., un·bas′ed·ness, n. See UN-, not.
un·bashed′, adj. Unabashed. Obs.
un·bash′ful, adj., un·bash′fully, adv., un·bash′ful·ness, n. See UN-, not.
un·bas′ket, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bas′tard·ized, adj. See UN-, not.
un·baste′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bat′ed (ŭn·bāsʹtĕd), adj., un′bas·tilled′ (ŭn′băs·tĭldʹ), adj., un′bas·ti·na′doed, adj., unbathed′ (ŭn·bāthdʹ), adj., unbat′ing (-bātʹĭng), un·bat′ted, adj. See UN-, not.
un·bat′ten, v. t., un·bay′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bat′ter·a·ble, un·bat′tered, adj., un·bat′tling, adj. See UN-, not.
un·bay′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·beachedʹ, adj., un·bea′coned, adj., un·beadʹed, adj. See UN-, not.
un·beardʹ, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·beard′ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un·beat′a·ble, adj., un·beat′able·ness, n., un·beat′a·bly, adv., un·beat′en, adj., un·beated′ (ŭn·bōdʹ), adj., un·beat′te·ous, adj., un·beau′te·ous·ly, adv., unbeau′te·ous·ness, n., un·beau′ti·fied, adj., un·beau′ti·ful, adj., un·beau′ti·ful·ly, adv., unbeau′ti·ful·ness, n. See UN-, not.
un·beau′ti·fy, v. t. See 1st UN-. un′be·clogged′, adj., un′be·cloud′ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un′be·dab′bled, adj., un′bedag′gled, adj., un′be·dashed′, adj., un′be·daubed′, adj., un′bedecked′ (ŭn′bē·dĕkt′), adj., un′-be·deed′ (-dēdʹ), adj., un′be·dimmed′, adj., un′be·dinned′, adj., un′be·diz′zened, adj., un′-be·drag′gled, adj., un′be·friended′, adj., un′be·fringed′ (ŭn′bē·frĭnjdʹ), adj. See UN-, not.
un·beg′gar, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·begotʹ, adj., un′be·girt′, adj., un′be·greased′ (ŭn′bē·grēstʹ; -grēzd′), adj., un′be·grimed′ (-grīmd′), adj., un′be·grudged′ (-grŭjd′), adj., un′be·gauled′ (-gôld′), adj., un′be·guile′ful, adj., un′be·having (-hāv′ĭng), adj., un′be·head′ed, adj., un′be·held′, adj., un′be·hold′a·ble, adj., un′be·hold′en, adj., un′be·hold′en·ness, n., un′be·hold′ing, adj., un′be·hove′ful, adj., un′be·lied′ (ŭn′bē·līdʹ), adj. See UN-, not.
un·bell′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bel′li·cose, adj., un′bel·ligʹer·ent, adj., un′be·long′ing, adj., un′be·loved′ (ŭn′bē·lŭvdʹ), adj., un′be·moaned′, adj., un′be·mourned′, adj. See UN-, not.
un·bench′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·bend′a·ble, adj. See 1st UN-. un·bend′a·ble·ness, n., un·bend′a·bly, adv.

---

un·bend'ing, adj. That unbends; given to relaxation.

un·bend'ing (66), adj. [un- not + bending.] Not bending; unyielding; specif., unyielding in will; inflexible; resolute. — un·bend'ing·ly, adv. — un·bend'ing·ness, n.
Syn. — Rigid; stern, inexorable.
Ant. — Yielding. See FLEXIBLE.

un'be·nev'o·lent (ŭn'bĕ·nĕv'ō·lĕnt), adj. Lacking benevolence. — un'be·nev'o·lence (-lĕns), n. — -lent·ly, adv.

un·bent' (ŭn·bĕnt'; 66), adj. Not bent; unbowed; unwrinkled; unsubdued.

un'be·reft' (ŭn'bĕ·rĕft'), adj. Also un'be·reav'en (-rĕv'ĕn). Not bereft.

un'be·ru'fen (ōōn'bĕ·rōō'fĕn), interj. [G.] An exclamation equivalent to Heaven forfend.

un'be·seem' (ŭn'bĕ·sēm'), v. t. [un- not + beseem.] To be unbecoming or not befitting to; to misbecome.

un'be·seem'ing, adj. Not beseeming; not befitting. — un'be·seem'ing·ly, adv. — un'be·seem'ing·ness, n.

un'be·think' (ŭn'bĕ·thĭngk'), v. i. To forget; — used reflexively. Dial. Eng.

un'be·think' (ŭn'bĕ·thĭngk'). Dial. Eng. var. of umbethink.

un'be·thought' (ŭn'bĕ·thôt'), adj. Chiefly Dial. a Unpremeditated. b Forgotten. c Unthought of.

un'be·tide' (-tīd'), v. i. To fail to betide or happen.

un'be·willed' (-wĭld'), adj. Not calling the will into play.

un'be·witch' (-wĭch'), v. t. [1st un- + bewitch.] To disenchant.

un'bi'as (ŭn·bī'ăs), v. t.; -BI'ASED (-ăst) or -BI'ASSED; -BI'AS·ING or -BI'AS·SING. [1st un- + bias.] To free from bias.

un·bi'as·a·ble, un·bi'as·sa·ble (-ā·b'l), adj. That cannot be made biased.

un·bi'ased, un·bi'assed (-ăst), adj. [un- not + biased.] Free from bias; esp., unprejudiced; impartial. — un·bi'ased·ly, un·bi'assed·ly, adv. — un·bi'ased·ness, un·bi'assed·ness, n.
Syn. — See FAIR. Ant. — Prejudiced, biased.

unbiased error. An accidental error. See ERROR, n., 9.

un·bid' (ŭn·bĭd'), adj. Unbidden.

un·bid', v. t. & i. See 1st UN-.

un·bid'a·ble, un·bid'ā·b'l), adj. Unbearable.

un·bid'da·ble (ŭn·bĭd'ā·b'l), adj. Intractable. Scot. & N. of Eng.

un·bid'den (ŭn·bĭd''n; 66), adj. [Cf. AS. unbeden unasked.] 1. Not bidden; not commanded.
2. Uninvited; as, unbidden guests.
3. Without having been prayed for. Spenser.

un·bigged' (ŭn·bĭgd'), adj. [ON. ūbygthr uninhabited. See UN- not.] Unbuilt. Chiefly Scot.

un·bind' (ŭn·bīnd'), v.; UN·BOUND' (-bound'); UN·BIND'ING. [AS. unbindan. See 1st UN-; BIND.] Transitive: 1. To remove a band from; to free from shackles or fastenings; to untie; unfasten; loose; as, unbind your fillets; to unbind a load; figuratively, to undo; dissolve, as vows.
2. Obs. a To absolve. b To deliver. c To release. d To detach.
——, Intransitive: To become unbound or loosened.

un·bird'ly (ŭn·bûrd'lĭ), adj. Unlike or unworthy of a bird.

un·bish'op (ŭn·bĭsh'ŭp), v. t. [1st un- + bishop.] To deprive of a bishop or of status as bishop.

un·bitt' (ŭn·bĭt'), v. t.; -BITT'ED; -BITT'ING. [1st un- + bitt.] To remove the turns of (a rope or cable) from the bitts.

un·bit'ted (-bĭt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Not bitted or bridled; uncontrolled.

un·blam'a·ble (ŭn·blām'ā·b'l), adj. Not blamable. — un·blam'a·ble·ness, n. — un·blam'a·bly, adv.

un·blem'ished (-blĕm'ĭsht), adj. Not blemished; pure; spotless. — un·blem'ished·ness, n.

un·blenched' (-blĕncht'; 105), adj. Not disconcerted; undaunted; also, unstained.

un·bless' (-blĕs'), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To divest of blessing.

un·blessed' (ŭn·blĕst'; 66), adj. [un- not + blessed.] Not blessed; as: a Unconsecrated. b Unholy; evil; accursed. c Unfortunate; wretched. d Excluded from, or having received no, blessing, esp. religious blessing. — un·bless'ed·ness (-blĕs'ĕd·nĕs; -ĭd·nĭs; 119), n.

un·blest' (-blĕst'; 66), adj. Unblessed.

un·bliss' (-blĭs'), n. Want of bliss; unhappiness.

un·blithe' (ŭn·blīth'), adj. Sad; joyless. — un·blithe'ly, adv.

un·block' (-blŏk'), v. t. & i. To free something from being blocked; specif., in playing cards, to get rid of (high cards) in order to avoid being put or left in the lead.

un·blocked' (-blŏkt'; 66), adj. Not mounted on a block, or base.

un·blood'ed (-blŭd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Not blooded; specif., not thoroughbred.

un·blood'y (ŭn·blŭd'ĭ), adj. Not bloody; not bloodthirsty. — un·blood'i·ly (-ĭ·lĭ), adv. — un·blood'i·ness, n.

unbloody sacrifice. a A sacrifice in which no victim is slain. b R.C.Ch. The Mass.

un·bloom' (ŭn·blōōm'), v. i. To become without bloom.

un·blown' (-blōn'; 66), adj. Not blown; as: a Not inflated. b Not sounded. c Not yet in blossom.

un·blush'ing (-blŭsh'ĭng), adj. Not blushing; shameless. — un·blush'ing·ly, adv. — un·blush'ing·ness, n.

un·boat' (-bōt'), v. t. & i. To disembark.

un·bod'ied (ŭn·bŏd'ĭd; 66), adj. Having no body, as: a Incorporeal. b Disembodied. c Without form.

un·bod'i·ly (-bŏd'ĭ·lĭ), adj. Incorporeal. — un·bod'i·li·ness (-ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

un·bod'kined (ŭn·bŏd'kĭnd), adj. Not fastened by a bodkin.

un·bod'y (ŭn·bŏd'ĭ), v. t. & i. [1st un- + body.] To disembody or become disembodied.

un·bold' (-bōld'), adj. [AS. unbeald.] Timid; cowardly. — un·bold'ly, adv. — un·bold'ness, n.

un·bolt' (ŭn·bōlt'), v. t. & i.; -BOLT'ED; -BOLT'ING. [1st un- + bolt.] To withdraw a bolt (from); to unfasten; to unbar; to open; explain.

un·bolt'ed (-bōl'tĕd; -tĭd; 66; 119), adj. Not fastened by bolts.

un·bolt'ed, adj. Not bolted or sifted; hence, coarse; gross.

un·bone' (ŭn·bōn'), v. t. [1st un- + bone.] 1. To bone.
2. To twist about, as if boneless. Rare. Milton.

un·boned' (-bōnd'; 66), adj. [From UNBONE.] Not boned; boneless.

un·bon'net (ŭn·bŏn'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), v. t. & i. [See 1st UN-.] To take a bonnet from; to take off one's bonnet; to uncover.

un·bon'net·ed, adj. Having no bonnet (or cap, etc.) on; uncovered; bareheaded.

un·bon'ny (ŭn·bŏn'ĭ), adj. Ugly; unhealthy. Scot.

un·booked' (ŭn·bŏŏkt'; 66), adj. 1. Not written in a book; unrecorded. "Unbooked English life." Masson.
2. Not bookish; also, without books; illiterate.

un·book'learned' (ŭn·bŏŏk'lûrnd'; -lûr'nĕd; -nĭd), adj. Illiterate.

un·boot' (-bōōt'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + boot.] To take off the boots (from).

un·born' (ŭn·bôrn'; 66), adj. 1. Not born; not yet brought into life; still to appear; future; as, unborn generations.
Some unborn sorrow, ripe in fortune's womb. Shak.
2. Existing without birth.

un·bos'om (ŭn·bŏŏz'ŭm; cf. BOSOM); v. t.; UN·BOS'OMED (-ŭmd); UN·BOS'OM·ING. [1st un- + bosom.] To disclose, as thoughts or secrets; to confess; — often reflexively. — v. i. To make a disclosure. — un·bos'om·er (-ĕr), n.

un·bot'tomed (ŭn·bŏt'ŭmd; 66), adj. Having no bottom; as: a Bottomless. b Unfounded. c Unfathomable.

un·bought' (-bôt'; 66), adj. [AS. unboht.] Not bought.

un·bound' (-bound'; 66), adj. Not bound; as: a Unfastened. b Unconfined; also, excess. c Not apprenticed. d Not having the leaves fastened or sewn together; — used of books, illustrations, etc.

un·bound' (-bound'), v. t. To divest of bounds.

un·bound', adj. Unbounded. Obs.

un·bound', past tense & past part. of UNBIND.

un·bound'ed, adj. Having no bound or limit; as, unbounded space; hence, unchecked; uncontrolled; unrestrained. — un·bound'ed·ly, adv. — un·bound'ed·ness, n.

un·bound'less, adj. Boundless. Rare.

un·bow' (ŭn·bō'), v. t. [1st un- + bow.] To unbend. Rare.

un·bow'a·ble (-bō'ā·b'l), adj. Not to be bowed or bent.

un·bowed' (ŭn·boud'; 66), adj. [un- not + bowed.] Not bent or arched; not bowed down; hence, unsubdued.

un·bow'el (ŭn·bou'ĕl), v. t. [1st un- + bowel.] To disembowel; hence, to empty; open up; disclose; display.

un·bow'eled, un·bow'elled (-ĕld), adj. Having no bowels; hence, pitiless.

un·bow'ered (-bou'ĕrd), adj. Not shaded. Rare.

un·bow'some (ŭn·bōō'sŭm), adj. [See UN- not; BUXOM.] Unbending; inflexible. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

un·boy' (ŭn·boi'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + boy.] To divest of or outgrow boyhood.

un·brace' (ŭn·brās'), v. [See 1st UN-.] Transitive: 1. To free from the braces of clothing or armor; to undo; hence, to relax; loosen; as, to unbrace a drum, the nerves; also, to enfeeble; weaken.
2. To free from concealment; to set forth; reveal.
3. To carve; disjoint. Obs.
——, Intransitive: To unbrace one, esp. oneself.

un·braid' (-brād'), v. t. [1st un- + braid.] To separate the strands of; to undo, as a braid; to unravel.

un·brained' (ŭn·brānd'), adj. [See UN- not.] Not having, or deprived of, brains; also, not having the brains dashed out.

un·breast' (-brĕst'), v. t. To unbosom.

un·breath' (-brĕth'), v. t. To give up breath; to die.

un·breathed' (ŭn·brēĕthd'; 66), adj. Not breathed; as: a Obs. Not exercised; unpracticed. b Unrespired. c Unuttered.

un·bred' (ŭn·brĕd'; 66), adj. Not bred; as: a Obs. Unborn; unbegotten. b Rare. Not taught or trained; — with to. c Not well-bred; ill-bred.

un·breech' (ŭn·brēch'; cf. BREECH), v. t. [1st un- + breech.]
1. To remove the breeches of; to divest or strip of breeches.
2. To free the breech of, as a cannon, from fastenings.

un·brent' (-brĕnt'), adj. Unburnt.

un·brewed' (-brōōd'), adj. Not brewed; unmixed; genuine.

un·brick' (-brĭk'), v. t. To clear by removal of bricks.

un·bri'dle (ŭn·brī'd'l), v. t. [1st un- + bridle.] To free or loose from the bridle; to set loose. — v. i. To halt.

un·bri'dled (-d'ld; 66), adj. [un- not + bridled.] a Not confined by the bridle; hence, unrestrained; licentious; violent. b Having no bridle. — un·bri'dled·ly, adv. — un·bri'dled·ness, n.

un·broid' (-broid'), v. t. [un- not + broiden, old past part. of braid.] To unbraid. Obs.

un·broke' (-brōk'), adj. Unbroken. Archaic & Dial.

un·bro'ken (ŭn·brō'kĕn; 66), adj. Not broken; as: a Unviolated. b Whole; intact. c Unsubdued; untamed. d Not interrupted; continuous. e Unplowed; undug. f Not disorganized. — un·bro'ken·ly, adv. — un·bro'ken·ness, n. unbroken tea. A superior kind of tea consisting of unbroken leaves. See BROKEN TEA.

un·brute' (ŭn·brōōt'), v. t. Also un·bru'tal·ize (-brōō'tăl·īz), un·bru'ti·fy (-tĭ·fī), un·brut'ize (-brōōt'īz). To dispossess of, or free from, the character of a brute. All Rare.

un·buck'le (ŭn·bŭk'l'), v. t. [1st un- + buckle.] To loose the buckles of; to unfasten; as, to unbuckle a shoe; hence, to detach; display. — v. i. To loosen buckles; hence, to relax; become slack.

un·buck'ramed (ŭn·bŭk'rămd), adj. Not lined with buckram; hence, not stiff.

un·budge'a·ble (-bŭj'ā·b'l), adj. That cannot be budged. — un'budge·a·bil'i·ty (ŭn'bŭj·ā·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·budge'a·ble·ness, n. — un·budge'a·bly, adv.

un·build' (ŭn·bĭld'), v. t. [1st un- + build.] 1. To demolish; to raze. "To unbuild the city." Shak.
2. To decrease; — said of magnetization.

un·build'ed (-bĭl'dĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. Unbuilt.

un·built' (ŭn·bĭlt'; 66), adj. Not built; not yet constructed.

un·bun'dle (ŭn·bŭn'd'l), v. t. [1st un- + bundle.] To release, as from a bundle; to disclose.

un·bung' (-bŭng'), v. t. [1st un- + bung.] To remove the bung from.

un·bur'den (ŭn·bûr'd'n), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To relieve from or as from a burden; reveal; also, to throw off, as a burden; unload. — un·bur'den·ment (-mĕnt), n.

un·bur'i·a·ble (ŭn·bĕr'ĭ·ā·b'l), adj. Not ready or not proper to be buried.

un·bur'i·al (-ăl), n. Disinterment.

un·burn' (ŭn·bûrn'), v. t. To deoxygenate.

un·bur'row (ŭn·bŭr'ō), v. t. & i. [1st un- + burrow.] To force or come out from a burrow; to unearth.

un·bur'y (ŭn·bĕr'ĭ), v. t. [1st un- + bury.] To disinter; to exhume; figuratively, to disclose.

un·bush' (ŭn·bŏŏsh'), v. t. To clear of bush.

un·bus'ied (-bĭz'ĭd), adj. Unemployed; not busy.

un·busk' (ŭn·bŭsk'), v. t. & i. [See 1st BUSK.] To undress.

un·but'ton (ŭn·bŭt''n), v. t. & i. [1st un- + button.] To loose the buttons (of); to unfasten by loosing the buttons. — un·but'ton·ment (-mĕnt), n.

un·but'toned (-'nd), adj. a Not buttoned; hence, not under constraint; free and easy. b Having no buttons.

un·bux'om (-bŭk'sŭm), adj. a Disobedient. Obs. b Not buxom. — un·bux'om·ly, adv. — un·bux'om·ness, n.

un'ca (ŭng'kä), n. [NL., fr. L. unca, fem. of uncus hooked.] Music. An eighth note.

un'ca (ŭng'kä). Var. of UNCO.

un·cage' (ŭn·kāj'), v. t. [1st un- + cage.] To loose, or release, from or as from a cage.

un·called'-for', adj. Not called for or needed; gratuitous.
Syn. — See GRATUITOUS. Ant. — Necessary; merited.

un·cal'low (ŭn·kăl'ō), n. = CALLOW, n., 2. — v. t. & i. To remove the callow (from). — un·cal'low·er (-ĕr), n. All Local, Eng.

un·calm' (ŭn·käm'), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To disturb; disquiet.

un·camp' (ŭn·kămp'), v. t. [1st un- + camp.] To break up the camp of; to dislodge from camp.

un·bend'some, adj., un·ben'e·ficed (ŭn·bĕn'ĕ·fĭst), adj., un·bene'fi·cent, adj., un'ben·e·fi'cial, adj., un·ben'e·fit·a·ble, adj., un·ben'e·fit'ed, adj., un·ben'e·fit'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'be·net'ted, adj. See UN-, not.

un·be·night', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'be·night'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·be·nign' (ŭn'bĕ·nīn'), adj., un'be·nig'nant, adj., un'be·nig'ni·ty, n., un'be·nig'nant·ly, adv., un'be·nign'ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un'be·numb', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'be·numbed', adj., un'be·queath'a·ble, adj., un'be·queathed', adj., un'be·reaved', adj., un'be·rouged' (ŭn'bĕ·rōōzhd'), adj. See UN-, not.

un·berth', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·be·seem'ly, adj., = UNSEEMLY.

un'be·set', adj., un'be·sieged', adj., un'be·smeared', adj., un'be·smut'ted, un'be·smirched', adj. See UN-, not.

un'be·sot', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'be·sot'ted, adj. See UN-, not.

un'be·speak', v. t. See 1st UN-. un'be·spoke', adj., un'be·spo'ken, adj., un'be·sprin'kled, adj., un'be·starred' (-stärd'), adj., un'be·stowed', adj., un·bet', adj., un'be·teared' (-tēr'd'), adj., un'be·to'ken, v. t. See UN-, not.

un'be·tray', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'be·trayed', adj., un'be·tray'ing, adj., un'be·trothed' (-trō̆th'; -trō̆thd'), adj., un·bet'ter·a·ble, adj., un·bet'tered, adj., un·bev'eled, adj., un'be·wailed', adj., un'be·wail'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'be·ware', un'be·wares', adv. = UNAWARE, UNAWARES. Obs.

un'be·wil'der, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'be·wil'dered, adj., un'be·witched', adj., un'be·witch'ing, adj., un'be·wrayed', adj., un'be·writ'ten, adj., un·bib'i·ca·al, adj., un·Bib'li·cal·ly, adv., un·bib'u·lous, adj., un·bick'ered, adj., un·blick'er·ing, adj., un·bid'da·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

‖un bien'fait' n'est ja'mais' per'du' (ŭN byăN'fĕ' nĕ zhā'mĕ' pĕr'dü'). [F.] A kindness is never lost (unrewarded).

un·big'ot·ed, adj., un·billed', adj., un·bil'let·ed, adj., un·bind'a·ble, adj., un·bind'ing, adj., un·bi·o·graph'i·cal, adj., un'bi·o·log'i·cal, adj., un·bird'like', adj., un·bird'limed', adj., un·birth'day', adj., un·bish'op·ly, adj. See UN-, not.

un·bi'ties, n. t. See 1st UN-.

un·bit', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·bit', adj., un·bit'ing, adj., un·bit'ten, adj., un·bit'ter, adj., un·blacked', adj., un·black'ened, adj. See UN-, not.

un·blade', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·blam'a·ble (-blām'ă), adj., un·blam'ing (-blām'ĭng), adj., un·blanched', adj., un·blan'ket·ed, adj., un·blas·phemed', adj., un·blast'ed, adj., un·bla'zoned, adj., un·bleached', adj., un·bleach'ing, adj., un·bled', adj., un·bleed'ing, adj., un·blem'ish·a·ble, adj., un·blem'ish·ing, adj., un·blench'ing, adj., un·blench'ing·ly, adv., un·blend'a·ble, adj., un·blend'ed, adj., un·blent', adj., un·blight'ed (-blīt'ĕd; -ĭd), adj., un·blight'ed·ly, adv., un·blight'ed·ness, n., un·blind', adj. See UN-, not.

un·blind', v. t., un·blind'fold', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·blink'ing, adj., un·blink'ing·ly, adv., un·bliss'ful, adj., un·bliss'tered, adj., un·blocked'ed, adj., un·blood'ied (-blŭd'ĭd), adj., un·bloomed', adj., un·bloom'ing, adj., un·blos'somed, adj., un·blos'som·ing, adj., un·blot'ted, adj., un·blotted', adj., un·bloused' (-blouzd'), adj., un·blued' (-blōōd'), adj., un·blue'stock'ing·ish, adj., un·bluffed', adj., un·bluff'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·blun'der, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·blun'dered, adj., un·blun'der·ing, adj., un·blunt'ed, adj., un·blurred', adj. See UN-, not.

un·blush', v. i. See 1st UN-.

un·board'ed, adj., un·boast'ed, adj., un·boast'ful, adj., un·boast'ful·ly, adv., un·boast'ing, adj., un·bod'ing (-bōd'ĭng), adj., un·bod'y·like', adj., un·bog'gy, adj., un·boiled', adj., un·boil'er·ous, adj. See UN-, not.

un·bog', v. t., un'bo·he'mi·an·ize, v. t. See 1st UN-.

unbokel. † UNBUCKLE.

un·bold'en (-bōl'd'n), v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·bolled' (-bōld'), adj. See un-, [not.]

un·bol'ster, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·bol'stered, adj. See UN-, not.

un·bom·bast', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·bond'a·ble, adj., un·bond'a·ble·ness, n., un·bond'ed, adj., un·book'ish, adj., un·booted, adj., un·bo'raxed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·bor'der, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·bor'dered, adj., un·bored', adj., un·bor'ing, adj., un·borne', adj., un·bor'ough, n., un·bor'rowed, adj., un·bor'row·ing, adj., un·bosomed', adj., un'Bos·to'ni·an, adj., un'bo·tan'i·cal, adj., un·both'ered, adj., un·both'er·ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·bot'tle, v. t., un·bot'tom, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·bound'a·ble, adj., un·bound'a·ble·ness, n., un·bound'a·bly, adv., un·boun'teous, adj., un·boun'ti·ful, adj., un·boun'ti·ful·ly, adv., un·boun'ti·ful·ness, n., un·bowd'ler·ized, adj., un·bow'ing (-bou'ĭng), adj., un·bow'ing·ness, n., un·bowled' (-bōld'), adj. See UN-, not.

un·box', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·boxed', adj., un·boy'ish, adj., un·boy'like', adj., un·braced' (ŭn·brāst'), adj., un·braced'ness, n. See UN-, not.

un·brace'let, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·brace'let·ed, adj., un·brac'ing (-brās'ĭng), adj., un·bragged', adj., un·brag'ging, adj., un·Brah·min'ic, adj., un·braid'ed, adj., un·brailed', adj. See UN-, not.

un·bran', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·branched', adj., un·branch'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·brand', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·brand'ed, adj., un·bran'died, adj., un·brave', adj., un·braved', adj., un·brave'ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un·braze', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'·Bra·zil'ian, adj., un·breach'a·ble, adj., un·breached', adj., un·bread'ed, adj., un·break'a·ble, adj., un·break'a·ble·ness, n., un·break'a·bly, adv., un·break'fast·ed, adj., un·break'ing, adj., un·breath'a·ble, adj., un·breath'a·ble·ness, n., un·breath'ing, adj., un·breeched' (-brĕcht'), adj., un·breez'y, adj., un·brib'a·ble (-brīb'ā·b'l), adj., un·brib'a·ble·ness, n., un·brib'a·bly, adv., unbribed' (-brībd'), adj., un·brib'ing (-brīb'ĭng), adj., un·bride'groom'like', adj., un·bridge'a·ble, adj., un·bridged', adj., un·bri'dling, adj., un·brief', adj., un·brief'ed, adj., un·bri'ef'ly, adv., un·bright', adj., un·bright'ened, adj., un·bril'liant, adj., un·brim'ming, adj., un·brined' (-brīnd'), adj., un·Brit'ish, adj., un·brit'tle, adj., un·broached', adj., un·broad', adj., un·broad'cast'ed, adj., un·brod'ered, adj., un·broiled', adj., un·bronzed', adj. See UN-, not.

un·brooch' (ŭn·brōch'; -brōōch'), v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·brood'ed, adj., un·brook'a·ble, adj., un·brook'a·bly, adv., un·broth'ered (-brŭth'ĕrd), adj., un·broth'er·like', adj., un·broth'er·ly, adj., adv., un·broth'er·li·ness, n., un·brought', adj. See UN-, not.

un·brown', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·browned', adj., un·bruised' (-brōōzd'), adj., un·brushed', adj., un·bru'tal·ized, adj., un·brute'like', adj. See UN-, not.

un·bud', v. i. See 1st UN-.

un·bud'ded, adj., un·Bud'dhist, adj., un·budged', adj., un·budg'et·ed, adj., un·budg'ing, adj., un·buffed', adj., un·buf'fered, adj., un·buf'fet·ed, adj., un·bulk'y, adj., un·bulled' (-bŏld'), adj., un·bul'le·tined, adj., un·bumped', adj., un·bump'tious, adj., un·bunched', adj., un·bun'dled, adj., un·bun'gling, adj., un·buoy'ant, adj., un·buoyed', adj., un·bur'dened, adj., un·bur'den·some, adj., un·bur'dens·some·ness, n., un·burgessed, adj., un·bur'ied (-bĕr'ĭd), adj., un'bur·lesqued', adj., un·bur'ly, adj., un·burn'a·ble, adj., un·burned', adj., un·burn'ing, adj., un·bur'nished, adj., un·burnt', adj., un·bur'rowed, adj., un·burst', adj., un·burst'a·ble, adj., un·burst'a·ble·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un·bur'then (ŭn·bûr'thĕn). Var. of UNBURDEN.

un·bus'i·ly (-bĭz'ĭ·lĭ), adv., un·busi'ness (bĭz'nĕs; -nĭs), n., un·busi'ness·like' (-bĭz'nĕs·līk'; -nĭs·līk'), adj. See UN-, not.

un·bus'kin, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·bus'kined, adj., un·bus'tling, adj., un·busy (-bĭz'ĭ), adj. See UN-, not.

un·busy (-bĭz'ĭ), v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·butch'ered, adj., un·butch'er·like', adj., un·but'tered, adj., un·but'tressed, adj., un·buy'a·ble, adj., un·buy'a·ble·ness, n., un·buy'ing, adj., un·cab'ined, adj., un·ca'bled, adj., un·ca'denced, adj., un·caged', adj. See UN-, not.

unc, pron. [AS., dat. & acc. dual.] Us two. Obs.

un·cake', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cal·car'e·ous, adj., un·cal'cified, adj., un·cal·cined', adj., un·cal'cu·la·ble, adj., un·cal'cu·la·ble·ness, n., un·cal'cu·la·bly, adv., un·cal'cu·lat'ed, adj., un·cal'cu·lat'ing, adj., un·cal'cu·lat'ing·ly, adv., un·cal'en·dered, adj. See UN-, not.

un·calk', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·calked', adj. See UN-, not.

un·call', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·called', adj., un·calm', adj. & n., un·calmed', adj., un·calm'ly, adv., un·ca·lum'ni·ated, adj., un·cam'bered, adj., un·cam'er·at'ed, adj., un·cam·ou·flaged', adj., un·camped', adj., un·can′dor, un·can′dour (ŭn·kăn′dĕr), n. Want of candor.

un·can′ny (ŭn·kăn′ĭ), adj. 1. Scot. & N. of Eng. a Not canny; not safe to deal with; dangerous. b Careless; awkward. c Severe, as a blow or fall.
2. Ghostly; mysterious; eery; weird; unnatural.
Syn. — See WEIRD.
— un·can′ni·ly, adv. — un·can′ni·ness, n.

un·can′on·ize (ŭn·kăn′ŭn·īz), v. t.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ′ING (-īz′ĭng). [See 1st UN-.] To deprive of canonical authority or status.

un·can′on·ized (-īzd), adj. Not canonized.

un·cap′ (ŭn·kăp′), v. t. [1st un- + cap.] To remove a cap or cover from; specif., Beekeeping, to remove the covering of (a honeycomb or its cells) preparatory to extracting the honey. — v. i. To remove the cap or hat, as in salutation.

un·ca′pa·ble (ŭn·kā′pȧ·b'l), adj. Incapable. — un·ca′pa·ble·ness, n. — un·ca′pa·bly, adv.

un′ca·pac′i·tate (ŭn′kȧ·păs′ĭ·tāt), v. t. To incapacitate.

un·cap′per (ŭn·kăp′ĕr), n. One who or that which uncaps.

un·cared′-for′, adj. Not cared for; unheeded.

un·care′ful (ŭn·kâr′fo͝ol; 66), adj. 1. Not taking care; careless.
2. Having no care; carefree.
— un·care′ful·ly, adv. — un·care′ful·ness, n.

Un·ca′ri·a (ŭng·kā′rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. L. uncus hook.] Bot. A large genus of chiefly tropical Asiatic woody vines, family Rubiaceae, having axillary heads of yellow flowers with valvate corollas succeeded by large septicidal many-seeded capsules. U. gambir yields the important tanning material gambier. Syn. Ourouparia.

un·car′nate (ŭn·kär′nāt), adj. Not incarnate. Rare.

un·car′nate (-nāt), v. t. [1st un- + carnate.] To unflesh. Rare.

un·cart′ (ŭn·kärt′), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To take or discharge from a cart.

Un′cas (ŭng′kȧs), n. [Mohegan Wonkus, prop., fox, lit., the circles.] The "Last of the Mohicans" in Cooper's novel of that name, a young Delaware chief of great courage and nobility, called by the French "Le Cerf agile" (agile deer).

un·case′ (ŭn·kās′), v. [1st un- + case.] Transitive: 1. To take out of, or free from, a case or covering; to uncover; disclose.
2. To strip; undress; also, Obs., to skin; flay.
3. To display, or spread to view, as the colors.
—, Intransitive: To remove the case or cases; undress.

un·caste′ (ŭn·kăst′; 66), adj. Having or of no caste.

un·cas′tle (ŭn·kăs′'l), v. t. [1st un- + castle.] To dispossess of a castle or of status as a castle. — v. i. Chess. To take back the move of castling.

un′cate (ŭng′kāt), adj. [LL. uncatus hooked.] Hooked; uncinate.

un′ca·the′draled (ŭn′kȧ·thē′drăld), adj. Lacking cathedrals. Rare.

un·caused′ (ŭn·kôzd′; 66), adj. Having no antecedent cause; uncreated; self-existent; eternal.

un·cau′te·lous (ŭn·kô′tē·lŭs), adj. Incautious; unwary. Obs.

un·cau′tious (ŭn·kô′shŭs), adj. Incautious. — un·cau′tious·ly, adv. — un·cau′tious·ness, n.

unce (ŭns), n. [L. uncus hook.] A claw. Obs.

un·ceas′a·ble (ŭn·sēs′ȧ·b'l), adj. Not capable of being ended.

un·ceas′ing (-sēs′ĭng), adj. Not ceasing; unintermittent; incessant. — un·ceas′ing·ly, adv. — un·ceas′ing·ness, n.

un·cel′lar (ŭn·sĕl′ĕr), v. t. To remove from a cellar.

un·cen′ter, un·cen′tre (ŭn·sĕn′tĕr), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To remove from its center.

un·cen′tu·ry (-sĕn′tŭ·rĭ), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To remove from its century. Rare.

un′cer·e·mo′ni·ous (ŭn′sĕr·ē·mō′nĭ·ŭs), adj. Not ceremonious; informal. — un′cer·e·mo′ni·ous·ly, adv. — un′cer·e·mo′ni·ous·ness, n.

un·cer′tain (ŭn·sûr′tĭn; -t'n; 66), adj. [un- not + certain. Cf. INCERTAIN.] Not certain; as: 1. Indeterminate as to time, number, amount, extent, etc.; as, at uncertain hours; an uncertain quantity.

For some uncertain moments lent. Shelley.

2. Not certain to occur; subject to accident, chance, or change; indefinite; problematical; as, uncertain riches; an uncertain prospect.

From certain dangers to uncertain praise. Dryden.

3. Not assured or reliable; untrustworthy as a course or agent; as, uncertain friends.

Wandering in uncertain ways. Keats.

4. a Not known beyond doubt; dubious; as, their relation is uncertain. b Not having certain knowledge, not assured; doubtful; as, uncertain of the truth. c Ambiguous; as, in no uncertain voice. d Not clearly identified, defined, or located; as, of uncertain authorship or age.
5. Not definitely directed; undecided.

Soon bent his bow uncertain in his aim. Dryden.

6. Not constant; changeable; unsteady; variable; fitful; as, an uncertain person; an uncertain breeze.

Syn. — See PRECARIOUS.
Ant. — Certain, sure; confident; unerring, unwavering.
— un·cer′tain·ly, adv. — un·cer′tain·ness, n.

un·cer′tain (ŭn·sûr′tĭn; -t'n), adv. Uncertainly.

un·cer′tain, v. t. [1st un- + certain; or fr. uncertain, adj.] To make uncertain. Rare.

un·cer′tain·ty (ŭn·sûr′tĭn·tĭ; -t'n·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). 1. Quality or state of being uncertain; lack of certainty; doubt.
2. That which is uncertain; something unknown.

uncertainty principle or relation. The principle of indeterminacy.

un·cer′ti·tude (ŭn·sûr′tĭ·tūd), n. Incertitude.

un·ces′sant (-sĕs′ȧnt), adj. Orig., incessant; now, unceasing. — un·ces′sant·ly, adv. — un·ces′sant·ness, n.

un·chain′ (ŭn·chān′), v. t. [1st un- + chain.] To free by or as by removing a chain.

un′chance′ (ŭn′chȧns′), n. [See UN-, not.] Mischance. Chiefly Scot.

un·chanc′y (ŭn·chăn′sĭ), adj. [un- not + Scot. chancy fortunate, safe.] Chiefly Scot. a Ill-fated; ill-omened; unlucky. b Unsafe to meddle with; dangerous. c Unseasonable; inconvenient.

un·change′a·ble (ŭn·chān′jȧ·b'l), adj. Not changeable; immutable. — un′change·a·bil′i·ty (ŭn′chān·jȧ·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·change′a·ble·ness, n. — un·change′a·bly, adv.

un·charge′ (ŭn·chärj′), v. t. [1st un- + charge.] To free from or as from a charge or load; to unload; to acquit.

un·charged′ (ŭn·chärjd′; 66), adj. Not charged; as: a Obs. Unsummoned. b Unburdened. c Unassaulted. d Having no heraldic charge. e Not loaded. f Bearing no load. g Unaccused. h Having no electric charge. i Not placed on a charge account.

un·char′i·ta·ble (ŭn·chăr′ĭ·tȧ·b'l), adj. Not charitable; contrary to charity; severe in judging; harsh; censorious. — un·char′i·ta·ble·ness, n. — un·char′i·ta·bly, adv.

un·char′i·ty (-tĭ), n. Uncharitableness.

un·charm′ (ŭn·chärm′), v. t. To divest of power to charm; also, to free from or as from a charm.

un·char′nel (ŭn·chär′nĕl), v. t. [1st un- + charnel.] To remove from a charnel house or the grave; exhume.

un·char′tered (-tĕrd), adj. Not chartered; irregular.

un·char′y (ŭn·châr′ĭ), adj. Not chary or frugal; incautious. — un·char′i·ly, adv. — un·char′i·ness, n.

un·chaste′ (ŭn·chāst′; 66), adj. Not chaste; specif.: a Not continent; lewd. b Not chaste in style or taste. — un·chaste′ly, adv. — un·chaste′ness, n.

un·chas′ti·ty (ŭn·chăs′tĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being unchaste; lewdness; incontinence.

un·check′ (ŭn·chĕk′), v. t. To impose no check on.

un·cheer′ful (ŭn·chēr′fo͝ol), adj. Not cheerful; cheerless; gloomy; grudging. — un·cheer′ful·ly, adv. — un·cheer′ful·ness, n.

un·child′ (ŭn·chīld′), v. t. 1. To bereave of children.
2. To divest of childhood or childlike characteristics.

un·child′ish (ŭn·chīl′dĭsh), adj. Not childish; also, not fit for children. — un·child′ish·ly, adv. — un·child′ish·ness, n.

un·chris′om (ŭn·krĭz′ŭm), adj. [See 1st UN-.] Unchristened. Lamb.

un·christ′ (-krīst′), v. t. To divest of Christ. Obs.

un·chris′ten (-krĭs′tĕn), adj. = UNCHRISTIAN. Obs.

un·chris′ten (-krĭs′'n), v. t. [See 1st -UN.] To annul the christening or baptism of; also, Obs., to unchristianize; profane.

un·chris′tened (-'nd), adj. [un- not + christened.] Not made Christian; not christened; unnamed.

un·chris′tian (-krĭs′chăn), adj. [un- not + Christian; cf. AS. uncristen.] Not Christian; specif.: a Not of the Christian faith; heathen; pagan. b Contrary to Christianity or the Christian spirit or character; not like or becoming to a Christian; as, unchristian conduct. c Not according with Christian civilization; uncivilized; barbarous; — often, Colloq., applied hyperbolically; as, an unchristian price. — un·chris·tī·an′i·ty (ŭn′krĭs·chĭ·ăn′ĭ·tĭ; -tĭ·ăn′-). — un·chris′tian·ness, n.

un·chris′tian, n. One who is not a Christian.

un·chris′tian, v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To make unchristian. Obs.

un·chris′tian·ize (-īz), v. t. [1st un- + Christianize.] To make unchristian; to turn from Christianity.

un·chris′tian·ly (-lĭ), adj. Unchristian. — adv. In an unchristian manner.

un·church′ (ŭn·chûrch′), v. t. [1st un- + church.] 1. To expel, or cause to separate, from a church; to excommunicate.
2. To deprive of a church or of status as a church.

un·churched′ (-chûrcht′; 66), adj. [un- not + churched.] Not belonging to or connected with any church.

unci-. A combining form from Latin uncus, a hook, as in un′ci·form. See -FORM.

un′ci·a (ŭn′shĭ·ȧ), n.; pl. UNCIAE (-ē). [L. See OUNCE a weight.] 1. Rom. Antiq. A twelfth part; specif.: a A twelfth of the libra; an ounce. See WEIGHT, Table. b A twelfth of the pes; an inch. c A twelfth of the juger. See MEASURE, Table. d A bronze coin of the Roman Republic, the 1/12 as (see 7th as, 2). e In the bronze coinage of Sicily, the 1/12 litra.
2. Alg. A numerical coefficient of any particular term of the binomial expansion. Obs.

un′ci·al (ŭn′shĭ·ăl; -shȧl; 159), adj. [L. uncialis inch-high, fr. uncia inch. See UNCIA.] 1. Of or pertaining to an uncia; hence, a twelfth part, as an inch or ounce.
2. Designating, pertaining to, or written in form of, majuscule script. See UNCIAL, n., 1. Hence, loosely, capital; large-lettered.
— un′ci·al·ly, adv.

un′ci·al, n. 1. An uncial letter, or uncial writing. Uncials are somewhat rounded, and certain letters have cursive forms. They were used as early as the 3d century B.C., seldom after the 10th century A.D., being superseded by the minuscule.

NON HABEMUS REGEM
NISI CAESAREM Uncial Letters from a Latin Bible.

2. A manuscript written in the uncial style.

un′ci·al·ize (-īz), v. t. To make uncial in form. Rare.

‖un′ci·a′tim (ŭn′shĭ·ā′tĭm), adv. [L.] Ounce by ounce.

un′ci·form proc′ess (ŭn′sĭ·fôrm). Anat. a The hamulus of the os hamatum. b The uncinate process of the ethmoid bone.

un′ci·na·rī′a·sis (ŭn′sĭ·nȧ·rĭ′ȧ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Uncinaria (fr. L. uncinus hook, barb) + -iasis.] Ancylostomiasis. — un′ci·nar′i·at′ic (-nâr′ĭ·ăt′ĭk), adj.

Un′ci·na′ta (-nā′tȧ), n. pl. [NL. See UNCINATE.] Zool. A division of marine chaetopod annelids having uncini.

un′ci·nate (ŭn′sĭ·nāt), adj. [L. uncinatus, fr. uncinus a hook, uncus a hook.] Hooked; bent at the tip like a hook.

un′ci·nate, n. An uncinate process.

un′ci·nat′ed (ŭn′sĭ·nāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Uncinate.

uncinate gyrus or convolution. Anat. A subdivision of the hippocampal convolution, containing olfactory association centers, and characterized by a thick layer of myelinated fibers upon its surface.

Uncinate Prickles of Smilax.

uncinate process. a Zool. A backwardly directed, often somewhat curved, process on many ribs of birds, in such a position that it crosses or overlaps one or more other ribs, serving to stiffen the walls of the thorax. Called also epipleura. b Anat. An irregular downwardly and backwardly directed process of each lateral mass of the ethmoid bone. It articulates with the inferior turbinated bones.

Un·cin′u·la (ŭn·sĭn′ŭ·lȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. uncinus hook.] Bot. A genus of powdery mildews (family Erysiphaceae) having perithecia with several asci and simple or rarely forked appendages hooked or coiled at the apex. U. necator is the common powdery mildew of the grape.

un·ci′nus (ŭn·sī′nŭs), n.; pl. UNCINI (-nī). [L., a hook.] Zool. A small hooklike structure or process; specif.: a One of the minute chitinous hooks found in large numbers in the tori of certain tubicolous annelids. b One of the hooklike lateral teeth of the radula of a gastropod. c A hooked cilium of certain infusorians.

XI70

Uncinus of Annelid (Amphitrite).

un·ci′pher (ŭn·sī′fĕr), v. t. To decipher.

un·cir′cum·cised (-sûr′kŭm·sīzd), adj. Not circumcised; hence, not of the Israelites; also, heathen; irreligious. — un·cir′cum·cis′ed·ness (-sĭz′ĕd·nĕs; -ĭd·nĭs; 119), n.

un′cir·cum·ci′sion (ŭn′sûr·kŭm·sĭzh′ŭn), n. 1. Absence or want of circumcision; uncircumcised condition.
2. Bib. People not circumcised; the Gentiles; also (1 Macc. i. 15), the concealment of circumcision.

un·cir′cum·script (ŭn·sûr′kŭm·skrĭpt), adj. Not circumscribed.

un·cir′cum·stanced (-stănst; -stȧnst), adj. Without circumstance.

un′cir·cum·stan′tial (ŭn′sûr·kŭm·stăn′shăl), adj. 1. Not circumstantial; not entering into minute particulars.
2. Not important; not pertinent; trivial. Obs.

un′ci·ros′trate (ŭn′sĭ·rŏs′trāt), adj. [unci- + rostrate.] Having a hooked bill. Rare.

un·cit′y (ŭn·sĭt′ĭ), v. t. [1st un- + city.] To make no longer a city.

un·civ′il (ŭn·sĭv′ĭl; -'l), adj. Not civil; as: a Not civilized; savage; barbarous; uncivilized. b Not civil, or courteous; ill-mannered; impolite; rude; as, uncivil treatment. c Unsuitable; indecorous. d Uncivic.
Syn. — Discourteous, ungracious. Ant. — Polite. See CIVIL.

un′civ·i·li·za′tion (ŭn′sĭv·ĭ·lĭ·zā′shŭn; -lĭ·zā′-), n. State of being uncivilized; savagery or barbarism. Rare.

un·civ′i·lized (ŭn·sĭv′ĭ·līzd), adj. Not civilized; not reclaimed from savage life; rude; barbarous; savage; as, uncivilized tribes, manners. — un·civ′i·lized·ness, n.

---

un·cam′phor·at′ed, adj., un′Ca·na′di·an, adj. See UN-, not.
un·can′cel, v. t. See 1st UN-.
un·can′cel·a·ble, un·can′cel·la·ble, adj., un·can′celed, un·can′celled, adj., un·can′did, adj., un·can′did·ly, adv., un·can′didness, n., un·can′died, adj., un·caned′, adj., un·can′kered, adj., un·canned′, adj., un′ca·non′ic, adj., un′ca·non′i·cal, adj., un′ca·non′i·cal·ly, adv., un′ca·non′i·cal·ness, n., un·can′opied (-kăn′ō·pĭd), adj., un·can′toned, adj., un·can′ton·ized, adj., un·can′vass·a·bly, adv., un·can′vassed, adj., un′ca·pa′cious, adj., un′ca·par′i·soned adj., un·cap′i·tal·ized, adj., un·capped′ adj., un′cap·siz′a·ble (ŭn′kăp·sīz′ȧ·b'l), adj., un′cap·sized′, adj., un·cap′tained, adj., un·cap′tioned, adj., un·cap′tious, adj., un·cap′tious·ly, adv. See UN-, not.
un·cap′ti·vate, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cap′ti·vat′ed, adj., un·cap′ti·vat′ing, adj., un·cap′tived, adj., un·cap′tur·a·ble, adj., un·cap′tured, adj., un·car′bon·at′ed, adj., un·car′boned, adj., un·car′bu·ret′ed, adj., un·card′ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un·car′di·nal, n. See 1st UN-.
un·car′di·nal·ly, adv., un′ca·ressed′, adj., un·car′goed, adj., un·car′i·ca·tured, adj., un·car′ing (-kâr′ĭng), adj., un′car·nif′e·rous, adj., un·car′oled adj., un·car′pen·tered, adj., un·car′pet·ed, adj., un·car′riage-a·ble, adj., un·car′ried adj., un·cart′ed, adj., un′car·tooned′, adj., un·carved′, adj., un·cased′, adj., un·case′mat·ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un·cask′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·casked′, adj., un·cas′ket·ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un·casque′ v. t., un·cas′sock, v. t., un·cast′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cast′, adj., un·cas′ti·gat′ed, adj., un·cas′tled, adj., un·cas′trat·ed, adj., un·cas′u·al, adj.
un·cat′a·logued (-kăt′ȧ·lôgd), adj. See UN-, not.
un·cat′a·chize′ (-kăt′ȧ·kīzd), adj., un·cat′e·chiz′ed·ness, -chis′ed·ness (-kĭz′ĕd·nĕs), n., un·cat′e·go·rized, adj., un·cath′o·lic adj. & n., un·cath′ol·i·cal, adj., un·ca·tholi·cal·ness, n., un·cath·o·lic′i·ty, n. See UN-, not.
un·ca·thol′i·cize, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cath′o·lic·ly, adv., un·cau′cus·a·ble, adj., un·caught′, adj., un·caus′a·tive·ly, adv., un·cau′ter·ized, adj., un′cav·a·lier′, adj., un′cav·a·lier′ly, adj. See UN-, not.
un·cave′ v. t. See 1st UN-.
un·ceased′, adj., un·ced′ed (-sēd′ĕd; -ĭd), adj., un·celled′ (-sĕld′), adj., un·cell′inged, adj., un·cel′e·brat′ed, adj., un·cel′e·brat′ing, adj., un′ce·les′tial, adj., un′ce·les′tial·ized, adj. See UN-, not.
un′ce·ment′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un′ce·ment′ed, adj., un′ce·ment′ing, adj., un·cen′sored, adj., un′cen·so′ri·ous, adj., un′cen·so′ri·ous·ly, adv., un′cen·so′ri·ous·ness, n., un·cen′sur·a·ble, adj., un·cen′sured, adj., un·cen′sur·ing, adj., un·cen′tered, un·cen′tred (-tĕrd), adj., un·cen′tral, adj., un′cen·tral′i·ty, n., un·cen′tral·ly, adv., un·cere′clothed′ (-sēr′klōthd′; 185), adj., un·cere′ment·ed, adj., un′cer·e·mo′ni·a′, adj., un·cer′ti·fi′a·ble, adj., un·cer′ti·fi′a·ble·ness, n., un·cer′tified (-fīd), adj., un·cer′ti·fi′ed·ness, n., un·cer′ti·fy′ing, adj. See UN-, not.
unch. ✝ INCH.
un·chafed′ (ŭn·chāf′), adj., un·chain′a·ble, adj., un·chained′, adj. See UN-, not.
un·chair′, v. t. See 1st UN-.
un·chalked′, adj., un·chalked′, adj., un·chal′lenge·a·ble, adj., un·chal′lenge·a·ble·ness, n., un·chal′lenge·a·bly, adv., un·chal′lenged, adj., un·chal′lenging, adj., un·cham′bered, adj., un·cham′fered, adj., un·cham′pi·oned, adj. See UN-, not.
un·chan′cel·lor, v. t. un·change′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·changed′ (-chānjd′). adj., un·chang′ed·ness (-chān′jĕd·nĕs), n., un·change′ful, adj., un·change′ful·ness, n., un·chang′ing (-chān′jĭng), adj., un·chang′ing·ly, adv., un·chang′ing·ness, n., un·chan′neled, un·chan′nelled, adj., un·chant′ed, adj., un·chap′er·oned (-shăp′ĕr·ōnd), adj. See UN-, not.
un·chap′lain, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·chap′let·ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un·chap′ter, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·chap′tered, adj. See UN-, not.
un·char′ac·ter, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·char′ac·tered, adj., un·char′ac·ter·is′tic adj., un·char′ac·ter·is′ti·cal·ly, adv., un·char′ac·ter·ized, adj., un·charge′a·ble, adj., un·charg′ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un·charm′a·ble, adj., un·charmed′, adj., un·charm′ing, adj., un·charred′, adj., un·chart′ed, adj., un·chased′, adj., un·chas′tened adj., un·chas·tis′a·ble (ŭn′chăs·tĭz′ȧ·b'l), adj., un′chas·tis′ing (-tĭz′ĭng), adj., un′chas·tis′ing (-tĭz′ĭng), adj., un·chat′eled, adj., un′chauffeured′, adj. See UN-, not.
un·chawed′ adj. = UNCHEWED. un·cheat′, v. t. See 1st UN-.
un·cheat′ed, adj., un·cheat′ing, adj., un·check′a·ble, adj., un·checked′, adj., un·check′ered, adj., un·cheer′a·ble, adj., un·cheered′, adj., un·cheer′i·ly, adv., un·cheer′i·ness, n., un·cheer′ing, adj., un·cheer′y, adj., un·chem′i·cal, adj., un·chem′i·cal·ly, adv., un·cher′ished, adj., un·cherish·ing, adj., un·chest′ed, adj., un·chev′roned, adj., un·chew′a·ble, adj., un·chew′a·bleness, n., un·chewed′, adj., un·chid′ (ŭn·chĭd′), adj., un·chid′den (-'n), adj., un·chid′ed (-chĭd′ĕd; -ĭd), adj., un·chid′ing (-ing), adj., un·chid′ing·ly, adv., un·child′like′, adj., un·chilled′ (-chĭld′), adj., un·chim′ing (-chĭm′ĭng), adj., un·chi·nese′, adj., un·chinked′, adj., un·chipped′, adj., un·chis′eled, un·chis′elled, adj., un·chis′el·ric, adj., un·chiv′al·rous, adj., un·chiv′al·rous·ly, adv., un·chiv′al·rous·ness, n., un·chiv′al·ry, n., un·chlo′ri·nated, adj., un·choice′ly, adv., un·chok′a·ble, adj., un·choked′, adj., un·chol′er·ic, adj., un·choos′a·ble, adj., un·chopped′, adj., un·cho′ral, adj., un·chord′ed, adj., un·cho′sen, adj., un·chris′tian·ized, adj., un·chris′tian·like′ adj., un·christ′ian·ly, adj., un·Christ′like′, adj., un·Christ′like′ness, n., un·Christ′li·ness, n., un·Christ′ly, adj., un·Christ′mas·like′, adj., un·chron′i·cled, adj., un′chron·o·log′i·cal, adj., un′chron·o·log′i·cal·ly, adv., un·church′like′, adj., un·church′ly, adj. See UN-, not.
un·churn′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un′ci (ŭn′sī), n., pl. of UNCUS. un·cic′a·trized, adj. See UN-, not.
un·cif′er·ous (ŭn·sĭf′ĕr·ŭs), adj. [L. uncus hook + E. -ferous.] Zool. Bear as a hook or hooklike structure. See -FEROUS. un′ci·form, n. = HAMATUM.
un·cil′i·at′ed, adj., un·cinct′, adj., un·cinc′tured, adj. See UN-, not. [CINATE.] un′ci·nal (ŭn′sĭ·năl), adj. = UN-Un′ci·na′ri·a (ŭn′sĭ·nā′rĭ·ȧ; 79), n. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of NECATOR. un′ci·na′tum (ŭn′sĭ·nā′tŭm), n. [NL. See UNCINATE.] = HAMATUM. un·cinch′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cir′cu·lar, adj., un·cir′cular·ized, adj., un·cir′cu·lat′ed, adj., un′cir·cum·locu′tu·ro′ry, adj., un′cir·cum·scrib′a·ble, adj., un·cir·cum·scribed′, adj., un′cir·cum·scribed′ness, n., un′cir·cum·scrip′ti·ble, adj., un′cir·cum·scrip′tion, n., un·cir′cum·spect, adj., un·cir′cumspect′ly, adv., un′cir·cum·spection, un·cir′cum·spect′ness, n. See UN-, not.
un·cite′, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cit′ed (-sīt′ĕd; -ĭd), adj., un·cit′ied (-sĭt′ĭd), adj. See UN-, not.
un·cit′i·zen, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cit′i·zen·like′, adj., un·cit′i·zen·ly, adj., un·civ′ic, adj., un·civ′i·lize′a·ble, adj. See UN-, not.
un·civ′il·ish, adj., un′ci·vil′i·ty, n., un·civ′il·ly, adv., un·civ′ilness, n. See UN-, not.
un·civ′i·lize, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·civ′i·lized·ly, adv. of UNCIVILIZED.

un·clamp' (ŭn·klăm'p'), v. t. To loosen the clamp of; to free from a clamp.

un·clasp' (ŭn·klăsp'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + clasp.] To loose the clasp (of); to open, as something fastened with or as with a clasp; as, to unclasp a book, the hands, one's heart.

un·clas'si·fy (ŭn·klăs'ĭ·fī), v. t. To divest of classification. — un'clas·si·fi·ca'tion (ŭn'klăs·ĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n.

un'cle (ŭng'k'l), n. [ME., fr. OF. oncle, uncle (F. oncle), fr. L. avunculus maternal uncle; akin to L. avus grandfather, Lith. avynas uncle, Goth. awo grandmother, ON. āi great-grandfather, AS. ēam uncle, G. oheim, ohm. Cf. AVUNCULAR, EME.] 1. The brother of one's father or mother; also, an uncle-in-law; — the correlative of aunt in sex, and of nephew and niece in relationship. Uncle is sometimes used as a kindly or familiar title for an elderly man, and, esp. in the southern United States, for a worthy old negro; as, "Uncle Remus."

Plain old uncle as he [Socrates] was, with his great ears, — an immense talker. Emerson.

2. Slang. a A pawnbroker. b A source of financial aid.

un'cle, v. t. 1. To call (one) uncle.

2. To swindle. Cf. COZEN, v. t. Old Slang.

un·clead' (ŭn·klēd'), v. t. [See CLEAD.] To undress. Archaic.

un·clean' (ŭn·klēn'; 66), adj. [AS. unclǣne. See UN-, not; CLEAN.] Not clean; as: a Foul; dirty; filthy. b Ceremonially impure; needing ritual cleansing; c Morally impure. d Unwholesome; — of fish. — un·clean'ly (-klĕn'lĭ), adv. — un·clean'ness, n.

unclean animals. Bib. Animals which the Israelites were forbidden to use for food. See Lev. xi. and Deut. xiv. 4–20.

un·clean'ly (ŭn·klĕn'lĭ), adj. [AS. unclǣnlīc.] Not cleanly; filthy; also, unchaste. — un·clean'li·ly, adv. — un·clean'li·ness, n.

un·cleanse' (ŭn·klĕnz'), v. t. To make or pronounce to be unclean.

unclean spirit. Bib. A wicked spirit; a demon. Mark i. 27.

un·clear' (ŭn·klēr'; 66), adj. Not clear; as: a Indistinct; dark; obscure. b Not free from blame. c Confused or uncertain in statement or understanding. d Not clearly understood.

un·cleared' (-klēr'd; 66), adj. Not cleared, as of debt, guilt, encumbrances, or impurities; also, unexplained.

un·cleave' (-klēv'), v. i. To become detached.

un'cle–in–law', n. 1. The husband of one's aunt.

2. The uncle of one's husband or wife.

un·clem'ent (ŭn·klĕm'ĕnt), adj. Inclement. — un·clem'ent·ly, adv. — un·clem'ent·ness, n.

un·clench' (ŭn·klĕnch'; 105), v. t. & i. To loosen from being clenched; unclasp; relax; open.

un·clench', v. t. & i. = 1st UNCLINCH.

Un'cle Re'mus (rē'mŭs). The pretended narrator of several collections of tales (published from 1880 to 1907) by Joel Chandler Harris. He is an old plantation darky with a great store of stories and songs illustrative of negro folklore and dealing mainly with "Br'er [i. e., Brother] Rabbit," and other animal characters.

Uncle Sam. [From U. S.] The United States government. Colloq.

☞ The name originated in the war of 1812 and in the region of Troy and Albany, N.Y., and it may have arisen from the fact that Samuel Wilson, of Troy, locally known as "Uncle Sam," acted as inspector for a government contractor and stamped barrels of meat for troops encamped near Albany with the initials U. S. — E. A., for United States — Elbert Anderson (the contractor).

Un'cle To'by (tō'bĭ). The real hero of Sterne's novel The Life and Opinions of Tristram Shandy, Gent., a retired captain, wounded at the siege of Namur. He is celebrated for kindness, courage, gallantry, simplicity, and modesty, his love passages with the Widow Wadman, and his military habits. Cf. TRUNNION, COMMODORE HAWSER.

Uncle Tom. The hero of an influential novel, short title Uncle Tom's Cabin, written (1851–1852) by Harriet Beecher Stowe. Uncle Tom is an idealized elderly negro, pious and faithful. The novel presents an imaginary description of the evils of negro slavery in the United States. See LITTLE EVA; TOPSY; LEGREE, SIMON.

un·clev'er (ŭn·klĕv'ĕr), adj. Not clever. — un·clev'er·ly, adv. — un·clev'er·ness, n.

un'cli·fy (ŭng'klĭ·fī), v. t. To make (one) an uncle.

un·clinch' (ŭn·klĭnch'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + clinch.] To cause to be no longer clinched; to open; as, to unclinch the fist.

un·clinch', v. t. & i. = 1st UNCLENCH.

un·cling' (-klĭng'), v. i. & t. [1st un- + cling.] To cease or loosen from clinging. Rare.

un·cloak' (ŭn·klōk'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + cloak.] To remove a cloak or cover (from); hence, to unmask; reveal.

un·clog' (ŭn·klŏg'), v. t. [1st un- + clo.] To disencumber of a clog, or of difficulties and obstructions.

un·clois'ter (ŭn·klois'tĕr), v. t. [1st un- + cloister.] To release from a cloister or confinement; to set free.

un·close' (ŭn·klōz'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + close.] To open; hence, to disclose; to expand; to reveal.

un·close' (ŭn·klōs'; 66), adj. Rare. a Open; unreserved. b Not intimate.

un·closed' (ŭn·klōzd'; 66), adj. [un- not + closed.] Not closed; as: a Not separated by enclosures; open. b Not finished; not concluded; not settled. c Not sealed.

un·clothe' (ŭn·klōth'), v. t. [1st un- + clothe.] To strip of clothes or cloths; hence, to divest or strip of anything.

un·cloud' (ŭn·kloud'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + cloud.] To make or become free from clouds; to clear from obscurity, gloom, sorrow, or the like.

un·club'ba·ble, un·club'a·ble (ŭn·klŭb'ȧ·b'l), adj. Also un·club'by (-ĭ). Not clubbable; unsocial.

un·clutch' (ŭn·klŭch'), v. t. [1st un- + clutch.] To unclinch; specif., Mach., to disengage, as a clutch.

un·co (ŭng'kō), adj. [Scot., fr. UNCOUTH.] Scot. & N. of Eng. Strange; specif.: a Unknown; foreign. b Uncanny; weird. c Shy; awkward. d Uncommon; extraordinary. e Very. f Great. — adv. Remarkably; uncommonly; extremely. Scot. & N. of Eng. — n. Anything strange, wonderful, or new; hence: a Scot. Excitement; wonder. b Scot. A stranger. c pl. Scot. & N. of Eng. Tidings; news.

un·coach' (ŭn·kōch'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + coach.] To remove from a coach.

un'co·act'ed (ŭn'kō·ăk'tĕd; -tĭd), adj. [See UN- not; COACT.] Voluntary; unforced.

un·cock' (ŭn·kŏk'), v. t. [1st un- + cock.] Firearms. Orig., to remove (the match) from the cock; now, to remove the hammer of (a firearm) from the position of cock.

un·cock', v. i. To spread from a cock, or heap, as hay.

un·cock', v. t. To let down the brim of (a cocked hat).

un·cof'fer (ŭn·kŏf'ĕr), v. t. [1st un- + coffer.] To remove from a coffer.

un·cof'fle (-kŏf'l), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To release from a coffle.

un·coft' (ŭn·kŏft'), part. adj. [See UN- not; COFF.] Unbought. Obs. Scot.

un·cog'i·ta·ble (ŭn·kŏj'ĭ·tȧ·b'l), adj. Unthinkable. Rare.

un'co guid' (ŭng'kō güd'; gwĕd'). Those who profess a strict morality. Scot. — un'co·guid'ism, n.

un'co·her'ent (ŭn'kō·hēr'ĕnt), adj. Incoherent. — un'co·her'ent·ly, adv. — un'co·her'ent·ness, n.

un·coif' (ŭn·koif'), v. t. [1st un- + coif.] To deprive of the coif or cap.

un·coil' (ŭn·koil'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + coil.] To unwind or open the coils (of), as a rope; to release as from coils.

un·coin' (ŭn·koin'), v. t. [1st un- + coin.] To deprive (metallic money) of its character as coin. Rare.

un·coined' (-koind'; 66), adj. 1. Not coined, or minted.

2. Not fabricated; not artificial or counterfeit; natural.

un'co·like' (ŭng'kō·līk'), adv. Strangely. — adj. Strange. Both Scot.

un'col·lect'ed (ŭn'kō·lĕk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Not collected; as: a Not gathered into one place or body. b Not yet collected; payable, but not paid. c Not self-composed; disconcerted. — un'col·lect'ed·ly, adv. — un'col·lect'ed·ness, n.

un'col·lect'i·ble (-tĭ·b'l), adj. That cannot be collected. — un'col·lect'i·ble·ness, n. — un'col·lect'i·bly, adv.

un·colt' (ŭn·kōlt'), v. t. [1st un- + colt.] To unhorse. Rare. Shak.

un·combed' (ŭn·kōmd'; 66), adj. Not combed; unkempt.

un'com·bin'a·ble (ŭn'kŏm·bīn'ȧ·b'l), adj. Not combinable. — un'com·bin'a·ble·ness, n. — un'com·bin'a·bly, adv.

un'com·bine' (-bīn'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + combine.] To separate.

un'com·bined' (-bīnd'), adj. Not combined; free.

un·come' (ŭn·kŭm'), adj. Not arrived. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

un'come (ŭn'kŭm), n. = ANCOME. Obs.

un'–come–at'–a·ble (ŭn'kŭm·ăt'ȧ·b'l), adj. Inaccessible; unattainable. — un'–come–at'–a·ble·ness, n. — un'–come–at'–a·bly, adv.

un·come'ly (ŭn·kŭm'lĭ), adj.; -COME'LI·ER (-lĭ·ĕr); -COME'LI·EST. Not comely; also, unbecoming; unsuitable; indecent. — un·come'li·ly, adv. — un·come'li·ness, n.

un·come'ly, adv. Uncomelily. Obs.

un·com'fort·a·ble (ŭn·kŭm'fĕrt·ȧ·b'l), adj. Not comfortable; as: a Feeling discomfort; uneasy; ill at ease, bodily or mentally. b Affording no comfort; causing discomfort; unpleasant; as, an uncomfortable seat, season, position, predicament. c Obs. Inconsolable. — un·com'fort·a·ble·ness, n. — un·com'fort·a·bly, adv.

un'com·mer'cia·ble (ŭn'kŏ·mûr'shȧ·b'l), adj. Not marketable. Rare.

un'com·mer'cial (-shăl), adj. Not commercial; as: a Not engaged in, or related to, commerce. b Not conformable to commercial principles. — un'com·mer'cial·ly, adv. — un'com·mer'cial·ness, n.

un'com·mit'ted (ŭn'kŏ·mĭt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Not committed; as: a Not delegated or consigned. b Undone. c Not imprisoned. d Not bound by previous decision.

un'com·mixed' (-mĭkst'), adj. Unmingled.

un'com·mo'di·ous (-mō'dĭ·ŭs), adj. Not commodious. — un'com·mo'di·ous·ly, adv. — -ous·ness, n.

un·com'mon (ŭn·kŏm'ŭn), adj.; -COM'MON·ER (-ĕr); -COM'MON·EST. Not common; unusual; infrequent; rare; hence, remarkable; strange; as, an uncommon degree of cold or heat; uncommon courage.

Syn. — Exceptional, extraordinary, unaccustomed, unusual, unwonted; scarce. Cf. STRANGE.

Ant. — See USUAL, GENERAL, COMMON.

— un·com'mon·ly, adv. — un·com'mon·ness, n.

un·com'mon, adv. Uncommonly. Chiefly Dial.

un'com·mu'ni·ca·ble (ŭn'kŏ·mū'nĭ·kȧ·b'l), adj. Not to be told; incommunicable; also, Rare, uncommunicative. — un'com·mu'ni·ca·ble·ness, n. — -mu'ni·ca·bly, adv.

un'com·mu'ni·cat'ed (-kāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. a Not told, as a secret. b Not imparted, as a disease.

2. Not having partaken of the Communion.

un'com·mu'ni·ca'tive (-kā'tĭv; -kȧ·tĭv), adj. 1. Illiberal. Obs.

2. Not disposed to talk or to impart information; reserved. — un'com·mu'ni·ca'tive·ly, adv. — un'com·mu'ni·ca'tive·ness, n.

un'com·pact' (ŭn'kŏm·păkt'), adj. Also un'com·pact'ed (-păk'tĕd; -tĭd). Incompact.

Un'com·pah'gre (ŭn'kŏm·pä'grē), n. An Indian of a division of the Ute, formerly dwelling in southwestern Colorado. About 400 survivors are now on a reservation in Utah. See UTE.

un'com·pah'grite (-grīt), n. [From Uncompahgre Peak, Colo.] Petrog. A granular intrusive rock consisting of over 50 per cent melilite, with pyroxene, melanite, octahedrite, perovskite, apatite, and in certain localities, biotite and calcite.

un·com'pa·nied (ŭn·kŭm'pȧ·nĭd), adj. 1. Unaccompanied.

2. Having no fellow or match.

un'com·pan'ioned (ŭn'kŏm·păn'yŭnd), adj. Having no companion, equal, or source of companionship.

un·com'passed (ŭn·kŭm'pȧst), adj. Having no compass; deprived of a compass.

un·com'passed, adj. Unbounded; unlimited.

un'com·pat'i·ble (ŭn'kŏm·păt'ĭ·b'l), adj. Incompatible. — un'com·pat'i·bly, adv.

un'com·pli'a·ble (-plī'ȧ·b'l), adj. Not complying readily. — un'com·pli'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'com·pli'a·ble·ness, n.

un'com·posed' (ŭn'kŏm·pōzd'), adj. Not composed; as: a Not composite. b Not organized. c Unregulated; disordered. d Not brought into accord.

un'com·pound'ed (-kŏm·pound'ĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. Also, Obs., un·com'pound. Not united in, or not being, a compound; unmixed; also, not involved or adorned; simple. — un'com·pound'ed·ly, adv. — un'com·pound'ed·ness, n.

un'com·pre·hend' (ŭn'kŏm·prē·hĕnd'), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To fail to comprehend. Obs.

un'com·pre·hen'sive (-hĕn'sĭv), adj. 1. Not comprehensive; not including much.

2. Obs. a Unable to comprehend. b Incomprehensible — un'com·pre·hen'sive·ly, adv. — un'com·pre·hen'sive·ness, n.

un·com'pro·mis'ing (ŭn·kŏm'prō·mīz'ĭng), adj. Not making or admitting of compromise; making no truce or concessions; unyielding; inflexible. — un·com'pro·mis'ing·ly, adv. — un·com'pro·mis'ing·ness, n.

Syn. — Unbending, strict, rigid. Ant. — Liberal, tolerant.

un·compt' (-kŏmpt'), adj. Not near or elegant. Obs.

un'con·ceiv'a·ble (ŭn'kŏn·sēv'ȧ·b'l), adj. Inconceivable. — un'con·ceiv'a·ble·ness, n. — un'con·ceiv'a·bly, adv.

un'con·ceiv'ing (-ĭng), adj. Not conceiving; Obs., thoughtless.

un'con·cern' (ŭn'kŏn·sûrn'), n. Want of concern; absence of interest; freedom from solicitude; indifference. — v. t. & i. To make or be devoid of concern. Obs.

Syn. — See INDIFFERENCE.

Ant. — Anxiety, solicitude. See CARE.

un'con·cerned' (-sûrnd'), adj. Not concerned; as: a Not involved. b Not occupied. c Not anxious or solicitous; easy in mind; indifferent; as, unconcerned about the future. — un'con·cern'ed·ly (-sûr'nĕd·lĭ; -nĭd·lĭ), adv. — un'con·cern'ed·ness, n.

un'con·cern'ing (-sûr'nĭng), adj. Not concerning or pertaining; unimportant; irrelevant.

un'con·cern'ment (-sûrn'mĕnt), n. Unconcern.

un'con·clud'ent (-klōōd'ĕnt), adj. Inconclusive. Obs.

un'con·clud'ing (-ĭng), adj. Inconclusive. — un'con·clud'ing·ness, n. Both Rare.

---

un'cl. Uncle. Ref. Sp. un·clad', adj., un·claimed', adj., un·claim'ing, adj., un·clam'orous, adj., un·clamped', adj., un·clar'i·fied, adj., un·clar'i·fy'ing, adj., un·clar'i·ty, n., un·clash'ing, adj., un·clasped', adj., un·class'a·ble, adj., un·class'a·bleness, n., un·class'a·bly, adv., un·classed', adj., un·class'i·ble, adj., un·clas'si·cal, adj., un·clas'sical·ly, adv., un·clas'si·fi'a·ble, adj., un·clas'si·fi'a·ble·ness, n., un·clas'si·fied, adj., un·clas'sify'ing, adj., un·clawed', adj. See UN-, not.
un·clay', v. t. See 1st UN-. un·clayed' (-klād'), adj., un·clean'a·ble, adj., un·cleaned', adj., un·cleansed', adj., un·cleans'edness, n., un·cleared', adj., un·clear'ing, adj., un·clear'a·ble, adj. See UN-, not.
un'cle·dom, n. See -DOM. un·cleft', adj. See UN-, not.
un'cle·hood, n. See -HOOD. un·cler'gy, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cler'gy·a·ble, adj., un·cler'ical, adj. See UN-, not.
un·cler'i·cal·ize, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cler'i·cal·ly, adv., un·cler'ical·ness, n., un·clerk'like', adj., un·clerk'ly, adj. See UN-, not.
un'cle·ship, n. See -SHIP.
un·clev'er, adj. See UN-, not.
un·clew', v. t., un·click', v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cli'ent·ed, adj., un·cli'maxed, adj. See UN-, not.
un·climb', v. t. See 1st UN-. un·climb'a·ble (ŭn·klīm'ȧ·b'l), adj., un·climb'a·ble·ness, n., un·climb'a·bly, adv., un·climbed' (-klīmd'), adj., un·climb'ing, adj., un·clin'i·cal, adj. See UN-, not.
un·clip', v. t. See 1st UN-. un·clip'per, n.
un·clipped', adj., un·cloak'able, adj., un·cloaked', adj., un·clogged', adj., un·clois'tered, adj., un·clois'tral, adj., un·close'a·ble (-klōz'ȧ·b'l), adj., un·closet·ed, adj., un·clothed' (-klōth'd'), adj., un·cloth'ed·ly (-klōth'ĕd·lĭ), adv., un·cloth'edness, n., un·clot'ted, adj. See UN-, not.
un·cloud'ed, past part. of UNCLOUD, un·cloud'ed, adj., un·cloud'edly, adv., un·cloud'ed·ness, n., un·cloud'y, adj. See UN-, not.
un·clout', v. t. See 1st UN-. un·clo'ven, adj., un·cloy'a·ble, adj., un·cloyed', adj., un·cloy'ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un·club', v. t. See 1st UN-. un·clue', Var. of UNCLEW.
un·clus'tered, adj., un·clus'tering, adj. See UN-, not.
un·clut'ter, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·clut'tered, adj., un·clutch'a·ble, adj., un·clutched', adj., un·coach'a·ble, adj., un·coach'a·ble·ness, n., un·coached', adj., un'co·ag'u·la·ble, adj., un'co·ag'u·lat'ed, adj., un'co·ag'ulat'ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un·coat', v. t. See 1st UN-. un·coat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.
uncoated ginger. = WHITE GINGER (see GINGER, n., 2). un·coat'ed·ness, adj., un·coax'a·ble, adj., un·coaxed', adj., un·coax'ing, adj., un·cocked', adj. See UN-, not.
un·cock'ney·fy, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·coct'ed, adj., un·cod'ded, adj., un·cod'dled, adj., un·cod'ed (-kŏd'ĕd; -ĭd), adj., un·cod'i·fied, adj., un'co·erced', adj. See UN-, not.
un·cof'fin, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·cof'fined, adj., un·co'gent, adj., un·cogged', adj., un·cog'ni·za·ble, adj., un·cog'ni·zant, adj., un·cog'nized, adj., un'cognos'ci·bil'i·ty, n., un'cog·nos'ci·ble, adj., un'co·he'sive, adj., un·coiled', adj., un·coiled', adj., un·coked', adj., un·cok'ing, adj., un'col·lapsed', adj., un'col·laps'i·ble, adj. See UN-, not.
un·col'lar, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·col'lared, adj., un'col·lat'ed (ŭn'kŏ·lāt'ĕd; -ĭd), adj., un'collat'ed·ness, n., un·col'leged (-kŏl'ĕjd; -ĭjd), adj., un'col·le'gi·an, n., un'col·le'gi·ate, adj. See UN-, not.
un'col·le'gi·ate, v. t. See 1st UN-. un'col·lo'qui·al, adj., un'col·lo'qui·al·ly, adv., un·colo'nel·like' (-kûr'nĕl·līk'; -n'l·līk'), adj., un'co·lo'ni·al, adj. See UN-, not.
un·col'o·nize, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·col'o·nized, adj., un·col'or·a·ble, adj., un·col'or·a·bly, adv., un·col'ored, un·col'oured, adj., un·col'ored·ly, un·col'oured·ly, adv., un·col'ored·ness, un·col'oured·ness, n. See UN-, not.
un'co·ly (ŭng'kō·lĭ), adv. [unco + -ly.] = UNCO. Scot.
un·comb'a·ble (ŭn·kōm'ȧ·b'l), adj., un·com'bat·able, adj., un·com'bat·ed, adj., un'com·bin'ing (-kŏm·bīn'ĭng), adj., un'combin'ing·ness, n., un'com·bus'ti·ble, adj. See UN-, not.
un·com'fort, n. & v. = DISCOMFORT. un·com'fort·ed, adj., un·com'fort·ing, adj., un·com'fy, adj., un·com'ic, adj., un'com·mand'ed, adj., un'com·mand'ed·ness, n., un'com·mand'er·like', adj., un'com·mem'o·rat'ed, adj., un'com·menced', adj., un'com·mend'a·ble, adj., un'com·mend'a·ble·ness, n., un'com·mend'a·bly, n., un'com·mend'ed, adj., un'com·men'su·rabil'i·ty, n., un'com·men'su·rable, adj., un'com·men'su·ra·bleness, n., un'com·men'su·rate, adj., un'com·ment'ed, adj., un'com·ment'ing, adj., un'com·min'gled, adj., un·com'mi·nut'ed, adj., un'com·mis'er·at'ed, adj., un'com·mis'er·at'ing, adj., un'com·mis'sioned, adj. See UN-, not.
un'com·mit'ting, adj., un·com'mon·a·ble, adj., un·com'mon·place', adj. See UN-, not.
un'com·mu'ni·cate, part. adj. = UNCOMMUNICATED. Obs. un'com·mu'ni·cat'ing, adj., un'com·mut'a·ble, adj., un'com·mu'ta·tive, adj., un'com·mut'ed, adj., un'com·pan'ion, adj., un'com·pan'ioned, adj., un·com'pa·ra·ble, adj., un·com'pa·ra·bly, adv., un'compared', adj. See UN-, not.
un·com'pass, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·com'pass·a·ble, adj., un'com·pas'sion, n., un'com·pas'sion·ate, adj., un'com·pas'sionate·ly, adv., un'com·pas'sionate·ness, n., un'com·pas'sionat'ing, adj., un'com·pas'sioned, adj., un'com·pel'la·ble, adj., un'com·pelled', adj., un'compel'ling, adj., un'com·pen'sable, adj., un·com'pen·sat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un·com'pe·tent, adj. = INCOMPETENT, adj., 1. un'com·pet'i·tive, adj., un'compiled', adj., un'com·pla'cent, adj., un'com·plained', adj., un'com·plain'ing, adj., un'com·plain'ing·ly, adv., un'com·plain'ing·ness, n., un'complaint', n., un'com·plai'sance, n., un'com·plai'sant, adj., un'com·plai'sant·ly, adv., un'complem'ent·al, adj., un'com·plet'a·ble, adj., un'com·plete', adj., un'com·plet'ed, adj., un'com·plete'ly, adv., un'com·plete'ness, n., un'com·plex', adj., un'com·pli'ance, n., un'com·pli'ant, adj., un'com·pli·cat'ed, adj., un'com·pli·men'ta·ry, adj., un'com·pli·ment'ed, adj., un'com·pli·ment'ing, adj., un'com·ply'ing, adj., un'com·pos'a·ble, un'com·pose'a·ble, adj. See UN-, not.
un'com·pound'a·ble, adj., un'com·pound'ing, adj., un'com·pre·hend'ed, adj., un'com·prehend'ing, adj., un'com·prehend'ing·ly, adv., un'com·prehend'ing·ness, n., un'com·pre·hen'si·ble, adj., un'com·pre·hen'sion, n., un'com·pressed', adj., un'com·press'i·ble, adj., un'com·prised' (-prīzd'), adj., un'com·pris'ing (-prīz'ĭng), adj., un'com·pris'ing·ly, adv., un'com·pro·mised (-mīzd), adj. See UN-, not.
un'com·pul'sive, adj., un'compul'so·ry, adj., un'com·put'a·ble (-pūt'ȧ·b'l), adj., un'com·put'a·ble·ness, n., un'com·put'a·bly, adv., un'com·put'ed (-pūt'ĕd), adj., un·com'rad·ed, adj., un'con·cat'e·nat'ed, adj., un'con·cat'e·nat'ing, adj., un'con·ceal'a·ble, adj., un'con·ceal'a·ble·ness, n., un'con·ceal'a·bly, adv., un'con·cealed', adj., un'con·ceal'ing, adj., un'con·ceal'ing·ly, adv., un'con·ceal'ment, n., un'con·ced'ed (-sēd'ĕd), adj., un'con·ceit'ed, n., un'con·ceived', adj., un'con·cert'a·ble, adj., un'con·cert'ed, adj., un'con·cert'ed·ly, adv., un'concert'ed·ness, n., un'con·ces'sible, adj., un'con·cil'i·a·ble, adj., un'con·cil'i·at'ed, adj., un'concil'i·at'ed·ness, n., un'con·cil'i·at'ing, adj., un'con·cil'i·a·to'ry, adj., un'con·clud'a·ble (-klōōd'ȧ·b'l), adj., un'con·clud'ed (-klōōd'ĕd), adj. See UN-, not.

---

un'con·clu'sive (ŭn'kŏn·klōō'sĭv), adj. Inconclusive. — un'con·clu'sive·ly, adv. — un'con·clu'sive·ness, n.

un'con·coct'ed (ŭn'kŏn·kŏk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Not concocted; as: a Undigested. b Not conditioned; crude. c Unelaborated.

un'con·dit'ed (-dĭt'ĕd; -ĭd), adj. [See CONDITE, adj.] Unseasoned. Obs.

un'con·di'tion·al (-dĭsh'ŭn·ăl), adj. Not conditional, limited, or conditioned; made without conditions; absolute; unreserved; as, an unconditional surrender, offer. — un'con·di'tion·al·i·ty (-ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'con·di'tion·al·ly, adv. — un'con·di'tion·al·ness, n.

Unconditional Surrender Grant. General U. S. Grant (see Biog.); — so called from his demand for "unconditional surrender" at the fall of Fort Donelson (1862).

un'con·di'tion·ate (ŭn'kŏn·dĭsh'ŭn·ăt), adj. Unconditional. — un·con·di'tion·ate·ly, adv.

un'con·di'tioned (-ŭnd), adj. Not conditioned; as: a Unconditional; not subject to or dependent on conditions. b Educ. Admitted or promoted without a condition. c Metaph. Not subject to limitations; infinite; absolute; hence, also, inconceivable; unknowable. d Psychol. Not dependent upon conditioning or learning; natural; as, an unconditioned reflex or stimulus. — un'con·di'tioned·ly, adv. — un'con·di'tioned·ness, n.

un'con·di'tioned, n. Philos. With the, that which is inconceivable and beyond the realm of reason; whatever is inconceivable under logical forms or relations; specif., in Sir Wm. Hamilton's philosophy, the Absolute, conceived as the unconditionally limited, and the Infinite, conceived as the unconditionally unlimited. Cf. CONDITIONED, n.

un·con'fi·dence (ŭn·kŏn'fĭ·dĕns), n. Want of confidence.

un'con·fine' (ŭn'kŏn·fīn'), v. t. To release from confinement or restraint. — un'con·fine'ment (-mĕnt), n.

un'con·firmed' (-fûrmd'), adj. Not confirmed; as: a Having not yet received confirmation. b Uncorroborated. c Unsanctioned by authority. d Uninstructed.

un'con·form'a·ble (ŭn'kŏn·fôr'mȧ·b'l), adj. Not conformable; as: a Not correspondent. b Not conforming. c Eng. Hist. Not conforming to the practices and teachings of the Church of England, esp. in the 17th century; nonconforming. d Geol. Exhibiting unconformity. — un'con·form'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'con·form'a·ble·ness, n. — un'con·form'a·bly, adv.

un'con·form'ist (-fôr'mĭst), n. A nonconformist.

un'con·form'i·ty (-fôr'mĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). 1. Want of conformity; incongruity; inconsistency.
2. Nonconformity. Obs.
3. Geol. a Lack of continuity in deposition between strata in contact, corresponding to a period of diastrophism and erosion and consequently to a gap in the stratigraphic record.

Unconformity. ef, ab Horizontal Strata resting upon the Inclined Strata beneath; cd are also Unconformable to these Strata, both above and beneath.

It is often, but not always, marked by want of parallelism between the strata of the two series. b The surface of contact between unconformable strata.

un'con·gen'ial (ŭn'kŏn·jēn'yăl; -jē'nĭ·ăl; 159), adj. Not congenial; as: a Inappropriate. b Unsympathetic. c Not to one's taste. d Lacking affinity. — un'con·ge'ni·al'i·ty (-jē'nĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ; -jēn·yăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'con·gen'ial·ly, adv.

un'con·gen'ial, adv. Out of conformity.

un'con·nect'ed (ŭn'kŏ·nĕk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Not connected; as: a Not joined or linked together; separate. b Having no family or other personal ties. c Not coherent; disconnected; rambling. d Math. Having no common element and such that no one contains a limit point of another; — said of aggregates, or assemblages. — un'con·nect'ed·ly, adv. — un'con·nect'ed·ness, n.

un·con'quer·a·ble (ŭn·kŏng'kĕr·ȧ·b'l), adj. Not conquerable; indomitable. — un·con'quer·a·ble·ness, n. — un·con'quer·a·bly, adv.

Syn. — Invincible. Cf. INDOMITABLE.

Ant. — Conquerable.

un·con'quered (-kĕrd), adj. Not conquered.

un·con'quest (ŭn·kŏng'kwĕst; ŭn'kŏn·kwĕst'), part. adj. Unconquered. Obs.

un·con'sienced (ŭn·kŏn'shĕnst), adj. Lacking conscience.

un·con'scion·a·ble (ŭn·kŏn'shŭn·ȧ·b'l), adj. 1. Not conscionable; unreasonable; as, an unconscionable demand.
2. Not guided or controlled by conscience; unscrupulous.
Ungenerous as well as unconscionable practices. South.
3. Outrageous; egregious.

Syn. — Exorbitant. Cf. EXCESSIVE.

Ant. — Reasonable, moderate.

— un·con'scion·a·ble·ness, n. — -scion·a·bly, adv.

un·con'scion·a·ble (ŭn·kŏn'shŭn·ȧ·b'l), adv. = UNCONSCIONABLY.

un·con'scious (ŭn·kŏn'shŭs), adj. 1. Not conscious; in a state unaccompanied by conscious experience; as, a person in a swoon is unconscious. Also, with of, not realizing or appreciating; not aware; as, unconscious of his error.
2. Not known or apprehended by consciousness, esp. by self-consciousness; as: a Not present in attention; pertaining to liminal consciousness or to subconsciousness; as, unconscious inference. b Not realized; not brought home to the intelligence; as, an unconscious mistake. c Not directly affecting consciousness; — said of stimulations or processes which fail of their normal effect on consciousness. d Not analyzed or understood; as, unconscious humor; bias. e Free from self-consciousness.
3. Nonconscious; not possessed of mind or consciousness; as, metals are unconscious substances.
4. Philos. Entirely without sensation, feeling, and thought; — said of that which is nevertheless supposed to possess some characteristics of mind or spirit, or is connected with conscious states; as, the unconscious processes behind conscious mental states.
5. Psychoanalysis. Excluded from consciousness by repression.

Syn. — Ignorant, unaware; insensible.

Ant. — See CONSCIOUS.

— un·con'scious·ly, adv. — un·con'scious·ness, n.

un·con'scious, n. With the: a In the philosophy of E. von Hartmann, the absolute principle of the universe. Cf. PANPNEUMATISM. b Psychoanalysis. That great part of the individual psyche which is inaccessible to consciousness, consisting largely of repressed desires and their associated ideas. It frequently disturbs the course of conscious life, in dreams, symptomatic acts, phobias, hysterical symptoms, etc.

un·con'se·crate (ŭn·kŏn'sē·krăt), adj. Unconsecrated. Archaic.

un·con'se·crate (-krăt), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To deprive of consecration; desecrate.

un·con'se·crat'ed (-krăt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Not consecrated. — un·con'se·crat'ed·ly, adv. — -crat'ed·ness, n.

un'con·sent' (ŭn'kŏn·sĕnt'), v. i. To withhold consent. Obs.

un'con·se·quen'tial (ŭn'kŏn·sē·kwĕn'shăl), adj. Inconsequential. — un'con·se·quen'tial·ly, adv. — un'con·se·quen'tial·ness, n.

un'con·sid'er·ate (ŭn'kŏn·sĭd'ĕr·ĭt), adj. Inconsiderate. — un'con·sid'er·ate·ly, adv. — un'con·sid'er·ate·ness, n.

un'con·sid'ered (-ĕrd), adj. Not considered, thought of, or attended to. — un'con·sid'ered·ly, adv. — un'con·sid'ered·ness, n.

un'con·sist'ent (-sĭs'tĕnt), adj. Inconsistent.

un·con'so·nant (ŭn·kŏn'sō·nănt), adj. Incongruous. — un·con'so·nan·cy (-năn·sĭ), n. — un·con'so·nant·ly, adv.

un·con·spic'u·ous (ŭn'kŏn·spĭk'ū·ŭs), adj. Inconspicuous. — un·con·spic'u·ous·ly, adv. — un·con·spic'u·ous·ness, n.

un·con'stan·cy (ŭn·kŏn'stăn·sĭ), n. Inconstancy.

un·con'stant (-stănt), adj. Inconstant. — un·con'stant·ly, adv. — un·con'stant·ness, n.

un·con·sti·tu'tion·al (ŭn'kŏn·stĭ·tū'shŭn·ăl; -l), adj. Not constitutional; esp., not according to, or consistent with, the terms of a constitution of government; contrary to the constitution; as, an unconstitutional law. — un'con·sti·tu'tion·al'i·ty (-ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'con·sti·tu'tion·al·ly, adv.

un'con·strained' (ŭn'kŏn·strănd'), adj. Not constrained; not acting or done under constraint; spontaneous; natural; unrestrained. — un'con·strain'ed·ly (-străn'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. — un'con·strain'ed·ness, n.

un'con·straint' (-strănt'), n. Freedom from constraint.

un'con·sult' (-sŭlt'), v. i. To neglect to consult for counsel.

un'con·tain'a·ble (ŭn'kŏn·tăn'ȧ·b'l), adj. That cannot be contained or repressed. — -a·ble·ness, n. — -a·bly, adv.

un'con·tam'i·nate (-tăm'ĭ·năt), adj. Uncontaminated. Archaic.

un'con·tent' (-tĕnt'), adj. Uncontented. — n. Want of contentment.

un'con·tent'ed (-tĕn'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Discontented. — un'con·tent'ed·ly, adv. — un'con·tent'ed·ness, n.

un'con·test'a·ble (-tĕs'tȧ·b'l), adj. Incontestable. — un'con·test'a·ble·ness, n. — un'con·test'a·bly, adv.

un'con·trol' (ŭn'kŏn·trōl'), n. Lack of control.

un'con·trol'la·ble (-trōl'ȧ·b'l), adj. 1. Incapable of being controlled; ungovernable; as, an uncontrollable temper.
2. Indisputable; as, an uncontrollable title. Obs.

Syn. — Unmanageable, intractable, wild.

Ant. — Mild, governable, submissive.

— un'con·trol'la·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), un'con·trol'la·ble·ness, n. — un'con·trol'la·bly, adv.

un'con·trolled' (ŭn'kŏn·trōld'), adj. Not controlled; specif.: a Not governed; free. b Unrestrained; uncontrollable. c Obs. Not disproved or refuted. — un'con·trol'led·ly (-trōl'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. — un'con·trol'led·ness, n.

un'con·tro·ver'so·ry (ŭn'kŏn·trŏ·vûr'sŏ·rĭ), adj. Not involving controversy. Obs.

un'con·tro·vert'a·ble (-vûr'tȧ·b'l), adj. Incontrovertible. — un'con·tro·vert'a·ble·ness, n. — un'con·tro·vert'a·bly, adv.

un'con·tro·vert'i·ble (-tĭ·b'l), adj. Incontrovertible. — un'con·tro·vert'i·ble·ness, n. — un'con·tro·vert'i·bly, adv.

un'con·ven'ience (ŭn'kŏn·vēn'yĕns), n. Inconvenience R.

un'con·ven'ient (-yĕnt), adj. Inconvenient. — un'con·ven'ient·ly, adv. Both Chiefly Dial.

un'con·ven'tion·al (-vĕn'shŭn·ăl), adj. Not conventional; not bound by, or accordant with, convention; free from conventionality. — un'con·ven'tion·al'i·ty (-ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'con·ven'tion·al·ly, adv.

Syn. — Informal, unceremonious, casual.

Ant. — Conventional, ceremonious, punctilious.

un'con·ven'tioned (-shŭnd), adj. Devoid of convention.

un'con·vers'a·ble (-vûr'sȧ·b'l; cf. CONVERSABLE), adj. Not helpful to, inclined to, or suited to, conversation or sociability. — un'con·vers'a·ble·ness, n. — un'con·vers'a·bly, adv.

un'con·vers'ing (ŭn'kŏn·vûr'sĭng), adj. Uncompanionable. Obs.

un'con·ver'sion (-vûr'shŭn; -zhŭn), n. State of being unconverted; impenitence. Rare.

un'con·vert'ed (-vûr'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Not converted; as: a Not exchanged. b Not changed, esp. in opinion or action; specif., not having been led to accept a religious faith; esp., Theol., not having yet accepted Christianity or abandoned a state of sin; impenitent; unregenerate. — un'con·vert'ed·ly, adv. — un'con·vert'ed·ness, n.

un·cord' (ŭn·kôrd'), v. t. [1st un- + cord.] To release from cords; to loosen the cord or cords of. — un·cord'ed, adj. — un·cord'ing, n.

un·cork' (ŭn·kôrk'), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] 1. To draw a cork from.
2. To release from a sealed or pent-up state, as one's feelings; also, Slang, to let go with a sudden burst, as a wild pitch.
3. To draw out (a cork, stopper, plug, etc.).
— un·cork'er, n. — un·cork'ing, n.

un·cor'po·ral (ŭn·kôr'pō·răl), adj. Incorporeal.

un'cor·rect'ed (ŭn'kŏ·rĕk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Not made correct; not subjected to correction or improvement by discipline; not neutralized.

un'cor·re·spond'ent (ŭn'kŏr·ē·spŏn'dĕnt), adj. Not correspondent. — un'cor·re·spond'en·cy (-dĕn·sĭ), n.

un·cor'ri·gi·ble (ŭn·kŏr'ĭ·jĭ·b'l), adj. Incorrigible. — un·cor'ri·gi·ble·ness, n. — un·cor'ri·gi·bly, adv.

un'cor·rupt' (ŭn'kŏ·rŭpt'), adj. Incorrupt.

un'cor·rupt'i·ble (-rŭp'tĭ·b'l), adj. Incorruptible. — un'cor·rupt'i·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'cor·rupt'i·ble·ness, n. — un'cor·rupt'i·bly, adv.

un'cor·rup'tion (-rŭp'shŭn), n. Freedom from corruption; incorruption.

un·cor'ven (ŭn·kôr'vĕn), adj. [un- + ME. corven, past part., fr. AS. corfen, past part. of ceorfan. See CARVE.] Not cut or trimmed. Obs.

un·cost' (ŭn·kôst'), n. Want of cost.

un·couch' (ŭn·kouch'), v. t. Orig., to lift from a couch; hence, to rout out from its lair. — v. i. To issue from its lair. — un·couched' (-koucht'), adj. — un·couch'ing, n.

un·coun'sel·a·ble, un·coun'sel·la·ble (ŭn·koun'sĕl·ȧ·b'l), adj. That will not or cannot be counseled; also, rarely, inadvisable.

un·count'a·ble (ŭn·koun'tȧ·b'l), adj. Innumerable; impossible to count, as because of rapidity, weakness, or irregularity; also, inestimable. — un·count'a·ble·ness, n. — un·count'a·bly, adv.

un·count'a·ble, n. Gram. See COUNTABLE, n., 2.

un·count'ed (ŭn·koun'tĕd; -tĭd; 66; 119), adj. Not counted; also, innumerable.

un·coun'ter·feit (ŭn·koun'tĕr·fĭt), adj. Unfeigned.

un·coun'ter·feit, v. t. To undisguise. Rare.

un·cou'ple (ŭn·kŭp'l), v. [1st un- + couple.] Transitive:
1. To loose, as dogs, from their couples; also, to disconnect (something coupled); as, to uncouple railroad cars.
2. Music. To throw off or release a coupler of (an organ).
—, Intransitive: Obs. a To have free course, as a hound released from couplings. b To unleash hounds for the chase.
— un·cou'pled (-l'd), adj. — un·cou'pler (-lĕr), n.

un·coursed' (ŭn·kôrst'; 181), adj. Not laid or placed in courses; — said esp. of masonry.

un·cour'te·ous (ŭn·kûr'tē·ŭs), adj. Lacking in courtesy.

---

un'con·coct', adj. = UNCONCOCTED. Obs.

un·con·cord'ant, adj., un·con'crete, adj., un'con·cret'ed (-krĕt'ĕd), adj., un·con·cur'rent, adj., un·con·cur'ring, adj., un'con·dem'na·ble, adj., un·con·demned' (-dĕmd'), adj., un·con·den'sa·ble, adj., un·con·den'sa·ble·ness, n., un·con·densed', adj., un·con·dens'ing, adj., un'con·de·scend'ing, adj., un·con·de·scen'sion, n. See UN-, not.

un·con·di'tion, v. t. See 1st UN-.

unconditionally convergent. Math. = ABSOLUTELY CONVERGENT.

un·con·di'tion·at'ed, adj. = UNCONDITIONED.

un·con·doled', adj., un·con·dol'ing, adj., un·con·duc'ing, adj., un·con·du'cive, adj., un'con·du·cive·ness, n., un·con·ducted, adj., un·con·duc'tive, adj., un·con·duc'tive·ness, n., un'con·fect'ed, adj., un·con·fed'er·at'ed, adj., un·con·ferred', adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·fess', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·con·fessed', adj., un'con·fess'ing, adj., un·con·fid'ed, adj., un·con·fi·dent, adj., un·con·fi·den'tial, adj., un·con·fi·den'tial·ness, n., un·con·fi·dent·ly, adv., un·con·fid'ing, adj., un'con·fin'a·ble (ŭn'kŏn·fīn'ȧ·b'l), adj., un·con·fined' (-fīnd'), adj., un·con·fin'ed·ly (-fīn'ĕd·lĭ), adv., un·con·fin'ed·ness, n., un·con·fin'ing (-fīn'ĭng), adj., un·con·fis'ca·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·firm', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·con·firm'a·tive, adj., un·con·firm'ing, adj., un·con·fis·cat'ed, adj., un·con·flict'ing, adj., un'con·flict'ing·ly, adv., un'con·flict'ing·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un·con·form', adj. Obs. a Unconformed. b Unconforming.

un·con·formed', adj., un·con·form'ed·ly, adv., un·con·form'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·found', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·con·found'ed, adj., un·con·found'ed·ly, adv., un·con·front'a·ble, adj., un·con·front'ed, adj., un·con·fus'a·ble, adj., un·con·fus'a·bly, adv., un·con·fused', adj., un·con·fus'ed·ly, adv., un'con·fut'a·ble, adj., un·con·fut'ed, adj., un·con·fut'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·geal', v. i. See 1st UN-.

un·con·geal'a·ble, adj., un·congealed', adj., un·con·gest'ed, adj., un·con·glo'bat·ed, adj., un·con·glom'er·at'ed, adj., un'con·glu'ti·nat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·grat'u·late, v. t. See 1st un'con·grat'u·lat'ed, adj., un'con·grat'u·lat'ing, adj., un·con·gra·ta'ti·ng, adj., un'con·gre·ga'tion·al, adj., un'con·gres'sion·al, adj., un·con·gru'ous, adj., un·con·jec'tur·a·ble, adj., un·con·jec'tured, adj., un'con·joined', adj., un·con·ju·gal, adj., un·con'ju·gat'ed, adj., un·con·junc'tive, adj., un'con·jured', adj., un·conned' (ŭn·kŏnd'), adj., un'con·nived', adj., un·con·niv'ing, adj., un·con'scient, adj., un'con·sci·en'tious, adj., un'con·sci·en'tious·ly, adv., un'con·sci·en'tious·ness, n. See UN-, not.

unconscious inference. See INFERENCE, 1.

un'con·se·cra'tion, n., un'con·sec'u·tive, adj., un'con·sent', n., un'con·sen·ta'ne·ous, adj., un'con·sent'ed, adj., un'con·sent'ing, adj., un'con·serv'a·ble, adj., un'con·serv'a·tive, adj., un'con·served', adj., un'con·serv'ing, adj., un·con·sid'er·a·ble, adj., un·con·sid'er·ing, adj., un'con·sid'er·ing·ly, adv., un'con·sign'a·ble, adj., un·con·signed', adj., un'con·so'ci·a·ble, adj., un'con·so'ci·at'ed, adj., un'con·sol'a·ble, adj., un'con·sol'a·bly, adv., un·con·soled', adj., un'con·sol'i·dat'ed, adj., un'con·sol'i·dat'ing, adj., un'con·sol'i·da'tion, n., un'con·sol'ing, adj., un·con'so·nous, adj., un'con·spired', adj., un'con·spir'ing, adj., un'con·spir'ing·ly, adj., un'con·spir'ing·ness, n., un·con'stel·lat'ed, adj., un·con'sti·pat'ed, adj., un·con'sti·tut'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·sti·tu'tion·al·ism, n. See -ISM.

un·con·strain'a·ble, adj., un'con·strain'ing, adj., un'con·strict'ed, adj., un'con·stru'a·ble, adj., un'con·struct'ed, adj., un'con·struc'tive, adj., un'con·struc'tur·al, adj., un'con·strued', adj., un·con'su·lar, adj., un'con·sult'a·ble, adj., un'con·sult'ing, adj., un'con·sum'a·ble, adj., un'con·sumed', adj., un'con·sum'ing, adj., un'con·sum'mate, adj., un·con'sum·mat'ed, adj., un'con·sump'tive, adj., un'con·ta'gious, adj., un·contained', adj., un'con·tam'i·na·ble, adj., un'con·tam'i·nat'ed, adj., un'con·temned' (-tĕmd'), adj., un'con·tem'ned·ly (-tĕm'nĕd·lĭ), adv., un·con'tem·plat'ed, adj., un'con·tem'po·ra'ne·ous, adj., un'con·tem'po·rar'y, adj., un'con·temp'tu·ous, adj., un'con·tend'ed, adj. un'con·tend'ing, adj., un'con·tent'a·ble, adj., un'con·tent'ing, adj., un'con·tent'ing·ness, n., un'con·ten'tious, adj., un'con·ten'tious·ly, adv., un'con·ten'tious·ness, n., un'con·test'ed, adj., un'con·test'ed·ly, adv., un'con·test'ed·ness, n., un·con'ti·nence, n., un·con'ti·nent, adj., un'con·ti·nen'tal, adj., un·con'ti·nent'ed, adj., un·con'ti·nent·ly, adv., un'con·tin'u·al, adj., un'con·tin'ued, adj., un'con·tin'u·ous, adj., un'con·tort'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·tract', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·con·tract'ed, adj., un'con·tract'ed·ness, n., un'con·trac'tile, adj., un·con·tra·dict'a·ble, adj., un'con·tra·dict'a·ble·ness, n., un'con·tra·dict'a·bly, adv., un'con·tra·dict'ed, adj., un'con·tra·dict'ed·ly, adv., un'con·tra·dic'tious, adj., un·con·tra·dic'to·ry, adj., un'con·trast'a·ble, adj., un·con·trast'ed, adj., un'con·trast'ing, adj., un'con·trib'ut·ed, adj., un'con·trib'ut·ing, adj., un'con·trib'u·to·ry, adj., un·con'trite (for pron. see CONTRITE), adj., un'con·trived', adj., un'con·triv'ing, adj., un'con·trol'ling, adj., un·con·tro·ver'sial, adj., un'con·tro·ver'sial·ly, adv., un·con'tro·ver·ted, adj., un·con'tro·ver·ted·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un·con've·na·ble, adj. Unsuitable. Obs.

un·con·ven'a·ble (ŭn'kŏn·vēn'ȧ·b'l), adj., un·con·vened' (-vĕnd'), adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·ven'tion·al·ism, n. See [-ISM.

un·con·ven'tion·al·ize, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·con·ver·sant, adj., un·con·ver·sa'tion·al, adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·vert', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·con·vert'i·bil'i·ty, n., un'con·vert'i·ble, adj., un·con·vey'a·ble, adj., un·con·veyed', adj., un·con·vict'ed, adj., un'con·vict'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·con·vince', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·con·vinced' (-vĭnst'), adj., un·con·vinc'ed·ly (-vĭn'sĕd·lĭ), adv., un·con·vinc'ed·ness, n., un'con·vinc'i·bil'i·ty, n., un·con·vinc'i·ble, adj., un·con·vinc'ing, adj., un·con·vinc'ing·ly, adv., un·con·vinc'ing·ness, n., un·con'vo·lut'ed, adj., un'con·voyed', adj., un·con·vulsed', adj., un·cook'a·ble, adj., un·cooked', adj., un·cooled', adj. See UN-, not.

un·coop', v. t. See 1st UN-. — un·cooped', adj. — un·coop'ing, n.

un'·co·op'er·at'ing, adj., un'·co·op'er·a'tive, adj., un·coop'ered, adj., un'·co·or'di·nate, adj., un'·co·or'di·nat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·cope', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cop'i·a·ble, adj., un·cop'ied, adj., un·co'pi·ous, adj., un·cop'y·right'ed, adj., un·co·quet'tish, adj., un'co·quet'tish·ly, adv., un·cor'dial, adj., un'cor·dial'i·ty, n., un·cor'dial·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un·core', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cored' (ŭn·kôrd'; 181), adj. See UN-, not.

un·corked', part. adj. of UNCORK.

un·corked', adj., un·corned', adj. See UN-, not.

un·cor'ner, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cor'o·nat'ed, adj., un·cor'o·net'ed, adj., un·cor'pu·lent, adj. See UN-, not.

un'cor·rect', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'cor·rect', adj., un'cor·rect'a·ble, adj., un'cor·rect'i·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un'cor·rect'ly, adv. of UNCORRECT. — un'cor·rect'ness, n.

un·cor're·lat'ed, adj., un'cor·re·spond'ing, adj., un'cor·rob'o·rat'ed, adj., un·cor·rod'ed, adj., un·cor'ru·gat'ed, adj., un'cor·rupted, adj., un·cor'rupt·ed·ly, adv., un'cor·rupt'ed·ness, n., un'cor·rupt'ing, adj., un'cor·rup'tive, adj., un'cor·rupt'ly, adv., un'cor·rupt'ness, n., un·cor'set·ed, adj., un·cos'set·ed, adj., un·cost'li·ness, n., un·cost'ly, adj., un·cos'tumed, adj., un·cot'toned, adj., un·cou'seled, adj., un·coun'seled, adj., un·coun'te·nanced, adj., un'counter·act'ed, adj., un'counter·bal'anced, adj., un·coun'ter·feit'ed, adj., un'coun·ter·mand'a·ble, adj., un·coun·ter·mand'ed, adj., un'coun·ter·vailed', adj. See UN-, not.

un·coun'ess, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·coun'tes, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·coun'tri·fied, adj., un·cou'pled, adj., un·cou·ra'geous, adj., un·court'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·cour'te·ous·ly (-kûr'tē·ŭs·lĭ), adv. of UNCOURTEOUS.

un·cour·te·ous·ness, n. See -NESS.

un·cour'te·sy, n. Discourtesy. Obs.

un·court'ier·like', adj., un·court'ing, adj., un·court'·like', adj., un·court'li·ness, n.

---

un'cous (ŭng'kŭs), adj. [L. uncus.] Hooklike; hooked. R.

un·couth' (ŭn·kōōth'; 66), adj. [ME., fr. AS. uncūth unknown, strange, fr. un- not + cūth known, old past part. of cunnan to know. See UN- not; COUTH. Cf. UNCO, UNKID.] 1. Obs. a Unknown. b Unacquainted; also, unknowing; ignorant.

2. Unfamiliar or strange. Specif.: a Now Scot. Strange or unfamiliar to a person as never before or infrequently traveled or visited. b Obs. Strange or alien; belonging to or coming from a foreign people or country. c Now Rare. Uncommon or rare; wonderful, as seldom experienced; exquisite. "Harness . . . so uncouth and so rich." Chaucer, d Mysterious; uncanny; dreadful. "An uncouth fear." Shak. e Obs. Strange and unseemly or offensive. f Seldom visited; unfrequented; solitary; as, an uncouth desert or coast. g Archaic. Desolate; comfortless. "Uncouth reflections." Stevenson. h Rare. Dismal; disconsolate. Pepys.

3. Strange, odd, or clumsy, in shape or appearance; outlandish; as, an uncouth hill pony; awkward and uncultivated in appearance or bearing; rude; boorish; as, uncouth ways; of language, actions, etc., rugged and untrained or unpolished; unpleasantly harsh or blunt; unrefined. "Uncouth in guise and gesture." I. Taylor.

The uncouth speech of the countryside. Edna Ferber.

Syn. — See AWKWARD. Ant. — Graceful; polished, refined.

— un·couth'ly, adv. — un·couth'ness, n un·couth' (ŭn·kōōth'; -kōōth'), n. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. a A stranger. b A wonder; pl., news.

un·couth'ly (ŭn·kōōth'lĭ), adj. Uncouth in appearance or manner.

un·couth'some (-sŭm), adj. Uncouth; esp., distasteful; inclement. Rare.

un·cov'e·na·ble (ŭn·kŭv'ĕ·nȧ·b'l), adj. Unsuitable. Obs.

un·cov'e·nant·ed (-năn·tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. 1. Not covenanted; not granted or entered into under a covenant; not sanctioned by a covenant; lying outside of a covenant, esp. a divine covenant.

2. Theol. Not having entered into relationship with God through the appointed means; also, not assured by the divine promises or conditions; as, uncovenanted mercies.

3. Designating, or pertaining to, the East Indian civil service of employees (chiefly natives) not subject to statutory restrictions; — opposed to covenanted. This service is now mostly replaced by the provincial service.

4. Not having joined in a league, or assented to a covenant or agreement, as the Solemn League and Covenant of the Scottish people in the times of the Stuarts.

Grudged their allegiance to an uncovenanted king. Sir T. E. May.

un·cov'er (ŭn·kŭv'ĕr), v. t.; UN·COV'ERED (-ĕrd); UN·COV'ERING. [1st un- + cover.] Transitive: 1. To lay bare or make known; to disclose; reveal; often specif., to display as an unsuspected accomplishment.

2. To expose to view by removing some covering object or material; as, winds had uncovered human bones; specif., to lay bare or make naked by removing clothes.

3. To take the cover from; to divest of covering; as, to uncover a box, kettle, or shed.

4. Specif.: To divest of the hat or cap; to bare the head of, esp. in token of reverence; as, to uncover one's head.

5. To drive from cover, as a fox.

6. Mil. To expose successively (lines of troops when deploying) by the moving to right or left of the leading lines.

—, Intransitive: To remove a cover or covering. Specif.:

1. To take off the hat or cap in token of respect.

2. To remove the covers from dishes, or the like. Shak.

un·cov'er·a·ble (-ȧ·b'l), adj. Not capable of being covered.

un·cov'ered (ŭn·kŭv'ĕrd), adj. Not covered; specif.: a Devoid or divested of a covering as a roof or cover, or of clothing or a hat; naked; bareheaded; unveiled. b Remaining without covering or without being covered; as, a table uncovered by a cloth. c Not protected by another, as in chess or military formation. d Not covered by collateral, as a note, or by insurance. — un·cov'ered·ly, adv.

un·cowl' (ŭn·koul'), v. t. [1st un- + cowl.] 1. To divest or deprive of a cowl; hence, to deprive (a monk) of his membership in a religious order.

2. To remove the cowl, or the like, from, as the face.

un·craft'y (ŭn·krăf'tĭ), adj. 1. Lacking skill or ingenuity. Obs.

2. Not crafty or guileful; ingenuous.

— un·craft'i·ly, adv. — un·craft'i·ness, n.

un·crazed' (ŭn·krāzd'), adj. Sound in mind.

un'cre·ate' (ŭn'krē·āt'), adj. [un- not + create, adj.] Uncreated.

un·cre·ate', v. t. [1st un- + create.] To deprive of existence; to annihilate. — un'cre·at'ing (-āt'ĭng), n. — un'cre·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n.

un'cre·at'ed (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. [un- not + created.] 1. Not yet created or existent; as, misery uncreated. Milton.

2. Not existing by creation; self-existent; eternal. Locke.

— un'cre·at'ed·ness, n.

un·cred'i·ble (ŭn·krĕd'ĭ·b'l), adj. Incredible; incredulous. — un·cred'i·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·cred'i·bly, adv.

un·cred'it·a·ble (-ĭ·tȧ·b'l), adj. Discreditable. — un·cred'it·a·ble·ness, n. — un·cred'it·a·bly, adv.

un·crin'kle (ŭn·krĭng'k'l), v. t. To restore from a crinkled state. — *v. i. To become free from crinkles. — un·crin'kled (-k'ld), part. adj. — un·crin'kling (-klĭng), verbal n.

un·crit'i·cism (ŭn·krĭt'ĭ·sĭz'm), n. Uncritical criticism.

un·crook' (ŭn·krŏŏk'), v. t. & i. 1. To unbend; open.

2. To keep or remain undeviating from probity.

— un·crook'ing, part. adj. & verbal n.

un·cross' (ŭn·krŏs'; 185), v. t. [1st un- + cross.] To change so as no longer to be crossed; as, to uncross the legs or a foot.

un·crown' (ŭn·kroun'), v. t. [1st un- + crown.] 1. To deprive or divest of a crown; hence, to discrown; dethrone; to displace as sovereign.

2. To reveal by doffing the crown; to unveil.

— un·crown'ing, part. adj. & verbal n.

un·crud'ded (ŭn·krŭd'ĕd), adj [See UN- not; CURD.] Not curdled. Spenser.

un·crum'ple (ŭn·krŭm'p'l), v. t. To smooth the creases and wrinkles or crumples from. — *v. i. To become, form, or grow, free of crumples.

unc'tion (ŭngk'shŭn; 177), n. [L. unctio, fr. ungere, unctum, to anoint. See UNGUENT.] 1. Act of anointing, as with oil or ointment, esp. for medical purposes, or as a symbol of consecration; as, king by sacred unction.

2. That which is used for anointing; an unguent; an ointment; hence, anything soothing or lenitive.

Lay not that flattering unction to your soul. Shak.

3. Benign influence from a spiritual source.

4. That quality in language, address, or the like, which expresses or excites sober and fervent emotion; religious fervor, originally explained as due to the anointing or unction of the Holy Spirit; sometimes, a simulated or factitious fervor or emotional gush; unctuousness.

5. Earnestly sympathetic absorption and enjoyment of the theme in narrating, acting a part, etc.

unc'tion, unc'tion·eer'. Scot. vars. of AUCTION, AUCTIONEER.

unc'tion·al (ŭngk'shŭn·ăl), adj. Full of or characterized by unction, esp. spiritual or devotional fervor.

unc'tious (ŭngk'shŭs), adj. Unctuous.—unc'tious·ness, n.

unc·to'ri·an (ŭngk·tō'rĭ·ăn), adj. [L. unctor an anointer.] Pertaining to anointing. Obs.

unc'tu·os'i·ty (ŭngk'tŭ·ŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n. [OF. unctuosité (F. onctuosité).] Quality or state of being unctuous.

unc'tu·ous (ŭngk'tŭ·ŭs), adj. [ML. unctuosus, fr. L. unctus an ointment, fr. ungere, unctum, to anoint. See UNGUENT.] 1. Of the nature or quality of an unguent or ointment; fatty; oily; greasy. "The unctuous cheese." Longfellow.

2. Hence: a Abounding or rich in oil or fatty substance; as, unctuous meat. b Rich in organic matter and easily workable; as, unctuous soil. c Plastic; as, unctuous clay. d Having a smooth, greasy feeling to the touch or a soapy feel, as certain minerals; smeary or smudged in appearance; suggestive of fat or unguent; as, unctuous feel or touch. "Unctuous with kitchen smoke." Hawthorne. e Having qualities of or redolent of grease; oleaginous.

3. Full of unction; bland; suave; also, fervid; as, an unctuous speech; esp., displaying or characterized by a flabby, smugly or ingratiatingly sentimental, pretense of spirituality in speech or attitude; insincerely suave or gushing.

4. Having outlines, colors, etc., agreeably smoothing out or flowing into each other; gratefully soothing, esp. to the sight; as, unctuous shadows; unctuous little vignettes.

Syn. — See SUAVE. Ant. — Gruff, harsh.

— unc'tu·ous·ly, adv. — unc'tu·ous·ness, n.

un·cubbed' (ŭn·kŭbd'), adj. Deprived of cubs.

un'cu·lar (ŭng'kū·lĕr), adj. Avuncular. Rare.

un·cult'ed (ŭn·kŭl'tĕd; 119), part. adj. Also un·cul'tived (-kŭl'tĭvd). Untilled. Obs.

un·cul'ture (ŭn·kŭl'tûr), n. Want of culture.

un·cul'tured (-tûrd), adj. Not subjected to cultivation; not improved by education or marked by culture; unrefined.

un·cum'bered (ŭn·kŭm'bĕrd), adj. Unencumbered.

un·cun'ning (ŭn·kŭn'ĭng), adj. Ignorant; unskillful. — un·cun'ning·ly, adv. — un·cun'ning·ness, n.

un·cun'ning, n. Ignorance. Obs.

un·cur'a·ble (ŭn·kūr'ȧ·b'l), adj. Incurable. — un·cur'a·ble·ness, n. — un·cur'a·bly, adv.

un·curb' (ŭn·kûrb'), v. t. To free from a curb. — un·curb'ing, part. adj. & verbal n.

un·curl' (ŭn·kûrl'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + curl.] To straighten out from a curled or coiled position; to unroll. — un·curl'ing, part. adj. & verbal n.

un·cur'rent (ŭn·kûr'ĕnt), adj. Not current; specif.: a Not passing in common payment; not receivable at par or full value. b Invalid; — of warrants. — un·cur'rent·ly, adv. — un·cur'rent·ness, n.

un·curse' (ŭn·kûrs'), v. t. To free from a curse. Rare.

un·cur'tain (ŭn·kûr'tĭn; -t'n), v. t. [1st un- + curtain.] To remove a curtain from; reveal; unveil. — un·cur'tained (-tĭnd; -t'nd), part. adj.

un'cus (ŭng'kŭs), n.; pl. UNCI (ŭn'sĭ). [L., hook, barb. See 1st ANGLE.] Zool. & Anat. A hook or claw; specif.: a Anat. The anterior curved end of the hippocampal convolution. b Zool. In rotifers, the head of the malleus of the mastax, which is often hooked, or bears one or more teeth. c Zool. A median beaklike plate or process dorsal to the copulatory apparatus of male insects.

un·cus'tomed (ŭn·kŭs'tŭmd), adj. 1. Not subject to, or not having paid, customs duties.

2. Archaic. a Unaccustomed; unwonted. b Unusual.

un·cut' (ŭn·kŭt'; 66), adj. 1. Not cut; as: a Not cut down or off or cut into; having suffered no surgical or other incision. b Not separated by cutting or otherwise.

2. Not reduced or shaped by cutting; not ground, or otherwise cut, into a certain shape; as, an uncut diamond.

3. Having suffered no curtailment; as, an uncut text or salary.

4. Bibliography. Of books, periodicals, etc., not having the edges of the leaves trimmed subsequent to the printing of the sheets. Such a book is called uncut although the folds of the leaves have been slit; if the folds are intact it is called unopened.

5. Loosely, not having the folds of the leaves slit.

uncut velvet. A fabric woven like velvet, but with the loops of the warp threads uncut.

un'da ma'ris (ŭn'dȧ mā'rĭs). [L., wave of the sea.] Organ Building. An 8-foot stop producing undulations (sense 3 b) from two ranks of pipes tuned slightly apart or from one tuned slightly flat and used in connection with other stops. Cf. VOIX CELESTE.

un·damped' (ŭn·dămpt'; 66), adj. 1. Not stifled, checked, or depressed; as, proceed with undamped ardor.

2. Not checked or retarded, as by a damper; as, undamped vibrations or musical strings.

3. Not dampened by moisture.

4. Elec. & Physics. Not damped; undiminished in amplitude. See OSCILLATION, 5.

un·dan'gered (ŭn·dăn'jĕrd), adj. Not endangered. Rare.

un·dark' (ŭn·därk'), v. t. [1st un- + dark.] To dispel the darkness of. Obs.

un·dashed' (-dăsht'), adj. 1. Not dashed; not qualified or diluted; as, belief undashed with doubt; undaunted.

2. Provided with no dash or dashes.

un'date (ŭn'dāt), un'dat·ed (-dāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. [L. undatus, fr. unda a wave. See UNDULATE.] Bot. Wavy; undulate. Rare.

un'dat·ed (ŭn'dāt·ĕd; -ĭd), adj. Obs. a = UNDÉ. b Having wavy markings.

un·dat'ed (ŭn·dāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 66; 119), adj. [un- not + dated.] 1. Not dated; bearing no date; as, an undated letter.

2. Having no specified date of termination; having no limit or no end.

3. Devoid of outstanding events; uneventful.

— un·dat'ed·ness, n.

un·daugh'ter·ly (ŭn·dô'tĕr·lĭ), adj. Unbecoming a daughter. — un·daugh'ter·li·ness (-lĭ·nĕs; 119), n.

un·daunt'a·ble (ŭn·dôn'tȧ·b'l; ŭn·dän'-), adj. Incapable of being daunted; intrepid; fearless; indomitable.

un·daunt'ed (-tĕd; -tĭd; 66; 119), adj. 1. Not daunted; courageous with an undiminished resolution or boldness; undismayed; undashed; fearless.

2. Obs. a Not broken to the bit; untamed. b Unchecked; unbridled. c Uncouth; turbulent. d Unconquered.

Syn. — Bold, fearless, brave, courageous, intrepid.

Ant. — Cowardly, fearful, pusillanimous, timid.

— un·daunt'ed·ly, adv. — un·daunt'ed·ness, n.

un·daz'zle (ŭn·dăz'l), v. i. [See 1st UN-.] To recover from a daze. Rare.

un'dé, un'dée (ŭn'dā), adj. [OF. (F. ondé), fr. L. unda a wave.] Her. Waving or wavy; — applied to ordinaries, or division lines.

un·deaf' (ŭn·dĕf'; -dēf'), v. t. [1st un- + deaf.] To free from deafness. Obs.

un·dean' (-dēn'), v. t. [1st un- + dean.] To deprive of deanship; to divest of the character or bearing of a dean.

un·dear' (ŭn·dēr'), adj. [AS. undēore.] Not dear; disesteemed; cheap.

un'dec·a- (ŭn'dĕk·ȧ-), undec-. A combining form from Latin undecim, eleven, as in undecagon, undecane.

☞ In many chemical names in this Dictionary hendeca- is preferred to undeca-, as Greek prefixes prevail in the series.

un·dec'a·gon (ŭn·dĕk'ȧ·gŏn), n. [undeca- + 1st -gon.] Geom. A figure having eleven angles and eleven sides.

un'de·ceiv'a·ble (ŭn'dē·sēv'ȧ·b'l), adj. 1. That cannot be deceived.

2. Not deceitful. Obs.

— un'de·ceiv'a·ble·ness, n. — un'de·ceiv'a·bly, adv.

un'de·ceive' (ŭn'dē·sēv'), v. t. [1st un- + deceive.] 1. To free from deception, fraud, fallacy, or mistake.

2. To teach by disposing of an error.

— un'de·ceiv'er (-sēv'ĕr), n. — un'de·ceiv'ing (-ĭng), verbal n.

un·de'cen·cy (ŭn·dē'sĕn·sĭ; -s'n·sĭ), n. Indecency.

un'de·cen'ni·al (ŭn'dē·sĕn'ĭ·ăl), adj. [L. undecim eleven (fr. unus one + decem ten) + -ennial as in decennial. Cf. DECENNIAL, UNDECENNARY.] Occurring or observed every eleventh year; belonging to, or continuing, a period of eleven years.

un·de'cent (ŭn·dē'sĕnt; -s'nt), adj. Indecent. Archaic exc. Dial. — un·de'cent·ly, adv. Archaic exc. Dial.

un'de·cep'tion (ŭn'dē·sĕp'shŭn), n. Action of undeceiving; a being undeceived.

un'de·cide' (-sīd'), v. t. & i. [1st un- + decide.] To unmake a decision (about). Rare. — un'de·cid'ing (-sīd'-ĭng), part. adj. Rare.

un'de·cid'ed (-sīd'ĕd; 119), adj. 1. Not yet determined; unsettled.

2. Wavering; inconstant; irresolute.

Syn. — Irresolute, unresolved; doubtful, problematical.

Ant. — Firm, determined; sure, settled.

— un'de·cid'ed·ly, adv. — un'de·cid'ed·ness, n.

---

un·court'ly, adj., un·cous'in·ly, adj. See UN-, not.

un·couth'ie, adj. See UN-, not. Scot.

un·cov'e·nant, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cov'et·ed, adj., un·cov'eting, adj., un·cov'et·ing·ly, adv., un·cov'et·ous, adj. See UN-, not.

un'cow (ŭng'kō; -kŭ). Var. of UNCO. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

un·cowed' (ŭn·koud'), adj., un·coy', adj., un·cracked', adj., un·cra'dled, adj. See UN-, not.

un·cram', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cramp', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cramped', adj., un·cramped'ness, n., un·cranked', adj., un·cran'nied, adj., un·crat'ed (-krăt'ĕd), adj., un'cra·vat'ted, adj., un·cra'ven, adj., un·crav'ing (-krāv'ĭng), adj., un·crav'ing·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un·cream', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·creased', adj., un'cre·at'a·bil'i·ty, n., un'cre·at'a·ble, adj., un'cre·at'a·ble·ness, n., un·cre·a'tive, adj., un·cre·a'tive·ness, n., un·cre'ture·ly, adj., un·cre'den'tialed, un·cre·den'tialled, adj. See UN-, not.

un·cred'it, v. t. [See 1st UN-.] Discredit. Obs.

un·cred'it·ed, adj., un·cred'iting, adj., un·cred'u·lous, adj., un·creep'ing, adj., un·cre'o·sot'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·crest', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·crest'ed, adj., un'crevassed', adj. See UN-, not.

un·crib', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cried', adj., un·crime', n., un·crim'i·nal, adj., un·crim'i·nal·ly, adv., un·crip'pled, adj. See UN-, not.

un·crisp', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cris'tal·ed, adj., un·cri'tical·ly, adv., un·cri'ti·cize'a·ble, un·cri'ti·cis'a·ble, adj., un·cri'ticized, un·cri'ti·cised, adj., un·cri'ti·ciz'ing, un·cri'ti·cis'ing, adj., un·cri'ti·ciz'ing·ly, un·cri'ti·cis'ing·ly, adv., un·croch'et·y, adj. See UN-, not.

un·croked' (ŭn·krōkt'), part. adj. of UNCROOK.

un·crooked' (ŭn·krŏŏk'ĕd; -krŏŏk'ĕd), adj., un·cropped', adj., un·crop't', adj., un·cross'a·ble, adj., un·cross'a·ble·ness, n., un·crossed', adj., un·cross'ex·am'i·na·ble, adj., un·cross'ex·am'ined, adj., un·cross'ly, adv., un·crowd'ed, adj., un·crowned', adj. See UN-, not.

un·crowned', part. adj. of UNCROWN.

un·cru'ci·fied, adj., un·crude', adj., un·cru'el, adj., un·crum'bled, adj., un·crum'pling, adj., un·crush'a·ble, adj., uncrushed', adj., un·crust'ed, adj., un·cry'ing, adj., un·crys'taled, un·crys'talled, adj., un·crys'tal·line, adj., un'crys·tal·liz'a·bil'i·ty, n., un·crys'tal·liz'a·ble, adj., un·crys'tal·lized, adj. See UN-, not.

un·cub'bed·ness, adj. See -LESS.

unc·to'ri·um (ŭngk·tō'rĭ·ŭm; 181), n. [L.] = ELAEOTHESIUM.

unc'tu·ose, adj. = UNCTUOUS.

un·cu'bic, adj. See UN-, not.

un·cuck'old, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·cuck'old·ed, adj., un·cudg'elled, adj., un·cuffed', adj., uncuiled', adj. See UN-, not.

un·cul'pa·ble, adj. Inculpable. Obs.

un·cul·ti·va·bil'i·ty, n., un·cul'ti·va·ble, adj., un·cul'ti·vate, adj., un·cul'ti·vat'ed, adj., un'cul·ti·va'tion, n., un·cul'tur·a·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un·cum'ber, v. t. = DISENCUMBER.

un·cum'brous, adj., un·cupped', adj., un·curb'a·ble, adj., un·curbed', adj., un·curb'ed·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un·curd', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·curd'dled, adj., un·cur'dling, adj., un·cured', adj., un·cu'ri·ous, adj., un·cu'ri·ous·ly, adv., un·curled', adj. See UN-, not.

un·curled', part. adj. of UNCURL.

un'cur·ric'u·lar·ized, adj., un·curr'ied, adj., un·cursed', adj., un·curs'ing, adj., un·curst', adj., un'curt·tailed', adj., un·curt'tained, adj., un·cush'ioned, adj., un·cusped', adj., un·cus'tom·a·ble, adj., un·cus'tom·ar'i·ly, adv., un·cus'tom·ar'i·ness, n., un·cus'tom·ar'y, adj., un'cu·tic'u·late, adj. See UN-, not.

un·cuth' (-kūth'; -kōōth'). Var. of UNCOUTH. Obs. exc. Dial.

un·cut'ta·ble, adj., un·cyn'i·cal, adj., un·cyn'i·cal·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un'cy·a (ŏŏn'sĭ·ȧ), n. sing. & pl. [Pol., fr. L. uncia.] See OUNCE.] See WEIGHT, Table.

un·cy'press, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·dab'bled, adj., un·dag'gled, adj., un·dai'ly, adj., un·dain'tiness, n., un·dain'ty, adj., undal'ly·ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·dam', v. t. See 1st UN-. — undam'ming, part. adj. & verbal n. un·dam'age·a·ble, adj., un·dam'aged, adj., un·dam'ag·ing, adj., un·dam'asked, adj., undammed', adj. See UN-, not.

un·damn', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·dam'ni·fied, adj. [See DAMNIFY.] Uninjured. Obs.

undamped waves. Radio. = CONTINUOUS WAVES b.

un·danc'ing, adj., un·dan·di'acal, adj., un·dan'dled, adj., un·dan'ger·ous, adj., un·dan'ger·ous·ness, n., un·dared', adj., un·dar'ing, adj., un·dark', adj. See UN-, not.

un·dark'en, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·dark'ened, adj., un·darned', adj., un·dat'a·ble, un·date'a·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un·daub', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·daubed', adj. See UN-, not.

un·daugh'ter, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·daunt'ing, adj., un·dawned', adj., un·dawn'ing, adj., undazed', adj., un·daz'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·daz'zled, part. adj. of UNDAZ-[ZLE.]

un·daz'zled, adj., un·daz'zling, adj. See UN-, not.

un·dead', adj., un·dead'ened, adj. See UN-, not.

un·dead'ly, adj. Immortal. Obs. — un·dead'li·ness, n. Obs.

un·deal', adj., un·deal'a·ble, adj., un·deal't', adj., un·debarred', adj., un'de·based', adj., un'de·bat'a·ble, adj., un'debat'ed, adj., un'de·bat'ing, adj., un'de·bauched', adj., un'de·bil'i·tat'ed, adj., un'de·bil'i·tat'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·dec'a·naph'thene (ŭn·dĕk'ȧ·năf'thēn), n. Chem. See UNDECANE; NAPHTHENE.

un'de·cane (ŭn'dē·kān), n. [undec- + 1st -ane.] Chem. = HENDECANE.

un·dec'a·to'ic (ŭn·dĕk'ȧ·tō'ĭk), adj. Chem. = HENDECOIC.

un'de·cay'a·ble, adj., un'de·cay'a·ble·ness, n., un'de·cayed', adj., un'de·cayed'ness, n., un'de·cay'ing, adj., un'de·ceased', adj., un'de·ceit'ful, adj. See UN-, not.

un'de·ceived', adj. See UN-, not.

un'de·cen'na·ry (ŭn'dē·sĕn'ȧ·rĭ), adj. = UNDECENNIAL.

un'de·cep'tious, adj., un'de·cep·ti'tious (ŭn'dē·sĕp·tĭsh'ŭs), adj., un'de·cep'tive, adj. See UN-, not.

un'de·cid'a·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un·dec'i·mal (ŭn·dĕs'ĭ·măl), adj. [L. undecim eleven.] Marked by or having eleven constituents, appendages, divisions, etc.

un·dec'i·man (-măn), adj. [See UNDECIMAL.] Relating to eleven o'clock.

un·dec'i·mole (-mōl), n. [L. undecim eleven, or undecimus eleventh. Cf. SESTOLE.] Music. A group of eleven notes to be given the time of eight.

un·de·ci'pher (ŭn'dē·sī'fĕr), v. t. 1. To decipher. 2. To render undecipherable.

un·de·ci'pher·a·ble (-ȧ·b'l), adj. Not capable of being deciphered; indecipherable. — un'de·ci'pher·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'de·ci'pher·a·bly, adv.

un'de·ci'phered (-fĕrd), adj. Not deciphered.

un'de·ci'sive (-sī'sĭv), adj. Indecisive. — un'de·ci'sive·ly, adv. — un'de·ci'sive·ness, n.

un·deck' (ŭn·dĕk'), v. t. To divest of ornament.

un·decked' (ŭn·dĕkt'; 66), adj. 1. Not decked; unadorned. 2. Not having a deck; as, an undecked vessel.

un'de·clare' (ŭn'dē·klâr'), v. t. To withdraw or retract.

un'de·clin'a·ble (-klīn'ȧ·b'l), adj. 1. Gram. Indeclinable. 2. That cannot be refused or rejected. 3. That cannot be inclined or deflected. 4. That cannot be avoided. — un'de·clin'a·ble·ness, n. — un'de·clin'a·bly, adv.

un'de·col'ic ac'id (ŭn'dē·kŏl'ĭk). [*undec*ylenic + propi*olic*.] Chem. A crystalline acid, $C_{11}H_{18}O_3$, of the propiolic acid series, obtained indirectly from undecylenic acid.

un'de·coyed' (ŭn'dē·koid'), adj. Provided with no decoys; also, lured by no decoy; not ensnared.

un'de·cree' (ŭn'dē·krē'), v. t. To disestablish from being decreed.

un·dec'yl (ŭn·dĕs'ĭl; -dē'sĭl), n. [*undec*ane + -yl.] Chem. Hendecyl.

un·dec'yl·ene (ŭn·dĕs'ĭ·lēn), n. [undecyl + -ene.] Chem. An olefinic hydrocarbon having the formula $C_{11}H_{22}$.

un·dec'y·len'ic (-lĕn'ĭk; -lē'nĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating any olefinic acid having the formula $C_{11}H_{20}O_2$; specif., designating a colorless crystalline acid of normal structure obtained by distilling ricinoleic acid.

un'de·cyl'ic (ŭn'dē·sĭl'ĭk), adj. Chem. Related to, derived from, or containing, undecyl; specif., designating a white crystalline fatty acid (n-hendecoic acid), $C_{11}H_{22}O_2$, artificially prepared.

un·deed'ed (ŭn·dēd'ĕd; 119), adj. Not exploited in deeds.

un·deed'ed, adj. Not deeded or transferred by deed.

un·deemed' (ŭn·dēmd'), adj. [See DEEM, v.] a Obs. Unjudged; uncensured. b Undreamed.

un·deem'ous (ŭn·dēm'ŭs), adj. [un- not + dial. form of doom + -ous.] Incalculably large; extraordinary. Scot. — un·deem'ous·ly, adv. Scot.

un'deep' (ŭn'dēp'), n. A shallow. Rare.

un'de·fat'i·ga·ble (ŭn'dē·făt'ĭ·gȧ·b'l), n. Indefatigable.

un'de·fea'si·ble (-fē'zĭ·b'l), adj. Indefeasible.

un·def'e·cat'ed (ŭn·dĕf'ē·kāt'ĕd; -Id; 119), adj. Unpurged.

un'de·fen'si·ble (ŭn'dē·fĕn'sĭ·b'l), adj. 1. Unavoidable; not to be prevented. Obs. 2. That cannot be defended, vindicated, or justified.

un'de·fin'a·ble (ŭn'dē·fīn'ȧ·b'l), adj. Indefinable. — un'de·fin'a·ble·ness, n. — un'de·fin'a·bly, adv.

un'de·fine' (-fīn'), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To make indefinite.

un·de'i·fy (ŭn·dē'ĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [1st un- + deify.] To degrade from the state of deity. — un'de·i·fi·ca'tion (ŭn'dē·ĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n.

un'de·lay'ed·ly (ŭn'dē·lā'ĕd·lĭ), adv. Without delay. Rare.

un'de·light' (-līt'), n. Want of delight; unhappiness. Rare.

un'de·liv'er·y (ŭn'dē·lĭv'ĕr·ĭ), n. Also un'de·liv'er·ance (-ăns). Nondelivery.

un'de·lud'a·ble (-lūd'ȧ·b'l), adj. Not to be deluded, or deceived.

un'de·moc'ra·tize (-mŏk'rȧ·tīz), v. t. [1st un- + democratize.] To cause to cease to be democratic. Rare.

un'de·mon'stra·ble (-mŏn'strȧ·b'l), adj. Indemonstrable. — un'de·mon'stra·bly, adv.

un'de·mon'stra·tive (ŭn'dē·mŏn'strȧ·tĭv), adj. Restrained or reserved as to expression of feeling; not effusive. — un'de·mon'stra·tive·ly, adv. — -stra·tive·ness, n.
Syn. — Cold, restrained, reserved.
Ant. — Effusive, demonstrative.

un'de·ni'a·ble (ŭn'dē·nī'ȧ·b'l), adj. 1. Incapable of denial; palpably true; indisputable; incontestable; not to be controverted; as, undeniable evidence or witnesses. 2. Unquestionably excellent; as, a person of undeniable connections. "An undeniable servant." Galsworthy. — un'de·ni'a·ble·ness, n. — un'de·ni'a·bly, adv.

‖un'de ni'hil ha'bet (ŭn'dē nī'hĭl hā'bĕt). [L.] Law. Literally, whence she has nothing: — the name of an old writ (so beginning) open to a widow to whom dower had not been assigned.

un'de·nom'i·na'tion·al (ŭn'dē·nŏm'ĭ·nā'shŭn·ăl), adj. Without restriction to a denomination; unsectarian. — un'de·nom'i·na'tion·al·ism (-lĭz'm), n. — un'de·nom'i·na'tion·al·ist (-lĭst), n. — un'de·nom'i·na'tion·al·ize (-līz), v. t. — un'de·nom'i·na'tion·al·ly, adv.

un'de·pend'ing (-pĕn'dĭng), adj. Not depending; specif., independent.

un'de·priv'a·ble (ŭn'dē·prīv'ȧ·b'l), adj. 1. That cannot be deprived; not deposable. 2. That one cannot be deprived of.

un'der (ŭn'dĕr), prep. [AS., prep. & adv.; akin to OFris. under, OS. undar, D. onder, G. unter, OHG. untar, ON. undir, Sw. & Dan. under, Goth. undar, L. infra below, inferior lower, Skr. adhara lower, adhas below. Cf. INFERIOR.] 1. Indicating position lower in elevation and in the same vertical line or plane, with various implications, as envelopment, protection, or concealment; — opposed to over; as: a Lower than and overhung by; having perpendicularly overhead; in the shelter of; at or along the foot of; as, under sunny skies, a roof or tree, or one's arm; to anchor under an island or fort; hence, specif., formerly and in astrology, overhung by or during the ascendency of, with the implication of influence upon human or individual destiny; as, born under Saturn; an under-Jupiter person.

Ah luckless babe, born under cruel star. Spenser.

b Lower than and close to: below the surface of and in or through the midst of; as, under the earth or sea; passed under mercury; below and close to or attached to the bottom of; as, to put runners under a sleigh or skids under a log; to insert a blade under the bark; below and supporting or conveying; as, two horses shot from under him; under arms; at a point below and close to; as, smote him under the short ribs; to run a line under the words. c Holding or having overhead; esp., topped or crowned with; holding up or surmounted by as a mark of allegiance, means of propulsion, etc.; as, under a hat or periwig; marching under the Japanese flag; proceeding under topgallant sails. d Below or beneath so as to be covered or enveloped; immersed in; wearing; as, keeping the plane under cover; a cellar under the house; under a cloud or blanket; land under water; to dive or swim under water; also, inside of; as, wearing a sweater under his coat; sent under separate cover. e Using or by using for concealment; by means of simultaneous use of; as, under cover of night; under pretense of ignorance; he hid a gasp under a cough. f Scot. During, esp. while shielded or concealed by; as, under night. g Devoted to the cultivation or rearing of; planted to; as, a pasture under sheep; the total area under sugar cane.

2. Indicating subjection, guidance, or control; specif.: a Subject to the bidding or authority of; led by; hence, during the reign or administration of; as, he fought under Cromwell; national prestige rose under Cleveland. b Subject to the guidance and instruction of; as, he studied physics under Maxwell. c Suffering restriction, restraint, or control by; limited in range of activity by the force or constraint of; as, under guard or quarantine; hundreds of cattle under fence; living under rules or discipline; a ship under the sea, that is, lying to, helpless to combat the sea. d Weighed upon, oppressed, or controlled by, either (1) physically; as, to travel under a heavy load; or (2) as by affliction, subjection, authority, obligation, liability, or the like; as, brave under trials; under the penalties of the law; the condition under which one enters office; under a misapprehension. e In a condition of owing performance, payment, protection, or the like, because of; required or obliged by; as, under obligation, contract, or oath; theft under trust; under the necessity of selling. f Sustaining, receiving, or undergoing the action, treatment, or application, of; suffering the effect of; exposed to; swayed or affected by; as, under the surgeon's knife; under suspicion or surveillance; under sentence; under full steam; under the impression that it was larger; also, in process of; as, under repair, construction, or discussion; in or into an insensible state through the effect of; as, under ether. g Liable to; as, under pain of punishment. h Depending for rights upon; as, holding under the first tenant.

3. Indicating that in which assignment, inclusion, or assumption, is made; specif.: a As part of, by grouping or designation; beneath, with reference to category, division, class, etc.; as, items under this head; classified under Coleoptera. b With as name, heading, or title; in the section designated as; as, reorganized under the old name; you will find the information under Natural History. c In, undergoing, or sustaining, by way of limiting circumstance; as, under the short ballot; under national prohibition; under bail. d Substantiated, attested, or warranted, by; subscribing (to a writing) with the authority, sanction, or guarantee, of; as, under one's signature, hand, seal, etc. Over is often substituted for the idiomatic under in the idea that it is position that is represented. e In accordance or conformity with; as, under the terms of the contract. f Within the range or bounds determined by; as, the angle under which we see objects.

4. Indicating the form or manner of appearance assumed or presented; specif.: a Having, bearing, or assuming, as to outward form; as, the sacrament under both kinds; under a solemn countenance. b Assuming or presenting for the sake of concealment or disguise; beneath, with reference to cover or pretext; as, under an incognito or nom de plume; under show of friendship.

5. Indicating deficiency or inferiority in respect of a standard or rank; specif.: a Inferior or subordinate to, or exceeded by, in number, size, weight, or the like; falling short of; as, to exempt incomes under four thousand dollars; all weights under twelve ounces; he is now something under fifteen; hence, at, with, or for, less than; within; as, to sell a car under the list price; he cannot do it under an hour. Specif., London Stock Exchange, one thirty-second less than; as, under ½ means $\frac{15}{32}$. b Lower than in quality, rank, or condition; as, no one under an admiral would do. c Formerly, unworthy of; unbecoming to. d Lacking the full requirement as to; inferior to the standard or requisite degree of; as, under size, weight, or age; under test; under the truth. e With subdued or scant force of; as, under the breath, that is, in a whisper.

6. Card Games. To the right of (another player).
Syn. — See BELOW. Ant. — See ABOVE.
— under one. Together; at the same time. Obs. exc. Dial.

un'der (ŭn'dĕr), adv. 1. In a position along, or downward, under something; below; beneath; underneath; specif., farther or lower down in a writing; inside of the clothing; below the horizon or the surface of water; as, one tied on top and one under; slide your scalpel under; to carry the gunwale under.

2. In or into a condition of subjection, regulation, or subordination; as, to bring the new servants under; to keep the passions under; specif., to defeat, ruin, or death; as, one of the rival firms is sure to go under.

3. So as to be covered or concealed, as by a flood, accumulation, or the like; as, in the election we snowed him under.

4. So as to be short of or less than the appointed sum, period, etc.; as, his estimates fell far under.

un'der (ŭn'dĕr), adj. 1. That lies or is placed or that moves below or beneath something else; lower; immersed; as, under parts or deposits; lying below a corresponding part; as, under teeth; specif., placed or lying on the ventral side of an animal or bird's body; placed or growing underneath the wing, throat, or other part.

2. Enclosed beneath a covering or sheath; as, an under layer of a bud.

3. Facing or protruding downwards; as, the under surface of a leaf.

4. Lower in rank or authority; subject; subordinate; as, an under order or overlooker; under classes. See 1st UNDER-.

5. Lower or less in amount, quality, degree, etc., than usual or proper; short; as, under measure; an under dose.

6. Subdued; as, an under tone or key.

7. Used predicatively or postpositively: a Held in a condition of subjection; as, to keep his passions under. b Lower in amount; as, he finds my estimates far under.

un'der, n. 1. A condition of being low or below par. Dial. 2. pl. Underclothes.

un'der, v. t. To keep or force under. Rare.

un'der- (ŭn'dĕr-; 66). A prefix, used chiefly with verbs and nouns, meaning in general below, sub-, and opposed to over-, as: a Below in position; moving to or from a lower position; from, against, toward, or on the under side; — used chiefly with verbs, and their derivative adjectives and nouns, as in:

underarch underbelly underbillow underbottom underbrace underbrew underbridge underbubble undercarry undercarve undercellar undercircle underclutch undercourse undercrawl undercrest undercurl undercurve underdead underdepth underdig underdip underdive underdot underdraft underdraught undereast underfood underfloor underflow underfolded undergarnish undergloom underglow undergraw undergore undergroan undergrow undergrub underhang underhid underhole underlife underlift underlight underlodging undermark undermentioned undername undernoted underpeep underpeer underpetticoated underpier
underpile underpitch underpoint underprompt underprop underpry underrooted underrule underrun underrut undersap undersaw underscoop underscore underseated undersee undershine undershore undershorten underslip
underspar underspecified underspin undersplice underspread underspring undersprout understay understeer understrap understratum understream understrew understrike understuff undersuck undersuit undersweep underswell underthaw underthrob undertided undertie undertint undertruss undertub undervaulted undervaulting undervarmth underwash underwind
underwoke

b Placed, or to be placed, below or inside (that which is specified); lower; also, lying below; — used with nouns, as in *under*clothing, *under*frame; also, beneath the surface of; on the side beneath; as in *under*feathering, *under*growth, *under*tow. Hence, kept from view; covert; as in *under*dealing, *under*look. Thus:

underabyss underagitation underbasal underbeak underbeam underbed underbewiling underbodice underbough underbox underbranch underbud underbuoy underbush undercap undercarry
undercase undercasing underceiling undercellar
underchamber underchap underchin underchord undercloak undercloth undercoloring undercoloriousness undercountenance undercover undercrust undercrypt undercup underdish underdown underdrawers underedge undereye underface underfeathering underfeeling underfiend underfitting underflame underflannel underflooring underforebody underframework underfringe underfrock undergarb undergraining undergrass underhabit underhammer underhatch underheaven underhistory underjacket underjaw underjungle underland underlash underleather underlid underlimit underloft undermath undermeaning undermist undermount underpacking underpain underpen underpetticoat
underpier
underpilaster underplain underplate underply underporch underprospect underpuke underregion underriddle underrobe underroom underscript underseam undersearch undersheathing undershield undershoe undersill underskin undersky underslip
undersneer undersoil undersole undersoul understem understep understrain understrife understuff understuffing undersuggestion undersuit
undersupport undersward underthirst underthought undertide undertitle undertruck undertunic undertwig undervalve undervegetation underverse undervest underwaistcoat underwave underweft underwrap

un·de·ci'sion, n. = INDECISION.

un·de·claimed', adj., un'de·claim'ing, adj., un·de·clam'a·to'ry, adj., un·de·clar'a·ble, adj., un'de·clared', adj., un·de·clined', adj., un'de·clin'ing, adj., un·de·coct'ed, adj. See UN-, not. [Chem. = HENDECOIC.]

un·de·co'ic (ŭn'dē·kō'ĭk), adj.

un'de·com·pos'a·ble (ŭn'dē·kŏm·pōz'ȧ·b'l), adj., un'de·composed' (-pōzd'), adj., un'de·compound'ed, adj., un·dec'o·rat'ed, adj., un·dec'o·ra'tive, adj., un·jec'o·rous, adj., un·dec'o·rous·ly, adv., un·dec'o·rous·ness, n., un'de·cor'ti·cat'ed, adj., un'decreased', adj., un'de·cress'ing, adj., un'de·creed', adj., un'de·cried', adj., un·ded'i·cate (Poetic), un·ded'i·cat'ed, adj., un'de·duct'ed, adj., un'de·duc'i·ble, adj. See UN-, not. un'dée. Var. of UNDÉ.

un·deep', adj., un'de·face'a·ble, adj., un'de·faced', adj., un'de·fal'cat·ed, adj., un'de·famed', adj., un'de·fam'ing, adj., un'de·fault'ed, adj., un'de·fault'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'de·feat', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'de·feat'a·ble, adj., un'defeat'ed, adj., un'de·feat'ed·ly, adv., un'de·feat'ed·ness, n., un'de·fect'i·ble, adj., un'de·fec'tive, adj., un'de·fec'tive·ness, n., un'de·fend'a·ble, adj., un'de·fend'a·ble·ness, n., un'defend'a·bly, adv., un'de·fend'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un'de·fen'sa·ble, adj. = UNDEFENSIBLE. Obs.

un'de·fense', n., un'de·fensed', adj., un'def·er·en'tial, adj., un'def·er·en'tial·ly, adv., un'deferred', adj., un'de·fi'ant, adj., un'de·fi'cient, adj., un'de·fied', adj., un'de·fil'a·ble (-fīl'ȧ·b'l), adj., un'de·filed', adj., un'defil'ed·ly (-fīl'ĕd·lĭ), adv., un'defil'ed·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un'de·fined', part. adj. of UNDEFINE.

un'de·fined', adj., un'de·fin'ed·ly (-fīn'ĕd·lĭ), adv., un'de·fin'ed·ness, n. See UN-, not. [Obs.] un·def'i·nite, adj. Indefinite.

un'de·flect'ed, adj., un'de·flow'ered, adj., un'de·formed', adj., un'de·form'ed·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un'de·fouled', adj. [See DEFOUL, DEFILE to make foul.] Undefiled. Obs.

un'de·fraud'ed, adj., un'de·frayed', adj., un·def', adj., un'de·gen'er·a·cy, n., un'de·gen'erate, adj., un'de·gen'er·at'ed, adj., un'de·gen'er·at'ing, adj., un'degrad'ed, adj., un'de·grad'ing, adj., un·de'i·fied, adj., un'de·la'ti·cal, adj., un'de·ject'ed, adj., un'de·lat'ed, adj., un'de·lay'a·ble, adj., un'de·layed', adj., un'de·lay'ing, adj., un'de·lay'ingly, adv., un'de·lect'a·ble, adj., un'de·lect'a·bly, adv., un·del'egat'ed, adj., un'de·let'ed, adj., un'de·lib'er·ate, adj., un'de·lib'erat'ed, adj., un'de·lib'er·ately, adv., un'de·lib'er·ate·ness, n., un'de·lib'er·at'ing, adj., un'de·lib'er·at'ing·ly, adv., un'de·lib'er·a'tive, adj., un'de·lib'er·a'tive·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un·del'i·ble, adj. = INDELIBLE.

un'de·lic'ious, adj., un'delight'ed, adj., un'de·light'ful, adj., un'de·light'ful·ly, adv., un'de·light'ful·ness, n., un'delight'ing, adj., un'de·light'some, adj., un'de·lim'it·ed, adj., un'de·lin'e·at'ed, adj., un'de·liv'er·a·ble, adj., un'de·liv'er·able·ness, n., un'de·liv'ered, adj., un'de·lude', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'de·lud'ed, adj., un'de·lud'ing, adj., un·del'uged, adj., un'de·lu'sive, adj., un'de·lu'sive·ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un·delve', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·delved', adj., un'de·mand'ed, adj., un'de·mand'ed, adj., un'de·mised' (ŭn'dē·mīzd'), adj., un'dem·o·crat'ic, adj., un'dem·o·crat'i·cal·ly, adv., un'de·mol'ish·a·ble, adj., un'de·mol'ished, adj., un·dem'on·strat'a·ble, adj., un·dem'on·strat'ed, adj., un'de·mure', adj., un'de·mur'ring, adj. See UN-, not.

un·den', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'de·nayed', adj. [OF. denier to deny. See DENY, v.] Undenied. Obs.

un'de·nied', adj., un'de·ni'ed·ly (-nī'ĕd·lĭ), adv., un·den'izened, adj., un'de·nom'i·nat'ed, adj., un'de·not'ed, adj., un'de·nounced', adj., un'de·nud'ed' adj. See UN-, not.

un'de·part'a·ble, adj. Inseparable. Obs. — un'de·part'a·bleness, n. — un'de·part'a·bly, adv., un'de·part'ed, adj., un'de·part'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'de·pend'a·ble, adj. See UN-, not. — un'de·pend'a·ble·ness, n. — un'de·pend'a·bly, adv.

un'de·pend'ent, adj., un'dephleg'mat·ed, adj., un'de·pict'ed, adj., un'de·plet'ed, adj., un'de·plored', adj., un'de·port'ed, adj., un'de·pos'a·ble, adj., un'de·posed', adj., un'de·pos'it·ed, adj., un'de·praved', adj., un'de·prav'ed·ness, n., un·dep're·cat'ed, adj., un'de·pre'ci·at'ed, adj., un'de·pressed', adj., un'de·press'i·ble, adj., un'de·press'ing, adj., un'de·prived', adj., un·dep'u·rat'ed, adj., un'de·put'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

N O P Q R S T U

c One subordinate or subsidiary to; — used with nouns, esp. designating officials (cf. SUB-, VICE-) as in:

underaccident	undergovernor	underroller underadmiral	underguard	underrunner underadventurer	underguardian	underruler underagency	undergunner	undersacristan underagent	underhangman	undersatisfaction underaim	underhelp	undersavior underalderman	underhill	undersawyer underbailiff	underhint	underscheme underbarber	underhorseman	underschool underbeadle	underhousemaid	underscribe underbishop	underinstrument	undersect underbishopric	underissue	underseedman underbrigadier	underjailer	undersequence underbuilder	underjanitor	underservant underbursar	underjobbing	underservice underbutler	underjudge	undersexton undercaptain	underjuryman	undershepherd undercarder	underkeeper	undersheriff undercarter	underking	undersheriffry undercause	underkingdom	undersheriffship undercellarer	underlaborer	undersheriffwick underchamberlain	underlapper	undershire underchancellor	underlaundress	undershrievalty underchanter	underlawyer	undershunter underchief	underlegate	undersignalman undercitizen	underlessee	undersociety underclearer	underlieutenant	undersorcerer underclerk	underlineman	undersort underclerkship	undermaid	undersoul undercoachman	undermaker	undersovereign undercollector	undermanager	undersow undercommander	undermarshal	underspecies underconstable	undermarshalman	underspinner undercook	undermaster	understage undercooper	undermate	understeward undercourtier	undermediator	understewardship undercrier	undermiller	underswain underdauber	underminister	underswearer underdeacon	underministry	undertapster underdebauchee	undermotion	undertreacher underdevil	undernurse	underteller underdistinction	underofficer	undertenter underdistributor	underofficial	undertenure underdoctor	underorb	underthane underdrudgery	underoverlooker	underthief underengraver	underpartner	undertrader underescheator	underplan	undertreasurer underfaction	underporter	undertribe underfactor	underpossessor	underturnkey underfaculty	underprefect	undertutor underfalconer	underprentice	undertyrant underfarmer	underpresser	underusher underfeature	underpriest	undervassal underfeeder	underprincipal	undervicar underfootman	underprior	undervintner underform	underprompter	undervillain underfurnisher	underproposition	undervinedresser undergamekeeper	underqueen	underwarden undergaoler	underranger	underwatcher undergardener	underreader	underweapon undergeneral	underrealm	underwitch undergentleman	underreceiver	underworkman undergod	underroarer	underzealot undergoverness	underrogue

d Below standard in quality, rate, or amount; insufficiently; imperfectly; deficient; — used with verbs, adjectives, and nouns, as in:

underaccommodated	underfurnish	underreckon underadjustment	undergovernment	underrecompense underargue	undergrieve	underregistration underaverage	underheat	underrepresent underbake	underhonest	underrepresentation underbalance	underhorse	underrespected underballast	underhorsed	underrigged underbank, v.	underjudge	underripe underbeaten	underlanguaged	underripened underbite	underliking	underroast underboated	underlimbed	undersaturate underboil	underlunged	undersaturation underboom	undermade	underscrupulous undercanvass	undermeasure	underseedled undercapitaled	undermimic	undersight underchurched	undermoated	undersighted underclad	undermoral	undersleep underclothed	underofficered	undersow undercomment	underopinion	understaff underconcerned	underorganization	understain underconsume	underoxidize	understamp underconsumption	underpaid	understimulus undercook	underparticipation	understress undercorrect	underpay	undersupply underdevelop	underpayment	undertalk underdevelopment	underpeopled	undertaxed underdose	underpitched	underterrestrial underdressed	underpopulate	undertest underdry	underpopulation	undertrained underdunged	underpot	underventilation undereat	underpraise	undervitalized undereducated	underpressure	undervocabularied underemployment	underprize	underwage underfed	underproduce	underweighted underfinance	underproficient	underwheel underfootage	underqualified	underyield underfortify	underrealize	underzeal underfrequency

e Of sound, subdued; low-toned; — used with nouns; as in:

underbeat	undergabble	underring underbreath	undergrowl	undersound underchime	underhum	undertalk undercry	undermelody	undertune underdialogue	undermusic	undervoice underdrumming	undernote	underwhistle un′der- (ŭn′dĕr-). The preposition under used in composition (with any of its various senses), to form adjectives and adverbs, as in *under*foot, *under*hand; and as in:

underbreath	underlevel	underproficient underfloor	undermountain	underswamp underguard

un′der-act′ (ŭn′dĕr-ăkt′), v. t. To act feebly, as a dramatic part. — un′der-act′ed, adj. — un′der-act′ing, adj. & n.

un′der-ac′tion (ŭn′dĕr-ăk′shŭn; ŭn′dĕr-ăk′shŭn), n. 1. Subordinate action; a minor action incidental or subsidiary to the main story; an episode.
2. (pron. ŭn′dĕr-ăk′shŭn) Subnormal or insufficient action.

un′der-ac′tor (-tĕr), n. A subordinate actor.

un′der-age′ (ŭn′dĕr-āj′; 66), adj. 1. Of less than mature age.
2. Of an age below the norm.

un′der-age′ (ŭn′dĕr-āj′), n. The time of a person's minority. Obs.

un′der-age (ŭn′dĕr-ĭj), n. Shortage; deficit.

un′der-aid′ (ŭn′dĕr-ād′), v. t. To aid clandestinely. Obs.

un′der-air′ (ŭn′dĕr- âr′), n. The lowest strata of the atmosphere.

un′der-air′ (-âr′), v. t. To give insufficient air to, as for drying, ventilation, etc.

un′der-arm′ (ŭn′dĕr-ärm′), adj. 1. Placed under, or on the under side of, the arm; as, underarm seams.
2. Sports. Underhand; — sometimes used adverbially.

un′der-arm′ing (-är′mĭng), adj. To be worn under armor. Obs.

un′der-back′ (-băk′), n. Brewing. A vessel which receives the wort as it flows from the mash tun.

un′der-bar′ring (-bär′ĭng), n. Poultry. Barring on that part of the feathers not visible on the surface.

un′der-bear′ (ŭn′dĕr-bâr′), v. t. [AS. underberan. See UNDER; BEAR to support.] 1. To support; endure. Now R.
2. To line or trim at the bottom. Rare. Shak.

un′der-bear′er (ŭn′dĕr-bâr′ĕr), n. Formerly, one who assists at a funeral in bearing the coffin. Chiefly Dial.

un′der-bear′ing (-bâr′ĭng), adj. Unassuming.

un′der-be′ing (ŭn′dĕr-bē′ĭng), n. A being of less than divine nature; a mortal. Obs.

under bevel. See 1st BEVEL, 1.

un′der-bid′ (ŭn′dĕr-bĭd′), v. t. To bid less than, when a contract or service is offered to the lowest bidder; to offer to contract, sell, or do, for a less price than; also, Obs., to undervalue. — v. i. To offer too little in bidding. — un′der-bid′ (-bĭd′), n. — un′der-bid′der (-bĭd′ĕr), n.

un′der-bill′ (-bĭl′), v. t. Com. To bill at less than the real amount.

un′der-bind′ (ŭn′dĕr-bīnd′), v. t. To bind with a fastening beneath; to bind down. Obs.

un′der-bit′ (-bĭt′), n. An earmark for cattle corresponding to the overbit, but on the lower side of the ear. — un′der-bit′ted (-ĕd; -ĭd), adj.

un′der-bite′ (-bīt′), v. t. Etching. a To etch insufficiently. b To undercut. — un′der-bit′ten (-bĭt′n), adj.

un′der-board′ (ŭn′dĕr-bōrd′; 181), adv. Obs. a Under the board, or table; under deck. b Clandestinely; underhand.

un′der-bod′y (-bŏd′ĭ), n. 1. The lower part of the body of an animal, vehicle, aircraft, etc.; the underwater part of the hull of a vessel; Obs., the lower part of a woman's dress.
2. A corset cover. Dial., U. S.

un′der-born′ (-bôrn′; 66), adj Not normally developed when born.

un′der-bowed′ (-bōd′; 66), adj. Archery. Using a bow that is too weak or beneath one's strength.

un′der-boy′ (-boi′), n. A schoolboy of a lower or junior school.

un′der-braced′ (-brāst′), adj. Not sufficiently braced; specif., designating a truss that depends upon some of its joints for its rigidity, as a simple queen-post truss.

un′der-breath′ing (-brĕth′ĭng), adj. Suppressed. H. Brooke.

un′der-bred′ (ŭn′dĕr-brĕd′; 66), adj. 1. Not of, or marked by, good breeding; ill-bred.
2. Not of pure breed; as, an underbred dog.

un′der-bred′ (ŭn′dĕr-brĕd′), n. An underbred animal.

un′der-breed′ing (-brēd′ĭng), n. Condition or quality of being underbred.

un′der-bright′ (ŭn′dĕr-brīt′), n. A streak of very bright light occasionally seen below clouds near the horizon.

un′der-brim′ (-brĭm′), n. A facing on the underside of a hat brim.

un′der-brush′ (-brŭsh′), n. Shrubs, bushes, small trees, etc., growing beneath large trees in a wood or forest; brush.

un′der-brush′, v. t. & i. To clear of underbrush; to cut or clear away underbrush. Colloq.

un′der-build′ (ŭn′dĕr-bĭld′), v. t. 1. To build a supporting structure underneath; to build beneath.
2. To build below the standard of (one's position).
3. To fall short of standards of construction in building.

un′der-burn′ (-bûrn′), v. t. a Obs. To burn up. b To burn insufficiently. c To burn, as clay, at a less than normal temperature. — un′der-burned′ (-bûrnd′), un′der-burnt′ (-bûrnt′), part. adj.

un′der-bur′y (-bĕr′ĭ), v. t. To charge less than (another) for burying.

un′der-buy′ (-bī′), v. Transitive: 1. To buy at less than the real value or worth.
2. To buy cheaper than; as, to underbuy a rival.
——, Intransitive: To buy insufficient quantities.

un′der-can′o·py (ŭn′dĕr-kăn′ō-pĭ), n. Forestry. The understory.

un′der-cap′i·tal·ize (-kăp′ĭ-tăl-īz), v. t. To supply with insufficient capital, esp. for highly productive or efficient operation.—un′der-cap′i·tal·i·za′tion (-ĭ-zā′shŭn; -ĭ-zā′-), n.

un′der-car′riage (ŭn′dĕr-kăr′ĭj), n. 1. The supporting framework of anything; as, the undercarriage of a gun; esp., the supporting framework under the body of a carriage, wagon, or automobile.
2. The landing gear of an aircraft. See LANDING GEAR.

un′der-carved′ (-kärvd′), adj. Carved below. Rare.

un′der-cast′ (ŭn′dĕr-kăst′), n. Mining. A passage for air carried under a road or floor.

un′der-cast′ (-kăst′), v. t. 1. Obs. a To cast down; to subject (oneself). b To subject, as to a penalty. c To cast about in mind.
2. To cast or carry underneath or on the lower side of.

un′der-charge′ (-chärj′), v. t. 1. To charge less than is usual or suitable for; as, to undercharge goods or services; also, to charge (a person) too little for something.
2. To load with too small an explosive charge, as a gun; to magnetize with a lower magnetic charge than another.

un′der-charge′ (ŭn′dĕr-chärj′), n. A charge that is less than is usual or suitable.

un′der-charged′ (-chärjd′), adj. 1. Containing less than the proper explosive charge.
2. Mil. Mining. Having a crater narrower than that of a common mine.

un′der-class′ (ŭn′dĕr-klăs′), n. Usually pl. The freshman or the sophomore class. — adj. Belonging or pertaining to the underclasses.

un′der-class′man (-klăs′măn), n. A member of the freshman or sophomore class in a college or secondary school.

un′der-clay′ (ŭn′dĕr-klā′), n. A layer of clay beneath a coal bed, often containing roots of coal plants, esp. stigmaria; fire clay.

un′der-cliff′ (-klĭf′), n. A terrace or subordinate cliff on a shore, consisting of material fallen from the cliff above.

un′der-clothe′ (-klōth′), v. t. To clothe in or supply with underclothes.

un′der-clothes′ (ŭn′dĕr-klōthz′; cf. CLOTHES), n. pl. Clothes worn under others, esp. those worn next the skin.

un′der-cloth′ing (-klōth′ĭng), n. Underclothes.

un′der-club′ (-klŭb′), v. t. & i. Golf. To use a club not designed to yield the distance needed to be covered.

un′der-coat′ (ŭn′dĕr-kōt′), n. 1. A coat worn under another.
2. A growth of short hair or fur partly concealed by a longer growth; as, a dog's undercoat.
3. a A coat of paint under another. b Hence, a paint prepared for use under a finishing coat.
4. The course of crushed stone that is immediately under the wearing surface of a bituminous pavement. Eng.
5. An underskirt or petticoat. Now Dial.
— un′der-coat′ed (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj.

un′der-col′or (ŭn′dĕr-kŭl′ĕr), n. The color of basal parts of the hair or feathers of mammals or birds.

un′der-col′ored (-kŭl′ĕrd; 66), adj. 1. Having less color than needed or proper; not sufficiently colored.
2. (pron. ŭn′dĕr-kŭl′ĕrd) Having, or pertaining to, undercolor.

un′der-com·pound′ed (-kŏm·poun′dĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. Elec. Of a dynamo or motor, having the shunt and series field coils so related that the voltage decreases with increasing load.

un′der-con·di′tion (ŭn′dĕr-kŏn·dĭsh′ŭn), n. An inferior or subordinate condition.

un′der-con·sump′tion (-kŏn·sŭmp′shŭn), n. Consumption of less than is produced; consumption of less than the usual amount.

un′der-cool′ (-kōōl′), v. t. & i. a To cool less than required for some purpose (specified or understood). b Physical Chem. To supercool.

un′der-cov′er (-kŭv′ĕr), adj. Acting or executed in secret; surreptitious; specif., Colloq., employed or engaged in spying investigation.

undercover man. One who undertakes to secure evidence of criminal or illegal actions by working with or among those who are under suspicion; also, one who secures a position, as in a business, factory, or the like, for the purpose of illicitly obtaining confidential information.

un′der-cov′ert (ŭn′dĕr-kŭv′ĕrt), n. 1. A covert of underbrush.
2. Also under covert. One of the small basal feathers of the under side of a bird's wing or tail.

un′der-craft′ (-krăft′), n. A sly trick. Obs.

un′der-creep′ (-krēp′), v. t. To get beneath by creeping; also, to overreach or outdo. Obs. exc. Dial.

un′der-crest′ (-krĕst′), v. t. To support or bear as a crest. Obs.

un′der-croft′ (ŭn′dĕr-krôft′; 185), n. [under + croft a vault.] Arch. A subterranean room of any kind; esp., a vaulted chamber under a church (see CRYPT, 1), or one used as a chapel or for any sacred purpose.

un′der-crop′ (-krŏp′), n. An earmark for cattle, corresponding to the overcrop but on the lower side of the ear.

un′der-cur′rent (-kûr′ĕnt), n. 1. A current below the upper currents or surface of water, air, etc.
2. Hence, a tendency of feeling, opinion, or the like, more or less hidden, and often contrary to that publicly shown; as, an undercurrent of sentiment in favor of one.
3. pl. In placer mining, broad branch sluices, set at small inclination, into which water carrying fine gold is diverted from the main sluice to lessen the velocity of flow in order to promote the settling. See SLUICE, Illust.
4. Elec. A current whose intensity is lower than a specified amount.

un′der-cur′rent, adj. Running under the surface; passing in secret; hidden; as, undercurrent protest.

un′der-cur′rent, v. i. To accompany or parallel with an undercurrent, as of gestures or ejaculations.

un′der-cut′ (-kŭt′), n. 1. An action of cutting away from the under side of anything or a part so cut away; as, the undercut of a vehicle; the undercut of a tooth cavity for anchoring a filling.
2. Cooking. a Eng. The lower or under side of a sirloin of beef; the fillet; the tenderloin. b U. S. A piece of beef for roasting boned out from under the shoulder blade.
3. Golf. Backspin.
4. Lawn Tennis. A cut made with an underhand stroke.
5. Logging. In felling trees, the notch cut in the base of the tree to determine the direction of falling and to prevent splitting; — called also nick.
6. Mining. = KERF, n., 6.

un′der-cut′ (-kŭt′), v. Transitive: 1. To cut away the under part of; to cut away below or at the base; as, to undercut a vein of ore.
2. To cut away or shape, as the under part of the side of an object, so as to leave an overhanging portion or portions in relief, as in carving and sculpture.
3. To offer to sell at lower prices than (a competitor), or to work for lower wages, serve for lower fees, etc., than (another); to accept or offer to accept a lower scale of (prices or wages) than is standard or general.
4. Bookbinding. a To cut into (a book cover) because of an improperly prepared die. b To cut or trim with a knife or tool operating upward instead of downward.
5. Etching. To eat under so as to leave without proper support; — said of the action of acid on the lines, etc., of the printing surface.
6. Field Hockey. To hit (the ball) with the face of the stick laid back.
7. Golf. a To strike obliquely down against (the ball) so as to impart backspin. b Sometimes, to strike (the ball) on the under side so as to give elevation.
8. Lawn Tennis. To cut (the ball) with an underhand stroke.
——, Intransitive: To perform the action of cutting away a base, undercutting a surface, a ball, a rival, etc.
— un′der-cut′ting, part. adj. & verbal n.

un′der-cut′ (-kŭt′; 66), adj. Cut away below or on the under side; having under material cut or carved away so as to be left standing out in relief; as, undercut rims and figures on pottery.

un′der-cut′, v. t. To cut less timber than the growth of (a forest) and less than the estimated annual cut. — un′der-cut′, n.

un′der-cut′ter (ŭn′dĕr-kŭt′ĕr), n. One who or that which undercuts or makes undercuts; specif.: a A woodsman who chops the undercut in a tree that is to be felled. b One who undercuts a competitor, prices, or wages.

under damping. Elec. See DAMPING a.

un′der-deal′ing (ŭn′dĕr-dēl′ĭng), n. Underhanded dealing. Obs. — un′der-deal′er (-ĕr), n. Obs.

un′der-deck′ (-dĕk′), n. A lower deck of a ship. — adj. Belonging to or carried on an underdeck.

underdeck tonnage. See TONNAGE, n., 5.

un′der-ditch′ (-dĭch′), v. t. To dig an underground ditch or ditches in (a field or farm), so as to drain the surface.

un′der-do′ (-dōō′), v. i. To do less than one can, or than is requisite or proper. — v. t. To do less thoroughly than one can, or less than is requisite; specif., Eng., to cook rare, as meat; also, formerly, to underact. — un′der-do′er (-dōō′ĕr), n. — un′der-do′ing, part. adj.

un′de·ranged′ (ŭn′dē·rānjd′), adj. See UN-, not.
un′der-borne′, un′der-bought′, part. adjs. of UNDERBEAR, UNDERBUY. un′der-bound′, part. adj. of UNDERBIND. un′der-bow′ser, n. = UNDERBURSAR. un′der-build′ing, n. = SUBSTRUCTURE a.
un′der-bush′, n. & v. = UNDERBRUSH. un′der-cliff′, n. = UNDERCLIFF. un′der-coat′er, n. = UNDERCOAT, 3 b. un′der-coat′ing, n. = UNDERCOAT, 3. un′der-cov′er·ing, n. = UNDERCOAT, 2. undercurrent relay. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3.

un′der·dog′ (ŭn′dĕr·dŏg′; 66; 185), n. The dog that is losing or has lost in a fight; hence, the loser in any struggle; esp., a victim of social injustice or of ruthless persecution.

under dominant. = SUBDOMINANT.

un′der·done′ (ŭn′dĕr·dŭn′; ŭn′dĕr·dŭn′; 66), adj. Not thoroughly done; esp., cooked for a comparatively short or an insufficient time; rare; as, an underdone chop.

un′der·dose′ (ŭn′dĕr·dōs′), n. A dose less than is required; an insufficient dose.

un′der·dose′ (-dōs′), v. t. & i. To give an underdose or underdoses (of); to practice giving insufficient doses.

un′der·drag′ (ŭn′dĕr·drăg′), n. Geol. Hypothetically, the combined tensile stresses, or pull, exerted by an overthrust rock mass upon rocks which overlie it, but are not themselves under the compressive thrusting stresses, and hence tend to be stretched, or broken by normal faulting.

un′der·drag′ (-drăg′), v. t. Geol. To pull on the under side (an overlying mass of rock). — v. i. To be affected by pull from the under side.

un′der·drain′ (ŭn′dĕr·drān′), n. A concealed drain with openings through which the water enters when the water table reaches, or is higher than, the level of the drain, as one laid below a filter bed, sludge bed, cultivated field, etc.

un′der·drain′ (-drān′), v. t. To drain by forming an underdrain or underdrains in. — un′der·drain′er, n.

un′der·drain′age (ŭn′dĕr·drān′ĭj), n. The drainage of soil by means of drains placed beneath the surface.

un′der·draw′ (-drô′), v. t. 1. To draw a line under; to underscore.
2. To draw or depict inadequately.
3. To overlay or line, as a roof or ceiling, with thin boards, lath and plaster, or the like.
4. To draw from (an account) less than the amount credited.

un′der·drawn′ (ŭn′dĕr·drôn′; 66), past part. of UNDERDRAW. Specif.: adj. Arch. a Covered beneath, as by plasterwork; — said of a previously exposed floor. b Designating a floor or set of beams so placed beneath the roof as to form a garret.

un′der·dress′ (-drĕs′), v. i. To dress less well or fully than is fit.

un′der·dress′ (ŭn′dĕr·drĕs′), n. Clothing worn under outer clothing.

un′der·drive′ (-drīv′), v. t. To drive from beneath.

un′der·drive′ (ŭn′dĕr·drīv′), n. Mach. A transmission gear which transmits to the driven shaft a speed less than engine speed or less than the speed provided by the normal gear set.

un′der·earth′ (-ûrth′), adj. Also, Obs., un′der·earth′ly (-ûrth′lĭ). Subterranean.

un′der·earth′, n. 1. The soil or a layer, as of clay, beneath the earth's surface.
2. The depths of the earth.

un′der·eat′en (-ēt′n), adj. Eaten or worn away from beneath.

un′der·en′ter (-ĕn′tĕr), v. t. To enter as of less than the actual quantity.

un′der·er (ŭn′dĕr·ĕr), n. An underling. Rare.

un′der·es′ti·mate (-ĕs′tĭ·māt), v. t. & i. To set too low a value on; to estimate below the truth.
Syn. — Undervalue, underrate, minimize.
Ant. — Overestimate, exaggerate.

un′der·es′ti·mate (ŭn′dĕr·ĕs′tĭ·mât), un′der·es′ti·ma′tion (-mā′shŭn), n. Act of underestimating; also, too low an estimate.

un′der·ex·cit′ed (-ĕk·sīt′ĕd; -ĭd; -ĭk·sīt′-; 119), adj. Elec. Operated under conditions when the exciter is working below normal.

un′der·ex′er·cise (-ĕk′sĕr·sīz), v. i. & t. To exercise too little. — n. Inadequate amount of exercise.

un′der·ex·pose′ (-ĕks·pōz′; -ĭks·pōz′), v. t. Photog. To expose (a plate or film) for less time than is needed. — un′der·ex·po′sure (-pō′zhĕr), n.

un′der·fall′ (-fôl′), v. i. To succumb. Obs.

un′der·fall′ (ŭn′dĕr·fôl′), n. A lower mountain slope; — usually in pl.

un′der·feed′ (-fēd′), v. t. 1. To feed with too little food.
2. To feed with fuel from the under side.

un′der·feed′ (ŭn′dĕr·fēd′), adj. Mach. Being fed or feeding from beneath, as of a stoker that pushes, by mechanical means, the green fuel beneath the ignited fuel bed.

un′der·feel′ (-fēl′), v. t. To feel out underhandedly. Obs.

un′der·feet′ (-fēt′), adv. Underfoot.

un′der·fel′low (ŭn′dĕr·fĕl′ō), n. 1. A low fellow. Obs.
2. A subordinate.

un′der·fill′ (-fĭl′), n. A rolled material having parts that were not completely filled in the rolling operation. — v. i. To produce an underfill.

un′der·fill′ing (-fĭl′ĭng), n. The filling below or beneath; the under part of a building.

un′der·find′ (-fīnd′), v. i. [Cf. D. ondervinden to find out.] To understand. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

un′der·fire′ (-fīr′), v. t. 1. Ceram. To fire insufficiently.
2. To fire from beneath.

un′der·fleece′ (ŭn′dĕr·flēs′), n. The short thick fleece under the outer fleece of any woolly animal.

un′der·flow′ (-flō′), n. A flowing under, or that which flows under.

un′der·fold′ (-fōld′), v. t. To fold within so as to hide.

un′der·fold′ (ŭn′dĕr·fōld′), n. A fold lying under or beneath a surface, or beneath another fold.

un′der·fong′ (-fŏng′), v. t. [AS. underfangen, past part. of underfōn to receive, undertake, fr. under under + fōn to take. See FANG to seize.] Obs. 1. To undertake; receive; sustain.
2. To ensnare; circumvent; entrap. Spenser.

un′der·foot′ (-fo͝ot′), adv. 1. Under the foot or feet, esp. against the ground; as, to trample the hated emblem underfoot; also, on the bottom of the foot or feet, as for wear.
2. Below at one's feet; as, violets growing underfoot; also, underground.
3. In the way of or obstructing one's feet; in the way. Colloq.
4. In or into subjection; under control; as, to hold his anger underfoot.
5. Under cover of secrecy.
6. Under the current price or value. Obs.

un′der·foot′ (ŭn′dĕr·fo͝ot′; 66), adj. 1. That is under the foot or feet.
2. Low; base; abject; downtrodden.

un′der·foot′ (-fo͝ot′), v. t. 1. To support beneath; to prop; underpin.
2. To replace the footings beneath.

un′der·frame′ (ŭn′dĕr·frām′), n. The lower or lowermost of two or more superimposed frames; a frame supporting a superstructure, as of a railroad car; in an automotive vehicle, a frame which carries the engine and is supported by the main chassis. — un′der·fram′ing (-frām′ĭng), n.

un′der·freight′ (-frāt′), v. t. To underlet for transportation of goods or passengers.

un′der·fur′ (ŭn′dĕr·fûr′), n. The thick soft fur, sometimes curly and barbed, lying beneath the longer and coarser hair of an animal, esp. of a fur-bearing animal, as a beaver. Cf. 1st FUR, 3; UNDERCOAT, 2.

un′der·fur′row (-fûr′ō), v. t. To cover as under a furrow; to plow in; as, to underfurrow seed or manure.

un′der·gar′ment (ŭn′dĕr·gär′mĕnt), n. A garment to be worn under another, esp. under the outer clothing.

un′der·gauge′, un′der·gage′ (-gāj′), n. Mach. A not-go gauge of the limit-gauge type used for sheets, plates, etc.

un′der·gear′ (-gēr′), n. 1. Gear placed below, or under, something else.
2. Undergarments. Colloq.

un′der·gird′ (-gûrd′), v. t. 1. To gird below or round the bottom. "Undergirding the ship." Acts xxvii. 17.
2. To invest with support or bracing strength.
— un′der·gird′er (ŭn′dĕr·gûr′dĕr), n. — un′der·gird′ing, n.

un′der·gir′dle (-gûr′d'l), v. t. To pass a girdle underneath; to encompass with supporting or sustaining power.

un′der·gir′dle (ŭn′dĕr·gûr′d'l), n. A girdle or belt passed or worn underneath outer clothing.

un′der·girth′ (-gûrth′), n. The band or rope used in undergirding.

un′der·glaze′ (ŭn′dĕr·glāz′), adj. Ceramics. Applied under the glaze, that is, before the glaze is put on; fitted to be so applied; — said of colors in porcelain and earthenware decoration. Cf. OVERGLAZE.

un′der·go′ (-gō′), v.; past tense UN′DER·WENT′ (-wĕnt′) past part. -GONE′ (-gŏn′; 185); pres. part. & verbal n. -GO′ING. [Cf. AS. undergān to undermine, ruin, under gangan to undergo (cf. GANG go). See UNDER; GO.] Transitive: 1. In Obs. uses: a To injure by weakening; to undermine. b To go, move, or pass, under or underneath; as, besiegers underwent the city wall; to die and undergo the earth. c To bear or carry (a burden). d To find out or understand. e To take charge of or perform (a duty, office, etc.). f To be the bearer of; to partake of. "To undergo such ample grace." Shak. g To go under (a name).
2. To be subjected or submit to; to bear up against; to endure; suffer; sustain; as, to undergo pain, grief.
3. To be exposed or liable, or expose oneself, to; to experience; as, to undergo a storm or jealousy.
Claudio undergoes my challenge. Shak.
4. To pass through or to experience (a change, metamorphosis, improvement, etc.).
5. To undertake or take upon oneself; to engage in. Now Rare.
To undergo with me an enterprise. Shak.
6. To do service under; to serve. Rare.
Made our language undergo you. Browning.
—, Intransitive: To endure. Rare.
— un′der·go′er, n. — un′der·go′ing, part. adj.

un′der·go′ (ŭn′dĕr·gō′), n. A shirt. Dial.

un′der·gov′ern·ment (-gŭv′ĕrn·mĕnt), n. Inadequate exercise of the powers of government, — sometimes with an implication of weakness on the part of the governing authority. — un′der·gov′ern·ment, adj.

un′der·gown′ (ŭn′dĕr·goun′), n. A gown worn under another, or under some other article of dress.

un′der·grade′ (-grād′; 66), adj. 1. Below or inferior to standard grade.
2. Railroads. a Below the grade of the track. b Designating a (deck) bridge.

un′der·grad′u·ate (-grăd′ū·ăt), n. 1. A student in a university, a college, etc., who has not taken a degree.
2. One whose training is not yet perfect; a novice.

un′der·grad′u·ate, adj. 1. Insignificant. Obs.
2. Ranked as or being an undergraduate.
3. Of or pertaining to an undergraduate or the body of undergraduates; consisting of or designed for undergraduates.

un′der·grad′u·ette′ (-grăd′ū·ĕt′), n. = CODED.

un′der·green′ (ŭn′dĕr·grēn′), adj. Green underneath or on the under side.

un′der·groan′ (-grōn′), v. t. To groan beneath. Obs.

un′der·grope′ (-grōp′), v. i. To seek underhandedly to learn. Obs.

un′der·ground′ (ŭn′dĕr·ground′), adv. 1. Beneath the surface of the earth.
2. In secret; stealthily; surreptitiously; in or into hiding or secret operation.

un′der·ground′ (ŭn′dĕr·ground′), adj. 1. Being, growing, or situated, below the surface of the ground; as, an underground story or apartment.
2. Dwelling in an underworld.
3. Used or adapted for use or wear underground, as in a cave or mine; employed or performing duties underground; as, underground foremen, stokers, surveyors.
4. Done or occurring underground, esp. away from public knowledge; conducted or conveyed by secret or stealthy means.

un′der·ground′, n. 1. The place or space beneath the surface of the ground; a subterranean space or channel.
2. Ground or soil lying beneath the surface or beneath something else.
3. An underground railway system, esp. that in London.

un′der·ground′, v. t. To lay underground, as wires. Colloq.

underground cable. Elec. A cable in which each conductor is insulated and the assembly of conductors is surrounded by belt insulation, the whole being enclosed in a lead sheath and laid underground. See CABLE, n., 5.

un′der·ground′er (-groun′dĕr), n. One who works underground or rides on an underground railway.

underground insurance. Insurance written in contravention of a local or state law. Hist., U. S.

underground railroad. a = UNDERGROUND RAILWAY. b [usually caps.] Formerly, a system of co-operation among certain active antislavery people in the United States, by which fugitive slaves were secretly helped to reach the North or Canada.

underground railway. A railway running in a subway, esp. one beneath the street level of a city.

un′der·grove′ (ŭn′dĕr·grōv′), n. A grove of shrubs or low trees under taller ones.

un′der·grow′ (ŭn′dĕr·grō′), v. i. 1. To grow beneath something or up from beneath.
2. To grow to an inferior, or less than the usual, size or height. Rare.

un′der·grown′ (ŭn′dĕr·grōn′; 66), adj. 1. Of small stature; not grown to full height or size.
2. Grown over with an undergrowth.

un′der·growth′ (ŭn′dĕr·grōth′), n. 1. The underbrush, together with the associated herbs on the forest floor.
2. A fine growth of hair underneath the coarser outer hair of a pelt.
3. Short undeveloped stems, as of wheat or flax.
4. A condition of incomplete or imperfect growth.

un′der·hand′ (-hănd′; 66), adv. 1. Obs. a In hand; in subjection. b In course of progress.
2. By secret means; unobtrusively; in a clandestine manner; slyly; hence, by fraud; unfairly.
3. With the hands hung or swinging low; as: a Dial. (Borne) by slings held in the bearers' hands. b With an underhand motion.
4. Archery. From below the bow hand.
5. Baseball, Cricket, etc. In an underhand manner; — said of pitching or bowling.

un′der·hand′, adj. 1. Performed with hands swinging downward from the shoulders; making delivery underhand.
2. Grasped or directed by the hand or hands.
3. Secret; sly; clandestine; hence, mean; unfair; fraudulent; as, to win by underhand means.
4. Employed or conducted so as to evade notice; unobtrusive.
5. Working as a subordinate, assistant, or helper. Brit.
6. Archery. Seen below the bow hand.
7. Baseball, Cricket, etc. Done, as pitching, with the hand lower than the shoulder, or, as bowling, with the whole movement of the arm approximately in a vertical plane below the shoulder, the ball being delivered after the hand has passed the lowest point of its swing.
8. Mining. Designating a manner of mining from above downwards.
Syn. — See SECRET. Ant. — Aboveboard, honest, open.

un′der·hand′, n. 1. A ball delivered underhand or a method of underhand delivery.
2. A position of subordination or dependence.

underhand bundler. See BUNDLER.

un′der·hand′ed (66), adj. 1. Underhand; clandestine.
2. Insufficiently provided with hands or workers; short-handed; also, Rare, sparsely populated.
3. Undersized. Dial.
4. Set below, as farther on in a book.
— un′der·hand′ed·ly, adv. — un′der·hand′ed·ness, n.

underhand stope. Mining. See STOPE, n.; MINE, Illust.

un′der·hang′ing (ŭn′dĕr·hăng′ĭng), n. Protrusion, esp. of the lower jaw. — adj. Having a protruding lower jaw.

un′der·head′ (-hĕd′), n. 1. A stupid person. Obs.
2. A subordinate, assistant, or deputy.

un′der·heat′ brood′er (ŭn′dĕr·hēt′). A brooder in which the chicks reside usually on about two inches of sand, heated electrically or otherwise.

un′der·hew′ (-hū′), v. t. To hew less than usual or proper; specif., to hew (a piece of timber which should be square) so that it appears to contain more cubic feet.

un′der·hive′ (-hīv′), v. t. To hive (bees) in insufficient space.

un′der·hold′ (ŭn′dĕr·hōld′), n. Wrestling. A hold in which the opponent is grasped under his arms.

un′der·hole′ (-hōl′), v. t. & i. Mining. To cut away the lower portion of, or to cut under (a coal seam). Local, U. S. un′der·hung′ (ŭn′dĕr·hŭng′; 66), adj. 1. Projecting beyond the upper jaw; — said of the lower jaw. Also, having the lower jaw projecting; undershot.

2. Suspended so that the point of support is beneath the load; underslung; specif., resting on a track at the bottom, instead of being suspended from above; — said of a sliding door.

un′der·jawed′ (ŭn′dĕr·jôd′; 66), adj. Having the under jaw prominent.

un′der·keep′ (-kēp′), v. t. To keep under; suppress. Obs.

un′der·laid′ (ŭn′dĕr·lād′; 66), adj. 1. Laid or placed underneath.
2. Having something laid or lying underneath, esp. as a supporting or strengthening layer or force.
3. Furnished from underneath, as with water.

un′der·lap′ (-lăp′), v. i. & t. To project under the edge or end of (something); as, the forward end of each plank underlaps the overlapping rear end of the next.

un′der·lay′ (-lā′), v. t. [AS. underlecgan. See UNDER; LAY, v. t.] 1. To cover, line, or traverse, the bottom of; to give support to on the under side or below; to place a line or layer beneath or inside of;—followed by with; as, to underlay the channel with a cable; slates underlaid with roofing paper; to underlay the pavement with traprock.
2. Specif.: a To raise or support by something laid under; as, to underlay a cut, plate, or the like, for printing. b Obs. To put a tap on (a shoe). c Hence, Obs., to rectify or readjust fundamentally, as early indiscretions.
3. To place or interpose beneath or in an under or supporting position; as, to underlay a thin strip of board to raise the lid.
4. To bury. Obs.
5. a To lie beneath, or under, as beneath a stratum of coal, under a ban, etc. b = UNDERLIE, 3.

un′der·lay′ (ŭn′dĕr·lā′), n. 1. That which underlays or underlies something; specif.: a A tap affixed to the sole of a shoe. b A piece inserted underneath as a prop. c Foundation material lining a silk garment. d Beekeeping. = EKE, n., 2. e Print. A thickness of paper or the like placed under type, etc., to bring it to the proper height for printing.
2. A basic trend not evident upon the surface; an undercurrent.
3. = ZEUXIS, 2. Obs.

un′der·lay′er (-lā′ĕr), n. Obs. 1. That which underlays something else, esp. as a foundation or support.
2. A cobbler.

un′der·lay′er (ŭn′dĕr·lā′ĕr), n. A layer that underlies another; a substratum.

un′der·lay′ing (-lā′ĭng), n. The action of laying or interposing something beneath; a line or layer or the like laid underneath.

un′der·leaf′ (-lēf′), n. 1. A kind of apple used for cider.
2. The under side of a leaf.
3. Bot. An amphigastrium.

---

un′der·drift′, n. = UNDERCURRENT.

un′der·driv′en, past part. of UNDERDRIVE. Specif., adj. (pron. ŭn′dĕr·drīv′ĕn), Mach., see OVERDRIVEN.

un′der·fo′, v. t. = UNDERFONG, 1. Obs.

un′der·fre′quen·cy re·lay′. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3.

un′der·fur′nish, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un′der·gang′, v. t. [AS. undergangan.] = UNDERGO. Obs. exc. Dial.

un′der·glaze′ col′ors. See POTTERY, n., 3 b.

un′der·grad′ (ŭn′dĕr·grăd′). Short for UNDERGRADUATE.

un′der·grad′u·ate·dom, n. See -DOM.

un′der·grad′u·ate·ness, n. See -NESS.

un′der·grad′u·ate·ship′, n. See -SHIP.

un′der·grad′u·at·ish (-ĭt·ĭsh), adj. See -ISH.

un′der·ground′ling, n. = UNDERGROUNDER. Jocose.

un′der·rid′ed, adj., un′der·rid′ing, adj., un′der·rī′sive, adj., un′de·riv′a·ble, adj., un′de·riv′a·tive, adj., un′de·rived′, adj., un′de·riv′ed·ly, adv., un′de·riv′ed·ness, n. See UN-, not.

un′der·keel′, n. = UNDERCROP. Dial. U. S. un′der·lain′, past part. of UNDERLIE.

un'der·lease' (ŭn'dĕr·lēs'), n. Law. A lease by a tenant or lessee; esp., one for only a part of his term or, sometimes, for only a part of the premises; a sublease.

un'der·lease' (-lēs'), v. t. & i. To underlet.

un'der·let' (ŭn'dĕr·lĕt'; 66), adj. Let in or introduced from below or from the bottom.

un'der·let', n. Anything underlet; specif., Brewing, the water introduced into the mash tun from beneath the false bottom.

un'der·let' (-lĕt'), v. t. 1. To let below the real value. 2. To let to a second party after hiring, renting, etc., for a term from the proprietor; to grant an underlease of; to sublet.

un'der·let'ter (-ĕr), n. A tenant who underlets property to another (the un'der·les·see' [-lĕ·sē']).

un'der·lev'el (ŭn'dĕr·lĕv'ĕl; -'l), adj. That lies or is directed beneath a certain level. — un'der·lev'el, n.

un'der·le'ver (-lē'vĕr; -lĕv'ĕr), n. A lever operating on the underside or beneath. — adj. Acting as or worked by an underlever.

un'der·lie' (-lī'), v.; past tense -LAY' (-lā'); past part. -LAIN' (-lān'); pres. part. & verbal n. -LY'ING (-lī'ĭng). [AS. underlicgan. See UNDER; LIE to be prostrate.] Transitive: 1. To submit to; specif.: a Obs. To be subordinate to; to submit to the will or direction of. b To undergo or submit to the imposition or infliction of; as, to underlie a penalty or judgment. c To be subject or amenable to.

The knight of Ivanhoe . . . underlies the challenge of Brian de Bois Guilbert. Scott.

d Scot. To yield or surrender oneself to (law). e Obs. To take charge of, or assume the responsibility or expense of. 2. To lie or be situated under; as, a stratum of clay underlies the surface gravel; underlain by the Sioux quartzite. 3. To be at the basis of; to form the foundation of; to support; as, a doctrine underlying a theory.

Private possession underlay everything worth having. Galsworthy.

4. To lie concealed beneath the obvious exterior of; as, cultural proclivities underlying his uncouthness.

5. Finance. To exist as a claim or security anterior and prior to (another); as, a first mortgage underlies a second. —, Intransitive: 1. To lie beneath; to be buried. Obs. 2. Mining. To incline from the vertical; to hade. Eng.

un'der·lie' (ŭn'dĕr·lī'), n. Mining. The angle made by the center line of a stull with a line normal to the hanging wall at their point of incidence; — called also underset.

un'der·li'er (-lī'ĕr; ŭn'dĕr·lī'ĕr), n. 1. That which underlays or underlies something.

2. Finance. An underlying company. Colloq.

un'der·life' (ŭn'dĕr·līf'), n. Life beneath the surface, or concealed from common knowledge; also, an inferior level of life.

un'der·line' (-līn'), v. t. To provide with an underlining.

un'der·line', v. t. 1. To mark with a line below, as words in a manuscript; to underscore.

2. Hence: a To mark with a lower boundary line; as, silver underlined with blue. b To put emphasis upon; to stress in utterance.

3. To announce in advance by or as if by an underline: as, his book is underlined for publication next month.

4. To direct basically though unobtrusively. Obs. — un'der·lin'er (-līn'ĕr), n.

un'der·line' (ŭn'dĕr·līn'), n. A line underneath; specif.: a Theater. A line announcing a performance shortly to follow, under the notice of a current performance. b The outline of the lower part of an animal's body; esp., in quadrupeds, the line between the front and rear legs; also, the lower border of the flank of a domestic animal, as a sheep. c pl. A set of guiding lines placed underneath a sheet.

un'der·line', adv. Below the water line or level of the sea.

un'der·lin'e·a'tion (ŭn'dĕr·lĭn'ē·ā'shŭn), n. The action of underlining or the markings so made.

un'der·lin'en (ŭn'dĕr·lĭn'ĕn; -ĭn; 119), n. Linen underclothes; loosely, any underwear, esp. of cotton.

un'der·ling (ŭn'dĕr·lĭng), n. [Late AS. See UNDER; 1st -LING.] 1. An inferior person; one who is under another's orders; a subordinate; an underofficial; — used esp. with implication of meanness or servility; hence, a mean, sorry fellow.

2. An underdeveloped, imperfect, or weakly, offshoot or offspring. Dial.

Syn. — Menial, inferior.

Ant. — Superior, chief, boss, head.

un'der·ling, adj. 1. Subordinate or inferior in authority or prestige to another; serving under another.

2. Underdeveloped, imperfect, or weakly; also, low or scrubby in growth.

3. Insignificant; trifling.

un'der·lin'ing (ŭn'dĕr·līn'ĭng), n. Lining placed on the under or the inner side of something.

un'der·lin'ing, n. The action of drawing lines underneath in writing or printing, or lines so drawn; underscoring.

un'der·lip' (-lĭp'; 66), n. 1. The lower lip.

2. Organ Building. The lower edge, or lip, of the mouth in an organ pipe. See FLUE PIPE, Illust.

un'der·live' (-lĭv'), v. t. 1. To live on a plane beneath (oneself). Obs.

2. To live at a lower cost than.

un'der·load' (ŭn'dĕr·lōd'), n. A load markedly below the capacity of the conveyer; an inadequate or insufficient load. — un'der·load' (-lōd'), v. t.

underload starter. Elec. A motor starter provided with an underload switch.

underload switch. Elec. A switch which opens a circuit when the current falls below a certain predetermined value, used to protect certain types of motors from running at excessive speed upon decrease of load.

un'der·lock' (ŭn'dĕr·lŏk'), n. A lock of wool hanging from a sheep's belly.

un'der·look' (-lŏŏk'), v. t. 1. To look or glance at from underneath or from under lowered eyes or covertly.

2. To miss or omit because one has looked too low. — un'der·look' (ŭn'dĕr·lŏŏk'), n.

un'der·look'er (ŭn'dĕr·lŏŏk'ĕr), n. An assistant to a manager, esp. of a mine, usually engaged in superintendence and overseeing.

un'der·lout' (-lout'), adj. [AS. underlūtan, v. i., submit, past. part. underloten.] Subjected; submissive. Obs.

un'der·lout', n. Underling; subject; servant. Now Dial.

un'der·ly (ŭn'dĕr·lĭ), adj. Below the mean. Now Rare.

un'der·ly'ing (-lī'ĭng; 66), adj. 1. Lying under or beneath; fundamental; as, underlying strata; underlying principles or pride; also, innate or organic but evident only on close inspection; as, an underlying identity about the motley immigrants.

2. Finance. Anterior and prior in claim; as, an underlying mortgage.

underlying company. Finance. A company which is part of a larger consolidated organization, but which is kept in existence only because of nontransferable rights or franchises which it possesses. Colloq., U. S.

un'der·man' (ŭn'dĕr·măn'), v. t. To furnish with an inadequate force of men, so as to leave short-handed; to understaff; as, it should be a felony to underman a ship. — un'der·manned' (-mănd'), part. adj. — un'der·man'ning (-măn'ĭng), n.

un'der·man (ŭn'dĕr·măn), n. A man who is subordinate to, inferior to, or in some way disadvantageously placed with respect to, another person or other persons.

un'der·mast'ed (ŭn'dĕr·más'tĕd; -tĭd; 66; 119), adj. Naut. Having masts too small for the proper sails.

un'der·match' (-măch'), n. One who falls short of being a match for another in competition. Obs.

un'der·match' (-măch'), v. t. 1. To compare to one's or its disadvantage.

2. To match with a spouse of inferior rank or condition. — un'der·matched' (-măcht'), part. adj.

un'der·meal' (ŭn'dĕr·mēl'), n. [ME. undermel, fr. AS. undernmǣl, undermǣl, morning time. See UNDERN; MEAL a repast.] The afternoon, or undern; also, afternoon meal or nap. Obs.

under mediant. Music. = SUBMEDIANT.

un'der·mine' (ŭn'dĕr·mīn'), v. Transitive: 1. To excavate the earth beneath, or the under part of, esp. for the purpose of causing to fall or be overthrown; to form a mine under; to sap; as, to undermine a wall.

2. To wash away supporting material from under; to make a passage or passages underneath, esp. in a way to render insecure or liable to collapse; as, a stream undermines a glacier; a structure undermined by burrowing animals.

3. To win over by craft or cunning.

4. To interrogate, inquire, or discover, in an underhand or crafty manner. Obs.

5. To remove the foundation or support of covertly or by clandestine means; to subvert or weaken insidiously or secretly; as, to undermine authority or the judicial system; to ruin in an underhand or surreptitious way; as, to undermine reputation or a child's faith in his teacher.

6. To weaken or ruin by degrees, as one's health.

7. Med. To erode underneath or the under layer of; as, an ulcer may undermine the adjacent mucous membrane. —, Intransitive: 1. To excavate a military mine; to render a foundation insecure.

2. To effect the overthrow or ruin of someone or something by underhand or insidious means.

Syn. — Subvert, weaken, enfeeble.

Ant. — Fortify, strengthen.

un'der·mine' (ŭn'dĕr·mīn'), n. 1. Obs. a A military mine. b A cave.

2. An insidious undercurrent.

un'der·min'er (-mīn'ĕr), n. One who undermines.

un'der·mirth' (ŭn'dĕr·mûrth'), n. Undercurrent of mirth. Obs.

un'der·mon'ey (-mŭn'ĭ), v. t. To get possession of by the corrupting use of money.

un'der·most (ŭn'dĕr·mōst), adj. [See UNDER; cf. AFTERMOST.] Lowest, as in place, rank, or condition; placed, or being, in the lowest or lower position.

un'der·most, adv. In the lowest or lower position.

un'der·mus'lin (ŭn'dĕr·mŭz'lĭn), n. Muslin underwear.

un'dern (ŭn'dĕrn; ŏŏn'-), n. [AS., the third hour of the day; akin to OS. undorn, OHG. untarn, untorn, ON. undorn midafternoon, midforenoon, Goth. undaurnimats the midday meal; prop., betweentime, and akin to L. inter between. See INTER-; cf. UNDERMEAL, UNDERTIME.] Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng. a Obs. Nine in the morning; morning, esp. the latter part of the forenoon. b Obs. Midday; noon. c Afternoon; the time from noon to sundown. d A lunch in the middle of the afternoon or, often, morning.

un'der·nat'u·ral (ŭn'dĕr·năt'ū·răl), adj. Below the natural or average; subnormal.

un'der·neath' (ŭn'dĕr·nēth'; -nēth'), adv. [ME. undernethe, fr. AS. underneothan, undernythan. See UNDER; BENEATH.] 1. Under or below a surface, level, overhanging object, etc., often with the implication of being covered or concealed; specif., beneath in the way of a support; under or inside of clothing; farther or lower down on a sheet.

Or sullen mole, that runneth underneath. Milton.

2. On the lower or downward side; as, all black or hollow underneath.

un'der·neath' (ŭn'dĕr·nēth'; -nēth'), prep. 1. Close under, in spatial position; directly beneath; esp., under so as to be covered or hidden; as, he scrawled his name underneath the portrait; stowed away underneath the floor.

2. Under subjection or submission to; as, to groan underneath a weight of toil.

3. Under the aspect, guise, or protection, of; as, lurking underneath a mask of friendliness.

4. Below in level or amount. Obs.

un'der·neath', n. 1. The bottom or under side.

2. Formerly, an undergarment.

un'der·neath', adj. 1. Secret; surreptitious. Dial.

2. Lying or belonging underneath; under. Colloq.

un'der·ness (ŭn'dĕr·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. The state of being below or short of something; insufficiency.

un'der·nice'ness (-nīs'nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. A want of niceness; indelicacy.

un'der·nim' (-nĭm'), v. t.; past tense UN'DER·NAM' (-năm'; -nām'), pl. -NO'MEN (-nō'mĕn); past part. -NU'MEN (-nōō'mĕn), -NO'ME(N) (-nō'mē(n)). [ME. undernimen, fr. AS. underniman. See NIM.] Obs. a To perceive; to understand. b To take upon oneself; to undertake. c To rebuke; reprove. d To take; seize; capture.

un'der·nour'ish (-nûr'ĭsh), v. t. To supply with insufficient nourishment or less than the minimum quantity of foods essential for sound health and growth. — un'der·nour'ished (-ĭsht), part. adj.

un'der·nour'ish·ment (-ĭsh·mĕnt), n. Med. Lack of sufficient nourishment, or the state due to this lack.

un'dern·song' (ŭn'dĕrn·sŏng'; 185), n. Eccl. An office sung at the third hour of the day; — an old name for tierce.

un'dern·tide' (ŭn'dĕrn·tīd'; ŏŏn'-), n. Also un'dern·time' (-tīm'). [AS. underntīd.] = UNDERN. Archaic.

un'der·nu·tri'tion (ŭn'dĕr·nū·trĭsh'ŭn), n. Undernourishment.

un'der·oc'cu·pied (-ŏk'ū·pīd), adj. Having insufficient occupation.

un'der·paint'ing (ŭn'dĕr·pān'tĭng), n. Preliminary painting; specif., such painting done on a canvas or panel and covered by the impasto of the finished painting.

un'der·pan' (ŭn'dĕr·păn'), n. In automotive vehicles, a protective metal covering fitting under the engine, clutch, and transmission case.

un'der·pants' (ŭn'dĕr·pănts'), n. pl. Drawers. Colloq.

under part. A part lying on the lower side or underneath; specif., one of the parts on the ventral side of a bird or animal's body; as, a rodent with under parts approaching pure white.

un'der·part' (ŭn'dĕr·pärt'), n. 1. A subordinate or auxiliary part or role.

2. A subdivision.

un'der·part' (-pärt'), v. t. = SUBDIVIDE. Rare.

un'der·pass' (ŭn'dĕr·păs'), n. A passage beneath, esp. a passageway for highway traffic under a railway.

un'der·pas'sion (-păsh'ŭn), n. A secret, repressed, or subsidiary, passion.

un'der·pick' (-pĭk'), adj. Also un'der·picked' (-pĭkt'). Of a loom or picking motion, having the picking arm, or shuttle-driving device, under the shuttle boxes. Cf. OVERPICK, adj.

un'der·pick', n. An underpick loom or picking motion; also, the mode of picking used in one.

un'der·pin' (-pĭn'), v. t.; UN'DER·PINNED' (-pĭnd'); UN'DER·PIN'NING. 1. To lay stones, masonry, etc., under, as under the sills of a building, on which it is to rest.

2. To support by a foundation; to place struts, props, or the like, underneath for support, as when foundations are temporarily removed.

3. To maintain, vindicate, or substantiate; to justify or support.

4. To form or be part of the foundation of.

un'der·pin'ner (ŭn'dĕr·pĭn'ĕr), n. A subordinate pinner of cattle.

un'der·pin'ner, n. A supporting brace; a prop; also, pl., the legs.

un'der·pin'ning (ŭn'dĕr·pĭn'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of UNDERPIN. Hence: n. (pron. ŭn'dĕr·pĭn'ĭng) 1. Arch. a That by which a building is underpinned; the material and construction used for support, introduced beneath a wall already constructed. b Local, U. S. The foundation, esp. of a frame house.

2. A method of lining a shaft by supporting the upper section of brickwork on a curb by shores or props, excavating below and building up to this curb from another curb inserted lower down, and so on.

3. Supporting foundation or justification; also, a prop.

un'der·pitch' (ŭn'dĕr·pĭch'), v. t. [ME. underpicchen. See UNDER; PITCH to throw, fix.] To support underneath; prop; stuff. Obs.

un'der·pitch' (ŭn'dĕr·pĭch'), adj. Arch. Designating a groining or vault formed by the incomplete intersection of unequal, usually cylindrical, vaults springing from the same level. See VAULT, Illust.

un'der·plant' (-plănt'), v. t.; UN'DER·PLANT'ED; UN'DER·PLANT'ING. To plant under; specif., Forestry, to plant (young trees) under an existing stand.

un'der·play' (-plā'), v. i. & t. 1. To play in an inferior manner; to underact a part.

2. Card Games. To play a losing card (from) when holding a winning one, with a view to future advantage.

un'der·play' (ŭn'dĕr·plā'), n. 1. Act or instance of underplaying, as at cards or in acting.

2. Hidden or underlying play, as of emotion.

3. Underhand action or an instance of it; a clandestine scheme; a trick.

un'der·plot' (-plŏt'), n. 1. A series of events in a play, collateral with the main story but subservient.

2. A secret or clandestine plot or trick.

un'der·plot'ter (-plŏt'ĕr), n. An underhand plotter.

un'der·pole' (-pōl'), v. t. 1. To provide with poles insufficient in number or in height.

2. Metal. To pole insufficiently. Underpoled copper contains more oxide than is desirable. See POLING, 3.

un'der·pose' (-pōz'), v. t. To place underneath for support.

un'der·pow'er (ŭn'dĕr·pou'ĕr), n. 1. A subordinate or auxiliary power.

2. A condition of lack of power.

un'der·pow'er (-pou'ĕr), v. t. To drive or provide (a machine) with a motor that is too small.

un'der·pres'ence (ŭn'dĕr·prĕz'ĕns), n. A force or personality felt as present in the background or in one's spiritual depths.

un'der·price' (-prīs'), n. A price below a current or standard price; an unfairly low or cut price.

un'der·price' (-prīs'), v. t. To set an underprice upon; also, to set a lower price or prices than (a competitor).

un'der·print' (-prĭnt'), v. t. 1. To print or impress on the under side of.

2. To print with less density or firmness of outline than is needed.

un'der·priv'i·leged (-prĭv'ĭ·lĭjd), adj. Less privileged than others; specif., deprived, as through social or economic oppression, of some of the fundamental rights theoretically belonging to all members of a civilized society.

un'der·pro·duc'tion (-prō·dŭk'shŭn), n. Econ. The production of less than is demanded, or of less than the usual supply. — un'der·pro·duc'tive (-tĭv), adj. & n.

un'der·proof' (ŭn'dĕr·prōōf'; 66), adj. Containing less alcohol than proof spirit (which see).

un'der·prop' (-prŏp'), v. t. 1. To prop up from below; underpin.

2. To uphold; support; as, to underprop a reputation.

3. To serve as a prop or support underneath. — un'der·propped' (ŭn'dĕr·prŏpt'; 66), adj. — un'der·prop'ping (-prŏp'ĭng; 66), adj.

un'der·prop' (ŭn'dĕr·prŏp'), n. A prop placed underneath or supporting something.

un'der·pro·por'tion (-prō·pōr'shŭn; 181), v. t. To provide in inadequate proportion to something else.

un'der·pro·por'tioned (-shŭnd), adj. Of inadequate or inferior proportions; small; poor.

un'der·prop'per (ŭn'dĕr·prŏp'ĕr), n. One that underprops; a support for a ruff.

un'der·prop'ping (-ĭng), n. 1. The action of underpropping something.

2. That which is used to underprop.

un'der·pull' (-pŏŏl'), v. i. To exert one's influence secretly. Obs. — un'der·pull'er (-ĕr), n. Obs.

un'der·put' (-pŏŏt'), v. t. To put under or provide by putting under; to subjugate. Obs.

un'der·put' (ŭn'dĕr·pŏŏt'), n. A leman. Obs.

un'der·quote' (-kwōt'), v. t. To quote at a lower price than another; to quote a lower price than; as, to underquote one's competitors in the effort to get business.

---

un'der·line'ment, n. See -MENT. un'der·lye', n. Soap Mfg. = BENT LYE. See SOAP, n., 1.

un'der·min'a·ble (ŭn'dĕr·mīn'ə·bl'), adj. See -ABLE.
un'der·min'ing (-ĭng), part. adj. of UNDERMINE, v. — un'der·min'ing·ly, adv. [Obs.] un'der·mon'ied, adj. Bribed.

un·der'o·gat'ing, adj., un'der·rog'a·to'ry, adj. See UN-, not.
un'der·pight'. Obs. past & part. of UNDERPITCH. un'der·poise', v. t. To rate below what is due. Obs.

un'der·pow'er re·lay'. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3. [Obs.] un'der·put'ter, n. A procurer.

un'der·rate' (ŭn'dĕr·rāt'), n. A rate or price lower than a current, normal, or fair one.
un'der·rate', adj. Inferior.
un'der·rate' (-rāt'), v. t. To rate too low; to set too low an estimate upon, as to value, worth, amount, extent, etc.; to undervalue.
Human nature is consistently underrated in business. Galsworthy.
— un'der·rate'ment (-rāt'mĕnt), n. — un'der·rat'ing (-rāt'ĭng), part. adj.
un'der·reach' (-rēch'), v. t. To reach under or below; to clear under (a log, etc.), as to pass a chain.
un'der·reach' (ŭn'dĕr·rēch'), n. A pole used to lever up a bogged log, etc.
un'der·read' (-rēd'), v. t. To take a reading below the correct reading of (a test); to read (a temperature, measurement, weight, etc.) as lower than that actually registered.
un'der·ream' (-rēm'), v. t. To enlarge (the bore of a drilled well). See UNDERREAMER. un'der·ream'er (ŭn'dĕr·rēm'ĕr), n. A reamer for operating under the tube or casing of a borehole, as for a well, to enlarge the hole for the reception of the pipe, and contrived so as to be readily withdrawn.
un'der·rent' (-rĕnt'), v. t. To rent at an unduly low rate; to make return of (rent) at an insufficient rate. — un'der·rent'ed, adj. — un'der·rent'ing, n.
un'der·riv'er (ŭn'dĕr·rĭv'ĕr), adj. Passing or providing passage or place underneath a river.
un'der·roll' (-rōl'), v. i. To roll or undulate underneath or below the surface.
un'der·roof' (ŭn'dĕr·rōōf'; 200), n. A roof under or below another roof; also, a heavenly canopy, as of mist, below the vault of the sky.
un'der·root' (-rōōt'; 200), v. t. To cause to grow roots from the under side.
un'der–round' (ŭn'dĕr·round'), v. t. Phonet. To round (the lips or a vowel) less than usual. — un'der–round', adj. un'der·run' (-rŭn'), v. [Cf. AS. underirnan. See RUN.] Transitive: 1. To run or pass under.
2. Naut. To pass along and under, as in a boat under a cable or net, for the purpose of taking it in, or of examining it; specif., to lift (a hose) up at one end, then walk along shifting one hand after another so that the water will run out; to separate the parts of (a tackle) and put them in order.
3. To pull in (a net) for emptying.
4. To attend in an underlying or implicit form.
——, Intransitive: To flow or persist in a suppressed or underlying stream or strain.
un'der·run' (ŭn'dĕr·rŭn'), n. 1. An undercurrent.
2. In manufacturing, a run deficient in quantity, esp. short of the quantity ordered by a customer.
3. Elec. The lower contact surface of a third rail or trolley wire.
un'der·run'ning (-rŭn'ĭng), n. A method of trawling in which the line is drawn across a boat and the hooks are cleared of the fish and baited in one operation.
un'der·sail' (-sāl'), v. i. To sail under the lee of the shore. Obs.
under sail. See under SAIL, n. un'der·sailed' (ŭn'dĕr·sāld'), adj. Equipped with too small or too few sails.
un'der·sal'ly (-săl'ĭ), n. A ringing in which the rim of the bell is swung up to a level with the support.
un'der·say' (-sā'), v. t. To say in derogation or contradiction. Obs.
un'der·scale' (-skāl'), v. t. To underrate. un'der·score' (-skōr'; 181), v. t. To draw a mark or line under; to underline; hence, to emphasize. — (ŭn'dĕr·skōr'), n. An underscoring or underscored line.
un'der·scrib'er (-skrīb'ĕr), n. One who undersigns. Obs. un'der·scrub' (ŭn'dĕr·skrŭb'), n. 1. An undersized or inferior person.
2. Scrubby growth under trees; underbrush.
un'der·sea' (-sē'), un'der·seas' (-sēz'), adv. Under the sea; beneath the surface of the sea; as, a submarine moving undersea.
un'der·sea', adj. Being, or carried on, under the sea, or under the surface of the sea; as, undersea fighting; designed for use under the surface of the sea.
un'der·sea', n. The sea lying below the surface; a sea's depths.
un'der·sea'man (ŭn'dĕr·sē'măn), n. One who works undersea or makes undersea investigations; a diver; a member of a submarine's crew.
un'der·sec're·tar'y (-sĕk'rē·tĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), n. Also under secretary, un'der–sec're·tar'y. A subordinate or assistant secretary; specif., a secretary immediately subordinate to a principal secretary; as, in England, the undersecretary for India. In England, an undersecretary represents the ministry in the House in which the chief secretary does not sit. In the United States, there are undersecretaries in several Departments of the Government. — un'der·sec're·tar'y·ship, n.
un'der·sell' (-sĕl'), v. t. 1. To sell articles at a lower price than; to sell cheaper than (the same article offered elsewhere).
2. To sell (an article, commodity, or the like) for less than its intrinsic value.
— un'der·sell'er, n. — un'der·sell'ing, n. & adj.
un'der·sense' (ŭn'dĕr·sĕns'), n. A subconsciousness; an inner awareness.
un'der·serve' (-sûrv'), v. t. To serve inadequately; also, formerly, to serve or contribute to in a subordinate way.
un'der·set' (-sĕt'), v. t. 1. To strengthen by means of props or a supporting foundation; to prop or support.
2. To strengthen, maintain, or provide, immaterial support for; as, underset with counsel.
3. To set underneath, esp. as support or blocking.
4. Obs. a To put under subjection. b To hold or furnish by placing something underneath.
5. To underlet; sublet. Eng.
un'der·set' (ŭn'dĕr·sĕt'), n. 1. Mining. a An underlying vein of ore. b Eng. = UNDERLIE, n.
2. Naut. = UNDERCURRENT. un'der·set'ter (-sĕt'ĕr), n. One that undersets; specif.: a Obs. A prop; support; pedestal. b Eng. One who sublets.
un'der·set'ting, n. Something set or built under as a support.
un'der·set'tle (-sĕt'l), n. [Cf. AS. setla (in comp.) a dweller.] Eng. Hist. One of a class of subtenants under the peasant proprietors. F. W. Maitland. — un'der·set'tler (-lĕr), n. — un'der·set'tling (-lĭng), n.
un'der·shap'en (-shāp'ĕn; 66), adj. Under the usual shape or size; imperfectly shaped.
un'der·sharp' (ŭn'dĕr·shärp'), n. An earmark for cattle, corresponding to the oversharp but on the lower side of the ear. un'der·sher'iff (ŭn'dĕr·shĕr'ĭf), n. A sheriff's deputy; specif., one on whom the sheriff's powers devolve in case of the latter's incapacity or a vacancy in the office. Hence, un'der·sher'iff·ry (-rĭ), un'der·sher'iff·ship, n.
un'der·shin'ing (-shīn'ĭng), adj. That shines with less brilliance than another. un'der·shirt' (ŭn'dĕr·shûrt'), n. A shirt worn next the skin, under another shirt.
un'der·shoot' (-shōōt'), v. t. To shoot short of (a mark), as a gun in sighting or firing on a target, an airplane in making a landing, etc. Cf. OVERSHOOT.
un'der·shoot' (ŭn'dĕr·shōōt'), n. Act or an instance of undershooting.
un'der·shoot', n. A shoot, as of a plant, that springs out below some higher or more important shoot.
un'der·shore' (-shōr'; 181), v. t. 1. To shore up.
2. To furnish support or justification for; to uphold.
un'der·shot' (ŭn'dĕr·shŏt'), adj. 1. Having the lower incisor teeth projecting beyond the upper ones when the mouth is closed, as in a bulldog; also, of persons, underhung.
2. Moved by water passing beneath and striking against curved blades set in the outer rim; — said of a water wheel (undershot wheel) having an efficiency of about 40%.

Undershot Water Wheel.

un'der·shot', n. An undershot wheel or mill.
un'der·shrub' (-shrŭb'), n. A low shrub; a low woody plant, whether growing beneath trees or in open ground; a subshrub.
un'der·shrub', adj. Partly shrublike. un'der·shrub'by (-shrŭb'ĭ), adj. Shrubby or woody at the base. — un'der·shrub'bi·ness (-ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.
un'der·shut' (-shŭt'), adj. Shut from beneath; also, Obs., not entirely shut. un'der·side' (-sīd'; 66), n. Also under side. The side or surface lying underneath. — un'der·side', adj.
un'der·sign' (-sīn'), v. t. To write one's name at the foot or end of, as a letter or any legal instrument.
— the un'der·signed' (-sīnd'; 66). The person whose name is signed, or the persons whose names are signed, at the end of a document; the subscriber or subscribers.
un'der·sign'er (-sīn'ĕr), n. One who undersigns; the undersigned. un'der·sing'ing (ŭn'dĕr·sĭng'ĭng), n. The singing of a second part.
un'der·size' (-sīz'), n. 1. Size or a size below the normal or average.
2. Ore Dressing. That portion of ground material that passes through any specific size of screen.
un'der·sized' (-sīzd'; 66), adj. 1. Also un'der·size'. Of a size less than is common, proper, normal, or average.
2. Paper Mfg. Not sufficiently sized; — said of paper.
un'der·skirt' (-skûrt'), n. A petticoat; the skirt worn under a dress or outside skirt.
un'der·sleeve' (-slĕv'), n. A sleeve worn under another and often showing beneath, esp. through a slash or opening.
un'der·slope' (-slōp'), n. An earmark for cattle, corresponding to the overslope but on the lower side of the ear. un'der·sluice' (-slōōs'), n. A sluice covered from view or lying beneath another structure; specif., Irrigation, a wasteway for cleaning or sluicing out canals, in which the waste escapes beneath other structures.
un'der·slung' (-slŭng'; 66), adj. 1. Slung below or underneath.
2. Suspended below the axles; — said esp. of the frame of an automotive vehicle. un'der·some'thing (-sŭm'thĭng), n. An underling of some sort. un'der·song' (-sông'; 185), n. 1. The burden of a song; an accompanying strain; a refrain.
2. Hence, underlying meaning; undertone.
In the very best [poetry] there is often an undersong of sense which none beside the poetic mind . . . can comprehend. Landor.
un'der·sparred' (ŭn'dĕr·spärd'; 66), adj. Naut. Having spars too small to spread the proper amount of canvas.
un'der·spend' (-spĕnd'), v. t. To spend less than or less than the whole of.
un'der·sphere' (ŭn'dĕr·sfēr'), n. 1. A sphere smaller than, and in its movements subject to, another; a satellite.
2. An inferior sphere or field of action. Rare.
un'der·sphere' (-sfēr'), v. t. To subject to or serve as satellite to.
un'der·spin' (ŭn'dĕr·spĭn'), n. Golf. Backspin. un'der·spore' (-spōr'; 181), v. t. To raise as with a spar. Rare. Chaucer. un'der·spread' (ŭn'dĕr·sprĕd'; 66), adj. Spread underneath. un'der·spring' (ŭn'dĕr·sprĭng'), n. A spring issuing beneath or at the bottom.
un'der·spring', adj. Having springs underneath. un'der·spur'leath'er (-spûr'lĕth'ĕr), n. A humble attendant or underling. Archaic.
un'der·stairs' (ŭn'dĕr·stârz'), n. 1. The basement or cellar.
2. A compartment underneath a staircase.
un'der·stairs', adj. Situated downstairs in basement or cellar or under a staircase; hence, humble; originating in the servants' quarters; as, understairs gossip.
un'der·stand' (ŭn'dĕr·stănd'), v.; past tense & past part. UN'DER·STOOD' (-stōōd'); archaic past part. UN'DER·STAND'ED; pres. part. & verbal n. UN'DER·STAND'ING. [ME. understanden, fr. AS. understandan to understand, lit., to stand under; cf. AS. for*standan* to understand, G. ver*stehen.* The development of sense is not clear. See UNDER; STAND.] Transitive: 1. To apprehend the meaning of; to grasp the idea of; to comprehend. Specif.: a To apprehend the purport or meaning of, esp. by knowing what is conveyed by the words or signs used; as, to understand a foreign language, an inscription, or a signal; to understand a wink; to comprehend the discourse of; as, the jury fails to understand the witness.
A tongue not understanded of the people. Bk. of Com. Prayer.
b To apprehend or grasp mentally by way of information or explanation; to make out clearly; as, I did not understand why he came; we must make every member understand that this is a definite obligation. c To have thorough or technical acquaintance with or expertness in the practice of; as, to understand finance, a solution by means of calculus, the mixing of colors; to grasp so as to become fully conversant with or have full knowledge of; as, to understand the Einstein theory (see RELATIVITY). d To be thoroughly familiar with the character or underlying nature and propensities of.
To be told that he understood women enraptured him. L. Merrick.
2. a Now Rare. To learn or grasp fully from information received; to be apprised of. b To get as an impression; to gather, or infer, usually in absence of explicit statement: as, I understand that you spread these rumors.
3. To take or take to mean, according to one's individual interpretation; to recognize or hold as being or signifying; to interpret; explain.
The most learned interpreters understood the words of sin, and not of Abel. Locke.
4. a To take or accept as the signification; as, what is one to understand by the words "reasonably certain"? b To signify; as, now understood by the slang term "applesauce."
5. To accept, whether or not explicitly stated, as established or laid down as a condition.
6. To imply tacitly; to take for granted; to assume; as, conditions expressed or understood.
7. Chiefly Gram. To supply in thought as if present; to take as meant, though not expressed; as, in "measures, not men" a verb is understood; to understand a substantive after the participle.
8. To stand below or beneath; as, notes understanding the text.
9. Obs. a To give attention or heed to. b To study and digest the contents of (a document, etc.). c To know how to carry (oneself) with proper bearing. Shak. d To keep (oneself) fully possessed of one's faculties. e To support or prop up. Shak.
——, Intransitive: 1. To have the use of the intellectual faculties; to have the power of comprehension; to be an intelligent being.
2. To gain comprehension or full mental grasp of the nature, significance, or explanation, of something.
The more he was educated, the less he understood. Henry Adams.
3. To gain or receive knowledge; to learn or be informed. Archaic.
I came to Jerusalem, and understood of the evil that Eliashib did for Tobiah. Neh. xiii. 7.
4. To believe or infer to be the case, from what one has observed or been told; — usually in a parenthetical phrase; as, your proposal is, I understand, still open.
5. To comprehend fully the implications of a situation and have a consequently tolerant, sympathetic, or indulgent attitude; as, I'm sure you'll understand my reasons.
6. Obs. a To give attention or heed. b To know how. c To stand below, specif. on the ground, to watch a theatrical exhibition.
— to give one to understand. a To inform one, usually without positive assertion; to cause one to infer or conclude from what is told. b To make (something) absolutely clear and plain to the understanding of a person; to tell one plainly and forcibly. understand each other. To have a secret understanding or agreement; to be in collusion.
un'der·stand'a·bil'i·ty (ŭn'dĕr·stăn'dȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. The quality of being understandable.
un'der·stand'a·ble (-stăn'dȧ·b'l), adj. 1. Capable of being readily understood; intelligible.
2. Able to understand or comprehend. Obs.
— un'der·stand'a·bly, adv. — un'der·stand'a·ble·ness, n.
un'der·stand'er (-dĕr), n. 1. One who understands.
2. A supporting or sustaining instrumentality.
3. Obs. a A leg or foot. b A boot. c A spectator standing on the ground.
un'der·stand'ing, n. [AS.] 1. Act of one who understands a thing, in any sense of the verb; knowledge, discernment, comprehension, interpretation, or explanation.
2. Power to understand; capability of comprehending and judging; as, men of understanding; the intelligence; the rational powers taken collectively; the power to distinguish truth from falsehood, and to adapt means to ends.
The power of perception is that which we call the understanding. Perception, which we make the act of the understanding, is of three sorts: 1. The perception of ideas in our mind; 2. The perception of the signification of signs; 3. The perception of the connection or repugnancy, agreement or disagreement, that there is between any of our ideas. All these are attributed to the understanding, or perceptive power, though it be the two latter only that use allows us to say we understand. Locke.
In its wider acceptation, understanding is the entire power of perceiving and conceiving, exclusive of the sensibility; the power of dealing with the impressions of sense, and composing them into wholes . . . ; and in its most comprehensive meaning it includes even simple apprehension. Coleridge.
3. Specif., the faculty of subsuming the particular under the general, or of apprehending general relations of particulars; the judgment (see JUDGMENT, 10); hence, the power to render experience intelligible by bringing perceived particulars under appropriate concepts. The distinction between understanding and reason is no longer maintained with precision, but historically it is important. This distinction was drawn by Plato under the terms noēsis (reason) and dianoia (understanding), the model of the latter being mathematical deduction, or analysis (sense 5 a). Aristotle, with empirical or practical applications in view, substituted for the latter term technē (empirical rationality), though he also uses dianoia. The Schoolmen preserved the distinction under the terms intellectus (reason) and ratio (understanding). This use of ratio is responsible for the use of reason in English in both senses. In Germany, Kant and Hegel emphasized the distinction, employing Vernunft (reason) and Verstand (understanding). See REASON, 3; VERNUNFT; VERSTAND.
I use the term understanding, not for the noetic faculty, intellect proper, or place of principles, but for the dianoetic or discursive faculty in its widest signification, for the faculty of relations or comparisons; and thus in the meaning in which "Verstand" is now employed by the Germans. Sir W. Hamilton.
4. The intellectual power or the capacity of a particular person or persons to form reasoned judgments; as, a mean opinion of our understanding.
5. a A specified kind of personal relationship, esp. as marked by amicability or harmony of sentiments.
He hoped the loyalty of his subjects would concur with him in the preserving of a good understanding between him and his people. Clarendon.
b An agreement of opinion or feeling; an adjustment of differences; anything mutually understood or agreed upon; as, to come to an understanding with another. c A mutual agreement not formally entered into but having definite engagements; as, an understanding between two nations; often, Colloq., a commitment to eventual union in wedlock.
6. Obs. a That which is signified or an explanation of it; a meaning. b Intelligence; news.
7. Slang. a Footwear. b Feet.
Syn. — Concept, perception, agreement, compact; penetration. See REASON, TREATY. un'der·stand'ing, pres. part. of UNDERSTAND. Hence: adj. 1. Knowing; intelligent; skillful; as, he is an understanding man; very understanding in court procedure.

un'der·shrieve', un'der·shriev'·ery. Vars. of UNDERSHERIFF, UNDERSHERIFFRY. un'der·sit'ter, n. = UNDERSETTLE. un'der·skink'er, n. An undertapster. Obs. un'der·square', n. = UNDERCROP. Dial. un'der·stand'ed. Archaic past part. of UNDERSTAND. un'der·stand'i·ble. † UNDERSTANDABLE.

2. Endowed with or displaying understanding; as, the understanding heart of Solomon.
3. Possessed of a tolerant, kindly, humane, or sympathetic, attitude.
Promise to have an understanding man as bailiff. Thomas Hardy.
4. Capable of being understood. Obs.
— un'der·stand'ing·ly, adv. — un'der·stand'ing·ness, n.

un'der·state' (ŭn'dĕr·stāt'), v. t. & i. To state or represent as less, or less strongly, than may be done truthfully.

un'der·state'ment (-stāt'mĕnt), n. Act of understating, or a statement below the truth.

un'der·stock' (-stŏk'), v. t. To stock or store with less than the number or quantity for some purpose (specified or understood). — n. An inadequate stock, store, or supply.

un'der·stock' (ŭn'dĕr·stŏk'), un'der·stock'ing (-stŏk'ĭng), n. A stocking for the lower leg. Archaic.

un'der·stood' (-stōōd'), past tense & past part. of UNDERSTAND. Specif.: adj. 1. Fully apprehended or known as to purport, meaning, or explanation.
2. Settled or settled upon by common agreement; as, at the understood price.
3. To be supplied or implied in the thought of a sentence.

un'der·sto'ry (ŭn'dĕr·stō'rĭ), n. Forestry. A layer of foliage in a forest below the level of the main canopy; also, the trees forming such a layer.

un'der·strap'per (ŭn'dĕr·străp'ĕr), n. A petty fellow; an inferior agent; an underling.

un'der·strap'ping, adj. Being or becoming an understrapper; subservient.

un'der·stride' (-strīd'), n. A stride shorter than normal or accustomed or a gait of such strides. — v. i. To travel with understrides, as from lack of room. — un'der·strid'ing (-strīd'ĭng), n.

un'der·string' (-strĭng'), v. t. To string (a bow) with too long a cord.

un'der·stroke' (-strōk'), v. t. To underline or underscore.

un'der·stroke' (ŭn'dĕr·strōk'), n. A stroke executed underneath or with a downward sweep. — v. i. To make or execute an understroke.

un'der·strung' (-strŭng'; 66), adj. Having too long and hence too low a string; — said of a bow.

un'der·stud'y (-stŭd'ĭ), v. i. Theater. To study another actor's part, in order to be his substitute in an emergency. — v. t. To study (a part or character) as understudy; to prepare as understudy to (an actor). — n. One who is prepared to act another's part.

un'der·sur'face (-sûr'fĭs), n. Also under surface. The surface which lies underneath; the underside. — un'der·sur'face, adj.

un'der·sweat' (-swĕt'), v. t. To oppress by the sweating of employees; to outdo in abuse of employees by sweating.

un'der·take' (-tāk'), v.; past tense UN'DER·TOOK' (-tŏŏk'); past part. UN'DER·TAK'EN (-tāk'ĕn); pres. part. & verbal n. UN'DER·TAK'ING (-tāk'ĭng). [under + take.] Transitive: 1. To take upon oneself; to engage in; to enter upon; to take in hand; set about; attempt; as, to undertake a task, a journey.
2. Specif., to take upon oneself solemnly or expressly; to lay oneself under obligation, or to enter into stipulations, to perform or to execute; to covenant; contract.
I'll undertake to land them on our coast. Shak.
3. Hence, to guarantee; be surety for; promise.
And he was not right fat, I undertake. Chaucer.
4. To accept or take over as a charge; to accept responsibility for the care of; to engage to look after or attend to; as, to undertake a patient or guest. Formerly, specif.: a To engage with, as in a duel or combat. Shak. b To engage with in argument, competition, etc.
5. In various Obs. senses: a To overtake or seize. b To reprove; chide. c To receive or accept; to take in or have knowledge of, as by hearing; to grasp with the understanding. d To assume, as a character or what belongs to a character.
—, Intransitive: 1. To enter into an engagement or contract; to pledge.
2. To give a promise or guarantee or assume responsibility; to be surety; — usually with for. Archaic.
3. Obs. a To engage in an enterprise or venture. b To engage in combat or contention.

un'der·take' (ŭn'dĕr·tāk'), n. = UNDERTAKING. Obs.

un'der·take', v. i. To perform the functions of an undertaker; esp., to conduct funerals. — v. t. To conduct a funeral for. Colloq.

un'der·tak'er (ŭn'dĕr·tāk'ĕr; ŭn'dĕr·tāk'ĕr), n. 1. One who undertakes; one who launches an enterprise; one who engages in any project or business; one who takes the risk and management of business; an entrepreneur.
2. Specif.: Obs. a One engaged in scholarly and scientific exploration of a subject. b One engaged upon the compiling or composition of a work for publication. c A book publisher. d An organizer of a stage production; a manager.
3. One who stipulates or covenants to perform any work for another; a contractor. Chiefly Archaic.
4. (pron. ŭn'dĕr·tāk'ĕr) Specif.: One whose business is to prepare the dead for burial and to take the charge and management of funerals.
5. [usually cap.] a Irish Hist. One of those English settlers to whom were transferred the lands (declared forfeited in 1586) of the Earl of Desmond. b Eng. Hist. One of those political leaders, c. 1614–88, who undertook to influence members of Parliament, esp. in the granting of liberal supplies to the sovereign. c Scot. Hist. One of a body of gentlemen, chiefly proprietors in Fife, who by the authority of James VI undertook to colonize and civilize some of the Hebrides.
6. Obs.: a One who reproves; a rebuker. b One who makes himself answerable or responsible for another; one who is surety for another; a sponsor; specif., a godfather or godmother. c One who assists or supports; sustaining power. d One who accepts a challenge. Shak.

un'der·tak'er·y (ŭn'dĕr·tāk'ĕr·ĭ), n. The business of conducting funerals.

un'der·tak'ing (-tāk'ĭng), n. 1. Act of one who undertakes, or engages in, any project or business; specif. (pron. ŭn'dĕr·tāk'ĭng) the business of an undertaker (sense 4), or the management of funerals.
2. Anything undertaken; any business, work, or project, which one engages in, or attempts; an enterprise.
3. A promise or pledge; a guarantee; specif., any promise or security required by law, as in judicial proceedings.

un'der·tak'ing, adj. Obs. a Willing to undertake an enterprise, assuming the risks, as organizer, manager, or the like; ready to engage in literary production or act as publisher. b Bound by a pledge; responsible. — un'der·tak'ing·ly, adv.

un'der·teamed' (ŭn'dĕr·tēmd'; 66), adj. Not sufficiently supplied with teams.

un'der·ten'ant (-tĕn'ănt), n. The tenant of a tenant; one who holds lands or tenements by an underlease or sublease — un'der·ten'an·cy (-ăn·sĭ), n.

Under the Greenwood Tree. A novel (1872) by Thomas Hardy.

un'der·thing' (ŭn'dĕr·thĭng'), n. 1. Something inferior or of little worth. Obs.
2. pl. Underclothes.

un'der·think' (-thĭngk'), v. t. a To apprehend the underlying nature or action of. b Obs. To underestimate. — v. i. To give inadequate thought or analysis.

un'der·throat'ing (ŭn'dĕr·thrōt'ĭng), n. Arch. The cove of an outside cornice used as a drip.

un'der·thrust' (-thrŭst'), v. t. 1. To thrust underneath or along the under side.
2. Geol. To insert or move (a rock mass) into position by underthrust faulting.

un'der·thrust' (ŭn'dĕr·thrŭst'), n. 1. The action or result of underthrusting.
2. Geol. a The insertion, by compressive stresses and faulting, of one mass of rock under another. The result of underthrusting may be identical with overthrusting and the distinction between the two types of thrust is rarely possible. b The stress which produces an underthrust (sense 2 a).

un'der·thrust', adj. Geol. Inserted by underthrust faulting.

un'der·time', n. [AS. underntīma.] 1. Undern. Obs.
2. The latter part (of the year). Rare. Spenser.
3. A time less than the time allotted, as for the performance of some task.

un'der·time' (-tīm'), v. t. To allow too short a time for, as for a photographic exposure.

un'der·timed' (ŭn'dĕr·tīmd'; 66), adj. Photog. Allowed too little time, as an exposure; underexposed.

un'der·tint' (ŭn'dĕr·tĭnt'), n. A subdued tint.

un'der·tone' (-tōn'), n. 1. A low or subdued tone or utterance; a tone less loud than usual.
2. A subdued color; specif.: a The color of a pigment thinly laid on a white or light-colored ground. b A color seen through and modifying another or other colors. c The color of the light transmitted, as by a paint or varnish film. Cf. OVERTONE, 2.
3. A state of health low in physical tone.
4. Acoustics. = COMBINATION TONE.
5. Stock Exchanges. An underlying stability in price level of a stock or commodity.

un'der·tone', v. t. To express in, or attend as, an undertone.

un'der·toned' (-tōnd'; 66), adj. 1. Low or subdued in sound.
2. Faulty in tone.
3. Low in physical tone or vigor.

un'der·tow' (-tō'), n. The current beneath the surface that sets seaward or along the beach when waves are breaking upon the shore.

un'der·tread' (-trĕd'), v. t. To tread beneath the feet; to subjugate or oppress. — un'der·trod'den (-trŏd'n), part. adj.

un'der·treat' (-trēt'), v. t. To show want of respect to; to slight.

un'der·trick' (ŭn'dĕr·trĭk'), n. Solo Whist & Bridge. A trick, or any of the tricks, by which the maker fails to make his contract.

un'der·trump' (-trŭmp'), v. t. & i. Card Playing. To trump with a lower trump than one already on the trick; to trump lower than (one's partner).

un'der·turf' (ŭn'dĕr·tûrf'), adj. Underlying the turf.

un'der·turn' (-tûrn'), v. t. To turn so as to lie underneath, esp. underground.

un'der·type' (ŭn'dĕr·tīp'), adj. Elec. Designating, or pert. to, a dynamo having the armature under the field magnets.

un'der·val'u·a'tion (-văl'ū·ā'shŭn), n. Act of undervaluing; also, a rate or value not equal to the real worth.

un'der·val'ue (-văl'ū), v. t. 1. To value, rate, or estimate, below the real worth; to set too low a value upon; to underjudge the worth of.
2. To esteem lightly; to treat as of little worth.
3. To cause to decrease in value or estimation; to depreciate.
4. Obs. a To judge to be inferior in value. b To be inferior in value to.

un'der·val'ue (ŭn'dĕr·văl'ū; ŭn'dĕr·văl'ū), n. 1. A rate or price less than the real worth.
2. The action of undervaluing or depreciating. Rare.
3. Obs. a A falling short in worth. b An underestimate.

un'der·val'ue·ment (-văl'ū·mĕnt), n. Undervaluation. R.

un'der·val'u·er (-ĕr), n. One who undervalues.

un'der·val'u·ing (-ĭng), adj. That estimates of too low a value or depreciates. — un'der·val'u·ing·like', adj. — un'der·val'u·ing·ly, adv.

un'der·vest' (ŭn'dĕr·vĕst'), n. An undershirt.

un'der·volt'age (-vōl'tĭj), adj. Elec. Devised so as to become operative when the voltage in a line drops below a definite value.

undervoltage protection. Elec. The protection of a circuit against operation on reduced voltage, as by using an automatic trip that causes and maintains the interruption of power on the reduction or failure of voltage.

undervoltage relay. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3.

undervoltage release. Elec. The automatic release of power to the main circuit, as by the use of an automatic trip, during an interval of reduced or no voltage, without preventing the automatic re-establishment of the circuit on the resumption of normal voltage.

un'der·waist' (ŭn'dĕr·wāst'), n. A waist for wear under another; specif., = WAIST, n., 4 b.

un'der·walk' (-wôk'), n. A lower or side walk; a bywalk or bypath.

un'der·ward' (-wôrd'), n. A lower enclosure or yard. Archaic.

un'der·warp' (-wôrp'), n. The warp underneath; underlying material.

un'der·watch' (-wŏch'), v. t. To watch secretly or furtively.

un'der·wa'ter (ŭn'dĕr·wô'tĕr), n. 1. Underground water.
2. = UNDERTOW. Rare.
3. Water entering a ship below the water line.

un'der·wa'ter, adj. 1. Lying, growing, performed, worn, etc., below the surface of the water.
2. That is below the water line of a ship.

under way. Also un'der·way' (ŭn'dĕr·wā'), adv. Into motion from a standstill; as, an electric train gets under way rapidly.

un'der·wear' (ŭn'dĕr·wâr'), n. Underclothes.

un'der·weigh' (ŭn'dĕr·wā'), v. i. To fall short in weight, as short of a required or standard weight. — v. t. To record or represent as having less than the actual weight; to weigh less than (another).

un'der·weigh', v. i. To set under way; — through confusion of under way with weigh anchor.

un'der·weight' (ŭn'dĕr·wāt'), n. 1. Weight below normal, average, or requisite, weight; want of weight, or the amount of the deficiency.
2. The condition of weighing less than the normal weight or the normal weight for the age.
3. An individual or article whose weight is less than normal.
4. Lumber. Reduction in weight of lumber as compared with the usual or standard shipping weight, as in kiln-dried stock.

un'der·weight' (66), adj. Weighing less than the normal amount; esp., below the normal weight for the age.

un'der·wing' (-wĭng'), n. 1. Zool. One of the posterior wings of an insect, esp. of a moth.
2. Any of numerous noctuid moths belonging to Catocala and allied genera, in which the hind wings are banded with red and black or other contrasting colors.

Underwing (Catocala ultronia). a Adult; b Larva.

un'der·wing', adj. Placed or growing underneath the wing.

un'der·wit' (-wĭt'), n. a Wit of mediocre or inferior quality. b An underwitted person; a half-wit.

un'der·wit'ted (-wĭt'ĕd; -ĭd; 66; 119), adj. Weak in intellect; half-witted.

un'der·wood' (-wŏŏd'), n. 1. Undergrowth; underbrush; — formerly used in pl.
2. The sprout growth in a cutover forest, which is reproducing itself. — un'der·wood'ed, adj.

Un'der·wood Tar'iff Act (ŭn'dĕr·wŏŏd). An act of Congress, passed October 3, 1913; — so called from Oscar W. Underwood, representative from Alabama. See TARIFF, n., 1 h.

un'der·work' (-wûrk'), v.; past & past part. -WORKED' (-wûrkt'); or -WROUGHT' (-rôt'); pres. part. & verbal n. -WORK'ING. Intransitive: 1. To work or operate in secret or clandestinely. Obs.
2. To do less work than is proper or suitable.
3. To do work for a less price than current rates.
—, Transitive: 1. To injure, destroy, or overthrow, by clandestine measures; to undermine. Obs. Shak.
2. a To expend too little work upon; as, to underwork a painting. b To exact too little work from.
3. To do like work at a less price than; as, one mason may underwork another.

un'der·work' (ŭn'dĕr·wûrk'), n. 1. Anything working underneath the surface, as an undertow. Obs.
2. A structure built underneath, esp. as support.
3. Inferior or subordinate work; petty business.
4. Covert or underhand work.

un'der·work'er (-wûr'kĕr), n. 1. One who underworks.
2. An inferior or subordinate workman.

un'der·work'ing, n. Covert or insidious action.

un'der·work'ing, adj. Working underneath; undermining; clandestine.

un'der·world' (-wûrld'), n. 1. The world lying below, orig. under the heavens; this terrestrial world; the earth.
2. The place of departed souls; Hades.
3. A subterranean or suboceanic region.
4. The world of activity among the lower forms of life.
No hum from the underworld. William Beebe.
5. The side of the globe opposite to one, or the regions below one's horizon; as, a friend from the underworld.
6. Any region lying below the level of ordinary life or experience; hence, the lower, debased, or criminal, portion of humanity.

un'der·write' (-rīt'), v.; past tense UN'DER·WROTE' (-rōt'), Obs. UN'DER·WRIT' (-rĭt'); past part. UN'DER·WRIT'TEN (-rĭt'n), Obs. UN'DER·WRIT'; pres. part. & verbal n. UN'DER·WRIT'ING (-rīt'ĭng). [After L. subscribere to subscribe; cf. AS. underwritan to sign. See UNDER-; WRITE.] Transitive: 1. To write under something else, esp. under written matter, or at the end of a document; to subscribe; formerly, to sign one's name to; as, additions and changes here underwritten.
2. To write one's name under, or set one's name to (a slip or policy of insurance, orig. marine insurance), for the purpose of thereby becoming answerable for a designated loss or damage, on consideration of receiving a certain premium per cent; hence, to insure on life or property; also, to assume (a certain sum or risk) by way of insurance.
3. a To subscribe or agree to; to confirm; as, a new generation underwrites the old convention. b Hence, Obs., to submit to. Shak.
4. a To agree to purchase on a fixed date at a fixed price (normally the entire amount, but in exceptional instances a portion, of an issue to be made of bonds, capital stock, or the like). b Sometimes, loosely, to guarantee, or subscribe to (any large business enterprise).
5. Now Rare. a To guarantee to pay or to do. b To pledge or promise.
—, Intransitive: 1. Obs. a To subscribe or agree, as to a proposal. b To give a guarantee or become surety.
2. To do the business of an underwriter.

un'der·write', v. t. 1. To portray in an aspect or manner inadequate to represent the real worth or importance.
2. To drop below (a person or standard) in quality of writing.

un'der·writ'er (ŭn'dĕr·rīt'ĕr), n. 1. One who underwrites his name or a business venture. Obs.
2. An underclerk.
3. One who underwrites a slip or policy of insurance; an insurer.
4. Finance. One who underwrites or shares in underwriting a loan, stock issue, or the like.
5. Insurance. One who determines the risks to be solicited and plans programs of insurance; as, a life underwriter; a fire underwriter. Colloq., U. S.

un'der·writ'er's door, floor, etc. A style of door, floor, etc., endorsed by insurance companies as effective against fire.

un'der·writ'ing (-rīt'ĭng), n. 1. The appending of writing, of one's name, or of footnotes, esp. beneath written matter; also, that which is so appended.
2. The business of an underwriter.
3. The action of undertaking to purchase shares in a new business.

---

un'der·stond'. ✝ UNDERSTAND.
un'der·stum'ble (ŭn'dĕr·stŭm'b'l), v. t. To understand. Obs.

un'der·tak'a·ble (-tāk'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. [TAKING. R. un'der·take'ment, n. = UNDER-un'der·tak'er·ish, adj. See -ISH. un'der·tak'er·like', adj. See -LIKE.

un'der·tak'er·ly, adj. = UNDERTAKERISH. [TREASURER. Obs. un'der·the·sau'er, n. = UNDER-un'der·took' (ŭn'dĕr·tŏŏk'), past tense of UNDERTAKE. underwater plug. See PLUG, n. 6.

un'der·ween', v. t. To undervalue. Obs. [DERGO. un'der·went', past tense of UNun'der-writ'ing (ŭn'dĕr-rīt'ĭng), n. The earlier writing in a palimpsest.

un'de-scrib'a-ble (ŭn'dē-skrīb'ȧ-b'l), adj. Indescribable. — un'de-scrib'a-bly, adv.

un'de-script' (-skrĭpt'), adj. Nondescript. Rare.

un'de-sert' (ŭn'dē-zûrt'), n. Undeservingness.

un'de-serve' (-zûrv'), v. t. [1st un- + deserve.] To fail to deserve. — un'de-serv'er (-zûr'vĕr), n.

un'de-signed' (-zīnd'), adj. Not designed. — un'de-sign'ed-ly (-zīn'ĕd-lĭ; -ĭd-lĭ; 119), adv. — -ed-ness, n.

un'de-sign'ing (-zīn'ĭng), adj. Having no artful, ulterior, or fraudulent, purpose; sincere; artless; simple. — un'de-sign'ing-ly, adv. — un'de-sign'ing-ness, n.

un'de-sir'a-ble (ŭn'dē-zīr'ȧ-b'l), adj. a Not desirable. b Objectionable or unwanted, as on grounds of alien race, radical views, or lack of social amenities. — n. An objectionable person. — un'de-sir'a-bil'i-ty (-bĭl'ĭ-tĭ), un'de-sir'a-ble-ness, n. — un'de-sir'a-bly, adv.

un'de-sire' (ŭn'dē-zīr'), n. Absence of desire.

un'de-stroy'a-ble (-stroi'ȧ-b'l), adj. Indestructible.

un'de-ter'mi-na-ble (-tûr'mĭ-nȧ-b'l), adj. Indeterminable.

un'de-ter'mi-nate (-nāt), adj. Indeterminate.

un'de-ter'mi-na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n. Indetermination. Rare.

un'de-ter'mined (-tûr'mĭnd), adj. 1. Not yet definitely or authoritatively decided, settled, or fixed; not yet positively identified or ascertained.
2. Not bounded by definite limits or restrictions; not fixed or precise in signification or use; vague.
3. Not determinate in form or character.
4. Undecided in purpose.

‖un'de vi' (ŭn'dē vī'). [L.] Rom. & Civil Law. Literally, whence by force; — applied to a interdict for protecting a person illegally ejected by force from property occupied by him.

un-dev'il (ŭn-dĕv'l), v. t. [1st un- + devil.] 1. To free from diabolical possession.
2. To divest of the character of a devil.

un'de-vo'tion (ŭn'dē-vō'shŭn), n. Want of devotion.

un'dies (ŭn'dĭz), n. pl. Underwear; esp., feminine undergarments. Colloq. & Trade.

un-dif'fer-ence (ŭn-dĭf'ĕr-ĕns), v. t. Not to differentiate. Obs.

un-dif'fer-enced (-ĕnst), adj. Undifferentiated.

un-dig' (ŭn-dĭg'), v. t. To uncover by digging.

un-dig'e-nous (ŭn-dĭj'ē-nŭs), adj. [L. unda a wave + -genous.] Generated by water. Rare.

un'di-gest'ed (ŭn'dĭ-jĕs'tĕd; -tĭd; -dī-), adj. 1. Not digested.
2. Finance. Not sold; — said of securities which the underwriters or bankers have not been able to sell to the public. Colloq.

un'di-gest'i-ble (-jĕs'tĭ-b'l), adj. Also un'di-gest'a-ble (-tȧ-b'l). Indigestible. Rare.

un'di-ges'tion (-jĕs'chŭn), n. 1. Indigestion. Obs.
2. Nondigestion.

un-dight' (ŭn-dīt'), v. t. [1st un- + dight.] To disarray; unfasten. Obs.

un-dight', adj. Not put in order; undressed.

un-dight'ed (-dīt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Undressed.

un-dig'ni-fy (ŭn-dĭg'nĭ-fī), v. t. To take dignity from.

un-dine' (ŭn-dēn'; ŭn'dēn), n. A glass vessel used by physicians for irrigating a part, as the eye or a nasal passage.

Undine.

un-dine' (ŭn-dēn'; ŭn'dēn), n. [G. undine, F. ondine, fr. NL. Undina, fr. L. unda a wave, water. See UNDULATE.] 1. One of a class of fabled female water spirits who might receive human souls by intermarrying with mortals; — a name given currency by Paracelsus, who conceived them as the elementary beings of water. Cf. 2d GNOME; SYLPH, 1; NIX; SALAMANDER, 1 b.
2. (G. pron. ōōn-dē'nĕ) [cap.] The title and heroine of a romance (1814) by De la Motte Fouqué. She was an elemental water spirit (cf. sense 1, above), a changeling in the hut of a fisherman, where Sir Huldbrand fell in love with her and married her. But he soon neglected his wife for the Lady Bertalda, and Undine was carried away by her sisters into the sea. She returned on the day of her husband's wedding with Bertalda, and gave him a fatal kiss.
3. [cap.] Feminine proper name.
4. [cap.] Astron. A planetoid (92).

un-dined' (ŭn-dīnd'), adj. Unfed by dining.

un-di'o-cesed (ŭn-dī'ō-sēst; -sĭst), adj. Unprovided with a diocese; having no diocese.

un'di-rect' (ŭn'dĭ-rĕkt'; -dī-), adj. Indirect. — un'di-rect'ly, adv. — un'di-rect'ness, n.

un'di-rect'ed (-rĕk'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. [In senses 1 and 2, un- not + directed; in sense 3 properly 1st un- + directed.]
1. Not directed; not guided; left without direction.
2. Not addressed; not superscribed, as a letter.
3. Misdirected; misled; led astray. Rare.

un'dis-cern'i-ble (ŭn'dĭ-zûr'nĭ-b'l; -sûr'-), adj. Indiscernible. — un'dis-cern'i-ble-ness, n. — un'dis-cern'i-bly, adv.

un'dis-cern'ing, n. Want of discernment. Rare.

un-dis'ci-plined (ŭn-dĭs'ĭ-plĭnd), adj. Lacking in, or not subjected to, discipline; unruly; wild; also, untrained. — un-dis'ci-plined-ness, n.

un'dis-close' (ŭn'dĭs-klōz'), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To keep close or secret. Obs.

un'dis-coursed' (ŭn'dĭs-kōrst'; ŭn-dĭs'kōrst; 181), adj. Not subjected to or making discourse or talk. Rare.

un'dis-creet' (ŭn'dĭs-krēt'), adj. Indiscreet. — un'dis-creet'ly, adv. — un'dis-creet'ness, n.

un'dis-cre'tion (-krĕsh'ŭn), n. Indiscretion.

un'dis-ful-filled' (ŭn'dĭs-fōōl-fĭld'), adj. Not unfulfilled.

un'dis-guise' (ŭn'dĭs-gīz'), v. t. & i. To remove a disguise (from).

un'dis-guise', n. Absence of disguise or pretense.

un'dis-may' (ŭn'dĭs-mā'), n. Freedom from dismay.

un'dis-pensed' (ŭn'dĭs-pĕnst'), adj. 1. Not dispensed.
2. Not freed by dispensation. Tooker.

un'dis-pens'ing (-pĕn'sĭng), adj. 1. Allowing no dispensation.
2. Indispensable. Obs.

un'dis-play' (-plā'), n. Advertising, usually in the classified columns of a newspaper, set solid, without illustration or surrounding white space.

un'dis-pose' (-pōz'), v. t. Indispose. Now Rare.

un'dis-posed' (-pōzd'), adj. 1. Not disposed; specif.: a Disinclined. b Not disposed (of); not distributed, placed, sold, or otherwise assigned to a use.
2. Now Rare. a Deranged; ill-conditioned. b Indisposed as to health.
3. Obs. a Ill-prepared or ill-adapted. b Ill-disposed; antagonistic.
— un'dis-pos'ed-ness (-pōz'ĕd-nĕs; -ĭd-nĭs; 119), n.

un'dis-pri'va-cied (ŭn'dĭs-prĭ'vȧ-sĭd), adj. Not deprived of privacy.

un-dis'pu-ta-ble (ŭn-dĭs'pū-tȧ-b'l; ŭn'dĭs-pū'ȧ-b'l), adj. Indisputable. — un-dis'pu-ta-ble-ness, n. — un-dis'pu-ta-bly, adv.

un'dis-tinct' (ŭn'dĭs-tĭngkt'), adj. Indistinct. — un'dis-tinct'ly, adv. — un'dis-tinct'ness, n.

un'dis-tinc'tive (-tĭngk'tĭv), adj. Not distinctive; also, making no distinctions; not discriminating; impartial.

un'dis-tin'guish (-tĭng'gwĭsh), v. t. To render indistinguishable.

un'dis-tin'guish-a-ble (-ȧ-b'l), adj. Indistinguishable. — un'dis-tin'guish-a-ble-ness, n. — -guish-a-bly, adv.

un'dis-tin'guished (-gwĭsht), adj. Not distinguished; esp.: a Not to be distinguished or set off as separate, often from others or each other; not recognized as distinct. b Confusedly mingled with something else; as, an undistinguished shriek in the general uproar. c Indistinctly heard or seen. d Incapable of resolution into constituent parts or forms by the perceptive powers. e Rare. Knowing, or capable of making, no distinctions; not recognizing as distinct. f Unmarked by any distinction or elevation above the rest; receiving no special respect; having no special fame, honor, etc. g Not distinguished in appearance.

un'dis-tress' (ŭn'dĭs-trĕs'), n. Want of distress.

un-dis-trib'ut-ed (-trĭb'ū-tĕd; 119), adj. 1. Not distributed.
2. Logic. Having the character of a term in a proposition which does not convey information about every member of the class which that term denotes (see DISTRIBUTE, v. t., 5). The fallacy of the undistributed middle term is the fallacy of the syllogistic argument in which neither premise distributes the middle term. Thus in the syllogism, "All men are sinners, and all weaklings are sinners, therefore all men are weaklings," the argument is fallacious because neither premise tells us anything about every sinner. If the second premise were, "All sinners are weaklings," the middle term "sinners" would be distributed and the conclusion would be valid.

un-distributed cost. Econ. In accounting, cost or expense not definitely allocated to any single account.

un'dis-turb'ance (ŭn'dĭs-tûr'bȧns), n. State of being free from disturbance.

un'dĭ-vid'a-ble (ŭn'dĭ-vīd'ȧ-b'l), adj. Indivisible. — n. An indivisible thing. — un'dĭ-vid'a-ble-ness, n. — un'dĭ-vid'a-bly, adv.

un'dĭ-vid'ed (-vīd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Not divided; not separated or disunited; unbroken; continuous; whole.
2. Showing, or affected by, no division of opinion or dissension; as, an undivided front.
3. Not set off or made actually separate by division, as the share of a partner in a continuing business or the share of a tenant in common of real estate; as, an undivided interest.
4. Not directed or given to more than one object; as, undivided attention or affection.
5. Not shared by or among others; as, undivided responsibility.
6. Bot. Not lobed, cleft, or branched; entire.
7. Law. Designating, or pertaining to, property held by two or more persons by the same title, whether their rights be equal or unequal in quantity or value.
— un'dĭ-vid'ed-ly, adv. — un'dĭ-vid'ed-ness, n.

undivided profits. Earnings of a corporation or business concern which have been allowed to accumulate instead of being distributed as dividends or profits; specif., Accounting, a corporation account showing accumulated profits which have not been transferred to the surplus account. Cf. SURPLUS, 4.

un'dĭ-vid'u-al (ŭn'dĭ-vĭd'ū-ȧl), adj. Indivisible. Obs.

un'dĭ-vorc'ing (ŭn'dĭ-vōr'sĭng; 181), n. Failure or refusal to countenance divorce.

un-do' (ŭn-dōō'), v.; past tense UN-DID' (-dĭd'); past part. UN-DONE' (-dŭn'); pres. part. & verbal n. UN-DO'ING. [AS. undōn, ondōn. See 1st UN-; DO to perform.] Transitive: 1. To open or loose by releasing a lock, lacing, bandage, or other binding device, or by uncovering; to unfasten; to take to pieces; untie; as, to undo a door, a box, or clothing; to release, as a button, clasp, knot, lock, etc.
2. Hence, to gain the solution of; to expound or resolve; to unravel; solve; as, to undo a riddle or a knotty problem; (Obs.) to undo a dream.
3. To render null or ineffective or as if not done, decided, imposed, etc.; to bring to naught; as, to undo a jury's findings; to reverse, as what has been done, by restoring the original condition or form; as, workmen undid the partition.

What's done cannot be undone. Shak.

4. To bring to ruin, disaster, or destruction; to ruin, as in property, reputation, morals, hopes, or the like.

That quaffing and drinking will undo you. Shak.

5. To ruin by seducing. Now Rare.
6. Obs. a To cut away; to cut open with a knife. b To cut up (game); to break; — a hunting term.
7. To render inadequate; to battle. Obs. Shak.
8. London Stock Exchange. To cover (a transaction) by a purchase or sale with another; — said esp. of a jobber who has failed.
—, Intransitive: 1. To undo what has been done.
2. To become unfastened. Now Rare.

un-do' (ŭn-dōō'), v. t. To leave not done. — un-do'er (-dōō'ĕr), n. — un-do'ing-ness, n. All Rare.

un-dock' (ŭn-dŏk'), v. t. [1st un- + dock.] Naut. To take out of dock. — v. i. To move away from a dock.

un-doc'i-ble (-dŏs'ĭ-b'l), adj. = INDOCIBLE. Obs.

un-doc'tor (ŭn-dŏk'tĕr), v. t. To make unlike a doctor. R. un-do'er (ŭn-dōō'ĕr), n. 1. An interpreter. Obs. Wycliffe.

2. One who undoes anything; esp., one who ruins another; often, a seducer.

un-dog' (ŭn-dŏg'; 185), v. t. [1st un- + dog.] To loose from a fastening dog, or catch; as, to undog a door.

un-do'ing (-dōō'ĭng), n. 1. The reversal of what is done; annulment.
2. Destruction; a condition or an instance of being undone; ruin or cause of ruin.

The utter undoing of some. Hooker.

Syn. — Downfall, destruction, overthrow. Ant. — Making.

un-do'ing, adj. Effecting nullification, reversal, or ruin.

un'do-mes'ti-cate (ŭn'dō-mĕs'tĭ-kāt), v. t. [1st un- + domesticate.] To deprive of, or turn from, domestic life or habits; to make wild.

un'do-mes'ti-ca'tion (-kā'shŭn), n. A making, or state of being, undomesticated.

---

un'der-wrought', past tense & past part. of UNDERWORK.

un'de-scend'ed, adj., un'de-scend'i-ble, un'de-scend'a-ble, adj., un'de-scribed' (-skrĭbd'), adj., un'de-scried' (-skrīd'), adj., un'de-scrip'tive, adj., un'de-scry'ing, adj., un'de-sert'ed, un'de-sert'ing, adj., un'de-served', adj., un'de-serv'ed-ly, adv., un'de-serv'ed-ness, n., un'de-serv'ing, adj., un'de-serv'ing-ly, adv., un'de-serv'ing-ness, n See UN-, not.

un'de-sev'ered. ‡UNDISSEVERED.

un'de-sign', n., un-des'ig-nat'ed, adj., un'de-sired', adj., un'de-sir'ed-ly, adv., un'de-sir'ing, un'de-sir'ous, adj., un'de-sir'ous-ly, adv., un'de-sir'ous-ness, n., un'de-sist'ing, adj., un'de-spaired', un'de-spair'ing, adj., un'de-spair'ing-ly, adv., un'despatched', adj., un'de-spised', un'de-spis'ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un'des-pit'e-ous, adj. Not without feeling. Obs.

un'de-spoiled', adj., un'de-spond'ent, adj., un'de-spond'ent-ly, adv., un'de-spond'ing, adj., un'des-pot'ic, adj., un'des'tined, adj., un'de-stroyed', adj., un'de-struct'i-ble, adj., un'de-struct'ive, adj., un'de-tach'a-ble, un'de-tached', adj., un'de-tailed', adj., un'de-tain'a-ble, un'de-tained', adj., un'de-tect'a-ble, un'de-tect'ed, un'de-tect'i-ble, adj., un'de-te'ri-o-rat'ed, un'de-te'ri-o-rat'ing, adj., un'de-ter'min-ing, adj., un'de-terred', un'de-ter'ring, adj., un'de-test'ed, un'de-test'ing, adj., un'de-thron'a-ble, un'de-throned', adj., un'de-tract'ing, adj., un'de-tract'ing-ly, adv., un'det-ri-men'tal, adj., un'de-vel'op-a-ble, un'de-vel'oped, un'de-vel'op-ing, adj., un'de-vi-at'ed, un'de-vi-at'ing, adj., un'de-vi-at'ing-ly, adv., un'de-vious, adj., un'de-vi-ous-ly, adv. un'de-vis'a-ble, un'de-vised', adj., un'de-vot'ed, adj., un'de-vo'tion-al, adj., un'de-voured', adj., un'de-vout', adj., un'de-vout'ly, adv., un'de-vout'ness, n., un-dewed', adj., un-dew'y, adj., un-dex'ter-ous, un-dex'trous, adj., un-dex'ter-ous-ly, un-dex'trous-ly, adv., un-di'a-demed (-dĕmd), adj., un'di-ag-nos'a-ble, un'di-ag-nosed', adj., un-di'ȧled, un-di'ȧlled, adj., un-di'a-lyzed, adj., un'di-a-met'ric, adj., un-di'a-mond-ed, adj., un-di'a-pered, adj un'di-aph'a-nous, adj., un'di-a-ton'ic, adj., un'di-hot'o-mous, adj., un-di'tat-ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un-did', past tense of UNDO.

un'di-dac'tic, adj., un-di'et-ed, adj., un-dif'fer-ent, adj., un'differ-en'tial, adj., un'dif-fer-en'tiat-ed, adj., un-dif'fi-cult, adj., un-dif'fi-dent, adj., un'diffract'ed, adj., un'dif-fused', un'dif-fus'ĭ-ble, un'dif-fu'sive, adj. See UN-, not. [Obs.]

un'di-gest', adj. = UNDIGESTED.

un'di-gest'ing, adj., un-digged', adj., un-dig'ĭ-tat'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un-digne', adj. Unworthy. Obs. — un-digne'ly, adv. Obs.

un-dig'ni-fied, adj., un-dig'ni-fied'ly, adv., un-dig'ni-fied'ness, n., un-diked', adj., un'dilap'i-dat'ed, adj., un'di-lat'a-ble, adj., un'di-lat'ed, adj., un-dil'ȧ-to'ry, adj., un-dil'i-gent, adj., un-dil'i-gent-ly, adv., un'di-lute', adj., un'di-lut'ed, adj., un'di-lu'tion, adj., un'di-lu'vi-al, adj., un-dim', adj., un'dimen'sioned, adj., un-dim'er-ous, adj., un'di-mid'i-ate, adj., un'di-min'ish-a-ble, adj., un'di-min'ish-a-bly, adv., un'di-min'ished, un'di-min'ish-ing, adj., un'di-min'u-tive, adj., un-dimmed', adj., un-dim'pled, adj., un-dint'ed, adj., un-diph'thong-ize, v. t. See UN-, not.

un'di-plo'maed (-mȧd), adj. See UN-, not; -ED.

un'dip-lo-mat'ic, adj., un-dipped', un-dipt', adj., un'direc'tion-al, adj. See UN-, not.

un-dirk', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'dis-a'bled, adj., un'dis-ad'van-ta'geous, adj., un'dis-a-gree'a-ble, adj., un'dis-ap-pearing, adj., un'dis-ap-point'a-ble, un'dis-ap-point'ed, un'dis-ap-point'ing, adj., un'dis-armed', adj., un'dis-as'trous, adj., un'dis-band'ed, adj., un'dis-barred', adj., un'dis-bur'dened, adj., un'dis-bursed', adj., un'dis-card'a-ble, un'dis-card'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un'dis-cern'a-ble, adj. = UNDISCERNIBLE. — un'dis-cern'a-ble-ness, n., un'dis-cern'a-bly, adv. All Obs.

un'dis-cerned', adj., un'discern'ed-ly, adv., un'dis-cern'ing, adj., un'dis-cern'ing-ly, adv., un'dis-charge'a-ble, adj., un'dis-charged', adj., un'dis-cip'lined, adj., un-dis'ci-plin-a-ble, adj., un'dis'ci-pline, n., un'dis-claimed', adj., un'dis-closed', adj., un'dis-col'ored, -col'oured, adj., un'dis-com'fit-a-ble, adj., un'dis-com'fit-ed, adj., un'dis-com-posed', adj., un'dis-concert'ed, adj. un'dis-con-nect'ed, adj., un'dis-con-tin'ued, adj., un'dis-cord'ant, adj., un'dis-cord'ing, adj., un-dis'count-ed, adj., un'dis-cour'age-a-ble, un'dis-cour'aged, un'dis-cour'aging, adj., un'dis-cov'er-a-ble, adj., un'dis-cov'er-a-ble-ness, n., un'dis-cov'er-a-bly, adv., un'dis-cov'ered, adj., un'dis-cred'it-a-ble, un'dis-cred'it-ed, adj., un'dis-crim'i-nat'ed, un'dis-crim'i-nat'ing, adj., un'dis-crim'i-nat'ing-ly, adv., un'dis-crim'i-nat'ing-ness, n., un'dis-crim'i-na'tive, adj., un'dis-cur'sive, adj., un'dis-cuss'a-ble, un'discussed', adj., un'dis-dained', un'dis-dain'ing, adj., un'dis-eased', adj., un'dis-es-tab'lished, adj., un'dis-fig'ured, adj., un'dis-fran'chised, adj., un'dis-gorged', adj., un'dis-graced', adj., un'dis-guis'a-ble, un'dis-guised', adj., un'dis-guis'ed-ly, adv., un'dis-guis'ed-ness, n., un'dis-gust'ed, adj., un'dis-heart'ened, adj., undished', adj., un'dis-hev'eled, adj., un'dis-hon'ored, -hon'oured, adj., un'dis-il-lu'sioned, adj., un'dis-in-fect'ed, adj., un'dis-in-her'it-a-ble, un'dis-in-her'it-ed, adj., un'dis-in'tegrat'ed, adj., un'dis-in'ter-ested, adj., un'dis-joined', adj., un'dis-joint'ed, adj., un'dis-liked', adj., un-dis'lo-cat'ed, adj., un'dis-lodge'a-ble, adj., un'dis-lodged', adj., un'dis-man'tled, adj., un'dis-may'a-ble, un'dis-mayed', adj., un'dis-may'ed-ly, adv., un'dis-mem'bered, adj., un'dis-missed', adj., un'dis-mounted, adj., un'dis-o-be'di-ent, adj., un'dis-o-beyed', adj., un'dis-o-blig'ing, adj., un'dis-or'dered, adj., un'dis-or'der-ly, adj., un'dis-or'gan-ized, adj., un'dis-owned', un'dis-own'ing, adj., un'dis-par'aged, adj., un'dis-pa'ri-ty, n., un'dis-pas'sion-ate, adj., un'dis-patch'a-ble, un'dis-patched', un'dis-patch'ing adj., un'dis-pel'la-ble, un'dis-pelled', adj. See UN-, not.

un'dis-pen'sa-ble, adj. = INDISPENSABLE. Obs.

un'dis-persed', un'dis-pers'ing, adj., un'dis-place'a-ble, un'dis-placed', adj., un'dis-plant'ed, adj., un'dis-play'a-ble, un'dis-played', un'dis-play'ing, adj., un'dis-pleased', adj. See UN-, not.

un'dis-po-si'tion, n. Indisposition. Obs.

un'dis-prov'a-ble, un'disproved', un'dis-prov'ing, adj., un'dis-pu-ta'tious, adj., un'dis-pu-ta'tious-ly, adv., un'dis-put'ed, adj., un'dis-put'ed-ly, adv., un'dis-put'ed-ness, n., un'dis-put'ing, adj., un'dis-qual'i-fi'a-ble, un'dis-qual'i-fied, adj., un'dis-qui'et-ed, adj., un'dis-rep'ut-a-ble, adj., un'dis-robed', adj., un'dis-rupt'ed, adj., un'dis-sect'ed, adj., un'dis-sem'bled, adj., un'dis-sem'bled-ness, n., un'dis-sem'bling, adj., un'dis-sem'bling-ly, adv., un'dis-sem'i-nat'ed, adj., un'dis-sent'ing, adj., un'dis-sev'ered, adj., un'dis-sim'u-lat'ed, adj., un'dis-si'pat'ed, adj., un'dis-so'ci-at'ed, adj. See UN-, not. [SOLUBLE.]

un'dis-sol'u-ble, adj. = INDISSOLUBLE.

un-dis'so-lute, adj., un'dis-solv'a-ble. un'dis-solved', un'dis-solv'ing, adj., un-dis'so-nant, adj., un'dis-suad'a-ble, adj., un'dis-suad'a-bly, adv., un'dis-suade', v. t. See UN-, not. [Obs.]

un'dis-tained', adj. Unstained.

un'dis-tanced, adj. Distanced.

un'dis-tant, adj., un-dis'tant-ly, adv., un'dis-tast'ed, adj., un'dis-taste'ful, adj., un'dis-tem'pered, adj. See UN-, not.

un'dis-tend', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'dis-tend'ed, adj., un'dis-tilled', adj., un'dis-tin'guish-ing, adj., un'dis-tin'guish-ing-ly, adv., un'dis-tort'ed. un'dis-tort'ing, adj., un'dis-tract'ed, adj., un'dis-tract'ed-ly, adv., un'dis-tract'ed-ness, n., un'dis-tract'ing, adj., un'dis-tract'ing-ly, adv., un'dis-trained', adj., un'dis-traught', adj., un'dis-tressed', adj. See UN-, not.

undistributed cost. See 3d COST, 6.

un'dis-trust'ed, adj., un'dis-trust'ful, adj., un'dis-turb'a-ble, adj., un'dis-turbed', adj., un'dis-turb'ed-ly, adv., un'dis-turb'ed-ness, n., un'dis-turb'ing, adj., un-dis-turb'ing-ly adv., un-ditched', adj., un'dith-y-ram'bic, adj., un-dit'toed, adj., un'di-u-ret'ic, adj., un'di-ur'nal, adj., un-div'a-ble, adj., un'diverg'ent, adj., un'di-verg'ing, adj., un'di-verse', adj., un'diver'si-fied, adj., un'di-vert'ed, adj., un'di-vert'i-ble, adj., un'divert'i-bly, adv., un'di-vert'ing, adj., un'di-vest'ed, adj., un'divest'ed-ly, adv., un'di-vid'ing, adj., un'di-vin'a-ble, adj., un'di-vined', adj., un'di-vine'like', adj., un'di-vine'ly, adv., un'divin'ing, adj., un'di-vis'i-ble, adj., un'di-vi'sive, adj., un'di-vorced', adj., un'di-vorc'ed-ness, n., un'divorc'ing, adj., un'di-vulged', un'di-vulg'ing, adj., un-diz'ened, adj., un-diz'zied, adj. See UN-, not. [-ABLE.]

un-do'a-ble (-dōō'ȧ-b'l), adj. See] un-do'a-ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un-doc'il, adj. Not docile. Obs.

un-doked', adj., un-doc'tored, adj., un-doc'tri-nal, adj. un-doc'trined, adj., un'doc-u-ment'a-ry, adj., un-doc'u-ment'ed, adj., un-doc'u-ment'ed-ness, n., un-dodged', adj., un-doffed', adj., un'dog-mat'ic, un'dog-mat'i-cal, adj., undolled', adj., un-dol'or-ous, adj., un-domed', adj., un'do-mes'tic, adj. See UN-, not.

un'do-mes'ti-cat'ed, part. adj. of UNDOMESTICATE.

un-dom'i-cil-a-ble (-dŏm'ĭ-sĭl-ȧ-b'l), un-dom'i-ciled, adj., un-dom'i-nat'ed, adj., un'dom-i-neer'ing, adj., un'do-min'i-cal, adj., un'-Do-min'i-can, adj., undom'i-noed, adj. See UN-, not.

un-don', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un-do'nat-ed, un-do'nat-ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un-done' (ŭn-dŭn'), past part. of UNDO. — un-done'ness, n. Rare. "He felt undone, powerless." W. J. Locke.

un-done', adj. [un- not + done.] Not performed; neglected. — n. That which remains unperformed.

un'dose (ŭn'dōs; see -OSE), adj. [L. undosus wavy.] Undulate; undulated; formerly, varying in force or strength.

un-dou'ble (ŭn-dŭb'l), v. [1st un- + double.] Transitive: 1. To unfold, or render single; to unclench. 2. Chess. To move (a pawn) from the file on which it is doubled, as by capture of an adverse pawn.

—, Intransitive: To straighten out or become unfolded — unclenched.

— un-dou'bled (-'ld), adj.

un-doubt'a-ble (ŭn-dout'ȧ-b'l), adj. Indubitable. Now Rare. — un-doubt'a-ble-ness, n. Rare.

un-doubt'a-bly (-blĭ), adv. Indubitably; undoubtedly. Obs. exc. Dial. & Illit.

un-doubt'ed (ŭn-dout'ĕd; 119), adj. Not doubted or called in question; indubitable; as, undoubted proof; an undoubted hero.—un-doubt'ed-ly, adv.—un-doubt'ed-ness, n un-doubt'ed, adv. Undoubtedly. Obs.

un-drape' (ŭn-drāp'), v. t. [1st un- + drape.] To strip of drapery; to uncover or unveil.

un-draw' (ŭn-drô'), v. t. [1st un- + draw.] To draw aside or open; to draw back, as a curtain. — v. i. To move or be drawn back or aside.

un-drawn' (ŭn-drôn'; 66), adj. Not drawn; specif.: a That has not been milked, tapped, eviscerated. b That has not been pulled or dragged out. c Not represented or delineated in a drawing.

un-dreamed' (ŭn-drēmd'; 66), adj. Also un-dreamt' (-drĕmt'). Not dreamed, or dreamed of; not thought of; not imagined;—often with of. "Undreamed shores." Shak.

un-dress' (ŭn-drĕs'), v. [1st un- + dress.] Transitive: 1. To divest of clothes; to strip. 2. To divest of ornaments or formal garments; to disrobe. 3. To deprive or divest, as of reputation or vanity. 4. To array in scant or light attire. 5. To unbind or muss (the hair). Obs. 6. To take the dressing or covering from (a wound).

—, Intransitive: 1. To take off one's clothes; to strip. 2. To make a shift in dress. Obs.

un'dress' (ŭn'drĕs'; ŭn-drĕs'), n. 1. A loose, informal dress, as for resting or lounging. 2. Ordinary dress, as distinguished from full dress; specif., Mil. & Nav., an authorized uniform of officers and soldiers, but not full-dress uniform. The term is no longer officially used in the United States Army.

un'dress', adj. Constituting or belonging to undress.

un-dressed' (ŭn-drĕst'; 66), adj. Also un-drest'. 1. Not dressed; as: a Not trimmed, brushed, curried, pruned, prepared for cooking, etc. b Unkempt; ungroomed. c Disorderly in arrangement or appearance. d Having a surface not finished or dressed. 2. Arrayed in scant or no clothing. 3. Wearing informal or ordinary dress; in undress; not calling for full dress.

undressed kid. Kid leather finished with a nap surface, usually on the flesh side of the skin.

undress parade. Mil. A substitute for dress parade (no longer used in the United States Army), allowed in bad weather, the companies forming without arms, and the ceremony being shortened.

‖und so wei'ter (ōōnt zō vī'tĕr). [G.] And so forth; et cetera. Abbr. usw.

un-du'bi-ta-ble (ŭn-dŭ'bĭ-tȧ-b'l), adj. Indubitable. — un-du'bi-ta-bly, adv.

un-due' (ŭn-dū'; ŭn'dū'; 66), adj. 1. Not due; not yet payable; as, an undue debt, note, or bond. 2. Inappropriate or unsuitable; improper as to time or manner. 3. Not right; not lawful or legal; violating legal or equitable rights; improper; as, an undue proceeding. 4. Not agreeable to a rule or standard, or to duty; excessive; immoderate; inordinate; as, an undue attachment to forms; an undue rigor in the execution of law.

Syn. — Extreme, exorbitant, unwarranted.

Ant. — Condign, proper.

undue influence. Law. Such influence over another as destroys his free agency in the eye of the law; such influence as prevents a person from exercising his own will and substitutes in its place the will of another, as by constraint, machination, urgency of persuasion, or otherwise.

un-duke' (ŭn-dūk'), v. t. [1st un- + duke.] To deprive of dukedom. Rare.

un'du-lant (ŭn'dŭ-lănt), adj. Undulating.

undulant fever. Med. A long-persisting disease characterized by an undulating, or remittent, fever, profuse perspiration, pain and swelling in the joints, and an enlarged spleen. First recognized on the Mediterranean coasts, it is called also Malta fever, Mediterranean fever, Neapolitan fever, and Rock fever. The disease is caused by bacteria of the genus Brucella contracted from infected goats, swine, or cattle chiefly through milk or meat products. In the United States B. suis of swine is a major source of infection. See BRUCELLA. Cf. INFECTIOUS ABORTION.

un'du-lar (ŭn'dŭ-lĕr), adj. Having undulations or the appearance of waves; wavy. — un'du-lar-ly, adv.

un'du-late (ŭn'dŭ-lāt), adj. [L. undulatus undulated, wavy, fr. unda a wave. See WATER; cf. ABOUND, INUNDATE, REPOUND, SURROUND, UNDINE.] 1. Undulated; wavy; bending in gradual curves, as the margin of a leaf. Cf. REPAND, SINUATE. 2. Undulating. "Slumber in undulate rhythms." Amy Lowell.

un'du-late (-lāt), v.; -LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). Intransitive: 1. To move in, or have, undulations or waves; to wave; as, undulating air. 2. To rise and fall as if on waves; to surge. 3. To show a surface formed of or as if of waves.

—, Transitive: 1. To cause to move backward and forward, or up and down, in undulations or waves. 2. To form into waves or give the appearance of waves or of having a wavy surface.

Syn. — See FLUCTUATE.

— un'du-lat'ance (-lāt'ŭns; -'ns), n.

un'du-lat'ed (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), part. adj. 1. Resembling, or in the nature of, waves; having a wavy surface or wavelike markings; undulatory. 2. Bot. & Zool. Undulate.

un'du-late-ly (-lāt-lĭ), adv. In wavelike form or with wavelike markings.

un'du-lat'ing (-lāt'ĭng), part. adj. Rising and falling like waves; resembling wave form or motion; undulatory; rolling; wavy; as, undulating ground.—un'du-lat'ing-ly, adv.

undulating current. Elec. An undulatory current.

un'du-la'tion (ŭn'dŭ-lā'shŭn), n. [Cf. F. ondulation.] 1. The action of undulating, esp. rising and falling on or as if on waves; a waving or wavelike motion; of sound, pulsation or a pulsation. 2. A wavy appearance, outline, or margin; a wavelike surface; waviness. 3. Rhythmic succession of wavelike crests and hollows or of higher and lower levels in an expanse; such a succession or one such rise and fall in level. 4. Geom. A point of a plane curve counting as four (or any higher even number of) intersections of the curve with its tangent so that the tangent does not cross the curve. 5. Music. a The tremulous tone produced on a bowed instrument by a vibrating movement of the finger on a string; a vibrato or tremolo. b The pulsation caused by the vibrating together of two tones not quite in unison; — called also beat. 6. Physics. A motion to and fro, up and down, or from side to side, in any fluid or elastic medium, propagated continuously among its particles, but with little or no permanent translation of the particles themselves in the direction of the propagation; a vibration; a wave.

un'du-la'tion-ist, n. An advocate of the undulatory theory.

un'du-la'tive (ŭn'dŭ-lā'tĭv or, esp. Brit., -lȧ-tĭv), adj. Consisting in, or accompanied by, undulations; undulatory.

un'du-la-to'ry (-lȧ-tō'rĭ; -tĕr-ĭ; 68; 277), adj. [Cf. F. ondulatoire.] Of or pertaining to undulation; moving in the manner of undulations; resembling the motion or appearance of waves; also, undulating.

undulatory current. Elec. A current of undulating or gradually changing strength, whether continuous or alternating.

undulatory theory. See 1st LIGHT, 18.

undulatory winding. See DRUM WINDING.

un'du-loid (ŭn'dŭ-loid), n. [See UNDULATE; -OID.] Math. A surface of revolution obtained by rotating about a given line the path traced out by a focus of an ellipse rolling on the given line.

un'du-lose (ŭn'dŭ-lōs; see -OSE), adj. Undulous. Rare.

un'du-lous (ŭn'dŭ-lŭs), adj. Undulating; undulatory.

un-du'ly (ŭn-dū'lĭ), adv. 1. Not in accord with law or right; unjustly; irregularly. 2. In a wrong or careless way. Obs. 3. Beyond a proper degree; more than is due; excessively.

un-dust' (ŭn-dŭst'), v. t. [1st un- + dust.] To free from dust.

un-dust'ed, adj. 1. Not dusty or dust-covered. 2. Not wiped clean of dust; dusty.

un-du'ti-ful (ŭn-dū'tĭ-fŏŏl), or un-du'te-ous (-tē-ŭs), will. Rom. & Civil Law. A will which does not make the minimum provision required by law for some heir or heirs of the testator. It may be set aside at suit of the heir unprovided for.

un-du'ty (ŭn-dū'tĭ), n. Failure in duty.

un-dwelt' (ŭn-dwĕlt'), adj. Not lived (in).

un'dy (ŭn'dĭ), adj. Her. Undé.

un-dy'ing (ŭn-dī'ĭng), adj. Not dying; unending; immortal. — un-dy'ing-ly, adv. — un-dy'ing-ness, n.

une (ūn), v. t. [F. unir, fr. L. unire.] To make one; to unite. Obs.

un-eared' (ŭn-ērd'), adj. [Cf. AS. unered.] Untilled. Obs.

un-earned' (ŭn-ûrnd'; 66), adj. Not earned; unmerited; also, not gained by labor or service.

unearned income. Finance. Income derived from sources other than wages, salaries, fees, etc. Such income is usually taxed at a higher rate than earned income.

unearned increment. Econ. An increase in the value of land or other property due to no labor or expenditure on the part of the owner, but to natural causes making an increased demand for it, such as the increase of population or the general progress of society. Sometimes it is especially taxed.

unearned premium reserve. See RESERVE, n., 13.

un-earth' (ŭn-ûrth'), v. t.; UN-EARTHED' (-ûrtht'); UN-EARTH'ING. [1st un- + earth.] To drive or draw from the earth or from underground; to exhume; hence, to bring from concealment; to bring to light, as a secret. — v. i. To come out from the earth, as from a burrow.

Syn. — Expose, discover, uncover.

Ant. — Secrete, bury, hide.

un-earthed' (-ûrtht'), adj. 1. Not buried. 2. Elec. Not earthed or grounded.

un-earth'ly (-ûrth'lĭ), adj. Not earthly; as: a Not terrestrial. b Supernatural; preternatural; hence, weird; appalling; terrific; as, an unearthly sight or sound. c Outlandish; preposterous. — un-earth'li-ness, n.

un-ease' (ŭn-ēz'), n. Uneasiness; disquiet or discomfort.

un-ease', v. t. To disturb; trouble. Obs.

un-ease'ful (ŭn-ēz'fŏŏl), adj. Restless; toilsome. —un-ease'ful-ness, n. See -NESS.

un-eas'y (ŭn-ēz'ĭ), adj.; -EAS'I-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); -EAS'I-EST. 1. Not easy; difficult; troublesome. Now Rare. 2. Occasioning want of ease; constraining; cramping; disagreeable. "His uneasy station." Milton.

A sour, untractable nature makes him uneasy to those who approach him. Addison.

3. Not easy in manner; constrained; stiff; awkward; not graceful; as, an uneasy bearing. 4. Restless or disturbed by pain, anxiety, or the like; disquieted; perturbed; as, uneasy about one's health.

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown. Shak.

5. Experiencing physical discomfort; restless; hence, moving as if disturbed or restless. 6. Obs. a Hard to traverse or handle. b Displeased. c Dissatisfied.

Syn. — Restless, inquiet, worried.

Ant. — Placid, quiet, serene.

— un-eas'i-ly, adv. — un-eas'i-ness, n.

un-eas'y, adv. Uneasily.

un-eas'y, v. t. To render uneasy. Chiefly Dial.

un-eath' (ŭn-ēth', -ēth'), adv. [AS. unēathe.] Not easily; with difficulty; hardly; scarcely; barely. Archaic.

un-eath', adj. [AS. unēathe, fr. un- not + ēathe easily, easy; akin to OS. ōthi easy, OHG. ōdi. Cf. EATH.] Not easy; difficult; hard. Archaic.

un-e'bri-ate (ŭn-ē'brĭ-āt), adj. That does not intoxicate; also, not intoxicated. Rare.

un-ed'i-ble (ŭn-ĕd'ĭ-b'l), adj. Inedible. — un-ed'i-ble-ness, n. — un-ed'i-bly, adv.

un-ed'u-ca-ble (ŭn-ĕd'ū-kȧ-b'l), adj. Not educable. — un-ed'u-ca-ble-ness, n. — un-ed'u-ca-bly, adv.

un-ed'u-cate (-kāt), adj. Uneducated. Obs. exc. Scot.

un-ed'u-cate (-kāt), v. t. To annul the education of.

un-ef'fa-ble (ŭn-ĕf'ȧ-b'l), adj. Ineffable. Obs.

un'ef-fec'tu-al (ŭn'ĕ-fĕk'tū-ăl), adj. Ineffectual. — un'ef-fec'tu-al-ly, adv. — un'ef-fec'tu-al-ness, n.

un-e'gal (ŭn-ē'găl), adj. [Cf. F. inégal.] Unequal. — un-e'gal-ly, adv. — un-e'gal-ness, n. All Obs.

un-el'e-gant (ŭn-ĕl'ĕ-gănt), adj. Inelegant. — un-el'e-gant-ly, adv. — un-el'e-gant-ness, n.

un-el'i-gi-ble (ŭn-ĕl'ĭ-jĭ-b'l), adj. Ineligible. — un'el-i-gi-bil'i-ty (ŭn'ĕl-ĭ-jĭ-bĭl'ĭ-tĭ), n. — un-el'i-gi-bly, adv.

un'em-bar'rassed (ŭn'ĕm-băr'ăst), adj. Not embarrassed; specif., free from perplexity or mental confusion, from pecuniary difficulties, or from perplexing connection. — un'em-bar'rassed-ly, adv. — un'em-bar'rassed-ness, n. — un'em-bar'rass-ing (-ăs-ĭng), adj. — un'em-bar'rassment (-mĕnt), n.

un'em-bod'ied (-bŏd'ĭd), adj. [See 1st UN-.] Disembodied.

un'em-bod'ied, adj. Not embodied; not collected into a body; not yet organized; as, unembodied militia.

un'em-bod'i-ment (ŭn'ĕm-bŏd'ĭ-mĕnt), n. Absence of embodiment.

un'e-mo'tion-al (ŭn'ē-mō'shŭn-ăl), adj. Not showing, feeling, or inducing, emotion. — un'e-mo'tion-al-ism (-ĭz'm), n. — un'e-mo'tion-al-ly, adv. — -al-ness, n.

un'e-mo'tioned (-shŭnd), adj. Impassive. Rare.

un'em-phat'ic (ŭn'ĕm-făt'ĭk), adj. Also un'em-phat'i-cal (-ĭ-kăl). Not emphatic. — un'em-phat'i-cal-ly, adv.

un'em-phat'ic, n. An unstressed syllable.

un'em-ploy' (ŭn'ĕm-ploi'), n. Unemployment. Rare.

un'em-ploy'a-ble (-ȧ-b'l), adj. Not employable. — n. An unemployable person. — un'em-ploy'a-bil'i-ty (-bĭl'ĭ-tĭ), n. — un'em-ploy'a-ble-ness, n. — un'em-ploy'a-bly, adv.

un'em-ployed' (-ploid'), adj. 1. Not accompanied with employment; as, his lazy, unemployed existence. 2. Not employed in manual or other labor; having no regular work; specif., not employed at any paid labor. 3 Not invested or used; as, unemployed capital.

un'em-ployed', n. An unemployed person; with the, unemployed persons collectively.

un'em-ploy'ment (ŭn'ĕm-ploi'mĕnt), n. State of being not employed; lack of employment.

Syn. — Idleness, inactivity. Ant. — Work, employment.

unemployment benefit. Payment to a worker, who is out of employment, of a sum of money per week by his union, his employer, or the state. Cf. DOLE, 4.

unemployment insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1.

un-empt' (ŭn-ĕmpt'), v. t. [1st un- + empt.] To empty. Dial. Eng.

un-don'key, v. t. See 1st UN-. un-don'nish, adj., un-doomed', adj., un-doped', adj., un-Dor'ic, adj., un-dor'mant, adj., undosed', adj., un-dot'ing, adj., un-dot'ted, adj., un-dou'bled, adj. See UN-, not.
un-doubt'ful, adj., un-doubt'fully, adv., un-doubt'ful-ness, n., un-doubt'ing, adj., undoubt'ing-ly, adv., un-doubt'ing-ness, n. See UN-, not. [Obs.] un-doubt'ous, adj. Undoubting.
un-douched', adj., un-dough'ty, adj., un-dove'like', adj., undow'eled, un-dow'elled, adj., un-dow'ered, adj., un-downed', adj., un-down'ty, adj., un-drab', adj., un-draft'a-ble, un-draft'ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un-drag', v. i. See 1st UN-. un-drag'oned, adj., un'dragooned', adj., un-drain'a-ble, adj., un-drained', adj., un'dramat'ic, un'dra-mat'i-cal, adj., un'dra-mat'i-cal-ly, adv., un-dram'a-tis'a-ble, un-dram'a-tised, adj. See UN-, not.
un-draped', part. adj. of UNDRAPE. un-draped', adj., un-dra'per-ied, adj., un-draw'a-ble, adj. See UN-, not.
un-drawn', part. adj. of UNDRAW.
un-dread'ed, adj., un-dread'ful, adj., un-dread'ful-ly, adv., un-dread'ing, adj., un-dream'ing, adj., un-dream'like', adj., undream'y, adj., un-dredged', adj., un-dreg'gy, adj., un-drenched', adj., un-dried', adj., un-drill'a-ble, adj., un-drilled', adj., un-drink'a-ble, adj., un-drink'a-ble-ness, n., un-drink'a-bly, adv., un-drink'ing, adj., un-drip'ping, adj., un-driv'a-ble, adj., un-driv'a-ble-ness, n., un-drived, adj., un-drone'like', adj., un-droop'ing, un-dropped', adj., un-drop'si-cal, adj., undross'y, adj., un-drowned', adj., un-drubbed', adj., un-drugged', adj., un-drunk', adj., un-drunken, adj., un-dry', adj. See UN-, not.
un-dry', v. i. [1st un- + dry.] To become wet. Obs.
un-dry'a-ble, adj., un-dry'ing, adj. See UN-, not.
un-du'al-ize, v. t. See 1st UN-. un-dub', v. t. See 1st UN-. un-dubbed', adj. See UN-, not.
un-du'bi-tate, adj. Undoubted. Obs.
un-du'cal, adj. See UN-, not.
un-duch'ess, v. t. See 1st UN-. un-du'el-ling, adj. See UN-, not.
un-due'ness, n. See -NESS. un-dug', adj. See UN-, not.
un-dull', adj., un-dulled', adj., un-dull'ness, n. See UN-, not.
un-dumped', adj. See UN-, not.
un-dunce'like', adj., undunged' (-dŭnjd'), adj., undup'a-ble, adj., un-duped', adj., un-du'pli-ca-bil'i-ty, n., un-du'pli-ca-ble, adj., un-du'pli-c'i-ty, n. See UN-, not.
un-dur'a-ble, adj. See UN-, not. — un-dur'a-ble-ness, n. — undur'a-bly, adv.
un-dure', adj. [See DURE hard.] Soft; crumbled. Obs. un-du'te-ous, adj., un-du'ti-able, adj., un-du'ti-ful, adj., undu'ti-ful-ly, adv., un-du'ti-fulness, n., un-dwarfed', adj. See UN-, not. [Table. Obs.] un-dwell'a-ble, adj. Uninhabitun-dwin'dling, adj. See UN-, not.
un-dye', v. t. See 1st UN-. un-dye'a-ble, un-dyed', adj., un-ea'ger, adj., un-ea'ger-ly, adv., un-ea'ger-ness, n., un-ea'gled, adj., un-ear'ly, adj., un-ear'nest, adj., un-east'ern, adj., un-eat'a-ble, adj., un-eat'a-ble-ness, n., un-eat'en, adj. See UN-, not.
un-eaths', adv. = 1st UNEATH. Obs.
un-eat'ing, adj., un-ebbed', adj., un-ebb'ing, adj., un'ec-cen'tric, adj., un'ec-cle'si-as'ti-cal, adj., un-ech'oed, adj., un-ech'o-ing, adj., un'ec-lec'tic, adj., un'eclipsed', adj., un'e-co-nom'ic, adj., un'e-co-nom'i-cal, adj., un'e-co-nom'i-cal-ly, adv., un'eco-nom'i-cal-ness, n., un'e-con'o-mis'ing, adj., un'ec-stat'ic, adj. See UN-, not.
un-edge', v. t. See 1st UN-. — un-edged', adj.
un-ed'i-fied, adj., un-ed'i-fy'ing, adj., un-ed'it-a-ble, adj., un-ed'it-ed, adj., un-ed'u-cat'ed, adj., un-ed'u-cat'ed-ly, adv., un-ed'u-cat'ed-ness, n., un-ed'u-ca'tive, adj., un'e-duced', adj., un-ef'face'a-ble, adj., un'ef-face'a-bly, adv., un'ef-faced', adj., un'effect'ed, adj., un'ef-fect'i-ble, adj., un'ef-fec'tive, adj., un'effect'less, adj., un'ef-fec'tu-at'ed, adj. See UN-, not.
un'ef-fem'i-nate, v. t. See 1st UN-. — un'ef-fem'i-nat'ed, adj., un'ef-fer-ves'cent, adj., un'effete', adj., un'ef-fi-ca'cious, adj., un'ef-fi'cient, adj., un'ef-fig'i-at'ed, adj., un'ef-fused', adj., un'ef-fus'ing, adj., un'ef-fu'sive, adj. See UN-, not.
un-e'go-ist, n. & adj., un'e-go-is'tic-cal, adj., un'e-go-is'tic-ally, adv., un'e-gre'gious, adj., un'-E-gyp'tian, adj., un'e-jac'u-lat'ed, adj., un'e-ject'ed, adj., un'e-lab'o-rate, adj., un'e-lab'orat'ed, adj., un'e-lab'o-rate-ly, adv., un'e-lab'o-rate-ness, n., un'e-lapsed', adj., un'e-las'tic, adj., un'e-las'tic-i-ty, n., un'e-lat'ed, un'e-lat'ing, adj., un-el'bowed, adj., un-el'der-ly, adj., un'e-lect', un'e-lect'a-ble, un'e-lect'ed, un'e-lec'tive, adj., un'e-lec'tric, un'e-lec'tri-cal, un'e-lec'tri-fied, adj. See UN-, not.
un'e-lec'tri-fy, v. t. See 1st UN-. un'e-lec'tri-fy'ing, adj., un'e-lec'trized, adj., un'e-lec-tron'ic, adj., un'el-ee-mos'y-nar'y, adj., un'el-e-ment'al, adj., un'el-e-men'ta-ry, adj., un'el-e-vat'ed, adj., un'e-lic'it-ed, adj., un'e-lid'ed, adj., un'e-lid'i-ble, adj., un'e-lim'i-nat'ed, adj., un'-E-lis'a-be'than, adj., un'e-lon'gat-ed, adj., un'e-loped', adj., un'e-lop'ing, adj., un-el'oquent, adj., un-el'o-quent-ly, adv., un'e-lu'ci-dat'ed, adj., un'e-lu'ci-dat'ing, adj., un'e-lud'ed, adj., un'e-lu'sive, adj., un'ema'ci-at'ed, adj., un'e-man'cipa-ble, adj., un'e-man'ci-pat'ed, adj., un'e-mas'cu-lat'ed, adj., un'em-balmed', adj., un'embanked', adj., un'em-based', adj., un'em-bat'tled, adj., un'em-bayed', adj., un'em-bel'lished, adj., un'em-bez'zled, adj., un'em-bit'tered, adj., un'em-ble'zoned, adj., un'em-bossed', adj., un'em-bow'elled, adj., un'em-bow'ered, adj., un'embrace'a-ble, adj., un'em-braced', adj., un'em-broi'dered, adj., un'em-broiled', adj., un'em-bryon'ic, adj., un'e-mend'a-ble, adj., un'e-mend'ed, adj., un'emerged', adj., un'e-merg'ing, adj., un-em'i-grat'ing, adj., un-em'i-nent, adj., un-em'i-nently, adv., un'e-mit'ted, adj., un'e-mol'u-men'ta-ry, adj. See UN-, not. [UN-, not; -ED.] un'e-mol'u-ment'ed, adj. See un'em-pan'eled, un'em-pan'elled, adj., un'em-pir'i-cal, adj.
un'em-plr'i-cal-ly, adv., un'em-poi'soned, adj., un'em-pow'ered, adj. See UN-, not.

un'en·cum'ber (ŭn'ĕn·kŭm'bĕr), v. t. [1st un- + encumber.] To disencumber.

un'en·cum'bered (-bĕrd), adj. Not encumbered; specif., Law, free from any temporary estate or interest, as a mortgage, lien, or dower right, in the nature of a lien, burden, or charge; free from any encumbrance. — un'en·cum'bered·ly, adv. — un'en·cum'bered·ness, n.

un·end'ed (ŭn·ĕn'dĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. Not ended; endless.

un·end'ing (-dĭng), adj. Not ending; endless. — un·end'ing·ly, adv. — un·end'ing·ness, n.

unending decimal. Math. A number expressed or expressible not exactly, but to any required degree of exactness, in an endless succession of tenths, hundredths, etc.; as, $\frac{1}{7} = 0.1428571\ldots$; $\pi = 3.14159\ldots$.

un·end'ly (ŭn·ĕnd'lĭ), adj. [un- not + end + -ly.] Unending; endless. Obs.

un·eng'lish (ŭn·ĭng'glĭsh), v. t. To translate into a language not English. Rare.

un'en·tan'gle (ŭn'ĕn·tăng'g'l), v. t. To disentangle. — un'en·tan'gle·ment (-mĕnt), n. — un'en·tan'gler (-glĕr), n.

un·en'ter·ing (ŭn·ĕn'tĕr·ĭng), adj. Not entering; making no impression.

un'en·trance' (ŭn'ĕn·trăns'), v. t. To disentrance.

un'e·pis'co·pal (ŭn'ē·pĭs'kō·păl), adj. Not episcopal; as: a Without bishops. b Not episcopalian. c Not befitting a bishop. — un'e·pis'co·pal·ly, adv.

un·eq'ua·ble (ŭn·ĕk'wȧ·b'l; -ē'kwȧ·b'l), adj. Inequable. — un·eq'ua·bly, adv. — un·eq'ua·ble·ness, n.

un·e'qual (ŭn·ē'kwăl), adj. [Cf. INEQUAL.] Not equal; as: 1. Not of the same size, length, breadth, quantity, strength, talents, acquirements, age, station, or the like; as, the fingers are of unequal length; peers and commoners are unequal in rank.
2. Ill balanced or matched; uneven; as, an unequal fight.
3. Not uniform; variable; irregular; uneven; as, unequal pulsations; an unequal poem.
4. Not adequate or sufficient; — now with to; as, the man was unequal to the task; timber unequal to the strain.
5. Odd; — of numbers.
6. Contracted between unequals; as, unequal marriages or treaties.
7. Obs. a Not equitable; unjust; unfair.
To punish me for what you made me do Seems much unequal. Shak.
b Partial; acting unfairly. c Disproportionate.
8. Nat. Hist. Asymmetrical. See CLEAVAGE, 3.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
unequal-lengthed unequal-lobed unequal-tempered unequal-limbed unequal-sided unequal-valved — un·e'qual·ly, adv. — un·e'qual·ness, n.

un·e'qual, n. One who or that which is not on a footing of equality with another; — usually in pl.

un·e'qual, adv. Unequally.

unequal cleavage. See CLEAVAGE, 3.

unequal counterpoint. Music. Counterpoint in which the parts move in unequal notes.

un·e'qualed, un·e'qualled (ŭn·ē'kwăld), adj. Not equaled; unmatched; unparalleled; unrivaled; surpassing.

unequal hour. A planetary hour (sense 8).

un'e·qual'i·ty (ŭn'ē·kwŏl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Inequality.

un·e'qual·ly pin'nate. Bot. Odd-pinnate.

unequal temperament. Music. See TEMPERAMENT, 6.

unequal voices. Music. Mixed voices.

un·e'qui·axed (ŭn·ē'kwĭ·ăkst), adj. Not having equal axes.

un·eq'ui·ta·ble (ŭn·ĕk'wĭ·tȧ·b'l), adj. Inequitable. — un·eq'ui·ta·ble·ness, n. — un·eq'ui·ta·bly, adv.

un'e·quiv'o·cal (ŭn'ē·kwĭv'ō·kăl), adj. Not equivocal; not doubtful; not ambiguous; clear; sincere; plain. — un'e·quiv'o·cal·ly, adv. — un'e·quiv'o·cal·ness, n.

un·er'ra·ble (ŭn·ûr'ȧ·b'l; ŭn·ĕr'-), adj. Infallible. — un·er'ra·ble·ness, n. — un·er'ra·bly, adv.

un·err'ing (ŭn·ûr'ĭng; -ĕr'ĭng), adj. Committing no mistake; incapable of error or failure; certain; sure; unfailing. — un·err'ing·ly, adv. — un·err'ing·ness, n.

Syn. — See INFALLIBLE. Ant. — Inaccurate.

un'es·cap'a·ble (ŭn'ĕs·kăp'ȧ·b'l), adj. Inescapable. — un'es·cap'a·ble·ness, n. — un'es·cap'a·bly, adv.

un·es'sence (ŭn·ĕs'ĕns; -ns), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To take essential character from.

un'es·sen'tial (ŭn'ĕ·sĕn'shăl), adj. Not essential; not indispensable; unimportant; also, Rare, void of essence, or real being. — n. Something not constituting essence, or not indispensable or, loosely, important. — un'es·sen'tial·ly, adv. — un'es·sen'tial·ness, n.

un'es·tab'lish (ŭn'ĕs·tăb'lĭsh), v. t. [1st un- + establish.] To disestablish.

un·es'ti·ma·ble (ŭn·ĕs'tĭ·mȧ·b'l), adj. Not estimable; inestimable. — un·es'ti·ma·ble·ness, n. — un·es'ti·ma·bly, adv.

un·eth'ic (ŭn·ĕth'ĭk), adj. Unethical.

un·eth'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Not ethical; hence, Colloq., not according to business or professional standards. — un·eth'i·cal·ly, adv. — un·eth'i·cal·ness, n.

un·e'ven (ŭn·ē'vĕn), adj. [AS. unefen. See UN- not; EVEN, adj.] 1. a Now Rare. Unequal. b Not even; not level; not uniform; rough; rugged; as, an uneven road or way; uneven ground.
2. a Not of equal length. b Not parallel.
Hebrew verse consists of uneven feet. Peacham.
3. Not divisible by two without a remainder; odd; — said of numbers; as, 3, 7, and 11 are uneven numbers.
4. Obs. a Unfair; unjust. b Ill-matched or ill-assorted.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
uneven-aged uneven-handed uneven-priced uneven-carriaged uneven-numbered uneven-roofed — un·e'ven·ly, adv. — un·e'ven·ness, n.

un·e'ven, adv. Unevenly.

un·e'ven, v. t. To make uneven.

un·e'ven·ly, adj. Uneven; unequal. Obs.

un'e·vent'ful (ŭn'ē·vĕnt'fo͝ol), adj. Not eventful; without noteworthy occurrences. — un'e·vent'ful·ly, adv. — un'e·vent'ful·ness, n.

un·ev'i·dent (ŭn·ĕv'ĭ·dĕnt), adj. Not evident; obscure.

un·ev'i·ta·ble (-tȧ·b'l), adj. Inevitable. — un·ev'i·ta·bly, adv.

un'ex·act' (ŭn'ĕg·zăkt'; ŭn'ĭg-), adj. Inexact. — un'ex·act'ly, adv. — un'ex·act'ness, n.

un'ex·am'pled (-zăm'p'ld; 83), adj. Having no example or similar case; unprecedented; unparalleled. — un'ex·am'pled·ness, n.

un'ex·cep'tion·a·ble (ŭn'ĕk·sĕp'shŭn·ȧ·b'l; ŭn'ĭk-), adj. Not liable to any exception or objection; beyond reproach. — un'ex·cep'tion·a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'ex·cep'tion·a·ble·ness, n. — un'ex·cep'tion·a·bly, adv.

un'ex·cep'tive (-tĭv), adj. Not exceptive; not including, admitting, or being, an exception.

un'ex·clu'sive (ŭn'ĕks·klo͞o'sĭv), adj. Not exclusive; inclusive. — un'ex·clu'sive·ly, adv. — un'ex·clu'sive·ness, n.

un'ex·cus'a·ble (-kŭz'ȧ·b'l), adj. Inexcusable. — un'ex·cus'a·ble·ness, n. — un'ex·cus'a·bly, adv.

un'ex·em'pli·fied (ŭn'ĕg·zĕm'plĭ·fīd; ŭn'ĭg-), adj. Not exemplified; unexampled.

un'ex·haust'ed teind (-zôs'tĕd; -tĭd; 119). See TEIND COURT.

un'ex·haust'i·ble (-zôs'tĭ·b'l), adj. Inexhaustible. — un'ex·haust'i·ble·ness, n. — un'ex·haust'i·bly, adv.

un'ex·pect' (ŭn'ĕks·pĕkt'; ŭn'ĭks-), adj. Unexpected. Obs.

un'ex·pec·ta'tion (ŭn'ĕks·pĕk·tā'shŭn), n. Want of forethought. Obs.

un'ex·pect'ed (ŭn'ĕks·pĕk'tĕd; ŭn'ĭks·pĕk'tĭd; 119), adj. Not expected. — un'ex·pect'ed·ly, adv. — un'ex·pect'ed·ness, n.

un'ex·pe·di·ent (-pē'dĭ·ĕnt), adj. Inexpedient.

un'ex·pen'sive (-pĕn'sĭv), adj. Inexpensive. — un'ex·pen'sive·ly, adv. — un'ex·pen'sive·ness, n.

un'ex·pe'ri·ence (-pē'rĭ·ĕns), n. Inexperience. — v. t. To lack experience of.

un'ex·pe'ri·enced (-ĕnst), adj. a Not experienced; being without experience; inexperienced. b Untried; — applied to things. — un'ex·pe'ri·enced·ness, n.

un'ex·pe'ri·ent (-ĕnt), adj. Inexperienced. Shak.

un'ex·pert' (ŭn'ĕks·pûrt'), adj. Inexpert. — un'ex·pert'ly, adv. — un'ex·pert'ness, n.

un·ex'pli·ca·ble (ŭn·ĕks'plĭ·kȧ·b'l), adj. Inexplicable. — un·ex'pli·ca·ble·ness, n. — un·ex'pli·ca·bly, adv.

un'ex·press' (ŭn'ĕks·prĕs'; ŭn'ĭks-), adj. Informal; casual.

un'ex·press'a·ble (-ȧ·b'l), adj. Inexpressible. — un'ex·press'a·ble·ness, n. — un'ex·press'a·bly, adv.

un'ex·press'i·ble (-ĭ·b'l), adj. Inexpressible. — un'ex·press'i·ble·ness, n. — un'ex·press'i·bly, adv.

un'ex·pres'sive (-prĕs'ĭv), adj. 1. Not expressive; not having the power of utterance; inexpressive.
2. Inexpressible; ineffable. Obs.
— un'ex·pres'sive·ly, adv. — un'ex·pres'sive·ness, n.

un·ex'pur·gat'ed (ŭn·ĕks'pĕr·gāt'ĕd; ŭn'ĕks·pûr'gāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Not expurgated. — un·ex'pur·gat'ed·ly, adv. — un·ex'pur·gat'ed·ness, n.

un'ex·tin'guish·a·ble (ŭn'ĕks·tĭng'gwĭsh·ȧ·b'l; ŭn'ĭks-), adj. Inextinguishable. — un'ex·tin'guish·a·ble·ness, n. — un'ex·tin'guish·a·bly, adv.

un·ex'tri·ca·ble (ŭn·ĕks'trĭ·kȧ·b'l), adj. Inextricable.

un·eyed' (ŭn·īd'), adj. Unobserved or unseen un·face' (ŭn·fās'), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To remove the face from; unmask.

un·fad'ing (ŭn·fād'ĭng), adj. Not fading; enduring in its prime. — un·fad'ing·ly, adv. — un·fad'ing·ness, n.

un·fail'a·ble (ŭn·fāl'ȧ·b'l), adj. Infallible. — un·fail'a·ble·ness, n. — un·fail'a·bly, adv.

un·fail'ing (-ĭng), adj. Not failing or liable to fail; as: a Unyielding; unflagging. b Inexhaustible. c Infallible; certain. — un·fail'ing·ly, adv. — un·fail'ing·ness, n.

un·fain' (ŭn·fān'), adj. Archaic & Dial. a Not fain; displeased; sorry. b Reluctant; feeling dislike.

un·fair' (-fâr'; 66), adj. [AS. unfæger unlovely. See UN-, not; FAIR, adj.] 1. Not comely; unseemly. Archaic.
2. Not fair in act or character; disingenuous; using or involving trick or artifice; dishonest; unjust; as, unfair methods; unfair competition.
3. Unfavorable; — of the wind.
4. Uneven; as, unfair holes or seams.
5. Not equitable in business dealings, esp. as regards competition, wages, or attitude toward labor unions.
— un·fair'ly, adv. — un·fair'ness, n.

un·fair', v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To deprive of fairness or beauty. Rare.

unfair competition. a Law. Competition effected by acts which violate the legal or equitable rights of the competitor or the public, such as acts in effect a fraud on the public. Hence, any improper or inequitable obtaining by one competitor of the benefits belonging to another. b Any competitive practice contrary to the ethical standards of business.

unfair list. A published list of employers said to be unfair to organized labor.

unfair practice. Law. Under the Clayton Antitrust Act, any practice which, with respect to the public or some competitor, is forbidden by the statute and hence is subject to control by the commission.

un·faith' (ŭn·fāth'), n. Absence or want of faith; faithlessness; distrust; unbelief.

un·faith'ful (-fo͝ol), adj. Not faithful; as: a Not observant of vows, allegiance, or duty; not performing a function or duty; as, an unfaithful subject, agent, or servant. b Not possessing faith; infidel. c Wanting in good faith; dishonest. d Inaccurate; untrustworthy; as, an unfaithful copy. e Not faithful to marriage vows. — un·faith'ful·ly, adv. — un·faith'ful·ness, n.

un·fal'cat·ed (ŭn·făl'kāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj Having no deductions; not curtailed. Obs.

un·fal'li·ble (ŭn·făl'ĭ·b'l), adj. Infallible. — un·fal'li·ble·ness, n. — un·fal'li·bly, adv.

un'fa·mil'iar (ŭn'fȧ·mĭl'yĕr), adj. Not familiar; not well known or not knowing well; as, the place is unfamiliar to me; I am unfamiliar with the place. — un'fa·mil'i·ar'i·ty (-ĭ·ăr'ĭ·tĭ; -yăr'ĭ·tĭ), n. — un'fa·mil'iar·ly, adv.

un·fa'mous (ŭn·fā'mŭs), adj. Not famous; infamous. Obs.

un·emp'ti·a·ble, un·emp'tied, adj. un·emp'ty, adj., un·em'u·la'tive, adj., un·em'u·lous, adj., un'e·mul'si·fied, adj., un·en·a'bled, adj., un·en·act'ed, adj., un·en·am'eled, adj., un·en·am'ored, un·en·am'oured, adj., un'en·camped', adj., un·en·chafed', adj. See UN-, not.

un'en·chant', v. t. See 1st UN-. — un·en·chant'ed, adj.

un·en·cir'cled, adj., un·enclosed', adj., un·en·com'passed, adj., un·en·cored', adj., un·encoun'ter·a·ble, un·en·coun'tered, adj., un·en·cour'aged, un·en·cour'age·ing, adj., un·encroached', un·en·croach'ing, adj., un·en·cum'ber·ing, adj., un·en·cyst'ed, adj., un·end'a·ble, adj., un·en·dam'aged, adj., un·en·dan'gered, adj., un·endeared', adj., un·en·dea'vored, adj., un·en·dors'a·ble, un·endorsed', adj., un'en·dowed' (-doud'), un·en·dow'ing, adj., un·en·dued', adj., un·en·dur'a·bil'i·ty, n., un·en·dur'a·ble, adj., un·en·dur'a·bly, adv., un'en·dured', adj., un·en·dur'ing, adj., un·en·dur'ing·ly, adv., un·energet'ic, adj., un·en·er·gized, adj., un·en·er·vated, adj., un·en·fee'bled, adj., un·en·fi·lad', v. t. See UN-, not.

un·en·fired', adj. See UN-, not. Obs.

un'en·force'a·ble, adj., un·enforced', adj., un·en·forc'ed·ly, adv., un·en·forc'ed·ness, n., un·en·fre'ti·bil'i·ty, n., un·en·fran'chised, adj., un·en·gaged', un·en·gag'ing, adj., un·en·gen'dered, adj., un·en·gi·neered', adj., un·Eng'lish, adj., un·Eng'lished, adj., un·Eng'lish·manlike', adj., un·en·graved', adj., un·en·grav'en (-grāv'ĕn), adj., un'en·grossed', adj., un·enhanced', adj., un·en·joined', adj., un·en·joy'a·ble, adj., un·en·joyed', adj., un·en·joy'ing, adj., un·en·joy'ing·ly, adv., un·en·kin'dled, adj., un·en·larged', adj., un·en·light'ened, un·enlight'en·ing, adj., un·en·list'ed, adj., un·en·liv'ened, un·en·liv'en·ing, adj., un·en·no'bled, un'en·no'bling, adj., un·ennounced', adj., un·en·quired', un'en·quir'ing, adj., un·enraged', adj., un·en·rap'tured, adj., un·en·rich'a·ble, adj., un·en·rich'a·ble·ness, n., un·en·riched', un·en·rich'ing, adj., un·en·robed', adj., un·enrolled', adj., un·en·shrined', adj. See UN-, not.

un·en·slave', v. t. See 1st UN-. — un·en·slaved', adj., un·ensnared', adj., un·en·souled', adj., un·en·sured', adj., un·entailed', adj., un·en·tan'gle·a·ble, un·en·tan'gled, adj., un·en·ter'a·ble, un·en·tered, adj., un·enter·prise, n., un·en·ter·prised, un·en·ter·pris'ing, adj., un·en·ter·pris'ing·ly, adv., un·en·ter·pris'ing·ness, n., un·en·ter·tain'a·ble, un·en·ter·tained', un·en·ter·tain'ing, adj., un·enter·tain'ing·ly, adv., un·en·ter·tain'ing·ness, n., un·enthralled', un·en·thral'ling, adj., un·en·throned', adj., un·en·thu'si·asm, n., un·en·thu'si·as'tic, adj., un·en·thu'si·as'ti·cal·ly, adv., un·en·ticed', un·en·tic'ing, adj., un·en·tire', adj., un'en·ti'tled, adj., un·en·tombed', adj., un·en·to·mo·log'i·cal, adj., un·en·tranced', adj., un·en·trapped', adj. See UN-, not.

un·en·treat'a·ble, adj. Not entreatable. Obs.

un·en·treat'ed, adj., un·entreat'ing, adj., un·en·trenched', adj., un·en·twined', adj., un·entu'mes·a·ble, adj., un·e·nu'mer·a·ble, adj., un·en·vel'oped, adj., un·en·ven'omed, adj., un·en'vi·a·ble, adj., un·en'vi·a·bly, adv., un·en·vied, adj., un·en'vied·ly, adv., un·en'vi·ous, adj., un·en'vi·ous·ly, adv., un·en·vironed, adj., un·en'vy·ing, adj., un·en·wo'ven, adj., un·ep'au·let'ed, adj., un·e·phem'er·al, adj., un·ep'ic, adj., un'ep·i·cure'an, adj., un·ep·i·gram·mat'ic, adj., un·ep'i·logued (-lôgd), adj., un·e·pis'to·lar'y, adj., un·ep'i·taphed, adj., un·ep·i·the'lial, adj., un'ep·pit'o·mized, adj., un·e'qual·a·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un·e·qual·ize, v. t. See 1st UN-. un·e'qual·ized, adj., un'e·quat'ed, adj., un·e·qua·to'ri·al, adj., un'e·ques'tri·an, adj., un'e·quin'gu·lar, adj., un·e·qui·lat'eral, adj., un'e·qui·li'brat·ed, adj., un·e'quine, adj., un·e·quipped', adj. See UN-, not.

un·eq'ui·ty, n. Inequity. Obs.

un·e·quiv'a·lent, adj., un·e'quivalve, adj., un·e'qui·valved, adj., un'e·rad'i·ca·ble, adj., un'e·rad'i·cate'd, adj., un'e·ras'a·ble, un'e·rased', un'e·ras'ing, adj., un'e·rect', adj., un'e·rect'ed, adj., un·er'mined, adj., un'e·rod'ed, adj., un·er'ran·cy, n., un·er'rant, adj., un'er·rat'ic, adj., un'er·ro'ne·ous, adj., un'er·ro'ne·ous·ly, adv., un'er·udite, adj., un·e·rupt'ed, adj., un·e·rup'tive, adj., un'es·ca·lad'ed, adj., un'es·cal'loped, adj., un'es·caped', adj., un'es·cheat'ed, adj., un'es·chew'a·ble, adj., un'es·chew'a·bly, adv., un'es·chewed', adj., un'es·cort'ed, adj., un'es·cutch'eoned, adj., un'es·o·ter'ic, adj., un'es·pied', adj., un'es·pous'a·ble, adj., un'es·poused', adj., un'es·sayed', adj., un'es·tab'lish·a·ble, un'es·tab'lished, adj., un'es·tab'lishment, n., un'es·teemed', adj., un·es·ti·mated, adj., un'es·tuated', adj., un'es·tranged', adj., un·etched', adj., un'e·ter'nal, adj., un'e·ter'nized, adj. See UN-, not.

uneth, unethe. ✝ UNEATH.

un'e·the're·al, adj. See UN-, not.

unethes. ✝ UNEATHS.

un'e·tho·log'i·cal, adj., un·eth'yl·at'ed, adj., un'-E·trus'can, adj., un'et·y·mo'lo·gic'a·ble, adj., un'eu·cha·ris'ti·cal, adj., un'eu·gen'ic, adj., un·eu'logized, adj., un'eu·phe·mis'tical, adj., un'eu·phon'ic, adj., un'eu·pho'ni·ous, adj., un'eupho'ni·ous·ly, adv., un'eu·pho'ni·ous·ness, n., un'-Eu·ro·pe'an, adj., un'e·vac'u·at'ed, adj., un'e·vad'a·ble, adj., un'e·vad'ed, adj., un'e·val'u·at'ed, adj., un'ev·a·nes'cent, adj., un'e·vangel'ic, un'e·van·gel'i·cal, adj., un·e'van·ge·lized, adj., un'e·vap'o·rate, adj., un'e·vap'o·rat'ed, adj., un'e·va'sive, adj., un'e·vert'ed, adj., un'e·vict'ed, adj., un·ev'i·denced, adj., un'ev·i·den'tial, adj., un·e'vil adj., un'e·vinced', adj., un·e'vi·rat'ed, adj., un'e·vis'cer·at'ed, adj., un'e·vok'a·ble, un'e·voked', adj., un'e·vo·lu'tion·ar'y, adj., un·evolved', adj., un'ex·ac'er·bat'ed, adj., un'ex·act'ed, adj., un'ex·act'ed·ly, adv., un'ex·act'ing, adj., un'ex·act'ing·ly, adv., un'ex·ag'ger·a·ble, adj., un'ex·ag'ger·at'ed, un'ex·ag'ger·at'ing, adj., un'ex·alt'ed, adj., un'ex·am'i·na·ble, un'ex·am'ined, un'ex·am'in·ing, adj., un'ex·as'per·at'ed, un'ex·as'per·at'ing, adj., un·ex'ca·vated, adj., un'ex·ceed'a·ble, un'ex·ceed'ed, adj., un'ex·celled', un'ex·cel'ling, adj., un·ex'cel·lent, adj., un'ex·cept'a·ble, adj., un'ex·cepted, un'ex·cept'ing, adj., un'ex·cep'tion·al, adj., un'ex·cep'tion·al·ly, adv., un'ex·cep'tion·al·ness, n., un'ex·cerpted, adj., un'ex·ces'sive, adj., un'ex·change'a·ble, adj., un'ex·change'a·ble·ness, n., un'ex·changed', adj., un'ex·cised', adj., un'ex·cit'a·bil'i·ty, n., un'ex·cit'a·ble, adj., un'ex·cit'ed, un'ex·cit'ing, adj., un'ex·claiming, adj., un'ex·clud'a·ble, adj., un'ex·clud'ed, un'ex·clud'ing, adj., un'ex·cog'i·ta·ble, adj., un'ex·cog'i·tat'ed, adj., un'ex·commu'ni·cat'ed, adj., un'ex·co'ri·at'ed, adj., un'ex·cor'ti·cat'ed, adj., un'ex·cres'cent, adj., un'ex·cret'ed, adj., un'ex·cru'ci·at'ing, adj., un'ex·cul'pa·ble, adj., un'ex·cul'pa·bly, adv., un'ex·cul'pat'ed, adj., un'ex·cur'sive, adj., un'ex·cused', adj., un'ex·cus'ed·ly, adv., un'ex·cus'ed·ness, n., un'ex·cus'ing, adj., un·ex'e·crat'ed, adj., un·ex'e·cut'able, adj., un·ex'e·cu'ted, un·ex'e·cut'ing, adj., un'ex·ec'u·to'rial, adj., un'ex·em'pla·ry, adj., un'ex·em'pli·fi'a·ble, adj., un'ex·empt', un'ex·empt'ed, un'ex·empt'i·ble, un'ex·empt ing, adj., un·ex'er·cis'a·ble, adj., un·ex'er·cise, n., un·ex'er·cised, adj., un'ex·ert'ed, adj., un'ex·hal'a·ble, adj., un'ex·haled', adj., un'ex·haust'ed, adj., un'ex·haust'ed·ness, n., un'ex·haus'tion, n., un'ex·haus'tive, adj., un'ex·haus'tive·ness, n., un'ex·hib'it·a·ble, adj., un'ex·hib'it·a·ble·ness, n., un'ex·hib'it·ed, adj., un'ex·hil'a·rat'ed, un'ex·hil'a·rat'ing, adj., un'ex·hort'ed, adj., un'ex·humed', adj., un·ex'i·gent, un·ex'i·la·ble, adj., un·ex'iled, adj., un'ex·ist'ence, n., un'ex·ist'ent, adj., un'ex·ist'ing, adj., un'ex·on'er·a·ble, adj., un'ex·on'er·at'ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·ex'o·ra·ble, adj. = INEXORABLE. — un·ex'o·ra·ble·ness, n.

un'ex·or'bi·tant, adj., un·ex'or·cis'a·ble, adj., un·ex'or·cis'a·bly, adv., un·ex'or·cised, adj., un'ex·ot'ic, adj., un'ex·pand'a·ble, un'ex·pand'ed, un'ex·pand'ing, adj., un'ex·pan'sive, adj., un'ex·pect'a·ble, un'ex·pect'ant, adj., un'ex·pect'ing, adj., un'ex·pect'ing·ly, adv., un'ex·pec'to·rat'ed, adj., un'ex·ped'i·tat'ed, adj., un'ex·pe'dit·ed, adj., un'ex·pe·di'tious, adj., un'ex·pelled', adj., un'ex·pend'a·ble, un'ex·pend'ed, adj., un'ex·pe'ri·en'tial, adj., un'ex·per'i·men'tal, adj., un'ex·per'i·mented, adj. See UN-, not.

un·ex'pi·a·ble, adj. = INEXPIABLE.

un·ex'pi·at'ed, adj. = INEXPIATED.

un'ex·pired', adj., un'ex·pir'ing, adj., un'ex·plain'a·ble, adj., un'ex·plain'a·ble·ness, n., un'ex·plain'a·bly, adv., un'ex·plained', adj., un'ex·plain'ed·ly, adv., un'ex·plain'ed·ness, n., un'ex·plain'ing, adj., un'ex·plan'a·to'ry, adj., un'ex·pli·cat'ed, adj., un'ex·plic'it, adj., un'ex·plic'itly, adv., un'ex·plic'it·ness, n., un'ex·ploded, adj., un'ex·ploi·ta'tion, n., un'ex·ploit'ed, adj., un'ex·plor'a·ble, adj., un'ex·plor'ative, adj., un'ex·plored', adj., un'ex·plo'sive, adj., un'ex·port'a·ble, adj., un'ex·port'ed, adj., un'ex·port'ing, adj., un'ex·pos'a·ble, adj., un'ex·posed', adj., un'ex·pos'tu·lat'ing, adj., un'ex·pound'a·ble, adj., un'ex·pounded, adj., un'ex·pressed', adj., un'ex·press'ed·ly, adv., un'ex·press'ly, adv. See UN-, not.

un'ex·prim'a·ble, adj. = INEXPRESSIBLE. Obs.

un'ex·pro'pri·a·ble, adj., un'ex·pro'pri·at'ed, adj., un'ex·pug'na·ble, adj., un'ex·punged', adj., un'ex·tended, adj., un'ex·tend'ed·ly, adv., un'ex·tend'ed·ness, n., un'ex·tend'i·ble, adj., un'ex·ten'si·ble, adj., un'ex·ten'u·a·ble, adj., un'ex·ten'u·at'ed, adj., un'ex·ten'u·at'ing, adj., un'ex·ter'mi·na·ble, adj., un'ex·ter'mi·nat'ed, adj., un'ex·ter'nal, adj., un'ex·ter·nal'i·ty, n., un'ex·ter'ri·to'ri·al'i·ty, n., un'ex·tinct', adj., un'ex·tinct'ness, n., un'ex·tin'guished, adj., un·ex'tir·pat'ed, adj., un'ex·tolled', adj., un'ex·tor'ta·ble, adj., un'ex·tort'ed, adj., un'ex·tract'a·ble, adj., un'ex·tract'ed, adj., un'ex·tra·dit'ed, adj., un'ex·tra'ne·ous, adj., un'ex·traor'di·nar'y, adj., un'ex·trav'a·gance, n., un'ex·trav'a·gant, adj., un'ex·trav'a·gat'ing, adj., un'ex·trav'a·sat'ed, adj., un'ex·treme', adj., un·ex'tri·cat'ed, adj., un'ex·trin'sic, adj., un'ex·trud'ed, adj., un'ex·u'ber·ant, adj., un'ex·ud'ed, adj., un'ex·ult'ant, adj. See UN-, not.

un·eye', v. t. See 1st UN-.

un'ey·e'a·ble, adj., un·fa'bled, un·fa'bling, adj., un·fab'ri·cat'ed, adj., un·fab'u·lous, adj., un'fa·çad'ed, adj., un·face'a·ble, adj., un·faced', adj., un·fac'eted, adj., un·fa·ce'tious, adj., un·fac'ile, adj., un·fa·cil'i·tat'ed, adj., un·fact', n., un·fac'tional, adj., un·fac'tious, adj., un·fac·ti'tious, adj., un·fac'tora·ble, adj., un·fac'tored, adj., un·fac'tu·al, adj., un·fad'a·ble, adj., un·fad'ed, adj., un·fagged', adj., un·fag'ot·ed, adj., un·failed', adj., un·faint', adj., un·faint'ing, adj., un·faint'ly, adv., un'fair·mind'ed, adj., un·fair'y·like', adj., un·faked', adj., un'fal·la'cious, adj., un'fal·la'cious·ly, adv., un·fall'en, adj., un·fall'en·ness, n., un·fall'ing, adj., un·fal'lowed, adj., unfalse', adj., un·fal'si·fi'a·ble, un·fal'si·fied, adj., un·fal'si·fi'ed·ness, n., un·fal'si·ty, n., un·fal'ter·ing, adj., un·fal'ter·ing·ly, adv., un·famed', adj., un·fa·mil'iar·ized, adj. See UN-, not.

un·far′dle (ŭn·fär′dl′), v. t. [1st un- + fardel.] To unpack. Obs.

un·far′rowed (ŭn·făr′ōd), adj. Without a farrow.

un·fash′ion (ŭn·făsh′ŭn), v. t. To undo the fashioning of; to discompose.

un·fash′ion, n. Want of fashion.

un·fash′ion·a·ble (ŭn·făsh′ŭn·ȧ·b'l), adj. 1. Obs. a That cannot be fashioned. b Unshapely; distorted.
2. Not in accord with or not following current fashion.
— un·fash′ion·a·ble·ness, n. — un·fash′ion·a·bly, adv.

un·fash′ion·a·ble, n. An unfashionable person.

un·fash′ioned (ŭn·făsh′ŭnd), adj. Not fashioned; as: a Unwrought. b Obs. Unrefined; also, unfashionable.

un·fast′ (ŭn·făst′), adj. [Cf. AS. unfæst.] Unfirm or untrue; insecure.

un·fas′ten (ŭn·făs′n), v. t. & i. [See 1st UN-.] To make or become loose; unfix; undo; detach; open; untie.

un·fa′thered (ŭn·fä′thĕrd), adj. 1. Having no father; fatherless; as, the unfathered offspring of Hera; hence: a Illegitimate; bastard. b Unauthenticated; spurious.
2. Unfatherly. Rare.

un·fa′vor·a·ble, -fa′vour·a·ble (ŭn·fā′vĕr·ȧ·b'l), adj. Not favorable; not propitious; adverse; contrary; also, repulsive in looks; ugly. — n. An unfavorable prospect or result.
— un·fa′vor·a·ble·ness, -fa′vour·a·ble·ness, n. — un·fa′vor·a·bly, -fa′vour·a·bly, adv.

un·fear′y (ŭn·fē′r'ĭ), adj. [See FEIRIE.] Infirm. Scot.

un·fea′sa·ble (ŭn·fē′zȧ·b'l), adj. Unfeasible. — un·fea′sa·ble·ness, n. — un·fea′sa·bly, adv.

un·fea′si·ble (ŭn·fē′zĭ·b'l), adj. Not feasible; impracticable. — un′fea·si·bil′i·ty (ŭn′fē·zĭ·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·fea′si·ble·ness, n. — un·fea′si·bly, adv.

un·feast′ly (ŭn·fēst′lĭ), adj. [Cf. FEASTLY, FEAST, n.] Wanting cheer; jaded. Obs.

un·feath′er (ŭn·fĕth′ĕr), v. t. & i. [1st un- + feather.] To deprive of or lose feathers; to strip; to be without feathers.

un·fea′tured (ŭn·fē′tŭrd), adj. 1. Having ill-formed features.
2. Lacking features; unvaried.
3. Not featured in a dramatic production.

un·feat′y (ŭn·fēt′ĭ), adj. [un- not + feat, adj.] Unskillful; clumsy. Obs.

un·feel′a·ble (ŭn·fēl′ȧ·b'l), adj. 1. Without feeling; insensible. Obs.
2. That cannot be felt; impalpable.

un·feel′ing (ŭn·fēl′ĭng), adj. 1. Destitute of feeling; void of sensibility; insensible; insensate.
2. Without kind feelings; cruel; hardhearted.
Syn. — Insensitive, insusceptible, unimpressionable, callous.
Ant. — Tender, warm-hearted, compassionate. See SUSCEPTIBLE.
— un·feel′ing·ly, adv. — un·feel′ing·ness, n.

un·feel′ing, n. Want of feeling.

un·feign′a·ble (ŭn·fān′ȧ·b'l), adj. That cannot be feigned. — un·feign′a·ble·ness, n. — un·feign′a·bly, adv.

un·feigned′ (-fānd′; 66), adj. Not feigned; not counterfeit; not hypocritical; real; sincere; genuine. — un·feign′ed·ly (-fān′ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. — -ed·ness, n.

un·feign′ing (-fān′ĭng), adj. Not feigning; sincere. — un·feign′ing·ly, adv. — un·feign′ing·ness, n.

un·fele′ (ŭn·fēl′), adj. Obs. exc. Dial. [AS. unfǣle evil.] a Obs. Evil; improper; ungracious; uncivil. b Rough; rude; coarse. c Unpleasant; uncomfortable.

un′fe·lic′i·tous (ŭn′fē·lĭs′ĭ·tŭs), adj. Infelicitous. — un′fe·lic′i·tous·ly, adv. — un′fe·lic′i·tous·ness, n.

un·fel′lowed (ŭn·fĕl′ōd), adj. [See UN-, not; FELLOW, v.] Being without a fellow; unmatched; unmated.

un·fer′tile (ŭn·fûr′tĭl; -t'l; -tīl; 155), adj. Not fertile. — un·fer′tile·ness, n. — un′fer·til′i·ty (ŭn′fĕr·tĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n.

un·fes′ti·val (ŭn·fĕs′tĭ·văl), adj. Not in accord with a festival or festivals.

un·fet′ter (ŭn·fĕt′ĕr), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To loose from fetters or from restraint; to unchain; unshackle; liberate.

un·feu′dal·ize (ŭn·fū′dăl·īz; -d'l·īz), v. t. To defeudalize.

un·feued′ (ŭn·fūd′), adj. Not in feu. Scot.

un·fig′ured (ŭn·fĭg′ûrd; Brit. -ĕrd), adj. Not figured; as: a Having no figures of speech, numerical figures, or persons artistically represented. b Not represented in a figure.

un·fil′i·al (ŭn·fĭl′ĭ·ăl; -fĭl′yăl; 159), adj. Not observing, or according to, the obligations of a son or a daughter; undutiful. — un·fil′i·al·ly, adv. — un·fil′i·al·ness, n.

un·fil′a·ble (ŭn·fīl′ȧ·b'l), adj. That cannot be filled; insatiable.

un·fil′let·ed (ŭn·fĭl′ĕt·ĕd; -ĭt·ĭd; 119), adj. Unbound.

un′fi·nan′cial (ŭn′fī·năn′shăl; ŭn′fī-), adj. Trade-Unionism. Of a member, not financially in good standing, by reason of being in arrears of dues, fines, or liabilities to the union. Cf. FINANCIAL, 2.

un·fin′gered (ŭn·fĭng′gĕrd), adj. Having no fingers.

un·fin′ish (ŭn·fĭn′ĭsh), n. Lack of finish.

un·fin′ished (-ĭsht), adj. Not finished; as: a Not brought to an end; imperfect; incomplete; as, an unfinished poem. b Textile Mfg. Subjected to no other processes after coming from the loom; — said of wool fabrics. — un·fin′ished·ly, adv. — un·fin′ished·ness, n.

unfinished business. Parl. Practice. Matters postponed from a previous meeting or that were pending at its adjournment.

un·firm′ (ŭn·fûrm′; 66), adj. Not firm; as: a Not compact. b Unstable; insecure. c Obs. Flighty. d Obs. Feeble; infirm. — un·firm′ly, adv. — un·firm′ness, n.

un·fir′ma·ment′ed (ŭn·fûr′mȧ·mĕn′tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Having no bounding firmament; unbounded.

un·fit′ (66), adj. [un- not + fit.] 1. Not fit; unsuitable.
2. Not fitted; insufficiently adapted.
3. Physically not in fit condition
Syn. — UNFIT, INCOMPETENT are sometimes interchangeable. UNFIT commonly implies inherent or natural want of suitability for something; INCOMPETENT suggests rather lack of the requisite qualifications for performing a given act, service, etc.; as, "Constitutionally unfit for violent exercise" (J. A. Symonds); "An Englishman is the unfittest person on earth to argue another Englishman into slavery" (Burke); incompetent to manage a business; an incompetent teacher.
Ant. — Suitable, proper; qualified, adapted. See ABLE, FIT.
— un·fit′ly, adv. — un·fit′ness, n.

un·fit′, adv. Unfitly.

un·fit′ (ŭn·fĭt′), v. t. [1st un- + fit.] To make unsuitable or incompetent; to disable; incapacitate; disqualify.

un·fit′, n. One who or that which is unfit; esp., a group of persons unqualified for any (specified or understood) service, duty, or experience.

un·fit′ty (ŭn·fĭt′ĭ), adj. Also un·fit′ten (-′n). Unfit. Nov Dial.

un·fix′ (ŭn·fĭks′), v. t. [1st un- + fix.] To loosen from a fastening; to detach from anything that holds; to unsettle; as, to unfix a bayonet; to unfix the mind or affections; also, to dissolve. — v. i. To become unfixed.

un·flag′ (ŭn·flăg′), v. t. [1st un- + flag.] To remove flagging from.

un·flag′ging (-ĭng), adj. Not flagging; continuing with vigor. — un·flag′ging·ly, adv. — un·flag′ging·ness, n.

un·flame′ (ŭn·flām′), v. t. [1st un- + flame.] To take the flame from. Obs.

un·fledged′ (ŭn·flĕjd′; 66), adj. Not fledged; not feathered; hence, not fully developed; immature. — un·fledged′ness, n.

un·fleece′ (ŭn·flēs′), v. t. To fleece.

un·flesh′ (ŭn·flĕsh′), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To deprive of flesh; reduce to a skeleton.

un·fleshed′ (ŭn·flĕsht′; 66), adj. Not fleshed; not seasoned to blood; untried.

un·flesh′ly (ŭn·flĕsh′lĭ), adj. Not of the flesh; spiritual. — un·flesh′li·ness, n.

un·flesh′y (-ĭ), adj. Fleshless.

un·flex′i·ble (ŭn·flĕk′sĭ·b'l), adj. Inflexible. — un·flex′i·ble·ness, n. — un·flex′i·bly, adv.

un·flinch′ing (ŭn·flĭn′chĭng; 105), adj. Not flinching or shrinking; unyielding.
Syn. — Stanch, steadfast, unwavering.
Ant. — Cringing, shrinking.
— un·flinch′ing·ly, adv. — un·flinch′ing·ness, n.

un·flow′er (ŭn·flou′ĕr), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To strip of flowers.

un·flush′ (ŭn·flŭsh′), v. i. To lose its flush.

un·fold′ (ŭn·fōld′), v. t. & i. [See 1st UN-.] To release or come forth from a fold, or pen.

un·fold′ (ŭn·fōld′), v. [AS. unfealdan. See 1st UN-; 1st FOLD.] Transitive: 1. To open the folds of; to expand; to spread out; as, to unfold a tablecloth.
Unfold thy forehead gathered into frowns. Herbert.
2. To open, as anything covered or close; to lay open to view or contemplation; to bring out in the details, or by successive development; to display; disclose; reveal; as, to unfold one's designs; to unfold the principles of a science.
Unfold the passion of my love. Shak.
3. To remove from the folds of; unwrap; release.
—, Intransitive: 1. To open; expand; to become disclosed or developed; as, buds unfold in the sun.
2. Philol. To develop a parasitic vowel by anaptyxis.
Syn. — Spread, open, unfurl; divulge.
Ant. — Fold; cover, hide.

un·fold′ed (-fōl′dĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. Not confined in a fold.

un·fold′ed, adj. Also un·fold′en (-fōl′dĕn). Not folded; open.

un·fold′er (ŭn·fōl′dĕr), n. One who or that which unfolds.

un·fold′ing, n. Act, process, or an instance, of expanding or opening out from a fold; as, the unfolding of a bud.

un·fold′ment (ŭn·fōld′mĕnt), n. Act or process of unfolding.

un·fool′ (ŭn·fōōl′), v. t. [1st un- + fool.] To restore from folly, or from being a fool.

un·foot′ed (ŭn·fōōt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Untrodden.

un′for·bade′ (ŭn′fôr·băd′), adj. Unforbidden.

un·forced′ (ŭn·fôrst′; 181), adj. Not forced; voluntary. — un·forc′ed·ly (-fôr′sĕd·lĭ), adv. — un·forc′ed·ness, n.

un′fore·see′ (ŭn′fôr·sē′), v. t. [From UNFORESEEN.] To fail to foresee.

un·fore′skinned′ (ŭn·fôr′skĭnd′), adj. Circumcised. Obs.

un′for·get′ta·ble (ŭn′fôr·gĕt′ȧ·b'l), adj. Not forgettable; enduring in memory. "Unforgettable truths." Emerson.
— un′for·get′ta·ble·ness, n. — un′for·get′ta·bly, adv.

un′for·give′ness (-gĭv′nĕs; -nĭs), n. Unforgivingness.

un′for·giv′er (-gĭv′ĕr), n. One who does not forgive. Rare.

un′for·giv′ing (-ĭng), adj. Not forgiving; cherishing offense. — un′for·giv′ing·ly, adv. — -giv′ing·ness, n.

un·for′mal (ŭn·fôr′măl), adj. Informal. — un′for·mal′i·ty (ŭn′fôr·măl′ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·for′mal·ly, adv. — un·for′mal·ness, n.

un·formed′ (ŭn·fôrmd′; 66), adj. Not formed; not arranged in regular shape, order, or relations; shapeless; amorphous; specif., Biol., unorganized; as an unformed ferment.

unformed stars. Astron. Sparsile stars. See SPARSILE.

un·for′tu·nate (ŭn·fôr′tū·nĭt), adj. Not fortunate; unsuccessful; not prosperous; unlucky; attended with or resulting in misfortune; as, an unfortunate venture; an unfortunate man. — n. An unfortunate person; specif: a A prostitute. b Irish. An insane person. — un·for′tu·nate·ly, adv. — un·for′tu·nate·ness, n.

un·for′tu·nate (-nāt), v. t. To render unfortunate.

un·for′tune (ŭn·fôr′tŭn), n. Misfortune un·found′ (ŭn·found′), v. t. To disestablish. Obs.

un·found′ (66), adj. Not found; remaining unknown.

un·found′ed, adj. 1. Unstable. Obs.
2. Not founded; not built or established.
3. Having no foundation; baseless; vain; idle; as, unfounded expectations.
Syn. — Groundless.
Ant. — Well-founded, established.
— un·found′ed·ly, adv. — un·found′ed·ness, n.

un·frame′ (ŭn·frām′), v. t. [1st un- + frame.] 1. To take apart, or destroy the frame of. Obs.
2. To take out of a frame, as a picture.

un·fran′gi·ble (ŭn·frăn′jĭ·b'l), adj. Infrangible. Obs.

un·fraught′ (ŭn·frôt′), v. t. To disburden. Obs.

un·fraught′, adj. Not fraught; not burdened.

un·free′ (ŭn·frē′; 66), adj. Not free; lacking freedom; not made free. — un·free′ly, adv. — un·free′ness, n.

un·free′dom (-dŭm), n. Want of freedom.

un·free′man (-măn), n. One who is not a freeman.

un–French′ (ŭn·frĕnch′; 105), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To translate from French. Obs.

un–French′ (66), adj. Not French; unlike what is French.

un·fre′quent (ŭn·frē′kwĕnt), adj. Infrequent. — un·fre′quen·cy (-kwĕn·sĭ), n. — un·fre′quent·ly, adv. — un·fre′quent·ness, n.

un′fa·nat′i·cal, adj., un·fan′ci·a·ble, adj., un·fan′cied, adj., un·fan′ci·ful, adj., un·fan′fare, n., un·fanged′, adj., un·fan′nel, v. t., un·fanned′, adj., un′fan·tas′tic, adj., un′fantas′ti·cal, adj., un′fan·tas′ti·cal·ly, adv., un·far′, adj., un·farced′, adj., un·far′ci·cal, adj., un′fare·welled′, adj., un·farmed′, adj., un·farm′ing, adj., un′far·sight′ed, adj., un·fas′ci·at′ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fas′ci·nate, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fas′ci·nat′ed, adj., un·fas′ci·nat′ing, adj., un·fas′ten·a·ble, adj., un·fas′tened, adj., un·fas′ten·er, adj., un′fas·tid′i·ous, adj., un′fas·tid′i·ous·ly, adv., un′fas·tid′i·ous·ness, n., un·fast′ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fa′ther, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fa′ther·like′, adj., un·fa′ther·li·ness, n., un·fa′ther·ly, adj., un′fath·om·a·bil′i·ty, n., un·fath′om·a·ble, adj., un·fath′om·a·ble·ness, n., un·fath′om·a·bly, adv., un·fath′omed, adj. See UN-, not. [ble. Obs.

un·fat′i·ga·ble, adj. Indefatigaun′fa·tigue′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un′fa·tigue′a·ble, adj., un′fatigued′, un′fa·tig′uing, adj., un·fat′ta·ble, un·fat′ted, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fat′ten, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fau′cet·ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fauld′, Scot. var. of UNFOLD.

un·fault′find′ing, adj., un·fault′y, adj., un·fa′vored, -fa′voured, adj., un·fa′vor·ing, un·fa′vour·ing, adj., un·fa′vor·ite, adj., un·fawn′ing, adj., un·fe′al·ty, n., un·feared′, adj., un·fear′ful, adj., un·fear′ful·ly, adv., un·fear′ing, adj., un·fear′ing·ly, adv., un·feast′ed, adj., un·feath′ered, adj., un·fee′cund, adj., un·fe′cundat′ed, adj., un·fed′, adj., un·fed′er·al, adj., un·fed′er·at′ed, adj., un·fee′ble, adj., un·feed′, adj., un·feed′a·ble, un·feed′ing, adj. un·fee′ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·feel′. Var. of UNFELL.

un′fe·lic′i·tat′ed, adj., un′fe·lic′i·tat′ing, adj., un·fe′line, adj., un·fell′a·ble, un·felled′, adj., un·fel′lies, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fel′low, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fel′low·like′, adj., un·fel′low·ly, adv., un·fel′low·shiped, adj., un·fel′on, adj., un′fe·lo′ni·ous, adj., un′fe·lo′ni·ous·ly, adv., un·fel′o·ny, n., un·felt′, adj. See UN-, not.

un·felt′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·felt′ed, adj., un·fe′male, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fem′i·nine, adj., un·fem′i·nine·ly, adv., un·fem′i·nine·ness, n., un′fem·i·nin′i·ty, n., un·fem′i·nist, adj. See UN-, not.

un′fen′di·nate, v. t., un·fence′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fenced′, adj., un·fend′ered, adj., un′fe·nes′trat·ed, adj., un·Fe′ni·an, adj., un·feoffed′, adj., un′fer·ment′a·ble, adj., un′fermen′ta·ble·ness, n., un′fermen′ta·bly, adv., un′fer·ment′ed, adj., un′fer·ment′ing, adj., un·fern′like′, adj., un′fe·ro′cious, adj., un·fer′ret·ed, adj., un·fer′ried, adj., un·fer′ti·liz′a·ble, adj., un·fer′ti·lized, adj., un·fer′vent, adj., un·fer′vid, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fes′tered, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fes′tered, adj., un·fes′tive, adj., un·fes′tive·ly, adv., un′festooned′, adj., un·fetch′a·ble, adj., un·fetched′, adj., un·fet′ed, adj., un·fet′tered, adj., un·feu′dal, adj., un·feu′dal·ized, adj., un·fe′vered, adj., un·fe′ver·ish, adj., un·few′, adj., un·fibbed′, adj., un·fib′bing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fi′ber, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fi′bered, adj., un·fi′brous, adj., un·fick′le, adj., un′fic·tĭ′tious, adj., un·fi′del·i·ty, n., un·fidg′et·ing, adj., un·field′ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fiend′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fiend′like′, adj., un·fierce′, adj. un·fi′er·y, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fight′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fight′a·ble, adj., un·fight′ing, adj., un·fig′ur·a·ble, adj., un·fig′ur·a·tive, adj. See UN-, not.

un′fil·a·ment′ous, adj., un·filched′, adj. See UN-, not.

un·file′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·filed′, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fill′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·filled′, un·fill′ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·film′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·filmed′, adj., un·fil′tered, adj., un·fil′trat·ed, adj., un·fin′a·ble, adj., un·fine′, adj., unfined′, adj., un·fi·nessed′, adj., un·fin′i·cal, adj., un·fin′ish·a·ble, adj., un·fi′nite, adj., un·Finn′ish, adj., un·fired′, adj., un·fire′proof′, adj., un·fir′ing, adj., un′-first′-class′, adj., unfis′cal, adj., un·fish′a·ble, adj., un·fished′, adj., un·fish′ing, adj., un·fish′like′, adj., un·fis′sile, adj., un·fis′tu·lous, adj., un·fit′ta·ble, adj., un·fit′ted, adj., un·fit′ted·ness, n., un·fit′ting, adj., un·fit′ting·ly, adv., un·fit′ting·ness, n., un·fix′a·ble, adj., un·fix′at·ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fixed′, part. adj. of UNFIX.

un·fixed′, adj., un·fix′ed·ness, adj., un·fix′ing, adj., un·fix′i·ty, n., un·flagged′, adj., un′fla·gi′tious, adj., un·fla′grant, adj., un·flak′y, adj., un′flam·boy′ant, adj., un·flam′ing, adj., unflanged′, adj. See UN-, not.

un·flank′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·flanked′, adj., un·flap′ping, adj., un·flash′ing, adj., un·flat′, adj., un·flat′ed, adj., un·fe′vered, adj., un·flat′ter·a·ble, un·flat′tered, un·flat′ter·ing, adj., un·flat′ter·ing·ly, adv., unflaunt′ed, adj., un·fla′vored, -fla′voured, adj., un·flawed′, adj., un·flayed′, adj. See UN-, not.

un·flead′ (-flĕd′; -flēd′), adj. Not flayed. See 4th FLEA.

un·flecked′, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fledge′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fledge′, adj. = UNFLEDGED. Obs.

un·fleeced′, adj., un·flee′ing, adj., un·fleet′ing, adj., un·Flem′ish, adj., un·fletched′, adj., un·flexed′, adj., un·flick′er·ing, adj., un·flick′er·ing·ly, adv., unflight′y, adj. See UN-, not.

un·flint′i·fy, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·flip′pant, adj., un′flir·ta′tious, adj., un·flitched′, adj., un·float′a·ble, adj., un·float′ing, adj. See UN-, not.

un·flock′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·flog′ga·ble, un·flogged′, adj., un·flood′ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·floor′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·floored′, adj., un·Flor′entine, adj., un·flor′id, adj., un·floss′y, adj., un·flounced′, unfloured′, adj., un·flour′ished, unflour′ish·ing, adj., un·flout′ed, adj., un·flow′ered, adj., un·flow′ing, adj., un·flown′, adj., un·fluc′tu·at′ing, adj., un·flu′ent, adj., un·flu′id, adj., un·fluked′, adj., un·flunked′, adj., un′flu·o·res′cent, adj., un·flur′ried, adj., un·flushed′, adj., un·flus′tered, adj., un·flut′ed, adj., un·flut′ter·a·ble, adj., un·flut′tered, adj., un·flut′ter·ing, adj., un·flu′vi·al, adj., un·flux′ile, adj., un·fly′ing, adj., un·foaled′, adj., unfo′cused, adj., un·fo′cused, unfo′cussed, adj., un·fog′gy, adj., un·foil′a·ble, adj., un·foiled′, adj., un·foist′ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fold′a·ble, adj. That cannot be unfolded. Obs.

un·fold′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

un·fold′a·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fold′ure, n. = UNFOLDMENT.

un·fo′li·aged, adj., un·fo′li·at′ed, adj., un·fol′low·a·ble, un·fol′lowed, un·fol′low·ing, adj., un′fo·ment′ed, adj., un·fond′, adj., un·fon′dled, adj., un·fond′ness, n., un·food′ful, adj., un·fool′able, un·fooled′, un·fool′ing, adj., un·fool′ish, adj., un·foot′sore′, adj., un·fop′pish, adj., un·for′aged, adj., un′for·bear′ance, n., un′for·bear′ing, adj., un′for·bid′, adj., un′for·bid′den, adj., un′for·bid′den·ness, adj., un′for·bid′ding, adj., un·force′a·ble, adj., un·forced′, adj., un·fore′ly, adv., un·forc′i·ble·ness, n., un·forc′i·bly, adv., un·ford′a·ble, adj., un·ford′a·ble·ness, n., un·ford′ed, adj., un′fore·bod′ed, adj., un′fore·bod′ing, adj., un′fore·cast′ed, adj., un′fore·gone′, adj., un′fore·go′ing, adj., un′fore·know′a·ble, adj., un′fore·known′, adj., un′fo·ren′sic, adj., un′fore·or·dained′, adj., un′fore·see′a·ble, adj., un′fore·see′a·bleness, n., un′fore·see′a·bly, adv., un′fore·see′ing, adj., un′fore·see′ing·ly, adv., un′fore·seen′, adj., un′fore·seen′ly, adv., un′fore·seen′ness, n., un′fore·short′ened, adj. See UN-, not.

un·for′est, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un′fore·stall′a·ble, un′fore·stalled′, adj., un·for′est·ed, adj., un′fore·tell′a·ble, adj., un′fore·tell′ing, adj., un′for·get′a·bil′i·ty, n., un′for·get′ful (un′fôr·thĕt′fōōl; un′fôr·thĕt′fōōl; -f'l; 181), adj., un′fore·told′, adj., un′fore·warned′, adj., un′fore·warn′ed·ness, n., un·for′feit, adj., un·for′feit·a·ble, adj., un·for′feited, adj., un′for·gi′ve·bil′i·ty, n., un·forge′a·ble, adj., un·forged′, adj. See UN-, not.

un′for·get′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un′for·get′ful, adj., un′for·get′ting, adj., un′for·get′ting·ly, adv., un′for·giv′a·ble, adj., un′for·giv′a·ble·ness, n., un′for·giv′a·bly, adv., un′for·giv′en, adj. [cf. AS. unforgiefen], un·forgone′, adj., un′for·got′, adj., un′for·got′ten, adj. See UN-, not.

un·fork′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·forked′, adj., un·fork′ed·ness, n., un′for·lorn′, adj. See UN-, not.

un·form′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·for′mal·ized, adj., un·form′a·tive, adj., un·for′mi·da·ble, adj., un·for′mu·la·ble, adj., un·for′mu·lar·i′z·a·ble, adj. See UN-, not. [UN-.]

un·for′mu·lar·ize, v. t. See 1st un·for′mu·lat′ed, adj., un′for·mu·lis′tic, adj., un′for·sak′en, un′for·sak′ing, un′for·sook′, adj., un·for′ci·ble·ness, n., un·forc′i·bly, adv., un·ford′a·ble, adj., un·ford′ed, adj. See UN-, not.

un·for′ti·fy, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un′for·tu′i·tous, adj. See UN-, not. [ate. Obs.

un·for′tun·a·ble, adj. Unfortunun·for′tu·na·cy, n. Misfortune. Obs.

unfortunate signs. Astrol. = UNFROPITIOUS SIGNS (see NOCTURNAL SIGNS).

un·for′ward, adj., un·for′warded, adj., un′fos·sil·if′er·ous, adj., un·fos′sil·ized, adj., un·fos′tered, adj., un·fought′, adj., unfought′en, adj., un·foul′, unfoul′a·ble, un·fouled′, adj., unfound′ered, adj., un·found′tained, adj., un·fowl′like′, adj. See UN-, not.

un·foxed′, adj. Sober. Obs.

un·fox′y, adj., un·frac′tured, adj., un·fra′grance, n., un·fra′grant, adj., un·fra′grant·ly, adv., un·frail′, adj., un·fram′a·ble, adj., un·fram′a·ble·ness, n., unfram′a·bly, adv., un·framed′, adj., un·fran′chised, adj., un′-Fran·cis′can, adj. See UN-, not.

un·frank′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·frank′, adj., un·frank′a·ble, adj., un·frank′ed, adj., unfrank′ly, adv., un·frank′ness, n., un′fra·ter′nal, adj., un·fraz′er·niz′ing, adj., un·fraud′ulent, adj., un·frayed′, adj., unfreck′led, adj. See UN-, not.

un·free′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·freed′, adj. See UN-, not.

un·free′hold′, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·free′ly, adv., un′-free′-trade′, adj., un·freez′a·ble, adj. See UN-, not.

un·freeze′, v. t. & i. See 1st un·freez′ing, adj., un·freight′ed, adj., un·french′i·fied, adj. See UN-, not.

un·french′i·fy, v. t. See 1st UN-.

un·fren′zied, adj. See UN-, not.

un′fre·quent′ (ŭn′frē·kwĕnt′), v. t. [See 1st UN-.] To cease to frequent. Obs.

un′fre·quent′ed, adj. [un- not + frequented.] Rarely visited; seldom or never resorted to by human beings. — un′fre·quent′ed·ness, n.
Syn. — Lonely, deserted. Ant. — Crowded, thronged.

un·fret′ (ŭn·frĕt′), v. t. [1st un- + fret.] To smooth. Obs.

un·friend′ (ŭn·frĕnd′), n. 1. An enemy. Chiefly Scot. 2. One not a Friend.

un·friend′ed (ŭn·frĕn′dĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. Having no friends; not befriended. — un·friend′ed·ness, n.

un·friend′ing, adj. Not befriending.

un·friend′ly (ŭn·frĕnd′lĭ), adj. 1. Not friendly; not kind or benevolent; hostile; as an unfriendly nation. 2. Not favorable; not adapted to promote or support any object; as, weather unfriendly to health. — un·friend′li·ly, adv. — un·friend′li·ness, n. — un·friend′ly, adv.

un·fright′ed (ŭn·frīt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Unfrightened; fearless.

un·frock′ (ŭn·frŏk′), v. t. [1st un- + frock.] To deprive or divest of a frock; specif., to deprive of priestly character or privilege; as, to unfrock a priest.

un·fro′zen (ŭn·frō′z'n), past part. of UNFREEZE.

un·fro′zen, adj. Not frozen; uncongealed.

un·fruc′ti·fy (ŭn·frŭk′tĭ·fī), v. t. To make unfruitful.

un·fruc′tu·ous (-tū·ŭs), adj. Unfruitful. — un′fruc·tu·os′i·ty (ŭn′frŭk·tū·ŏs′ĭ·tĭ), n. — un·fruc′tu·ous·ly, adv.

un·fruit′ful (ŭn·frōōt′fŏōl), adj. Not producing fruit or offspring; infertile; barren; unproductive; not remunerative; unprofitable. — un·fruit′ful·ly, adv. — un·fruit′ful·ness, n.

un′ful·fill′, un′ful·fill′ (ŭn′fŏōl·fĭl′), v. t. To fail to fulfill. — un′ful·fill′ment, un′ful·fil′ment (-mĕnt), n.

un·fumed′ (ŭn·fūmd′; 66), adj. Not exposed to fumes; not fumigated; also, not distilled.

un·fund′ed (ŭn·fŭn′dĕd; -dĭd; 119), adj. Not funded; floating; as, an unfunded debt.

un·fur′ (ŭn·fûr′), v. t. To strip of fur.

un·furl′ (ŭn·fûrl′), v. t. & i. [1st un- + furl.] To loose from a furled state; to unfold; to expand; to open or spread; as, to unfurl sails; to unfurl a flag.

un·fur′nish (ŭn·fûr′nĭsh), v. t. [1st un- + furnish.] To strip of what furnishes, now esp. of furniture; to divest; to dismantle.

un·fur′ther·some (ŭn·fûr′thĕr·sŭm), adj. Hampering; difficult. Scot.

un·fu′si·ble (ŭn·fū′zĭ·b'l), adj. Infusible. — un·fu′si·ble·ness, n. — un·fu′si·bly, adv.

un·gain′ (ŭn·gān′), adj. [ME. ungein. See UNGAINLY; cf. GAIN, adj.] Archaic & Dial. a Inconvenient of access or passage; hence, inconvenient; unpleasant; disagreeable. b Clumsy; ungainly; unskilled.

un·gain′like′ (-lĭk′), adj. Unseemly.

un·gain′ly (-lĭ), adv. In an ungainly manner.

un·gain′ly, adj. [ME. ungeinliche, adv., fr. ungein inconvenient. See UN- not; GAINLY.] 1. Not gainly; clumsy; awkward; uncouth; as, an ungainly walk. 2. Unsuitable; unprofitable. Obs. Hammond.
Syn. — See AWKWARD. Ant. — Graceful.
— un·gain′li·ness, n.

un·gain′ness (ŭn·gān′nĕs), n. Awkwardness.

un′ga·ite (ōōng′gä·ĭt), n. [From Unga I., Kamchatka.] Petrog. An oligoclase-dacite.

